Ocala, Fla.—For a second time Walter Lee Irvin, sole surviving defendant in the notorious Groveland "rape" trial, has been condemned to die by an all-white male jury in Florida. The verdict of guilty was returned late this afternoon after the jury had been out for an hour and 23 minutes...

As the jury announced its verdict in the tense, packed courtroom, Judge T. J. Futch promptly sentenced the 24-year-old veteran to death. Thurgood Marshall, special counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, announced that a motion for a new trial would be filed within the next few days...

Helicopters Are Becoming True 'Jack-of-All-Trades'

Helicopters are in the news. People at home see helicopters in television and the newsreels assisting in heroic rescues on the Korean battle fronts. Our home folks are curious. Only a small segment of our people have seen the real helicopters, in metal and Plexiglass, as they operate in Chicago, and in one or two other big cities to carry air mail to suburban communities. There the "flying windmills" may be seen ascending straight up from a flat roof, or dropping and hovering head high from the ground for a gentle landing. Crashes are extremely rare with helicopters. It is claimed that even if a motor should fail the overhead propeller would serve as a parachute and revolve with the wind of descent to break the fall. John Q. Range In The Home

Perhaps you are one of the 3,200,000 women who now depend on clean, efficient electricity for your cooking needs. Or, perhaps you are one of the 1,800,000 women who bought an electric range last year—the peak buying year in the history of this appliance. But, whether yours is one of the first, or one that just recently came off the assembly lines, with gleaming white porcelain enameled surface, colored pushbutton heat controls, and a double oven, you are interested in keeping your electric range as beautiful as the day you bought it. You can do this with reasonable care and service. If your range is new, your task will be easier, for new Titanium enamel is almost fool-proof in its resistance to acid stain and chip resistance. But, even if your range is an older one, it will still withstand normal usage. One of the great bugaboos of the enamel experts is the presence of acid foods around a stove. Lemon juice, spilled on an enamel surface, will cause the porcelain surface to discolor. But Titanium surfaces, as mentioned above, will resist the acids. Your best bet, though, is to wipe up lemon juice and vinegar as soon as possible.

Infant Accidents

Each year hundreds of fatal accidents to infants in the United States could be prevented by the person caring for the child. This is borne out by a detailed study of fatal accidents during the first year of life among insured babies. The most frequent fatal accidents, statisticians report, are those resulting from the swallowing of foreign objects—nipples, pacifiers, safety pins, buttons, marbles, or other things—left within the baby's reach, and from asphyxia caused by the regurgitation of milk and other liquid foods. Such accidents as burns or scalds from makeshift vaporizers, fires started by older children playing with matches, strangulation caused by the child getting its head caught, poisoning, and drowning in the bath also take a considerable toll of infant life, the study indicates. These accidents are due, in the majority of cases, to lack of proper care by the person—usually the mother—in charge of the baby.

Researchers Say We Have Old-Fashioned Idea of Elders

Many of our ideas about old folks today are just old-fashioned. Dr. William M. Smith, Jr., professor of family relationships at the Pennsylvania State College, cites opinions of many people about aging and the aged and says that research studies are proving many of them to be false. Chances are that grandpa and grandma don't want to spend their declining years on a front porch rocking chair, as many people believe, but if they live with younger folks, they may find little to do to make themselves useful. They are being replaced by the baby-sitter and with smaller houses there's little choice but a rocking chair on the front porch. Old age can no longer be considered a separate, static period of life, but the years of maturity extend over several decades during which the individual undergoes continuous change, according to Dr. Smith. The idea that older persons lose their ability to learn and to work is also a fallacy, Dr. Smith says, and he adds that people do not age intellectually, emotionally, and psychologically at the same rate and in the same manner. Biological age is not the best index of any aspect of aging. We accept that idea at the childhood level but we don't yet realize that the range of variation in a group of 70-year-olds is far greater than in a group of 7-year-olds. Dr. Smith points out that while many retirement systems are based on specific age, many men and women would prove very capable employees for years beyond this age, while there are others who should have retired many years earlier.

