BILBO FAILS TO COMMENT ON LEWIS' RACE NOVEL

NEW YORK, (CNS)—The other day Senator Theodore Bilbo received this note from Allan Ullman of Random House: "In his new novel, Sinclair Lewis discusses a problem of intense interest to every American. I know that it is also of special importance to you and I am therefore sending you a copy of 'Kingsblood Royal' (which deals with a midwest banker on tracing his ancestry and discovering he has Negro blood) I will be delighted to hear any comment you may have to make."

To which Bilbo answered, "I wish to acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 20 and to tell you I appreciate very much the copy of 'Kingsblood Royal' by Sinclair Lewis that you were kind enough to mail me. I am sure I shall enjoy reading it."

Hold Booker for Brent Shooting; Hearing May 27

A charge of assault with intent to commit murder was filed in municipal court Monday against Hobbie Brooks, 30, of 1606 Walker street, as the result of a shooting Saturday night, May 10, at E. Fifteenth and Walker streets.

Pleading innocent when arraigned before Judge Charles S. Cooter, Brooks was released on $5,000 bond for hearing May 27.

Booker is accused of shooting Albert Brent, 27, of 1431 S. Seventeenth court, in an argument. In a serious condition, a bullet passed through his left forearm and entered the abdominal wall. It lodged about an inch beneath the surface without puncturing vital organs.

Booker was arrested as he entered his home shortly after the shooting. Brent still was lying on the sidewalk. Police said Booker was carrying a .38 calibre revolver. He admitted shooting Brent, but claimed the other man had threatened him with a razor, police said. The detectives said they found no razor on Brent, or at the scene.

Electric Chair Which Spared Willie Francis Year Ago, Snuffed Out His Life

ST. MARTINVILLE, La., (NNPA)—Willie Francis, 18, found death waiting at the end of his second trip to Louisiana's portable electric chair here Friday, May 9.

The same chair, which spared his life a year ago through a mechanical defect of the drunkenness of his executioner, or both, snuffed it out quickly this time.

Willie was strapped in the chair at 12:05 p.m., Central Standard Time. The switch was thrown at 12:08 p.m., and four minutes later he was pronounced dead.

Ready to Die

The youth declined the last-minute offer of Bertrand De Blanc, his lawyer, to make one final appeal to Louisiana courts to stay the death sentence and review the case in the light of newly discovered evidence. He told his lawyer he was ready to die.

Willie's last words were "everything is all right." He walked to the chair unflinching from a small cell at the rear of the jail. When his cell door opened to the hallway he had only a half dozen steps to walk. Twice he wiped the palms of his hands against the legs of his dark pin-striped trousers.

A leg strap was being adjusted he looked at his lap, he closed his eyes, then opened them, and smiled at one of the witnesses.

Mr. De Blanc had visited Willie less than two hours before the time set for the execution.

Lawyer Still Had Hope
De Blanc said he had told Willie he still thought he could stay the execution, but Willie told him: "No. Leave it alone. Thank you, but leave it alone. I'm ready. I'm sorry I did what I did, but now I'm ready."

De Blanc then said good-bye. A small crowd gathered in the jail yard starting about 8 a.m., not long after Francis was transferred from the jail in New Iberia, where he had been kept since May 3, 1946, when the portable chair failed.

Several members of Willie's family paid him a visit before De Blanc arrived. As they left the jail, one of the men in crowd jostled against them and said: "They ought to do away with all of the..."

A Hostile Feeling

Although the feeling was openly hostile to Francis, there was no disorder.

Willie had for his last meal catfish caught in the bayous of the Teche country which Henry V. Longfellow made famous in his poem, "Evangeline."

With him at the end was Father Charles Hannigan, Catholic priest who had visited him every day since his first trip to the chair last year. Willie refused assistance in walking to the chair, motioning for Father Hannigan to precede him.

Willie paid the death penalty for the murder of Andrew Thomas, a white druggist in St. Martinville, He

War Speeds Output in U. S. Dry Milk Industry

While the dry milk industry has experienced a rapid growth since the beginning of the present century, this growth was greatly speeded by wartime demand for foods of high nutrition value that had a minimum of weight and bulk, thus saving in transportation. The totals show that between 1940 and 1945 the United States production of all dry milks and related products increased by more than 50 per cent. The total of all these products manufactured in 1945 was 736,832,000 pounds and the total make for 1945 was 1,117,338,000 pounds.

