To Recruit, 50 Men For All Iowa Platoon

During the month of October, 1954, the United States Army is having a special recruiting drive within the State of Iowa to enlist an entire Platoon of fifty men, who will be known as the "All Iowa Platoon."

The men who volunteer for this "All Iowa Platoon" will remain together for their entire sixteen weeks of basic training and will be known during this period as the "All Iowa Platoon."

The main reason that the Army wishes to enlist this platoon is that Army officials have found that men who have something in common such as being from the same state or city, are better equipped to combat the home-sickness which usually comes to the average young man during the first few weeks and months that he is away from his home.

In addition the Army has found that men coming from the same state or city have a much higher

What Happened to Dodgers This Year? Giants Just Better

Pittsburgh, Pa. — (CNS) — What happened to the Dodgers this year? Branch Rickey, their former boss, says the Dodgers are just as good as ever. The Giants were better this year and that was mostly due to their manager, Leo Durocher. Rickey has so much confidence in the present bunch of Dodgers that he predicts bounce back next year and win the pennant.

"It's not so much that Brooklyn lost the pennant; the New York club won it," Rickey explained. "I think it has been a marvelous club, pretty much free from injury. Durocher has done a magnificent job of keeping his team spirited—a marvelous job."

When pinned down as to a particular Brooklyn failure this year, Rickey said: "That hand of Campanella's made a tremendous difference. It is an entirely different team without him and it would have been an entirely different story with him."

A shrewd dealer in talent and one who's long been known to sell a player way before he's "over the hill," Rickey—nonetheless disagrees that the Dodgers are old and played out. "It may be that one or two of the boys are showing age," he says, "but it's still a fine club. They'll bounce back and win. Reese still is an excellent player. So is Robinson. He had a bad season for injuries."

This may be just an opinion of a cellar dweller looking wistfully up as Rickey manages the Pittsburgh Pirates but the Rajah still has confidence in his "team."

spirit during their period of training than men who are mixed with men from other areas. This has been particularly true with National Guard and Reserve Divisions which were called to active duty during the Korean Conflict.

From this area, Sgt. King, Army Recruiter at Des Moines, Iowa said that he will send 10 men for the "All Iowa Platoon."

Lincoln University's Head, Dr. Sherman D. Scruggs, in London Hospital; Had Stroke

Lincoln University, Mo.—Dr. Sherman D. Scruggs, president of Lincoln University, Jefferson City, is ill in a hospital in London, England, it was learned here last week.

Dr. Scruggs was one of 16 American educators selected by the San Francisco State college at San Francisco to serve as consultants on a two-month travel seminar to Eastern Mediterranean countries. The group left New York on June 28 to return on September 5.

Dr. Scruggs was stricken about two weeks ago while in London en route to the States.

Stanley D. Scruggs, 43337 Freeman, Kansas City, Kas., brother of the university president, talked last Tuesday night by telephone to Dr. William M. Blount, Kansas City Kas., physician who is in London and at Dr. Scruggs' bedside. Dr. Blount told the brother that Dr. Scruggs is resting fairly well and that he would stay with him until he improved sufficiently to return home.

Dr. Blount left Kansas City Sunday night to fly to London and then to Rome for a World Medical meeting. Before leaving he was told by Dr. Scruggs' brother of the educator's illness. Dr. Blount arrived in London Tuesday morning and immediately went to the private hospital of Dr. J. Adler in Endleigh Court where Dr. Scruggs is a patient.

It was learned that the Lincoln university president had suffered a stroke of paralysis of the throat and that his voice is affected. When he

Louis On Charles: He Didn't Have Nothing

New York. — (CNS) — Joe Louis, who had picked Ezzard Charles to win over Marciano, made only one comment after the fight was over, "Charles didn't have nothing."

He agreed with Charles' co-manager Tom Tannas that Ezzard "should have taken the first count" when knocked down the first time in the eighth. "But Charles didn't have nothing."

Mrs. Gertrude Rush 'Down To Earth' After Tour of 11 Countries in Europe, Asia

BY MARIE ROSS

Getting "down to earth" again after a six-week tour of eleven countries in Europe and Asia is Des Moines' veteran woman lawyer, Mrs. Gertrude E. Rush, who returned to the city the early part of this month.

In her office this week at 316½ Locust street, Mrs. Rush sat at her desk recalling some of the "grand" experiences of her trip from the time she boarded the TWA plane in New York City, bound for her first stop in Paris, France, through Italy, Greece, Spain, Portugal, Egypt, Turkey, Iraq, Oman, Palestine and Syria.