Plan a new approach to the family's favorite meat loaf by molding it in custard cups. Enriched bread cubes extend the savory flavor and protein values of one pound of ground meat to serve four to six people.

Economy meals can be as delicious as expensive ones, the family will agree when they taste the tempting individual meat loaf menu pictured above.

There's new flavor interest when you combine ground veal and lamb in a well-seasoned meat loaf. You can, of course, mold the ground meat mixture in a bread pan, but baking in individual molds offers a novel shaping. For luncheon, serve each veal and lamb loaf with buttered carrots, green beans topped with mock Hollandaise sauce, and butterhorn rolls.

This menu can be enlarged for a thrifty dinner, too, by the simple addition of oven browned potatoes and a rhubarb cobbler for dessert. As a main dish to serve six people, the individual veal and lamb loaves average only about 15 cents a serving. Nutritional score of the meat loaf entree is high, since enriched bread, meat and egg are high in protein content, essential B-vitamins and food mineral iron. The attractive appearance and excellent flavor of veal and lamb loaf will tempt everyone in your family to get the full value of this good nutrition.

VEAL AND LAMB LOAF 2 cups enriched bread cubes 1/2 pound ground veal 1/2 pound ground lamb 1 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon pepper 1/2 teaspoon paprika 1/2 cup catsup 1 egg Combine bread cubes, meat, seasonings, and egg. Blend thoroughly. Place in greased custard cups. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 1 hour. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Modern Artillery Age Began During Nineteenth Century

Smokeless powder, percussion shells exploding on impact, breech-loading guns, recoil systems, all came during the 19th century, opening the modern artillery age. Rifling of gun barrels elongated the cannon ball into a spinning cylinder.

Special-purpose projectiles—high-explosive, armor-piercing, smoke, gas, and star shells for night illumination—met new gunnery techniques of World War I, such as the rolling barrage, air observation from balloons or planes, and accurate range finding.

By the second World War, rapid-firing cannon had been mounted in tanks and planes. Naval guns could reach more than 20 miles to batter an unseen enemy ship or coastline. Russian artillery, lined virtually hub to hub across the Eastern Front, finally halted Hitler's advance. British guns turned back Rommel at El Alamein in the desert night.

Today, with blast-blackened hillsides in Korea testifying to artillery's awesome punch, the stage is set for even more amazing developments:

Guided missiles, homing on targets by invisible feelers of radar and television, and stratosphere rockets such as the German V-2. Bazooka-born recoilless cannons, giving infantrymen the firepower of a walking antitank gun.

"Skysweeper" anti-aircraft guns, automatic in loading, tracking targets and firing proximity-fused shells to great heights. "Shaped charge" projectiles which penetrate thick armor with a liquid jet of metal; other shells which "squash" across the face of a tank with terrible shock.

Honeycombed rocket launchers to spray high explosive across lines of the enemy, mortars to drop it on his head, flame throwers to drive him into the open—and the atomic artillery shell.

The Listener

"Ear-bender" is an old word that has been given new meaning by the modern psychologist. It is described by The Parents' Consultation Service of The BOOK HOUSE FOR CHILDREN as "a human talking machine who failed to learn the importance of listening in his early childhood. He cannot listen to learn, although success and popularity depend on it, because he has never learned to listen. "In polite society, he may be called 'talkative,' 'loquacious,' 'garrulous,' or merely 'boring.' But, regardless of what he is called, he is so in love with the sound of his own voice he cannot stop talking long enough to listen to other people. "For that reason, he never really learns to understand them."

$10,000 CONTEST "FOR BETTER WORLD"

"What One Person Can Do" to help make a better world is the basis of a $10,000 contest open to all individuals "regardless of age, profession, race, color or creed."

Purpose of the contest is to "dramatize the vital role the individual can play as a Christopher or Christ-bearer in changing the world for the better." It opens on Ash Wednesday, Feb. 27, and closes Easter Sunday, April 13, according to the Rev. James Keller, director of The Christophers, sponsor of the contest.

