Harvard University Names Dr. Bunche as First Negro To Hold Professorship

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard university Wednesday announced the appointment of Dr. Ralph Bunche, United Nations official and Nobel peace prize winner, as professor of government.

DR. RALPH J. BUNCHE

Bunche, the UN's mediator during the Palestine war, now is senior director of the UN trusteeship council. The grandson of a slave, he is the first Negro to hold a Harvard college professorship.

University Provost Paul H. Buck said Dr. Bunche's professorship "was voted by the corporation on Jan. 16, 1950, and by the board of overseers on Apr. 10, 1950. At that time Dr. Bunche accepted the appointment but received leave of absence because of his present commitments in connection with United Nations affairs." Bunche refused appointment as an assistant secretary in the state department two years ago and attributed his refusal to racial segregation in Washington.

It was while he was working in the state department in 1946 that he was loaned to the United Nations. As mediator in the war between the Arabs and Israelites, he brought the warring factions together in an agreement to end hostilities.

He was awarded the Nobel peace prize this year for that achievement.

Crisis Story Describes Integrated Bases in Texas

New York.—"The United States Air Force," writes Donald Jones in his illustrated article, "No Jim Crow at Randolph," in the November issue of The Crisis, "plainly has its mind of building a fighting machine and can't seem to discern if the cogs and bolts are black or white."

Describing the complete integration of white and Negro personnel which he observed at Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas, the southwest regional secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reports that no racial distinctions exist in assignments, promotions, quarters, mess, sports, or recreation facilities.

Mr. Jones, visiting the base unannounced lest his appraisal be handicapped with the suspicion that he would be witnessing a "dress parade," was conducted on a tour of the base by a public information officer, following his interview with the commanding officer, Col. J. G. Fowler. Mr. Jones saw and talked with Negro and white personnel working side by side, heard Negro cadets describe democratic conditions at the base, and watched Negro and white men and women enjoying a swim in the pool in an "atmosphere . . . of easy camaraderie, (with) not the slightest consciousness of race or color."

Also featured in the November issue of the NAACP's official organ are "An Interview With Native Son," an article by Jeanine Delpech featuring Richard Wright's comments on the screen version of his famous novel; "Facts About Regional Education," by John E. Ivey, Jr., director of the Board of Control for Southern Regional Education; and "From the Newspaper Rack," a series of items "along the color line overseas."

Sets Goal of 2,500,000 Negro Voters in South

Anniston, Ala.—A campaign to attain a Negro voting strength of 2,500,000 in the South by 1952 was announced by Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in an address here Oct. 29 before the fifth annual session of the Alabama State Conference of NAACP branches.

"As a result of the 30-year fight by the NAACP there are more than a million Negro voters in the South today," Mr. White said. "By 1952 we are determined through the efforts of the NAACP and other organizations to raise that number to 2,500,000. This powerful bloc, joined with the balance of power which the Negro vote holds in 17 northern and border states, is the chattel of neither political party.

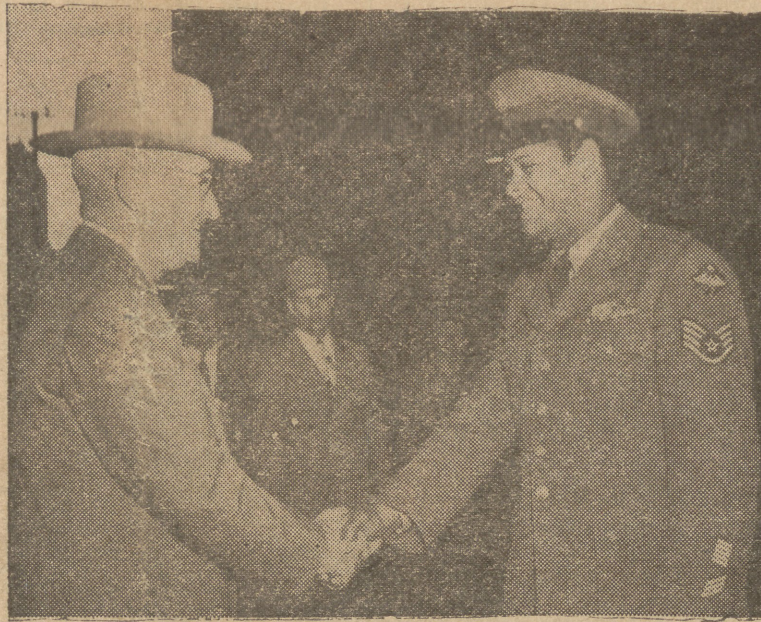

It is an independent vote which increasingly is cast for good government against corrupt political oligarchies. One of the by-products of this new political strength will be the lessening of appeals to race complaints of feeling sick and having a sore throat, and appears weak and lethargic, should be put to bed and the doctor called at once. These symptoms may mean diphtheria and, if the disease has taken hold, the doctor can give the child antitoxin in sufficient amount to check the disease and may save the child's life. Delay in the diagnosis and treatment of diphtheria is dangerous and frequently fatal.

It is important for the diphtheria patient to stay in bed for as long as the doctor thinks advisable. All infectious disease may endanger a child's heart, but special precaution must be taken against heart involvement with the diphtheria victim.

President Chats with Veteran in St. Louis

Enroute to meet General MacArthur in the Pacific recently, President Truman chatted with Staff Sgt. Edward Williams, a veteran of nine years in the U. S. Air Force. The encounter occurred as the President broke his trip in St. Louis, Mo., and took a morning walk.

Washington, D. C.—President Truman will be honored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews for his "outstanding work in the campaign against bigotry," Eric Johnston said Tuesday.

Johnston, national chairman of the conference, said Mr. Truman will receive a special medal Nov. 11.