Leading the list of dry milk products is nonfat dry milk solids with a make in 1945 of 643,745,000 pounds. However, the greatest increase in percentage was made by dry whole milk which jumped from 29,499,000 pounds in 1940 to 217,833,000 pounds in 1945, thus providing American soldiers and sailors throughout the world with milk and ice cream.

The 10 leading states in production of dry milks and related products are Wisconsin, Minnesota, New York, California, Michigan, Idaho, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri and Washington.

was rushed into service during the war to promote production of such scarce products as quinine, rubber and rotenone—is maintained jointly by the Ministry of Agriculture of Peru and the U. S. department of agriculture. The long time aim includes basic research and the development of complementary crops that will favor expansion of trade between the United States and Peru and other Latin American nations. The Tingo Maria work with tomatoes was started as an immediate activity, because of the need for food crops in developing eastern Peru. This area never has done well in supplying itself with food, and has produced little of commercial value except lumber.

Demand for Beeswax
New uses developed during the war, plus all the old uses, have created a high demand for beeswax. The armed services and industry found beeswax extremely valuable in making protective coatings, adhesive tape and other products. Recently it has been highly prized for cosmetic value. There are many other purposes for which beeswax was used in prewar days, such things as church candles, honey comb foundations, polishes, and a host of others. Imports of beeswax from abroad in 1945 were almost twice domestic production, or 7,400,000 pounds. During the first nine months of 1946, some 5,300,000 pounds of beeswax was imported. Before the war, imports totaled about 4,500,000 pounds a year. Most of the imported beeswax comes from Portuguese Guinea, Angola, Brazil or Madagascar.

Cite Advantages in Use Of Glass Cooking Utensils

The first cooking utensils made of glass were designed for oven use only, but within the last few years glass utensils able to withstand greater heat-shock than needed for ovenware have been made for surface cooking. Care should be taken, however, not to expose glass utensils to sudden changes of temperature, such as adding cold liquids to foods while they are cooking, or placing hot dishes directly on a cold surface.

There are several advantages afforded by glass utensils. They are easy to keep clean; glass conducts heat evenly, producing uniform browning; foods can be served in the same dish in which they were cooked, thereby saving in dishwashing time.

All top-of-the-stove ware cooking utensils should have a grid placed under them when used on the new fast-heating electric stoves, those made since 1940, home specialists advise. Ovenware should not be used over direct heat, or in place of top-of-the-stove ware. Grids may be obtained from the manufacturer of the glassware (watch for the postcard attached to the label of the product).

YOU CAN START CANNING NOW!

There's hardly a day during the growing season of the year when you can't find something to put up for winter use. Fresh vegetables and fruits are on the way to market. It pays to keep a supply of your favorite jars, caps, lids and rubbers on hand. Then you'll always have them when they're needed. Remember to select clean, sound, fully ripe fruits and young, tender, garden-fresh vegetables. Your canned product can be no better than your raw one! Can the fruits and vegetables as soon as you get them into the kitchen in order to preserve their fresh flavors. It's best to wash and can only a small amount, the amount your canner will hold, at a time. Examine all your jars for nicks which prevent perfect seals. Always use new rubber rings. And do the job right, according to manufacturer's instructions! It's the economical way, and how you'll enjoy the results!

Finds Pork Adds Nutrition To Popular Ham Sandwich

There is new scientific evidence as a basis for the popularity of the ham sandwich. Recent feeding tests also help to explain why various cuts of pork combine well with cereals in the diet.

The biological value of the protein in mixtures containing equal parts of pork and bread protein—roughly equivalent to a well-filled meat sandwich—was equal to that in pork alone.

J. M. C.—My husband wrote me last week for the first time in a year. He wanted to come up here and visit me. I answered and invited him up. When he came, I knew the minute I saw him that I would never be happy again in life without him. He feels the same way I do. He wanted me to go back with him but I told him to wait a couple of weeks until I got my affairs in shape. He writes daily now. Let me know if I should go back to my mate?