Entries should be submitted in letter form ranging from 300 to not more than 1,600 words telling what the writer or someone close to him has done to help make a better world. "Literary style is secondary. Truth, sincerity and real achievement even in an apparent small way are important. The mere listing of facts in a letter could suffice," Father Keller said.

All entries should be addressed to: The Christopher Contest, 18 E. 48th St., New York 17, N. Y.

Prizes range from $100 to $2,000 and, in addition, money paid for any story purchased for commercial use would be turned over to the author.

Striking Comparison Quoted Between War, Auto Deaths

An average of 33 American soldiers was killed daily in Korea during the first year of the war, while at home automobile deaths averaged 99 a day, a comparative study of war and traffic fatalities made by the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies disclosed recently.

Close to 12,000 combat deaths have occurred among United States forces in Korea since hostilities started on June 25, 1950, according to Defense Department reports. On the eve of the war's anniversary the Association's accident prevention department estimated that the nation's traffic dead during the same 12-month period totals about 36,050, three times the U.S. death toll in Korean battles.

Traffic deaths currently are seven times heavier than U.S. war fatalities, however, with the estimated June average of 93 lives lost daily on highways almost equalling the low weekly average of 95 soldiers killed in action in Korea as the war entered its 12th month.

American military deaths in all of the nation's wars, including the first year of the Korean conflict, have reached a total of 998,000 in 176 years and two months since the Battle of Lexington on April 19, 1775, the study shows. In the 51 years and six months since the first U.S. automobile death occurred at the turn of the century, nearly 980,000 men, women and children have lost their lives in traffic accidents.

In a strange historic parallel, both "GI-X" and "Victim X" the million victims to be killed by U.S. wars and automobiles, may die only a few weeks apart this year if the war continues, instead of within a few months of each other, as predicted last January by Julien H. Harvey, manager of the Association's accident prevention department.

Barbiturates Sales Should Be Tightened, Doctor Says

Sleeping pills are dangerous! They should never be taken except on a doctor's prescription, yet each year more and more Americans are resorting to them rather than learning to relax and sleep naturally.

Dr. Henry K. Beecher, Harvard medical school, advises strict legislation in every state to tighten up the sale of barbiturates. Their easy availability is causing "social as well as medical problems of highest importance," he said. Studies done at Harvard under Dr. Beecher's supervision revealed that even the healthiest young men retained a measurable "hangover," affecting their judgment, memory and reasoning, 12 hours after taking a single pill. If they become addicted to sleeping pills and stop taking them suddenly, symptoms exactly like delirium tremens are produced. Those who are troubled by sleepless nights had much better get at the cause instead of seeking relief through drugs. A complete physical check-up is a wise first step. If this doesn't reveal any organic ailments, the next step is to check the bedding. If the mattress is lumpy, or the bedspring sags, or the pillow is flat and lifeless, very likely new bedding of good comfortable construction will eliminate sleeplessness. Thorough relaxation depends on level, resilient support.

'Harlem Globetrotters' Thrilling Comedy of Red-Hot Basketball

"The Harlem Globetrotters," the red-hot team who play to more than 20,000,000 basketball fans the world over every year, bid fair to win many more admirers among moviegoers as a result of the Columbia picture which boasts their name. The new film, featuring Thomas Gomez, Dorothy Dandridge, Bill Walker and the Original Harlem Globetrotters, starts Tuesday, February 26, at the Strand Theater.

The razzle-dazzle ball-handling of the team is the ultimate in visual comedy. The Globetrotters play for laughs, and then they cut the comedy and buckle down to the serious business of piling up points to win.

Against its basketball background, "The Harlem Globetrotters" tells a story, an exceptionally moving story. The film deals with an All-American college basketball player and honor student named Roy Townsend, who wants to quit school to join the Trotters. Manager Abe Saperstein urges

Advice From the Experts: Take Load Off the Tootsies

If your feet start doing a slow burn with the summer heat, here is simple advice from the experts on how to keep cool from the ground up.

Ladies glow, men perspire and horses sweat when temperatures and humidity go up, but all are equally uncomfortable. The medical experts address themselves specifically to the male sex of homo sapiens with the suggestion to take the overcoat off their feet and wear light, comfortable fitting shoes equipped with porous leather soles. The experts urge especially that during hot-weather days you shun soles made of rubber and other impervious materials that prevent foot ventilation.

