EDITOR'S OBSERVATIONS.

By John L. Thompson.

The city of Keokuk is located away down on a little point of land extending in the southeast corner of Iowa at the juncture of the Des Moines river with the Mississippi. Of course this neck of land, were it not for the Des Moines river, would be Missouri territory. This city was named in honor of the famous Indian chief Keokuk, whose marble statue stands in this city overlooking the surrounding country. Tradition, poetry, fiction and story writers can find many incidents connected with this famous tribe to make and weave a beautiful story. Here is located the famous dam that harnessed the great Father of Waters, the greatest piece of engineering known to modern science. It is built of reinforced concrete steel trap gates to hold the water. They were five years building, at a cost of several millions of dollars. We have here about 2,000 colored people, many pioneer settlers. Many are doing well. As this was the gateway from Illinois and Missouri, hence many colored citizens that once lived in this town have now scattered to the four corners of Iowa. Perhaps more colored people have come through or from Keokuk to settle all parts of Iowa than any other Iowa town, hence it is rightfully called the Gate City of Iowa and now dubbed the Dam City. There are four colored churches, the Episcopal, A. M. E., two Baptist, and a new organization known as Christ Sanctified Holy Church. The former has no minister at present. The A. M. E. has that able, fearless Christian man, Rev. S. B. Moore, who is a real race leader. He was formerly presiding elder of this Des Moines district. The Pilgrim Rest Baptist has a new man after many years service by Rev. J. H. Helms, who died last spring in the work. The new minister is Rev. J. Sterling Moore, a very eloquent, able young divine who came from northern Missouri, and was moderator of the Baptist church of northern Missouri. He is a splendid type of a progressive and aggressive minister whose influence and ability will soon be felt in Iowa. (I only hope that he and his Pilgrim Rest flock will soon join the Iowa State Baptist Association, where we think they properly belong.) Ye editor and son Nelson attended A. M. E. and Pilgrim Rest and it was a Moore in each pulpit, both able and both Moore and more Moore. The Old Francis Street Baptist organization, which moved out on Main street, is growing under that splendid young man, Rev. Ewing of Des Moines. The Christ Sanctified Holy church is guided by Rev. H. G. Darden, who formerly preached with the Saints in Des Moines. He is a fine man. In this city, like all other cities, the older citizens are fast passing away, leaving to their posterity their noble lives and influences. One of that group is the late Orange Fields, who was a unique character, a giant oak in the life of this city for more than a half century. He died last winter at the ripe old age of about 80 summers. We as well as all of Keokuk missed his presence and stalwart character. He was a true race man, a clear thinker and ideas of his own. Another one of this group is Dr. T. H. Phillips, who is still alive and no man can go to this great race leader but what he is impressed by his gray hairs and the furrows in his accumulated years. Although Doctor has seen at least about 80 odd summers, yet he is vigorous, young and hale, working every day in practice, which is very large. He has the largest private library of any colored person in Iowa or any other place that I have yet seen and the beauty most all of his books are written by Negro authors. In fact we think he has all books written by the Negro thus far and many books by white authors. Mr. Wm. W. Gross is still on the mail force. He is Grand Master of Iowa Masons. His only daughter is a student in the Iowa State University, a very popular young girl. Alonzo A. Draine is still on the mail service as parcel post clerk. He has a lovely family. Mr. Fielding Johnson is another one on the mail force of Uncle Sam. He also has a fine family and is one of the coming young race representatives. Mr. Sam Brown and G. W. Smith still live at their homes and work at the same place. The latter's daughter, Miss Mary L., is our new agent for Keokuk. She is a student in the Keokuk High School. We hope that our many subscribers and friends will aid and assist this young lady to get the Keokuk news each week. Mr. Everett Holmes is still working at the same place. Mr. John D. Bland, whom we have been in the habit of meeting in his blacksmith shop on Main street, has sold out and moved to Des Moines, where he has gone into the undertaking business with his son-in-law, Mr. E. Handy. He still owns the shop, which is now converted into an automobile garage. But his brother, G. W. Bland, who formerly run a blacksmith shop in East Moline, Ill., is now here operating a nice shop. Mr. Geo. Brainard is working in a barber shop. Mr. A. A. Bland is still running a pool hall. Mrs. Jennie Dandridge is running a first class restaurant on Main St. Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Ashby are among the most influential citizens and doing well. F. D. Holmes is still selling ice in summer and coal in winter, doing a big business. A. J. Fields has gone out of the mercantile business. Selby Johnson is still here in the real estate business. He is a race man. Mr. and Mrs. Teabeau still live here. He is working at the same place. S. E. South is still doing well, living at the same place. A man could write a long letter about the colored people of Keokuk, for they are indeed perhaps the most advanced and highly cultured of any colored community in Iowa as a whole.