Detroit Restaurants Under Fire for Discriminations; NAACP Takes Legal Steps

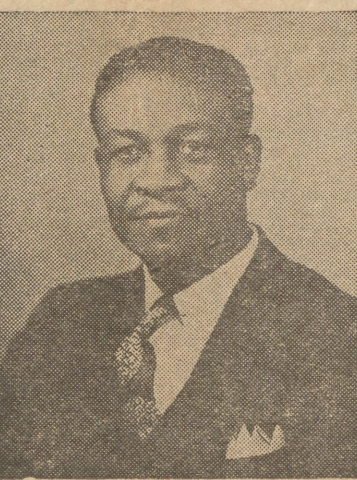

Detroit, Mich.—Restaurant discrimination in Detroit became an enlarged target last week when four cases faced legal action by the local NAACP. Last week a cafe chef was found guilty of civil rights violation.

Under fire are the Four Aces Cafe, 11404 E. Warren; Transportation Sandwich Shop, Transportation Building; Verdi Bar, Hoffman Building; Smith's Bar-Be-Cue, Woodward at Rosedale.

Last Wednesday Recorder's Judge Joseph A. Gillis fined Mitchell Kolesar, chef of LaSalle Restaurant, 4209 Woodward, $50 including cost of court for failure to serve David N. Lloyd, Brooklyn, N. Y., a Negro.

Meanwhile, the Prosecuting Attorney's office withheld issuing warrants against the Four Aces Safe last Wednesday, and the Transportation Sandwich Shop and Verdi Bar on Tuesday, because the owners promised to discontinue their discriminatory policies. They were given three weeks to do this.

Liberian Ambassador Says Freedom 'Is Natural and Divine Aspiration of All'

Lake Success, N. Y.—(ANP)—"The time has now arrived when the dates must be fixed by the UN for the granting of self-government and independence to those peoples of Africa and elsewhere who are, in its opinion, prepared and capable of governing themselves," said the Hon. C. D. B. King, Liberian ambassador to the United States.

The ambassador was addressing delegates at the opening of the fifth session of the UN general assembly here recently. He is also chairman of the Liberian UN delegation.

"Governments of Europe, having colonial possessions in Africa, should have no serious objections to such a procedure," he added.

He pointed out that freedom is "the natural and divine aspiration of every individual and of all peoples, irrespective of race—and for its achievement and realization, no sacrifice is considered too great."

At Crossroads
"In bringing about the realization of this . . . Africa and Africans must be brought into the picture. The continent of Africa stands at the crossroads of Europe and Asia. She gave asylum to the Blessed Christ when His earthly parents were fleeing from the rule of Rome. One of her sons voluntarily relieved Him for a time, of the cross when He was struggling up Mount Cavalry under the lash . . . They are now giving

TUSKEGEE HEAD TO ATTEND FIRST INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF UNIVERSITIES TO BE HELD IN NICE

Tuskegee, Ala.—Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, and founder and president of the United Negro College Fund, which aids 32 private Negro colleges and universities in the United States, sailed October 31, on the Queen Mary, to attend the First International Conference of Universities, to be held in Nice, December 4-10.

prejudice in political campaigns and diminution of the number of demagogues who have made the South and American democracy ridiculous."

Denounces Fight
Mr. White denounced "the determined, fanatical and unscrupulous fight now being waged by the reactionary anti-Negro wing of the Democratic party in the South," as the "greatest single aid to communism and the greatest single threat to democracy in contemporary history."

These forces, he predicted, will not succeed because of "the growing number of enlightened southerners, white and Negro . . . who have shown themselves infinitely more courageous than the Talmadges and Rankins. Intelligent southerners are getting sick and tired of being made the laughing stock by their demagogic politicians."

U.S. Asked to Bar Entry To South African Racists To Avoid Harm to Country

New York.—The United States Department of Justice was today urged to invoke the Internal Security Act of 1950 to bar entry to this country of past and present members of the totalitarian and anti-Negro Nationalist party of the Union of South Africa.

In a wire to J. Howard McGrath, U. S. Attorney-General, Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, asked the Justice Department "to add the Nationalist party of the Union of South Africa to the list of totalitarian parties whose members have already been barred under terms of the Internal Security Act."

The South African political party, Mr. White charged, "advocates and practices the racist doctrines of the Nazis and proposes the establishment of a totalitarian regime" in that country. Admission of members of this party "could do incalculable harm to America," the NAACP executive said.

Retired After 41 Years of Employment At Meredith Publishing Company

Roy A. Todd, 1051 Seventeenth street, who was employed in the mailing department of the Meredith Publishing company for forty-one years, is now taking life easy, devoting his time to fishing, hunting and golf.

Mr. Todd began his retirement at the age of 65, last month, when the company gave him a party in the Meredith Lounge.

ROY A. TODD

Just 175 employees attended the party, in keeping with the number of employees at the plant on Oct. 1, 1909, when Mr. Todd went to work on an extra job, as a mailer, which he kept the 41 years.

Retirement gifts from the company included: shotgun and shells, fishing rods, reels and lines; a $2,000 paid-up insurance policy; a life-time meal ticket, good only at the Meredith company's eating place; a make-up kit, with the names and addresses of the 1,300 employees of the company's main and branch offices, held a pocket with 41 new dollar bills; a large birthday cake and a mammoth bouquet of flowers.

"I looked forward to retirement for a very long time," Mr. Todd commented as he outlined his days of rest.

"I thought for a while that I was going to miss getting up early every morning and going out to work—but I don't. I have plenty to do. I piddle around the house. I've made a workshop in my basement, tinkering with wood and metal. I make split bamboo fishing rods," he talked.

"I don't intend to do myself down to anything special," he continued, adding that he was going to raise tea roses and work as the spirit moved him.

Mr. Todd confessed that, even though he is an "outdoor man," he has taken over the duties of washing the daily dishes around his home and added that "in all of my life I just never washed dishes."

Discovery of the oldest corn ever found in Illinois has been announced by Prof. John C. McGregor, University of Illinois archeologist.

