Henry Comes To Town To Battle Mon.

(By Allen Ashby, Sports Editor)
We walked into the room of Henry Armstrong, world's welterweight champion, at the hotel La Marguerite, Wednesday. Among a lot of luggage, we found the big little man hunched over a typewriter pounding out a letter home.

This is apparently one of his first chores when he arrives at a fight scene. We were met by Harry Armstrong, his brother, and the first thing that popped into our mind was "How did this guy get so big and Henry so small?"

The champion was not very talkative, answering most questions with a yes or a no. Although Harry revealed that Eddie Mead, Armstrong's manager, was a close friend of Pinkie George, local promoter, that was one of the main reasons for the fight to be here Monday night at the Coliseum. Armstrong showed no great interest in what was being said until we mentioned that his opponent, Manfred, had been in the city since Sunday.

"Working?" asked Armstrong, looking up from his writing for the first time. "Yes, working."

"Huh," and back to his word pounding.

Then to the gymnasium where we could see the source of Henry's amazing stamina. His body from the waist up is that of a man weighing around one hundred seventy-five, but he has no legs to speak of. He moved through his paces in the gym at a speed that made most of turn just watching him. One whirlwind round shadow boxing, another round session on the light bag and a furious one with the heavy bag. Here one could see the terrific power of his punches as he threw rights that traveled less than a foot and sweeping left hooks that jarred the bag. He apparently likes to fake hooks with his left and then shoot over a terrific right as he practiced this quite a bit. It seemed to be one of his pet tricks. He wound up his work with a rope-skipping session and called it a day.

It was really too soon at this writing to get an impression. This idea of the city, but he seemed well pleased with his living quarters and mentioned that they might be here a while after the fight.

Pullman Porter Wills Large Estate

Washington (ANP)—When the will of John Ivey Foreman, retired Pullman porter, was probated in the courts here, it was revealed he left an estate of approximately $57,000. Bernice Lamond, a daughter, was named sole heir. The estate included $18,000 in real estate and $15,000 in cash. Mr. Foreman died on Aug. 27.

Capitol Comment

The phone rang in George E. C. Hayes' office. Mr. Hayes is a lawyer or reputed. Upon answering, it was the Daily Star, a white evening paper calling. "About the Pullman porter who died last August and left an estate of $57,000, Mr. Hayes; how did he do it?" "I don't know," Mr. Hayes replied. "I wish I did."

Incidentally, the wills of former Secretary of the Navy Swanson and the porter were probated the same day. Swanson's will showed $10,000 less than that of the Negro.

THEY GAVE THE SHOW

TALENT SHOW

Participants in the Bystander's October 2, before a crowd which filled the auditorium of the Jewish Community Center. The show was sponsored on Monday night.

Fifteen Participants Get Cash Prizes at Big Show

A capacity audience filled the auditorium of the Jewish Community Center, Monday night, October 2, for the fourth annual presentation of the Bystander's Talent Show.

Many new amateurs and well known professional and non-professional singers and dancers won the audience's favor and carried away prizes.

This year's show was directed by Speck Howard, who is well known to Des Moines audiences for his memorable performances in comedy productions sponsored annually by local organizations.

In his jovial—"let's get going" manner, Howard started Monday evening's show off with a fast-moving Jitter-bug team, Quinman Caldwell and Clarice Stewart, that broke the ice and had the temperature steaming as the spectators applauded and called them back for another chorus while Jerry Hayes and his men furnished "mellow" swing.

The show was on and the contestants began their parade.

Master of Ceremonies Howard opened the contest with the professional group, presenting first the Des Moines Four quartet singing a group of two spirituals, "Swing Low, I'm Climbing Up the Mountain."

Lloyd F. Nash followed with a swing trumpet arrangement of "Marie."

Mrs. Mildred Page, blind contralto, offered "Indian Love Call," and received generous applause. Mr. E. K. Knox took the microphone and offered "It's My Desire," a religious number.