FROM KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS. NEWS SERVICE.

By Joseph J. Canavan.

Unofficial reports filtering back from the fighting front in France have added the final touch of amplification to the phrase contained in a German official statement when the big drive by American troops was at its height a few weeks ago, and which noted that "black Americans" had hammered their way gloriously through the Hun lines.

It was not, though, until the battle was over, according to the unofficial version of the same fighting, that the brigade commander summoned the colonel of a Negro regiment before him and demanded to know in terse military fashion why that colonel had not maintained better control over his troops, and why, above everything else, he had not "stopped" his men and kept them from passing beyond their appointed objectives, and, in fact, hacking their way through ahead of their own protective barrage.

The brigade commander's reply is not of record, either officially or unofficially, but the story is told of a thousand that is being told of the admirable dash and courage of the Americans who compose the Negro units of the expeditionary force and which every day are out there in the thick of the fighting and holding their place in the line wherever they may be called upon to do their military bit.

In just the same manner, the men who compose those regiments are partaking of the carefully built up welfare work that is being accomplished on both sides of the water by the Knights of Columbus Committee on War Activities. In fact, they are receiving special attention, both in the camps in this country and K. of C. huts in France, and the work among the Negro troops is being broadened as rapidly as the numbers of the Negro troops grow, under the operation of the selective service laws and by voluntary enlistment, the latter apparently being a particularly inviting method for Negroes getting into the army.

Under the system as it now has been worked out, the Negro soldier needs no other countersign than his khaki uniform to gain for him everything of advantage offered by the Knights' service. True, there are places, both in this country and abroad, where the Knights of Columbus have erected special huts for the use of the Negro soldiers. But where that has been done, it has been at the express request of Negro soldiers themselves, who in numerous instances have expressed a preference for a building of their own, where they may enjoy their own pleasures in their own way,

A Distinguished Citizen Dead

A Useful and Influential Lawyer and Citizen Passes Away.

We are indeed sorry to chronicle the death of our good friend, distinguished citizen and prominent lawyer, James Buchanan Rush, of this city, who died at his beautiful palatial home, 1547 W. 20th St., where he had just been taken home from the Mercy Hospital (at his special request) about 4 o'clock, and at 6:30 p. m. Sunday he passed away after a brief illness of only 12 days. He had been operated on for appendicitis, from which he had been a sufferer for more than ten years, from the operation and other complications he was unable to withstand.

Attorney James B. Rush was born April 19, 1860, near Rockingham, North Carolina. Educated in the common and public schools of that community and times later he attended the State Normal College, and afterwards he entered Howard University. Studied law in Indianapolis, Ind., where he was admitted to practice and settled in Oklahoma when it was a territory. Later to Kansas, where he practiced a while. Because of race trouble Mr. Rush moved to Des Moines, Iowa, in 1897, and entered the practice, which he followed until the end came. He had built up a very large practice and his clientele was among all classes, both colored and white. He stood well at the bar in all the courts of this county and state. He was a candidate for judge of municipal court and made a splendid run. He is an orator of much ability, an active member of the Corinthian Baptist Church, a member of the trustee board and be assured of meeting their own friends when and where and under what circumstances they desire.

Such an arrangement has been granted by the K. of C. upon request of the men themselves at Camp Meade, at Admiral, Md., where one of the three K. of C. huts, which are looked after by 11 secretaries, has been set aside for Negro troops. The same action, again upon request of the Negro soldiers, has been taken at Camp Dodge, at Des Moines, Iowa, where one of the three K. of C. buildings has been set aside for their exclusive use. At Camp Dodge, however, there are 13 secretaries, the services of every one of them being always at the call of any trooper who requests them. The same rule applies at Camp Funston, at Fort Riley, Kas., where one of the three buildings of the K. of C. has been given to the Negroes, and there is a building for the Negro troops also at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., where the Knights have four tents.

