Lang company, Third and Vine, which is manufacturing garments for defense.

Weeks of interviews, scores of letters and verbal battles are behind the efforts to open the doors of manufacturing plants in Des Moines to Negro men and women. Led by John Coleman who represents several labor committees of Negro organizations in the city and assisted by Mrs. Marie Roberts of the Y. W. C. A. who is affiliated with these same groups the women went to the plant Tuesday and Wednesday evenings to show what they could do as power machine operators.

J. S. Cheese Consumption Among World's Lowest

The average American housewife appears to regard cheese as a flavoring. But basically cheese is a food, one of the best we have, being highly concentrated milk. Diet experts call it a good source of the calcium and phosphorus we should all get more of, a good source of vitamin B₁ and containing appreciable quantities of the vitamin B complex and of vitamin C.

Americans use less cheese per capita than almost any nation; the Swiss the most. The average Switzer will get away with more than 23 pounds a year; the average Netherlander, Frenchman or Dane between 13 and 14 pounds; the average German or Englishman between 9 and 9½ pounds, and the average American or Canadian 4 to 4½.

Lang Garment Company Willing to Open Plant to Train Negro Women

Approximately thirty women—some girls with high school, NYA and college training behind them and others, older women with years of experience as seamstresses, machine operators on WPA and in other factories—were given their first opportunity in Des Moines this week to try out for jobs as machine operators in a private concern, the H. Lang company, Third and Vine, which is manufacturing garments for defense.

Weeks of interviews, scores of letters and verbal battles are behind the efforts to open the doors of manufacturing plants in Des Moines to Negro men and women. Led by John Coleman who represents several labor committees of Negro organizations in the city and assisted by Mrs. Marie Roberts of the Y. W. C. A. who is affiliated with these same groups the women went to the plant Tuesday and Wednesday evenings to show what they could do as power machine operators.

"Take any machine you like," Mr. Lang told the women as he pointed to a vast room with a hundred or more machines.

Trucks piled high with coveralls that were in the process of being finished cluttered the long aisles of the plant.

"You see all these piles of garments," Mr. Lang pointed out to the group—"They need to be double stitched. If I could find out of this group some perfect operators who can run Union Special machines I will start them to work at once," he said as he invited the women to help themselves in trying out the machines.

The majority of the women and girls was well acquainted with the single-needle power machine. Many of them had used them on WPA and NYA—though "they were not quite so speedy," they agreed.

The machines buzzed for more than an hour that evening while a half dozen of the white operators tried to explain the operations to the women. Supervisors made personal visits to each girl and woman to see what she could do. Several were pointed out—"who had the stuff in them to make good operators."

Some of the women watched the white operators run the special two-needle machine which rumbles as it stitches the in-seams to the garments. Some of the women drew back at the loud noise—others wanted a chance to sit down and work. Each had a chance—but none of the first group could qualify as an experienced operator—"to turn out perfect garments," Mr. Lang said, as he explained that with the government contracts he could not afford to spoil a garment—that each spoiled one cost him five dollars. "This is government goods and they have a right to reject any work they see fit."

One of the supervisors remembered he had seen some women on WPA at the woolen mills operating special machines. Wednesday he found one of the "best workers" at the mills and that evening Mr. Coleman brought her to the plant.

"You don't have to tell me about her, I know, she is a good operator," the supervisor said as she ran the machine though it was a different make. She is promised a job as soon as she gets used to her machine.

Mr. Lang was disappointed because he could not pick a group of the Negro women to start to work at once, he said, but is willing to "break the ice" and open a way whereby fifty or more may be able to learn at small salary and when they can qualify as experienced operators, "I will start them on the regular shift at once," he said.

Mr. Lang wrote for a special beginners' permit from the government to give him the privilege to train beginners and give others a chance to increase their speeds on the machines.

Other organizations and individuals have written to the labor department at Washington urging a special permit whereby beginners may be trained in this plant.