The handful of kernels is more than 800 years old. They were found in the trash heap of an ancient Hopewell Indian village site, mixed with broken pottery, stone spear points and knives, and other items definitely dating the find.

The site is on the Harry Ansell farm at the junction of Illinois highways 96 and 108 in northwest Calhoun county, not far from the village of Mozier, and between the Illinois and Mississippi rivers about 60 miles north of St. Louis.

The kernels, blackened by fire and time, are about the size of present-day pop corn or sweet corn, and considerably smaller than modern field corn.

Samples were turned over to Prof. W. L. Burlison, head of the agronomy department of the University's college of agriculture, for further study.

This is probably the earliest find of corn in the midwest, says Professor McGregor. It is far earlier than that previously unearthed at camp sites of the Illinois tribe of Indians, who were here when the first white explorers came and gave their name to the state.

Where this new-found corn dates in relation to that found at prehistoric Indian village site in the American southwest, the professor could not state. However, it is of the same general type as that found

South States Reduce Death Rate One-Eighth

Conspicuous success in reducing the toll of preventable disease and premature death in the southern states during the past decade is reported by statisticians. The death rate for these states as a group has been reduced by one eighth, from 10.4 per 1,000 in 1938 to 9.1 in 1948.

Outstanding has been the 10 year decline of 42 per cent in infant mortality, and of 74 per cent in maternal mortality among white women and 59 per cent among the colored.

"Closely related to the fall in infant and maternal mortality has been a marked increase in the hospitalization of births," the statisticians point out.

"In almost all of the southern states the proportion of hospitalized births at least doubled from 1938 to 1948. In West Virginia, Kentucky, and Mississippi the proportion was tripled, and in Arkansas it was more than quadrupled."

Malaria, long a health problem, has fallen off from 135,000 reported cases in 1935 to only 4,000 in 1949. Similarly, during this 15 year period, the number of cases of pellagra reported annually has decreased from many thousands to only a few hundred.

"With the increasing attention being 'focused upon medical and public health problems, the Southern states will undoubtedly continue to make rapid advances toward their solution'" the statisticians predict.

Puzzling Question Answered

If water seeks its own level, how can the surface of the ocean be curved? A level surface is one that is horizontal, so it is at right angles to a line toward the center of the earth. Over a small area, a level surface is practically flat, but if it is extended far enough it follows the curvature of the earth.

When you say that water seeks its own level, you mean that all points of its surface tend to reach the same distance from the center of the earth, so the curved surface of the ocean is really level.

"Circling Disease" of Sheep

Farmers and veterinarians are giving increasing attention to a fatal disease of sheep that was once thought to be caused by feed poisoning. Research has shown that the malady, called circling disease or listeriosis, is caused by a germ that invades the nervous system. Affected animals walk blindly in circles, become paralyzed, and die within a few days.

U.N. Flag in Korea

The United Nations flag, flown officially by troops fighting North Korean aggression, is made of cotton. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, United Nations commander, shortly after UN action was taken to defend South Korea against Red aggression, requested UN secretary general Trygve Lie to send 400 United Nations flags for use of his command. General MacArthur specified that the flags should be five by seven feet and made of cotton.

Happened in Egypt

Egyptians appear to be slow in learning that it makes a lot of difference whether an animal gets its medicine through the nose or down the throat. The British veterinary journal reports that a donkey "paid through the nose" for its owner's mismanagement in giving a drench for colic. Like many Egyptians do, the owner poured the medicine through the donkey's nostrils, causing mechanical pneumonia. The frantic owner put in an emergency call to his veterinarian just as the animal was taking its last gasp.

Jefferson as Inventor

Thomas Jefferson rates an honored place in the gallery of "Inventions That Serve You." His greatness as a statesman overshadowed his distinction as an inventor. Invention of the swivel chair was one of his earliest achievements. His carriage "mileage computer" antedates the modern speedometer. A score of gadget inventions, including a combination table and chaise longue, may be seen in his Monticello home today.

Many Meteors Seen

A meteorite is a meteor that is successful in touching ground. Out in space, meteors in general are fast-moving bodies—ranging in size from dust particles to many tons of substance. When their travels bring them in contact with the earth's atmospheric oxygen, they flare up, and before "burning out" or exploding can be seen as "shooting stars," to use the popularly descriptive but inaccurate expression. Dozens of such meteor falls may often be observed on a clear night. The best shows come during the last half of the year, with extensive showers scheduled in August and November.

Fearless Queen Zenobia

Although the fabulous Queen Zenobia lived all the way back in the third century A. D., she was far from an old-fashioned girl. This beautiful and fearless woman, who ruled the ancient kingdom of Palmyra in the Arabian desert, had the courage of a man. She went to war with her husband and "by his side hunted panthers, bears, and lions." Zenobia also defied the authority of the Roman senate to assume the title, "Queen of the East," and conquered Egypt, land of her forefathers.

Mature Tree Around Home Acts as Great Humidifier

The elm, maple or oak by your door is an amazing handiwork of nature. A mature tree pulls up 30 to 40 gallons of water from deep in the soil on a mid-summer day and sprays out 98 per cent of it through the leaves, as if they were a giant nozzle. This humidifies the air, sometimes lowering the temperature around the house as much as 10 to 15 degrees.

The tree by your door is a giant factory, too. Each leaf is a factory in itself, spreading its tissue of chlorophyll to catch the maximum sunlight.

All day long the factories manufacture starches. They use minerals and water from the soil, gases from the air. Sunlight provides energy for the chlorophyll—the key machinery to function. The starches are used now in strengthening limb and twig, fattening fruit and building toward the season's maturity, passing down through stem and twig into branches and trunk mostly at night.

It's a big factory, too. A maple or oak 35 feet in height has about 25,000 leaves whose total upper surface is approximately 2,000 square feet.