Like a Dream

"It all seems like a beautiful dream—and if I had not brought back a few souvenirs, it would be hard for me to believe that I was not just dreaming," Mrs. Rush said.

With a special interest in the Holy Land, about which she has done some writings, the lawyer of 36 years of practice in Des Moines brought back such souvenirs as: a few stones from the Garden of Eden; a small bottle of water from the Dead Sea; tiny pieces of bulrushes on the river where Moses was hidden when an infant; stones from the walls of Jericho; leaves from the 4,000-year-

Ward's Dominoes In NAACP Benefits

New York—Billy Ward and his world-famous Dominoes fill play a series of benefits for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The announcement was made last week by Mrs. Rose A. Marks, manager of the attraction.

NAACP executive secretary, Walter White, called upon the Dominoes, recognized throughout showbusiness as one of the great money-making acts, to aid the association in its fund-raising campaign. Ward leaped at the opportunity to serve, lauding "the great work that the NAACP is doing for mankind."

Ward's wire of acceptance to Mr. White continued: "Please be assured that it is hereby an honor and a privilege to place my group at your disposal."

Students Pay Last Respects to Terry Wm. Bell

Students from East and other high schools in the city overflowed the audience of Greater Bethel AME church last Thursday afternoon to pay their last respects to Terry William Bell, 15.

The Rev. Cecil E. Duke, former pastor of Bethel church, delivered the eulogy. Burial was in Glendale cemetery.

Bell, a sophomore at East High school at the time of his death and a member of the school's band, died at Raymond Blank hospital Sept. 14 of a congenital heart defect. He was a member of the Union Baptist church's Sunday School.

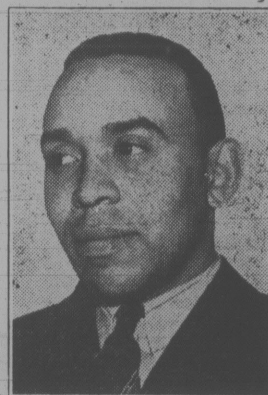

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Edythe S. Grant; step-father, Orville Grant; father, William Bell, Milwaukee, Wisc.; and maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary D. Doyle, Des Moines.

TERRY HAD VACATION THIS SUMMER WITH FATHER

campus including the library and its facilities.

During the week there will be a well-balanced program of recreation high-lighted by the President's reception for new students by Drake President and Mrs. H. G. Harmon. Dances and several "get acquainted" convocations are also on the orientation week schedule.

A special convocation entitled "Religion Goes to College" will give new students an opportunity to meet student religious leaders and establish church affiliations in churches of their choice.

Some 83 upperclassmen and women will return to the campus a week early to serve as counselors during orientation week.

One of the highlights of the week was the traditional welcoming convocation Monday, Sept. 20 when President Harmon personally welcomed Drake students to the campus.

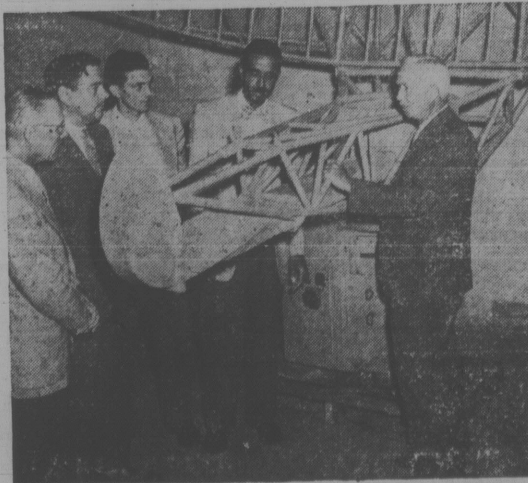

Drake faculty members participated in a workshop Sept. 19-21 which was highlighted by an address by President Harmon who completed a trip to the Middle East this summer.

Georgia Governor Cares Not What Communists Say About His Defiance of Law

Atlantic City, N. J.,—Herman Talmadge, governor of Georgia, was blasted here Tuesday as "more useful to the Kremlin than the whole American Communist party in creating distrust of the white western world."

Addressing the United Steelworkers of America, Walter White, executive secretary of the NAACP, referred scathingly to Governor Talmadge's open defiance of the Supreme Court decision banning segregated public schools and to the Southern governor's recent statement that he doesn't care what the Communists say about his defiance of the law.