Everett A. Mays, baritone, gave a dramatic rendition of Maginsey's "Shadrock," a light classic, spiritual-type composition, opening the folk songs and classical group.

Memories of long ago were revived when the Martin Sisters trio, teen age girls, sang "Santa Lucia" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia."

Although Hugh got a big hand there was a bit of misunderstanding between him and the accompanying orchestra and he did not make the hit as he did on the Sunday afternoon broadcast over KSO. He went off the stage with his fist rolled up for someone.

Then the M. C. called Blanche Manuel, young contralto, for her number. She appeared but had no accompanist and had to make a quick exit. She later appeared when the orchestra consented to accompany her on "Don't Worry About Me." After a bad start she swung into the mood of the song and made a hit with the audience and judges.

It is believed that the tragic incident grew out of a feud which has existed between the Montgomery and Booze families for several years.

Lorraine Jones, in deep contralto voice, must have been low in spirits when she rocked and moaned on "St. Louis Blues." She had a purpose in doing it and the judges thought so, when they announced the prize winners.

It was not a laughing matter for William E. Jackson, high school baritone, when he got before the mike to sing "Deep Purple," but his young classmates evidently thought so. He sang right on and got a big hand even though they did laugh.

Mildred Griffin in clear soprano sang "There's a Gold Mine in the Sky," after which Wanda Mae Hubbard, in similar voice, sang "I Cried for You." The Three Queens of Harmony followed with a rendition of "Sweet Sue."

The little tots group heated up the show when Florabelle Gilmore, wearing a blue-backless evening dress, brought down cheers, screams and laughter from the audience when she did "Tain't What You Do," and then gave her version of Susey-Que, trucking and a few of her novelty steps.

Following her, seven-year-old Marguerite Ewing, in a navy blue shorts costume, nodded to the orchestra to start out on "Sweet Sue" and in a lot of voice, freedom and dance steps she stole the show.

Six-year-old tiny, Rowena Mae Fields, made her spectators laugh and she laughed with them, during her version of "Comes Love."

ELSIE THOMPSON HURT IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Elsie Thompson, 31, 1344 Fremont street, suffered a fractured nose, fractured right leg and severe back injuries early Sunday morning, October 1, when the car in which she was riding collided with another machine at Eleventh street and Euclid avenue.

The H. L. Overton club of Burns church met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Fred Allen, 1160 Seventeenth street.

The closing contesting group included the dancers opening with Louise Murray and Bernice Kelly in a novelty number, "An Apple for the Teacher," and a clean cut routine. Theresa Hubbard and Doris Claybourn appeared and were getting along fine—then Claybourn deserted and left Hubbard to get the applause.

Fourteen-year-old Lavern Anderson, in a tap specialty, thrilled the audience as he trucked, pecked, Susy-Queed and combined them all in his soft-tap-and-novelty number.

Ruby and Lillian Barber, in attractive uniforms, did a dance specialty that featured the famous Jitter-Bug.

The judges, Dutch Schmidt of the Theatrical Booking Agency, Miss Sarah Steel of East Side Community Center music department, and

PROF. CARVER AND JOE LOUIS BROADCAST

Chicago (ANP)—Prof. George W. Carver and Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, were featured guests on the radio program, "We The People," broadcast coast to coast as a feature of the American Legion convention here Tuesday night.

The program, sponsored by the Sanka Coffee Co., had gathered a galaxy of unusual personalities. Col. Theodore Roosevelt acted as master of ceremonies, assisting the famous Gabriel Heatter, and 5,000 people witnessed the broadcast which was presented from the stage of the Auditorium theatre.

Undertakers in St. Louis in Big Row

St. Louis—Allen Dailes, prominent undertaker is one man who believes that "when it rains it pours." Last week he found himself facing three charges: unethical and unfair practice of his profession, disturbing the peace, and assault.

It was alleged last Tuesday that he is one of the local undertakers who is being furnished with a list from Homer C. Phillips hospital of all patients who are seriously ill, and, it is said that he is telephoned in code when a patient dies.

