Urge Central Vet Hospital at Meharry

COLLEGE MEN STUDY IN TERNATIONAL OUTLOOK

Greensboro, N. C. The International Outlook might well be the subject under discussion by these International Relations Club members at the North Carolina A. and T. College, however, this session found the fellows getting together for a parley on the Marshall Plan. The club stresses the importance of understanding our relations to the rest of the world. It was organized by Dr. Akiki K. Nyong'o, African prince who has travelled extensively throughout the world and who is now professor of social science at the college.

Taking part in the discussion are Charles Holley, Greensboro, N. C.; Walter Carter, Monroe, N. C.; Seth Spellman, Elizabeth City, N. C.; Daniel Moore, Raleigh, N. C. (Photo by White).

Institution Would Afford Vets Adequate Medical Care, Says Health Director

By LOUIS LAUTIER
Washington, D. C. (NNPA)—Establishment of a central hospital for colored veterans at Meharry Medical college, Nashville, Tenn., was urged last Tuesday by Dr. Murray C. Brown, white, director of public health at Meharry.

Testifying before the Senate Labor and Public Welfare subcommittee which has been considering veterans hospital legislation, Dr. Brown said he did not believe that qualified personnel could be obtained to operate the proposed all-colored veterans hospital at the birthplace of Booker T. Washington in Franklin County, Virginia.

Adequate Medical Care

On the other hand, he said, establishment of a central veterans hospital at Meharry would afford colored veterans adequate medical care and at the same time enable Meharry to train ten specialists a year.

There are only four hospitals for colored patients in the South that are fully approved by the Medical College of Surgeons, Dr. Brown testified. Three of them, he said, are approved for internship training by the American Medical Association's Council on Hospital and Medical Education.

These hospitals, outside of Meharry, provide a total resource of only twelve internes a year, he said. There are no board certified residence in the area other than those maintained by Meharry, he testified. "It is therefore clear that in this area the training of personnel is on a certainly reduced and minimum basis," he said.

Much Difficulty

Dr. Brown pointed out that there were in the southeast a number of other hospitals, including the hospital at Tuskegee, Ala., which he described as principally a neuropsychiatric hospital. He also reminded the committee that there was a projected all-colored veterans hospital to be built at Mound Bayou, Miss.

The difficulty we have encountered in regard to hospitals he said, "has been that they haven't had personnel."

Asked by Senator Wayne Morse, Republican, of Oregon, subcommittee chairman, whether the Veterans hospital at Tuskegee has not had adequate personnel, Dr. Brown replied that he thought that was a "fair treatment."

Dr. Brown said he did not know where the personnel for the projected veterans hospital at Mound Bayou would come from.

"We are acutely aware of this desperate need for medical personnel," he said. (SEE PAGE SIX)

Katherine Dunham And Troupe Star In Movie, 'Casbah'

Chicago—With a fat acting part in her third movie, Katherine Dunham has a role aimed directly at the every-ready shears of Jim-Crow Dixie censors according to March Ebony's photo-review of "Casbah," in which she is cast as the sympathetic Odette, friend and confidante of star, Tony Martin.

In "Casbah," a remake of "Aladdin" which starred Charles Boyer and Hedy LaMarr, Tony Martin plays Jewel thief Pepe LeMoko. "Come with me to the Casbah," says La Dunham, the anthropologist-schoolteacher turned danseuse,

Roy Wilkins, Crisis Editor, To Speak Friday Night at Corinthian Baptist Church

The Des Moines branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will present Roy Wilkins of New York City, assistant secretary of the NAACP, in a lecture Friday night, Feb. 20, at the Corinthian Baptist church. is cast as the owner of a Casbah cafe where Pepe spends most of his time.

In producing the film, Universal-International has held to Casbah tradition and no Jim Crow or color lines exist. Consequently, Miss Dunham is pictured dining and drinking with Tony Martin. In one very touching and tender scene, she urges him to forget his white dream girl. In other scenes, the entire Dunham dance troupe sits at tables with white customers, eating and talking with them.

La Dunham designed her own costumes for "Casbah" and did the choreography for her troupe's routines. She was guaranteed four weeks salary at $2500 weekly. Big production scene features Miss Dunham and her troupe in an Arab festival, dance she created especially for the film's high spot.

Los Angeles, Calif.—Supervisor Leonard J. Roach announced today that the Board of Supervisors has approved a contract with local architect Paul R. Williams for construction of a swimming pool and incidental buildings at Newhall Memorial Park in Newhall.

Following that, Williams landed a contract to convert a large commercial building into modern Superior Court chambers.

HONOR BIRTHPLACE OF AMERICA'S OUTSTANDING NEGRO LEADER

Booker T. Washington Birthplace, Virginia—On February 12 the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial focused the attention of the nation on the spot where America's most outstanding Negro leader was born. S. J. Phillips, President of the Memorial, states that the immediate occasion of the celebration was the establishment of a United States Post Office at the birthplace under the name of Booker Washington Birthplace, Virginia.

The long-range program was the opening of a year of activities in which an entire community will be planned to center around this post office.

President Truman took note of the occasion by sending a letter of commendation and congratulation. The Governors of Virginia, West Virginia, Alabama, Florida, Minnesota, New Jersey, Connecticut, Tennessee, North Carolina, Maryland, New York, Michigan, Ohio, Nebraska, Arizona, Kentucky, South Carolina, South Dakota, and New Hampshire, paid tribute to the occasion through telegrams which set forth

Bloc Voting Has Meant Better Jobs, Education in Kansas

Chicago—"In no other city in the United States are Negroes as strong as they are in Kansas City, Kansas," declares March Ebony, "for in politics votes are the key to power and KC Negroes have the votes that count in the city and county elections."

"As a result," the Ebony feature continues, "party bosses are anxious to please colored voters and have given three out of every ten government jobs to Negroes although only two out of every ten votes are Negro."

