TO EXCHANGE VIEWS ON POLICIES

London, (ANP)—Meetings directed towards the promotion of a better understanding between the British and the colored races where views on colonial administration can be discussed are now being held here.

Recently, Lord Moyne, secretary of state for the colonies, and G. H. Hall, undersecretary of state for the colonies, at a reception, stressed the fact that everything is being done to foster a mutual understanding between the administration and the colonial peoples. At meetings to be held every two weeks at the colonial office, opportunities will be given for the colonial secretary and his staff to obtain closer collaboration by a free exchange of views.

Roland Hayes Sings at Ames

Roland Hayes, celebrated Negro tenor singer came to Iowa Friday, July 11, for one of the summer concert series at Iowa State College in Ames.

Few people in Des Moines knew of his coming—though the daily paper carried a small item the previous Sunday.

Miss Ruth Lurabard, Miss Adria Titterington and Miss Florence Vickery, of the central YWCA and Miss Marjorie McCoy and Miss Marie Ross attended.

At the Ames gymnasium where the concert was held, a capacity audience of music lovers enthusiastically greeted the singer with applause as he stepped upon the stage with his accompanist, Reginald Boardman.

He opened his first group of numbers singing Handel's "Where'er You Walk," "When I Am Laid In Earth" (Purcell); "Maladetta Sia l'Aspetto" (Monteverdi); "An Chloë" (Mozart). His second group included "I Want to go Home" (unaccompanied), "Zango (Brazilian-African fetish chant of Makumba) arranged by Villa-Lobos; "Michieu Baingo" (Louisiana Creole folksong arranged by Camille Nickerson); "Round 'bout de Mountain" (Tennessee Mountain Afro-American folksong arranged by Percival Parham.)

During the intermission—Mr. Hayes talked freely on the "battles of life" stating that one's success was "ninety-nine and one-half percent the result of his own efforts. "Don't depend upon anyone to do what you should do for yourself."

He said "get under a hill and start digging and don't give up because the battle gets hard." Mr. Hayes said

Chances for Reconciliation Between Joe-Marva Slim

Chicago, (ANP)—Adolph Hitler and Josef Stalin will probably kiss and make up before Joe and Marva Slim take such action, it appears today.

The heavyweight champion filed an answer Wednesday to her divorce suit in which he denied virtually all of his wife's allegations and introduced some of his own, among them the contention that she had not been a "true and virtuous wife." At the same time he told her he had lavished thousands of dollars upon her, and ended by asking that her plea be denied.

The Brown Bomber, who had been reported coming to town for a conference almost daily since Mrs. Slim started action, finally did arrive last Thursday, and spent a few hours here prior to leaving for Minneapolis and a boxing exhibition Friday night.

Joe spent most of the day playing golf but he is understood to have called Marva on the telephone. However, what they said to each other is thus far a secret.

It was also learned from Atty. William Temple, the champion's counsel, that any talk of a $250,000 out of court settlement for Mrs. Slim is a pipe dream. Thus far, he said, nothing long that line had been suggested.

Sources close to the wifeholder are inclined to laugh at Marva's contention that Joe is worth $400,000 in real estate and another $400,000 in annuities, stocks and bonds and checking accounts. Although he has grossed around $2,000,000 in his seven years of professional fighting, he has had to pay his managers, Julian Black and John Roxborough; his trainer, Jack Blackburn, as well as other training camp expenses. This in itself knocked a big hole in his earnings.

Bluford to Carry On School Fight

Kansas City, Mo.—Miss Lucile Bluford, newspaper woman of this city who sued the University of Missouri for refusal to admit her to its graduate school of journalism stated that the ruling of the Missouri Supreme Court Tuesday July 8th, that she can enter the state university only if Lincoln university refuses to admit her after "proper demand" and "reasonable time," is disappointing.

"Since January, 1939, I have been waiting," Miss Bluford said in a statement of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "Because the language of the court is such that the 'reasonable time' might drag over two — even ten — years or more, I am determined to carry on my fight more intensively than ever until Missouri provides me with the education to which I am entitled as a citizen and taxpayer."

Local Group Working to Get Negroes in Unions to Be Qualified for Jobs

Defense job seekers are urged to register at the Iowa State Employment Service, 518 Grand avenue. Though registered the prospective employee must belong to a union and he is urged to go to the union hall, Third and Locust and apply for admission. Skilled workers should not register or apply as common laborers, for once classified it will be difficult to change.