Do Not Agree

The civil rights leader declared it "fortunate" that most southerners do not agree with Talmadge.

Mr. White also censured the 83rd Congress for its failure to act on, "or even seriously consider, a single piece of civil rights legislation."

He described the civil rights record of President Eisenhower as "good" but that of his party as "bad."

The steelworkers were praised by Mr. White for their fight against racial discrimination and segregation in the South as well as the North.

Bring Praise

The union's recent elimination of the North-South wage differential also brought praise from Mr. White. The regional differential was eliminated in recent negotiations conducted by the steelworkers' president, David McDonald, with U. S. Steel.

As "effective" civil rights work done by the steelworkers Mr. White cited the union's support of municipal, state and federal FEPC, as well as legal briefs filed by the CIO in the school segregation, restrictive covenant and other court cases which resulted in "civil rights victories."

Meeting the "challenge" of unemployment and working for compliance with the Supreme Court decision banning segregated public schools were seen by the civil rights

Students in West Virginia Withdraw Protests Against Negroes in Their Schools

New York—White high school students who earlier last week staged a demonstration against Negro students assigned to their school in White Sulphur Springs W. Va., have withdrawn their objections, it was revealed September 16, through information received at the NAACP national office here.

Walter White, executive secretary of the Association, said he had been informed of this fact by two West Virginia NAACP officials who, at the request of the national office, went to White Sulphur Springs to investigate the school situation there. They were T. G. Nutter, president of the West Virginia State Conference of NAACP Branches and member of the Association's national board of directors, and Willard Brown, president of the Charleston, W. Va., branch.

Mr. White noted that he had been informed by Mr. Nutter and Mr. Brown that a news story in Sept. 15 edition of a Charleston W. Va., daily newspaper also announced that the white high school students had ceased their objections to having Negro students attend their school.

Earlier in the week the White Sulphur Springs school board reversed its decision to integrate local schools in line with the Supreme Court decision banning segregation in public education after white students and white parents demonstrated against the entrance of Negro pupils into the formerly all-white high school.

Say U. S. Foreign Policy Causing Unfavorable Public Opinions in Asian Nations

New York—Thousands of university students and other young people in Asia are scrutinizing each move of U. S. Southern states to defy the Supreme Court decision banning segregated public schools, a Harvard Law School student just returned from a trip through five Asian nations declared last week.

Walter Carrington, one of 14 American delegates to attend the 50-nation World Assembly of Youth in Singapore, was interviewed here as he headed back to Cambridge, Mass., and his law studies.

In addition to Singapore, Mr. Carrington visited India, Pakistan, Thailand and Malaya.

In Cairo

Young Mr. Carrington related that when he arrived in Cairo, Egypt, one of the first things to catch his eye was a front-page newspaper story on Louisiana's defiance of the Supreme Court decision.

Although the judicial ban against segregated public schools helped American prestige "tremendously" in Asia, the law student observed, Asian doubts regarding enforcement of the decision were constantly being "reinforced" by Southern moves to continue segregated public schools at any cost.

So closely were these moves being watched in Asia that Mr. Carrington found Asian students with whom he talked to be more up-to-date on Southern defiance of the high court than he was.

As the sole youth member of the NAACP national board of directors, Mr. Carrington can be considered to be quite up-to-date in U. S. race relations himself.

On the subject of American-Asian relations, Mr. Carrington painted a picture of current dislike for the United States throughout Asia. He attributed this present hostile attitude towards the U. S. to "McCarthyism and its affiliated symptoms" and American foreign policy in re-

Personal Touch

MARIE
ROSS

Autumn—that "season of mists and mellow fruitfulness," wrote the poet Keats, arrived officially on the calendar Thursday.

Helen Jackson, in her poem "September," described the fall of the year as the time when:

The golden-rod is yellow;
The corn is turning brown;
The trees in apple orchards
With fruit are bending down.

The second verse pictured:
The gentian's bluest fringes
Are curling in the sun;
In dusty pods the milkweed
Its hidden silk has spun.

The poet goes on paying tribute to all of "these lovely tokens" of September days.

We know autumn is a busy time of the year for man as well as animal. We see the farmer doing his early harvesting getting the corn which the poet said "is turning brown," ready to be stored away for winter; collecting the apples, pears, grapes from the orchards.