Aside from jobs, the Negro vote as a balance of power in KC politics has meant better education, better health facilities and more police protection for the man in the street, Ebony says. The feature continues:

"Voting as a bloc, colored voters represent a balance of power and are as reliable a barometer of KC voting as Maine's to the nation. When KC Negroes voted for Roosevelt, the whole city went for F.D.R. When in 1946 some 97 per cent of the colored precincts went Republican, the city went to the GOP."

Among the important Kansas City and Wyandotte County officials featured in Ebony's photo story are: County Commissioner Fred White, State Representative William Towers, City License Inspector Roosevelt Butler, Deputy County Attorney Cordell Meeks, County Physician William Blount, State Sales Tax Inspector Marcelle Kennedy, Assistant City Safety Director James Hamlett, Deputy Court Clerk David Wilhite, Probation officers George Minor and Maedya Walters, Deputy Marshall James Cox, Deputy Sheriff Clayton Bell, Welfare Officer Shelle McClelland, and Courthouse Superintendent John J. Parks.

Regional College Plan Is Denounced

New York, N. Y.—Declaring the NAACP unalterably opposed to the establishment of segregated regional colleges, the Board of Directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People passed the following resolution at its meeting on February 9, 1948:

Whereas, the Southern Government's Conference, in a move to circumvent recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court, holding that states providing higher education for white students must at the same time provide the same educational opportunities for Negroes, have adopted a plan to set up regional colleges on a segregated basis; and

Whereas, if such a plan becomes a reality the immediate result will be the beginning of a new pattern of segregation which in effect will perpetuate these separate but equal educational myths and destroy all present gains of intercultural understanding in education; and

Whereas, it is the policy of this Association to condemn segregation in any form;

Now, Therefore, be it resolved that the NAACP is unalterably opposed to the passage of any legislation, state or federal, designed to authorize any state to join with, appropriate funds for or officially associate with any state or groups of states for the purpose of establishing regional colleges designed to separate the races in educational opportunities. All lawful steps, including court action, if necessary, will be taken to block this plan to circumvent the Constitution of the United States and the mandates of the Supreme Court by extending and perpetuating segregation in education.

States Curb Child Labor

Many states last year strengthened child labor laws to curb exploitation of youngsters. In Alabama, the lowest age at which children may be employed was raised by the 1947 legislature from 14 to 16 years, except in domestic service or farm work. The work week for children who work after school was shortened from 48 to 40 hours. Massachusetts strengthened its 16-year minimum work age by abolishing special permits which allowed some children under 16 to work in industry. In Illinois, a law passed in 1945 setting 16 as the minimum work age became effective last year. Three states meanwhile took action in the relatively untouched area of regulating child farm labor. Connecticut set 14 as the minimum age for farm employment and decreed a maximum 8-hour day and a 48-hour week. New York continued wartime legislation requiring 14 and 15-year old children to get permits to work on farms after school or during vacations. Ohio also tightened regulations covering issuance of farm work certificates.

Our First Engineer

The beaver is not only one of the most resourceful of small animals but also one of the most industrious, and in many respects most useful. The beaver is the world's first engineer, and as such, its industrial traits are valuable to man and beast. For their value as engineers, beavers often are carried to localities where their kind once lived but disappeared. They are captured in large basket-like traps and transported to depleted lands where beaver dams are needed. No sooner than a new job—and they like a new undertaking—these sharp-toothed workers start gnawing down trees for dam building material. When spring rains swell the streams their dams prevent the washing away of valuable topsoil, preserve timber supply and aid in beautifying the landscape.

Tallant and Glen R. Walker, all of Des Moines, Iowa, shall be directors of the corporation and George E. Halliburton of Des Moines, Iowa, shall be the president. Allen Tallant of Des Moines, Iowa, the vice president and Glen R. Walker of Des Moines, Iowa, the secretary and treasurer of said corporation.

10. The private property of the stockholders shall be exempt from liability for corporate debts.

Dated at Des Moines, Iowa, this 23rd day of January, 1948.

Standers January 29, February 5, 12, 19, 1948.

Viking 'Wineland' Landing

A possible location of the Viking "Wineland" was at the mouth of the Merrimack river in northern Massachusetts, is the conclusion reached by Dr. John R. Swanton, Smithsonian institute, after an intensive study of the Icelandic sagas.

Dr. Swanton brings to the identification of the Norse landings in North America about the year 1000 the experience of a lifetime in reconstructing the trail of De Soto across the southern United States.

Wineland was the southernmost of the temporary Norse settlements. The sagas leave little doubt that it was a well-wooded country where wild grapes were found and where there was an abundance of grain. Furthermore, the landing was in the mouth of some tidal river which, a little way inland, broadened into what was described as a lake. The mouth of the Merrimack, he found, checked better with the confusion of often conflicting data than any other site along the New England coast. Other Norse landings most probably were on the southern coast of Labrador, where there is a general agreement of the topography with the confused descriptions.

Good Year for Many

The year 1947 was the most prosperous peacetime year in history. This is especially interesting in view of numerous early predictions that a business recession was imminent, point out business research workers at University of Illinois. Reasons why the recession did not materialize included: short crops in both Europe and the United States, and resulting higher food prices; exports higher than expected; the backlog of demand proving larger than was anticipated, with bottlenecks preventing production of many commodities from meeting demands; increase in consumer credit and bank loans to individuals, and increased wages to coal miners leading to price increases in coal, steel and automobiles adding impetus to inflation.

When Turkeys Had Bells

Half a century ago before turkey raising became a scientific commercial industry with heated apartments, hot and cold running water, cod liver oil and vitamin pills, many general farms had a flock of a score or two of birds. The long-legged, bright-eyed birds liked to wander over the meadows, pasture and upland fields for grasshoppers and bugs. They circled into the woods and when the beechnuts fell, after the first killing frost, the turkeys fattened on the beechnut meats. Thus it was that generations ago farmers hung small bells around the necks of the turkeys, according to Pacific States Poultry association. Mail order catalogues carried advertisements listing the polished metal turkey bells at $1.10 per dozen.

