'U.S. Should Thank God for Being Leader of Nations In This Hour,' Says Carey

Dr. Archibald J. Carey of Chicago, first alternate delegate of the United States to the Eighth General Assembly of United Nations, last Sunday afternoon expressed his appreciation to the audience at St. Paul AME church which waited an hour for his delayed plane to bring him to Des Moines for the meeting sponsored by the men of St. Paul church.

Before going into his informational address on the workings of the United Nations, Dr. Carey revealed that during his early career as a minister, his father, the late Bishop A. J. Carey of the AME church had once "toyed with the idea" of sending him to St. Paul church as its pastor.

Six Questions
Dr. Carey asked and answered six questions on the United Nations. Three were concerned with the operation and three were some of his personal observations.

The questions were: "What is the United Nations?" "Who Are They?" "How does the General Assembly operate?" "Has the U. N. accomplished its Objectives?" "Should the U. S. withdraw from the U. N.?" and "Is the U. N. united?"

He revealed that 60 of the 85 nations in the world are members of the United Nations; that the people in the United Nations are the more highly skilled and trained.

people in the governments they represent. Many are top persons of the governments are career diplomats.

In discussing the operation of the General Assembly, Dr. Carey named the five debaters, and five alternates and revealed that three other Negroes had served—Mrs. Edith Sampson of Chicago, Dr. Ralph Bunche of New York, and Dr. Channing Tobias of New York.

"Many people in the U. N. regard Dr. Bunche as the tallest figure in the United Nations," the speaker told of the withdrawing of desegregation.

Washington Plans Gradual Public School Integration To Prevent 'Confusion'

Washington, D.C.—(CNS)—The nation's capital which has set itself as a "model" for the rest of the states about to desegregate its schools, has decided not to abolish jim crow schools in one sweeping step for this fall. Instead, Washington will take the cautious program of a "gradual" change.

This policy was fought bitterly by the three Negro School Board members who wanted the merger to take place this fall. However, the School Board defeated the move. Then it went into a closed door pow-wow at which was voted unanimously to accept the plan of School Supt. Hobart M. Corning which calls for a gradual desegregation.

Coming Plan

The Corning plan permits all children, regardless of race, the option to remain in their present schools until they finish elementary, Junior high or senior grades.

Since Washington suffers from over crowding in the Negro schools for Negro children outnumber the whites nearly 2 to 1, 2,400 children will be transferred immediately to the white schools to relieve their situation in time for September.

New Boundaries

Meanwhile, new boundary lines for the 168 schools of Washington will be announced as soon as they are established. Once this is done, overcrowded schools will be adjusted, as soon as possible.

According to Supt. Corning, this arrangement will prevent schools from opening in "confusion" in September. "In my opinion the slight delay involved is essential for the order working out of this complicated program."

Mrs. Della Wilhite, 60, Lifelong Resident, Dies

Services were held Monday at L. Fowler & Son Funeral home for Mrs. Della Wilhite, 60, of 1447 Buchanan street. Burial was at Glendale cemetery.

Mrs. Wilhite, a lifelong resident of Des Moines, was a member of St. John's Baptist church and the Order of Eastern Star.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Gladys Carr, and a sister, Mrs. Beulah Powell, both of Des Moines.

Baltimore Votes to End Racial Bias in Schools; Integration by September

Baltimore, Md.—(CNS)—The Baltimore School Board voted unanimously to end racial segregation in its public schools despite the fact that the State Board of Education had already announced that the county schools would keep segregation until the Supreme Court clarified its ruling.

The decision of the Baltimore School Board came after receiving an opinion from City Solicitor Thomas Biddison who ruled that Article 32, Section 22 of the Baltimore City code was now "unconstitutional and invalid." The quick action means that Negro and white children will be attending the same classes this September. Immediately after the Board read the resolution, it asked

The Baltimore action contrasts sharply with the state of Maryland's. It was just last week that the State Board, acting under the opinion Attorney General Edward D. E. Rollins, decided to maintain segregation until the Supreme Court's formal ruling in October. The city, however, is not affected by the state action, according to Biddison for the city schools system is completely autonomous, under the city charter. Moreover, segregation in Baltimore was governed by city code, not the state laws.

