John Walker Has His 96th Birthday

ONLY LIVING NEGRO CIVIL WAR VETERAN IN CITY

Seated amidst a large assortment of flowers, bouquet and plants, and a table piled high with congratulatory letters and telegrams from leading citizens, John Walker, who reached his ninety-sixth birthday last Saturday, March 14, was interviewed at his home at 1137 School street by Everett Wadsworth, Bystander staff writer, this week.

Kinsman Post

He is the last Negro civil war veteran left in Des Moines, and is looking forward with happy anticipations to the national G. A. R. encampment to be held here in June. Mr. Walker is a member of the Kinsman post, one of the only two colored to belong to that organization.

Christian Life

"I have always lived a Christian life. I never swear, drink, or smoke nor keep late hours. Young people must know how to take proper rest for a long healthy life," he said. More vigorous and healthy then one half his age, he takes his daily walks around the block or just calls on one of the neighbors and friends. Mr. Walker has been an active worker in the St. Paul A. M. E. church for the past forty-eight years.

Home in Missiouri

He came to Des Moines from his native home in Platte County, Missouri, nearly fifty years ago, when the call to colors came, he enlisted at Wyandotte, Kans., in 1863, in Co. 6, First infantry and was transferred to the 79th infantry of Kansas where he engaged in the famous battles in the Ozarks mountains and Tennessee valley under General William T. (War Is Hell) Sherman.

Besides his wife, he has a daughter here, Mrs. Elbert R. Hall, and five sons who are located in the various parts of the United States.

With the same sweet smile and big time personality that caused Des Moines masculine hearts to skip a beat two weeks ago, Miss Anna Mae Winburn, charming director of the Cotton Club Boys band of Omaha, Neb., delighted the large crowd at the carnival dance at Pla-Lan Monday night.

Not only was she heavenly to gaze upon, but the versatile little miss did all three: singing, dancing, and M. C'ing, to as near perfection as has ever been seen in Des Moines. The young lady's elegant wardrobe was also the topic of excited local feminine society.

NEW SCOTTSBORO TRIAL IS SET FOR APRIL 17

New York, March 20—The postponed trial of Clarence Norris, second of the Scottsboro defendants, has been set for April 17th in Decatur, Ala., according to notice received here yesterday by the office of Samuel S. Leibowitz, chief defense counsel. Norris was scheduled to have been tried in January immediately following the trial of Haywood Patterson, but when Patterson was found guilty and sentenced to seventy-five years in the penitentiary, Judge W. W. Callahan postponed the other trials

The defense announces that the setting of a definite date for the Norris trial calls for renewed support from the public in spreading the story of the case and raising funds. The hardest struggles are yet to come. There is great need for money and contributors should send gifts to the Scottsboro Defense Committee, 112 East Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y.

Georgia Commission Suggests Federal Action Immediately

Atlanta, Ga.—Coincident with the week-end lynching of a Negro in Georgia, the Commission on Interracial Co-operation Sunday suggested federal action to stop mob violence.

Victim of mob violence Saturday was Philip Baker 35 year old Negro accused of criminally attacking two white women. He was seized from county officers by a masked band.

Lacks Culture

"The mob still rides," declared the commission's report, which said eighty-four persons, mostly Negroes, were lynched during the five year period covered by its study.

The south, where most lynchings occurred, was described as lacking in "wealth and culture."

The views of the commission, composed of whites and Negroes, were included in a pamphlet containing a study of lynchings in the last five years.

Eradicate Mobs

Fundamental to all means of eradicating "lynch-bent mobs," the commission said, is the educational approach.

"The vastness of the educational task is suggested by the fact that the typical southerners still assumes the Negro innately inferior" the pamphlet said.

Federal Aid Asked

The commission recommended placing of responsibility on federal and state police, change of venues for the accused and arranging for state or federal prosecutors to share the responsibility for trying lynchers. Stronger jails and "adequate police service" also were asked.

The commission alleged 41 per cent of the lynchings were of persons charged with petty offenses or with no crimes, and charged they are "primarily a technique of enforcing racial exploitation—economic, political and cultural."

HasBrouck Rally Thursday Night

FREE ALL-STAR STAGE SHOW TO BE PRESENTED

Reminiscient of the old "torchlight parade" days, a city-wide "HasBrouck for Safety" political rally will be staged at the West High auditorium, 15th and Center streets, Thursday evening, at 8 P. M. by the Henry HasBrouck Supporters club, a group of young Negro men in Des Moines who have been associated with him for the past 13 years in Y. M. C. A. work. Plans for an all-star entertainment and stage show were mapped out at a meeting held Sunday afternoon at the Crocker Y. M. C. A.

The Wee sisters trio; Dora McKay, KSO radio star; Les Hall and Louie Taylor, fancy steppers; Slim Davis tap dance king; Congo Rhythm band with "Step" Black; Jack Carrington and Sonny Wilson, vocalists; Leroy Lee and Freddie Thomas comedians, and the Harlem Hotshots quartet and some of the headliners who will assist in this gala show for the interest of the HasBrouck organization.

The public is invited and urged to come early for the show, which is free of charge. All of the candidates will be there, however, Henry Basbrouck is the main "attraction" and will be the last speaker.

The club now numbers over fifty boys and young men who are waging a tremendous drive to put the "best friend colored people ever had" over the top. The temporary officers include: Quentin D. eMase, president; Elbert Webb, vice president; Mack Wilson, secretary; Alonzo Monday, assistant secretary, James Allen, treasurer; and Everett Wadsworth, publicity chairman.

34 PER CENT DES MOINES NEGROES ON RELIEF—HOWARD

Thirty-four per cent of the Negro population is on relief while only 8.7 per cent of the white population is supported by relief or W. P. A. was the report given by Charles P. Howard, attorney, at the race relations institute at the Y. W. C. A. Monday Dr. George E. Haynes, secretary of department of race relations, Federal Council of Churches, at New York, resident forum leader in Des Moines, presided.

"Conditions found however, indicate that their incomes are scarcely above poverty level," Howard said in his report of an occupational census conducted among Iowa Negroes. The sessions were attended by more than two hundred.

White Collar Jobs

Eighty per cent of the Des Moines Negroes were prepared to do clerical work or skilled labor are employed at common labor or menial tasks. At the dinner meeting the institute adopted a resolution calling for an investigation of the probability for an "industrial secretary who would try to induce employers to give the "white collar" class and skilled Negro workers "opportunity to prove their ability to do the higher type of work for which they are qualified." A. W. Houghton director of the Polk County Emergency relief, spoke in the afternoon.

Dr. Haynes was main speaker at the city-wide inter-racial meeting at the Wesley M. E. church, Sunday. "In no other country in the world is there such need for inter-racial understanding as in America," he told his audience. Lynchings and race problems cannot be conquered with violence and hate, Dr. Haynes said.

Misquoted

"I have been quoted by a newspaper in Quincy, Illinois, as remonstrating with Negroes not to blame white people for their race discrimination against Negroes. This is not what I said or what I meant.

I urged Negroes not to hate white people for their prejudices and discrimination because hate will not meet those or any other evils. It multiplies them. Goodwill, courage and persistent effort to overcome prejudice will prevail."

Organized 15 Years Ago.

The council was organized 15 years ago the work of better racial understanding between the two largest race groups in the United States, the white people and the Negro, he stated.

The final week of Dr. Haynes' lectures are as follows: Monday; Bird, Twenty-first and Woodland; Tuesday, Crocker, Sixth and School; Wednesday, Amos Hiatt, East Fifteenth and Garfield; Thursday, Washington Irving, Sixteenth and Forest; Friday; Smouse, Twenty-eighth and Center. All meetings are at 8:00 to 9:15 p. m.