Medical science has demonstrated that a person's feet act as a thermostat for the entire body. That's the reason you feel uncomfortable all over if your feet are hot, and chances are your disposition will be the worse for it. By the same token, if you take that overcoat off your feet, you'll be better equipped to put up with such diverse troubles as higher taxes, stale television jokes and the neighbor's noisy kids.

Leather soles, according to the experts, are important for health as well as comfort. The greatest concentration of sweat glands is on the bottom of the feet, and if perspiration cannot escape through your shoes, you're risking athlete's foot, and other ringworm infections which thrive only in a hot and humid setting. Leather soles are a good antidote since their fibrous structure passes off foot moisture and maintains healthful temperatures.

So if you find yourself barking at the boss and talking back to traffic cops on the next sweltering day, the trouble may be in the shoes you're wearing.

ridicules his teammates' feelings that they represent the entire Negro race.

Townsend disobeys Manager Saperstein's orders to rest in his hotel room before a big game with the powerful Celtics, arch-rivals of the Globetrotters. He sneaks out to marry his sweetheart, at the same time injuring his knee. The Trotters lose the game, and the boy cannot understand why the loss is taken so seriously by his fellow-players. He quarrels with the manager, who fires him. Finally, Townsend develops an understanding of the Trotters' spirit. The picture winds up in a magnificently thrilling return match with the Celtics.

Thomas Gomez plays the role of Abe Saperstein, white manager of the all-Negro team, with spirit and authority. Dorothy Dandridge is beautiful and talented as Townsend's sweetheart. Bill Walker is thoroughly believable as a college professor. The role of Roy Townsend is portrayed by Billy Brown, a star of the Trotters in real life. Alfred Palca's story and screen play and Pil Brown's direction show "The Harlem Globetrotters" and the professional actors at their best. Buddy Adler produced.

PERSONAL TOUCH

By MARIE ROSS

Sports Columnist Allen Ashby came into the office the other morning with a grin all over his face—and when he can stretch a grin that far, with the weather forecast—"snow and colder"—then it is time to get interested.

"You know, I've been laughing since last week," he commented and with that remark, I halted my typewriter and suggested that he see a doctor—immediately.

"No, it was really funny," Ashby assured and lamented that fact that "people, nowadays don't laugh enough."

"You know, I was going home the other morning when I ran into a dog and cat fighting up on Enos street," Ashby related. "They fought and fought and finally the dog got to whipping the cat and the cat started scampering down the street, through the yards with the dog right on its heels."

"Well, what's so funny about that?" he was interrupted.

"The cat headed for a house in the block, darted over some ice-covered ground with the dog trailing a few yards behind.

"Suddenly, the cat disappeared in a hole under a porch. By then, the dog had reached the ice-covered ground. He tried to put on brakes. In sitting fashion he slid right on into the house and knocked himself out. A perfect kayo! The cat peeped out of the hole and laughed.

"I almost fell out laughing when I saw that happen—and I'm still laughing," the Sports Editor howled.

It wasn't quite so funny with Mrs. Samuel Walker's cat which was quite an attraction over on Fourteenth street as a pet for 12 years in the home at 1067 14th street.

For several weeks now, Mrs. Walker has been receiving sympathy cards from friends since her big yellow Persian cat, "Albert" died, for he was such a beloved pet to friends and neighbors.

Albert had been such a hearty cat, but several weeks ago, even though he had been taking his vitamins which his owner purchased for him at the pet shop, he started sneezing, caught a bad cold and then went on into pneumonia and died.

"I was so fond of him, he had such nice traits. He would never eat while I was talking to him. When he walked about the house, he had a little swish about him; and, when he wanted to go out of doors, he would just look at the door," Mrs. Walker related.

A widow, Mrs. Walker said her pet cat had been much company to her. Albert, a "product" of Runnells Highline, Ia., had been given to her by Mrs. J. Blaine Thompson, who has promised to send another pet cat.