Redirect a Child's Energy By Giving Him Something He Can Do

When little children are upset they do not know how to use words to express their feelings. They use screaming and kicking instead of words.

When adults are upset they may reverse the procedure. They may use violent words in place of violent blows.

An extra supply of energy builds up within us when we must employ extra exertion. We are annoyed when this energy outflow is blocked. Very likely it will boil over in some form of anger.

The window sticks. It won't budge in spite of father's mighty push. His energy builds up and comes out in explosive words.

The lid won't come off the jar and mother's frustration rises. It's no use to yell at the lid, so she scolds at the child. "Stop that noise?" she snaps as she twists at the lid.

The toddler eagerly reaches for the scissors. Plenty of energy builds up as he tiptoes and strains to get his fingers on the prize. At that exciting moment energy is high. Then somebody snatches the scissors away. That extra supply of energy has to go somewhere. It goes into a tantrum.

As adults, most of us have learned to keep our anger under control. We know how to redirect our surplus energy into activity which is more constructive than temper. Father may soft pedal his remarks and use

ONE of the most important single influences in the American home today is the introduction of color into even every day items such as sheets and pillow cases. Daisy edgings and insertions provide the flower motif which brightens up this sheet and pillow case. They are so easy to crochet and add so much to your bedroom why not start making your own today. his energy to find a bar to pry open the window. Mother may hold the jar under running hot water until the lid loosens. But the toddler will need help, for he has not yet learned how to redirect his energy.

We may offer him a safer toy as we gently remove the scissors. This gives him another object toward which to direct his energy.

Usually we can redirect a child's energy away from that he should not do, and turn his attention to something he may safely do.

egates and sending in of alternates as various issues were discussed in the committees; and how the 60 skilled interpreters translate all of the languages.

"The U. N. does not have enforcement powers and you say—what good is it?" Dr. Carey continued. "The U. N. takes position—which is in the nature of moral judgement and which is important in the eyes of the other nations."

"In eight brief sessions the U. N. has not been able to accomplish what it has set out to do—and, I say, Rome was not built in a day."

"I have heard that in the Security council they are able to order up troops; that there are enforcement powers in the council to put down aggression."

Advancements

The speaker listed advancements made in the field of disarmament, the changing of attitudes of nations on the issue of germ war accusation; the changing of attitudes on forced labor and the millions of people of the world who are oppressed by it; advancement made in the freedom of information by the many nations that have been receiving only information channeled by their governments; the making of UNESCO permanent; and progress in the matter of Rev. Michael Scott who was concerned with segregation in South Africa.

"This was the first time that the U. S. did not vote against the South African issue," he said.

"Can the United States get out of U. N.?" he queried and replied that "the party will go on without us."

"The first important factor in the U. N. is the United States. The second largest contributor is communist Godless Russia; and the third is the United Kingdom."

"If the United States withdraws, we are leaving Russia in charge of the nations of the world." He added that "there are Americans who say that we should save the money, the sixteen cents per citizen, or the one third of what the U. S. spent on the war each day."

"What is the United States doing? It is paying the price for its leadership and the United States ought to thank God for being the leader of the nations in this hour."

Big Objections

"Has the U. N. accompanied everything it has set out to do? I say not," Dr. Carey said as he went on to discuss the two big U. N. objectives—to vanish war and to secure the dignity of every individual in the world.

"That cannot be done overnight. I have heard it said that the U. N.

is a failure because we have a war in Indo-China. Is a doctor a failure because one of his patients does not get well? Or, a preacher a failure because all of his members do not go to heaven?" the minister of Chicago's Quinn Chapel asked.

That the U. N. is a place where "men shout at each other." The speaker said that "it is far better to have a place where men can shout at each other rather than shoot at each other."

In regards to the question "Is the U. N. united?" Dr. Carey remarked that "these are the dreams in the heart of God himself." To have nations united in a world organization; unsevering in their pursuit of peace; and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

"There is only one question upon which I found the U. N. divided—and that is whether they should follow the communism of Russia or the democracy of the United States."

"They know keenly that all Americans are not entirely free in this country. On account of their race color or religion, differences are made between peoples which were not planned by God, and they view with deep distrust our promise of freedom to all the world when they know that not even all Americans are free."

"Segregation and discrimination are this nation's most deadly enemies in our effort to win and hold the support and goodwill of other peoples of the world."