South Car. Senator Stops Lynch Probe

James F. Byrnes, Chairman of Audit Committee, Refused To Consider Investigation Funds

Washington, March 20—The resolution of the senate judiciary committee authorizing a senate investigation of lynching of last year is being buried in the committee on audit and control by Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, chairman of the committee. Senator Byrnes is adamant in his refusal to consider appropriating $7,500 for this investigation, and even refuses to call a meeting of the committee.

There is considerable speculation in Washington over Senator Byrnes' action, because he is known to be the spokesman for the white house in the senate. Whether he is acting because he is a South Carolinian or upon instructions is not known.

Senator Frederick Van Nuys of Indiana, author of the resolution for a senate investigation, plans next week to bring additional pressure on th eaudit committee for action on the appropriation. The appropriation is regarded by all informed persons as being far too small for an adequate investigation of lynchings, but apparently Chairman Byrnes does not want even the small amount of $7,500 appropriated.

AGED TEXAS PIONEER LIES UNBURIED AFTER DEATH

San Antonio Tex., March 20—(CNA)—The body of Tom Sullivan, pioneer Texas Negro, lies unburied in a local undertaking establishment. His daughter has no money to pay the funeral expenses. Sullivan was reputed to have been 112 years old, the oldest man in the state at the time of his death.

He served in the campaigns of the U. S. army against the Indians and was a "mule skinner" long before the railroads were built. After the civil war he broke horses for ranchmen, and was the first deputy sheriff of Medina county. His mother, Henrietta Washington, is said to have been a slave on George Washington's estate.

Clay to Face 2nd Trial March 30

(Special to the Bystander)

COUNTY ATTORNEY WILL ASK DEATH PENALTY FOR MURDER CHARGE

Iowa City, Iowa—Johnson County Attorney E. A. Baldwin will ask for the death penalty in the re-trial on March 30 of Louis Clay, 27, Negro who was charged with the murder of George J. Folsom, elderly recluse, residing on the edge of Iowa City in 1933.

Clay convicted to life sentence last December on the grounds that the evidence showed the principal witness Mabel Davis, a white girl and Clay's former wife, was an accomplice and her story needed verification.

The state charged that Clay choked Folsom to death at his home Christmas Eve of 1933 following a robbery and propped open a door of the home to make it appear that the 77 year old hermit had suffered a heart attack and froze to death.

Estranged from Clay, Miss Davis told police eight months later at Peoria, Ill., that Folsom was killed by Clay. Her testimony of "being continually in fear of her life because she was white and he was colored" was called highly prejudicial and supreme court opinion said that it should not have been admitted.

Caldwell, who graduated from East High where he was popular in the music circles, formerly played with Jerry Hayes and several other musical organizations.

Primaries Survivors Gird For Finals on March 30

By Everett Wadsworth

The battle lines are drawn for March 30. Out of the storm of Tuesday's skirimish, the Rev. E. A. Elliott led the field of six mayorality candidates in the city primary race with 14,520 votes. Joseph Allen polled 12,944 to become a formidable contender for the highest office in city government. A vote of 30,000 votes was cast at the polls.

Roy Welch

In the finance commissioner's official compilation, Roy C. Welch who is seeking his second term received the largest number of any of the fifty aspirants for various offices, with 16,427. Mrs. Wilbur S. Conkling riding on the wave of "a woman on the city council" pulled 11,308.

Henry Hasbrouck scored the major upset in the political dope bucket by leading Oscar Powell, Jr., in the fight for safety commissioner 12,488 to 10,271 respectively. HasBrouck followers are jubilant; the former Y. M. C. A. official will be a formidable contender and a victory is seen by experts.

Over 4,000 Votes

John McVicar smothered George M. King, incumbent streets commissioner, by over 4,000 votes, as did E. Lee Keyser, baseball magnate, over Mrs. Rosa E. Cunningham by a 7,000 majority in the fight for parks.

Municipal Judges Ralph L. Powers, C. S. Cooter, Don G. Allen, were renominated. Judge J. E. Mershon made the ticket but was nosed out of fourth place by County Attorney C. Edwin Moore. William Ash, Harry B. Grund and James E. O'Brien also finished "in the money" in the order named.

E. L. Brookins, incumbent, was an easy winner in the municipal bailiff vote. Harry Wright received 8,657. Walter R. Priebe looks like a cinch for city clerk re-election snowing under his second place rival Henry P. Brown with 15,681 to 4,181.

Among the highlights of the exhibits were the Federal Home Administration booth; Clorox company products in charge of Virgil Dixon; Oakite cleaner of Cartan and Jeffrey Company; the NYA display of handicraft and needlework, directed by Mrs. Gertrude North and G. B. Tucker with Miss Adelyne Wilson having charge.

Mrs. Sarah Jett was winner of the Armand powder set awarded by the Carl Weeks Co. at the first session. Baskets of groceries were given to the holders of the lucky numbers as follows: Mesdames Gertrude E. Wilkerson, Adelaide Bowman, Azalia Mitchell, T. R. Ringo, Frances Campbell, Lena S. Wilson, J. W. Fields, Eugenia Greenfield and the Misses Louise Jones and Minne Madison.

The table setting contest held Thursday night was won by the Garden club. Oval Carter placed second. Several baskets were given to the holders of the lucky numbers in the afternoon and in the evening.

A style show will feature Friday night's session. Two grand prizes will be awarded at the conclusion of the final demonstration.

Clay to Face 2nd Trial March 30

(Special to the Bystander)

COUNTY ATTORNEY WILL ASK DEATH PENALTY FOR MURDER CHARGE

Iowa City, Iowa—Johnson County Attorney E. A. Baldwin will ask for the death penalty in the re-trial on March 30 of Louis Clay, 27, Negro who was charged with the murder of George J. Folsom, elderly recluse, residing on the edge of Iowa City in 1933.

Clay convicted to life sentence last December on the grounds that the evidence showed the principal witness Mabel Davis, a white girl and Clay's former wife, was an accomplice and her story needed verification.

The state charged that Clay choked Folsom to death at his home Christmas Eve of 1933 following a robbery and propped open a door of the home to make it appear that the 77 year old hermit had suffered a heart attack and froze to death.

Estranged from Clay, Miss Davis told police eight months later at Peoria, Ill., that Folsom was killed by Clay. Her testimony of "being continually in fear of her life because she was white and he was colored" was called highly prejudicial and supreme court opinion said that it should not have been admitted.

JIMMIE CALDWELL GOES TO SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO

Jimmie Caldwell, 24, of 1700 E. Garfield avenue, former trumpet player with the Plantation Cotton Pickers through the South for the past three years and also with Erskine Tate's band in Chicago in 1935, left the city Wednesday for Santa Fe, New Mexico, to direct a seven-piece band.

Caldwell, who graduated from East High where he was popular in the music circles, formerly played with Jerry Hayes and several other musical organizations.

Primaries Survivors Gird For Finals on March 30

By Everett Wadsworth
Staff Writer

The battle lines are drawn for March 30. Out of the storm of Tuesday's skirimish, the Rev. E. A. Elliott led the field of six mayorality candidates in the city primary race with 14,520 votes. Joseph Allen polled 12,944 to become a formidable contender for the highest office in city government. A vote of 30,000 votes was cast at the polls.

Roy Welch

In the finance commissioner's official compilation, Roy C. Welch who is seeking his second term received the largest number of any of the fifty aspirants for various offices, with 16,427. Mrs. Wilbur S. Conkling riding on the wave of "a woman on the city council" pulled 11,308.

Henry Hasbrouck scored the major upset in the political dope bucket by leading Oscar Powell, Jr., in the fight for safety commissioner 12,488 to 10,271 respectively. HasBrouck followers are jubilant; the former Y. M. C. A. official will be a formidable contender and a victory is seen by experts.

Over 4,000 Votes

John McVicar smothered George M. King, incumbent streets commissioner, by over 4,000 votes, as did E. Lee Keyser, baseball magnate, over Mrs. Rosa E. Cunningham by a 7,000 majority in the fight for parks.