As the work expands and as the number of Negro troops has been enlarged, the facilities for catering to their wants have been correspondingly increased in keeping with the recently adopted slogan of the organization, "Everybody Welcome—Everything Free." The baseballs, tennis equipments, shower baths, books, candy, cigarettes and all the other things which the Knights have been distributing to the soldiers in this country as well as aboard the transports and in the camps, rest billets and front line trenches in France have gone in equal proportion to the Negro troops under the organization's been cared for and had their wants provided by the Knights, as the men themselves have testified.

EDITOR'S OBSERVATIONS.

By John L. Thompson.

The city of Keokuk is located away down on a little point of land extending in the southeast corner of Iowa at the juncture of the Des Moines river with the Mississippi. Of course this neck of land, were it not for the Des Moines river, would be Missouri territory. This city was named in honor of the famous Indian chief Keokuk, whose marble statue stands in this city overlooking the surrounding country. Tradition, poetry, fiction and story writers can find many incidents connected with this famous tribe to make and weave a beautiful story. Here is located the famous dam that harnessed the great Father of Waters, the greatest piece of engineering known to modern science. It is built of reinforced concrete steel trap gates to hold the water. They were five years building, at a cost of several millions of dollars. We have here about 2,000 colored people, many pioneer settlers. Many are doing well. As this was the gateway from Illinois and Missouri, hence many colored citizens that once lived in this town have now scattered to the four corners of Iowa. Perhaps more colored people have come through or from Keokuk to settle all parts of Iowa than any other Iowa town, hence it is rightfully called the Gate City of Iowa and now dubbed the Dam City. There are four colored churches, the Episcopal, A. M. E., two Baptist, and a new organization known as Christ Sanctified Holy Church. The former has no minister at present. The A. M. E. has that able, fearless Christian man, Rev. S. B. Moore, who is a real race leader. He was formerly presiding elder of this Des Moines district. The Pilgrim Rest Baptist has a new man after many years service by Rev. J. H. Helms, who died last spring in the work. The new minister is Rev. J. Sterling Moore, a very eloquent, able young divine who came from northern Missouri, and was moderator of the Baptist church of northern Missouri. He is a splendid type of a progressive and aggressive minister whose influence and ability will soon be felt in Iowa. (I only hope that he and his Pilgrim Rest flock will soon join the Iowa State Baptist Association, where we think they properly belong.) Ye editor and son Nelson attended A. M. E. and Pilgrim Rest and it was a Moore in each pulpit, both able and both Moore and more Moore. The Old Francis Street Baptist organization, which moved out on Main street, is growing under that splendid young man, Rev. Ewing of Des Moines. The Christ Sanctified Holy church is guided by Rev. H. G. Darden, who formerly preached with the Saints in Des Moines. He is a fine man. In this city, like all other cities, the older citizens are fast passing away, leaving to their posterity their noble lives and influences. One of that group is the late Orange Fields, who was a unique character, a giant oak in the life of this city for more than a half century. He died last winter at the ripe old age of about 80 summers. We as well as all of Keokuk missed his presence and stalwart character. He was a true race man, a clear thinker and ideas of his own. Another one of this group is Dr. T. H. Phillips, who is still alive and no man can go to this great race leader but what he is impressed by his gray hairs and the furrows in his accumulated years. Although Doctor has seen at least about 80 odd summers, yet he is vigorous, young and hale, working every day in practice, which is very large. He has the largest private library of any colored person in Iowa or any other place that I have yet seen and the beauty most all of his books are written by Negro authors. In fact we think he has all books written by the Negro thus far and many books by white authors. Mr. Wm. W. Gross is still on the mail force. He is Grand Master of Iowa Masons. His only daughter is a student in the Iowa State University, a very popular young girl. Alonzo A. Draine is still on the mail service as parcel post clerk. He has a lovely family. Mr. Fielding Johnson is another one on the mail force of Uncle Sam. He also has a fine family and is one of the coming young race representatives. Mr. Sam Brown and G. W. Smith still live at their homes and work at the same place. The latter's daughter, Miss Mary L., is our new agent for Keokuk. She is a student in the Keokuk High School. We hope that our many subscribers and friends will aid and assist this young lady to get the Keokuk news each week. Mr. Everett Holmes is still working at the same place. Mr. John D. Bland, whom we have been in the habit of meeting in his blacksmith shop on Main street, has sold out and moved to Des Moines, where he has gone into the undertaking business with his son-in-law, Mr. E. Handy. He still owns the shop, which is now converted into an automobile garage. But his brother, G. W. Bland, who formerly run a blacksmith shop in East Moline, Ill., is now here operating a nice shop. Mr. Geo. Brainard is working in a barber shop. Mr. A. A. Bland is still running a pool hall. Mrs. Jennie Dandridge is running a first class restaurant on Main St. Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Ashby are among the most influential citizens and doing well. F. D. Holmes is still selling ice in summer and coal in winter, doing a big business. A. J. Fields has gone out of the mercantile business. Selby Johnson is still here in the real estate business. He is a race man. Mr. and Mrs. Teabeau still live here. He is working at the same place. S. E. South is still doing well, living at the same place. A man could write a long letter about the colored people of Keokuk, for they are indeed perhaps the most advanced and highly cultured of any colored community in Iowa as a whole.