At a meeting Friday a protest was made to Joseph M. Darst, director of public welfare and president of the Missouri Licensed Embalmers association, by several undertakers.

COLORED INSURANCE COMPANY OUTRANKS WHITES

Chicago, (ANP)—According to an independent report compiled by the Standard Analytical Service, the Supreme Liberty Life Insurance Company of Chicago has more assets for each $100 of liabilities than any of the 17 largest White Insurance companies in the United States.

Included in this list is the great Metropolitan Life Insurance company of New York with assets of $106.77 for each $100 of liabilities. Supreme Liberty has assets of $120.49 for each $100 of liabilities.

In its report to Supreme Liberty the Standard Analytical Service indicated that age and size alone were not the only criteria by which the soundness of a life insurance company could be judged. The report pointed out that "the best test of

Doctor Is Fatally Shot in Gun Battle with Police

Funeral services of Dr. Hubert H. London, 46, at one time prominent physician here, will be held on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from the St. Paul A. M. E. church, with the Rev. H. C. Boyd officiating.

Dr. London, who was wounded at his home at 2704 Cleveland avenue, Monday afternoon, October 1, in a gun battle with police, died Tuesday evening at Broadlawn General hospital.

He was shot twice in the thigh and once in the lower leg after barricading himself in his house when a municipal court bailiff, John Woods, called to serve a traffic court summons. Internal hemorrhages were said to have caused his death.

According to police information, Dr. London barricaded himself in the house with a shotgun and a .38 caliber pistol, exchanging shots at a furious pace with officers who surrounded the building.

A tear gas bomb was hurled through a broken pane in the front door by Police Radio Operator Hugh Glassburn.

The police information stated that London started firing again through the hole in the door, but as the gas grew stronger, attempted to run out the back door towards a shed in the rear.

The doctor was stopped by bullets from police officers guns and he fell and lay in a pool of blood in the garage until the arrival of an ambulance.

The summons concerned a traffic ticket given Dr. London two weeks ago on charges of passing a school stop sign and failing to have a driver's license.

In Failing Health
According to Mrs. London, his mother, Dr. London had been in failing health since 1932. She did not wish to reveal further information.

Twice he had been committed to the Clarinda State Hospital, county records revealed. The first time was June 26, 1935 and was discharged on December 23, 1936. He went back on June 19, 1937 and was out on parole, a clerk informed.

Born in Mahaska County, Iowa, March 30, 1893, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. London, Dr. London received his elementary education in Buxton, Ia. Later he came to Des Moines secured his high school education at East High from which he was graduated. His father died in 1938.

He studied medicine at the Iowa Medical School, graduating from the state university in 1920. He began his practice here in the summer of 1926 and was prominent in the field until 1932 when his health failed him.

Born in Evans, Ia., November 12, 1886, she was married to Richard Claybrook, June 6, 1906. She professed religion at the age of twelve in Muchakinock, Iowa, and was a member of choir in the A. M. E. church from her girlhood days until her death.

OPPORTUNITIES IN NIGHT SCHOOL

The Des Moines public school system through its adult educational department has announced the fall evening school for 1939. The period is for ten weeks beginning October 9; with a registration fee of two dollars.

A great variety of courses is offered covering most every subject a student may desire. The schools are located conveniently and the hours arranged so as to enable most people to attend.

In these days, the worker with special qualifications is much more able to get a job than the fellow who does nothing in particular; and with more idle time than ever before on most people's hands there is little excuse for a fellow to be unprepared for opportunities when they come.

The Bystander hopes that it's readers and all of their friends will avail themselves of this fine opportunity. The cost is normal and the reward of untold value.

LANDON HALF RIGHT

Alfred M. Landon, Republican presidential candidate in 1936 said in a dispatch written the Atlanta Constitution, that he is opposed to Southern Republicans weighting down their delegation to national conventions with Negroes and added that a two-party system would be the finest thing which could happen to the South.