Municipal Judges Ralph L. Powers, C. S. Cooter, Don G. Allen, were renominated. Judge J. E. Mershon made the ticket but was nosed out of fourth place by County Attorney C. Edwin Moore. William Ash, Harry B. Grund and James E. O'Brien also finished "in the money" in the order named.

E. L. Brookins, incumbent, was an easy winner in the municipal bailiff vote. Harry Wright received 8,657. Walter R. Priebe looks like a cinch for city clerk re-election snowing under his second place rival Henry P. Brown with 15,681 to 4,181.

Please see that these principles are followed before you turn in a story: WHAT, WHO, WHERE, WHEN, HOW, WHY.

Well, the primaries are over, and whether your man was elected to the final ticket or not is just one of those things. Miss Anna Mae Winburn has been and gone, leaving many pleasant memories behind. The interracial meetings and institute is also in the past. The Bystander's Third Annual Cooking School is also gone, but not forgotten so we have only the events in the future to look forward to, like the Ambassadors' show, the pageant, the "Negro in History," the Drake relays Easter Mondays, and whatever else the public may care to give.

SO THEY HAVE

AMATEUR HOURS, TOO!

"Round and round
The wheel of fortune goes,
Where it stops,
Nobody knows."

Alright! Alright! Alright! Alright!

And so goes the Major Bowes amateur hour, but Major Bowes' hour doesn't have anything on our local amateurs or imitators at all. The Mary Church Terrell club demonstrated this to be a fact at the Community Center on Monday, March 16, with Mrs. Jessye Davis as hostess. Mrs. A. A. Alexander, prominent social lady of the city and wife of the widely known contractor, as chairman of the program committee, acted as KSO announcer, connecting the club with the NBC studios in which the Major Bowes amateur hour was in progress. Mrs. Pearl Thompson easily won the honor of being the best imitator of Graham McNamee that these local parts have seen, and Mrs. Lillian Edmunds, of the Community Center, could not be outdone in the stiffest of competition as an imitator of Major Bowes.

The very sedate Mrs. Nellie Esters lost her role of conservativeness by undertaking to be a torch singer of the Libby Holman variety, while Mrs. Ella Willis, relief case worker, illustrated the fact that miracles do happen by being a human saxaphone. Mrs. Gertie Winn, who could not quite cope with the ability of her fellow sisters, was given the gong for her hill-billy singing.

Mrs. Adah Johnson very capably depicted the role of a former Negro KSO star and Mrs. Joburness Kelso, another very sedate matron, was superb in her imitation of "My Time Is Your Time," y'know Rudy Vallee and as all good things often come to an end, Mrs. A. A. Alexander ended the hour by playing "Hearts and Flowers."

TROTTERS SHOW CLASS IN LOCAL VICTORY

By Quentin K. Mease

The Famous Globe Trotters, late of New York City, but more recently of Des Moines and the surrounding hinterland, dug deep into their bag of tricks to delight a large following of rabid basketball fans in humiliating the Drake D Club 28 to 22 in a mirthful exhibition at the Drake fieldhouse Tuesday night.

Sporting a 15 to 8 margin at half time the Trotters soon had the respect of the collegians, who sensing the futility of their cause, joined in the spirit of the occasion and practically assumed the roles of spectators. "Killer" Johnson and "Chink" Buckner were above par in their clowning, their fancy passing, and shuttle, and truck dribbling provoked a continous round of rib tickling laughter.

Several novel stunts were included in the extensive repertoire of the Harlemites, including one from a football formation that gave added spice to the program. The crowd obviously enjoyed it so everyone was satisfied with the evenings fare, except a bunch of highly embarrassed, crimson-faced Drake youngsters. Johns led the scoring attack for the Trotters, netting seven baskets. Rabbi McDonald, and Chief Rankin, Indian Newcomer, kept the Missouri champions away from their baskets, at their guard posts.

Walda Goes Round & Round

By "You Don't Know Who, Do You!"
Dorothy Wheels

The title of this column is very deceiving, because the columnist has been walking the "straight and narrow path" for some time. The cooking school started off with a bang and I imagined ended with a bang, too, —with the Bystander staff being given the honor of being introduced to the very appreciative (I hope) audience. Orchids to Mrs. Johnson's helpers Geraldine Bates, Gaynell Wormley and Minzie Johnson, for being so efficient. Little Evelyn Crewse of the dancing Crewse kids receives the title of being one of the sweetest kids this side of heaven This columnist wishes to apologize to a pal for some remarks that were unwittingly said last week. Sorry, pal. That girls' basketball team from West junior high are really the tops, having beaten the East Side girls of the Neghborhood house Monday in a 29 to 4 game. Berneida Washington is the able leader of this aggregation. Bessie Colbert is the most attractive person I have seen wearing glasses in some time. Doris Bailey seems to have gotten some one new at the present time, but I'm not saying anything. Be sure to watch for MMT next week. It's bound to be good. In local boxing circles, Carroll Heath is to boxing what F. W. is to Woolworth. Seems as it June Bradshaw was quite the center of attraction the other evening at basketball with the gentleman who lives on Day street, while this Day street gentleman's girl was engrossed in a supposedly interesting conversation with a Bluff street gentleman. My, mi, my, it's such a small world. H. Clark, the rest is Gable, Carr seems to have something interesting in Ames for him. At least "this something" is treated to trout dinners when in town. The Ambassadors are still practicing for their show to be given some time. Soon, I hope. The best known sign of the coming of spring is the collecting of all the drug store cowboys and girls around their ranch house. Y'know the drug stores. The Delta's Jabberwock promises to be very entertaining whenever it is given. It seems as if several of the town's hot shots are on the verge of singing "Out in the Cold Again." Wonder why the "Has-Brouck's Supporters Club" don't come through with a social function, therefore giving the maidens of this city an opportunity to attend some of their meetings. Another Highland Park lassie has her mind on a gentleman whose given name is Paul. Wonder why a certain bunch of boys have been telling M. J. A. that her boy friend L. F., has been seen with D. M. of E. Sixteenth street. The Plaa-Lan floor was quite heavily laden the other evening with those who couldn't retain their footing while swinging to the tunes of Anna Mae Winburn" and her Cotton Club boys. "Alone At a Table For Two" is the tune a couple of boys are singing since their return to this fair city, after being absent from it from Thursday to Monday. Do you know who I mean? Because of the complaint that the column wasn't any good last week, we will give you some variety and have a different type of column next week. V. D. is quite the ideal salesman in all appearances, according to what was seen of him at the Cooking School. S ountil I can start going 'round and 'round again, I remain,

Yours with regrets,

Walda.

Mrs Nichols' marriage to Charles Barns was announced at a birthday party given in honor of Mr. Barns by Mrs. Nichols on March 8th at her home. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leo Jefferson Watson Turner and Mrs. Garnett.

that was worth twice the admission price, Paul E. (Red) Rivers, dynamic tap dancer formerly of New York, showed how "Mose really kicked the bucket." His original chair dance is most rhythmic and cleverest act on the stage today. It was a feature of the Publix circuit in the East last year.

William Kyles, assistant director, who has been with the band four years gave some interesting "Snakehips Tucker" variations that just wouldn't quit! He also revived old "Minnie the Moocher" for a nice hand.

"Gypsy" Carr, entertainer of Indianapolis, Indiana, formerly known to her friends here as Miss Azalee Gray, opened the show with a snappy rendition of "I Cap't Give You Anything But Love."

T. L. (Speck) Howard, dance promoter, has plans for several spring dances and has already booked "name" bands for a gay outdoor season.