Microwaves Demonstrate Nature of Light and Radio

Microwaves, made famous by radar, provide the teacher with the simplest means of demonstrating the nature of light and radio waves, C. L. Andrews, New York State College for Teachers, told the convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Light waves are a hundredth of a hairs breadth long. To observe wave effects in light, the student must squint through a microscope eyepiece into some ingenious device. Radio waves are a few thousand feet long. To study their wave effects, a laboratory the size of the state of Texas with a roof 100 miles high is required. Wave effects of microwaves are man-sized, conveniently spread out on a laboratory table to be measured with an ordinary ruler. With the aid of a hand-sized transmitter and a hand-sized intensity meter, reflection, refraction, interference, diffraction and polarization of waves are to be demonstrated. Fading of radio signals due to interference between the direct wave and that reflected from the Kennedy-Heaviside layer is simulated with the transmitter and receiver a few feet apart and a wire screen used to represent the ionosphere.

Hottest Spice Family

More than 50,000 tons of spices are consumed annually in the United States alone and the most popular spice is black pepper which was discovered as an unattractive wild vine in the jungles of the Malay peninsula. Both black and white pepper come from the same plant—the white comes from the less peppery, inner parts of the berry. Hundreds of other types of peppery, hot plants are much hotter to the taste and easier to grow but the popularity of black pepper on the modern table remains unchallenged since long before Columbus set out to find a faster route to the spice-bearing East.

New Chemical Weapons

To Combat Weed Pests

Farmers and householders waging war on crab grass and other troublesome weeds and grasses can look for help from two new weapons.

The weed-killing chemicals bear the jaw-breaking names of sodium isopropyl xanthate and allyl mixed chlorophenyl carbonate. They have been tested by federal and state agricultural experiment stations "with excellent results against many weeds and grasses not economically or satisfactorily controlled by other chemicals or practices," the announcement said. They are being used in active experimental programs but are not yet available commercially.

The second-named herbicide is the one that combats crab grass, as well as barnyard, orchard and blue grass, cattails and similar plants. It has a hormone-like action which attacks the root structure of the weed and arrests growth immediately by preventing seed development, even though no effect is apparent on the surface for the first week or longer. It also is used effectively in combination with 2,4-D against some broad-leaved weeds not affected by 2,4-D used alone.

The sodium isopropyl xanthate is described as a "complete killer" which should be applied directly to crop plants. It shows promise for pre-emergence treatment, in spray or dust form, and has been used with success in the chemical weeding of growing crops.

Pig Iron Warrants Used

As Trading Commodity

In the early 1900s pig iron was traded as a commodity, like grain, sugar, coffee or cocoa. Trading in warrants on the produce exchange and through brokers entitled the holder to specific quantities of pig iron in storage.

The practice grew out of the financial straits of small merchant blast furnace operators who could not afford to shut down during periods of dull business activity and thus were able to continue operations and secure cash for their output by arranging for issuance of warrants against iron produced.

Under this system the land at the furnace on which the pig iron was stored was leased to a storage company. The latter hired a yardmaster to guard the stores of iron and attend to shipments. The storage company would issue the warrants, usually representing claims against 100 tons or multiples of that amount of the iron in storage. Sale of the warrants to the first purchaser would provide the furnace with needed cash.

Seaweeds Used as Food

Filipinos use a number of seaweeds or algae in their homeland and in Hawaii for food. Some 21 species of edible seaweeds are found around the small islands north of Luzon and also along the coastal region of northern Luzon. The Thosanos from this region make the greatest use of seaweeds in Hawaii. They do not relish all of those liked by the Hawaiians. They like neither limu nor koku, considered by most Hawaiians to be the finest and most delectable of all. The seaweeds are gathered direct from the rocks on which they grow and, at certain times of the year when the waves break them from their holdfasts and wash them near the shore, they are gathered in great quantities in the shallow water. The carbohydrates of algae are not utilized by man as food but give bulk to the intestinal contents and thus stimulate the normal movements of the digestive tract.

Soldiers of Genghis Khan

Carried Dried Milk Ration

To Marco Polo is attributed the description of a dried milk made by the Tartars during the 13th century. He reported that the soldiers of Genghis Khan were said to have carried dried milk as a part of their ration, according to Jack A. Wright in the Oregon State Agriculture bulletin.

Next mention of dried milk in tablet form came in 1810. It was made by the French scientist, Nicolas Appert, from milk concentrated slowly to a dough-like consistency in a current of dry air. The first process utilized for manufacture on a commercial scale was that invented by Grimwade, about 1853. The perfection of milk drying processes for commercial use dates back to about the same period; the last half of the 19th century, as does that of commercially practicable processes of milk condensing. In most cases the inventors of processes for the one product were not unmindful of the possibilities of the other.

In the United States the first successful dried milk manufactured on a commercial scale was malted milk, with this product placed on the market in 1887. This product also contained an extract of barley and wheat flour paste.

Record Low Death Rate

Estimated for Past Year

American life insurance policyholders probably will record the best health year in history in 1947, the Institute of Life Insurance reports, early estimates pointing to the lowest death rate ever recorded.

This was accomplished despite new high death rate records being set in the two leading causes of death, heart disease and cancer.

During the past year, policyholder deaths from influenza and pneumonia, tuberculosis and children's diseases dropped to a record low rate. While these three classifications combined accounted for one-third of all policyholder deaths 35 years ago, this past year they represented fewer than one-twelfth.

Both children's diseases and the influenza and pneumonia classification showed 1947 death rates at about one-half those of prewar years.