Well, that's a pretty bold statement for Mr. Landon to make even though others have said the same thing before.

And the Bystander is inclined to view Mr. Landon's position as sound logic provided that he does not stop with the half truth and carries his reasoning through.

As the situation stands today the Republican party in the south is a Negro party skeleton with about enough votes to elect two or three congressmen in a Northern community. As a result they seldom elect a local official and a governor or a senator is out of the question. Consequently we have in practice one party in the south which runs the state and national government in the respective states whether the national administration be Republican or Democratic.

However, the part which Mr. Landon does not speak of is the refusal of the one-party system or government in the south to permit Negroes and poor white people to vote. By intimidation, illegal enforcement of requirements to vote, the pole tax and other devices the southern oligarchy manage to elect their candidates and run the government with some of the tax money paid by these poor devils without giving them anything to say about how the job should be done.

And unfortunately the Republican party leaders in the north have connived with the South to keep this condition of affairs going for the mutual benefit both of the Republican and Democratic leaders.

Yes, the Bystander agrees with Mr. Landon provided that he does not bring us half truths. Negroes in the south as well as the north are too intelligent to swallow this bait knowing full well that they are not responsible for the unsatisfactory condition of which Mr. Landon complains.

THANKS

The Bystander takes this opportunity to thank the sponsors, participants and assistants who cooperated so beautifully to the end that our annual talent show was a success.

We shall be back again next year—bigger and better than ever before.

BIBLE THOUGHT

"Ye have heard that it had been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy:

"But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them: which despitefully use you, and persecute you." Matthew 43-44.

The Bible thought of the week was selected by the Rev. P. M. Marshall, pastor of the Kyles A. M. E. Zion church, Des Moines, Iowa.

CHERISHING—AWHILE

By Kermit L. Wilson
I never shall forget the day
When Jesus said I am the way
So lift him up for He is sweet
He will aid you when you have disappointments
He will give you all of your anointments.
So follow him He is our Savior
He will lead us to good behavior.

Did you ever stop to think,
That He will mend each broken link
He died for you, He died for me,
So we might have eternity.

If I could only touch his hand
And with talk of life and land
So on his name try to recall
For He is a friend to all.

IN MEMORIAM

A RENDEZVOUS

(An original poem by Viola F. Jones)

I had a rendezvous with Death
He thought to catch me unaware
While I lay nodding in my chamber,
I heard his footstep on the stair,
He thought I saw a shadow in the doorway,
There.

Purchase I may be dreaming,
But not I must be wide awake
I'm sure I heard a footstep on the stair,
Who's there, I cried, who's there?
Come in, I said, who's there?
Who is it, I asked, who's there?
I can but hardly raise my head,
Come in and sit beside me here,
I'd love to see your face, to hear you talk,
If I could rise I'd come and welcome you,
But here I lay, I cannot even walk,
Till he, I heard, 'Tis Death, I've come for you.

Your time is up and you must go,
I'd thought to catch you calmly sleeping there,
And carry you away, you would not know,
So, Death, 'Tis you, creeping up the stair,
Be not afraid to enter in my door,
I wish to speak with you face to face
Before I leave this world forever more,
Oh, Death, your face is pale, so pale,
Till pale far more than mine,
But none of that, what I would have you know
Is that I am prepared to go at any time,
I've lived my life, I've done the best that I could,
I've leaned upon the Master's everlasting Arm,
Come, Death, hold me gently there,
The Master would not have you do me harm.

Oh Death, 'Tis sweet, I am prepared to go,
Hold me close, hold me tighter, son,
Be not afraid, you cannot do me harm,
Our rendezvous is just a pleasant one,
I have been waiting Death, for you to come,
I did not wish to go away alone,
I wanted you to fold me in your arms,
And carry me gently, to my heavenly home.

In memory of Viola F. Jones, who passed away a year ago October 8, 1938.
Signed,
The Family.