We watch the squirrels scamper about the lawns and trees collecting the seeds from the fruit, carting away chestnuts, walnuts and acorns to their winter hideouts.

We may look at the golden-rod say "what a beautiful yellow"—or break off a branch or so to dry for some flower vase; or point at the gentian's bluest fringes or hope that some of the hidden silk from the dusty pods of milkweed does not blow our direction.

Then we wonder as we roam the countryside collecting the fall leaves, nuts, flowers, or cutting the lawns around our homes, what value to mankind, aside from their beauty, are the golden rod, the blue gentian, or the milkweed?

Busy Time

As the fall season sets in, roaming the hillsides, the roadsides or any place where certain kinds of plants grow, will be an Old-Timer, one who was born in an era when mankind lived near to nature and knew the value of all of God's plants.

Should anyone run onto him as he strides about the city collecting wild greens for the housewife's dinner table, or walking to the riverside for a string of fish, this Old Timer would point with pride to the yellow golden rod, the blue gentian or the milkweed plants and say as he smiles: "Every plant that God has created is of some value to mankind."

Many persons see the Old Timer, Mr. William Carter of 946 Sixteenth street, going here and there, digging in the soil or picking a plant, flower or twig, and no one ever wants to believe that he passed his eighty-sixth birthday last May.

He accredits his long active life and strong body, which he says has no aches or pains, to "obedience to the laws of God," to a strong belief in what the writer of the Ecclesiastics said in one of the lost books of the Old Bible—that "The Lord hath created medicines out of the earth; and he that is wise will not abhor them."

Born May 15, 1868, in Pittsfield County, Va., Mr. Carter recalled that his parents taught him the Ten Commandments and God's promise that "your days will be long upon this land."

Kin of 'Sitting Bull'

One of ten children, Mr. Carter said "we did what our parents told us. When they told us to go out into the fields and bring back certain roots and herbs of plants, we went. They were the only medicines we had."

Mr. Carter recalled that his mother used to tell him about her parents and grandparents and all about "Sitting Bull," the famous Indian Medicine man, who was one of the warriors in the early American history, and a great grandfather of the Iowan.

"My mother told me that her grandfather, was Sitting Bull's son. I read all about him after I grew up. Now get off that limb; you're going too far back into history," he said.

Mr. Carter came to Iowa in 1904 to work in the mining camps at Monroe County, after having worked as a miner in West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Wherever he has lived, he always has his own garden in which he plants many of the foods and medicines that he considers necessary for his body.

This summer, growing in his backyard, where he lives with a foster son, Mr. George Carter, and family, the Old Timer had in the small plot, all of the well-known vegetables, beets, carrots, turnips, mustard, spinach, lettuce, beans, corn, rhubarb, grapes.

(Lively Elder in His Garden at 86)

Has 'Doctor Tree'

On one inspection tour of his garden, he pointed out with pride what he called his "Doctor Tree," an Indian Wahoo tree, and underneath some of the grapevines, he picked a leaf of another plant, he said was "most valuable" to have dried during the winter months for all of the family's colds and fevers. He called that "Thousand Leaf," or what some of the plant books refer to as "Thousand Seal."

Mr. Carter is a great believer and has kept active himself by the teas he has made from bark of the root of the Indian Wahoo trees and the "Thousand Leaf."

"My parents taught me many of the plants that we used to collect when we were kids, but I have forgotten so many of their names. I keep the Indian Wahoo and the Thousand Leaf because I know how valuable they are to me," he talked.

He made it clear that he was not trying to do the work of any doctor, but just trying to keep body strong and healthy so that he would not have to call on a doctor. He said that only once in his family, while growing up, did his parents have to get a doctor, and that was when his sister had her appendix removed.

Ailing people ask him frequently what he uses to keep active and always have a favorable outlook on life and the world? Mr. Carter said he tells them to "have faith, believe in God, pray often and He will guide you."

Mr. Carter has a hearty appetite but believes in eating a "sufficient" quantity.

"If you eat or drink too much then it is a sin," he declared, and then he added that "the preachers say that it is a sin to drink alcohol, but it is the best medicine in the world."

"When mixed with the Indian Wahoo and Thousand Leaf taken in the springtime, in small doses, it is the best tonic for me," he informed.

About his eating, during the spring and summertime, Mr. Carter said he had one favorite meal he cooks for himself and eats during the morning.