Fluoride for Dental Caries

Accumulated evidence to date suggests three methods of caries control by use of fluorides, according to Francis A. Arnold Jr., National Institute of Health. First, increasing the fluoride concentration of public water supplies to an optimum level, 1 ppm. Second, by topical application of more concentrated solutions. Third, by

Increasing Fluoride Ingestion

Increasing fluoride ingestion through daily dietary supplements. The first method, fluorination of water supplies, now is being subjected to experimental verification in numerous communities. Topical application of fluorides has sufficient clinical evidence at the present time to recommend its judicious use by the dental profession. There is no direct scientific evidence with which to evaluate the use of tablets containing fluoride as dietary supplements for caries control.

Hens Laying More Eggs

The American hen today is responding to better care and management by laying 15 per cent more eggs annually than she did at the beginning of World War II. This remarkable rise in annual egg production in 1946 to 164 now is due largely to the increase of better breeding stock, employment of sound management techniques, advances in disease control and greater use of scientifically balanced feeds. Such is the conclusion reached by poultry nutritionists and other authorities, who point out that this new record was accomplished despite many war-imposed shortages that necessitated constant changing of formulas to maintain feeds in proper nutritional balance.

Weather Science to Tame

Destructive Ice and Hail

There is a very good possibility that destructive hailstorms may be eliminated in the future, and serious ice storms may be "tamed" in winter, according to snow-and-rain-making scientists, National Patent Council reports.

By introducing large quantities of ice nuclei at and above the freezing level in high cumulus clouds, hail particles would be unable to grow to any considerable size, according to Vincent J. Schaefer, consultant to "Project Cirrus," a weather research program being conducted by the army signal corps and office of naval research.

There is evidence that the serious ice storms of last winter resulting from formation of rain in supercooled clouds, according to Schaefer. Under such conditions, it should have been possible to convert all this rain to snow. It is unlikely that the inconvenience and traffic trouble produced by an increase in snowfall would be as great as that caused by icy streets, broken power, light and telephone wires, and the breakage of shade and fruit trees.

Not all ice storms can be related to supercooled clouds, in Schaefer's opinion, but last winter's storms point out the importance of know-

Rich Gold and Ore Veins

Discovered in Australia

Two rich gold strikes and the discovery of scheelite deposits are reported from Perth, Western Australia. Selected ore taken from a claim at Parker's Range yielded 65 ounces 17 pennyweights of gold from three hundredweights of stone. A total of 300 ounces has been taken from this reef.

The second strike is reported in the Kalgoolie district on property adjoining the new Kalgoolie gold mines in which capital was over-subscribed in a few minutes when made available for public subscription. A large body of stone 38 feet wide to a ton at a depth of 54 feet was uncovered.

At Kalgoolie, hub of the Australian gold mining industry, a seam of scheelite has been found a mile and a half away from the famous "Golden Mile." It is the first discovery of this mineral in that area. The scheelite was found in a deposit of quartz. Specimens from the seam subjected to tests disclosed scheelite in fairly large quantities.

Entire Village Sold

The English village of Castle Combe, recently sold at auction, grew almost literally out of nearby stone quarries, says National Geographic society. Its old gabled stone houses with their mullioned windows are even roofed with stone. From birth this Wiltshire village had belonged to the lord of the manor, the best known of whom was Sir John Pasto in the 15th century, caricatured in Shakespeare's Falstaff. He had married the widow of Sir Stephen Scrope, whose family had owned the estate for 500 years. Castle Combe's once flourishing textile mills are gone and its population is greatly reduced. It owed its industrial prosperity largely to power from the river flowing swiftly through the richly-wooded valley. This was once a thriving market town, where Wiltshire farmers sold their produce at the market cross in the village square. The upper story of the market house was used as a sort of guild hall.

Form Hospital Districts

Hospital districts similar to school districts are being established in California in counties of less than 200,000 population. The districts need not stay within county lines but may include areas contiguous to centers selected for the building of hospitals to be included in the general county tax rate at not more than 20 cents per 100 dollars assessed valuation. Already 17 such districts have been started. Some are planning to issue bonds for hospital construction to be serviced out of hospital revenues or taxes should subsidies be necessary. The statewide hospital survey being conducted by the California department of health is cooperating in an advisory capacity when requested and it is expected that many rural communities will be able to bring hospital facilities in line with their needs under this program.

Horsepower Increases

Total horsepower available in the nation's factories has climbed from about 50,452,000 in 1939 to a present high of 68,000,000, reports SKF industries. Scores of mechanized servants such as lift trucks, cranes and hoists that reduce handling of materials to a minimum have had hard physical labor irrevocably obsolete in industry. The handling of materials now accounts for only about 15 per cent of the industry's production costs, as compared with 22 per cent a decade ago.

Car Demand Heaviest

Although three out of every five families in Detroit already own automobiles, nearly half of the families in that city are planning to buy an automobile in the near future, according to a recent Detroit News survey. The survey, based on interviews with 13,000 persons representing various income groups, showed that the 50 per cent demand for automobiles in that city compares with a 28.2 per cent demand for radios, 22.3 per cent demand for refrigerators and 13.9 per cent demand for ranges.

Apples Contain Many

Important Food Elements

The main nutritive value of the apple consists in its content of soluble solids, mainly sugar, to the extent of about 13 to 16 per cent, according to C. R. Fellers, Massachusetts State college. Ripe apples contain little or no starch. The acid of the apple is malic, an easily digestible organic acid which leaves no acid residue in the body. Apples may be freely eaten without fear of "acidosis." Apples are particularly rich in pectin content as evidenced by the ease with which apple jelly is made. This pectin contains from 5 to 16 per cent of uronic acid, a substance concerned with mucine formation in the body's mucus membranes. Pectin has been reported beneficial in many ways such as in intestinal ailments and in absorption of toxic substances from the intestine. During the war, pectin preparations were used extensively in surgery to promote healing. Apples contain small but useful quantities of minerals such as iron, phosphorus, sodium, potassium, magnesium and iodine. Thus, apples provide considerable nutritive value in addition to their aesthetic and appetizing appeal.