Ans: Yes, that's the place for you. There is a deep, mutual love existing between you and your husband and you are acting like children to remain separated when you could be so happy together. There was no basic cause for a separation in the beginning. Return to him right away.

J. M. C.—I have a chance to sell one of my farms and I want to know if it will be all right. I am getting old and for some reason would like to get my money out of this property and put it in a bank.

Ans: It's a good time to sell. Your prospect finds your price quite satisfactory and is very eager to gain possession of this property. Let it slide.

M. L.—There is a married man who claims he is in love with me and makes no bones about it. He is a grand person but I don't love him. This I would never do. He gave me a present recently and I returned it. All the people around know how he feels about me and really says he loves me. Could this be true? Should I leave town or how must I deal with him?

Ans: Ignore the man completely. Regardless of how he pretends to feel about you the fact that he is married proves that you are not as important in his estimation as he would have you believe. Don't let him influence you to accept his attentions. Stay right where you are but avoid the man and refuse to even notice him should you meet by chance.

Anxious—We have been married 3 years have 2 children. My husband has always been inausonously jealous. I never gave him cause to act as he has since we married. I never looked at another man until here lately. I became attracted to a fellow and tried to be just a friend but whenever he would touch me or smile at me I'd have a funny feeling all over and just couldn't stand it. He said he felt the same about me but did not want to break up my marriage. Now I have begun to want him more and more. What must I do?

Ans: Consider this one fact—Unfaithfulness will rob you of your children, husband and home. Does the thrill you experience in the presence of this man warrant your giving up all you have in this world? NO. . . and don't be silly enough to believe otherwise. You'd better straighten out before your husband gets wind of your escapade. He'll blow his top for sure.

"EYES" RESUMES PUBLICATION

The Bystander notes the reappearance of "Eyes" magazine on the newstands. For the past few months the management suspended publication pending relocation of the magazine's home and readjustment of bookpaper shortage—a jam which the scarcity of paper caught even many older magazines.

Just as the first issues appeared well gotten up and printed, the one issued since resuming publication continues that high standard. Publication of picture magazine is a big undertaking—more than most people realize. As a former Iowa publication we are naturally interested in its continued publication and wish for it a successful business project.

AN HONEST CONFESSION

The Southern Baptist Convention held its annual meeting in St. Louis, Missouri last week. Among other things it did was the passage of a set of resolutions among which was the following:

"We shall think of the Negro as a person and treat him accordingly.

"We shall continually strive as individuals to conquer all prejudice and eliminate from our speech terms of contempt, and from our conduct, actions of ill will.

"We shall protest against injustice and indignities against Negroes."

This certainly sounds crude. But upon second thought The Bystander is inclined to take the resolution as a confession of what the situation actually is for in the area served by the members of that conference, most Negroes are not treated as human beings.

The church of all groups ought to be forthright on the question of the treatment of minority groups and yet some have been leaders in hate and reaction. And that attitude has made many people hesitate to believe in them for such a course does not square with the teachings of Jesus Christ.

But whatever the southern brethren mean, it helps just that much more for the cause of democracy to have them admit that the situation is bad and that they favored a change for the better.

LOYALTY IN SPITE OF A WRONG

A few weeks ago, when a large labor delegation assembled at the state house in a show of strength against the passage of legislation which they opposed, most organized workers took at least part of the day off.

Undoubtedly, the biggest objection to the laws was the proposal against the closed and union shop.

The men milled around the union halls during the day. A good representation of Negro workers was in the group. They condemned the legislation just as the white men did.

If there is anything which has made life miserable for Negroes desiring to enter certain trades they are the union and closed shop. The automobile mechanics unions don't admit Negroes. Plasterers, bricklayers, plumbers and electricians have the same policy, while many others won't take Negro apprentices. But in spite of the fact that the unions, by the use of the closed shop, discriminate against them, Negro laborers were out fighting the law because they thought it was wrong; because they were loyal to organized labor.

This seems a bitter pill to take—loyalty to the very thing which works a hardship on them and yet they never waiver in that loyalty.