FROM KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS. NEWS SERVICE.

By Joseph J. Canavan.

Unofficial reports filtering back from the fighting front in France have added the final touch of amplification to the phrase contained in a German official statement when the big drive by American troops was at its height a few weeks ago, and which noted that "black Americans" had hammered their way gloriously through the Hun lines.

It was not, though, until the battle was over, according to the unofficial version of the same fighting, that the brigade commander summoned the colonel of a Negro regiment before him and demanded to know in terse military fashion why that colonel had not maintained better control over his troops, and why, above everything else, he had not "stopped" his men and kept them from passing beyond their appointed objectives, and, in fact, hacking their way through ahead of their own protective barrage.

The brigade commander's reply is not of record, either officially or unofficially, but the story is only one of a thousand that is being told of the admirable dash and courage of the Americans who compose the Negro units of the expeditionary force and which every day are out there in the thick of the fighting and holding their place in the line wherever they may be called upon to do their military bit.

In just the same manner, the men who compose those regiments are partaking of the carefully built up welfare work that is being accomplished on both sides of the water by the Knights of Columbus Committee on War Activities. In fact, they are receiving special attention, both in the camps in this country and K. of C. huts in France, and the work among the Negro troops is being broadened as rapidly as the numbers of the Negro troops grow, under the operation of the selective service laws and by voluntary enlistment, the latter apparently being a particularly inviting method for Negroes getting into the army.

Under the system as it now has been worked out, the Negro soldier needs no other countersign than his khaki uniform to gain for him everything of advantage offered by the Knights' service. True, there are places, both in this country and abroad, where the Knights of Columbus have erected special huts for the use of the Negro soldiers. But where that has been done, it has been at the express request of Negro soldiers themselves, who in numerous instances have expressed a preference for a building of their own, where they may enjoy their own pleasures in their own way.

A Useful and Influential Lawyer and Citizen Passes Away.

We are indeed sorry to chronicle the death of our good friend, distinguished citizen and prominent lawyer, James Buchanan Rush, of this city, who died at his beautiful palatial home, 1547 W. 20th St., where he had just been taken home from the Mercy Hospital (at his special request) about 4 o'clock, and at 6:30 p. m. Sunday he passed away after a brief illness of only 12 days. He had been operated on for appendicitis, from which he had been a sufferer for more than ten years, from the operation and other complications he was unable to withstand.

Attorney James B. Rush was born April 19, 1860, near Rockingham, North Carolina. Educated in the common and public schools of that community and times later he attended the State Normal College, and afterwards he entered Howard University. Studied law in Indianapolis, Ind., where he was admitted to practice and settled in Oklahoma when it was a territory. Later to Kansas, where he practiced a while. Because of race trouble Mr. Rush moved to Des Moines, Iowa, in 1897, and entered the practice, which he followed until the end came. He had built up a very large practice and his clientele was among all classes, both colored and white. He stood well at the bar in all the courts of this county and state. He was a candidate for judge of municipal court and made a splendid run. He is an orator of much ability, an active member of the Corinthian Baptist Church, a member of the trustee board and be assured of meeting their own rule that the war service of the Knights shall be conducted without regard to race, color, religion or any other factor except that the recipient of it be a member of the military or naval forces of the United States.