Three beauty operators had a busy week end getting the finishing touches done for the grand opening on Sunday afternoon of the Evalon Beauty Salon in its new location at 1006 Center street.

Late Saturday night, Owner and Operator Helen Bolden was wondering if she would get through with the dozens of things she had to finish, including some drapes and chair covers.

But on Sunday afternoon, looking fresh as daisies, were Miss Bolden and operators, Flossie Williams and Harriet Maxwell, showing patrons and friends about.

The walls of the shop have been finished in what Operator Williams refers to as "passionate pink." The curved booths are done in white enamel, with chrome strips decorating the tops. Venetian blinds close the entrance to each booth.

It's a One-Minute Job!

BUDGET-CONSCIOUS newlyweds who have books but neither a coffee table nor a full purse can solve their problem quickly and with minor expense. They can put a table together without nails or other fasteners in just about one minute flat!

Here's what they, or anyone, can do: Go to a lumber yard for some hollow clay tiles, which are 4 inches wide and a foot square. These will serve as supports for the table and should be spaced 3 feet apart for a top that is 3/4" thick. At the lumber yard, they should obtain a brand new material known as Plyron, since it is ideally suited for table tops or shelving. The dealer can cut it into the required length and the 12-inch width needed to fit over the tiles.

This new combination of familiar materials, Plyron, has a core of plywood and faces of smooth, splinter-free Masonite hardboard. The unique new panel's plywood core makes it puncture-proof, strong and rigid. Its surfaces have the characteristics of Masonite tempered hardboard—hardness, smoothness, wear-resistance, paintability and moisture-resistance.

A two-tier coffee table can double as a book shelf, as shown in the illustration. Both the tiles and the boards may be left unfinished or may be painted, depending on the budget and the couple's wishes.

Plyron has numerous other uses around the home such as book or closet shelves and cabinet doors.

FOOLISH QUEST FOR REPUBLICAN VOTES

It was reported in the Negro press last week that at the Lincoln day celebration in Washington, D. C., an audience hooted FEPC and waved rebel Confederate flags and banners as 10,000 persons attended the annual Republican party Lincoln Day box lunch at $1.20 a head.

When one person asked if the GOP plank would advocate fair employment practices a loud chorus of "NO" came from the audience. In view of the collaboration between some Republicans and the Dixiecrats in Congress as well as National Chairman Guy Gabrielson, there is no wonder that a few vociferous opponents of civil rights should hope that they may find a new home in the GOP.

Just how any intelligent Republican leader can reason that the Democrats can be defeated by lining up with the Dixiecrats is not understandable. Figures show that there are more registered Democrats in the country than Republicans. Thus in order to win they must capture the lions share of the independent vote and that portion of partisan vote which moves from side to side.

The southerner is a party man. And he is anti-Republican. On the other hand, in the large northern communities are the independent vote and the Negro vote. Certainly flirting with the Dixiecrats continues to alienate the Negro voter and the liberal white voter who sees in the Republican-Dixiecrat combination a decided step backward for us as a nation.

POOR PROOF OF OUR DEMOCRACY

A Chinese in California seeking to get out of the Chinese ghetto in San Francisco, bought a home in one of the so-called white neighborhoods. Neighbors complained at once. He hit upon the idea of getting the sentiment of the neighborhood by popular vote so asked that they each cast a secret ballot.

Remembering that America is trying hard to convince other nations that democracy is the best form of government and that we are honestly trying to make it work, he had faith that the vote would be in favor of democratic action. But what happened? The vote stood 2 to 1 against him, so like a good sport, he bowed out.

Some people are ruthless and cruel. This incident in California proves that by voting overwhelmingly to maintain restrictive covenant, a thing which the courts have held that the state cannot do nor which citizen may, in the courts, enforce private agreements to maintain.

It is easy to imagine how Russia would seize upon this type of thing to prove we don't mean what we say. It shakes the faith of those so-called neutrals and friendly powers in Asia who are suspicious anyway and thus look upon such conduct as proof of our insincerity.