That loyalty ought to mean something to the members of those unions which discriminate against Negroes. These unions ought not to use their position to exclude a fellow who helps him maintain that position.

allegedly laid in wait for three hours behind Thomas' garage for Thomas to come to his home from his drug store. He allegedly was armed with a pistol he had previously stolen. After Thomas arrived, Francis was said to have shot him five times and the two have taken Thomas' wallet containing $4. At the time he was 15 years old.

In August, 1945, nine months later, Francis was arrested in Port Arthur, Texas, charged with assaulting and robbing a man there. He was said to have confessed to Texas officials the murder of Thomas.

LIVES OF ALL PEOPLE DEMAND INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION SAYS BUNCHE

By JAMES L. HICKS
NNUA Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The tendency to concentrate on his own daily repressions has kept the United Nations remote from the interests of the colored man in America, Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, director of the Division of Trusteeships of the UN, told the Howard University Forum last Friday.

Preparing his audience for his talk on the "United Nations and Colonial Problems," Dr. Bunche warned that such a lack of interest in the United Nations on the part of colored people in America is "foolhardy," "short-sighted" and "suicidal."

Directing attention to the relatively few colored people he had seen attending sessions of the United Nations, and to the "meager coverage" of the sessions by the colored press, Dr. Bunche asked if this could be based on the conception that the atom bomb is not vital to the colored man.

Answering his own question, he blamed segregated schools and other forms of repression as being responsible for the indifference of the colored man.

He warned, however, that the lives of all people depend on the international cooperation and the collective thinking of all to avert the most terrible calamity the world has ever seen.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Good Habits

Anyone who has ever tried to break a well-established habit, such as smoking to excess, knows how difficult it is to do so. Despite the best intentions in the world, he finds himself lighting a cigaret before he even realizes he has taken it out of the pack. Fortunately, there are good habits which are almost as hard to break as the bad ones. Can you imagine how hard it would be to break yourself of saying "thank you" to anyone who does you a service?

Few adults have to make a conscientious effort to remember to wash their hands before they eat. We do it automatically and we'd be uncomfortable if we didn't. We can't even remember the conscientious efforts made by our mothers to establish the habit for us when we were small. Parents who work to establish sound health habits in their children while they are young do their children a great service. The latter will not have to struggle when they are grown to break bad habits and acquire the fundamentals of good hygiene. The pattern will already be established.

A child who is fed a healthful diet will develop a taste for such foods and will later choose them because he prefers them. A child who is encouraged to play out of doors whenever the weather is pleasant will probably develop a liking for recreation in the sunshine and fresh air and will carry this tendency over into adult life, with great benefit to his health.

A child who is taken to the doctor and the dentist for periodic check-ups will come to think of such events as indispensable, sensible procedures which he will follow for himself and his own children.

All Of Us Are Exposed

Although all of us are exposed at one time or another to serious, communicable diseases such as tuberculosis, not all of us become ill. Of course, even the healthiest person might contract TB if he were in constant contact with someone who had it, but even then he would have a far better chance of combatting the disease than a person whose general health was poor.

People who have sound, well-established hygienic habits can enjoy their health without giving much thought to disease, since they are less likely to acquire it than others. Their periodic visits to doctors and dentists are their "health insurance." They know that if anything should go wrong it would be discovered early and treated promptly, before they could become seriously ill or communicate the disease to someone else. If such habits become universal, the number of cases of a communicable disease such as tuberculosis, which now kills more than 53,000 Americans a year, would be decreased.

This article is presented by the Polk County Tuberculosis Association in the interest of better health.

K. Brown Writes

We recently received a rather interesting letter from young Kenneth Brown who served as an assistant to the Howard University basketball coach. Young Brown voiced the opinion that the better Negro college teams would hold their own with the best major white school cage teams. With this we heartily agree.

It is due to the facts that a lot of high class Negro basketball talent passes up the big league schools where they won't be apt to get on a team and go to a school where they can play basketball. Then basketball squads are smaller and it is possible for five men to play a whole game without relief.

Then Brown goes off into his favorite argument, Negro athletes who should be going to Negro colleges. He mentions several Des Moines athletes he knew who would up their careers of half-baked professionals or sand lotters.

