GIVES $25,000 FOR NEGRO BOY SCOUTS CAMPS IN SOUTH

New York—The Carnegie Corporation of New York has appropriated $25,000 to the Boy Scouts of America to help bring the Cub Scout and Boy Scout programs to more Negro boys in the South. It was announced by Dr. Stanley A. Harris, national director of the Interracial Service of the Boy Scouts of America.

This fund, he said, will help local Boy Scout Councils to purchase camp sites on which Negro boys may camp.

Any Scout Council in the South needing a Negro Field Executive or a campsite for Negro boys may obtain a grant up to $1,000 in each case provided the white citizens of the community contribute one third of the needed funds and the Negroes of the community also contribute the remaining one-third.

A similar grant made by the General Education Board in 1941 resulted in the employment of nearly 50 additional Negro Field Executives. These new funds will help make possible the employment of 35 additional Negro Field Executives and the purchase and development of 25 new campsites.

LIBRARY TEACHER IN DETROIT

MISS NAOMI WALDEN

Doing "very interesting work which I wouldn't trade for anything else," wrote Miss Naomi Walden, Des Moines young woman, who holds a position of library-teacher in a Detroit, Mich., school for boys. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Walden of 3019 Amherst street, Miss Walden was graduated last June from Detroit's Wayne University in class of 750 students. The native Iowan is also a graduate of Des Moines' North High school.

Miss Walden, a former office secretary of the Iowa Bystander, is a member of the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, spends her spare time bowling and working on a master's degree at the University. She is planning to visit her parents at Christmas time.

Hold Impressive Mortgage- Burning Rites at St. Paul

Members and friends of the St. Paul AME church who filled the auditorium and balcony of the church Sunday evening, Oct. 28, witnessed an impressive candle-light mortgage-burning ceremony and saw go up in flames the old debt which was placed on the church at the time of its erection in 1918.

History of the church, read by Trustee Robert T. Dacus, revealed the struggle of the church from the time the late Rev. S. L. Birt built it at a cost of $60,000, raised about $25,000 and left the church in 1920.

Through the 25 years of paying for the church and during the period of depression the struggle was told in the amounts paid on the principal and interests.

When the Rev. Mr. Irvine, present pastor, came last September the secretary read that the debt was $6,020 and in less than a year the amount was cleared up in July.

"I am sure that you are going to keep the mortgage off your church," commented Bishop John A. Gregg, distinguished churchman who was here for the seventy-third anniversary celebration of the church which climaxed with the mortgage-burning.

Keep Free of Debt

"Keep yourselves free of debt," he advised as he told of the heartaches and the pain and sorrow through the years. "I listened to that period from 1928 to 1933. That was the depression with a capital 'D'. That was a time that everybody was suffering," he cited and added that although many persons lost their homes and businesses—"I don't know of a church that was lost."

Special features of the Sunday evening program was a musical program given by the senior choir with Mrs. Jobertess Kelso, presiding at an electric organ and Mrs. Seymour Morrison accompanying at the piano. Many of the favorite and beautiful hymns and anthems were sung by the choir.

Story of Piney Woods School in Readers' Digest

How the Piney Woods Country Life School, launched "on a pine stump" near Jackson, Mississippi in 1909, with three illiterate pupils and $1.65 in cash, has grown to a $250,000 plant, with 1700 acres of well-tended land and 440 pupils from 15 states, is related in Nelson Antrim Crawford's article in The Reader's Digest for November, condensed from The Rotarian.

Founded by Laurence Clifton Jones, "Missouri-born, northern-educated Negro who turned his back on good jobs and comfortable living to bring practical education and opportunity to members of his race," the Piney Woods institution has sent out to rural communities thousands of trained farmers and mechanics and hundreds of competent teachers, the author says.

Today 30 teachers, mostly Negro, offer first-class vocational training in a long list of trades. Through the extension department of the school, which reaches 15,000 Negroes annually, and the influence of its graduates three-fourths of the colored farmers in two adjacent counties now own land, the article says.

Graduated from the University of Iowa in 1907, Laurence Jones went to the deep South, "where he had never been before," worked as a farm hand and porter and eventually started teaching his three illiterate boy pupils. Although the author cites instances of the school receiving early assistance, he makes clear that the institution's success is attributable chiefly to its own efforts.

"The school has five handsome brick buildings and twenty frame structures," he notes. "Students made the brick, cut the lumber and put up the buildings."

HAZEL SCOTT MEETS MORE JIMCRO ON MISSOURI TOUR

Washington, D. C.—While Hazel Scott, pianist, was being subjected to further discrimination in the Midwest, the fight against the Daughters of the American Revolution for their policy of excluding Negro artists from appearing in Constitution Hall was being intensified here.