Definite plans were formulated at the meeting of the Negro Chamber of Commerce Monday evening at the Blue Triangle YWCA for the fullest possible integration of Negroes into the various local defense industries, including the new small arms ammunition plant due to be erected soon north of the city.

It was emphasized at the meeting by Attorneys S. Joe Brown, state chairman of the Allied Councils on Defense, and Charles P. Howard, a member of the Chamber's defense committee, that every person desiring employment at the ammunition plant first register at the state employment service, 518 Grand Avenue.

It was stated that only men would be employed during the erection of the plant but later in the operation of the plant, both men and women would be used. The construction force will number about 10,000 men, while approximately 9,000 persons will comprise the operating personnel.

The two speakers also strongly urged that all applicants for jobs be sure to indicate any skills or special abilities possessed so that they might be assigned positions in some of the higher paying brackets.

Steps Taken

Arthur P. Trotter, president of the Chamber, presided and told of the steps taken early in the winter by the organization to have the Negro group of Des Moines fully represented in the early stages of development of the national defense program. He mentioned that the Mayor had been represented on Chamber Mark L. Conkling's defense industrial committee by Manson L.

Among others to speak during the meeting were James L. Dameron of the Brotherhood Lodge, Inc., who pledged the cooperation of that organization in the defense drive, and John S. Coleman, who has been active in the promotion of the vocational training program at West Junior High School. Mr. Coleman told of his efforts to get young Negroes to register for the courses at the school. He stressed the importance of getting this technical training now as an invaluable aid in fitting oneself for a preferable job in the defense program.

President Trotter in closing the meeting invited the cooperation of participation of all organizations and groups in this drive to see that the Negroes of this vicinity procure their just share of employment in the present emergency. The heads of local organizations are especially urged to appoint a representative to serve on the Chamber's defense committee whose present members are: A. P. Trotter, R. E. Patten, Atty. Charles P. Howard, James L. Dameron, Manson L. James, and Mesdames Azalia Mitchell, Mable Mason and Marie Roberts.

The pageant, one of the most elaborate of its kind ever to be staged in Des Moines, is entitled, "The Conversion of Davy Jones," will contain fourteen standard acts.

The show is being produced under the direction of Frank B. Robinson, with the assistance of Leo Simms, manager of Good Park Pool. The technical staff is composed of Richard Parsons, Elbert Webb, William Bailey, Charles Boston, Don Parker, Theodore Martin and the enleir T. O. B. club, who are in charge of the costuming.

A band and drum bugle concert will be given prior to the presenting of the pageant, through the courtesy of the Hawkeye Concert Band and the Brotherhood, Inc.

A limited number of tickets for the reserved seat section are now available and may be had through application at the pool. There is no charge for this spectacle but seating facilities are so limited that those not having tickets must stand up, Mr.

ing weekly at the Chamberlain Hotel with the defense committee and reporting back to the Chamber on James, insurance man, since last December. Mr. James has been meeting the progress of efforts to obtain these industries for Des Moines.

Mr. Trotter also announced that he had just recently named Mrs. Helen D. Beshara, Polk County juvenile officer, as the Chamber's representative on the local executive group of the National Layman's Committee. The National Committee has requested the Mayors of the cities of the United States to form local units of Breakfast Clubs within their various jurisdictions.

Mayor Conkling has set up the executive group, of which he is the Ex-officio Chairman, and Sam Orenbaugh, of the city Legal Department is chairman, to be composed of the twelve larger civic organizations of Wearing Dogs Properly. It is pretty safe to say that the many thousands of puppies that die or develop rickets or malformed limbs before they are three months old would have grown into healthy dogs had they been properly weaned. No set time can be given as to when to wean puppies. This depends entirely upon the condition of the puppy to be weaned, but it is usually considered sometime between the ninth and the twelfth week.

Many people consider it is all right to abruptly change from a milk diet to a diet composed entirely of solids. This is incorrect and the stomach rebels. The best way is to make the weaning a gradual process, when the puppies are three to five weeks old. This gradual supplementing should be done with any one of the nutritious and palatable milk foods on the market. Then gradually add more and more until at the complete weaning the puppy's stomach will be adjusted to receiving a more solid food.

First Law Under Constitution

The first law enacted by congress under the Constitution was "An Act to Regulate the Time and Manner of Administering Certain Oaths," and was approved by President Washington June 1, 1789. Under this statute the form of the oath, taken by the vice-president and other federal officials is as follows: "I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear the true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion, and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter. So help me God."

