A VISIT TO THE WHITE CITY.

On last Thursday ye editor with his grip and Bicycle, made a pilgrimage to the beautiful city of Chicago, taking the northern route over the Chicago North-Western Ry. Our first stop was at Ames, while waiting for the train I called on Ed. Weeks, a former Des Moines boy, he likes Ames well. In a few hours I was in Marshalltown, which contains about 15,000 inhabitants, about 150 colored, of which the most of them are doing well.

Joseph L. Wood is one of the electrical engineers at the soldiers home. Mr. R. J. Wright, an old and highly respected citizen owns a first class tonorial shop, with Mr. Albert Walker as a partner. Then there is E. K. Kirkland who owns and conducts a lunch room and restaurant, known as Bod's Place which is well patronized by the white race. Mr. and Mrs. Kirkland both work in the restaurant and are having all they can do. They have been here for three years. Mr. J. Williams runs an express wagon. The Soldier's Home consist of six large buildings three and four stories high, with several frame houses and a large beautiful rolling lawn. They have about 600 of the old boys who wore the blue, with only five colored, which is a small percent of our race.

Among those who own their homes are Cal. Wheeler, Thos. Cobbs, Mr. Johnson, R. J. Wright and several others we do not know. Mr. J. L. Wallace is saving his money and putting it to an advantage. In a few hours we were in Cedar Rapids one, of the prettiest located cities of Iowa, where dwells about 300 colored citizens among about 40,000 inhabitants. The colored people have only one church, the A. M. E., presided over by that worthy veteran in the work, Rev. Rhinheart. Mr. Marshall Perkins owns the finest restaurants and oyster house in the city and enjoys a very large trade. Mr. and Mrs. Perkins both have an eye to business, they have been in the business thirteen years. Mr. E. D. Marshall is doing a large business washing and cleaning carpets with his machine; he has nearly all the trade of the city. Mr. Lowery is building a two story house of nine rooms, it is almost completed. They have two sons who enjoy the distinction of being the first colored graduates from the High School. W. B. Lowery has entered the Coe College to take a complete course. There are other colored families here doing well. Mr. W. H. Milligan, formally of Des Moines, has purchased a farm within two miles of town and is putting in small fruit. From here we made our way to the magical city of the west arriving there Saturday morning about eight o'clock.

There we entered a city of wealth beaming with its millions of beings, in a drizzling rain, coming from some direction we knew not, for the cardinal points were not right to my mind. On meeting my brother, Mr. E. W. and pushing ourselves through the crowded streets for an hour we succeeded in reaching the coal apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Butler, 4026 Cottage Grove, in Chicago one soon realize that he is in a great city of push and activity—from the immense traffic, the great heavy three and four horse freight and transfer wagons heavily loaded, the street cars passing every five minutes with three linked together, besides the elevated and subterranean lines carrying many hundreds of passengers. Then to see the innumerable vehicles of every shape and design, with the many delivery wagons goes to make up the moving part of Chicago, except the thousands of pedestrians that crowd the side walks every day. Of course readers in the brief space allowed for this article and the short time that I remained in the White City on the lake, I cannot do justice suffice it to say that the Masonic building 20 stories high, the many large insurance buildings 10 and 15 stories high, Board of Trade, buildings, Court House, City Hall and Post Office are all magnificent structures. In Chicago a person can see all kinds, classes and nationalities of races, and I was very glad to see some of the members of the Negro race in the great race for wealth and honor. There are more than 50,000 colored citizens of Chicago, with perhaps about 30 colored churches, one hospital, three good drug stores, two large transfer firms, two undertakers and a host of barber shops, restaurants, cigar stands, grocery and food stores, saloons etc.

There are about 25 lawyers; the leading ones are Hon. Ed. Morris, Hon. Hale G. Parker, Hon. Ed. Wright, Hon. W. N. Martin (representative elect) Mr. Albert B. George, H. P. Jones, E. E. Wilson and Mr. Alexander and about 20 doctors, among the best are Dr. D. Williams, Dr. Curtis, Dr. E. S. Hall, Dr. J. N. Croker, Dr. Parker, Dr. A. W. Williams and Dr. Miller. all doing a good business.