SOME TYPE OF RELIEF NEEDED

The Des Moines Railway is locked in a battle with the city council on the question of the right of the company, under the franchise, to abandon non-paying lines. The matter is before the courts and sometime will elapse before a final settlement is arrived at.

It is obvious that a company cannot continue indefinitely to lose money through their contract requires that no lines be abandoned without the consent of the council. And while a lot of snorting and oratory over the subject will be heard as time goes, undoubtedly being a reasonable body, the Council will give the company some type of relief.

A. & T. STUDENTS GIVE 500 PINTS BLOOD

Greensboro, N. C.—A. & T. College students gave nearly 500 pints of blood in the Armed Forces Blood Donor Campaign conducted at the college last Monday and Tuesday.

According to officials of the Charlotte Red Cross Blood Center all of their previous records were broken for a single days operation when about 250 donors were processed each day.

Sentence To Death

Jess Hunter, asked if there was anything unusual about a white girl being in the woods all night with four "niggers," Burtoft said, "When I first saw the girl she was not excited and the only injury she had was a scar on her knee which she got from a barbed wire fence." Burtoft also said she told him she could not identify any of the men who kidnapped her.

Irvin took the stand in his own defense and reaffirmed his innocence. He stated he did not see the girl or her husband the night of the alleged crime. He and Samuel Shepherd had gone to a night club in Orlando, he asserted.

Marshall Makes Plea

In his plea to the jury, Mr. Marshall said that all of the defendant's lawyers were born and educated in the South. "All good Americans resent crime and criminals," he said. "Every good American has certain feelings about sex crimes when a man of one race and a lady of another are involved." He asked that the jury bring back a fair verdict.

The four-day trial got under way, after Judge Futch overruled State Attorney Hunter's objection to Thurgood Marshall and Jack Greenberg to defend Irvin.

Local Negroes Testify

The testimony of Negro witnesses on the "good race relations" prevailing in this central Florida city, and their assertion that Irvin could get a fair and impartial trial was an important factor in the court's refusal to grant a change of venue, Negroes here believe. Local residents claim that this testimony was the most damaging.

Following the court's refusal to accept as evidence the NAACP's poll and survey, Dr. L. R. Hampton took the stand for the state, and testified that the relationship between the two races is better here than in other places in Florida. "The love and respect the white man has for Negroes here convinces me that Irvin can get a fair and impartial trial," he said.

Dr. Hampton, a native of Ocala and a dentist since 1912, admitted to Mr. Marshall that he owned "considerable property" in Ocala. He paid $5,000 taxes last year and said he intended to stay here. Asked how many white citizens he actually knew well enough to sit down and discuss the Irvin case and other racial problems as he did in court, Dr. Hampton could not give a reasonable answer.

When Mr. Marshall asked him if he thought Irvin could walk out of the courtroom a free and unharmed man, Dr. Hampton admitted that "some hot heads might try something." He added that he did not know of any white man who ever demonstrated any evidence of racial prejudice. Later, however, he admitted to reporters that some years ago the KKK had burned crosses in front of his home.

GOP Presidential Convention April 4

The official call for the Republican State Presidential convention, to be held April 4 at KRNT Theater in Des Moines, was issued by State Chairman Robert K. Goodwin.

The official call allots 3,030 delegates to the convention, which will select 26 delegates to represent Iowa at the Republican National Convention in Chicago July 7. Polk, with 188, and Linn with 104, have the largest representation, while the smallest number from any county is 14 from Osceola county.

The official call also advises county chairmen to call precinct caucuses on March 7 for the purpose of selecting delegates to county conventions, set for March 14. County central committees were advised that they shall determine the number to represent their respective precincts in the county convention.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Fallacies May Breed Fear, Fear Can Slow Recovery

Long-established fallacies are hard to kill but many thousands of persons leading happy lives today are walking proof of the fact that coronary thrombosis—"heart attack"—is neither necessarily fatal nor always a cause of invalidism.

The very terror that the term "coronary thrombosis" excites in many persons is one of the obstacles that a physician must overcome in treating those stricken. It is well established that the emotions have a very definite effect upon the circulatory system. Fear is one of the strongest of these.