Moving Accident Victim Dangerous

Serious and unnecessary injury can be caused by a person who takes it upon himself to lift an accident victim and place him in a car in order to rush him to a hospital. Medical authorities advise against moving an injured person more than actually necessary until medical help arrives or unless someone familiar with first-aid procedure is present.

Don't Fire Till—

Some day, some time, somebody will establish with certainty who actually gave this famous order. That it was issued at Bunker Hill on June 17, 1775, to the Continentals who were about to be attacked by the British regulars under the command of William Howe is agreed, as is also the circumstance that the Minutemen were short of ammunition and heavily outnumbered.

Your Soil First

A good gardening soil is both friable and fertile. When friable, writes Helen Van Pelt Wilson in the March issue of House Beautiful magazine, it has water holding capacity, is well aerated and easily penetrated by plant roots. It is rich in active bacteria, due to its humus content. When soil is fertile, it has plenty of those elements which are essential to the healthy, balanced growth of plants. Too many amateurs, according to Miss Wilson, start gardening with seed packets. That's like trying to decorate a house before the cellar is dug. In gardens, as in houses, good foundations count. The deeply, at least two feet for

Endless Variations in Designs for Oil Lamps

Oil for the lamps of America! From 1825 through the 1850s when pewter lamps were the vogue, there seemed to be endless variations in their designs which could not be attributed to particular makers. The lamps can only be classified according to the fuel they burned.

Pewter whale-oil lamps were the most common type, and at times have been considered an American invention—but not so. Lamps of the sort were used by the early Romans. While fishing in America was a thriving industry before 1860 and it was easy to obtain this oil which served so well. But it was not until the Nineteenth century that whale-oil was burned in closed lamps here. The wick came up through a tube which was often made of brass for strength; the tougher metal could better stand the wear and tear as in most early ones the tube had to be unscrewed to fill the lamp.

Male Kiwi Sits Happily On Eggs; 'Wife' Watches

If you become really friendly with an aviator he will begin talking learnedly about the kiwi. But if you pin them down most will admit they have never seen one. All they know is that a kiwi is something that should fly but can't. Pilots use the word as a final result in any argument with aviation executives who have neglected to learn how to leave terra firma.

Vegetable Water Can Be A Vitamin Filled Broth

If you have been listening, as you most certainly should, to the widespread advice on saving the water in which vegetables are cooked you may be looking for an idea on how to use this vitamin filled broth. Say you have a cupful of essence from cooked carrots, spinach, string beans and potatoes, you may use it to good advantage in a Bisque of Salmon and Oysters.

Parasitic Fungus Growth Attacks Potatoes, Beets

That finicky fungus, known widely as Rhizoctonia, and causing an equally well-known disease of potatoes, sugar beets and other crops, shows differences which may account for some of its eccentricities, according to E. L. LeClerc of Louisiana State University, as the result of investigations in co-operation with the United States department of agriculture.

Grass Silage

Much interest among farmers is spreading in grass silage. For centuries the Swiss dairy producers of the Alps cut their grassy meadows even during rains and without hesitation stored the hay in silos without loss. Since grass has less sugar than corn or sorghum crops it is necessary to add dilute sulphuric or hydrochloric acid to the grass as silage. However, more recently farmers have found that if they add a little molasses to the grass it also will go through the right kind of fermentation and make excellent silage. Whey or whey powder, a by-product of cheese factories, can also be added to the grass silage and give similar results. Molasses is becoming popular with farmers to add to other fodder or silage as animal feed and it very likely will increase in popularity in Texas because of regular importations of black strap molasses from Cuban sugar mills to the Texas Gulf coast from where it reaches the interior by tank car or truck.

Parole Board Rules Wife, Husband Must Live Apart

"Whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." By its own practice and admission, the district parole board of Washington does not feel bound by this Biblical injunction. One of its parolees was released from the Lorton reformatory recently and told she would be thrown into prison again for a year if she sees or speaks to her husband within the next 12 months.

In June, 1939, Charles R. Simms, 33, and his wife, Mary, 22, were arrested and indicted on narcotic charges. They pleaded guilty and threw themselves upon the mercy of the court. Simms was given six months to a year and his wife was sentenced to one to two years.

After serving his full term Simms was released last May. Mary served a little over a year when she was paroled in August. Simms was waiting outside the gates of Lorton reformatory when they swung open to release his wife whom he had not seen for a year.

"I can't see you, Charles," she wept, as he rushed up to embrace her. "I can't go back with you. I'm afraid to talk with you. I don't want to come back here for another year behind bars."

