AFRO-AMERICAN CULLINGS

Exhibits of the handwork of 2,000-000 colored school children in all parts of America form part of the Lincoln jubilee exhibit in the Coliseum, Chicago.

One of the leading exhibits is that of Wilberforce university, the oldest colored institution in America, and a school where students are taught everything from Latin to making plowshares.

The Chicago display is under the direction of A. J. Brinkman of the Hendricks school and Miss Eileen Gerty of the Mitchell school.

Wilberforce university is near Xenia, O., and is in the direct line taken in the middle of the last century by slaves escaping from their southern bondage.

The university was founded by the Methodist Episcopal church, and Dr. Rust of the Freedmen's Aid was its first president.

The story reads like a fable. In 1831, 24 years ago, there was a political campaign on in Macon county.

On the Western German Front, I have seen them and talked to them, the men fighting out there in the trenches of Souchez.

There is nothing left of the village but a heap of ruins. The trenches are a few hundred yards from the village, behind a curtain of fire.

But our men are fearless. Their uniforms were all field-gray at one time, but nobody is able to distinguish their color now.

With the long nails of his little finger he traces the position on the map. Before the war he was a high school professor, but now he is a soldier every inch of him.

"This is our trench," he said, explaining the map to me. "Over there on the heights the artillery of the enemy stands."

"Yesterday we were under heavy fire from seven o'clock in the morning till nine o'clock at night. The trench was destroyed, and we were buried."

"About nine o'clock in the evening the shells began to fly over us. The enemy was trying to drive back a rifle column and to storm what was left of our trench.

"For a moment the enemy recoiled, but then believing us finished, he advanced again, as he had received reinforcements; yelling, singing and laughing he threw still more grenades."

"At the same moment we noticed that the Frenchmen were also beginning to attack from one of their trenches at our right, in the direction of the sugar refinery.

"I did it," answered one of the men, a farmer from Silesia. "I took an armful of grenades and fired away at random, but the bombs hit their mark. The Frenchmen fell back. When they advanced again I had no more grenades."

FIGHT LIKE DEMONS

Bernhard Kellermann Describes Trench War at Souchez.

Roads and Paths for Miles Around Under Fearful Fire—Little Hamlet Now Is Marked for All Time.

By BERNHARD KELLERMANN. (International News Service.)

On the Western German Front, I have seen them and talked to them, the men fighting out there in the trenches of Souchez.

"For a short while the enemy took possession of our destroyed ditch, but he could not hold it. When we took it by a counter-attack we found it filled with the bodies of dead French soldiers.

What is Souchez? A small village which nobody knew a few months ago and which now will never be forgotten again. The little hamlet is marked for all time, like Gravelotte and Verdun.

There is nothing left of the village but a heap of ruins. The trenches are a few hundred yards from the village, behind a curtain of fire.

CHIVALRY NOT DEAD

Old Spirit of Knighthood Maintained Among Aviators.

British and German Air Raiders Notify Enemy of Fate of Rival Aviators—Flyers Are Type With Marked Characteristics.

By FREDERICK PALMER. (International News Service.)

British Headquarters, France.—"Though it has been repeatedly stated that chivalry does not exist in this war," said a British aviator.

"The reports are made in a manner worthy of aviators and they are the only communications that ever pass between the two foes, which watch for heads to snipe at from their trenches.

It is taken to battalion headquarters, which wires the fact on to the aviation headquarters, where the fate of a comrade may be known a few hours after he has left his home aerodrome; and, in another few hours someone in England may know the fate of a relative.

"That is one of the advantages of belonging to the flying corps," say the British aviators. "It may be weeks before his relatives and comrades know whether a man who is missing after a trench attack or counter-attack is a prisoner or dead. Such little kindnesses as this don't interfere with your fighting your best for your cause; at the same time they take a little of the savagery out of war.

With the first flush of dawn the British planes rise from the aviation grounds. All day they are coming and going, and in the dusk of evening they appear out of the vague distances of the heavens returning home to roost.

The flyers become a type with certain marked characteristics. No nervous man is wanted; and it is time for any man who shows any sign of nerves to take a rest. They seem shy, diffident, men of the kind given to observation rather than talking; men who are used to using their eyes rather than their hands.

