HUNDRED GIRLS READ AT BURRELL'S BUREAU IN DOWNTOWN NEW YORK

New York—If you were to visit Burrell's Press Clipping Bureau in downtown Manhattan, you'd find a hundred young girls doing nothing but reading newspapers and magazines. The offices, which overlook the Hudson River, are as quiet as a library reading room, and all you see are newspapers stacked in piles ready to be read and clipped.

Harold Wynne, a young college graduate, who is president of this unusual organization, says: "Our girls enjoy reading the Des Moines, Iowa Bystander because it contains so many interesting items about our clients."

DELTA CELEBRATE FOUNDERS DAY

Detroit, Mich.—Early on the birthday calendar of this new year one date stands uppermost in the hearts of some 8,000 Negro women throughout these United States. January 13 is the birthday of Delta Sigma Theta sorority and during this month Deltas everywhere pause to pay tribute to their founders; to measure their growth since that first meeting was called in Minor Hall on Howard University campus twenty-nine years ago; and to reflect upon the future of their sisterhood as they follow their ideals of noble womanhood, service, and achievement.

During the first days of January, 1913, a group of young women who were already organized in a society on Howard's Campus, decided to extend their range and to form what became one of the first Greek letter organizations for Negro college women. On January 13 of that year the charter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority was signed thus bringing into being one of the greatest groups of women's organizations in the country devoted not only to the higher education of young Negro women, but to a program of economic betterment for every Negro woman regardless of her station in life.

gathered again outside the jail where Wright had been taken and placed in the women's section of the jail because of his serious condition. The mob broke down the doors and the wounded Wright was later burned on the grounds of the Negro school, after being towed by his feet from an automobile which was driven at speeds varying from a crawl to 70 miles an hour.

After Wright's body had been burned, the mob left it in the streets where it remained for several hours. Negro undertakers refused to handle the body, fearing mob activity.

The statement of Governor Donnell who was indignant over the matter, was "Regardless of how guilty a person may be, he is entitled to a fair trial in a court of justice. Cleo Wright is no exception to this rule. The action of today's mob in taking the law into its own hands is a disgraceful blot on the state of Missouri."

Lynchers Gather

The lynchers had gathered first outside Wright's house where he had been taken for treatment since the Sikeston hospitals do not treat Negroes. They dispersed there and

Crowds Pay Last Tribute To Rev. Jordan W. Tutt

The Union Baptist Church was crowded to capacity with crowds overflowing into the basement Friday afternoon, Jan. 23, when bereaved members, friends and mourners of both races paid their last tribute to their pastor and friend, the Rev. Jordan W. Tutt.

Impressive were the last rites and memorial services for the pastor who had toiled for nearly thirteen years in the East Side pastorate.

The Rev. George W. Robinson, moderator of the Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota Baptist Association, and Corinthian Baptist church pastor officiated and delivered the eulogy, selecting his text from Second Timothy, "For I Am Now Ready to Be Offered, and the Time of My Departure is at Hand."

He pictured the Union Baptist pastor as having "gone through a glorious contest," as a man who would stand on his convictions, as having offered "a glorious service—a contest of preaching."

"The happiest time of Rev. Tutt's life was when he was teaching," the Rev. Mr. Robinson pointed out. "He had a teaching preaching—he did not play to the gallery."

Tributes

Brief tributes were paid by the Rev. John C. Bain, of Burns Methodist, the Rev. H. C. Boyd of St. Paul A. M. E., the Rev. J. M. Eaves of Mason City, Iowa, the Rev. C. L. McAllister of Maple Street, Dr. Frank Anderson, executive secretary of the Iowa Baptist Convention; Ike Smalls, president of Des Moines Branch NAACP.

Soloists were Rev. W. M. Shaw, pastor of Second Baptist church at Ottumwa, Mrs. G. B. Tucker, Rev. L. G. Garrett of Mt. Hebron Baptist church and Mr. Leland Green. The Union Baptist choir sang.