A miracle or arrangement has been at work on each leaf. There is no pushing, no crowding, no turmoil. Each leaf has its allotted place in the sun. The leaves of a maple are fixed in a design peculiar to maple trees; the oak has its own arrangement; the hickory its own. They are arranged so that when breezes come they filter through the leaves and leave a cooling touch. Elm leaves droop and sway like a fired garden gate. Those on a willow sweep like the pendulum on a clock. Oak leaves wave like freshly-washed hair.

Steady Rise in Fire Loss Affects National Welfare

The United States bill for fire destruction rose for the sixth month this year over last year with fire losses for the month of July estimated at $52,930,000. This was an increase of 6.8 per cent over July, 1949.

The steady rise in fire losses represents the destruction of property and national resources vitally needed for the defense and welfare of the nation. It emphasizes again the responsibility of every citizen and every organization to try to prevent fires that destroy life and waste the nation's resources.

The July total represents a seasonal decrease of 7.2 per cent from the June, 1950 figures. June's fire losses were $57,116,000. Losses for the first seven months of 1950 reached $420,097,000, an increase of $21,663,000 or 5.4 per cent over the fire destruction for the same period of 1949.

For the 12-month period ending July 31, 1950, losses were an estimated $738,826,000. This represented an increase of 9.7 per cent over losses of $672,078,000 reported for the 12 months ending July 31, 1949.

These reported losses under fire insurance policies include an allowance for uninsured and unreported losses.

Little Tricks That Save The Holiday Budget

Don't wait till the Christmas holiday rush to bring the season's decorations from their hide-aways. Start now perking up the wreaths, ribbons, and tree ornaments. Wash the big red bow in lukewarm suds. To restore crispness, press under waxed paper on the wrong side.

Green wreaths of artificial holly leaves and artificial poinsettias need a going-over with a sudsy sponge. If they've become dried and brittle during storage, the bath will soften and rejuvenate them.

Even tarnished tinsel will sparkle again after a soap-and-water bath. Swish it in a basin of lively warm suds, rinse and spread on a towel to dry.

1951 JUNIOR RED CROSS POSTER

A spur to the 1951 Junior Red Cross Enrollment campaign, scheduled for Nov. 1-15, is the new enrollment poster, painted by artist Joseph Binder. The poster will be distributed to more than 100,000 schools in the United States and the territories of Alaska, Puerto Rico, Canal Zone, Virgin Islands and Hawaii. Enrollment in the Junior Red Cross is open to pupils in all elementary and secondary schools—public, private and parochial.—(ANP)

Recover Indian Artifacts From English Trade Post

A considerable variety of European and Indian artifacts recovered from excavation of perhaps the second oldest English trading post in the New World has been added to the collections of the Smithsonian institution. They were presented by Alvin W. Brittingham, of Hampton, Va., who, together with his brother, conducted the excavation of Kicotan on the shore of Hampton Roads. Here, according to an old local tradition, a trading post had been established by the Jamestown colonists. The land has been under cultivation for many years, and many artifacts have been found during plowing.

The articles range from Indian tomahawks and pipes to pottery utensils, a sword hilt, and spurs. The quantities and type of artifacts found indicate that this was the traditional site of a settlement established for trading with the Indians. There is no historical record of the Kicotan trading post, although the materials recovered establish that it was contemporary with Jamestown and that colonists and Indians probably lived there together.

The site was occupied by the Koughtan Indians, who were distinguished for their friendship with the colonists. Capt. John Smith paid them several visits. They were a people with whom it was easy to open trade relations. The post must have been established sometime before 1610. At that time all Indians were driven from the neighborhood by the English governor, Sir Thomas Gates, and their lands occupied by the colonists.

The site covers approximately 100 acres. Over the past century it has yielded literally bushels of artifacts, of both English and Indian origin. The collection is of great value, per se, because of the light it throws on the early industries of the first English colonists.

Dutch Elm Disease Beetles Becoming Resistant to DDT

Indications that Scolytus bark beetles—carriers of Dutch elm disease—are becoming resistant to DDT, just as the house-fly and certain mosquitoes have built up similar immunity, have been reported.

A new strain of these beetles seems to be developing that is proving resistant both to DDT and similar chlorinated compounds.

Tests show that more and more larvae of Scolytus beetles are wintering over in elm bark that has been systematically barraged by potent insecticides.

In the DDT test, bark from elms was used which had been killed by a combination of Dutch elm disease and Scolytus bark beetle attack. These trees had been sprayed twice the two preceding seasons, 1948-49, with DDT—the first with a high potent 12½ per cent spray, the second with a 5 per cent application. Both sprays were mist-blown.

With the bark as breeding material in an insectary, as many as 644 beetles were reared per cubic foot of bark last spring.

Similarly, there were reported "excellent" results in controlling Scolytus beetles with methoxychlor in 1949. Yet when bark with the same degree of infestation was used this year, the results were not as satisfactory.

than homo sapiens. This is the scientific name for modern man, and includes all races now living. There is some evidence that early hunters were present in what is now the southeastern U.S. and the Great Plains, some 15,000 to 20,000 years ago, before the end of the fourth glacial period. No remains of their bodies have been found, but they left tools which, in the way they were made, resemble some of those found in Europe from the later part of the Old Stone Age.

Archaeologists Excavate Early American Campsites

Camp sites of some of the earliest inhabitants of North America were excavated this summer at a site in the upper reaches of the Angostura reservoir near Hot Springs, S. Dak. The stone javelin heads found there, buried more than 20 feet deep by wind and flood since they were scattered on the surface as much as 5,000 years ago, are quite similar to, although not identical with, Yuma points. These Yuma points, in turn, immediately succeeded the Folsom point, the curiously flaked javelin head from New Mexico which is one of the earliest known implements made by human beings in the New World.