Quarterly meeting was held Sunday at the church. Rev. P. H. Jackson of Muscatine officiated, with Rev. W. F. Ogelton, the pastor assisting. Rev. Evans of Oskaloosa, an evangelist, was a visitor at the church Sunday and was a guest at the H. R. Crayton home for Sunday dinner. Sherman Ballew is a new member in the beginners class for the past two Sundays. Cecil Ballew is improving. Mrs. Fred Turner is improved since her fall. H. R. Crayton is recovering since his recent operation. Mrs. Nancy Walker's mother died last Thursday in Oskaloosa. Mrs. H. R. Crayton's mother was married recently to James Bruce in Beloit, Wisconsin. Everstine Daniels is to leave next week for Iowa City to work for the government.

Chameleon Uses Tongue to Snare Insect Dinner

The chameleon has five toes which are arranged in opposed sets on both fore and hind feet. Such equipment enables him to walk straight up a wall or upside down on the under side of a large leaf. Unique among lizards, is his extremely active tail that rolls downward in a flat spiral, and which he uses for clinging to twigs and vines. When angry or threatened, he becomes a fiery red or a brilliant orange in color, and puffs up like a toad.

The chameleon lives entirely on insects which he catches with his long and somewhat sticky tongue. This tongue is most astonishing to one who has never seen it, says a writer in the Los Angeles Times. At the free end, it is shaped like a club, and at the base it slips into a sheath that is located at the bottom of his throat. When insects are to be caught, he can shoot it out to a distance that is equal to more than half of his total length and return it like a rubber band to its original position. The dexterity with which he operates this wonderful instrument is almost too fast to follow with the naked eye. His eyes, too, are most extraordinary, because the two eyeballs move quite independently. One may be looking at an object behind him, while the other views one in front. Moreover, the eyelids are almost completely united, leaving only a tiny, circular orifice through which the animal sees and which moves with the eyeball in its almost continual wanderings.

Lord Chancellor Defied King and Paid With Life

On December 21, 1118, in Cheapside, London, was born Thomas Becket, son of a wealthy merchant. He was educated in London and Paris, and took up a commercial career. Then he turned to the church, and was ordained deacon, later becoming Archbishop of Canterbury.

In 1155 Henry II made Becket his Lord Chancellor. For seven years all went well, and Becket became famous for his magnificent display.

Then the See of Canterbury became vacant and Henry nominated Becket. But before long, observes a writer in Pearson's Weekly, he quarreled with the king over ecclesiastical privileges, and for six years lived in exile.

While Henry was in Normandy, peace was made, but Becket's first action again enraged the king, who furiously demanded his death. Four knights crossed the channel and slew the archbishop in his cathedral on December 20, 1170.

Much Food in Sea

Scientists say that if ever the food supply of the world peters out, it will be possible to live in perfect health on marine products. The sea has an illimitable supply of edible matter in the form of fish as well as vegetation, and sufficient minerals to enable our industries to continue indefinitely. Today, almost the only vegetable foods we get from the sea are in the form of seaweeds, which are extremely nutritious. A recent analysis of dried kelp shows it to have a total mineral content of 35 per cent, and the elements in it are chlorine, potassium, sodium, calcium, sulphur, magnesium, phosphorus, iodine, iron, manganese, and copper. Spectrographic analysis has revealed that there are other minerals, but in exceedingly minute quantities. —Tit-Bits Magazine.

Gloves Long in Use

Gloves are very ancient articles of dress. Clumsy but serviceable leather gloves, sewn with leather thread, have been found among the relics of cave dwellers. The ancient Greeks used them to protect the hands while doing heavy work, and the Romans wore them as ornaments and a mark of rank. Northern nations always protected their hands more or less, by gloves or otherwise, against winter cold, but gloves did not become with them an important article of dress until the development of the custom of carrying a pet falcon on the wrist. They began then to be made in most elaborately ornamented and embroidered forms. A guild of glove makers was organized in France as early as 1190.

Salvation Army and Youth

One of its outstanding features of the Salvation Army is the youth program—The Cradle Roll, The Band of Love for Recreation of Children of Both Sexes. The Chums for the Girls, The Sunbeams, Life Saving Scouts of the World and The Guards organizations provide from infancy training and exercise for body and soul. Singing companies and young people's bands and The Young People's Legion give training and inspiration for future Salvation Army leaders.

Source of Olive Oil

Olive oil comes, as its name implies, from the olive, the fruit of small tree which grows in southern Europe. In its unripe state, the olive is eaten between the courses of a dinner. When ripe, it yields olive oil, which has many uses—both internal and external. It is even used as a substitute for butter in some countries bordering on the Mediterranean.

Varied Theft

The African native has five different words in everyday use to describe five different forms and shades of stealing. 1. To pick up (what is not your own). 2. To take (other people's things). 3. To pilfer. 4. To steal. 5. To plunder.

Rev. Ed Mason of the Bethel Baptist church of Colfax will preach for the Chesterfield Sanstified Church of Christ on Sunday, March 22, at 8:00 p. m.

The Rev. L. G. Garret and choir will be with us on Friday evening, April 10th.

Grandma Henderson is still on the sick list.

The Money Changers

The money changers were those persons who changed unlawful money for temple uses into approved coinage, not all money being admitted to the temple. They had for sale objects of sacrifice for donation, for which many times they asked exorbitant prices, collecting from those whose wearisome pilgrimage to the temple had prevented them from bringing from their homes offerings which they desired to make. It was because of the imposition on the poor of this class that Christ drove the money changers from the temple.

Brittany Is Picturesque

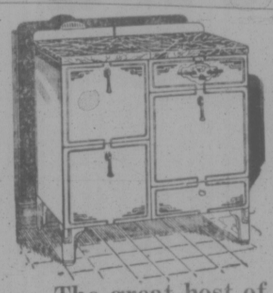

Brittany is a part of France, and is a geographical region rather than a political subdivision. It is a rugged and picturesque peninsula extending into the English channel toward England. Normandy adjoins it. It originally was called Little Brittain because of its proximity to England across the channel. For many years it was an independent country, but finally was united with France in the Sixteenth century. Its rugged coas is studded with famed French resorts.

The Largest Whale

Largest of all whales found in the seas of the world is Sibbald's rurqual, or the blue whale; specimens have been found over 100 feet in length. The food of this giant consists of fish no larger than sprats. So far as fishermen are concerned, says Tit-Bits Magazine, these large species are harmless, but the smaller, such as the pilot and killer whales, cause havoc if they get among a shoal of herrings.

Bactrian Camel, Central Asia's Beast of Burden

Quite a lot of people think that a camel with two humps is not a camel at all but a "dromedary." This is not so. The two-humped animal, which for many centuries has been the mainstay of Central Asian transport, is the Bactrian camel, states a writer in the Montreal Herald.

It is shorter in the leg and has stouter and harder feet than its relations in warmer climes, and its thick hair enables it to withstand the bitter winds and icy cold of winter in Central Asia.

The dromedary is a name given to the swift riding camel of Arabia and North Africa to distinguish it from the ordinary pack-carrying camels so familiar to us in pictures of caravans.

Speaking generally, the two-humped animal is found in cold climates and the one-humped in warmer regions, such as Arabia, North Africa, Sahara, Egypt, Sudan, etc. Both kinds have the same well-known capacity of storing water, a quality that makes them invaluable in regions where wells and oases may be hundreds of miles apart. A dromedary will keep a steady eight to ten miles an hour across shifting, burning desert sand, and, by absorbing the nutriment in its hump and drawing on its reserves of water, is able to continue for an extraordinary length of time.

Oil Long Known; Use for It in the Ancient Wars

The existence of oil has been known and used to some extent for thousands of years. The seams of Noah's ark were calked with asphalt or petroleum pitch which floated to shore on the Dead sea. It was used as mortar in the construction of the Tower of Babel, and ancient Egyptians used it to impregnate the wrappings of their mummies. Nebuchadnezzar was probably the first person to ever use asphalt for paving when he used it to smooth the streets of Babylon over which he was accustomed to ride in his golden chariot. Petroleum also found its uses in ancient wars.