The Rev. C. A. Record of Shiloh Baptist offered prayer. The Scripture was read by Rev. J. R. Roman of Mt. Olive Baptist; condolences read by Rev. J. H. Reynolds of Pleasant Green Baptist of Omaha; the obituary read by Rev. W. F. Ogleton of Bethel A. M. E. church; benediction by Rev. Ed Mason.

Interment was at Glendale cemetery with the Rev. G. A. Kendrick officiating. L. Fowler and Son funeral directors were in charge.

Pall bearers were: D. Junius Tate, J. W. Taubman, D. Gunn, George Nichols, Wm. Clark and George Lockett.

The Rev. Mr. Tutt, prominent Baptist educator and minister, died at Iowa Lutheran hospital Jan. 19 of pneumonia following a short illness. He was 69 years old.

He had been a resident of Des Moines for 13 years coming to the city from Ottumwa, with his wife Mrs. Hallie M. Porter Tutt and making his home on the East Side at 1446 Buchanan street.

He was active in both white and Negro Baptist organizations in the city and state and held offices in the National Baptist Training Union and Sunday School Congress, and was a supporter of civic affairs in the community.

so don't be surprised when you find my column a wee bit shorter than usual this week. Jimmie Dawson has finally made up his mind and so I guess the luck girl is Honey. I know three girls' who would be happy if Cedar Rapids would make a return trip soon. Do you know there's a certain slang phrase that would fit some of these married people, lately. "Knockin' each other out" tee, hee. You should hear Calvin Spencer, Ralph Longus, Richard Clark and Jimmie Dawson knock themselves out up at the Center with the piano, guitar, bass and drums. It's a killer. It was the funniest thing to see all the cats and chicks rummin' to the pictures "Blues in the Night" and "Hell-a-zoppin'" both of which had plus in them and when Sunday night came everybody was broke. And now I guess this ends my column for the week, but I'll be back with more news and views, next week.—Ol Man Jive.

SOCIETY

ABBE WALLACE

W. J. T.—I have been very impressed by your weekly descriptions and I find it customary to ask you a question. Sir: I have been going with a girl about a year and a half and I am undecided whether to marry her or not. Do you think she will make me a good wife? I am a private in the army.

Ans.: She has already proven to you beyond doubt that she would make you a good wife—having a baby for you proved that. In justice to her and to your child I think you owe it to them both to be legally married. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose by such a step.

H. S.—I am 17 years old. I live with my sister who has 5 children. I have another sister who does not have any children. I would rather stay with this other sister but she is not living right at this time and I truly want to be a good girl. The sister I live with is not as well off as this other sister and we seem to quarrel a bit too much. Should I go to live with my other sister?

Ans.: Not if you value your self respect. This other sister of yours is no morally fit companion for a young girl. The people she associates with are even less fit. Life with your older sister may seem unbearable at times, and it may not offer the worldly pleasures enjoyed by the other sister—but it's a clean, honest atmosphere that you never need to be ashamed of. Stay where you are.

A. B. H.—Dear Prof.: I stay worried. My brother has been under the doctor's care for some time. His left shoulder, it aches and hurts all the time. Can you suggest something for us to do?

Ans.: You have tried everything but a change of climate. If it is possible, and in your case I am confident it is, my recommendation would be a visit to Hot Springs. Thousands of people have been helped physically by treatments at this health resort.

Dotsy Bird—I've been married 5 years and sometimes I think my husband don't love me. Sometimes he gets mad off and he shouts and tells me he owes it all. He don't want me to talk with no men. If he sees me talking to one, he says they are my men. Is he the right man for me?

Ans.: He could be the right man if you handled him properly. The man is jealous of you and it "burns him up" to set you show so much interest in other men. When he holds out on pay day it's for spite more than anything else. Stop acting smart around other men, and save your cute remarks for your husband. Do this and you will soon have your husband eating out of your hand.