His Daily Meal

"Mix in a skillet, two or three slices of bacon, good and done; leaves of lettuce, Swiss chard, beet, turnip, mustard greens, bunch of green onion chopped; cook good and done in very little water because they will make a lot of juice; break in two or three eggs and scramble. Eat with cornbread or a corn cake."

"Sometimes, I don't eat anymore the rest of the day," the Old Timer added. "I don't mess with meats much—but I like gravy."

Mr. Carter looks forward each day "to the blessings of God, health, happiness, success and strength—and I pray for the blessings of the people."

The Old Timer pulled out his wallet and fished out a piece of the root of the Wahoo tree. He broke off a piece and began to chew it and commented: "Whenever a pain comes, I just chew a piece of this Indian Wahoo. You know, when I tell people this, they laugh—then they ask me how much do I charge for a piece of it?" Then he laughed again and said "if I charged—Man—they would have me in court."

"The Good Book says—'Blessed be the cheerful giver'—and Christ said—'whatever you do for your fellowman, He will reward you,'" he quoted.

Mr. Carter revealed that he is not fond of television, that he prefers the company of people and that he enjoys picking greens, looking at the golden-rod or the brownish corn, because it gives him an opportunity to meet more people.

Can Tomatoes Whole for Salads

In home-canning tomatoes, the utility or regular pack, in which the tomatoes are pressed down tight, is all right for most purposes, but a few whole packed tomatoes come in handy. When chilled and cut in quarters, they add much to tomato aspic and other congealed salads.

Regardless of how you are going to pack tomatoes, use only clean, fresh, sound, firm, red-ripe tomatoes for canning. Every tomato should be washed, rinsed, and drained before scalding. To scald tomatoes without over-cooking, put 6 or 8 in a square of cheesecloth or wire basket and hold in boiling water about one-half minute. Dip in cold water and drain before cutting out the core.

(Cut deep enough to get it all.) After the core is out, slip off the skin and drop tomato into a hot Ball Mason Jar. If whole tomatoes are wanted, pack them closely without crushing and add hot tomato juice or water to cover. If using utility pack, press the tomatoes down tight until juice runs from them. One teaspoon salt is usually added to each quart of tomatoes, although tomatoes keep as well without salt.

Don't forget to leave almost 1/4 inch of headspace when filling the jar. Run a knife down between the tomatoes and the jar to bring up air bubbles. More liquid may be needed to fill space left when the bubbles are removed from jars of whole packed tomatoes. Don't bother to add more to the utility pack.

Wipe tops and threads of jars clean. Then apply your Ball Dome Caps according to instructions printed on the box. Process tomatoes in a boiling water bath, 35 minutes for whole tomatoes and 45 minutes for a utility pack.

Visiting around Iowa
by Joe Marsh

The Cave in the Woods

When Em and I were cleaning the attic the other day I found an old yellowed newspaper with an item about Dutton's Cave.

Back in the 1840's Lorenzo Dutton discovered a cave in the woods near West Union. Picnickers had a great time walking back inside for about 300 feet to a nice little lake. But silt piled up and finally blocked the entrance.

Think of it. Just tiny specks of sand, but they made a barrier big enough to spoil the fun. It sort of reminds you of prejudices. Individually, prejudices may be small matters, but collectively they can interfere with the rightful pleasures of others, such as playing cards, dancing, or enjoying a temperate glass of beer.

Most Iowans are broad-minded folks. They may not agree with their neighbors on many matters—home design, for example, or vacation spots, or tastes in food and entertainment—but they respect the other fellow's right to his own choice.

trumpet and Shelly Manne beating the drums are also on the bill. Shorty and his Giants have, over the past year, been responsible for broadening the horizons of jazz.

Make Guitar Do Things

And to make the guitar do things never before heard, Stan Kenton has corralled the fabulous Johnny Smith, and returning, once again, to help make this a real Festival, none other than the "King of Bongo", Candido. To carry the sole burden of song, "The Festival of Modern American Jazz" has selected the one and only Mary Ann McCall, who has long been the favorite of modern jazz lovers.

Fall Fashion Trend

Casual is a magic fashion word this fall. Typical of the trend is this appealing wool felt cloche with gracefully sweeping brim and colorful pleated feather. The flattering shapes and gorgeous colors of wool felts complement the flowing silhouettes of autumn coats and suits to achieve the much desired smart but relaxed look.