They shy at the mention of their names in print; for that is not considered good for the spirit of this, the newest branch of the service of war. Anonymity is absolute. Everything is done by the corps for the corps. Some members have luck, as they put it, and some do not. L's name cannot be given, but his is the most dramatic of recent experiences.

He was a pilot flying in Belgium, far away from the British lines, when an anti-aircraft shell mashed his leg, which was hit by fifty bullets and fragments, the doctor estimated, as the story was told to the correspondent. He collapsed in his seat unconscious. His machine dropped at right angles to the line of flight, with the concussion. The observer who was with him managed to hold on by clutching at the machine gun.

They were careening down to the earth with the observer helpless from his position to do anything, when L recovered consciousness and mustered strength and presence of mind enough to right the machine and to turn it round in the midst of a cloud of shrapnel smoke. He was not going to be taken prisoner, despite his shattered leg, when he found that the shell which had so nearly done for him had not injured the engine or the plane. So he made for the nearest aerodrome.

There he managed to land safely. But, as he said, he did not dare to get out of his seat until the doctor came, for fear that his leg would fall off. He will get well.

ALIENS AS AEROPLANE SPIES

Any Fowl Can Be Trained to Do the Work, According to an English Writer.

The London Daily Chronicle republishes from the Cologne Gazette an odd article on the use of animals to signify the approach of enemy aeroplanes. The writer, who is evidently quite serious, has noticed that the sight of certain animals is much keener than that of human beings, and in a hasty view of the entire animal kingdom he comes to the conclusion that birds have the most alert vision and that hens and pigeons are the birds most get-at-able, most easily trained and most reliable.

Hens will protect their chickens against soaring birds of prey which the sharpest human sight cannot discover, and pigeons will fly in any weather and are extraordinarily docile. The training of a hen or a pigeon to announce the approach of an aeroplane is much easier than one would think. They are to be placed captured in the vicinity of a descending air machine, and as soon as the airman lands he is to rush at the unfortunate fowls and belabor them with a rod. This practice is to be repeated until the hen or pigeon believes its life to be endangered by anything on a large scale descending from the skies. All day long these terrified birds will strain their vision skyward, and the remotest speck in the vault of heaven will flutter the doves and hencoops as nothing else would.

Another bird which adapts itself to this military service is the common crow. He has the most extraordinary eyes, which enable him to see in front of him and behind. An object for which a man requires a telescope is easily discovered by the crow without any telescope. Crows are very wise creatures, says the Cologne writer, and once you catch your crow, train him and whack him sufficiently, you will be surprised at the results when the enemy aeroplanes come along.

The enormous use of aeroplanes during the present war has resulted in an extensive use of special motor aeroplane repair shops.

These portable aeroplane factories were first used by the French, and are marvels of ingenuity, for, in addition to carrying spare propellers and wings for aeroplanes, they are fitted with lathes, drilling machines, forges and, in fact, most of the apparatus necessary to completely rebuild an aeroplane, except, of course, the engine.

Fitted with powerful engines, these aeroplane motors can get up a tremendous speed despite their weight, and are quickly on the scene of any aeroplane smash.

In the roofs of many of these motors, by the way, are openings or penings through which an observer can watch the flight of the aeroplane.—Pearson's Weekly.

Order by Telephone. Electric confectionery shops are to be found in St. Paul and Minneapolis. The owner of these shops is a great believer in electricity and he has equipped his tables with candle lamps and desk telephone sets. A customer seats himself at the table, looks at a handy table directory or menu, finds the number of the particular dainty he desires and gives his order by telephone. A minute later the order is placed on his table by a waiter. The system saves a great deal of time because the waiters do not have to make a trip to the table to find out what the customer wants, nor do they have to wait until the customer is deliberate over his choice.

TO FIGHT FATIGUE

Peculiar Organization That Has Been Formed.

Society Believes That It Can Do Much for the Elimination of "That Tired Feeling" on the Part of the Workers.

In Providence, R. I., a museum of devices for the elimination of unnecessary fatigue has recently been opened. Ten of thousands of letters have been mailed calling for such devices, but, strange to say, only half a dozen have been sent. But several colleges, whose professors have been attending the course in scientific management, of which the museum is a result, have taken up this matter of unnecessary fatigue and are trying to devise means for its elimination.