The Angostura site promises to be the most significant yet found in the survey of areas soon to be flooded by reservoirs. This is a cooperative project of the bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian institution, the national park service, and the bureau of reclamation.

The makers of these curious javelin heads apparently were nomadic hunters. These sites in South Dakota could hardly have been more than bivouacs, and no semipermanent habitation site has yet been found. The remains were buried so deeply that it was necessary to use bulldozers in excavating them. Animal bones were found in association with the artifacts, but most of them were in such bad condition that it was impossible to make precise identification. Thus it is not known whether they are the remains of extinct animals or of species still living in the area.

Molds Disregard Chemical Rules in Survival Battle

If it weren't for the mold's disregard for the rules of chemistry, we might not have the miraculous antibiotics we use today, according to Dr. Donald J. Cram, assistant professor of chemistry on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

Almost all organisms in nature synthesize compounds—derived from sugars and proteins—which conform to certain patterns. But molds, from which we get penicillin, streptomycin, and other antibiotics, have a habit of turning out peculiar molecules, which do not conform to the patterns established by nature.

This manufacture of misfit molecules seems to be tied in with a unique method of self preservation. Molds compete with bacteria for food, and the competition is stiff. The peculiar molecules produced by molds are sugar and amino acid-derived substances similar to those used in the metabolic chains of bacteria pick them up, as if they were normal sugar and amino acid molecules. However, there is just enough change in the configuration of the compounds to cause them not to fit into the metabolic chain.

Thus the metabolism of the bacteria is broken down, they die, and there is that much less competition for the mold's food supply.

Were it not for this unique method of self-preservation, these molds might have fallen by the wayside long ago in the evolutionary battle of survival, Dr. Cram points out.

Throws Ducks Off Beam

Scientists may be a step closer to solving the age-old mystery of bird migration as the result of experiments conducted with radar at the Delta Waterfowl Research station maintained by the Wildlife Management Institute and Mr. James F. BSI of Minneapolis on the Manitoba breeding grounds. Although H. Albert Hochbaum, director of the station, feels that experiments still are in such an early stage that no particular significance can be placed on results, interesting reactions of migrating ducks to radar beams have been noted. Portable radar equipment borrowed from the R.C.A.F. was used last spring to help trace the migration of birds. When high-flying flocks of ducks struck the radar beam, they reacted in a peculiar manner. "We obtained at least a dozen positive reactions when the birds flared and broke, much as if they had been

Similar to Ceramics

With the aid of special organic finishes, inexpensive plaster and plastic castings are now made that duplicate the attractive appearance of ceramics without the relatively high production costs. Casts made from plaster and papier mache are not as durable, naturally. They're soft, porous and lack resistance to impacts. They can, however, acquire excellent surface hardness and approximately as much impact resistance as can be expected in ordinary ceramics if they are properly sealed and glazed with organic thermosets.

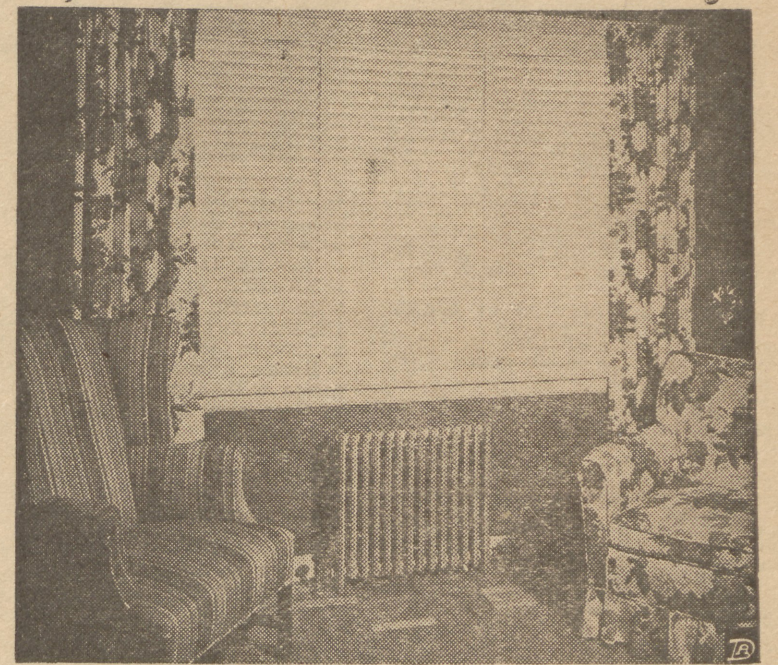

Car Coatings and Celluloid Cellulose nitrate, used in so many industrial finishes today, was discovered in 1946, in Basle, Switzerland. It did not, however, find a commercial use until Wesley Hyatt talked on her mission work, which she started last February with the assistance of Evangelist Lucy Fountain. Bishop W. J. Lewis of Wichita, gave the dedicatory sermon. Rev. Fountain preached the evening sermon. Remarks were by Rev. S.

Steed, Mrs. Perle Brewer and Rev. J. C. Crawford.

Sunday, Nov. 5, is Pastor's Day at the church here. Among the sick members are Mary Burton and Arthur Bush.

New Fashion Note In Radiators

Slender perfection is the fashion for today's radiator. Radiators today are 40 per cent smaller but give-off just as much heat as their predecessors.

Gratifying from the point of view of homemakers and decorators is the fact that the modern radiators are so small and attractive in design that they blend inconspicuously and harmoniously with the finest furnishings.

One of the advantages of radiators is that when the thermostat cuts off the heat supply, the radiators do not cool immediately. The "hold-over" heat in the radiators tends to prevent a sudden chilling effect in the room.

Radiators may be used with hot water or steam heating systems and with any type of fuel.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Diphtheria

Diphtheria was at one time known as "the strangling disease" because it actually did take the lives of so many children, in its final stages, by making it impossible for them to breathe.