Kenny advanced the idea that the local social agencies ought to furnish the necessary contacts for boys who should or who might want to attend Negro colleges.

We recall that this was at one time a part of the Crocker Y program. Several local athletes got to Tuskegee, Tennessee State and Arkansas State because of contacts made through the Crocker Y. So Young Brown is on the right track. Maybe, the social agencies around Des Moines may launch a program that will make not only Kenny Brown, but a lot of us old timers happy.

Track

It has been a long hard chase, but East High finally got back on the victory train again when they grabbed the district meet at Valley. Now, if Altkins can win two races at Ames next week—

Wonder what happened to Nichols of North? He ran on two relay teams but seemed to miss the dashes. Don Spangler finally got into the groove in the high jump. We would like to be in Ames, Iowa City and Chicago this week end.

Mrs. Hendred Writes About Her Chain Letter

"Just read the article about the chain letter today in the Bystander," wrote Maehenri Hendred of Providence, R. I., on May 4.

"I just continued the letter for the fun of it. I know very little about the affair. A friend in Des Moines wrote one, and for the heck of it I decided to continue or rather keep the thing going.

"I know as well as you, that the sender can't receive 125 hankies. I take it that the figur 125 is just put in for fun. However, I do see where you can receive at least five. And I'm game enough to try it just to see if I can receive five.

Seriously though, I didn't mind the article too much, but what I'm concerned about is my name. It was spelled incorrectly, you know. Always remember to spell it 'Maehenri' instead of 'Mae Henry' and everything will be lovely. Thanks heaps. (I sound like Marri Johnson. She always says 'Thanks heaps' or 'loads of something.' The former Iowan's address is: 63 Corliss street, Providence, Rhode Island.

each Monday at the hospital. Mrs. Dorena Manuel, rehabilitation chairman, is in charge.

The memorial service will be held Sunday evening, May 25, at Bethel A.M.E. church, at 5 p.m. The post and unit will hold joint services. All younger hospital workers are urged to attend in uniform. Mrs. Greene and Mr. Oval Carter are in charge of the program.

Tuesday, May 20, the poppy program will be held at the Legion club rooms, 750 Eleventh street. A joint meeting will be held. Mrs. William Joseph will be in charge of the dining room. There will be music and a speaker.

Mrs. Claude Frye, radio and housing chairman, in completing her year's work was praised for the new drapes that have been put up in the ladies' auxiliary clubroom. Commander Newcomb and comrades were also commended for their cooperation. The auxiliary year closes July 1.

Sgt. Ward Sends Mother Roses From Japan

Sgt. Robert G. Ward of 1608 Buchanan, now stationed in Tokyo, Japan, sent his step mother one dozen American beauty roses for Mother's Day, Mrs. Nellie E. Ward, revealed this week. She is a proud mother of Robert and says he is the "best boy in this world."

Anyone who wishes to write to him may do so as follows: T/5 Robert G. Ward, 17069473, Com. 3rd. Bn. 24th Inf., Regt., APO 25 C/O P. M. San Francisco, Calif.

Letter from Sgt Astwood About Life on "Rock" in Once Beautiful Okinawa

"I told you when I was in Des Moines that I anticipated going to Japan," wrote Sgt. William H. Astwood to a friend here on April 7 from Okinawa.

"When I got in California my orders read 'Manila.' I got to Manila alright, but after I stayed there about ten days they decided to send me to Okinawa. No doubt you have heard of this historic place, called the 'Rock.' Well, that is just what it is. There is absolutely nothing here but a few native villages and they are all 'off limits.' "Fraternalization is strictly forbidden on this island. Any soldier caught fraternizing is subject to severe disciplinary action.

"The only activities around here are those sponsored by the Red Cross. If it weren't for that organization, life over here would be like somewhat of a concentration camp. There is hardly a house left intact on this once beautiful island.

"Well, how is everything in Des Moines these days? I was deeply impressed by the hospitality that existed in that fair city. I hope some day again to return to Des Moines, maybe to live. I can never tell." Sgt. William H. Astwood, RA32725367, 4479 Q. M., Salv. Rep. Pl., APO 331, C/O P. M., San Francisco, Calif.