One of the government inspectors at the plant whose business it is to see that the government's work is done, revealed that Des Moines is the first town he has been in where Negroes are absent in the manufacturing plants. "All out East they are about fifty percent in any plant—large or small—as operators and supervisors, too." He shook his head as he said, "you got to fight."

Old Temple Bells Melted By Japs' Metal Harvest Old temple bells, mellow with the years, are a symbol of the Japan which is being devoured by ever-hungry war gods. More than four years of the China campaign, plus the United States embargo on scrap, have left the empire in dire need of a melting pot for copper and brass and iron. The great foundries of Japan were fashioned to handle scrap, not raw ore, and months would be needed to make the change. Pig iron and scrap melt down into materials of war when mingled in the proper proportion, but alone they take a different sort of furnace. Japanese leaders asked if people literally to dig mines in the streets. Brass was needed, too, so the temples are being stripped of their treasures, including the bells—silencing their sweet yet melancholy tolling of sunrise and sunset and of the hours. For months, iron manhole covers have been missing in the streets around the sprawling Imperial hotel, with wood or concrete substitutes in their place. Now more will go, for this mobilization of metal is all-inclusive. Ashtrays and broken stoves, picket fences and iron gates, rusty old stovepipe, discarded tools, hinges from doors, and even the treasured old cannon which

F. C.—My husband and I aren't satisfied where we are. We are planning to move further down in the state. Will it be safe for us to return where we were last winter?

Ans.: Perfectly safe as the trouble has all been settled and there isn't anything hanging over your heads. Go back and ask for work with the same company for the chances are you both can be employed there again if you just ask for work.

E. W.—I have been passing time with a fellow who has a wife but she doesn't live here. She only comes to town once every six months. She lives with a man in another town. When she comes to town he deserts me and won't come near me while she is here but when she leaves, he is right back. Now does she have him tricked or is it he is ignorant or is he just trying to put a big hat on me altogether?

Ans.: He's still in love with his wife and would be the happiest man alive if she were to return to him permanently. You are second choice. Naturally when she comes to town, he forgets everyone but her. Under these circumstances you couldn't ever expect to find true happiness with him. Next time she comes to town and he drops you—find you a beau and give him something to worry

F. S.—I'm a soldier and truly in love with two girls. What I really need now is a wife and I know it. Should I marry either of these girls before the war is over, and if so, which one? I love them both.

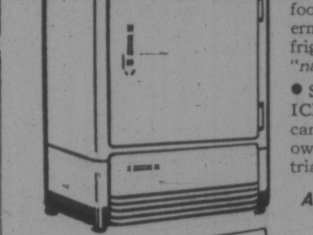

Ans.: Best that you wait until after the war before getting married. At this time you don't know which one you love the best—both girls care for you and have proven it. Continue on and as time goes on try to decide between the two. You really don't need a wife while you are in service and can't be with her—the one that loves you the best will surely wait.

Mere COLD IS NOT ENOUGH!

● Dry cold is the enemy of food freshness. It draws out and wastes natural juices. Food elements essential to wholesomeness and flavor are exhausted by this drying action.

● It takes cold—PLUS moisture—to keep flavor and rich, nutritious juiciness at the peak of nature's goodness. That's why you need a modern, air-conditioned ICE refrigerator. In one of them, moisture laden air, continually washed by contact with slowly melting ICE, keeps food fresher—longer. A modern air conditioned ICE refrigerator keeps food fresh the "natural" way—with ICE.

● See these air-conditioned, ICE refrigerators today. You can have one installed in your own home for a free 10 day trial. There is no obligation.

Word gets around pretty fast when a girl has halitosis* (bad breath), and she may lose her boy friends as fast as she gets them. Remember that anyone, even you, may have halitosis without realizing it, so don't take chances. Before any date, rinse the mouth with Listerine Antiseptic, the wonderful antiseptic and deodorant so many popular people rely on to combat bad breath.

*Sometimes halitosis is due to systemic conditions, but most cases, say some authorities, are caused by fermentation of tiny food particles on tooth, mouth and gum surfaces. Listerine halts such fermentation and then overcomes the odors fermentation causes.