Frank B. Gilbreth, who is in charge of this museum, says a large amount of the fatigue accumulated by workers of all sorts is preventable, being caused by wrong lighting, vibration, improper adjustment of chairs or stools to benches or desks, standing instead of sitting.

Naturally the first object of attention for the anti-fatigue crusaders was the chair—or the lack of it. Consequently several fatigue-saving chairs have been designed and are now being used in many factories at Providence, where the rule has become: "A chair for every worker, whether he needs it or not." Some of the chairs already in use are shown in the pictures printed here with, which are taken from photographs furnished by Mr. Gilbreth.

That showing the man filling a piece of steel was specially designed for such work as that, which has always been done standing. The chair, which can be made by any carpenter, has a solid projecting foot rest which enables the worker to push a file as vigorously sitting as standing. The chair is of such a height that the worker can stand or sit with equal ease.

The chair in which the woman is sitting at a sewing machine is the result of experiments in eliminating vibration. In large factories where much machinery is running, the vibration causes great fatigue. This chair is set upon strong springs that take up all the vibration.

The other chairs are ordinary chairs raised to exactly the right height for the particular work and the individual worker by placing their legs in sockets in wood blocks, which, of course, can be removed and adjusted to any height. Mr. Gilbreth is anxious to hear from anyone who has devised or who can devise any object that will eliminate any form of fatigue in any office or factory work.

A farmer strolled into a motor sales house. "What's this worth?" he asked, pointing to a small car.

"Five hundred dollars," was the reply.

"And that?" pointing to a better car.

"Seven hundred and fifty dollars.

"And that there one?" pointing to a seven passenger, with a jerk of his thumb.

"That is a fine car, and is worth $1,200."

"I'll take it," said the farmer.

"The car is cash you know," said the salesman.

"Yes, I got the money," said the farmer, as he pulled a roll of bills out of his pocket, peeled off twelve $100 bills and paid for the car. "Now you'll show me how to drive the critter?"

"Sure," said the salesman, "that's a part of the sale."

"So they started out, and, after going three miles, overtook a man in a wagon and honked and honked and tooted, but the man with the mules refused to heed.

"Finally the farmer said: 'This is my car, ain't it?'"

"It is," said the salesman.

"And I paid for it?"

"You did."

"Then," said the farmer, "you run right over that sunnawagon. That's the way automobile drivers always don's with me."

"State Use" System Adopted. One of the reform prison measures passed at the last session of the Pennsylvania legislature and signed by the governor introduces the so-called "State use" system in that state. This means that prisoners will be given an opportunity to manufacture goods for use in State institutions. It is believed this will eventually result in the abolition of convict labor in competition with free labor.

The KITCHEN CABINET

We are apris clad in veils.
Man by man was never seen;
All our deep communing falls
To remove the shadowy screen.

SOME CHERISHED RECIPES.

We are apt to forget the composition and preparation of many of the delicious old dishes of our grandmothers, so it is wise to use them occasionally so they may not be entirely forgotten.

Rivel Soup—Put a quart of milk on to scald. Beat an egg until light, pour, drop by drop, into two tablespoonfuls of flour, well mixed with one teaspoonful of chopped nuts and a teaspoonful of salt. Stir with a fork, and when well mixed roll the rivels with the hands. Drop the rivels into the milk, and when boiled serve at once.

Apple Bread—Mix together a cupful of cooked dried apple, one cupful of raisins, one cupful each of sugar and walnuts, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves and a half teaspoonful of allspice into a pint of bread sponge. Mix and knead as for bread and let stand until light. Bake in a slow oven for two hours. This will keep for weeks if well wrapped in oiled paper and kept from the air.

Dutch Cabbage—Chop a small cabbage with one small onion and when fine, pour over the fat from a small slice of fat salt pork which has been cut in cubes and browned. Add the pork, and into the frying pan pour sufficient vinegar to moisten, but not make the cabbage wet. Add a spoonful of salt and red pepper. Pour over the vinegar boiling hot and serve at once. This is a dish that you will not be allowed to forget, for everybody asks for it again and again. The secret of the palatability of this salad, as is true of all salads, is the seasonings. Taste it often to get the right proportion of salt, pepper and vinegar. If the vinegar is very acid and you need quite a little moisture, dilute the vinegar with water.