J. L. Parks owns a first class undertaker and embalmer on S. State street; the Jones brothers have a rushing transfer business. Mr. Smiley one of the wealthy men of the race is doing a large business in catering. It is "nothing to meet colored professional men and skilled laborers; next I will speak now about the different societies. Quinn Chapel is the largest and finest colored church in Chicago. Rev. Carey is pastor, they have an average attendance in Sunday School of 250. The next is Bethel Chapel with Dr. Ransom as pastor they both have fine pipe organs. Then comes the Baptist will seat several hundred people Rev. Thomas is their pastor. St. Thomas Episcopal is a nice little church also the Catholic and Presbyterian. The Sunday's Men Club was largely attended at Bethel. It being woman's Sunday, the programme was fine, it consisted of Addresses by Col. Marshall, Major Johnson, Dr. Curtis, Dr. Miller all members of the famous 8th Regiment. Arman's Orchestra furnished the music.

In the evening Dr. Ransom preached on the (White Man's Burden). He took the view that the white man depended on the tropic Zones for 44 percent of the necessities of life and that the white man would never colonize the tropics but would as a necessity civilize and teach the natives so they could furnish the labor and products of the tropics. While in Chicago I met quite a number of Iowa and Des Moines friends, Mesdames, Hudlin and Rosa LaCour, Mrs. Berry and two daughters one Alice is married to D. Crocker, Mr. Fred Hooker, Mr. and son Joe Jones, Mr. White, Mr. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter who are now running a grocery store, Mr. E. W. Thompson and Chas. Harris. In an article next week I will give you a brief history of the famous old Libby prison which is soon to be torn down; from Chicago I stopped off at Clinton, Ia., it is one of the nicest laid out beautiful residences, it is a city of about 25,000 of which about 200 are colored, some of them are doing exceedingly well in business of their own. J. N. Hancock owns a first class restaurant, high grade confectionary and ice cream. He has a factory and makes his own ice cream. He has been in the business 14 years and prior to that time 6 years in the grocery business in Sterling, Ill. F. E. McNeil owns a large confectionary store. He has a factory and makes his own candy and ices. J. T. Culberson is a dealer in fruits, confectionary and cigars also soda fountain, then Mr. Wm. Allen has a good restaurant and shop house and Rev. Stewart has recently opened up a nice fruit, candy and cigar stand all these men has good first class business in fact the two former name! places enjoys the cream of the city trade.

"A word to the wise is sufficient" and a word from the wise should be sufficient, but you ask, who are the wise? Those who know. The oft repeated experience of trustworthy persons may be taken for knowledge. Mr. W. M. Terry says Chamberlain's Cough Remedy gives better satisfaction than any other in the market. He has been in the drug business at Elkton, Ky. for twelve years; has sold hundreds of bottles of this remedy and nearly all other cough medicines manufactured, which shows conclusively that Chamberlain's is the most satisfactory to the people, and is the best. For sale by all Druggists.

COLORED ORPHAN'S HOME.

Mrs. Amanda Smith the colored evangelist who has made such a wide reputation in this country who has for sometime been devoting her energies to the founding of a home for color orphan children, she has already raised sufficient funds to purchase a small tract of land and a home at North Harvey, Chicago and will soon be ready for occupancy. It will be known as the "Amanda Smith's Industrial Home" for colored orphans, rooms are being furnished by the church societies Mrs. Smith is now working to raise a fund for the endowment of the home, and she expects to get about $25,000 in a few months. She draws large audience where ever she goes. She is a grand woman engaged in a noble work.

Gold Democrats were again assured last week at the New York banquet that they would return to the party if they were willing to accept the old ratio of 16 to 1. The idea that any sensible person should want to leave the high level of the 1000 dollar to help along the 40c fraud.

Hon. James S. Clarkson, who was so prominent in the Republican councils during Harrison's campaign, will be elected Secretary of the United States' senate, when that body organizes. Mr. Clarkson proved his friendship to the Negro when he was assistant postmaster.

There are some professional politicians in Iowa who think that the Negro is something to assist them into office, and that he should be contented when he performs that duty.

Colonel Bryan has not signified his intention of enlisting to help make up the 100,000 troops that will be needed for the Philippine campaign. It is safer to lead the forces of 16 to 1.

and use Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for all pains for the stomach and all unnatural looseness of the bowels. It always cures.

Cecil Rhodes Succeeded.

It is said that Cecil Rhodes once tried to impress his importance upon a little German clerk in the government office at Johannesburg and met with signal failure. Rhodes, says the New York Tribune, had to stand in line and didn't like it. "Please attend to me at once," he said. "I can't wait." "When your turn comes, mister," mumbled the clerk. "Confound you, sir! Don't you know who I am? I'm Rhodes."