The trend is toward "hatter hats" and more wonderful jewel-like colors. This extends even to the smaller hats which will be "more hat." Wool felt hats will interpret the new, easy-to-wear, more becoming hat styles in crowns that mold and lines that flatter.

A wide variety of exciting smart new fashion colors and modest pricing make it possible for every woman to have a complete new hat wardrobe. Colors run from fiesta and shocking at the red end of the spectrum through blues of cornflower and teal tones which are popularly named province and peacock. There are also notable ones in strange family such as tangerine and capucine.

"The Ghost of Mr. Penny" and "Puss in Boots" will be the productions that go on tour.

About 160 students of Drake's children's theatre act in the various productions along with some regular college students. This is the ninth season under the direction of Miss Boynton.

Hanging Shelf

SINCE students usually are interested in novelties, a hanging bookshelf over the desk will strike their fancy and be functional, too. Simple to make, the bookshelf consists of a framework of 1 by 2-inch lumber, of the desired length and about one foot wide, covered with Masonite 1/4" Tempered Presswood that is glued to the top and bottom.

As shown in the illustration, the shelf is suspended over the desk by means of heavy cord looped through screw-eyes. The shelf's front edge should tilt slightly. Edges of the hardboard should be rounded slightly with sandpaper. The surfaces of Tempered Presswood may be left in the natural dark brown color, with the exposed framework stained or painted, or they may be waxed, stained, varnished, painted or enameled.

By using Masonite Pressply, three-fourths of an inch thick, the same type of shelf may be produced with even less effort. Wood moulding glued to the edges is suggested when using Pressply, which has a core of plywood and surfaces of Tempered Presswood.

'It Is Good For the Child to Learn that His Parents Respect His Intelligence'

BY AFTON SMITH, ASSISTANT PROFESSOR

Small children are very intelligent, although we sometimes do not seem to think so. They will listen to reason. Every day in the nursery school we may see two, three, and four-year-old children who stop, listen to the teacher, hesitate a moment, then comply with the teacher's request.

If she says, "Let us put the wagon away now because it is time for lunch," they may obey willingly. But if she should shout (which she never does), "Hurry up. Put the wagon away this minute and come with me," the child can see no reason for doing so.

Naturally the child rebels as grownups do when they can see no reason for a command. Each time, a child is helped to obey willingly and without the use of force or fear, he learns a little more about self-control and cooperation.

To be sure, a two-year-old may not understand all of our reasons. Yet simple and brief explanations have value. It is good for the parent to practice the habit of respecting the child's intelligence. It is good for the child to learn that his parents respect his intelligence.

There is danger, of course, in overdoing our habit of explaining "why," for a child can prolong the argument with a complete chain reaction consisting of his own "whys." Common sense tells us that many things must be done in a day's time without elaborate explanation. There is a place for prompt obedience in the family's day-to-day life. However, small children are more intelligent than we think. We can make use of their intelligence more often than we do.

DEMOS ADMIT EISENHOWER PROGRAM IS SOUND

When the Eisenhower administration took over the reins of government last year it was generally concerned that conditions in Washington were in a chaotic state. And as time went on they found the situation even worse than had been expected.

The program laid down by President Eisenhower appealed to most people and he has stuck pretty close to his plans even though they called for disagreement with Republicans at times. By and large, most of his proposals have been enacted into law.

Now the Democrats are asking the votes to elect a Democratic Congress to carry out Mr. Eisenhower's policies. By so doing, they admit that these policies are sound. On the other hand, they infer that the Democratic members of Congress did not deliver on those measures which were not passed.

The real complainers are those professional knockers who expect the government to continue a war in order to keep all employables at work. Of course a certain number of people are always out of work and it was generally conceded that the number would be higher during the readjustment period.

From every standpoint, the Eisenhower administration has made a good record and with ample time will place the country on an even more sound basis. And the campaign orators will stress this more and more as the campaign goes on.

RADIO ANNOUNCERS SHOULD TELL WHOLE STORY

Judging from the radio announcers of the Marciano-Charles fight, the latter landed practically no blows and those he did had no steam behind them.

However, it was rather interesting to read a comment by Sec Taylor which indicates what the announcer either did not see or failed to report what happened. Says Taylor:

"Except for the air of triumph that permeated the room and the smiles and the good will, you'd have thought that Rocky Marciano had been the loser in his championship fight with Ezzard Charles in Yankee Stadium late Friday night.

"Rocky's face was a sight. His nose, in which a slit an inch long had been cut, was encased in white gauze and tape and there was a patch of the same over a slight cut near his left eye.