Steak With Olives—Broil the steak until properly cooked, season well with salt, butter and pepper and place in the oven to keep hot. Put a tablespoonful of butter in a sauce pan and when bubbling hot add a half cupful of finely-chopped olives; when hot pour over the steak. Serve with baked potatoes.

MORE GOOD DISHES.

A nice change from the everyday dishes will be found in the following:
Calves' Liver Vermicelli—Put five slices of bacon in a frying pan, cut in small pieces and fry until crisp; add a small onion chopped; cook until brown; add a tablespoonful of flour and a fourth of a pound of chopped liver; stir and cook, then add three-fourths of a cupful of strained tomato, and cook until thick. Add a half teaspoonful of kitchen bouquet and a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper and a cupful and a half of cooked vermicelli. Heat and serve hot.

Corn on the Cob—Corn is not always cooked properly. It is either over or under cooked. Corn husks should not be removed until just before cooking. Some cooks prefer to remove all the silk and leave the tender inner husks, tying them at the top of the ear, then remove them when the corn is cooked. Corn should be cooked until the milk is thickened. A teaspoonful of sugar may be added to improve the flavor, but do not add salt until the corn is cooked. Drop the ears into a kettle with plenty of boiling water and cook for fifteen to twenty minutes.

Cornmeal Pancakes—Take two cupfuls of flour, one-half cupful of cornmeal, one tablespoonful of baking powder, one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt, one and a half cupfuls of boiling water, one and a quarter cupfuls of milk, one egg. Add the meal to the boiling water and boil five minutes, then turn into a bowl, add milk and the dry ingredients, mixed and sifted, then the eggs well beaten, one-third of a cupful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Cook on a well-greased griddle.

Currant Mint Sauce—Two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped mint, a glass of currant jelly, cut in pieces, and the grated rind of a third of an orange. Serve with lamb or mutton.

Cornmeal Mush mixed with any chopped meat, molded, then when cold cut in slices to fry in a hot greased pan, makes a nice breakfast dish.

CORNMEAL DISHES.

The old-fashioned Johnny cake is such a favorite that it never goes to waste when nicely prepared and well baked. Take a cupful of yellow cornmeal, a half cupful of flour, a cupful of sour milk, two eggs, a half cupful of sweet milk, two tablespoonfuls each of shortening and sugar, a half teaspoonful of soda and salt. Mix all together and bake in a good-sized dripping pan so that the cake will be thin when done and thoroughly baked.

Another very similar one is sour milk corn bread. Take two cupfuls of cornmeal, two cupfuls of sour milk, two eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter and one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt. Cook all the ingredients, except the eggs and soda, in a double boiler for ten minutes. Allow the mixture to cool, add the well-beaten eggs and the soda dissolved in a tablespoonful of cold water.

Cornmeal Crisp—Take a cupful of sour milk, a cupful of cornmeal, a half teaspoonful of salt and soda. Mix well and pour into a hot frying pan, well greased with fat; set in the oven to bake. Split and spread with butter when serving.

Steamed Corn Bread—Sift a cupful of flour with one and a half teaspoonfuls of soda and one teaspoonful of salt; stir in a cupful of cornmeal, add a half cupful of molasses and two and a quarter cupfuls of sour milk. Mix thoroughly and put into a well-buttered pan or mold. Fill two-thirds full, cover and steam for five hours.

Cornmeal Mush—Into a quart of salted boiling water add a cupful or more of cornmeal, gradually; do not make it too thick, as it needs long cooking to make it wholesome. Stir and cook for a half hour or longer if a larger portion is used. Pour out into a dish to cool. To serve, cut in slices and fry in hot fat. Serve it fresh and hot with good, rich milk and you will have a fine supper dish. The New England people like a little dried codfish served to eat with the mush. This will supply salt, so that the mush need not be oversalted.

WHAT SHALL WE HAVE TO EAT?