According to legend, the ancient Greeks destroyed the threatening Scythian fleet by covering the waters around it with oil and then igniting it. And we read in the history of Rome of the old general who won a battle against the Vandal hordes by covering pigs with oil and then setting them afire and driving them into the ranks of the advancing barbarians. Some early tribes worshiped the flames produced by escaping natural gas which had accidentally caught fire. Indians and even early whites in America considered "rock oil" valuable as medicine.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Pepper Used as Spice

Pepper is one of the oldest spices known. Hippocrates used it as a medicine. Pepper differs from most other spices in this, that its pungency resides not in the volatile parts or essential oil, but in a substance of a more fixed kind, which does not rise in the heat of boiling water. The peppercorn which, when ground, is the familiar black or white pepper, grows on a creeping vine, usually at its best in the moist heat of a low-lying tropical forest. When pepper is cultivated on a large scale it is a common practice to plant trees to support the creeper and provide shade. When the berries are changing from green to red they are collected, and dried in the sun until they become black and shriveled. Ground in this condition, they produce black pepper. If white is required the black skins are removed.

Goose Was Established in Europe Ahead of Man

The goose goes far back into antiquity as a provider of food as well as feathers. It was already established in Europe before man came along, and with the possible exception of the common hen, was probably the first bird domesticated. Four thousand years ago it was regarded as a sacred bird in Egypt, though in so far as that may translate into tribute it must be discounted by the fact that the Egyptians early made it a habit to multiply their stock by sacred birds in species. There are references to geese in some of the Sanskrit writings, and in the tombs of Luxor figures of geese are included among the decorations.

The Romans considered goose liver a great delicacy, and enormous numbers of the birds were placed in pens and forcibly fattened by cramming. It was probably some of these geese whose loud alarm saved the Roman capitol from the attack of the Gauls in the Fourth century, B. C.

In Pliny's time geese were driven across Europe in flocks from France and Belgium into Italy. And Pliny adds, "Messalinus Cotta, the son of Messala, the orator, discovered the method of cooking the webs of the goose's feet, and fricasseeing them in small dishes along with cocks' combs."

The Celts are reputed to have the largest responsibility for popularizing the goose; from them the Romans learned the art of filling cushions and mattresses with the feathers to make luxurious couches.

Found Plow That Turned Soil With Singing Sound

Of the many steps by which plows have progressed from the crooked stick powered by the muscles of man to modern methods of turning the soil, none were more important than improvements undertaken by James Oliver beginning in 1853. Oliver wanted a plow that would "turn the soil with a singing sound," says a record of the bureau of agricultural engineering.

Cast-iron plows made about that time were superior to wooden plows, but they wore too rapidly and would not scour properly in the rich, sticky soils of the Mississippi and Ohio valleys. They "rooted, but would not invert, the soil."

Oliver's experiments led him to obtain several patents for the process of hardening or "chilling the nose and cutting edge of the share." Thus he realized his ambition for a plow that "sang" as it cut its way through rich prairie sod or heavy soil.

Pulled Plows by Tails

The plow, simplest and most basic farm implement, reached excellence only after centuries of painful progress. Research by the bureau of agricultural engineering shows that the first plows, fashioned from crooked tree branches, were pulled by one or more men, another forcing the crude implement into the soil. The barbarous custom of fastening draft cattle to plows by their tails was practiced as late as 1631. When an attempt was made to introduce cast-iron plows in the United States, farmers declared they poisoned the soil and prevented crops growing. Sir Robert Peel in 1860 gave his farmers "two iron plows of the best construction." On his next visit they were again using wooden plows, believing that iron plows made the weeds grow.

"Foolscap" Paper

Paper in sheets 13 by 16 or 17 inches was watermarked, by old-time paper makers, with a fool's cap and bells. Hence the name "foolscap." Why it was marked is something else again. One account states that in the Cromwellian days, after the monarchy had been overthrown and the royal paper monopolies set aside, the foolscap watermark was ordered into the paper by parliament, in place of the royal arms, as a token of derision.

Land of Fighting

Mombasa, on the coast of Britain's Kenya colony, which borders both Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland, is known by the natives as M'vita, literally, "the place of fighting." It has been the warring battleground of peoples for centuries. Portuguese have fought there with natives, Arabs with natives, and it has ben a place of fall for pirates, ivory traders and one of the great centers of the African slave trade.

Wrote "Hail, Columbia"

The words of "Hail Columbia" were written by Joseph Hopkinson, son of Francis, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Joseph Hopkinson was a Philadelphia jurist, born there in 1770. There also he died in 1842. He was the author of a number of ballads, and he wrote "Hail Columbia" in 1798 for the use of an actor named Fox, appropriating the music of a then popular composition entitled, "The President's March." The original march had been composed by a New York musician named Feyles.

The Word "Welsher"

While the Oxford Dictionary gives the word "welsher" in its meaning of "absconding swindler" as of obscure origin, other authorities attribute it either to some swindler of that name or to the alleged bad faith of Welshmen as expressed in the well-known nursery rhyme "Taffy was a Welshman, Taffy was a Thief." The term may be traced back to English racing journals of the 1850s.

Sheffield Ware Popular Before Electro Plating

Sheffield ware antedates the development of electro-plating and has a fascinating sort of history of its own.

It is a process that has not been used since about 1850, but was used for more than 100 years prior to that date to make fine table silverware and other art objects, states a writer in the Atlanta Constitution.

To make Sheffield ware the artisan took two ingots of silver and placed a bar of copper between. The three blocks were pressed together as tightly as possible with twisted wire and then placed in a welding oven. The worker watched through a window in the door and at the exact moment of fusing withdrew the metal. This had to be at just the right moment or the job was ruined.

The fused block was then pressed out, between heavy rollers, to the exact thickness desired, giving a sheet of metal, copper in the center and silver on either side.

The artist then engraved his designs, many of them exquisitely beautiful, on the silver coating and the edges were covered with other silver to hide the copper layer.

Sheffield ware had been less expensive than solid silver up to about 1850, but a reduction in the cost of silver at that time made it cheaper to use the pure metal than to follow the expensive process of making Sheffield ware. Also, about that time, the much easier and far less expensive electro-plating process was developed to where it was practical.

Mercury, Gold and Other Materials Outweigh Lead

The finding of the densest material on earth is a relatively simple matter. All that need be done is to weigh and measure all known forms of matter that are available. In general we find that solid metals are denser than gases, liquids, or nonmetallic solids. Consequently it is not surprising that the heaviest substances known are metals, writes Dr. Thomas M. Beck, in the Chicago Tribune.

Lead, which is proverbial for its heaviness, is far from being the heaviest metal. In fact, it is not even the heaviest of the commonly known ones; mercury is somewhat heavier, and gold has almost twice its density. But there are three rather rare metals, platinum, iridium, and osmium, having almost identical densities, which are the heaviest materials known to man. Of the three osmium happens to be slightly the densest, with a density of about 22.5.

Everyone is aware that gases are the least dense of all forms of matter. The heaviest gas is far lighter than the lightest of solids or liquids. And the lightest of gases is hydrogen, with a density at ordinary temperature and pressure of about .000083.

Old Norse Mythology

In the Sogne Fjord in Norway—that hundred miles of wild, gloomy gorges—old Norse mythology had its last home. These rugged rocks, towering at times 3,000 feet above the deeps of the fjord, echoed the clamorous war cries of Viking warriors for ages. In the mysterious recesses of its wandering ravines the trolls and gnomes of fell and forest and the worshipers of Odin, Thor and Freya held out longest against the faith of "the White Christ." So mysterious are some of these ravines that the sun does not penetrate for weeks together. Northward stretches the Jostedalbrae, the largest ice field in Europe, covering an area of nearly 800 square miles.