Alaska's School System

Alaska is the only area governed by the United States that has two public school systems—one by the federal government and the other by the territory. The federal government provides schools for the natives and the territorial government makes provisions for the white population. The natives and the whites are about evenly divided in numbers. There is no prohibition against natives attending territorial schools, and vice versa. With few exceptions, however, attendance is practiced within the purpose of the two systems. Schools supported by the federal government confine their work to grades, usually from the first to the eighth. Territorial schools include both grade and secondary classes. Natives desiring an education more advanced than the eighth grade may transfer to a territorial high school.

Developed Early Glass

In 1607, eight Polish and German glass blowers, members of Capt. John Smith's first expedition to colonize the new world, landed on the James river at what later was to be the site of Jamestown, Va., according to a study of glass history by Libbey. They constructed a crude glass furnace in the nearby woods to make beads for trading with the Indians and their descendants. Became the first industrial enterprise on American soil. Because glass-making always had been in the hands of a small group of craftsmen who were masters of a difficult art, manufacturing processes changed little until 1900, when America developed processes that revolutionized the industry.

Airplane Defroster

An obsolete twin-engine bomber purchased from the Australian war disposals commission is doing duty as a "defroster" on a South Australian orchard. The orchardist mounted the fuselage and motors on a turntable and removed most of the wing sections. He set the rudders so that the plane revolves slowly. When frost threatens, he runs the engines on a crude mixture of gasoline and kerosene. The air stream protects an area about 30 yards in radius.

Farm Wages Rising

Farm labor wages showed an upward trend as 1947 ended, low emergency farm labor summary figures indicate. Daily wages, without board, averaged $7 at the end of the year, a rise of $1 over October. Orders for dependable year-round workers, either married or single, are getting harder to fill, despite the better wages. Good paying city jobs and the desire of young men to farm for themselves are blamed for the growing scarcity in farm labor.

It takes ingenuity to create a room like this. Decorator Jill Ricardo designed this game room to take rough treatment and hard wear, and still keep the crisp, efficient atmosphere. The walls have been painted a bright red for the gray touch; the floor is mottled black, inlaid linoleum, and the draw curtains are made from white sheeting. The bold plaid of the valance, chair covers, and wall seat, is red, white and turquoise blue. The window shades have been painted to match the plaid so exactly that when the shades are lowered to the sill the full wall has the effect of being painted plaid. And a bright red-card table cover adds the final dash of high color.

PERSONAL TOUCH

Invitations are all out for little Alice Marilyn Clinton's sixth birthday party to be held on Saturday, Feb. 21, but in the meantime—the child became so thrilled and excited over the thoughts of her big cake with pretty candles and all of her little guests who would share her ice cream—that she worked up a good case of chicken pox.

Alice has been shedding tears since Tuesday morning when she learned that she could not have her birthday celebration on Saturday. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Jinton of 725 S.E. 26th court have been trying to do everything within their power, to console her—until Alice recovers about two weeks from now and can welcome her guests. Then they will give her a delayed birthday party.

Mrs. William Burns of 3319 Ascension street always welcomes Friday the Thirteenth because he loves the day and passed she will have some kind of good luck. Last Friday after a heavy snow had fallen she looked out of a window and saw little children in the neighborhood cleaning the snow from sidewalks in front of her home and the walks of other neighbors. She was quite happy and knew that "this was it—her piece of good luck that might not have happened if it hadn't been Friday the Thirteenth."

Even Mr. Burns was pleasantly surprised when he discovered he did not have to shovel any snow. "What do you know? Somebody cleaned our walks!" he commented when he came home from work.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns are praising the good deeds of their young neighbors. This day and age it is difficult to hire anyone to shovel snow from the sidewalks.

Send a self-addressed stamped envelope and it will be sent to you promptly by return mail.

George Robinson, Jr., 909 17th street, was quite disappointed this week because he had no hobby to put on exhibit Sunday in the Wilkie House's annual hobby show.

Robinson's hobby is contests—and entering more contests. He is always searching for one to enter and at the moment has entries in a half-dozen or more.

He was almost certain that during the week when the daily paper's "Match The Twins" contest ended he would have a prize and a pile of letters to exhibit—as evidences of his main hobby. But, his name wasn't listed as a prize-winner—so he will have to wait for some of his other contests to end.

At the moment, Robinson is waiting to hear that he has won a prize in the Tom-Mix contest, the Chiffon competition and bus company, Pepsi-Cola and others.

The biggest contest around town is the weekly bank-nite drawing for awards which vary from $500 to over $1,000 every Tuesday at Tri-States Theaters.

Lucky winner last week was Mrs. William Neal of 1067 Eleventh street who received a $1,000 award.

"It's like a dream and I still can't realize that I won the money," Mrs. Neal has been telling friends all the week. "She is certain of one thing and that is that the money is in safe keeping at a bank—until she comes down to earth" and decides how to spend it.

Since the beginning of bank night drawings, ten years ago, Mrs. Neal has signed up every week. She estimated that she has spent not quite a hundred dollars in that time. The prices at the show where she signs up weekly have risen from sixteen cents to thirty cents but she would spend that much each week to go to a show anyway, so she still hasn't lost. "That's pretty good interest," she commented.

Miss Vesper Price, one of the teachers at Logan school on the east side of town, phoned the office this week to congratulate the paper on the publishing of the new feature for parents—Understanding Town Children.

Miss Price said many of the articles have contained the same information that the teachers of preschool students have been trying to get over to the parents.

"When the parents have an opportunity to read them—when they will know that the teachers are not just talking because they are getting paid," she commented.