WALKER STARS AT IOWA

Coach Eddie Anderson took the wraps off his University of Iowa team last week and the boys really went to town, swamping South Dakota under the largest score Iowa has rolled up in years. Jim Walker, giant Negro at left tackle, had the announcer groggy describing his fine line play and his blocking. Walker may make football history at Iowa if he isn't broken up. Might add that a man like Walker will take a lot of breaking.

Fred Smith got in a while at end and had some fun, but another back, Gilliard, couldn't play. Archie Harris of Indiana was much in evidence as his mates tied Nebraska last week. This is Archie's junior year and he is expected to see a lot of service. Ohio State's Clyde Anderson, two-hundred-pound end will get his baptism against Missouri this week end—we hope. The Pacific Coast is still blazing the trail for schools whose Negroes can play against Southern schools. U. C. L. A. has played Kenny Washington and Woodrow Strode against Missouri, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian. The L. U. clans were having trouble with Texas Christian until Washington, Strode and a newcomer, Jack Robinson, got into the game and licked the Texans. The T. C. U. coach said said after the game that Robinson and Washington were "quite a pair."

High Schools

North High was flattened by Dowling 7-6 after a grand battle. Claude Elliston, starting end, played a so-so game until someone either called him names or hit him. Then he turned in a nice defensive game, nearly blocking one punt and helping to block another that led to North's score. Bob White used up as much energy running to and from the bench as he did in the game. Bob did a lot of running, but got nowhere because he ran away from his interference. Then he threw a lot of passes to the wrong people but no one can say Bob wasn't scuffling like mad. Joe Howard got in for one play, went after a pass that he never saw, and came back out. He got back in for a few more plays.

Comets Trimmed

The Los Angeles Bulldogs brought the best team Des Moines has seen since the Minneapolis Red Jackets were here, and they put the Comets out 36 to 6. A big, fast, smart team, they were just too much for our local boys. The Comets couldn't do much, but Bob Vandever carried back a couple of kick-offs for good gains, nearly breaking away once. Then later he grabbed his pet long lateral and gained a few yards. Late in the last quarter he broke out around the end, jumped over one man, and turned on the juice to outrun the boys fifty-five yards for the Comets six points. It doesn't matter what the score is or who wins, all the local fans want to see is Vandever run. Whenever they see that they go away satisfied. Oland Johnson made his debut in a Comet uniform and didn't do so badly.

They say Ike (one man riot) Miller and Chet Simms starred.

ATTORNEY MORRIS IS OFFERED BOXING GLOVES

Attorney J. B. Morris, editor of the Bystander, has been offered a number of gifts from boxing gloves to maybe a probable chance to meet one of the boxing champions, after his tilt on Tuesday with Sol Glick, white city prosecutor. Fists flew fast and furious in Judge H. S. Cooter's court room when the Glick attempted to remove some legal papers from the little attorney's hands.

The judge reprimanded both as officers of the court.

Entrenous

Well now that the third annual Talent Show is over with success we can sit down and wonder about a few things. Example—Blanche had a bad start, but solid ended on the mellow side. Wonder if she really sang that song for A. J.'s benefit. He was such an attentive listener. Kay B. has E. E. on the limb fighting to get back. Note who accompanied her to the talent show. Wonder where "Chops R. fits in? D. C. forgot the motto "Don't give up the Ship" when she walked off the stage and left her partner holding the bag. Who did the little lady remind you of when she put her hands on her hips and glared at the orchestra when they missed her cue? None other than the famous Ashby tribe. Hugh S.'s interpretation of "On the Sentimental Side" put about thirty-five girls in that mood not about the song, but the boy. By the way Hugh do you prefer telephone calls or fan mail? When Grace Dysart rolled out in her "Boogie Woogie Stomp" the jamming was too much for the crowd. Almost had a riot. A. P. held hands with two fellows at once during the show—Let us in on your technique. Why did you disappear so suddenly Jimmie B.? Couldn't you think of any more ways to crash or did you actually get in? We were honored with the presence of Mayor Bowes (number two) with his gong (one cow bell). He couldn't wait until he was presented so he rang his bell in the middle of one of the best numbers on the program. Quite rude of him. Added attractions were the charming ushers. I voice the sentiment of many (especially the fellows) Imagine Travis F. being injured in a football game. Well it's suppose to be true. The staff is contemplating on awarding their employer a trophy for his pugilistic ability. An exhibition was given before the judge this week. Well. I-I-I g-g-guess it's about time I run for cover. Sol-Long.