Complete rest in the initial stages of a "heart attack" is essential. Fear makes it difficult to rest properly. Even though the patient may not be moving a muscle outwardly, his emotions cause internal tension and activate glandular secretions that affect the behavior of his heart and blood vessels.

When the physician allays these fears and helps the patient put them in their proper perspective, the process of recovery can begin without handicap.

The heart and circulatory system are a remarkably complex but efficient contrivance of nature—far more so than any man-made machine. They carry within their normal activities the power to repair themselves within reasonable limits. No machine can do this.

In cases of so-called "heart attack"—coronary thrombosis—the cause of the trouble is formation of a blood clot. Although about 5,000 gallons of blood are pumped daily through and by the heart, that organ does not draw sustenance from the blood passing through its chambers.

The heart—essentially a four-compartment muscle—derives nourishment from the blood passing through its own set of arteries that branch off the aorta, the heart's great outlet. Naturally, since it works so hard, the heart requires large amounts of blood for its driving force.

Occasionally, a blood clot blocks the flow of blood in one of the coronary arteries. The heart's muscle fibres which this artery supplies are deprived of oxygen, their source of energy. Lack of oxygen causes severe constricting pain. This is a "heart attack."

However, when the artery is blocked, the wonderful mechanism of the body tries to adapt itself to this emergency. Other arteries supplying nearby parts of the muscle gradually win over Ronald McClain. Robinson is just about the hardest punching featherweight in this thing since Morton Graves and may have a chance to go places in Chicago.

Lee Colbert won a verdict that the crowd didn't like to win the welterweight crown. Colbert is strictly a counter puncher, but he did it often enough to earn a clear win even if the boys didn't like it.

Gerald Baugh, Iowa State student was the sensation of the meet for his first fight. Baugh ran into a local guy, Don Cady, who was supposed to win the lightweight crown. Baugh uncorked a straight right that whistled by you when it missed which was seldom. He set Cady on the floor in the opening round; took a good body-pounding in the second round and deposited Mr. Cady on the canvas again in the last round.

In the final bout Baugh tangled with Nick Salvators, defending champ. In the first round one of those terrific landed on the side of Nick's head and he went down like a steer. He did get up and proceeded to run into more trouble so the bout was stopped in round two.

Virgil Finney and Bill Heath had the Willkie House boys in top shape and everyone of them knew what he wanted to do and was trying to do it.

In the novice fights, Franklin Irvin won the 147-pound bout by a T.K.O., and Norman Oakley took a heavy-weight bout that left both men so tired they didn't care who won. They just wanted to get out of that ring.

Another record was set that the round didn't notice. Some guy was sounding off about Negroes in general and two big cops escorted him out. That never happened before usually the sounder-off got busted by some Negro spectator during or after the fights in the ring. But this time the guy was ejected. Ain't seen nothing like it in about fifteen years of Golden Gloves here in Des Moines.

BY ALLEN ASHBY

It looked like pre-war times in the Golden Gloves meet at KRNT theater last week. Negroes went out swinging from the heels and hauled off four open and two novice titles. The Willkie House team won the big team trophy going away and Gerald Baugh of Iowa State won the trophy for being outstanding boxer of the meet.

Young Teddy Shade, a fifteen-year-old kid with the poise and gameness of a veteran started things rolling when he beat last year's runner-up in the flyweight division to cop the trip to Chicago. Shade wasn't expected to raise much luck with the older stronger Colfax lad. But Teddy, after a rough first round, really uncorked a series of spearing left jabs that he tossed from any position and that was the difference. After the first round, Dad Lloyd Shade walked in and said some thing to the lad. Maybe, he said "win or don't come home," because business picked up from then on.