From St. Louis came the report that Miss Scott, in the city for a concert, had been unable to obtain accommodations in any first class hotel in that city. Her husband, Representative Adam C. Powell, Jr., Democrat, of New York, was reported to have got in touch with the Mayor of St. Louis in an effort to secure accommodations for his wife, but his efforts were unavailing.

To add to her distress, the automobile in which she was traveling to St. Louis with her maid and chauffeur, broke down and she was forced to take a bus. At the roadside restaurant at which the bus stopped so that passengers could dine, she was told she could be served in the kitchen only.

NAACP Finds Bund, Klan And Others Holding Stake In Gary School Strike

Chicago, Ill.—Contrary to the stories in the daily papers, the school strikes in Gary, Ind., and Chicago give real evidence of being fomented by a organized group or groups, according to on-the-spot investigations made by Miss Noma Jensen of the NAACP New York office.

"In Gary not only former known Bundists are active but also followers of Father Coughlin, Gerald L. K. Smith and members of the Ku-Klux-Klan," Miss Jensen said. "All have a stake in this Froebel school strike and they are acting accordingly," she emphasized.

The school strikes started on September 18 at Froebel high school in Gary, where Negroes and whites have gone to school together for over twenty years.

Miss Jensen's report continues: "The school strikes in Chicago are undoubtedly the result of mounting group antagonisms. These antagonisms can be traced to the community's failure to alleviate overcrowding in housing, discrimination in employment and in the lack of success of various civic groups to reform the city's school system."

Walter White Confers on Gary Situation

Gary, Ind.—Walter White, NAACP secretary, conferred here with civic groups October 26 on the situation created by the striking high school students. The conference followed an investigation made by Miss Noma Jensen of the NAACP staff which disclosed that subversive groups had been active in the Gary "strike."

On October 28 Mr. White spoke for the meeting of the Ohio State Conference of branches at Dayton, Ohio, emphasizing the work of the NAACP in the post-war world.

Paul Robeson Gets Medal For 'Fine Accomplishments'

New York—Characterizing Paul Robeson as a "man who exemplifies the finest in America and American Negro traditions of accomplishment, sportsmanship, and contribution to public welfare," Marshall Field, Chicago publisher, formally presented the great actor-singer with the 30th Spingarn Medal at a dinner here October 18 at the Hotel Biltmore.

Before a distinguished gathering of more than 500 persons, Mr. Field reviewed the accomplishments of Mr. Robeson and declared that the 30 winners of the Spingarn Medal, "pre-eminent pioneers of a people fighting for their rights on the frontiers of intolerance and bigotry, have been and are at least as heroic figures as those of other peoples who have fought on these and other frontiers, whether those frontiers be physical or spiritual."

"A white man can talk of what such Negro pioneering means, but it is with great difficulty that a white man grasps and appreciates the cost of outstanding accomplishment by an American Negro. When a white man becomes a leader in business, science, authorship, civic affairs, singing, or acting, he has to make great sacrifices, it is true, and exhibited an amazing single-mindedness of purpose. But when a Negro achieves a similar pre-eminence in what is still a white man's social system, he requires all of those qualities and the additional courage and strength necessitated by our shameful caste system in this country.

"It is little wonder that the Negroes who have accomplished what is symbolized by the Spingarn Medal have had such thrilling and incredible life histories. In many cases, they have endured trials that few white Americans can imagine, and even fewer have experienced."

Mr. Field was introduced by Walter White, who presided. Following the Field speech Paul Robeson responded. Marian Anderson, herself a Spingarn Medalist, was also on the program.

The Spingarn Medal was instituted in 1914 by the late J. E. Spingarn, long-time officer of the NAACP, to be awarded for the "highest or noblest achievement by an American Negro during the preceding year or years."

The citation accompanying the award to Mr. Robeson reads: "For his distinguished achievements in the theatre and on the concert stage, as well as for his active concern for the rights of the Common Man of every race, color, religion, and nationality."

Through some friends he was able to get into the x-ray department at the old Broadlawn general, as an assistant.

During his career as an x-ray technician he could remember only one case in which his services were resented because of racial identity. The white lady went home but returned the next day and praised his work after that, he recalled.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bell of 946 Fifteenth street were out celebrating — on Sunday when they ran into the reporter. Mrs. Bell said "I am so happy to have had such a fine worship" at St. Paul AME church where Bishop J. A. Gregg spoke Sunday morning. "It is the eve of our 49th wedding anniversary and on Tuesday, Oct. 30, I will be 71 years old." She and Mr. Bell had their pictures snapped and then they spent the afternoon visiting friends and relatives.