"That is not Arch Carey speaking. That is the Vice President, Richard Nixon, speaking after he came back from his tour of the world."

Attitudes

With three-fourths of the world colored, Dr. Carey said, "they are not so much interested in our advancement as they are our attitudes."

"That means that charity starts at home. Our objective is to set the example of good will of other peoples."

Dr. Carey was one of the guests last week at the dinner given by President Eisenhower in honor of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia. Dr. Carey said the highpoint of the evening came when the President proposed a toast to the Emperor of Ethiopia "defender of freedom," whose country, in the past 150 years has been "overrun but never conquered."

Push Our Way

"I like to believe that as we push our way through the wilderness of wars and rumors of wars—through the constant experience of segregation and Jim Crow second class citizenship—pushing towards the clearance of peace and freedom—out of the brush will stumble some boy or girl. Coming against us they will cry—'what are you asking of us? Have you ever seen a world in which there is no war—where all men are truly free?'"

"Then, we can say—'No, I haven't but you will.' Dr. Carey concluded. Presiding at the meeting was Mr. James F. Dixon, executive of Crocker YMCA. Guest soloist was Mr. Eugene Bailey of Ottumwa.

Other participants were: Rev. Cecil Wells, Union Park Methodist church; Mayor Van Dresser of Des Moines; Rev. J. Q. Evans, Baptist State director of Christian Education; Mrs. Joburns Kelso, organist; and Rev. J. E. Hunter, pastor of St. Paul.

Singer Back In N. Y.

JOSEPHINE BARKER
New York. — Singer Josephine Barker arrived here June 5 by plane from Paris, France, and was detained briefly by immigration inspectors.

Then they announced she would be permitted to stay in the United States as a visitor until July 1.

The singer, born in St. Louis, Mo., and now a French citizen, has been the center of several controversies.

A former star of the "Folies Bergere" in Paris, she left the United States in 1951 after charging that she had been discriminated against because of her color in the Stork Club in New York—a charge the plush cafe denied.

She spent some time in Argentina and recently had been in Japan.

A pro-Soviet statement issued over her name in Tokyo, Japan, caused another controversy.

She denied having written or signed the statement, which said she intended to visit Russia "to closely observe how the social problems of the western world have been eliminated there."

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Iowans Get Around

"No wonder Iowa folks get around a lot," says Joe Ennor down at the gas station. "We have more surfaced roads per square mile than any other state."

Well, I looked it up and Joe is right. Every city, town, and hamlet is on a surfaced road. I say that's another reason for Iowa's fine brand of democracy. Our network of roads makes us all better neighbors.

And, the more neighborly we are the better we understand the other fellow's tastes and viewpoints . . . and he understands ours. We eat sauerkraut with the folks at Ackley or Lisbon, Kolaches at Cedar Rapids, Dutch bologna at Pella. I drive up to my good friend Ole's and always find coffee simmering on the stove. But Ole always brings out a temperate glass of beer for me, because he knows that's my preference.

Visiting around does make good neighbors, broader minds. We learn that everyone is different, and by understanding the other fellow's ideas we're more likely to have his understanding of ours.

If there's going to be a wedding at your house or if you want to delight one of your friends who's going to be married, here's an idea: make a bride's cake of white cake mix.

It's a lovely cake, quick, easy, and beautiful. And inexpensive, too. Just figure it out for yourself—three packages of Instant Cake Mix, three and a half cups of milk, and sugar and egg whites for frosting. It cuts into pieces enough for 25 or 30 people, downy light and delicious, a bride-cake masterpiece.

After you've frosted the cake smoothly, you can decorate it with flutings and curlicues put on with a pastry tube, and for extra trimming add a few little birds or flowers sold for cake decorating. Practice with the pastry tube by squirting a sample of your frosting on a piece of waxed paper. You can scrape up the practice frosting and put it back in the tube to use again, so no waste is involved in perfecting your technique.

WEDDING CAKE

(Two-tiered oblong cake for 25 to 30 people)

Preparations. Line 13x9x2-inch pan and 9x9x2-inch pan on bottoms with paper. Start oven for moderate heat. (350°F.).