EXCLUSION AS USUAL

In spite of the fact that there is an apparent shortage of labor, that President Roosevelt recognized the justice of the cause of every man to work and issued an order to that effect, and that we find ourselves in a terrible spot, organized labor and the management of industry have not seen fit to open the door freely to the Negro laborer.

Many people recognize this fact and have been talking and writing about it daily. Recently, in a special article in the Des Moines Tribune, the writer, while discussing the question of labor shortage, called attention to the fact that the best record ever made by riveters was that of a singing Negro crew during World War I. Of course, all Negroes are not super workers; neither is any other group. But this example does emphasize that given an opportunity they can do a good job.

Too many cling to the notion that whites and Negroes can't work side by side in harmony. True some people object, but that is to be expected. But the trouble is that the prejudiced group, whose ideas are comparable with those of Hitler, ought not be allowed to prevail in a democracy.

LITTLE INTEREST BUT IMPORTANT

Our city elections are just a few days off. And in spite of the fact that the commissioners for whom we vote seek to run the affairs of our city for another two years, very little interest has been manifested so far.

True, we are engaged in a stupendous effort toward all-out war but the fact remains that local affairs must go on. Everybody should be interested in the war effort differing in minor details only. On the other hand unless conditions go right at home they can't on the battle front.

Citizens should be interested in electing good men for office. It is only as proportion that we elect men of the right type do we accomplish proper results in the city government.

With this admonition in view, lets learn all we can about the candidates. See if their record is such that they can be trusted to carry out the ideals of democracy at home. Remember, all make rosy promises during the campaign. It is what they have said and done in the past that speaks.

Remember, if we get poor officials it is the fault of the voters themselves.

America must not get into the habit of bragging too much and underestimating the strength of our enemies. Those two faults get a lot of nations as well as individuals in bad.

SLICK SUPERVISORS FOSTER JIM CROW AT CAPITAL

Washington (ANP)—Day by day the pressure on Negro government workers grows stronger, with supervisors suggesting through "gentle hints" segregation in the dining rooms in the various buildings.

Latest report of this vicious practice comes from the Railroad Retirement building, behind the Social Security building and across from the Census Bureau, where colored girls work in the quartermaster corps of the building. It is found that through this dining room for colored people, segregation in the building is being carried out. The girls want to know why.

CROCKER Y. M. C. A. SETS PACE IN Y CAGE LEAGUE

On February 28, the Crocker Y. M. C. A. basketball league race of 1942 will reach the waning stages with a couple or three weeks in March left to hit the home stretch for final championship honors. Estes Funeral home is still undefeated and is leading the senior pack as one of the classiest quintets in the state and probably the best in the history of local competition with about 25 triumphs (including outside games) to its credit so far.

The most notable victory was the decisive 31 to 20 trimming given at East High Thursday to the University Coalers, 1941 A.A.U. titleholders and last year's claimants of the state amateur crown.

The Estes five trampled the Ottumwa five 50 to 27 the previous evening at West high. The Negro club, winning from the city's best clubs, spilled the well known Shiretex Trousers the same week.

After a slow start, the Little Rens, paced by Jack Howard's accuracy, scored a major upset by topping, the highly favored Hawkeys, 29 to 24 on Feb. 16. The tallend Corinthian Baptists struck back with fury the same evening for their win of the season to shock the Roadside Eagles 23 to 21. Carr's Specials have been weakened considerably by the loss of most of their players through the selective service draft.

The Intermediate league was marked by the sudden collapse of the East Des Moines Tigers who suffered a double setback from the sensational playing of the fancy-passing Roadside outfit, sparked by Walter Robinson, Mickey Anderson and the Western brothers, James and William. Estes team, however, continues to hold the league lead with Cortinthian and Negro Community Center offering but little resistance.

that there is a dining room for colored downstairs where you may be more comfortable."

The reaction naturally is one of resentment and the colored girls continue to use the main dining room, leaving the segregated room for those who care to follow the advice given by the southern supervisors.