The Willkie House made it an all-Negro final in the featherweight division. Dick Robinson punched out a

A new branch of chemistry, oceanography, which may enable man to conquer the sea, the "world's last frontier," obtaining large supplies of food, metals, drugs, and other valuable products, has been described to the American Chemical Society. "Chemical oceanography" is the name of this new field of scientific endeavor, which was discussed in a paper by Dr. Donald W. Hood of Texas A. and M. College, who is believed to be the nation's first professor of chemical oceanography. He heads a new department at Texas A. and M. which, he said, will study "the ocean and its boundaries as a chemical system, utilizing both the data of all the marine science and the approach of all other aspects of oceanography in the understanding and interpretation of such a chemical system." Research in chemical oceanography will extend the horizons of science into an area which represents 71 per cent of the earth's surface," Professor Hood declared. "The full practical value of advancement in this direction will not be realized until much more scientific information has been obtained about this vast reservoir of natural resources."

I heard my baby's prayer tonite, begin to expand to increase their flow. They furnish detours for the blood around the "blocked road" just as a highway crew would designate alternate routes to handle traffic while it cleared a road of an obstruction.

During this period, of course, the heart is working under a handicap. Therefore, the less it has to do, the less it will be strained. Complete rest is indicated until suitable alternate routes have been "widened" to handle the traffic.

That is why everyone should understand the nature of coronary thrombosis. If the patient doesn't understand this, he will realize their anxiety, and being emotionally upset, will not recover as quickly as he should. Most victims of "heart attacks" not only survive but can return to reasonably happy, productive activity.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—(CNS)—He's six foot two, 220 pounds and from Plainfield, New Jersey, where he used to play sandlot ball with Don Newcombe. But most important, he's the leading pitcher in the Cuban League with a 15-6 record, the leader in wins and strikeouts. His name? Remember it. Joe Black—a guy the Dodgers are expecting to help them forget their loss of Don Newcombe to the Army.

"He's got a real chance," says Billy Herman, the new Dodger coach, who managed Joe on the Cienfuegos team. "His style is something like Mort Cooper when he first came up—rear back and throw that fall ball. But he's working on that curve and it's getting better."

U. S. Needs Civil Defense

CITY AND COUNTRY DWELLERS HAVE VITALLY IMPORTANT JOBS

(This is the seventh of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the booklet "This Is Civil Defense" prepared by the Federal Civil Defense Administration. It may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for ten cents.)

By MILLARD CALDWELL Federal Civil Defense Administrator No matter where you live—city, town or countryside—your part in civil defense is important. If you live on a farm you are on the enemy's high priority list for some kind of biological warfare attack. Your livestock and crops may get hit by some kind of BW, and unless you are on the lookout for a possible sneak attack on what you produce, it might be too late to do anything about it. So it is of great importance to you that you know what to do in time. Civil defense will tell you.

If you live in a small town, you have a special kind of civil defense job. And it is of great importance too, for it is helping and sheltering bombed out people from some nearby city where public buildings and homes have been blasted or burned to the ground. The people in big cities are not going to panic and take to the hills, but thousands of them may have to be moved into your town for medical attention and help.

May Be Evacuation Area There also will be young children, expectant mothers, invalids and old people to care for. Your locality might be named as an evacuation area for this purpose. If you are anywhere within reach of a major city, hospital facilities in your community surely would be tagged as reception areas for casualties. You understand now how important it is for you to take an active interest in your civil defense.

If you live in a large city, you will have a critical civil defense job to do. You will serve both as part of the civil defense team and as a member of a family which must make every effort to take care of itself. Your duties in that capacity will be very vital. If your city has more than 50,000 population, you probably live in a target area. Watch how your community organizes for civil defense. Read your newspapers, listen to radio broadcasts for information about your civil defense organization. Expensive For Enemy Any attack, even with regular bombs, is expensive for the enemy. Making it with atomic bombs costs a great deal more. An enemy would use atomic bombs only on targets which would pay-off in large scale damage. That means they would probably hit only the large cities, industrial centers, and other areas which would cripple our resources and upset the morale of our citizens. By looking at a population or industrial map of the United States, you can see that there are a limited number of areas which would be hit with atomic bombs. What you know about your own community will give you some idea of its importance to the enemy. Know what industries are there and if they are essential to our war effort. One such industry does not make a target area, many such industries definitely do. Ask your local civil defense director. Yes! Civil defense is YOUR business no matter where you live. (The next article will discuss how to volunteer.)