"Oh, yes, I know that, but that doesn't worry me," was the unflinching reply. "If you were in Cape Town I'd have you discharged in a minute," roared Mr. Rhodes. "Yes; I have heard that they discharged people in Cape Town for doing their duty," answered the clerk; "but we sir! in Cape Town; this is a republic!"

Bombarded by the sun.

This is from the Leipzig Missionblatt: The Maharajah of Nepal recently committed suicide in horror at the disfigurement which an attack of smallpox had caused in her features. The Maharajah, who was passionately attached to her, first wreaked his vengeance on the physicians who had attended her in her illness. Then he flew at higher game. Out of the great temple he brought the idols, planted cannon before them and bade runners fire. In terror at the proposed blasphemy, they refused. Thereupon the Maharajah hanged several of them. The survivors then submitted, and the guns were fired and the idols blown to

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT.

Miss Helen Terry is a clever Society of player.

Lord Salisbury was the first and worthy premier to set foot in Australia.

Lord Roberts was the first general who ever won the Victoria Cross.

The Duke of Westminster spends, on an average, $250,000 a year on his sick list.

Queen Victoria invariably dined with her bedroom window slightly open at the top, no matter what the season of the year.

W. B. Gilbert looks more like a soldier than a writer of comic opera. He is a remarkably well-built, handsome man, with snowy-white hair and mustache.

The late Senator Morrill always made a speech early in the session, sent a copy bound in Russia to every Senator and a paper copy to every voter in Vermont.

Constantin Christomano, the author, who was reader to the Empress of Austria, has published a book of reminiscences of his court, much of which is biographical of the Empress.

There is still living in England a woman who danced at the Richmond ball given in Brussels the eve of Waterloo. She is Mrs. Carew, and has just entered her 80th year. At the time of the ball she was the "pretty" Miss Cliffe, and dressed in pale pink.

Another Persian prince is in Europe, and his presence is recalling all the many stories of the famous visit of the shah years ago. He is Malik Mahourza, second son of the shah. He is years old and delicate, and the emperor of his tour is to consult specialists.

Antwerp is preparing to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the birth of Van Dyke. It has been decided to have an exhibition of the works of the great Dutch master, and Belgian and foreign collectors who are fortunate enough to possess specimens of the Flemish painter's work will be asked to lend their assistance to the movement.

Count Francis Anton Thun-Hohenstein, the Austrian prime minister, has threatened to retaliate on Germany for the expulsion of Austria from Prussia, succeeded Count Bismarck as the head of Emperor Francis Joseph's government. He is a statesman of marked ability and courage, one of the richest of the Bohemian aristocracy, and is 61 years old.

On a recent Sunday Dr. Lyman had sent his letter of resignation to a people of Plymouth, Conn. Brooklyn. His resignation is necessitated by failing health. His time and remaining strength will be devoted to The Outlook, of which he is the editor. He succeeded Henry Ward Beecher as pastor of Plymouth upon the death of that great preacher, ten years ago.

RECREATIONS OF THE NOTED.

William Gillette does not like any recreations whatsoever. The younger Coquelin goes in for bicycling and painting.

Cecil Rhodes rides two hours every morning before breakfast; he reads the classics chiefly, and "Vanity Fair" is his favorite novel. He collects old furniture, china and curios.

When Sarah Bernhardt is in town she devotes herself to sculpture, painting and cycling, and when in the country, fishing, boating and lawn tennis claim her attention. Books are a pleasure to her wherever she is.

Mrs. Brown-Potter's amusements are growing flowers and all kinds of outdoor sports. The prince of Monaco is an expert on ocean lore, while Octave Thonet is versatile—he goes in for rowing, wheeling, driving, carpenter work, photography and whist.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

The way to a woman's heart leads in the opposite direction.

Discovering bad qualities is not half so disappointing as good ones.

Nobody can understand a woman except herself, and she never does it the same way twice.

All the world wears a mask before company, but a woman doesn't take hers off, even before her own looking-glass.

When a woman finds she is growing stout she begins to complain that she never eats anything and that her clothes are too large for her.

If there are two roads before a woman, and she knows that down the right road is the thing she is seeking, she will go down the left one just to see if it might not be there by accident.—New York Press.

DEVIOUS DEFINITIONS.

Gossip—The mother-in-law of falsehood.

Time—A silent barber who relieves men of their hair.

Hope—A needle, the point of which is disappointment.

DICK RODNEY; or, The Adventures of An Eton Boy... BY JAMES GRANT.