THE PERSONAL TOUCH

(By Marie Ross)

Downtown—an Des Moines streets—one meets many kinds of salesmen. Some are selling blades, passing out samples of cough drops, selling flowers, taking pictures, some shouting "papers, songs—the Call, the Courier." Some stand at store doorways—pass out coupons to pale passerby and snatch them back when a dark one approaches.

But the salesman who caps the climax is the fellow who was passing out coupons for the Raymond Studio, inviting the bearer to take advantage of a special photograph offer at the studio. The offer seemed to be a good one until the bearer read—printed on the "anniversary special" bond which was being passed on the streets—"Colored Trade Unsolicited."

What should be done in situations like this? Some have suggested tearing the piece of paper into bits and sending it to the studio; another suggested going to the studio and demanding service (that's if you have all day to sit and a strong constitution for arguing); another suggests demanding that the studio remove the discriminatory phrase from its printed offers.

First County Fair

County fair, the traditional American farm exhibit, where city people go to enjoy themselves, had its origin 130 years ago, according to history. Elkannah Watson, gentleman farmer of Pittsfield, Mass., fostered what is claimed to be the first modern county fair there in 1810 or 1811. This is indignantly denied by Philadelphia writers, who say not only that Watson got his idea in Philadelphia, but that first American fair was held in that city in 1686. Fathered and encouraged by William Penn, founder, these annual fairs were held in Centre square, site of present Philadelphia City Hall, from 1688 to 1688.

FINDS LEMON JUICE GOOD FOR RHEUMATIC MISERY

The Alle-Rhume Company, makers of Allenu for rheumatic pains, have found that lemon juice added to the Allenu prescription works wonders for folks with the horrible pains and misery of rheumatism, lumbago and neuritis.

Allenu, a 15-year-old remedy, has given remarkable results by itself, but it is found that the addition of one teaspoonful of lemon juice mixed with two tablespoonful of Allenu gives much speedier relief.

This home recipe was first advertised in Norfolk, Virginia, with such good results that other leading papers including this paper, are being considered to carry this important message to sufferers.

LYNCHINGS COMPETE WITH AXIS

This country has been so busy talking about war, getting ready for war and lambasting the Axis powers for their inhuman undemocratic treatment of the subjugated people and minority groups within their own borders that one would think all was well and peaceful in America. But it is not. And the best proof of our inconsistent theories was a lynching in Sikeston, Missouri, Sunday.

Just what happened before the victim of the mob was captured, no one will ever know. He is dead and in order to justify the cannibal like treatment he was given, stories in keeping with the program will be concocted. Those going out to date just don't sound quite plausible. The Bystander does not defend any criminal conduct of this man, but we do most vehemently condemn the action of any group which denies a prisoner a fair trial, contemplated by the constitution.

Peculiar to say, a certain amount of similarity prevails about all lynchings. Naturally, nobody can identify the participants; a very definite effort is made to make an object lesson to the other Negroes in the community; nobody ever gets hurt but Negroes. These things were no exception in this Missouri case.

Talk about Hitler, Mussolini, and the Japanese war mongers. Terrible but they are operating on a national scale on the same basis as those uncivilized people in Sikeston.

The governor of Missouri announced that a thorough investigation will be made and the guilty participants brought to justice. We hope so for practices of this sort demonstrate that America is far from practicing what it preaches; that it can, with poor grace, accuse another country of undemocratic treatment of minority groups—like we have chided Germany about its treatment of the Jews—when the same conduct is carried on here.

OUR VALUABLE DABIES

On other occasions, the Bystander has said that everybody should read a daily newspaper. This cannot be restated too often for besides the general news and features, they carry news that is making world history.

Here in Iowa, we are fortunate in having the leading daily papers The Des Moines Register and Evening Tribune thoroughly sold on the theory of fair play for minority groups. They recognize that except for accident of birth our skins differ but fundamentally we are all human beings. And for that reason they have not hesitated to apply those views to problems affecting the Negro as they arise.

Recently, they had carried several editorials of tremendous value dealing with discrimination against Negroes in the Army and Navy and in defense work. And fortunately they are read by hundreds of thousands of people. Many of the readers do not share those views. But it is highly important to keep restating these principles of fair play in view of the fact that we are calling upon other countries to follow the golden rule.