3 packages Swans Down Instant Cake Mix
3½ cups milk

Combine contents of two packages Swans Down Instant Cake Mix in mixing bowl. Add 1 cup milk. Blend, then beat 2 minutes. Add 1½ cups milk. Blend, then beat 1 minute longer.

Pour batter into prepared 13x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 55 minutes, or until done. Remove from oven and increase oven heat to 375°F. Cool cake in pan 10 minutes, then turn out on cake rack to finish cooling.

Place contents of third package of Swans Down Instant Cake Mix in mixing bowl. Add ½ cup milk. Blend, then beat 2 minutes. Add ½ cup milk. Blend, then beat 1 minute longer.

Pour batter into prepared 9x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Cool.

Frosting. Prepare seven-minute frosting, using 2 egg whites. Then place the large cake on an attractive oblong serving plate or tray. Spread top and sides of cake with frosting. Trim the 9x9x2-inch cake to measure 9x7x2-inches by cutting a 1-inch slice from opposite sides of the cake. Place on top of the frosted layer, centering evenly. Prepare another batch of seven-minute frosting and spread on top and sides of small cake, reserving some for decorating. With a knife, go over entire cake, making a smooth flat surface for decorating.

Decorating. Using a pastry bag or decorating tube, decorate frosted cake as desired with the reserved frosting. Place wedding bell or other suitable ornament in center of top layer, if desired.

Bride's Biscuits

Following a tested recipe using enriched flour will help the bride make biscuits like these—golden topped, tender and flaky, served piping hot with butter or margarine and honey.

Four square biscuits provide breakfast or tea-time conversation, yet they are even easier to make than the usual round variety.

In following this basic biscuit recipe with sweet milk, cut shortening into the dry ingredients well until the mixture looks like coarse crumbs. Use two knives, a pastry blender, a pastry fork, or fingertips. Then add almost all the milk at once, saving out two or three tablespoons until you see if you need it. Different flours may need a different amount of milk to make a dough of good consistency. Stir vigorously until flour is moistened.

Biscuits are different from most other quickbreads in that they have to be kneaded slightly. This makes them high, light, and flaky. Warning: knead with a light touch, and only 30 seconds.

After rolling out dough, dip sharp knife in flour. Cut into squares by pressing knife or spatula straight down. Avoid "dragging" the knife through the dough. This pulls the biscuits out of shape and makes them lean to one side during baking. Bake on ungreased baking sheet.

Serve biscuits hot, with honey and tea, the traditional accessories. Hot biscuits are one of the most economical ways to add not only appetite appeal, but needed B-vitamins and iron to the menu.

BISCUITS

2 cups sifted enriched flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cut or rub in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently 30 seconds. Roll out one-half inch thick. Cut with floured biscuit cutter or sharp knife. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about 12 biscuits.

"A rakish bride and groom, easily made from loaves of bread, blend tradition and pure whimsy for the rehearsal dinner table decoration," suggests Catherine Gray, Fosteria Glass consultant on correct table settings.

To make the gay pair, you'll need loaves of thick French bread for the bodies, small round loaves for the heads, bread sticks for the arms, and rolls for the feet.

Cut the bottom of the loaves of French bread, so the figures will stand erect. Then ream the inside of the loaves to cut down the weight of the figures. Attach the head, arms and feet firmly to the body, using orange sticks, pencils, or wire.

Dress the groom in a tuxedo cut from black paper, give him a white paper vest, and fasten a carnation in his buttonhole. To make the face, cut eyes and mouth from colored paper and paste them to the head. Make the hair from short lengths of yarn and paste it firmly to the head.

Paper doilies and white crepe paper fashion the bride's gown and veil. Tuck a small bouquet of roses in the bride's breadstick arm. Cut long, curly eyelashes and a rosy mouth from colored paper and paste them on the face.

At the feet of the pair, place bouquets made by braiding the ribbons from all the bride's shower packages. The maid or matron of honor will carry the bouquets at the rehearsal, when she takes the place of the bride. A pair of crystal candle holders with tall white tapers complete the table decoration.

"Linen place mats are in perfect harmony with your nicest china and silver," says Miss Gray. "And of course, you will want to use your best cut crystal goblets, wine glasses, and juice glasses to give the final touch of sparkling beauty to the table setting."

Two men sat at a drug store coffee counter discussing what to wear to a club's cotton ball.