Where Bonaparts Became Famous

Scarcely a dozen miles from Brno, which used to be Brunn, in Czechoslovakia, stretches the field of Austerlitz, where the military genius of Napoleon Bonaparte revealed itself at its mightiest. With his headquarters at Brunn, the Little Corporal led the combined armies of Russia and Austria, which greatly outnumbered his, into a trap that resulted in the greatest bloodshed of his entire campaign. That was December 2, 1805. Today, Brno is the second greatest city in Czechoslovakia, a thriving industrial center carrying on the activities that, in pre-war days, gave it the name of the Austrian Manchester. It was the seat of the empire's cloth industry.

The Dulcimer

The dulcimer is an instrument having metallic wires stretched over a trapezoidal sounding-board, with a compass of two or three octaves. It is played with two light hammers held in the hands and from it was derived the idea of the piano action. The origin of the dulcimer is remote, and must be sought in the East. In the bas-relief from Kuyunjik, now in the British museum, are to be seen musicians playing on dulcimers of ten strings with long sticks curved at the ends, and damping the strings with their hands. The dulcimer was extensively used during the Middle Ages in England and Spain, and is still found in Hungarian bands, where it is called czimbalom.

Our Early Windows

Our windows originally were divided into small panes, because only small panes could be made economically. Glass was blown like toy balloons, and, naturally, only small areas could be cut from these glass globes to fit in a flat frame. When the art of glass-making made large panes possible the tendency was to clear our windows of all cross pieces and have large unobstructed surfaces.

CONDEMNED MAN ASKS COURT TO HURRY UP HIS HANGING

Seattle Wash., Maarch 13—(CNA)—Barney Fleming, condemned slayer, found that the courts could be very obliging in speeding a death sentence against a Negro when he applied to Superior Judge Malcolm to push forward the date for his hangin.

Fleming appeared before the judge with the Rev. Arvid Ohrnell, of the Assemblies of God faith, and his attorney, to ask that he be executed in April, before his spiritual adviser leaves for Europe. Judge Douglas sentenced him to be hanged April 3 for the slaying of his wife last fall.

HARRIS MUST DIE FOR ALLEGED RAPE SAYS HIGH COURT

Nashville, Tenn., March 13—E. K. Harris, who was convicted of assaulting a 14 year old white girl in 1934, which resulted in a riot in Shelbyville, Tenn., must go to the electric chair, according to the decision of the state supreme court, which upheld the sentence of the lower courts here last week.

At the time of the alleged assault a mob formed and attempted to lynch Harris. County officers and national guardsmen defended the court house in a gun battle climaxed by the burning of the court house, after several persons had been killed and others wounded.

SUIT RUMORS CAUSE WARNER BROS. TO FROWN ON INGRAM

Los Angeles, Calif., March 13—Summoned by a hurry-up call from Warner Brothers-First National, Robert Williams and Edward Broadnax, appearing in "Porgy and Bess," now in Detroit are expected daily for a test for parts in "The Green Pastures." Quite a deal of mystery surrounds the whole affair, as "Pastures" in the cutting room already was known to have been completed last week with the announcement that no retakes were necessary.

Officials around the lots would give out no information on the parts Williams and Broodnax were to play but speculation is rife over the chance that one of the two will be cast in the part of "De Lawd" now being played by Rex Ingram.

Rex Ingram is a well known actor having appeared on Broadway in several productions, including "Porgy." Ingram first attracted the attention of Hollywood producers while appearing at the Mansfield theatre in New York.

Suit after suit is said to have been filed against Ingram and the latest one was that of Pansy Lee Harper, beautiful stenographer, who is suing him for $632.35 as payment of a loan which she made him in August, 1934.

Miss Harper states that Ingram had promised to marry her. She has airmail letters from the actor while he was playing at the Mansfield theatre in New York.

Recent suits against Ingram are: (1) Divorce suit filed by his wife, from whom he is separated; (2) suit for $3,000 filed by his deceased wife's parents for the care and support of his child.

Wrote "When You and I Were Young Maggie" Song

The place made famous by the old love song "When You and I Were Young Maggie," is at Ducktown, Tenn., near a creaking old mill which ground meal for the Indians and pioneers, and the occasion, the return of an aged couple to the scene of their romance, relates a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The site is marked by a tablet placed there by the Daughters of the American Revolution, which tells all about it, and about the author, George W. Johnson, who there met, wooed and married Maggie Harris, and who years afterward wrote the poem about her.

Early in the Eighteenth century, Johnson, who, according to historians, was a rambler and hunter of gold, heard strange tales from the Indians about wealth in the mountains of east Tennessee. Johnson loaded his canoe and took off from his home near the mouth of the Hiwassee river. Following the river he reached Spring creek, which finally became so shallow he abandoned his canoe and walked. Hearing a creaking mill far up the creek Johnson strode in that direction. And then he saw Maggie. He gave up his search for gold and stayed around until he had won her, and then took her to his home down the river.

Years afterward when both were aged and gray they returned to the hills, and the scene of the old mill where Maggie lived when she was young. This inspired Johnson to write the poem. His poem was found later by a musician, J. A. Butterfield, who set it to music.

Hotel or Inn Different in Some Other Countries

In England anything from a private house with a couple of rooms to let to a huge establishment, with hundreds of rooms, run on the most up-to-date lines—can be described by its owner as a hotel, says Pearson's Weekly.

In Scotland an inn or hotel is defined, under the licensing act, as a place of accommodation having not fewer than four apartments set apart exclusively for the sleeping accommodation of travelers.

But in Vienna, Austria, no establishment may call itself a hotel unless it has at least 50 bedrooms. Outside Vienna the rooms must not be fewer than 30. Also, a fixed proportion of the rooms must be equipped with a certain standard of comfort.

The main requirements that are demanded by Portuguese law are quaintly described as "a properly-dressed staff, a spotlessly clean dinning room with little tables, an entrance as large as possible, and electric light if obtainable."

When March Was First Month

Until 1797 Venice began the year on March 1. March was "the first month" to the early Christians. Throughout the Middle ages the year might begin on different dates in different places, and styles of reckoning took their names from towns. In many Benedictine monasteries the year was reckoned from Christmas as late as the beginning of the Fourteenth century, and this custom persisted even longer in England. In that country the new style calendar was not adopted until 1751, although Scotland adopted it in 1599 and Holland first of all, in 1532. Dates in the "Ecclesiastical History" of the Venerable Bede were more confusing than they are before Doctor Poole, the England scholar, explained that that he used the Greek Indiction, beginning September 1. The Easter cycle calculations of Dionysius became the Roman Catholic, but other tables than his were earlier used in Rome.

Stanley Falls on Congo River

The Stanley Falls on the Congo river mark the termination of the Upper Congo's northward flow, and change the course in a 60-mile curve to the westward. The falls are not of great height—the total fall is about 200 feet—but they effectually prevent navigation between the waters above and those below except by canoe. The first five cataracts are close together, there being only nine miles between them. The sixth fall is 22 miles down stream, and the last 26 miles beyond.

Dove and Pigeon

The words "dove" and "pigeon" are practically synonymous, but in ordinary usage "pigeon" is a somewhat broader term and is applied to all birds belonging to the family columbidae. Both terms are applicable to the domestic pigeon and to various wild species, but some of the smaller species of the family are specifically called doves, such as turtledoves, mourning doves, ground doves, to distinguish them from the larger species more commonly called pigeons.

Salt Mine Clean

Totally unlike a coal mine, a salt mine is a perfect example of cleanliness and orderliness, observes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Although the mine is in full operation, neither workmen nor machines are to be seen, for salt mining consists of nothing more than a series of water pipes which continually spray the sides of the mine with water under high pressure. This water, bringing with it the salt from the walls of the mine, falls to the bottom of the shaft. It is accumulated in reservoirs and then pressed overhead where the salt crystals are retained in large pans. About 120,000,000 pounds of salt are extracted every year from the Salsburg mine in Austria, one of the most famous in the world.