On baking day when it is hard to think of an easy dessert try these dumplings: Add enough shortening to bread dough to make a rich biscuit; mold as for biscuits, and let stand until light. Have ready some sweet or dried apples with an abundance of juice. When the dumplings are light, dot with butter and pour the hot fruit juice over them. The more juice the more delicious will be the dumplings. Sprinkle with sugar, dust with cinnamon and bake a half hour in a hot oven.

Combination Salad—Take any kind of cold meat you happen to have left over, or different kinds will do. Grind the meat, then add one large, mellow apple, chopped fine; one-half cupful of chopped celery, three hard-cooked eggs, minced; one chopped onion, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and a few dashes of red pepper. Mix all together and add any salad dressing.

Bigos—Take any chopped meat of leftover fowl, beef or pork, add to sauerkraut with water and boil for three hours. This may be served reheated and will be good as long as it lasts.

Oatmeal Sausage—Take stock in which meat has been cooked and when boiling hot thicken with oatmeal; season well with salt, and when nearly done add some chopped cooked meat. Pour out into a dish and when cold slice and fry. Good for a breakfast or luncheon dish.

Mock Chicken—Put into a double boiler one cupful of milk; add salt and pepper and a few grains of curry. Let this boil, then add two teaspoonfuls of cornstarch, stirred smooth in a little cold milk. To the whole add a cupful of cold roast pork, chopped or cut in dice. When thoroughly hot serve with toast as creamed chicken.

Pohomac—Place a layer of cooked macaroni and cheese in a baking dish, then a layer of chopped ham, then a layer of mashed potatoes left from dinner. Pour over three-quarters of a cupful of milk; season well and bake brown.

Steel Railroad Ties. Short cuts by walking the tracks will no longer save time, when the railroads have replaced the old wooden ties by those made of steel. The sharp edges of its pigeon-hole construction will make very uncomfortable walking. In Oklahoma, where they have been used for some time, it is declared that they cost much less than the wooden ties, and that they have also been very valuable in keeping trespassers and cattle off the tracks.—The American Boy.

The Bitter End. "The bitter end" refers to the end of a ship's cable fastened to the "bits"—a frame of two strong pieces of timber fixed perpendicularly in the fore part of the ship for the purpose of holding the cables. The other end is fastened to the anchor. When the cable is out to "the bitter end" it is all out; the extremity has come.

AILMENTS OF BABIES

MANY OF THEM ARE EASILY PREVENTABLE.

Mother, by Wise Management, May Do Away With a Great Deal of the Troubles Which So Frequently Affect the Little Ones.

(Prepared by the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor.)

It is no doubt true, many times, that a fretful, unhappy baby is made so quite unnecessarily, and instead of rocking or patting him, or walking up and down with him in her arms, or possibly giving him a dose of medicine to quiet him, the mother should seek the cause of his discomfort and remove it.

It may be that the baby is thirsty. There is no doubt that babies frequently suffer from thirst. It is necessary, particularly in summer, to give plenty of drinking water to all children who are too young to get it for themselves. A drink of water will often satisfy a fretful baby and sometimes it is all that is needed to send a restless one off into quiet sleep.

One of the most frequent sources of misery for the baby is found in his clothing, especially in hot weather, when any clothing is a burden to him to wear. So many babies are overdressed that it is no wonder they fret. Compelled to wear woolen underwear, knitted socks, stiffly starched caps and dresses it is only natural that they should protest vigorously. Neither wool nor starch has any place in the clothing of the baby in hot weather.

One of the troubles from which a baby often suffers is prickly heat. This ailment appears as a fine red rash usually on the neck and shoulders and gradually spreads to the head, face and arms. It is caused by overheating, due either to hot weather or to the fact that the baby is too warmly dressed. The rash comes and goes with the heat, and causes intense itching. The remedy for it is to take off all the clothing and give the baby a sponge bath in tepid water in which common baking soda has been dissolved. Use one tablespoonful of soda to two quarts of water. Use no soap, and do not rub the skin, but pat it dry with a soft towel. After the skin is thoroughly dry, dust the inflamed surfaces with a plain talcum powder.