Mrs. L.J.—Should I go back to Chicago with my husband and leave the baby here with mother or let him find us a place first? Ans: Keep after him to find a place for both of you. It shouldn't be too hard. Give him a little more time. It would cost you an extra hundred dollars to come back after the baby once you were in Chicago.

I.G.—What should I do about my friend "E"? He married a girl and tells me that he was drunk when they married. He wants me to give him a few weeks to get straight. What must I do? Ans: Jack him up good and proper if he comes hanging around you. Regardless of whether he was drunk or sober—HE IS MARRIED NOW. Have nothing more to do with him. He means you absolutely no good.

J.E.J.—I am looking for a job for my husband and myself. He is 26 and was in the Army for 3 1/2 years. He has had five years experience working on a jack hammer and air compressor. I am an experienced nurse's aid. I worked in a mental hospital for two years. Ans: The best jobs in the line of work you and your husband follow are to be found in the big cities. Follow these suggestions: a. Both of you make application at the U. S. Employment Agency. b. Inform all of your friends that you would like them to keep you posted on any jobs they hear of. c. Contact the places you have both worked for in the past either by mail or in person. d. Watch the help wanted columns of the paper. e. If you can afford it, run a little ad under "Situations Wanted". f. Make a change of cities if necessary. You will have no trouble finding work.

A.L.S.—I have a boy friend I would like to date. He said he has the money but he has a wife and so many children. I want the power over him to get the money to buy me an acre of land. Ans: You have a good cause—wanting to buy a plot of land for yourself—but you're going about it in the wrong way. You haven't got anything that's worth an acre of land to the man in question. Don't you think an acre of land is a stiff fee considering your age? I am afraid you'll have to settle for a "lot" less.

G.B.—I have been corresponding with a man for three years. During this time we have come to love each other very much. I am a single woman and he is a married man. He is also pastor of four churches. One of his churches is here where I live. People got to talking so that rather than dissolve our friendship I have this church up. People are all blaming me for it now. Ans: If you are in earnest about clearing your conscience and facing your friends and other members of the church then you must discontinue this friendship. You can't expect to gain anything from this affair. The man already has a wife and home responsibilities. He surely can't offer you any love or security. His allegiance is first of all to his wife and his churches.

D.F.—My friend and I have been going steady for a year. He is really nice to me, gives me money and other nice gifts and wants to marry me. But these things don't satisfy me. I want love. He doesn't go in for kissing and playing around. Ans: You know why don't you? He is too old. Your generous lover did his love making and playing around before you were born. All he can offer you now is money and presents. What you need is a young "Tom"—with vim, vigor and vitality.

GO TO KANSAS. Mrs. George Brown and daughter, Mrs. Helen Carter, left last week for Hiawatha, Kas., to bury Mrs. Brown's sister.

EDITORIALS - FEATURES - SPORTS

THIS NEWSPAPER, IOWA'S OLDEST NEGRO WEEKLY, IS AN INSTITUTION DEVELOPED FOR AND BY THE PEOPLE OF IOWA AND THE MIDDLEWEST TO PRESENT THE NEWS OF THE DAY, FOSTER BETTER RACE RELATIONS, LEAD PUBLIC OPINION AND TO CONTEND FOR THE CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS OF ALL THE PEOPLE AT ALL TIMES.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN MAKES BOLD STROKE

Unquestionably, President Truman delivered a master stroke when he sent his civil rights message to Congress. No other president—not even President Franklin D. Roosevelt—had the courage to send to Congress a program which dealt with a subject about which there is such disagreement even in both parties.

In years gone by, Negroes have looked to the Republican party as the best hope in securing their political and economic rights. And by and large, up to the last sixteen years, that has been about the only place to go except in large northern cities where Negroes have fared pretty well in Democratic politics.

At present, the Senate is pretty evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans and if any of these measures come to a vote, they would pass. On the other hand, the demagogues, most of whom are Southern Democrats, are able to block a vote because it is necessary to get a two-thirds majority to invoke the cloture rule to cut off debate.

NEW JERSEY GOVERNOR POINTS THE WAY

Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey deserves the praise of every far-sighted citizen in America for standing by the laws of his state forbidding segregation in its national guard units in spite of the serious objection raised by the war department.

It has been difficult to get Negroes in national guard units in individual states. In Iowa, Negroes have tried to enlist in national guard units and in spite of the apparent fair-minded head of the Iowa forces, somebody has been able to block any successful effort to get in.

shall be approved by the federal government.

Governor Driscoll has shown the weak-kneed slick public officials, particularly governors, how to protect their citizens if they have the courage to do so.

FIRST TIME FOR NEGROES TO BE ON OFFICIAL TOUR

See Front Page of his family to engage in newspaper work. Young was given a scholarship award and gold key in 1929 while at Ohio State university, by Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity. He was the first of his race so honored.

Coles, in addition to being the publisher and editor of the Ohio State News, one of the leading weeklies of the middle west, is vice president of the Negro Newspaper Publishers Association and an influential leader in Columbus.

Coles' accreditation was requested of the White House by Thomas W. Young, president of the association and of the Journal and Guide.

The Ohioan has engaged in newspaper work since his graduation from Ohio State in the early 30's.

Honor Washington

See Front Page of leading colleges and other outstanding leaders: the filming of mottos that set forth the philosophy of Booker T. Washington which are artistically set forth on the walls of the building which houses the post office; the mailing of the thousands of historic envelopes bearing upon Booker Washington Birthplace, Virginia, which an interested public had ordered, together with the large force of workers necessary to handle the routine; and the lighting of a torch on the spot where Booker T. Washington was born by a representative of the Negro youth of Virginia.

Work of Memorial The President, S. J. Phillips, 19th of the work of the Memorial and Rev. T. J. Jamison brought congratulations from and reiterated the pledge of the 4,500,000 members of the National Baptist Convention to stand solidly behind the program.