But the picture changed with the discovery, in the latter part of the 19th century, of the germ which causes diphtheria and, shortly afterwards, the finding and development of the antitoxin which could be used to control the disease.

Diphtheria is more prevalent among children than adults. Children should be inoculated against diphtheria with diphtheria toxoid in their early years. As a result of inoculations, deaths among children who get the disease have been reduced to less than five per cent.

When the diphtheria germs invade and become active in a child's body, they begin producing a poison known as the toxin of diphtheria. This produces damage to the heart and other organs. An etude form in the throat making breathing difficult. If this exudate continues to develop, breathing becomes impossible, and "strangulation" literally takes place.

Diphtheria is a communicable disease, usually spread by direct contact from a person who has the disease to one who is well. The well child should be kept away from anyone who has diphtheria, for his own protection. But it is not always possible to know just who has diphtheria. People can carry the germs of diphtheria in their throats, and transmit them, without being ill themselves.

Most babies inherit a natural immunity to diphtheria from their mothers which last for the first few months of their lives. However, this immunity is gradually lost, and thus, all babies should be inoculated against diphtheria before they are a year old.

Even if diphtheria does develop, despite precautions, early diagnosis and prompt treatment will give the sick person a good chance of recovery without serious complications. The child who is getting a fever, With delegates from the other UNESCO nations, Dr. Patterson will examine plans for the creation of an international association of institutions of higher learning.

Accompanied by Mrs. Patterson, Dr. Patterson will make a four months' survey of vocational and adult educational centers in Europe, the Scandinavian countries, and Africa, through a special grant provided by the Phelps-Stokes Fund, of which he is a trustee.

Through a special invitation of the Foreign Relations Division of the State Department, Dr. Patterson will speak before various educational groups, in different cities en route. He will also make a special trip to the Booker T. Washington Institute, in Kakata, Liberia, to inspect and report on the vocational school patterned after Tuskegee, and which follows closely the "learning by doing" philosophy of the parent college.

Cheese-Makers Troubled By Penicillin Given Cows

Some cheese makers are having penicillin troubles. Cheese makers have benefited greatly from scientific research in agriculture, but are now encountering difficulties resulting from the application of other research. This is related to the control of the dairy disease, mastitis, by penicillin.

Scientific cheese making includes pasteurization of milk brought to the cheese factory. This treatment kills undesirable bacteria. Then the cheese maker adds to the pasteurized milk a culture of selected organisms, commonly called a "starter." The starter includes fermenters that have worked well together and produced cheese of superior quality. By guarding the uniformity of the starter the cheese maker can expect to make uniformly good cheese.

But many starters are not working reliably nowadays. The background of the present difficulty may be traced to one of the research triumphs of U. S. department of agriculture fermentation chemists—the development of the life-saving drug, penicillin, from a costly rarity to a low cost medicine widely used. The cost of penicillin is low enough so that veterinarians can afford to use it widely in treating udders of dairy cows affected with mastitis. This is a common disease and many cows are treated. The result is that milk delivered to cheese factories is likely to contain a very slight quantity of penicillin. It may be possible to devise some way of inactivating the very slight quantities of penicillin in milk used for making cheese. It may be possible to modify the "starter" and make it penicillin proof.

"I had thought that everyone in Des Moines, except for my family, had really forgotten that I was in existence, because no one writes me any more, and you know, here in the big city, even though you may have friends, you can get very lonely," wrote former East High Graduate Esther Saunders from Staten Island, N. Y., Oct. 24.

"You may be interested," she continued, "to know that I have been going to Katherine Dunham's School of Cultural Arts, Inc., and love it very much. At the moment I am on leave from my class because of my illness, but hope to be back with the gang as soon as I possibly can."

"I have one lesson a week, because of my job, but I really look forward to it. I've met some students who have been on some of the Broadway stages and some professional dancers, and some who have been on television. The school is located in an old theater building on 43rd street in New York City."

"As you probably know, I still have many ambitions, but quite naturally my main one is that of becoming a great entertainer, either with my dancing or singing."

Clarence A. Hughes, captain of three sections, was so interested in the enterprise shown by Donald that he presented the story to his district directors, W. Bryant Sanford and Kenneth Dennis. They felt that a youth ten years old who had set an example not only for his community, but for the whole city of Minneapolis, should be given some recognition. A weekend chock-full of activities has been planned for Drake university's 64th Homecoming Friday and Saturday, Nov. 3-4.

Old grads and former students will have a wide assortment of events to choose from in visiting their old school.

Opening event will be the traditional Homecoming convocation at 11 a. m. Friday in the Drake fieldhouse. The Homecoming queen will be introduced and the football team of 1937 will be recognized.

That evening fraternity and sorority house decorations will be judged and the final performance of "One Foot in Heaven," Hartzell Spence's famous biography of a small-town Iowa pastor, will be presented in the Drake auditorium.

Also Friday evening are a dance and pep rally.

Alumni will have a reception from 9 to 11 a. m. Saturday and the Drake 50-year club will hold a reception Saturday morning. Included in the club are persons who have held their degrees 50 or more years.

An innovation this year is the all-alumni luncheon at 11:30 a. m. Saturday in Drake fieldhouse. Reservations may be made in the Drake alumni office.

Alumni also will gather for an informal reception in the fieldhouse following the Drake-Bradley football game Saturday afternoon. The game, of course, is the highlight of the weekend in the eyes of most Homecomers.

Numerous campus organizations will hold open houses and receptions during the weekend which promises to be one of the most memorable in Drake history.

The annual Homecoming dance will be at 9 p. m. Saturday in the fieldhouse.

Senator Hickenlooper Has Made a Good Record on Civil Rights

As a rule the Bystander does not write editorials about individual candidates for office and this is particularly true during general elections. But occasions demand it at times.

For the information of its branches the NAACP has sent out from New York a pamphlet in which it proposes to set out information about United States Senators. Only those coming from northern or border states are given much attention.

