THE STOP LIGHTS

The City Council has put a light at 13th and Keo. Way, but the difficulties of which those who fought for lights cannot be said to have not been eliminated. DePRIEST V. PERRY HOWARD

Representative De Priest and National Republican Committee-man Perry Howard of Mississippi, are engaged in a rather unfortunate battle of words. Mr. De Priest says Mr. Howard advised him not to go to the White House reception, claiming that it would react against the Negro race. Howard further accuses De Priest of incompetence in office.

This controversy would be important if it were not for the fact that a group of Negroes of Howard's type are fighting his renomination because De Priest has become too popular. He has taken the spotlight from their speechless leadership.

Undoubtedly the fight on De Priest comes from Negro tools who are being used by white politicians who don't like Negroes of De Priest's type. Surely Chicago Negroes will see this and give him the greatest majority he ever received.

HEALTH TALKS

ANEMIA

The blood because of the many different forms of cells and materials which make up its parts is subject to many forms of disease depending upon which part of it that is affected. Being composed of two kinds of essential cells and a fluid which contains others and materials which are contained in it destined for nourishment of certain tissues and also carrying wastes from these tissues the different forms of blood alteration and disease are more than is usually imagined.

Anemia which is a reduction small or large in the red cells of the blood is in its beginning a hardly recognizable ailment to the one affected. The other forms of blood disease one especially in which there is an enormous increase in cells is serious but rare in comparison to anemia but does cause anemia of itself sometimes. There are many forms of red cell anemia due to different causes and it is quite likely that the kind of food, that is a deficiency in certain kinds over a long period of time and the incomplete digestion of the same from some insufficiency in the digestive apparatus is the beginning, and if the cause persists, the perpetuation of the progressiveness of the same. To say that all anemias run into the fatal form would be to state something the truth of which is not known but would not be bad theoretical aiming.

An anemia of any form reduces the physical strength and retards the efficiency of the one affected. Aside from these the one affected does not have that feeling of wellbeing and that good-to-live feeling which is present in the individual with a full number of blood cells. Good feeling, good appetite, good strength and good sleep go hand in hand with good blood. More people than know it are the present victims of anemia and they should for the pleasure of a healthy existence (if for no other reason) procure a normal blood composition.

HOOVER POLITICS

It is not too far away to begin to take an inventory of National political issues in so far as they affect us. "Parker" and "Anti-Lynch Law" and "Lily-Whitism" and the Negro's economic status are all prominent questions that the Republican party must face in appealing for the Negro vote. Negro Democratic leaders are going to, and should make much of all of these issues, but probably the hardest to reconcile will be that of the disbanding of Negro regular army regiments.

It is the general understanding among Negroes, that the 24th and 25th Infantry and the 9th and 10th Cavalries were formed and added to the regular army as a direct compliment to the valor of Negro soldiers exhibited in prior wars. It was a congressional action and an expression of gratitude.

I understand that Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, a Southerner, bluntly states that a group of Negro soldiers of the 24th Infantry shot up a white man's house in Brownsville, Texas, "and that he is going to reduce every Negro regiment to complete subservience." The scrapping of the 10th Cavalry was the last necessary act to carry out that threat.

As far as the Negro is concerned, President Hoover is either inadvertently or otherwise, can get mixed up with Southerners in a manner that is most distressing, and the result of it all seems to be additional embarrassment for the Negro.

Negro Republican "spell binders" are going to get their tongues tied more than once trying to justify some of the Hoover policies, but the hardest of them all and the most inexcusable is the unwarranted, cruel, and vicious cowardly treatment of the Negro soldiers of the regular army, and to say that their dissolution is necessary as an economic expediency is just so much "hunk" and fools nobody.

PATIENCE IS KEY TO DOG TRAINING

Use Tact and Kindness to Bring Out the Best of Animal's Ability.

A properly trained dog is a delight to himself and his master. He loves to do his master's bidding, and were every dog well trained there would be little complaint about dogs and their doings, states the Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois.

The Early Training of a Dog is Most Important training. After a dog is trained, he should go through the commands for anyone who gives them properly. The first and biggest lesson you can teach him is obedience, founded upon full confidence in you as his master. All the rest will take care of themselves as a matter of course.

Simple Facts of Dog Feeding Told

If the feeding of your dog presents itself as a vexatious problem, take heart. According to the Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois, here is all that you need to know about his feeding:

1. Feed one heavy meal a day, preferably in the evening. Feed the light three to five meals a day, depending on their ages. Feed at the same hours each day.
2. Do not feed your dog's natural diet. If you feed your dog a prepared well-balanced meat ration, the dog biscuits, for variety's sake, he will need nothing else.
3. Do not feed table scraps, potatoe-baked eggs or pork, and don't serve soupy foods. Beware of chicken and fish bones. Dogs can eat nothing for weeks until taught to like them.
4. Provide plenty of water.
5. Never allow violent exercise directly after feeding.