The Franklin County Courthouse, beautifully decorated in patriotic colors, was the scene of two of the three large programs held. The colorful attire and excellent performance of the Addison and Carver High School bands that had come from Roanoke and Salem, Virginia, to participate made the great crowds of white and colored citizens of the county forget the snow that was piled high under their feet as they stood before the courthouse or bared their heads at the spot where Booker T. Washington was born.

Highlights of the programs included addresses by outstanding ministers, educators, and leaders; scenes from the life of Booker T. Washington, starring Mrs. M. H. Watson, Jeanes supervisor, as the mother of Booker; an industrial demonstration by the Franklin County Training school and citizens of Franklin County; singing by Walter Mason Roper and Otis D. Wright, nationally known radio-artists; a "Thank You" by Mrs. Portia Washington Pittman, and the reading of messages from the President and Governors.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Tuberculosis—The Sanatorium

The doctor has told you that you have tuberculosis. Your greatest desire right now is to cure the disease. You want to get back to work, to normal living with your family and friends as soon as possible.

You won't get well without complete rest, plenty of the right food and constant medical supervision. The best place for you to get them is in a modern, well-equipped sanatorium or tuberculosis hospital. Curing tuberculosis is a full-time job. Once you have TB, it works against you 24 hours a day. An enemy like that rules out half-measures and half-cures. It demands the best professional care. It will thrive on amateur attempts and "home remedies."

The sanatorium is planned, built and operated for you and for people like you. There you will get the best possible treatment under the best possible circumstances. It will be much easier for you there to be faithful to your program of complete rest. Your body needs the well-balanced meals that are scientifically planned in the sanatorium to build it up for its fight against the disease.

You are carefully protected at the sanatorium from other illnesses to weaken your defense against the disease. You are away from too frequent visits of friends and relatives who might excite and upset you.

Mental relaxation is just as important as physical care in fighting tuberculosis. At the sanatorium, you can dismiss the worry that you might be spreading your tuberculosis germs to your family, friends and co-workers. You are taught how to protect yourself and others. You are away from the responsibilities and activities of home life. Your new "community" is made up of people receiving the same treatment and following the same path back to health as you are.

You are educated at the sanatorium in a way that will help preserve your health after you leave there. You will find out how to live in the future so that your tuberculosis may never become active again. At the sanatorium you will be helped to get a job that will be suited to your state of health, if you do not care to return to your former work.

rapidly in the South. He pointed out, however, that northern institutions must be depended upon for training of specialists and that the tendency was for men to settle down close to where they received their special training.

If a central veterans hospital is established at Meharry, Dr. Brown stated, other feeder hospitals and convalescent units for veterans could be established elsewhere and additional men could be trained. He said such a center will afford possibly as many as ten qualified men a year—qualified in the specialties and available for veterans' service.

(See Front Page.) This broadcast will be John Garfield, noted screen and stage actor. Spokesman for the Negro Newspaper Publishers Association will be Thomas W. Young, president of the association and also of the Norfolk Journal and Guide.

The ABC program will feature a dramatization of highlights in the news as it has affected the Negro during the past year. The details of the CBS program will be announced at an early date. Mr. Davis said colleges and high schools throughout the nation have made plans for special observance of the week of March 7-13. Mr. Davis disclosed that many of them have planned special convocations and class projects. Communities are also joining in this tribute to the Negro press in the form of programs, church services, and so forth. Mr. Davis said.

HE WOULDN'T TALK

He was a bright little fellow, twenty-six months old. But he wouldn't talk and his parents were worried.

There were several reasons for his silence. He had two fond sisters and two parents who were right on the job. The minute he pointed he got it. He did not need to say a word.

This same fond family continually urged and persuaded him to say this and that. When one of the four was not annoying him another was.

When by chance one day he said "Go" the children ran shouting to tell mother. Mother told father and they all worked on him to get him to say it again. He was bewildered into silence.

Finally the sisters became interested in other things and his parents decided to let him alone. Then he talked. All at once he gave out a line of jabbering which gradually formed into words. At four he talks as a four-year-old should.

The moral of this story? Talk to small children as much as you like. Be warm and friendly. But do not insist that they talk in return. They are listening and learning. They will talk when their nerve centers reach the proper stage of development.

Slow talking up to three years does not always mean slow mental development. If the parent feels worried, it is better to consult a specialist than to put pressure on the child.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN MAKES BOLD STROKE

Unquestionably, President Truman delivered a master stroke when he sent his civil rights message to Congress. No other president—not even President Franklin D. Roosevelt—had the courage to send to Congress a program which dealt with a subject about which there is such disagreement even in both parties.

In years gone by, Negroes have looked to the Republican party as the best hope in securing their political and economic rights. And by and large, up to the last sixteen years, that has been about the only place to go except in large northern cities where Negroes have fared pretty well in Democratic politics. But the administration of Franklin Roosevelt changed that picture considerably; Negroes in thickly populated communities were needed to help elect Democrats to office. Consequently, the northern Democrat has made as strong a bid for the Negro vote as the Republicans.

Most of the measures set out in Mr. Truman's message have been before Congress some for more than twenty-five years. They have passed the House of Representatives but none has run the gauntlet of the Senate. Southern Democrats, aided by a few mossback Republicans masquerading under the cloak of free and unlimited debate, have refused to let any of these measures come to a vote by use of the filibuster.

At present, the Senate is pretty evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans and if any of these measures came to a vote, they would pass. On the other hand, the demagogues, most of whom are Southern Democrats, are able to block a vote because it is necessary to get a two-thirds majority to invoke the cloture rule to cut off debate. And this is why no measure mentioned in Mr. Truman's message has become a law.

Mr. Truman knows this. He knows that he can antagonize the Democratic South and still get their vote. The so-called dubious friends of the Republican side know this. Both find refuge in the cloture rule. Both use it in their campaign to garner the Negro vote knowing that little can be done in the long run toward delivering their commitments.