This regulation has been accentuated in the spirit of co-operation that has been built up between the big Catholic relief organization and the Jewish Welfare Board, which is directing the work among the Jewish soldiers, of whom, like the Negroes, there are many thousands, both in the army and the navy. At Fort Hamilton, in Brooklyn, and Camp Merritt, the army embarkation camp at Tenafly, N. J., for instance, the Jewish Welfare Board attaches are using the K. of C. buildings and equipment regularly, with the consent and approval, willingly given, of the Knights supreme organization. Similarly, the other day, when there were six Negro soldiers entraining at Port Jervis, N. Y., on their way to Goshen, N. Y., from where they were to start upon their journey to a training camp, it was a group of Knights of Columbus secretaries who met them and supplied them with cigarettes and tobacco. It happened, however, that the six Negro draft men did not take a train from Port Jervis. Instead, the Knights loaded them into automobiles and drove them across the pretty hilly country to their point of departure for the camps. There were only six men in that draft consignment, but the Knights service would have been as hearty and as general if the number had been 600. And there have been innumerable instances where that larger number of men been cared for and had their wants provided by the Knights, as the men themselves have testified.

Best Treatment for a Burn.

If for no other reason, Chamberlain's Salve should be kept in every household on account of its great value in the treatment of burns. It allays the pain almost instantly, and unless the injury is a severe one, heals the parts without leaving a scar. This salve is also unequalled for chapped hands, sore nipples and diseases of the skin. Price, 25 cents.

How Does a Soldier Feel in a Life-and-Death Crisis?

He was caught—like a rat in a trap—with only one chance in a million of coming out alive. He thought of—

What does a soldier think of in a life-and-death crisis? How does he feel? What does he do? What is the millionth chance that he takes to escape? While trembling and hot from the experiences they have gone through, over two hundred men—airmen, trench raiders, submarine commanders, grenade throwers—have told what they saw, heard and felt. To read these stories of personal adventure is to get an entirely new viewpoint of the war.

A Close-Up of the War

Newspapers and magazines treat the war along broad, general lines—they speak of nations and armies. But these stories tell you about the most daring, audacious and heroic deeds of MEN—individuals. They tell of exploits which even now you think never could happen. No professional author in the history of literature could tell such stories, for no man's imagination could think them up. Yet each of these stories is true—and so startling that the mind simply stands agape at wonder. They would thrill a man with blood as cold as a fish.

"True Adventures of the Great War" 6 Volumes Free!

The Review of Reviews has collected these two hundred and more stories in six handsome volumes, containing altogether 1,100 pages, fully illustrated. Every one of these stories is absolutely genuine as to the facts related; every one of them is told in the words of the hero who is the hero or heroine of the exploit. And now, for a limited time, you can secure these six volumes free, with a two-year subscription to the Review of Reviews.

Now, and during these next few years, as never before, every intelligent American will need the Review of Reviews. The world is on the verge. It is in the throes of social, industrial and political changes that are astounding. One cannot base his opinions on these revolutionary events, one cannot base his acts intelligently upon these—one cannot understand the real war situation, unless the facts are known. It is a genuine patriotic duty in these coming days of trial for every citizen to know comprehensively what is happening in the world around him.

Send No Money

The subscription to Review of Reviews is offered at the regular price. The six volumes are absolutely free. So that no one may act in haste, the books will be sent first for examination, all charges prepaid, and if you do not come up to expectation, they may be returned within the days. The first edition of this set will be offered free with a two-year subscription. Immediate acceptance of this offer is, therefore, advised. If you are at all interested, mail the coupon.

ST. PAUL A. M. E. NOTES.

Sunday marks the close of this conference year. To record the deeds and triumphs of this great church requires the work of a reader pen. But sufficient to say the means of grace have not been neglected—preaching services, prayer meeting, class meeting have been met thru heat as well as cold, religious enthusiasm has run high, and many souls have been added to the church. The cries of the poor have been heard and succor given. The sick have been ministered unto, the dead buried, and many couples united in the happy bonds of matrimony thru the offices of this church, locations have been secured for soldiers' wives, and with all the duties that come to a metropolitan church they have been enabled to move to a more beautiful and centrally located site. AN EXCITING SPORT

Hunting Monkeys in Burmah Is Full of Thrills.