CHAPTER VII.—(Continued.) The vines, in luxuriance, bordered the pathway as we ascended, and it is said that for years after the wine had been taken from these vines to England, or elsewhere, it always ferments and becomes agitated when the vines are from whence it came as in blue; but this tale may perhaps be as true as the accounts of these mighty ruins which Philip Ayers once covered all the Fortunate Islands, but of which no trace remains now.

Tom Lambourne and I, after a ramble of some hours, found ourselves in a wild and solitary place, where blocks of lava and heaps of yellow pumice dust were lying among shattered masses of basalt, which were studded with spars and crystals that glittered as the sunshine streamed through a ravine upon them. The sides of the ravine were clothed with rich copsewood and little thickets of the retama-blanca, which there grows about ten feet high, and is covered with tufts of odoriferous flowers. The distant sea, the waves of which seemed to break or sleep in the sunshine, closed the perspective of this ravine; and there we could see the Eugenie at anchor, with her snow white courses loose and her other canvas neatly handled.

Being warmed by our walk, we sat down within the mouth of a species of natural grotto, formed by masses of lava and basalt, which in some past ages the throes of the volcano had thrown and heaped together. There a clear spring gurgled joyously from a fissure in the rocks; and now, opening our breakfast bag, we proceeded to make our breakfast on the viands I had brought from the ship—to wit, bologna sausage and biscuits, with brandy and water. The air was deliciously clear, and over the brow of the rocky chasm in which we sat, there fell a natural screen of all the wild Indian fig and vine creepers, and these shaded us from the increasing heat of the morning sun. All was still there.

We heard only the coo of the great wood pigeons among the gorgeous foliage, or the sweet notes of the little golden colored canary birds, as they twittered about us when we scared them from their nests, which they usually build in the barrancas or water-courses, such being the coolest places in that volcanic isle. CHAPTER VIII. How Tom Was Tattooed. My companion was a short and thick-set sailor, about forty years of age, and whose figure was suggestive of great muscular strength; his hair was cut short, but his whiskers were of the most voluminous description, as he was anxious to conceal as much as possible of the strange circles, stripes, and grotesque designs with which his sun-burned face was covered, and which, by their form and blackness, imparted a hideous aspect of features that otherwise were rather good looking and pleasing.

He was an intelligent man, and well read, for the humble class to which he belonged. "Aye, Master Rodney," said he, on perceiving that I was still surveying him with something of wonder (and his face was a point on which he was particularly sensitive); "you see what a precious figure-head these 'arnal niggers on the coast of Africa made for me."

"How did this happen, Tom?" said I, filling his drinking horn. "About twenty years ago, Master Rodney, I belonged to the Arrow, a smart Liverpool bark of two hundred and twenty tons register. I made many voyages in her to South America, but at last, as bad luck, or my destiny (as men say in the play) would have it, she was chartered for the west coast of Africa, to trade with the natives, but not in black cattle, for slavery was never our line of business.

"We sailed from the Mersey in June, and early in August found ourselves at the mouth of the Congo river, after a prosperous voyage; but on the night we made the land, a heavy gale came on, and it veered round all the points of the compass in an hour. The sea and the sky was as black as they could be, and everything else was black too, except the breakers on the shore to leeward, and heaven knows they were white enough—too white and too near to be pleasant.

"Our skipper handled the Arrow well, and she obeyed every touch of the helm as a horse might do its bridle; she was sharply built, but heavily sparred, and no other square-rigged craft upon the sea could beat her on a wind.

"I think I see her yet, Master Rodney, for she was the first vessel I shipped on board of, and hang me if I didn't love her as if she had been my old mother's house, near Deptford docks.

"Her hull was long and low, and sat like a swan in the water, only that she was not white, like a swan, but as black as paint could make her. Afore, the masts tapered away like fishing-rods, crossed by the square yards, while stays, shrouds, halyards and hamper were always taut, as if made of cast-iron; but for all this, she failed to weather that gale of the Congo river. She missed stays and got sternway, so you see, sir, it was soon all over with her after that."

"How?—I do not understand."

"Don't you know what sternway is? What do they teach folks ashore? She was taken aback in the hurricane—the most dangerous thing that can happen to any vessel—a sudden shift of wind threw her on her broadside in the trough of the sea, and with her deck toward the storm, so her hatches were soon beaten in—all the masts that she was driven on a coral reef near the Shark's Nose, where the sea was like a sheet of iron around her.

"Five poor fellows were washed away and drowned; but when day broke, and the storm abated a little, the captain, six men and I got ashore in the long boat, just as the poor Arrow began to break up, for we could see the waves beating into her and rending asunder the decks, the inner and outer sheathing, as if they couldn't scatter the cargo fast enough far and wide.