This ailment, like all others, is more readily prevented than cured. Frequent cool baths, very little clothing, simple food and living in cool rooms, or in the open air will probably save the summer baby from much of the annoyance of prickly heat and other more serious ills.

Fat babies are very apt to suffer from chafing, especially in hot weather. It appears as a redness of the skin in the buttocks or in the armpits, or wherever two skin surfaces persistently rub together.

Much the same treatment is required as in prickly heat. Never use soap on an inflamed skin. Instead use a soda, bran or starch bath, as advised in a former article. Directions for these baths are given in a publication called "Infant Care," which can be had, free of charge, by addressing a request to the Chief of the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

Great care should be taken not to let the baby scratch the skin, when it is irritated. Sift together two parts powdered cornstarch and one part boric acid, and use it freely on the chafed parts. Remove wet or soiled diapers at once. Wash and dry the flesh thoroughly, then dust the powder freely between the legs.

Milk Biscuits.

Required, one gill (one-fourth pint) of milk, one ounce of butter, one-half pound of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder. Put the milk in a saucepan, add butter, and put it on the fire to warm. Put one-half pound of flour into a basin, with one teaspoonful of baking powder. When the milk is hot pour in the flour, and stir into a smooth paste; roll out very thin, and cut out with a tumbler floured at the top. Grease a tin and place biscuits in the oven to bake for 20 minutes.

Rice Croquettes.

One-half cupful well washed rice cooked in one pint milk in double boiler till absorbed; add two tablespoonfuls sugar, one tablespoonful butter, a bit of grated lemon and two well-beaten eggs; mix thoroughly and spread on a plate to cool; shape with a knife, dip in beaten eggs, then crumbs, and fry in deep hot fat.

Spice Cake.

One cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter or lard, one cupful of sour milk, one cupful of raisins, one tablespoonful of soda, two cupfuls flour, a pinch of salt if you use lard, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful of cloves; mix in the order given and this cake will keep moist for a long time.

Raspberry Syrup.

This is a very refreshing drink, and is especially recommended for the invalid to whom a cooling drink with a tart flavor is appetizing. Boil the raspberries and strain, and to one pint of the strained juice add one pound of granulated sugar. Let it stand overnight. In the morning boil it again for about ten minutes and then bottle. When serving, put two tablespoonfuls in a glass of cold water.

Berry Tartlets.

Berry tartlets are very popular. They are made by lining patty pans with pastry, which is then baked. The berries are cooked with sufficient sugar to sweeten them well and then poured into the pastry shells. When cool whipped cream is sometimes used to garnish them.

Fried Pineapple.

Slice a ripe but firm pineapple. Core and dip the slices in a batter made by beating together one egg, a pinch of salt, tablespoonful of sugar, half a cupful of milk and two heaping tablespoonfuls of flour. Fry in butter on a pancake griddle. Dust with powdered sugar and serve.

DESIGNED FOR PRACTICAL USE

Refrigerator Properly Placed Is The Most Important Part of the Home.

METHOD SHOWN IS OF VALUE

Built in Between the Kitchen, Pantry, and Rear Porch, Its Advantages Are Apparent—Whole House Has Arrangement That Is Highly Attractive.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The fireplace, with its cheery, open fire, has often been called the heart of the home, but the refrigerator hidden away in some dark and dismal nook is the stomach of the home and is just as important as the heart, at least. The location of the humble refrigerator and its construction should be as carefully worked out as the design of the fireplace.

Homes are generally all designed in much the same way. The design starts at the front of the house and the rooms are carefully laid out. The kitchen, however, is left to fill up any space that may be left and the result is often inconvenient and unsatisfactory. The business end of a house is one of the most important. Anyone who has worked in a kitchen that has everything arranged so that nothing is handy and that is too small to admit of any changes being made knows what a relief it is to have a well-arranged kitchen.

The house shown here is planned in just the opposite way from most houses. The kitchen and all its parts have received a great deal of attention, so that all the parts are readily accessible. The refrigerator has been specially planned and is a model of modern construction.

This refrigerator is built in between the kitchen, pantry, and rear porch. There are doors to the food compartment on both the kitchen and the pantry sides. The box is fixed from the rear porch. Most ice boxes take up some valuable room, but this one is fitted into the partition so that a very small amount of space is wasted.