The following statement is made with reference to Senator Hickenlooper:

"Bourke B. Hickenlooper, (R., Iowa); Joined the 1949 conspiracy to defraud minorities. Marshalled opposition to the Barkley ruling and co-sponsored authorship of the specious Wherry-Hayden compromise. Having thus reversed his 1946 position on cloture, he attempted in 1950 to prove that the Wherry-Hayden compromise would work by supporting cloture for FEPC."

As chairman of the legislative committee of the state conference and Des Moines branch, NAACP, the editor of the Bystander was charged with, and has the files, of all correspondence with Senator Hickenlooper and the whole Iowa delegation in Congress, and on the whole record the Senator made, feels that the statement is most unfair.

When Senator Hickenlooper entered the Senate in 1937, one of his first assignments was as a member of the committee investigating the fitness of the late Senator Bilbo of Mississippi, to be seated in that body following his campaign in which he told his constituents to use force if necessary to keep Negroes from voting in the Democratic primary.

Senator Hickenlooper took the lead in questioning witnesses at the hearing and brought out very clearly facts upon which he as a minority member of the committee based its findings that "Bilbo by his own deliberate acts and upon his individual responsibility is guilty of such acts and conduct in connection with the 1946 primaries and election in the State of Mississippi as are contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the dignity and honor of the Senate, dangerous to the perpetuity of free government, and tainted with fraud and corruption the credentials for a seat in the Senate presented by the said Theodore G. Bilbo."

Senator Bilbo was not seated and it must be admitted that the investigation was the decisive blow. No credit is given to the Senator for this.

It is true that Senator Hickenlooper voted for the Wherry-Hayden cloture compromise but it is untrue that he "marshalled opposition to the Barkley ruling or co-sponsored the Wherry-Hayden compromise." And while the Barkley version of Senate rules would have a better opportunity to break filibusters, the Bystander does not feel that this one vote overbalances all other efforts of Senator Hickenlooper in behalf of civil rights.

The record shows that Senator Hickenlooper has signed every cloture petition that was circulated in the Senate on civil rights and flew back from Iowa especially to vote for cloture on FEPC last spring. He was asked by the Iowa NAACP, at the request of the national office, to help get Judge Hastie's nomination out of the Senate Judiciary committee when it was bottled up for months, to which request the Senator replied:

"I am not a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, but I have had the opportunity to visit with several members of that committee, and I am strongly urging favorable action. I expect to support Judge Hastie's confirmation when it comes to vote in the Senate.

"I note your reference also to my previous vote on FEPC Cloture Rule. This motion is being called up again, and I shall again support Cloture."

The record shows that he voted for Judge Hastie's confirmation. During Senator Hickenlooper's service, he has answered the requests of the Iowa NAACP for action with positive, unequivocal statements and has done what he promised. He has not hedged or dodged issues; he has been honest and forthright.

It happens all too often that it is difficult to find out just where public officials stand and more so how they will vote. Too many sidestep civil rights questions. Not with Senator Hickenlooper.

The Bystander has no quarrel with the NAACP. Generally speaking the organization does a good job and of course has the support of every right thinking citizen. But like human beings, its decisions are not always right and this the Bystander knows to be true with reference to Senator Hickenlooper. And after firing requests to him for action in behalf of individuals and matters of interest to Iowa citizens, and particularly civil rights, during his entire term in office, the editor of the Bystander feels that he would be an ingrate to pass up the opportunity to let Iowa voters, who after all will cast votes for him, know what the Senator's record is.

A fair consideration of the whole record certainly bears out the reasonable conclusion that Senator Hickenlooper has done a good job in behalf of civil rights and deserves support now that he needs the help of those he worked for in Washington.

limitation on the privilege of voting in America except in a few communities. And this being the case, every voter should exercise his privilege of casting his vote for the candidate or measure of his choice and thus demonstrate that he appreciates what America has to offer its citizens.

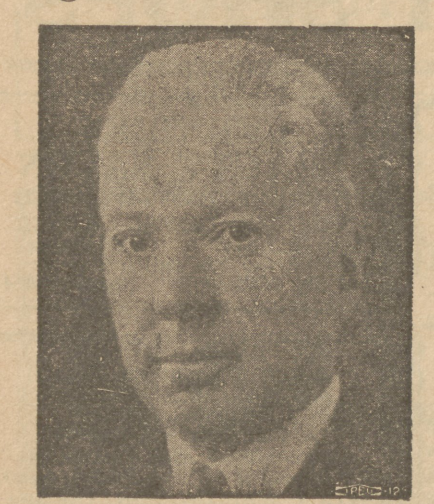

so if returned to Congress this fall. He voted for the extension of Social Security, the Railway Retirement Security, the Railway Retirement Act, and is co-author of the Veterans Insurance Act and G. I. Bill. All road work in the United States now being carried on is done under a bill of which he is the author. His interests are your interests.

Paul Cunningham Supported All Civil Rights Measures

REP. CUNNINGHAM

Representative Paul Cunningham seeks reelection to Congress from the fifth Iowa district which includes Polk, Dallas, Story, Madison, Warren and Marion Counties.

A World War I veteran and Des Moines attorney for several years, Representative Cunningham gained valuable experience which he took to Washington and thus became a very able and influential member of that body. He takes pride in aiding his constituents in matters arising in the nation's capital and has been successful getting things done.

Contrary to the ill-advised statement of some people Cunningham has supported every civil rights measure which has come before the house on its merits including the F. E. P. C. and will continue to do

SPORTS

People never will get over talking about what happened to Iowa last Saturday. In spite of a costly fumble, Bernie Bennett didn't seem to be doing too badly. Wonder what will happen at Minnesota.

Drake ought to have its ball game shortened by five minutes. Somebody has things figured out that Johnny Bright needs 277 yards against Bradley and Iowa State to set an all-time record. Our guess is that Bright had better make about 400 yards against Bradley.

