SECTION ON POULTRY

There has been some discussion and expression of interest in the formation of an association of the American poultry pathologists along lines similar to the organizations that have been formed by other veterinary specialty groups. I have had some correspondence with Doctors Levine and Van Roekel about having a meeting in connection with the A.V.M.A. convention to discuss the formation of such an organization.

We would like to have the opinion of a number of individuals in the field about the desirability of having such a meeting. Will you please complete the short form below and return it at your earliest convenience so that we can be guided by your opinion.