It would not be advisable for the builder to attempt to construct this refrigerator himself unless he has had some experience in this class of work. Refrigerator makers all over the country make special models that are finished "in the white" and can be set in place by the builder and then finished to harmonize with the rest of the woodwork.

The outside icing arrangement is one of the greatest improvements in modern refrigerators. The ice is not that will be used a lot in the summer-time. Equipped with a porch swing and some porch furniture it would present an ideal spot. In back of the dining room is a cozy dining porch which resembles a sun parlor in many ways. Two sides of this little room are taken up almost entirely by windows.

In many modern house designs the owners insist on sleeping porches, and this design supplies them. In the back of the house on the second floor are two screened porches so that all the household can sleep outside if they wish. Fresh air is one of the greatest tonics and health protectors that can be found anywhere, and there is lots of it. All you have to do is help yourself.

The exterior of this house is very attractive. The foundation is of brick and also the chimney from the fireplace. From the foundation to the window sills on the second floor the house is finished in clapboards. From here up to the roof the finish is of paneled stucco. The windows are artistically placed and give a distinctive touch to the exterior.

The living room and the dining room on the first floor are connected by a colonnade and a cased opening so that a large unobstructed space is assured. Under the colonnade on each side of the opening is a bookcase. This presents an attractive way of using up space that is often wasted in the end of the living room is a large brick fireplace. On each side of it is a small window with a seat underneath, making a pleasant, cozy little corner.

The second-floor plan calls for three bedrooms and a bathroom in addition to the two sleeping porches mentioned. Plenty of closet space is provided and the bedrooms are all of a good size. The one in the front part of the house is especially large.

Storage space is provided in the attic for the many things that are kept around the house that are not in use.

The whole design shows a real home that is designed for comfort and practical use.

Self-Steering Torpedoes.

The inventive mind of Young America has become proverbial. Its latest invention is greatly interesting, is a magnetic torpedo which is attracted by any great mass of metal, so that when it approaches the ship which is its target, it will turn and follow the unfortunate vessel in spite of all attempts to dodge it. This app-rrent hypnotism is caused by two wire magnetic coils four inches in diameter which are attached to two nickel arms projecting at right angles from the sides of the torpedo. The presence of any large mass of metal affects the current passing through those coils which in turn affects the motor controlling the rudder, so that the torpedo will continually turn toward its target no matter how often it may dodge.—American Boy.

The Time to Act.

A correspondent wrote to the editor of a local paper as follows: "I have a horse that has been afflicted for the last year with periodical fits of dizziness. Please let me know what I should do with him, as he seems to get worse instead of better. I am afraid he will be unfit for work if something is not done soon." In the next issue this answer appeared: "When the horse is looking all right sell him to someone."

In the Malay Archipelago.

Java is the only one of the Dutch East Indies that has been fully opened and developed. Sumatra is being gradually exploited, and the unfriendly tribes brought under control, but Borneo and New Guinea—part of each of which is owned by the Dutch—and minor islands are as yet but little developed. The total area of the Dutch possessions in the Malay Archipelago is 739,000 square miles, while the population is 37,000,000.

PRESENT PLANS FOR FUTURE BEAUTY

By EVA RYMAN-GAILLARD.

We who grow plants in our rooms do so for the beauty of their foliage, flowers, or both, and get pleasure from them to just the degree that we can bring them to their utmost perfection. To attain this (with plants of any kind) one must know their characteristics and requirements and consider whether available conditions in the home are adapted to the plants desired.

If a plant standing in the open beds, or in sunny, southern windows, is making a grand showing of flowers, or brilliantly-colored foliage, do not get one like it expecting the same results unless it can have similar conditions. The same results cannot be secured if the plant is put into a shaded or northern window.

On the other hand, primulas and other plants that produce perfect flowers in cool, semishaded rooms, will not prove satisfactory in a place adapted to those needing more tropical conditions. The plant-lover who expects to have all sorts of plants grow and bloom in the same window will certainly be found wondering why some of them do not come up to expectation.

Even the texture of the foliage needs to be taken into consideration, for rough-leaved plants that are injured by frequent washings have no chance to develop beautiful foliage in a room where furniture needs dusting every day.