Charles went back to their home full of bitterness against the kind of justice which continues to exact punishment after the prisoner has served his term in jail. Mary took an apartment a block away. In desperation, Charles appealed for help to the parish priest who had married them a short time before they got into trouble.

Frank Fant talking to Maxine Manuel then cutting out over the hill with Lacey Mae Johnson. The two Cabbell girls of Mason City (Jean and Eleanor) are carrying torches for Junior Kelly and Frank Kaiser. Poor Lumber Handling Negates Treatment Benefit

Poor and lax methods of handling the treatment of cut lumber to prevent wood-staining during curing is held responsible for the appearance of discolorations in treated green lumber, according to A. F. Verrall, of the United States department of agriculture, as a result of studies conducted in co-operation with the Southern Forest experiment station. During the last 10 years, Verrall states, the use of effective chemical treatments to protect lumber from fungous stains during the air seasoning period has become general, particularly in the southern states. Occasionally, however, mills report severe staining of treated lumber.

For the most part, these failures are due to poor handling practice and not to the failure of the treatments. Too long storage of logs, allowing for infection of pine logs particularly with fungi carried by the Ips beetles, and infection of hard woods by ambrosia beetles, and too long an interval between the milling operation and the chemical treatment appear to be practices responsible for many cases of treatment failure in the South.

Protracted periods of weather unfavorable for drying, Verrall continues, may cause general failure of chemical treatments, but this cause appears to be a less frequent one than poor handling practices.

Invalid Writes Letters To Bereaved Families

Most everybody called her "Cousin Martha," and she liked it. A New England woman with a trained mind and an intellectual face, she was invalided when only a little past middle life. Thus it came about that she spent her days as well as nights abed, scarcely able to move her body. Happily, her eyesight was unimpaired, and her patrician hands were scarcely ever idle.

During her waking hours "Cousin Martha" was usually reading or writing. She began to write letters shortly after reading the daily paper, which she spread out on the bed and consulted often. For a long time no one knew what it was that kept "Cousin Martha" busy writing innumerable letters, though there was much speculation. But one day the secret came out.

Every day that saintly shut-in read the obituary notices in the paper and straightway set about to write a note of sympathy to the bereft family. "It is all that I can do," she explained, when her secret was known, "and little enough at that. But it may help somebody in time of loss and sorrow."

Imagine the effect of such a letter, beautifully written, reflecting a sturdy religious faith, coming into a home from which some member of the family had gone out.

(By Marie Ross)

Fish and fowl, flowers and a few lettuce, turnips, beans and peas get along very beautifully in the back yard of Mrs. W. J. Bush, 927 12th street. Hid behind a high terrace a bit of the country side greets one as the smell of the rambling roses, the honey suckle, the moon and wisteria vines vie for attention. Follow a curved walk—up a few steps—through an archway—and your eye does not know whether to go to the right and visit with the fish—or to the left and talk with the spring fryers and invite one to leap into a skillet—or follow the walkway ahead for the grape arbor—the rows of beans, turnips and other food stuffs growing there. Mrs. Bush believes in taking advantage of every bit of bare space. She pointed out a plot of her special variety of roses in bloom and upon close inspection there were one or two food plants just a growing. Bean vines pop up here and there. There seems to be no end to the different plants, wild and tamed, that grow in Mrs. Bush's gardens around the lawn of her back yard.

On the east side a very busy restauranter has time for flowers, too. She is Mrs. Corinne Adams, who not so long ago moved her residence near her place of business, Gladys and Corinne's Chicken house on Walker street. She has many petunias and hearty flowers. On her whatnot table she is proud of two antique vases which belonged to her mother's mother and should be nearing 200 years old.

On East Seventeenth street lives another subscriber of the Bystander, Mrs. Mary Bush, who has resided in Des Moines many years. She is just beginning to get about after a siege of sickness this winter and spring.

Out in West Des Moines Mrs. Willie Brown, 1017 Maple street, is busy putting up greens and beans for her family this winter.

Be Sure To Qualify
Construction of the small arms ammunition plant north of Des Moines will start within the next few days. Naturally every male unemployed person, WPA worker and those with piece meal jobs is hoping to get employment on this work. We hope they do so that for awhile at least Des Moines will enjoy some of the prosperity the defense industry has brought to other communities.

Undoubtedly many Negroes will be among the workers. But the Bystander warns that the recent order issued by President Roosevelt seeking to bar discrimination against them on the bases of race must not be relied upon to do the job. The workers themselves along with interested public-spirited citizens, either black or white, have a share to perform as a condition precedent to securing employment.