Daniel Webster Impressive

One description of Daniel Webster, when replying to Hayne on the floor of the senate is as follows: "Webster arose to see a to packed galleries. In appearance he was grave and dignified. He had the noblest head America has produced—smooth-shaven, heavy-featured, with swarthy skin, brilliant eyes and beetling brows, and his rich voice had the range and melody of a chime of bells. The simplest man could follow his plain diction, while his logic and weight of argument delighted and convinced the most learned."

Michigan Leads in Pelts

Michigan leads the nation in the quality of its beaver pelts, and is second only to Louisiana in the number of muskrats taken annually, and these two are among the pelts most in demand. In variety no state exceeds Michigan, for the state has at least 70 species of animals with a commercial fur value, ranging from the lowly cotton-tail rabbit up to the mink, otter and beaver.

Lewis Gives McAvoy Neat Lacing

In his first title defense since winning the light heavyweight crown last October, John Henry Lewis, the fighting champion, successfully staved off the challenge of Jock McAvoy, British champion, in a fifteen round match at Madison Square Garden last Friday night.

Lewis completely upset the predictions of the "wise guys" around Broadway, who have been up in the air over the boy from across the pond ever since his one round knockout of Babe Risko the American middleweight titleholder, in a non-title bout at the Garden last December. Jack Blackburn was again tutoring the ruler of the light-heavies, just as he did when Lewis copped the crown from Bob Olin.

Haynes Stops Carnera

After a somewhat spotty record, marked by several mediocre exhibitions and defeats by third raters, Leroy Haynes, Philadelphia heavy, thrust himself into the heavyweight picture by putting the skids under the bulky frame of Primo Carnera in the third frame in a fight in the city of brotherly love Monday night.

Local Sluggers in Dowling Bouts

Three of our local boys toed the resin in the Dowling college ring in bouts held there Monday evening. Charlie Broddus was apparently coasting along to certain victory, in the feature go of the bill, when he, unexpectedly, ran into a vicious right hand wallop dished up by his opponent and dropped to a reclining position for the count of nine. Charlie finished in a somewhat dazed condition, but lost the decision. Les Henry couldn't get serious in his match with another white lad, and while trying to entertain the crowd, allowed the opponent to cop the decision. Clarence Strother fared better in earning a draw in his bout and had he been able to nish stronger, could have won the nod of the referee.

Enter City Fight Tourney

Five local amateur boxers are entered in the city amateur boxing tournament being staged by Promoter Pinkie George during the week of March 30th. The following boys have signed up: Clarence Strother, 135 pounds; Charles Broadus, 165 pounds; Morton Graves, 125 pounds; Alfred Bruce, 155 pounds, and Osbon Lewis, 135 pounds.

Erl-Kings Win Two More

The Erl-Kings added the scalps of two more victims to their string last week, by defeating on successive nights, the Carlisle Standard Oil team on Wednesday and the University Church of Christ cagers on Saturday evening on the latter's floor. Burt Moore and Bunny Wilson set the pace for the runaway affair with Carlisle, collecting 19 and 18 points respectively.

Enter Tournaments

Several of the 'Y" teams are entering tournaments to be held in the next week or two in the city. The Erl-Kings are set for the city tournament to be staged at the Central "Y" early in April. The Raiders are entered in the South Side Community tournament this week-end and next month in the Jewish Community Central States tournament. The Comets have signed up for the city junior tournament held at the "Y" this week.

Drake Track Stars Place in C. I. C. Meet

George pulled up fourth in the 6 yard dash, in which a teammate won in the fast time of .06:3. Redrick tied for fourth in the high jump, in which a Drake man also won.

EXTRADITION TO SOUTH BLOCKED BY N. A. A. C. P.

Bayonne, N. J., March 20—Joseph Gathers, enrolled in the CCC camp at Camp Dix, N. J., was free this week, after having been held in jail awaiting extradition to South Carolina on a charge of murder, because the N. A. A. C. P. branch here rallied to his defense. Gathers was arrested as a suspect in the murder of Jack Fowler, a federal officer, in Herkeley, S. C., on May 14, 1935. Through some circumstance the authorities in South Carolina secured a photograph of Gathers and directed that he be arrested in New Jersey.

The young man was held in $15,000 bail for a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Joseph Holland. The hearing was held this week and when Gathers and nine other colored youths were observed by three witnesses from South Carolina, none could identify Gathers as the man wanted. The case was dismissed. Acting for the Bayonne N. A. A. C. P. were Attorneys Charles W. Carter of Jersey City and Rosario Mazzola.

THE PRIMARIES

The primaries Tuesday brought many surprises. In some cases a majority of less than two hundred votes won the nomination for certain candidates. It presents a set up which is bound to work splendid possibilities for the Negro if advantage is taken of the situation.

The Bystander hopes the Negro will come to realize vividly that the basis of his troubles is economic. Consequently it is highly important that he determine what his economic status will be should certain candidates be supported and elected, rather than some superficial basis founded upon acts which have absolutely no bearing on this question of economic betterment; in plain words how to make bread and butter for the family. Get this over to the voter and there is little doubt as to the outcome.

The campaign will be full of scrap from now on. The lines are drawn and the Negro should make the best of the situation.

All Negroes are not going to support any one candidate for any office. This is to be expected. No other group will either. But as between them selves Negroes must not fall out and become enemies over the campaign. Nobody else does. Let this be a clean, straight from the shoulder campaign and when it is over be friends just the same.

EXPECTED

When President Roosevelt started his Warm Springs (Georgia) project for children suffering with infantile paralysis, The Bystander immediately concluded that Negroes would be left out of the picture; maybe not because Mr. Roosevelt desired it but because of its location.

Later when presidential birthday balls began to be sponsored to raise money for the project, The Bystander said nothing editorially against these knowing that eventually the thing would come to a show down.

Recently a Negro doctor in West Virginia sponsored a ball and raised thirty-five dollars. The money was sent to the president of the fund who acknowledged its receipt with the following reply: "Our Foundation does not have any facilities for handling Negroes—and never has had these facilities."

Now Mr. Roosevelt might have known that this very situation would arise. Negroes as well as white are subject to infantile practice and need treatment for it. To have placed the project in a community where Negroes are excluded and which is financied by public subscription was a mistake; it could have been placed in some other state where the climate is equally suitable and which would not have caused this embarrassment.

The situation goes to show that too often even the president does things without thought.

THE SOUTH BALKS

Congress likes to investigate and usually it is not hard to get money to pay the cost. However, Senator Van Nuys, democrat of Indiana and the friends of federal anti-lynching legislation seem to be having a difficult time convincing Senator Byrnes of South Carolina that his committee ought to approve the expenditure of $7500 to pay the cost of investigating the cause and what has been done about lynchings which have occurred since Congress had the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynching bill before it last year.

Of course there is a reason. Most of these lynchings occurred pretty close to Senator Brynes' state, nothing has been done about them in spite of the fact that he along with other senators told the public that lynching could best be handled by the states, and they don't want the public to know the miserable job they have done keeping those promises.

The Bystander hopes this money will be appropriated because an investigation cannot go on without funds; because the more light is thrown on this barberous crime the more public opinion will demand that the practice be stopped.

The Bystander thanks all who helped in any way to make the cooking school a success. It went over in a big way and proved again that the public will respond to worthwhile movements.

Birmingham, Ala., March 13—Dr. E. W. Taggart, resident of the Birmingham branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Pepole was arrested here this week under a Birmingham city ordinance regulating posters.

Dr. Taggart was arrested because the Birmingham branch issued a poster and distributed it about the city protesting against lynching and appealing for members to join the branch.