On Monday evening—the day of the wedding anniversary, Mrs. Bell had cooked up a platter of golden brown chicken and a pot of turnips and greens and other trimmings and was waiting for her better-half who had gone to the bond drive parade. "That's just like a man" we agreed.

Five-year-old Myrtle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Carter, and her school pal, Betty Jean White, coming home from St. John school the other evening, found that they had only one street car ticket for the both of them to ride home. Thinking of a solution, Myrtle tore the street car ticket and gave the other half to her pal, Betty. They boarded the street car and tried to convince the motor-man—but he refused and the two five-year-olds waited home.

M. W.—I am anxious to know if the woman I am going with really cares for me as much as she says she does. I have been going with her for three years or more and she was a loving girl when we started going together but now she acts a little distant toward me. What must I do?
Ans.: Three years is an awful long time for a girl to remain loving and attentive while you keep her in a state of anxiety as to what your intentions are. You've had her guesses all this time so now she is playing the same game that you are. Love is not a game that can be beat around the bush—you have to make your intention plain in order to find where you stand. You need to go the little lady and have a confidential talk and iron out these difficulties.

B. J.—There is a man who says he really loves me. We don't live very far apart. He always says, "I love you darling," and will do anything I ask of him. I want to know whether or not his love is true? I love him from the bottom of my heart. He always invites me to his house when his wife is away. He says he will quit his wife for me if he ever has to. Am I doing right to go on with him?
Ans.: You poor deluded youngster—open your eyes to the perils that confront you. Don't you realize that this man is only interested in you for selfish reasons? All he wants is to satisfy his ego at your expense. Were he in love with you, he would do the honorable thing by getting his freedom before becoming so deeply involved. He has no intention of giving up his wife so don't let him fool you any longer. Shy away from him as though he were the big bad wolf.

SELF HELP IS IMPORTANT

While the war was in progress, we heard a lot about freedom of smaller nations from domination—by larger ones; of teaching other nations the democratic way of life.

That fire is burning in the hearts of some people today and they are fighting to throw off the yoke. The same thing is true of minority groups. But the point we wish to make is that in spite of all help outside nations give, the fellow who is being liberated must do his part of the job.

Many of our men who served in the war have been wondering about applying at home some of this doctrine of equality which is talked about abroad. Naturally, many will be disappointed because not only do we fail to practice what preach in the matter of fair play for ALL men but there are those who organize and work against it.

Just as some nations seek to raise their general level among other nations of the world by helping themselves, so must groups and individuals do their part to raise their standards. And this all goes to emphasize that the men and women returning from service cannot expect the folks at home to do everything for them. They must help themselves.

The federal government has made loans, education and; and to a great extent, jobs available. Many have acquired special skills during their service in the army. In many instances, institutions which did not employ Negroes before are doing so now. And in proportion that the Negro himself proves that he is efficient and reliable will be secure and hold these new opportunities.

JOBS CARRY RESPONSIBILITY

Most of our social agencies and other organizations are operated by boards of directors whose duty is to formulate plans and operate these institutions through the executives. In accepting these places, each person is charged with the responsibility to see that the program of the institution is carried out.

Entirely too many people don't realize this and as a result, many an institution suffers for lack of direction and leadership. And this accounts for some of the poorly operated ones.

WHY BE LULLED TO SLEEP?

In an apparent effort to return service men and women to civil life as soon as possible, it appears that public officials, spurred on by pressure from civilians and politicians, are losing sight of the grave responsibility which rests upon America to lead the way toward maintaining a lasting peace.

A lot of this pressure comes from those business people who did business with Germany before the war and those Nazi-minded individuals in America who have always seen eye to eye with Hitler and his followers.

There is one thing which is absolutely certain and that is we must keep a close vigil over Germany for many years to come and the only way to do this is to maintain an army of occupation in that country; the same thing applies to Japan.

We went in debt almost 300 billions of dollars to win this war; we lost a lot of men besides leaving thousands lame and sick. The whole thing was terribly expensive. And

By ALLEN ASHBY

The biggest news story of the week was the news of the signing of Jackie Robinson former UCLA football player and all around athlete by the Brooklyn Dodgers for their farm club at Montreal. It was rather amusing to get the various reactions as we went our way around town, trying to draw people out on the subject. Most of the white people that your writer talked to seemed glad that the break had come; as one fellow said:

"If they are good enough to play beside each other all through school, I don't see why they shouldn't be good enough to play with white people after they get out of school."

A few of the older people thought that this sudden propelling of Robinson into such a grand opportunity would "turn his head." Your humorous scribbler countered with the argument that Robinson had won just about all the honors that any amateur athlete could have ever won, and had been recognized as a star in Negro ball for a while and it hadn't spoiled him in any manner, so we wondered why this, which after all was just another chance to go on doing what he liked to do should make any difference in the mental process of the fellow. Especially when he knew that he was on trial and had to make good.