Wonder what happened to Wichita? We thought they had a much better ball club than that in these days of fourth down passes instead of punts. Anything can happen and often does.

There was an interesting article in last Sunday's Register about yardage records. We used to wonder what some of the old guys would do to modern records when they used to carry the ball as many as ten or fifteen times in a row and four-out of five times during a game.

List the name of Bernie Curtis of Syracuse as a choice for all Eastern honors. Curtis is a pretty fair-sized back who can run, pass and kick.

High Schools

Tech put up quite a battle against East. Harris of East is getting to be quite a passer and they have made Reggie Atkins into a real fullback. With Lucas to catch passes, the Scarlet has a powerful offense, one that will take a lot of stopping. But hold your hats for the North-East battle.

Drake Bulldogs to Battle with Bradley Braves Saturday

(Special)—Drake's Bulldogs will battle the Bradley Braves here Saturday, Nov. 4, in a Missouri Valley conference clash.

This year, with Johnny Bright leading the way, the Bulldogs have compiled four victories, two defeats, and one tie.

Bright, the nation's offensive leader last year when he ran and passed for 1950 yards, tops the yardage producers again this year.

Over 18,000 teachers have graduated from Iowa State Teachers college in Cedar Falls.

The Negro Democratic Forum Sponsored by the Negro Democrats of Polk County.

These articles are the views of the writers and not necessarily the views of this paper.

The vital reason why we must have a Democratic victory at the polls Tuesday November 7th is that we cannot afford to block the high tide for human rights given its impetus by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt and carried on by President Harry Truman. Intelligent American voters recognize that the trend toward social justice throughout the land is greater now than ever before. We should make this election an epoch in the history of Polk County politics. We should witness at this election a determined army of voters made up of men and women, minority groups and organized labor groups marching as a solid phalanx to the polls for better government. The citizens who have had business at the court house can testify to the improvement the Democratic administration has made after the partial victory at the election two years ago. There is still much to be done in the city and the townships. The Republicans have been in office too long for efficient government. Judges who have been on the bench ten and twenty years should be changed, there have been too many changes that the machinery of justice has not been moving smoothly. It is our opinion that in the future this branch of the County government should be non-partisan. The Democratic Candidates for Judges are:—

Harvey R. Bogenrief, Joseph N. Marks, Paul D. McDonnell, Judson E. Piper, George D. Sullivan and Ralph U. Woodcock. All of these candidates are experienced lawyers with splendid records and are men of fine character.

Precinct workers should be getting busy to see that all voters properly qualified who cannot get to the polls because of illness, disability of any sort or because they will not be in town should be furnished with absentee voters ballots. Also arrange transportation where it is required on election day. Prepare to take care of these matters early. A stagnant pool is an abomination in any community that applies likewise to political workers who are asleep on the job. Let's get out the vote.

A GOLD FEATHER.

A gold feather will be pinned on the lapel of every person who votes, entitling him or her to attend a big "Election Roundup" at KRNT theatre that night. Plans for this event is being sponsored by the Des Moines League of Women Voters.

Nine Iowa Residents Included in Who's Who in Colored America

Yonkers, N. Y.—Nine Des Moines residents are listed in the seventh edition of "Who's Who in Colored America," the illustrated biographical directory of notable living Americans of African descent, published today, according to announcement by Christian E. Burckel and Associates, publishers, Yonkers, N. Y.

The book, 664 pages, contains 3,200 biographical sketches and 640 photographs. In addition to the 9 local people, 7 other Iowans are listed. There is also a table showing what kind of work or profession each person is engaged in. The late S. Joe Brown is among the seven persons to whom the book is dedicated.

Each listing includes the date and place of birth; parents and marital status; training experience and present occupation; publications, if any; religious and political affiliation, and the outstanding contributions of the person described.

"It is not presumed however," ac-ording to G. James Fleming, editor, "that the book contains all the best persons or everything about such persons. Rather, it is representative of the persons who are in pivotal positions, those who are making a contribution to community and nation, those who are pioneering in new fields, and, in general, those about whom other person of affairs may occasionally want to know."

Fleming deplored the fact that some few persons, well qualified for "Who's Who in Colored America," did not submit the necessary data.

Those listed from Des Moines are: A. A. Alexander, engineer; Mrs. E. B. J. Braddox, teacher; S. Joe Brown, lawyer; L. T. Ellis, Y.M.C.A. former executive secretary; L. T. Glanton, Jr., lawyer; Mrs. S. E. Jett, civic leader; Mrs. G. E. Rush, lawyer; Dr. E. T. Scales, physician; Bishop D. W. Short.

The 15 bells in the campanile at Iowa State Teachers college, Cedar Falls, are more and heavier (15 tons) than on any college campus in the nation.

He has been in public life for 27 years but has never been a politician. He is a member of the Christian Church, Masonic bodies, Elks, Moose and Eagles. He is president of the Iowa Chiefs of Police Association and the recently organized Iowa Road Block Committee. MILLER through his many years of experience with police work knows the "youth problems" and will establish a Junior Deputy Sheriff's program with a "Juvenile Division". MILLER believes your Sheriff should be a man of integrity, experience and executive ability. That the Sheriff of the County is but a servant of the people and as such his office will always be open to the public and not just a select few, for constructive suggestions and proper law enforcement so that Polk County may have an honest and efficient Sheriff's office. MILLER through his 27 years of service with our Police department, the last 3 years serving as Chief, has proven himself capable of organizing and directing a law enforcement body which is needed so badly in the management of the Polk County Sheriff's office. MILLER believes the responsibilities of the Sheriff's office require a full time Sheriff. He has no other business connections or outside interest and will devote his full time to the operation of that office. Vote For A Man With Experience Polk County Needs "SNUS" MILLER for SHERIFF