Space is another factor that makes for satisfactory window gardening, for certainly half a dozen plants developed to perfect form and good size are vastly more beautiful than twice that number of deformed specimens crowded into the space.

The question as to whether plants should be turned or not is frequently asked, and some people say: "Oh, don't turn them, they will not bloom," and so on. After years of working among plants I hold this opinion on the subject: Plants grown solely for beauty as seen from the outside will serve the purpose better if never turned, leaving foliage and flowers drawn toward the glass, but ordinarily they are grown for the adornment of the room and the enjoyment of those inside, and should be turned often enough to keep them symmetrical in shape, for a lop-sided plant showing all its stalks (to those in the room), is not very ornamental.

Very often plants are bedded out for the summer and then potted for the winter garden window, and almost often the potting is delayed until the plants must be taken in or frozen; and the result is a lot of plants that need a good share of the winter in which to recuperate.

August is none too early to decide which plants shall be taken into the window garden, and their treatment from the time of the decision should be such as will fit them to make a fine display during the winter, rather than get the finest present showing.

If they are growing where crowded, sacrifice a few branches from the surrounding plants in order to give them space for shapely development, then pinch out the ends of the branches on the selected plants to force the formation of lateral branches. These lateral branches furnish the blooming points on geraniums and most flowering plants, and the more of them that can be forced to start, the more flowers one has during the winter.

Fine, well-rooted manure is a good mulch for tea roses. Prune by cutting the blossoms lavishly with long stems, in order to induce vigorous blooming branches.

Uses for Raisins and Figs.

Both raisins and figs, split open, make good poultices for boils. A split raisin, placed over the gum, often gives relief to the toothache sufferer. Figs are valuable as a laxative.

Do not select plants that have bloomed profusely during the summer, for it is against nature to expect them to keep it up during the winter. Above all, after deciding which plants shall be potted for the winter display, keep all the buds pinched out. Do not let a single blossom develop until the plants are established in their winter quarters.

Do not leave plants in their beds until forced by cold weather to take them in. Plan to pot them while the weather will permit having the house open, making the change a gradual one, for plants lifted and taken at once into closed, fire-heated rooms must show the effects of the treatment and will need weeks and weeks in which to regain their beauty.

Another thing to be considered is this: Plants growing in the open ground make a root-growth that very often goes far beyond the limits of an ordinary pot or tub. To crowd these roots into a pot too small for them is to bruise them and cause decay. The better way, by far, is to cut down all around the plants with a sharp knife or spade, ten days or two weeks before the plants are to be potted.

The sharp, clean cut heals quickly, and if the soil is well watered (soaked) before attempting to lift the plant, one gets a complete ball of sound roots, well-covered with soil that goes into winter quarters with very little evidence of having been disturbed.

Each of these plants taken separately will seem like a little thing, but each has a decided bearing on the beauty of the midwinter floral display, and for that reason each is, in reality, an important point.

EVER TRY A LILY BED?

By JOSEPHINE DE MARR.

Choose a well-drained spot for them, and if possible, where the flowers will have a background of evergreens, shrubs or screen of living green to show off their pale beauty. A background of climbing plants is also good. Dig the bed two feet and throw into the excavation, rubbish, tin cans, old shoes, rocks, bricks, and the like, insuring drainage, as the lily cannot stand wet feet.

Enrich the soil with manure from the cow stable, worked well into the soil with sand or sifted ashes. Plant the bulbs 8 to 12 inches deep, according to their size, in a pocket of sand.

Just before cold weather sets in, cover the bed with litter and leaves, being sure that the winter storms will not uncover the bed.

SOME TIMELY HINTS

Water the sweet peas lavishly about the roots and be generous with the blooms. Allow no seed pods if you want flowers.

Cut everlasting and grasses as soon as the flowers are fully open, tie in bunches, hang head down, and dry in the shade, for winter bouquets.

Fasten dahlias, and other brittle-stalked tall growers to some support, to protect from storms of wind.

Fine, well-rooted manure is a good mulch for tea roses. Prune by cutting the blossoms lavishly with long stems, in order to induce vigorous blooming branches.