"Well, there we were, shipwrecked in a wild place on the west coast of Africa, at a part of the Congo river where the mangrove trees grow into the water, and have their lower branches covered with oysters and barnacles.

"We could see high blue hills in the distance when the sun came up from the beach for a while looking ruefully at the wreck, of which little now remained but a few timbers, till the increase of the morning heat drove us for shelter into a grove of oil-palms, and there, Master Rodney, we found wild, lilies and hyacinths growing wild, and six times larger than you ever saw in England.

they thought it was dangerous to fall upon me and kill me outright, saying that my stupid cries had brought the wild animal upon them. Then an old fellow, whose wool had become white with age, who was copped up in the roof of a tree, where he generally perched himself, and who was considered a wise man, came forward and demanded their attention. He had been a brave fellow in his time, for he wore a row of human teeth at his neck, all strung on a lanyard, with a bit of an old quart bottle which he had found upon the beach, and wore as a 'great medicine,' or order of the garter, perhaps. He saved me by saying in their outlandish gibberish that I was evidently under the protection of the great fetish, in honor of whom I should be made like themselves and handsomely tattooed.

"I might as well have hallooed to the wind in a tearing pampoo, or a stiff reef-topsail breeze, Master Rodney, as have attempted to oppose this piece of Congo kindness. In a minute I was hove down under the nasty, black paws of five-and-forty howling and jabbering niggers, all smeared me with palm-oil out of calabashes and old galleons, and they persisted in rubbing it into me till all my skin was nearly peeled off.

"Then the old fetishman, who lived in the root of the tree, after making three summersets and uttering six howls, ornamented all my face, hands and arms in this fashion, using a kind of knife, which he dipped from time to time in some black stuff that he carried on a cocoanut shell. In ten minutes I was all over serpents and circles, stripes, pookhows and hangers.

"I went to my heart to have my beauty spoiled, but I was far past making any opposition, and so I have had to go through life in all weathers, with a face like the clown's in a pantomime.

"They made me so like a nigger that they scarcely knew me from one of themselves. This so favored my escape that I soon found an opportunity of giving the Mussulongs the slip in the night, and made a shift, after many a break-hart adventure, to reach a British settlement.

THE TEXAS HOT MAN.

Sufficient Ice Was Found to Cool Him. "I was on a chair car in Texas a few nights ago, 'toward side of San Antonio," said a New Orleans business man to a Times-Democrat reporter, "when a typical frontier tough got on board. He was a little chap, but powerfully built, and about half-drunk. As soon as he came in he drew a revolver that looked as big as a stovepipe, and bawled out: 'I'm the hottest man this side of El Paso. I can lick any galoot on the train!' There were some ladies at the far end of the car, and a good-looking man, who was with them, half arose as if to put a stop to the disturbance. He reconsidered the enterprise, however, and sent for the conductor instead. Meanwhile the wandering eyes of the stranger lit on the headrests of the chairs, which were round, padded disks about a foot across. Naturally they were suggestive of targets, and he proceeded to draw a bag on several. The occupants promptly sought seclusion under the seats, greatly to the edification of the bad man with the gun. 'Wow! wow!' he roared. 'I'm the hottest man in Texas. Watch me plug that fellow in the heel!' The passenger referred to crawled hastily into the woodbox, and, to tell the truth, we were all in a state of pitiable funk. Just then the conductor came walking briskly in. He, too, was a little fellow, but he had a voice like a megaphone. 'Where's that bad man?' he boomed. We held our breath and looked for a tragedy instantaneously. 'Here I am,' yelled the other chap. 'Yow! I'm the hottest—' 'Yes, I heard about that,' said the conductor, walking right up to him. 'Gimme that gun.' To my amazement, the stranger permitted him to take it without the least resistance. 'Now, look here,' the conductor went on, 'you're too warm for this car. We've got a stove here, and you make it unpleasant. So you get right out on that platform, blast your eyes, and stay there until you lose some of your heat.' The hot man meekly allowed himself to be propelled through the door, and staid on the platform all the rest of the trip. The men inside looked at each other rather sheepishly, and I asked the conductor confidentially how he dared to take such chances. 'Oh, there wasn't any risk,' he said. 'I had the fellow sized up. If it had been somebody else I might have acted differently. One of the first things you've got to learn in this business is how to tell a bluffer.'