Newspapers have much to do with moulding public opinion and for that reason it is fortunate to have the right type circulating in any community.

Maybe it would be bad news to you to read that Admiral Kimmel and Lieut. General Short, blamed by

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Infantile paralysis has been recognized for about 100 years, but although some progress has been made in existing cases, its prevention and cure are among the doors of medical science which are yet unopened. The symptoms of this disease are in many ways much like those of many illnesses.

The safest course, particularly in times of epidemic, is to call a doctor when the patient complains of sore throat, head cold, headache, vomiting, diarrhea, fever, nausea, loss of appetite, nervousness and pain or stiffness of the neck and back.

While the symptoms do not always indicate infantile paralysis it is wise to have expert advice and treatment immediately.

Infantile paralysis may affect any part of the body. It seldom affects all the muscles or even all those of any one leg or arm. Group of muscles, and in some cases, single muscles, may be involved. The paralysis continues to spread for a short time and usually 48 to 72 hours sees its maximum development.

Although there are as yet no known ways to prevent or cure infantile paralysis there is much that can be done and should be done by medical science.

If notified in time the physician may be able to prevent serious complications and reduce the crippling after-effects that are a common result of the illness.

NEGROES ADVANCE IN GLOVES

Negroes continued their march through the ranks of WHO's Golden Gloves at the Shrine Auditorium. A few fell by the wayside last Monday night but others came on to take their places. In the flyweight class Joe Edmunds tackled Al Bartholomew of Boone, who is doped to win the thing. Edmunds battled as hard and as gamely as any youngster has ever battled in these meets, but he lacked the all-round boxing skill of the white boy and went out. Bill Mason drew a bye in this division as did Bartholomew in the bantamweights.

Bob Jackson played around with Milan Reynolds of Leon for about a round and a half. Then, right in the midst of a big grin and a playful caper, Bob whammed home a terrific left hook to the Leon boy's midsection, defeating him as completely and suddenly as if he were a balloon stuck with a pin. That kayo put Bob in the quarter final of the lightweight.

Ozzie Lewis came back punching sharper than ever and brought out a new punch in his welterweight brawl with an Ames boy, Bill Rees. First Ozzie knocked the boy out of the ring with a left hook to the body. Then he caught him squarely on the jaw with a right uppercut and the white boy just stood up and fell flat on his face. There was no need to count. Ozzie helped revive his fallen opponent and got a big hand from the crowd for his sportsmanship.

If Roland Taylor had not been out of gas in the last round of his fight with Burrell Smith, Ozzie Lewis' arch rival, the fans might have seen the upset of the meet. For two rounds, Roland swatted Smith right lustily, giving at least as good as he received. Then he got so tired right in the middle of round three, Smith was tired too, but not quite as tired as Taylor, and his better finish gave him the nod.

We got a bad break in the middleweights when Chuck Boston and Nathan Lewis of Albia drew each other. Lewis tried hard to get Boston to slug with him, but all he got was clipped on the whiskers for a two round kayo. Chuck Hayes of the professional whisker trim, drew a bye in this division. The same was true in the light heavyweight class when Bill Buford opposed a Negro from Marshalltown named John Burton. Bill punched out a win over the Hardin County lad in a fast moving scuffle. Claude Ellison made a lot of the doubtful ones clinch aboard his bandwagon to beat Vance Bassler as he slugged out a two round kayo over Erwin Shuller of Ft. Dodge. Claude caught Shuller with a right half hook, half uppercut and stepped over him so he could fall. A count wasn't necessary as we see it, the only way for Bassler to take Claude is knock him out or get one of those home town decisions. Mose Schakelford wrapped up a good right fist and sent it to the crin of a luckless Ft. Dodge lad, Rod Black. Everything went black for Black and he never knew what hit him. The time, twenty seconds, sets some sort of a local Golden Gloves record for quick knockouts.