"Why wouldn't overalls be appropriate to wear?" Lawrence Carter queried while Chet Simms sipped his coffee.

"I've got some real nice overalls—and they are clean—and they cost just as much as a pair of slacks," Carter argued.

Standing nearby, I just could not help but listen—and before I knew it, I was asking the gentleman if he would wear overalls to a cotton ball with a lady?

"I certainly would," he replied, as he went on with his defense—"my overalls are clean and they're cotton."

Then I addressed Simms and told him that Carter must be confusing a cotton ball with a barn dance or a hill-billy affair; and, I asked Simms if he would wear overalls to a cotton ball?

"Sure, I would. They cost $3.50," was his answer.

Along came Mail Carrier Gilbert Russell wearing one of Uncle Sam's mail carrier's neatly tailored summer cotton uniforms.

"No," I don't ever want to see a pair of overalls. I just don't like overalls," he assured.

Mr. Gerald Ratton approached and he was asked if he would wear a pair of overalls to a cotton ball?

"Times have changed," he said, pointing out that "you used not to see women on the street wearing shorts—but you do now."

Along came Mr. Ralph Bruce who was sure that "overalls would not be appropriate. Men should wear them while working, lounging or fishing."

When questioned, Mr. James Tally recalled that "I have worn overalls since I was three years old. I used to think that it was the greatest life to see a guy coming down the street

The Wm. Harris of Ohio Guests Of Mr. And Mrs. Cassell

Mr. and Mrs. William Harris and daughter, Delores, of Columbus, Ohio, were week end guests in the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Cassell. The Ohioans were returning from a vacation spent in Mexico and San Bernadine and Los Angeles, Calif., with relatives.

with duckets on and I went and got me a pair. I used to wear them to church down in Oklahoma—but I don't wear them to church anymore."

Mr. Rufus Parker thought "it would be alright."

Then came Mr. George Stone, to purchase a few copies of the Bystander.

"To a cotton ball?" he repeated. "I'd wear something informal—sports shirt, slacks. I just don't wear overalls."

"When I see overalls, I think about work or going to a barn dance or something. I never wore jeans to school. When I came along, from the first to the sixth grades, the boys wore knee pants and long socks. Then at junior age, knickers; and by the time they got to high school, they were ready for long wash pants."

"You don't see things like that now. Boys don't have any appearance anymore. It's just a change in the times. Right now, my boy doesn't dress like I used to," Mr. Stone discussed.

Well, the next morning after the cotton ball, I ran into Mr. Stanley Proctor, who mentioned the L. T. club's "very nice cotton ball last night."

"Was any man wearing overalls at the ball?" Mr. Proctor was asked.

"No. Not a one! The men were neat summer suits—and everyone just looked very nice, I thought," was his comment.

Mr. E. P. Jackson, 1155 Enos, had the surprise of his life last Saturday when he came home from work and found sitting in his living room, his youngest brother whom he saw last, twenty-seven years ago, at their home in Vicksburg, Miss.

The surprise visitor was Mr. B. F. Jackson of Houston, Texas, who had motored to Des Moines with a nephew, W. F. White of Rock Hill, Mo. The two had come from St. Louis, Mo., where Mr. Jackson had been visiting a sister.

There was much rejoicing in the Jackson home where the brothers talked all night and into the next day when the visitors left to return to St. Louis.

KICKING AT SEGREGATION
ON EVERY FRONT

Further striking at segregation in the use of public funds, the NAACP has moved in on housing projects. Two suits have been filed to test the practice of building federally financed projects and excluding Negroes from occupancy solely on the basis of race.

Undoubtedly, these cases will find their way to the U. S. Supreme Court and on the basis of rulings in other cases involving tax supported projects, the Bystander believes the NAACP will win another smashing victory.

It has always appeared ridiculous that dispensers of public funds would have the timidity to use a part of the money contributed by Negroes to the federal government to segregate them. But the proponents of segregation have been so bold that they felt no one would challenge their high handed methods.

Sometime ago, President Eisenhower announced that he was opposed to the use of federal money where segregation exists. It is only a question of time when the courts will agree with him.

It is obvious that America cannot continue to relegate a portion of its people to second-class citizenship placing a stigma upon them and at the same time preach democracy as the best way of life. More and more men are being judged on the basis of merit and character and not the superficial rules of race and religion.