Consternation in Treetops When Gibbons Are Assailed—Travel Faster Through Trees Than Man Can Run on Ground.

Our most exciting sport at the Nanting camp was hunting monkeys, writes Roy Chapman Andrews in Harper's. Every morning we heard querulous notes, sounding much like the squealing of very young puppies, which were followed by long drawn siren wails. When the shrill notes had reached their highest pitch they would sink into low, full tones exceedingly musical.

We were inspecting a line of traps placed along a trail which led up a valley to a wide plateau when the querulous squealing abruptly ceased. We moved on, alert and tense. The trees stretched upward a full 150 feet, their tops spread out in a leafy roof. In the topmost branches of one we could just discern a dozen balls of yellow fur from which proceeded discordant wails.

It was a long range for a shotgun, but the rifles were all in camp. I fired a charge of "BB's" at the lowest monkey and as the gun roared out the treetops suddenly sprang into life. They were filled with running, leaping, hairy forms swinging at incredible speed from branch to branch—not a dozen, but a score of monkeys, yellow, brown and gray.

The one at which I had shot seemed unaffected and threw himself full twenty feet to a horizontal limb below and to the right. I fired again, and he stopped, ran a few steps forward, and swung to the under side of the branch. At the third charge he hung suspended by one arm and dropped to the ground.

We tossed him into the dry creek bed and dashed up the hill where the branches were still swaying as the monkeys traveled through the treetops. They had a long start and it was a hopeless chase. In ten minutes they had disappeared and we turned back to find the dead animal. It was a young male, and I knew at once that it was a gibbon (Hylobates), for its long arms, round head and tailless body were unmistakable; but in every species with which I was familiar the male was black. This one was yellow and we knew it to be a prize.

For the remainder of our stay at the Nanting river camp we devoted ourselves to hunting monkeys. The gibbons soon became extremely wild. Although the same troop could usually be found in the valley where we had first discovered them, they chose hillsides on which it was almost impossible to stalk them because of the thorny jungle. We went forward only when the calls were echoing through the jungle and stood motionless as the wailing ceased. But in spite of all our care they would see or hear us. Then in sudden silence there would be a tremor of the branches, splash after splash of leaves, and the herd would swing away through the trackless treetops.

The gibbons are well named Hylobates or "tree walkers," for they are entirely arboreal and, although awkward and almost helpless upon the ground, once their long thin hands touch a branch they become transformed into veritable spirits of the treetops. They launch themselves into space, catch a branch twenty feet away to swing for an instant and hurl themselves to another. It is possible for them to travel through the trees faster than a man can run on open ground.

Hard on Nora.

Nora was a new servant girl in the employ of the Browns, and hardly had she been 24 hours on the job before she had the misfortune to drop a piece of roast beef on the floor.

Roast beef that has been used as a mop becomes just a little bit gritty to the taste, so Nora thought it the part of wisdom to consign it to the garbage can.

"I think, Nora," remarked Mrs. Brown, rambling into the kitchen later in the day, "that we will have some of that roast beef, cut cold for supper."

Ready-Made Pie Crust! Someone has invented a ready-made pie crust that will keep a year. By the evidences that have been encountered it might be judged that many ambitious cooks have been experimenting for a long time with this object in view. We can guess now where some of these new composition shoe soles originated.—Providence Bulletin.

Where the Real Danger Lies. A Boston physician has sounded the warning that there is more or less danger in wearing clothes. There may be, but the most danger lies in the path of a man who attempts to trip merrily through this life clad in filtered sunshine and a two days' growth of whiskers.

LEMONS DO MAKE THE SKIN WHITE

How to make a lemon bleaching lotion at home for a few cents
Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply you with three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Squeeze the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle, then put in the orchard white and shake well. This makes a quarter pint of the very best lemon skin whitener and complexion bleach known. Massage this fragrant, creamy lotion daily into the face, neck, arms and hands and just see how much softer and white the skin becomes. See how it is harmless, and the beautiful results will surprise you.