Those seeking jobs have been warned to register at the Iowa State Employment Service, 518 Grand avenue. Most people have done that. However, this job will be done by union labor and even though a prospective employee is registered he will NOT be employed unless he belongs to the union.

The Bystander will gladly give any prospective employees go to the union hall, Third and Locust, and apply for admission. Skilled laborers should not register or apply as common laborers, for once classified, it will be difficult to change.

The Bystander believes Negroes will fare well if the job is gone about intelligently. And of course, nobody can be of assistance to those who have not qualified.

The Bystander will gladly give any information or help to those who call for it.

Race Prejudice in Schools

Governor Talmadge of Georgia has succeeded in forcing the Board of Regents of the state university to oust Iowa-born Dr. Walter G. Cockling from the college of education because of an alleged statement he made to a teacher expressing a belief in mixed schools. Dr. Cockling denied making the statement or that he believed in mixed schools. But the statement eventually did not save his job.

Dr. Cockling would have done better by standing his ground. Coming from a northern state he had two strikes on him anyway in a battle with Georgia's rabid governor.

The Georgia governor now goes further saying he plans to rid the school system of all teachers who have any connection with boards and foundations that are working for better race relations.

Undoubtedly many teachers from the north are being employed in white southern schools. And while we have no knowledge of the questions asked as to their belief in the equality of all races, generally speaking they conform to the practice of that section. Invariably they dare not do otherwise lest they lose out. All such cases are not so spectacular as that of Dr. Cockling.

It is also true that many southern teachers are working in northern white schools. While most of them are not outspoken in their opposition to mixed schools, some are quite pronounced and make life rather miserable for Negro students in their classes. And unfortunately, school officials are made inferring that they put scholastic or administrative ability ahead of views on the race question and fair play.

Consequently the north accelerates race prejudice by allowing the southern teachers to practice their theories while the south stifles tolerance by refusing to allow northern teachers to practice their views.

The Iowa Bystander

Of course Governor Talmadge's crusade against teachers with so-called liberal views on the race question is unusual because he called spade a spade. But generally speaking the program goes on at all times.

We Must Make Good

In the course of the upturn in employment caused by defense work and the enormous increase in the size of the army, Negroes are bound to gain some more desirable jobs many of which they have never had before.

BOOK REVIEW

NEGROES IN WARTIME

BY HERBERT APTHEKER (NEW MASSES APRIL 22, 1941)
Mr. Aptheker could not have chosen a theme holding deeper interest for our group at this particular time. He is a gifted writer. His words bore and burn like a red hot rod as he recalls in rapid succession, incidents, episodes, tragedies that have harassed the American Negro over a long period of time.

Many readers would find this article is terribly depressing. No one can dispute the author. He deals with facts. And yet the way he presents these facts. You would believe that American Negroes never have known anything but exploitation starvation murder discrimination lynching. These evils are all too common. But does anyone believe that we have realized nothing else?

Mr. Aptheker sees no hope for the Negro except as he embraces communism. Quite a number of people are willing to concede that communism has some valuable arguments in its favor. But we can't see the advantage in taking orders from Russia.

U. S. Buys Vast Reindeer

Herd for Preservation

Santa Claus is not going to have to thumb a ride for some time yet, anyway, for Alaska will have enough reindeer to supply the old gentleman's sleigh power from now until daisies grow at the North pole. The government recently completed the largest reindeer purchase in history, involving a third of the territory's vast herds.

"The government had to buy the herds because the industry was really faced with extinction," said Charles Burdick, a special agent for the department of the interior. "The white owners could not afford to take care of their herds and they had to be bought to be sure the industry kept going."

Eventually the plan is to get all reindeer under the control of the Eskimos, Burdick explained, so it will be entirely a native industry. He pointed out that the reindeer is the only dependable meat source the Eskimos have, and if the industry fell off it would mean a high relief load to the government.

When the deer finally get into the hands of the Eskimos, it will mean a much-higher standard of living for three-fourths of their population, Burdick declared.

Marries Wife Twice

Jackson married Rachael Robards in Natchez, Miss., in the summer of 1911, believing that the legislature in Virginia had granted her husband a divorce, instead, as was the case, of a mere permission to bring suit for divorce. The suit was not brought until 1933 and the divorce was granted on the grounds that, technically, Robards' wife was unlawfully living with Jackson as his wife. Jackson immediately procured another license and had another ceremony performed in 1934.