The Negro knows these tricks by long experience. He knows that now is the time to strike for a better deal for all minority groups and that in order for politicians to get elected they must make good on their promises. They have long discarded the party label simply because of past performances. They insist on seeing something done now.

Undoubtedly, Mr. Truman never expressed such fine sentiment toward minority groups before he became president, neither did Henry Wallace nor even the late Franklin Roosevelt before he became president. But they changed after they went to Washington. And while talk alone will not get the things we want done, it generally precedes action. Thus Mr. Truman's message was helpful if only to spur Republicans to do more and to encourage those who are working to better, implement the United States constitution.

Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey deserves the praise of every fair-minded citizen in America for standing by the laws of his state founding segregation in its national guard units in spite of the serious objection raised by the war department.

If it has been difficult to get Negroes in national guard units in individual states.

Here in Iowa, Negroes have tried to enter in national guard units and in spite of the apparent fair-minded head of the Iowa forces, somebody has been able to block any successful effort to get in.

Undoubtedly, New Jersey has had the same experience, so its legislature passed a law forbidding segregation in their national guard set-up.

Secretary of the Army Royal certainly found his department on a hot griddle judging from the reply approving the set-up.

There are states which pass rotten laws, do about what they please and get away with it, the federal government to the contrary notwithstanding. So it is refreshing to find the head of a state government stand up and insist that a law passed by its legislature, not in conflict with the theory of democracy, shall be approved by the federal government.

Governor Driscoll has shown the weak-kneed slick public officials, particularly governors, how to protect their citizens if they have the courage to do so.

See Front Page of leading colleges and other outstanding leaders: the filming of mottoes that set forth the philosophy of Booker T. Washington which are artistically set forth on the walls of the building which houses the post office; the mailing of the thousands of historic envelopes bearing upon Booker Washington Birthplace, Virginia, which an interested public had ordered, together with the large force of workers necessary to handle the routine; and the lighting of a torch on the spot where Booker T. Washington was born by a representative of the Negro youth of Virginia.

Work of Memorial The President, S. J. Phillips, told of the work of the Memorial and Rev. T. J. Jemison brought congratulations from and reiterated the pledge of the 4,500,000 members of the National Baptist Convention to stand solidly behind the program.

The Franklin County Courthouse, beautifully decorated in patriotic colors, was the scene of two of the three large programs held. The colorful attire and excellent performance of the Addison and Carver High School bands that had come from Roanoke and Salem, Virginia, to participate made the great crowds of white and colored citizens of the county forget the snow that was piled high under their feet as they stood before the courthouse or bowed their heads at the spot where Booker T. Washington was born.

Highlights of the programs included addresses by outstanding ministers, educators, and leaders, essences from the life of Booker T. Washington, starring Mrs. M. H. Watson, Jeanes supervisor, as the mother of Booker, an industrial demonstration by the Franklin County Training school and citizens of Franklin County; singing by Walter Mason Roper and Otis D. Wright, nationally known radio artists; a "Thank You" by Mrs. Portia Washington Pittman, and the reading of messages from the President and Governors.

URGENT VETERANS HOSPITAL AT MEHARRY

See Front Page el," he stated. One reason of his knowledge of the situation is the fact that Meharry is conducting surgical services at a private hospital at Mound Bayou as part of its medical program because the community has been unable to secure adequate personnel by any other device, he testified.

Other Difficulties The other difficulty that has been encountered which leads us to believe there is going to be trouble in getting people for those jobs is the fact that the Veterans hospital at Tuskegee has already made some inroads in its attempts to get out teaching personnel with results, from the purely educational standpoint, that have not been good in that training programs have been disrupted. Dr. Brown said.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Tuberculosis—The Sanatorium

The doctor has told you that you have tuberculosis. Your greatest desire right now is to cure the disease. You want to get back to work, to normal living with your family and friends as soon as possible.

You won't get well without complete rest, plenty of the right food and constant medical supervision. The best place for you to get them is in a modern, well-equipped sanatorium or tuberculosis hospital. Curing tuberculosis is a full-time job. Once you have TB, it works against you 24 hours a day. An enemy like that rules out half-measures and half-cures. It demands the best professional care. It will thrive on amateur attempts and "home remedies."

The sanatorium is planned, built and operated for you and for people like you. There you will get the best possible treatment under the best possible circumstances. It will be much easier for you there to be faithful to your program of complete rest. Your body needs the well-balanced meals that are scientifically planned in the sanatorium to build it up for its fight against the disease.

You are carefully protected at the sanatorium from other illnesses to weaken your defense against the disease. You are away from too frequent visits of friends and relatives who might excite and upset you.

Mental relaxation is just as important as physical care in fighting tuberculosis. At the sanatorium, you can dismiss the worry that you might be spreading your tubercu-

Of eyes flung upward to a star. Hung upon a trestle's bar. Spun and lost in dull rowers. A rise—a fall—a cup to fill. Unsolved, the bards are singing still. —Vera R. Douglas

HE WOULDN'T TALK

He was a bright little fellow, twenty-six months old. But he wouldn't talk and his parents were worried.

There were several reasons for his silence. He had two fond sisters and two parents who were right on the job. The minute he pointed he got it. He did not need to say a word.

This same fond family continually urged and persuaded him to say this and that. When one of the four was not annoying him another was.

When by chance one day he said "Go" the children ran shouting to tell mother. Mother told father and they all worked on him to get him to say it again. He was bewildered into silence.

Finally the sisters became interested in other things and his parents decided to let him alone. Then he talked. All at once he gave out a line of jabbering which gradually formed into words. At four he talks as a four-year-old should.

The moral of this story? Talk to small children as much as you like. Be warm and friendly. But do not insist that they talk in return. They are listening and learning. They will talk when their nerve centers reach the proper stage of development.

Slow talking up to three years does not always mean slow mental development. If the parent feels worried, it is better to consult a specialist than to put pressure on the child.