More power to the NAACP in its latest battle.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS
PRODUCE SURPRISES

As is usually the case, the primary election Monday brought some surprises. Possibly the most outstanding was the vote of Attorney General Hoegh who polled 38.4 of the vote cast for governor on the Republican ticket.

Most people expected the Republican governors' race would go to the convention. And yet political leaders hoped against it. Primary scraps stir up enough rancor in the party organizations and convention contests in tensify cisms and often make it hard to win in the fall.

Now that the lines are drawn and the public knows who is to be the standard bearer for each party, the job begins in earnest to elect party candidates this fall. Frankly, some candidates don't merit their nominations but this will be brought out as time goes on.

Fortunately, during the primaries, the Bystander polled candidates for governor and attorney general on the enforcement of Iowa Civil Rights law. All pledged that it, along with all other laws, would be enforced and Attorney General Hoegh has demonstrated by word and deed that he means to deliver on this question for he has done so in the past.

Unfortunately our primary elections are not participated in nor being out the vote as they should but what voters did go to the polls have spoken and thus the democratic system continues to function.

UN HEARING SHOULD BE ATTENDED

Shortly, participation by the U. N. in United Nations will be before the Senate for reexamination and ratification. Naturally that body is anxious to determine what the American people think for all supposedly legislation should express the will of the people.

While the majority of the people favor some kind of cooperative effort among nations and U. N. is the only organization working in that direction, there are those who are opposed to it basing their position upon the theory that they fear encroachment upon the sovereignty of individual countries.

The latter view is held by the so called isolationist group who want the U. S. to go in a shell and travel alone. This, of course, is narrow, unrealistic and selfish. It does not suit world conditions by any means.

On June 9, a sub-committee of the senate Committee on Foreign Relations of the U. S. Senate is holding a hearing in Des Moines in order to gather what people in the middle west think on the subject. This presents a splendid opportunity to be heard on both sides of the subject.

The meetings are open to the public. Since Des Moines has been honored by having been selected as the site of the hearing, Iowa citizens should turn out in goodly numbers and let the senators know that Iowans are an alert group of people.

Fishermen Asked To Return Walleye Tags

Iowa fishermen are being urged by the State Conservation Commission to keep a sharp lookout for tagged walleye pike caught this spring in Spirit Lake.

About 1,000 walleyes were marked with small aluminum jaw tags before they were stocked, and a number of the marked fish are expected to show up on stringers.

Recovery of these tags is very important from a fish management standpoint, for from the number of tags returned Commission biologists can make a good estimate of the total walleye population in Spirit Lake.

The tags may be returned to State conservation officers, to the biology building at Arnold's Park, or to the State Conservation Commission in Des Moines.

Screen for Nursery

A FOLDING screen is mighty handy to have in the nursery, where it can be used to keep drafts off the crib and as a shield against light, noise and activity.

Like the one in the illustration, the screen may be made in the home workshop and neatly decorated by means of decoupage or stencils. Panels without the nursery characters may be finished with blackboard slating material, so the pre-school child will have a place to draw.

Materials for this simple device may be obtained in any lumber yard—1 by 2-inch lumber for the framing and crossbars, Masonite Tempered Duolux, a durable hardboard that's smooth on both sides, and the hardware. The panels, after being cut to size, are inserted in grooves which have been cut in the framing with a power saw.

The stick-on pictures are available at paint and hardware stores, which are sources also for stencils used in hand-painted work. Major paint companies make slate surfacing material, which simply is brushed on the Masonite Duolux with a brush after the panel has been prepared with two coats of clear sealer.

ELEMENTRY, MY
DEAR WATSON

In the 1890's, when the German scientist Robert Koch developed tuberculosis, one of the distinguished foreigners who visited him to discuss his discovery was an English physician named Arthur Conan Doyle. Yes—it was the creator of our old friend, Sherlock Holmes. The famous writer of detective stories was enthusiastic about this new substance which could detect tuberculosis germs in the human body. In a magazine article, he called it "a very important addition to the art of medicine."

Koch discovered that if he injected an extract of TB germs—tubercle bacilli—into the skin of animals, those who had been infected with the germs would soon develop raised red spots where the injection had been made. Others, who had not been exposed to tuberculosis, had no reaction.