As illustrations on the poster there was a picture of the lynching of Rubin Stacy at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., July 19, 1935, and also a picture of the lynching of Bert Moore and Martin Dooley, who were killed July 15, 1935, at Columbus, Miss.

Dr. Taggart was arrested under section 5474 of the city code prohibiting the posting of alvertising matter on fences, buildings and telephone and telegraph poles. He was released on $50 bond.

Immediately upon receipt of a telegram telling of Dr. Taggart's arrest, Warm Springs, Georgia, Foundation for Infantile Paralytics, has "no facilites" for handling Negro children. This announcement was made by the director of the Foundation in a letter acknowledging receipt of a gift of $35.00 raised at a Negro Roosevelt Victory ball here on the president's birthday. The gift was retained.

Inquiry as to whether the Foundation accepted Negro children for treatment was made by Dr. Atkinson, Negro Democratic leader here, in remitting the money. In answer to his inquiry, he received the curt reply: "Our Foundation does not have any facilities for handling Negroes—and never has had these facilities."

the national office in New York wired him suggesting lawyers and pledging backing to the limit. A hearing was held Wednesday, March 4, and Dr. Taggart's case was dismissed.

Memphis, Tenn., March 13—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace held a farmers' conference at Peabody hotel here March 5, 6 and 7 for the purpose of explaining and discussing the new soil conservation and domestic allotment act recently passed by congress.

This new act includes the preservation and improvement of soil fertility, promotion of land anl dimunition of exploitation and wasteful and unscientific use of national soil resources.

This is the first instance where any administration has given such recognition to the race to represent and speak for the 906,000 race farmers who come from every state.

New York March 6—The characterization of the Negro press as "'cowardly and unfair" by Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., in a speech in the house of representatives February 17th was rebuked this week by Walter White, secretary of the N. A. A. C. P., who wrote Senator Fish:

"You do neither Senator Borah nor yourself a service when you impugn the integrity and motives of the more than 200 Negro newspapers of the country for their criticisms of Mr. Borah's attitude. They have been among the most valued fighters against lynching in all of its forms."

PREVENTION AND CARE IN GAS ACCIDENTS

Ordinary illuminating gas is the commonest gas encountered. To prevent such gas escaping in dangerous quantities have leaks in gaspipes repaired promptly, have your gas stove inspected at least once a year especially at the beginning of winter because ventilation is poorest during the winter months.

Proper ventilation should be had at all times even though the weather is cold. Coal gas will escape from red hot cast-iron stoves, and very big fires in such stoves are dangerous especially in sleeping rooms. Gas from sewers and wells is also dangerous and any suspicions on the part of members of a family that sewer gas is backing up through the pipes should be investigated. Recently a great many deaths have resulted from people leaving garage doors closed tightly, and the motor running; those deaths occur from carbon monoxide gas, a very deadly gas that is odorless, tasteless, and invisible, causing one to sleep soundly without any warning. Frequently these accidents occur while one is driving with all windows of the car up and there is no escape of gas into the car. To treat a person overcome by gas, remove him immediately to fresh air, start artificial respiration, send for a doctor immediately and notify the police station or the nearest fire house as they may have apparatus for administering oxygen with which to speed recovery; always state exactly what is wrong with the patient.

A. L. W.—Do you think the little business we are trying to start will soon open up for a great demand?

Ans: There will not be any great demand for the particular type of business in which you are interested. However, you will receive enough profit from it to have a nice income.

J. M. C.—How can I convince my mother that what she thinks isn't so?

Ans: Your mother seems to be thoroughly convinced that you gamble and give your money away. The only way you'll be able to convince her otherwise is to help her a little more and start saving a small sum of your money weekly.

D. M.—Should I leave my husband or what is the best thing for me to do?

Ans: You are physically unable to take care of yourself now if you were to leave your husband. The only reason your husband runs around is for companionship. When you recover it would be a good idea for you to accept his friends and try to make life a little more interesting for him socially.

Tibet's High Mountains
Feature of Strange Land

Tibet, most mysterious of countries of central Asia, is a land chiefly of ups and downs, notes a writer in the Chicago Tribune. High mountain ranges there are cut by narrow valleys, the whole of the country being so rugged and rocky that it is capable of supporting a population of barely three million souls. A sizable proportion of these are lamas, or priests who dwell within lamaseries that cling perilously to the steep slopes of the awe-inspiring mountains.

On the occasional lofty plateau in this strange land the people carry on a precarious form of agriculture and tend their small droves of yaks, great, shaggy oxen that are found in the country also in a wild state.

The religion of Tibet is a form of Buddhism known as Lamaism. It includes a widespread belief in reincarnation. The head of the church who likewise is the head of the state, bears the title of Dalai lama. Second in authority in the country and the church is the Tashi lama, to whom are attributed great spiritual powers.

Since the Jesuit fathers Gruelber and D'Orville visited Tibet in 1661 few Europeans or other aliens have been permitted to cross its borders to visit the sacred cities of Lhasa and

Parson of Pinhoe Still Receives English Pension

It is more than 900 years ago since the delighted King Ethelred granted an annual pension of one mark to the Parson of Pinhoe and his successors forever.

But every year since then the English king's word has been honored, observes a London writer.

The pension originated in the year 1001 when the Danes, landing at Exmouth, made a fierce attack on the army of Ethelred. At the height of the battle, the English discovered that their stock of arrows was almost exhausted.

To beat the Danes they must obtain fresh supplies. Where were they to come from?

Up spoke the bluff parson of the little village of Pinhoe. "Give me a horse and I will ride into Exeter and bring you all the arrows you need."

They gave him the horse and furiously covering the two miles into Exeter; he fulfilled his promise. That load of arrows turned the tide of battle.

Since then more than forty kings or queens have ruled England, but Ethelred's promise has been kept by all his royal successors.

Irish Celtic in Origin

The Irish people, while a mixture of races, are largely Celtic in origin, descended from the Celts, part of the great Aryan race which swept over Europe many centuries before the Christian era. They are not Semitic in origin. There are various traditions and poetic fables to account for the early inhabitants of Ireland, before the Celtic invasion. Constantia Maxwell's Short History of Ireland refers to the legends of invasions and colonizations by five different peoples, the Parthalonians, Nemedians, Firbolgs, Dedannans and Milesians. The Milesians, last of the Celtic-speaking colonies to come to Ireland, are supposed to have arrived between 1700 and 1000 B. C., from Scythia, through Thrace, Egypt, Gothland, Britain and Spain.

Oliver Cromwell as Dictator

There is little disputing the fact that Oliver Cromwell, during his office as Lord Protector of England, exercised dictatorial powers, although in his pronouncements he invariably associated himself with the parliament and acted in co-operation with the parliament when that body was sitting. In its absence he alone decided matters of state, but persisted until his death in accepting only the title of Lord Protector, having refused the offer of crown made by the parliament.

Invented Steel Pen

The machine-made steel pen was invented in England about the year 1822, though hand-made steel pens had been made a few years before this. The quill-shaped slip pen on holder dates from about 1832. The first American steel pens were made by Richard Esterbrook in his factory at Camden, N. J., in 1858. While the steel pen soon replaced the quill for business and general use, a great many people held to the old-fashioned pen for many years, for sentimental or personal reasons.

Cats and Rats

Cats play an important part in keeping down hordes of mice and rats that might overrun the world. In Hongkong, it is obligatory for each householder to keep a cat. The Japanese fought bubonic plague with a shipload of cats from the United States. In the national printing office of France cats are kept on the pay roll to keep rats from eating valuable papers. In the annual expenditure for post offices provision is made for cats.

Marcus Aurelius

Marcus Aurelius wrote in Greek because he was a great admirer of the Greek culture, was a product of a Greek philosophy, and had been schooled by Greek teachers. He had a great veneration for the city of Athens, and, visiting there, founded chairs of philosophy for each of the four principal sects—Platonic, Stoic, Peripatetic and Epicurean.