Demons When They Fight. You would hardly believe that moles, clammy, almost blind little beasts that they are, become perfect demons when they quarrel. No one knows what they quarrel about, but if they once start fighting one has to die. This will keep on in the presence of any number of spectators, hanging on to one another like bulldogs, and burying their enormously strong jaws and teeth in one another's flesh. Hedgehogs, another type of the quiet, inoffensive animal, not only fight, but always to the death, and when one is killed, the other generally devours him. Hares on the other hand are proverbially the most timid of creatures. Yet they can fight. A fight between two hares is a ludicrous sight, as they skip and jump over one another. But a blow from the hind legs of a hare is no joke to his opponent. Among birds, robins are the most pugnacious. More than one case could be quoted of two robins so frantically set on killing one another as to have allowed themselves to be picked up in the hands of a looker-on, and there have lain, with beak and claws deep buried in one another's plumage.

His Old Yellow Almanac. I left the farm when mother died, and changed my place of dwelling. My daughter Susie's stylish house, right in the city street, before I came, had sort of scared the fellows. How I would find the town-folks ways so difficult to meet. They said I'd have no comfort in the rustic life, and I'd have to wear stiff collars every week-day right along. I find I take to city ways just like a duck to water. I like the racket and the noise, and never tire of shows; and there's no end of comfort in the man-of-war of my daughter. And everything is right at hand, and money's ready flow. And hired help is all about, just listen for my call. But I like the yellow almanac from off my kitchen wall.

The house is full of calendars from attic to the cellar; they're painted in all colors, and are fancy. In this particular I'm not a modern fellow. And the yellow-covered almanac is good enough for me; I'm used to it, I've seen it round from boyhood to this day. And I like the jokin' at the bottom of each page. I like the way the 'B' stood out to show the week's beginning' (in the new-fangled calendars the 'C' days seemed sort of mixed). And the man upon the cover, though he was the same old 'tinner. With lungs and liver all exposed, still showing how we've got to get to Mr. Ayer. And I like the yellow almanac from off my kitchen wall.

I tried to find one recently; there wasn't one in the city. They told me great calendars in every sort of style, but I couldn't find one I looked at 'em in cold disdain, and answered 'em in pity; almanac than all that costly pile. 'I'd rather have my almanac than all that costly pile. For that old yellow almanac upon my kitchen wall, Wilcox, in the Century.

Mr. Editor:—For the good of suffering humanity, and particularly those afflicted from the most dreadful disease, rheumatism, we desire to inform your readers that the only specific in the world today for this disease is our "Five Drops" remedy. "Five Drops" is the name, and "Five Drops" is the dose. It is not only acknowledged as a specific by the many, but it is now acknowledged to be such by the medical profession, many of whom use this remedy in their daily practice, and they state to us that it is the only thing with which they can cure the rheumatism. This remedy not only positively cures this disease, but it never has failed and it never can fail to cure any and all of the following diseases: Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Catarrh, Creeping Numbness, Nervousness, Asthma, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, La Grippe, and diseases of the liver and gall bladder. "Five Drops" is not a patent medicine, but was perfected only after vast research in scientific fields, and at great expense. It never can be fully appreciated until it is used. Many of its cures border on the miraculous. Words are almost inadequate to express the great benefit which suffering humanity is daily deriving from the use of this most wonderful remedy. Its merits and medicinal properties are as far above the other remedies offered for sale as the mountain is above the valley. It is worth its weight in gold to anyone suffering from any of the diseases for which it is recommended. The price is low and within the reach of all. 41 per bottle for full size (300 doses), prepaid by mail or express, or six bottles for $5. Anyone desiring to test its efficacy without ordering a full size bottle, can have a 1-cent sample bottle sent by mail until it is paid for, sending 10 cents to the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Company, 167 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.

B. & O. New Steel Rails. The recent purchase of 28,000 tons of 55-pound steel rails by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad brings the total amount of rail bought since March 1, 1896, up to 115,300 tons, enough to relay 370 miles of track. Of the new rail ordered eight thousand tons is to be laid on the lines west of the Ohio river, and twenty thousand tons is to be used as follows: Forty-four miles on the Philadelphia division, 11 miles on the Second division, 13 miles on the Third division, 30 miles on the Fourth division, 21 miles on the Fifth division, 10 miles on the Connelville division and 21 miles on the Pittsburgh division. Much of the rail that will be taken up is still good enough to be relaid on branches of the line that are not heavy. The Southwestern division, between Parkersburg and St. Louis, will have forty thousand tons of rail to lay this spring.