Louisville, Ky.—Mike Haffa, the world's seventh ranking featherweight was forced to rally in the late rounds Monday night to outpoint Cleveland Brown, Cincinnati, Ohio, Negro, in the first legal white-Negro bout ever held in Kentucky.

The Cincinnati puncher held the edge until the eighth round of their 10-round scrap, then Haffa, making his first appearance since injured in an automobile accident four months ago, started throwing punches, one of which floored Brown for no-count. It was the only knockdown of the fight.

THESE VANDALS IN CREAM DAMAGE ITS GOODNESS

Bacteria are so very tiny that many thousands of them could be put on the period at the end of this sentence, yet the farmer must wage a continuous battle against them lest they deprive him of his livelihood. The production of cream is a perfect example of this struggle. From the time the farmer draws the milk from his cow's udder until the minute he delivers the cream to the creamery or his cream buyer, he must be alert every minute lest the bacteria get the upper hand, outsmart him and nullify the hours of care and attention he has invested in his product.

In the case of cream, the farmer must be doubly alert. For here he is dealing with a product which contains a small number of bacteria which come from the cow's udder. To protect the cream from these bacteria, the farmer uses a filter-type strainer for further protection provides the complete answer, according to these dairy authorities.

This is the reason dairy authorities urge farmers to separate the milk immediately after milking and then quickly cool the cream. Quick cooling puts a stop to the multiplication of the bacteria and preserves the quality of the cream.

But most of the bacteria which appear in milk get there after it is drawn from the cow. Carelessness in milking or insufficient attention to cleanliness are the principal reasons for the presence of this second batch of bacteria (illustrated above). Dust, loose hair, imperfectly cleaned utensils are among the principal external sources of bacteria. Once the causes are understood, the remedies suggest themselves. Milking a clean cow with clean, dry hands, the use of a seamless, hooded pail, with perhaps a filter-type strainer for further protection provides the complete answer, according to these dairy authorities.

Carter made a report of the Americanism meeting at Roadside Settlement. Comrade Gibson reported on Boy Scouts and Cub's. A motion picture will be shown at the club rooms on March 3. Mrs. Festus Stone sang

MARSHALLTOWN, IOWA

Marshalltown, Ia.—Messrs. James Wilder, Archie Mitchell and Sim Nolan went to Des Moines February 20, to take their last examination before being inducted into the army. Mr. Nolan was the only one of the trio who did not pass his examination. Harold Clark left Tuesday, Feb. 24, for Ft. Des Moines from where he will be sent to one of the many army camps. Miss Catherine Wells has now returned to school after a two months illness. She is a sophomore in the Marshalltown high school.

SPORTS

BASKETBALL

We watched the Estes basketball team score what they thought was their greatest win when they turned back the University Coalers 31-20 at East high. The boys were keyed up to the highest pitch and turned in a red hot performance. They have the sort of club that lets first one man and then the other get hot streaks. This time it was Bob White who dropped in the high points. The whole team played ball of the caliber that wins big league games. The boys are in the state A.A.U. meet and squeezed through their first test against Johnson station 39-36. They had a big lead and tried to play safe. They just froze up and didn't do anything but let the white boys score. But the clock saved them and they went into round three. By the time this gets out they will be through with the meet, but no matter what happens they have hung up a record to be proud of.

Art McCune is our choice for one of the all-city posts. Here is hoping Frank Brady thinks so, too.

The Negro Community Center girls have a basketball team and are in a league where they were tied for second place at this writing.

Boxing

We were sorry to see Charley Boston and Mose Shackleford nosed out in the Golden Gloves meet at Chicago. Tony Cordaro said he thought Boston won, and if he thought so, Charley must have done all right. Roland Taylor was put out because he couldn't make the weight and Bob Carver did all right while he lasted. Claude Ellison made a good impression on everyone who saw him.

Lem Franklin's kayo at the hands of Bob Pfister wasn't so much of a surprise as it appeared to be. Pastor is smart, game and fast. The secret of his success is the dizzy pace he sets. Most of his opponents are unable to stand it for more than a few rounds. Then they go and Bob takes them.