There is no evidence that Jackson's wife was unfaithful, or that Jackson was not acting in good faith in the honest belief that a divorce had been granted. Nevertheless, as a lawyer, he should have known that the Virginia legislature did not grant divorces at that time, but only gave permission for a suit to be brought in the proper court. The incident was used mercifully by the partisan press in the presidential campaign of 1928, but the result shows that those who knew Jackson believed in his honesty.

HEALTH HINTS

BY DR. C. R. BRADFORD
DIET IN WHOOPING COUGH

During the early stages of whooping cough every effort must be made to maintain nutrition on a high caloric diet and prevent the debilitating effects of the paroxysmal cough. The child should be kept in fresh air as much as possible for confinement in bed is not usually necessary. Coughing decreases during the day out of doors and indoors during the night in close quarters, although air aggravates the condition. The total food intake may be increased by offering small feedings between meals supplemented by the necessary vitamins and minerals.

During the proximal stage, vomiting is frequent, particularly at meal time. The food offered should not be soft and concentrated, such as, cereals, jellies, junkets, custards and puddings, to avoid any gastric irritation which may excite the cough. The number of feedings should be increased and so arranged as to follow rather than precede paroxysms of coughing. By these means at least a part of the meal may have left the stomach before the next attack of vomiting occurs.

The intervals proxysms are often sufficiently definite to chart a timetable in order to offer small concentrated meals at opportune time.

A similar schedule applicable to infants, a milk mixture being replaced by thick feeding and solid foods. Vomiting may often be contracted by a means of a snugly fitting abdominal binder. The daily fluid intake should be sufficient and may be given in small quantities at frequent intervals. Small retention enemata of warm salt solution may be given at frequent intervals when vomiting is severe.

the author plays up the fact that Russia has no lynching. That is splendid. But after all—does it really matter whether they call it a "lynching" or a "purge"?

There is material for a white hot debate in this article. A step by step review would take more space than perhaps the Bystander would care to devote to this subject.

Mr. Aptheker plays his words just as the technician plays his lights upon the stage focusing them at just the right spot.

Most of us want to see what is going on behind the scenes before we accept an ideology—not merely the pretty spot light.

Millions of us agree with the author in his closing statement that the American Negro is the acid test of American democracy.—Louise Glass.

SPORTS

TENNIS TOURNAMENT STARTS SUNDAY

The fun begins to fly in our annual tennis tournament Sunday, July 20. On the morning of that date if it is not raining, Good's Park will be full of racket swinging youngsters and a few oldtimers who will start their annual quest of the various tennis titles. We will have a girl's division and of the number of youngsters swatting balls back and forth is any excitement this division will be a humdinger.

Marie Ross has already experienced a taste of what she will have to do if she is to win her third women's singles crown. Beside the persistent crop of veterans who are working hard to upset the reigning queen she will have Pat White on her hands. Pat was the beginners' champion last year and she has already given the present champ a sterling tussle in the park tournament. Then Mrs. Myrtle Frazier and Eloise Morrow are rapidly improving and are to be classed as trouble makers. Besides these youngsters, it wouldn't do to sell Edith Newcomb, Mabel Mann or Midge Bailey too short.

Joe Howard really has his work cut out for him if he is to defeat his men's singles crown. There has been a quiet intercurrent of preparation like the calm before the storm. Paul Williams, last year's runner up is working like mad. Paul still feels keenly the loss of last year's fine set thriller, and thinks he should have taken Joe. This year he intends that there will be no slip up on his part. Chet Williamson who lost his crown last year isn't saying much but he won't be any push over for the youngsters. He knew he wasn't ready last year and didn't say anything about it, but he stands a good chance of being ready this time and if he is he will be something to get past. Bill Ashby has sworn that this year he won't be the victim of an

Men's Doubles

In the men's doubles the boys are out to end the six-year reign of Chet Williamson and your writer. Veterans and youngsters have made no secret of the fact that we have won our last doubles championship if they have their way. Bill Ashby and Paul Woods make a tough team, one that could take anybody on some days. Then last year's finalists Paul Williams and Joe Howard are teamed up and are highly regarded as the team that might take us. Art Bush who plays a flock of doubles and Everett Mays will be there along with Theo Martin and Everett Newcomb. If Williamson and your's truly can hold off this concentrated assault on our front we will really have achieved something worth talking about if we don't have nothing to feel badly about, because the teams are all have been in them.

Lonnie Howard and Ozzie Morrow will likely fight it out for the junior singles honors. With Lonnie showing great improvement over last year, and Ozzie working hard, it should be a good fight. The finals are set for Sunday, July 27 and by