Personally we think that the Dodgers couldn't have made a better choice. The boy is in his physical prime, big enough to take any body contact that might come his way. He has had enough experience in games involving body contact to know how to handle himself so as to reduce the chances of being hurt to a minimum.

College Football Indiana University went Drake one better and played her two Negroes, Tallfaro and Groom against Tulsa, and the result was that the Hoosiers trimmed the boys from Oklahoma. Buf. with these two boys out, the result might have been another Tulsa win. We have delivered so many of these tirades against the practices of weakening one's team in order to bow to a rotten custom that we know people are getting tired of them.

But, when Drake lost to Detroit U last week, the Titans had just been a victim of the same practice. They had played a school out of Kentucky, and had been forced to shief their biggest ground gainer and high scorer, a fellow named Guy Brown because "The southerners wouldn't like it," even though the opponents hadn't asked that it be done. If this practice is to continue, we might make a suggestion. Let the southern team lay off its best player for that game, and sort of even things up. That ought to be fair. As it was, Perry Harris and his mates nearly pulled that one out of the fire.

High School Football The battle that everyone wants to see will take place this week-end when East Waterloo brings that guy Hollingsworth back to meet North and John Estes. It will be interesting to see whether North and all five of those Negroes can stop Hollingsworth.

Refreshments were served. Many members from Mt. Olive Lodge, Silver Leaf and Rebecca chapters attended.

The building was closed three days this week while we had a new waxed tile floor laid. The rugs will be taken up and the furniture will be arranged to make it look more like a boy's building.

During the past month, and at this writing, we have had a total of 1950 boys in the various parts of the building, and 25 different groups have used the building for everything from banquet halls to an orchestra practice room. In these 25 groups were 200 people.

One of the big meetings in the building was the dinner honoring Mr. Dillon, retiring general secretary. The Ambassadors held their second dance, and just about a hundred young people attended. They were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ashby.

It has been interesting to see how the boys have swung into line helping to keep the building clean and trying to protect the furniture. Several boys have volunteered to do various work from washing windows to repairing damaged equipment, and several of them have simply gone ahead and done whatever they saw was needed. This speaks well for a group of boys who aren't supposed to have any sense of appreciation.

Lowan in India Feels 'Slightly Mistreated' Cause He Missed Center Campaign for $10,000

"Since I last wrote I've been enjoying some of India's strange customs and manners while on furlough to Calcutta," wrote S/Sgt. Robert Simmons on October 19, from Shinguiyang, Burma.

"Another triple dose morale booster was the war's end. I was still in Calcutta on Sept. 2 so you see I had my celebration also. I enjoyed myself as much as could be expected in a city of varied tongued foreigners. I ran into only one Des Moines boy, Arthur Carter. Through our exchange of home town news and views I think we both felt as though we had paid a visit to good old Des Moines.

Three Bystanders came to me via the giant bird today after a short period of convalescing. It seems that most of our mail planes have been otherwise employed. I'm sorry I didn't know about the Community Center drive before it ended. I feel worth, and also whether East Waterloo can find a way to check Estes.

West Waterloo didn't and so the Pink and Green chalked up another one last week. East sailed past Lincoln with Ration and Peters doing most of the damage. James Brown seems to have a severe shoulder injury and hasn't been able to do much lately. Maybe he will see action against North and maybe he won't. The East High coach doesn't want to use him unless he is able to play, saying that he would rather lose by a large score than risk a permanent injury to the lad, and that is the way it should be.

The Hawkeyes football team beat the Roadside team two games, and now being challenged by the South Side Community House who has also beat the Roadside, to decide the city championship.

slightly mistreated because I didn't get to contribute. Congrats on the success of the campaign.

Sights in India Perhaps you folks over there wonder what we tan yanks think of India? Well, for one visiting only for a short while, it'll hold his interest. With the Hindus, Moslems and numerous other religious groups, my fifteen days were pretty well filled. Perhaps, you've heard of Lady Ezra's Tea to which all GI's are invited.

"The 300-year-old turtle is but one of the many interesting features of the Mansion. A few other noteworthy places in and around Calcutta are: Bandel Church, built by the Portuguese in 1599; Jain Temple which houses the light which has been burning for 77 years. No one can enter this Temple unless he first removes his shoes. The Marble Palace and the Hindu crematories called Burning Ghats and the numerous bazaars where you can always expect to argue the merchant down two-thirds of his original price.

"Well, so much for India. It's getting late (9 p. m.) and my lids are drooping. I probably won't hear from you over here again (just kidding) See you for Christmas."—S/Sgt. Robert Simmons, H.S. Co. 45th Engrs. APO 689, c/o P.M., New York N. Y.