By this simple means today we can find whether or not tuberculosis germs have entered the human body. The red bump that we call a tuberculin reaction does not mean that the person has tuberculosis. His body may have been able to overcome the invading germs, as in the case with most people who react to tuberculin. But the reaction does mean that he has been around someone who has the disease in an active form so that germs were passed on to him.

To the doctor a tuberculin reaction is a clue, just as a foot print was to Sherlock Holmes. Then the doctor can take precautions to see that the germs do no further damage. And he can track down the culprit, tuberculosis, by examining the family and friends and associates of the reactor, to see whether one of them may be spreading TB germs without even realizing that he has the disease.

Tournament This Week

The Hilltop Tennis club will begin this week end at the Good Park courts, an elimination tournament for boys and girls under 18 years old, Everett Mays, president of the club, announced.

The elimination tournament will be under the management of Phillip Tindrell.

still arguing about whether he hit Jersey Joe at all in their second bout. Joe was hit in our opinion. A man past thirty-five doesn't shake off punches very well and can't take a very hard blow to the head. But even so, the Rock ought to take Charles.

The recent bribe attempt hit the people as a big surprise. The whole thing seems sort of silly almost too silly to comment on. Sounds like the workings of a badly scrambled brain. Clarence Henry ought to have a thorough mental examination before he is tried for a planned crime.

JUNE * MOON * SPOON

Many jillion rhymes are writ on June and moon and spoon, and every kind of balderdash is set up to a tune.

I'd like to read a brand new screed a different kind of rhyme, that gives a thrill to fill the bill in every land and clime.

Let's have home stuff that isn't guff and don't disguise a fact, about the natural things all do,

the way all talk and act.
It doesn't have to be at night and lover's need no moon, the fires of love are just as warm;
in winter as in June.

Out of the Living
Past—'The Negro'

by MARION E. HOCKENHULL

Since we have been discussing the Egyptian people, many things have been brought to light which might make this article more interesting, if the readers review their column of April 15.

Writers, sometime get information from nature itself and we just write. The columnist on April 15 wrote an article about the Ethiopian king who ruled both Upper and Lower in about 5,000 B.C. Many interesting things have been mentioned about that era lately.

Egypt's most ancient name was Kem, Khen, or Kam, signifying land of black faces and dark soil.

Now is the time to tell you something about King Solomon—or else—he would be very displeased.

Solomon in Hebrew is Shelomoh (the peaceful). He was the son of David and Bathsheba. He was educated by the Egyptian priests and prophets, Nathan was one of his teachers.

He ruled some of the most famous parts of Egypt and all of the Holy Lands (about 1015-975 B.C.). He erected his Temple of Jerusalem into a most magnificent palace.

Solomon obtained men and timber from Tyre; the highest skill of Tyrian sculptors was displayed. On the two elaborate pillars which stood immediately under the porch with their pedestals of gold, their glittering shafts, their shining festoons, which were thought to be so beautiful that the Ethiopians were never weary of praising them.

ately under the porch with their pedestals of gold, their glittering shafts, their shining festoons, which were thought to be so beautiful that the Ethiopians were never weary of praising them.

During the ruins of Medinet, a temple founded by Ethiopian queen Hatshepsut who ruled during the 18th dynasty, a large and magnificent temple entirely built by Ramesses III of the 20th dynasty and it was an extremely curious and interesting building, part palace, part fortress which was popularly known as the pavilion.

The walls of this pavilion, the walls of the great forecourt leading to the smaller temple and a corner of the original wall of circuit are crowned in the Egyptian with shield-shaped battlements as the Khetan and Amorit fortresses were battlemented in the sculptured tableau at Abou Simbel and elsewhere.

These Egyptian battlementing which have survived destruction—those of the wall of circuit are the time of Ramesses III.

About the dieties of the Solar cycle belong the great gods of Thebes and Relopis. In the local worship of Egypt the dieties were arranged in local and triads; thus a Memphis, Ptah, his wife, Merientph, and their son Kerfor Atum, formed a triad, to which sometimes was added another god or goddess.

But of all the Egyptian gods, Amen—Ra—the Sun god, is the blackest in complexion of all king of gods, resident in the Kenusi which is the land of Nubia.

One reads about them all day Sunday and jimmies and segregates them all day Monday.