CANNING

(By the Sampler)

Mrs. Gertrude North, 821 Thirteenth street, stayed up all night recently canning spiced peaches, peach preserves and chili sauce. She also preserved Italian prunes.

FASHIONS

(By Hazel Griggs for ANP)

The 1939 styles are a return engagement of those worn during the Victorian Era, and the "Hour Glass" figure has bowed in many of the same materials which graced this period. Heavy satins, brocades, failles, damasks and moires are the materials which will be on dress parade this fall and winter. Pink and blue brocaded satin for evening things will be toponotch fashion, and very pretty gracing your new figure.

Evening frocks, indicative of the picturesque period they represent, will go modest this season. A new "covered-up" look—drop-shoulder and mutton-leg sleeves—and such—will prevail. Yards of material will be incorporated into the skirts and bustles. Bustles will increase in size as the season progresses.

Snoods, much like those worn by the Victorian equestrienne, "make" the hat these days. Those most favored are ones of mesh with a hand-knit look. They catch the curls nicely at the back and are as useful as they are ornamental on windy, Autumn days. And no hat is complete without one. Some snoods drape dramatically, flowing from the back of the hat, but those most effective are the ones which hold the hair neatly in place. A black mesh "snood" or "bright red hat is very attractive.

And snoods and wasp-waists and feminine figures all give a feeling of gaiety figure—unless you're fortunately endowed with one already.

Robert Brooks is reported convalescing at the Iowa Lutheran hospital.

M. R. W.—Am I making the right decision in trying to undertake the course of study which I have in mind?

Ans: I feel that you are using good judgment in trying to better yourself and you will finish the course of study without any trouble. Naturally it will take you a good while to learn the subject thoroughly but it will be worth the effort put forth.

J. M.—Tell me in this week's column why is it that C. G. and I can't get along? We often have disputes yet he seems to care for me.

Ans: Both of you are selfish and will not try to cooperate. May I warn you both, if you do not stop acting so childish, your love affair will go on the rocks. You could find happiness, but not by fussing and being disagreeable.

M. L. E.—Does this boy really love me as he says and does he love me to his heart? Will I get to court before I am 18?

Ans: The boy likes your looks well enough to make "goo-goo eyes" at you, but his feeling for you is far from love. If you behave well, your mother will give her consent for you to have company occasionally next summer.

N. J. W.—I am the mother of eight children now and I wish to know will I ever stop having babies? I would like to enjoy a little bit of life like other people.

Ans: You deserve to have a little fun if anyone does. It would prove to your advantage to have a heart to heart conference with your family physician as eight children seems to be a good sized family.

Libra.—I have worked for years hoping some day to be able to establish a home of our own where we can rear our children without being

She's pretty as a picture, but

No one can tolerate halitosis (bad breath). It can ruin almost any girl's popularity . . . her closest friendships. Food fermentation in the mouth is said by some authorities to be a major cause of halitosis. And the insidious thing about this offensive condition is that anyone may have it and never realize it. Friends know, of course . . . only too well. But, unfortunately, it is such a delicate subject they won't tell.
So don't gamble with your social opportunities and your happiness by taking necessary chances. It is so simple to take precautions by gargling with pleasant-tasting Listerine Antiseptic—mouth fermentation is quickly checked and its colors are overcome.
Get the Listerine Antiseptic habit. Use it . . . morning and night, and before all important engagements. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, St. Louis, Missouri.