If a dog does not take readily to biscuits, which are essential to keep his gums hard and teeth clean, it is suggested that kibble or broken biscuits be gradually incorporated into his regular ration until he gets used to eating them.

U. S. BOY-DOG CONTEST

The sum of $2,000 in cash and fame by having their likeness reproduced in an oil on canvas is being offered by the Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Ill., in a contest to select America's top male and dog. The contest closes September 10th.

Favor Getting a Puppy to Buying a Mature Dog

Hints on Care and Training Given by Kennel Foundation.

Dog or puppy? The choice of one or the other must be made by everyone who contemplates adding a canine pet to his household, states the Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois. While some prefer a perfectly-trained grown dog, most people are inclined to agree with Albert Payson Terhune that a puppy is more desirable. For one thing, a puppy does not cost so much as a grown dog, and its future is entirely in your own hands. Eating is the biggest thing in a puppy's life, and what and how he eats will either make or break him, according to the foundation. "Little and often" is probably the best rule of successful puppy rearing. Feed four or five times a day at six months, and four times a day at six months. Increase the ration as you decrease the number of feedings, but never serve more than just a little over what the puppy will eat up quickly. When the average puppy is at the end of twelve months ready to enter full doghood, he should be getting no more than two meals a day, and preferably one. If the puppy does not finish the meal provided for him, what remains must be removed in a few minutes and nothing else should be given until the next feeding hour.

By nature the dog is a meat-eating animal, but under today's domesticated conditions, fresh raw meat from the butcher's is much too concentrated a diet. Research workers who have given thought to this problem in recent years have been able to develop scientifically-balanced canned meat foods which have taken all the guess out of dog and puppy feeding. They contain all the elements necessary for proper growth and development. Both puppies and dogs especially readily eat these made from horse meat. A part of very puppy's ration should be some dry food which has been softened with milk or water. This may be only a teaspoonful at a week, but should be increased with the size and condition of the animal. As the puppy grows older and its teeth stronger, dog biscuits, kibble or whole flour may be substituted. The biscuits afford the exercise demanded by the puppy's jaw and serve to keep his teeth clean. Teach your puppy to eat at a regular time and place. Having regular feeding times will be a big aid in breaking him. Make it a practice to take him out for a walk short after feeding.

Suggestions for Care of Canines in Hot Weather Are Made by Foundation.

"Dog days" need be no more dangerous for Buster, Prince or Sport than any other days, states the Chappel Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois, in discussing the care of the dog in hot weather.

The dog faces summer weather under two handicaps unknown to man. He has his natural coat, and perspires from limited areas of his body, the tongue, nose and the pads of the feet. Age dogs feel the effects of heat much more than young dogs, and sick dogs more than dogs in good condition. But much of the distress of dogs may be eliminated if their owners would give a little extra thought and attention to quarters, exercise and diet. Some of the best practices designed to reduce the strain on dogs in warm days and prevent overheating, prostration and other summer ailments have been summed up by Dr. Edwin Reginald Blaney.

The outdoor kennel should be sheltered from the midday sun as much as possible. A better way is to keep the dog quiet and in a cool place during the heat of the day. A tiled floor or cellar floor is excellent. The kennel should be darkened, and care taken to see that an abundance of air is provided. Quarters for sleeping should have large windows, and the building reduced to a minimum. The ideal dog bed for summer is a raised frame covered with canvas. This enables the air to circulate freely beneath the body, and the animal is much cooler than if he were sleeping on a soft bed.

Both dog and kennel should be washed occasionally. Use of a small amount of disinfectant will tend to keep away flies and other insect pests which cause so much trouble during the summer.

Exercise should be cut down to a minimum or entirely stopped. If the dog is to be walked or run, it should be done in the cool of the early morning or evening. If the dog is broken to go on the street, it should be taken out only long enough to attend to its needs.

Feeding during the summer should be of the same well-balanced nature as fed during the cooler months, but in somewhat smaller quantities. A dog's natural food is meat, whether it be the finest toy dog or the largest hound

Meat and protein are not "heating" to the blood, and a substantial portion of a prepared meat ration in the evening and some biscuits in the morning will keep the dog well satisfied. Occasionally weevil will get into biscuits made of the finest ingredients. They are not harmful to the dog, but may be killed by putting the biscuits into the oven for a few minutes or immersing them in boiling water. The addition of fresh vegetables occasionally helps to maintain physical condition but starch in any form is to be avoided. Encourage the dog to drink plenty of water by adding a little salt to each meal. Attention to diet will help to do away with periodic eczema and other summer skin complaints.

Many so-called cases of overheating worms may really be the cause of the trouble. These should be removed by an appropriate medicine under the guidance of a veterinarian. Contrary to popular belief, rabies actually is more prevalent in winter than in summer.