"This was Saturday noon in a room in the Hampshire House where the champion and his manager, Al Weill, were holding a press conference 12 hours after Marciano had knocked out Charles in the eighth round of a scheduled 15-rounder.

"The champion, rubbing at the bandages on his nose as if they itched or irritated him, first explained that he had slept well after the fight and his injuries had not been painful."

It was generally concurred that Marciano would win. He has just too much strength and can take too much for a man such as Charles to beat him. Charles, strategy was planned to cut Marciano's face up so badly that he could not see and then go on to win. And it must be conceded that he made an excellent stab at the job but Marciano caught up with him before the plan worked.

The champion won a clean cut victory. There should be no excuses. As yet there are no fighter in the ring today who can beat him.

FOOLISH PROPOSALS BY POLITICIANS

Those political leaders who propose to abolish their public school system in order to get around desegregation are fooling the public for they don't know where they are headed. In each of the states where this proposal is advanced, illiteracy is highest in the country; and the poorest states in the union. Thus, any attempt to farm out the education of their young people would be doubly expensive. And many a child will fail to get even a smattering of education which he is getting today.

The Bystander does not believe the people will stand for such a program and in the long run will abide by the law as other good Americans do.

Squirrel Season On; Walleyes' Fishing Until October

With squirrel season in session, many Iowa sportsmen have their sport cut out for them. But the State Conservation Commission reminds them not to forget September and early October river fishing for walleyed pike.

leader as "the great task immediately ahead".

He described the work for compliance with the Court's decision as "a struggle not of Negroes alone, but of all Americans who believe in democracy and obedience to law, and who want to keep bigots from taking away America's great faith in democratic progress."

Mr. White, who addressed the seventh international convention of the United Steelworkers of America, was accompanied to the convention by Herbert Hill, NAACP labor relations assistant.

Letter to Editor

In your recent editorial under caption "Let's keep The Record Straight," By reading between lines I find myself commending your position to the extent that some timely words have been said.

The NAACP has been quite an aid towards pushing forward the FEPC but judging by the news from Washington cited by editor. At times it appears to be aiming to discredit the Administration and the 83rd Congress by saying with other things that no Civil Right laws were passed.

The writer was an admirer of the late Senator Taft, but when the overwhelming majority made the choice of President Eisenhower Republican Standard bearer nearly 2 years ago, let it be said to the honor of said Senator Taft that he sincerely fell in line in helping to roll up said unprecedented "land slide" for our president.

As I did nearly 2 years ago I am praying and have a mind to work in my way that his hands will not be tied and his program handicapped by losing control of the next congress. It means real work, for great strides are being brought to bear in order to minimize the progressive programs of the president and the 83rd congress. Wm. Wheeler, 1026 16th street.

with which he was traveling arranged for his hospitalization. Dr. Blount told Mr. Scruggs on the telephone conversation that if necessary he would cut short his trip and return home with Dr. Scruggs when he is able to travel.

The seminar group from San Francisco visited in Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey, the Near East Arabian countries, Egypt and Israel. Dr. Scruggs and the other consultants served without compensation.

Dean Earl E. Dawson, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, has been designated by the Board of Curators as the executive officer of the University.

Clear water and cool weather, make for prime fall walleye fishing in Iowa's deeper rivers. Commission spokesmen predict that most of the best walleye fishing will be north of Highway 30 in the Des Moines, Cedar, Wapsie, Racoon, Iowa and Shellrock rivers. Autumn walleye fishing is excellent below any Mississippi River channel dams.

Clear Water

Most river walleye anglers prefer to fish in areas having plenty of sand, gravel and rock. Walleyes like clean water, and during the day they may be found in deep, clear pools near rock ledges or below gravel or rock riffles. In the evening try casting from sand or gravel bars into shallow water where walleyes are hunting for minnows.

Live minnows and crayfish are good bait for fall walleye fishing, and the old standby, a junebug spinner and minnow, is a favorite. Many river fishermen prefer small spoons with sparsely tied white bucktails. Many of the fly-fishing brethren have their best luck with white streamer flies.

So don't neglect your fishing now that hunting season is here. Some of the year's best fishing is still ahead, and a walleye taken from an autumn river can't be beaten for eatin'.

They Call Me Stupid

Billy doesn't want to go to school. He goes off on a bright September morning dragged by his older sister, protesting all the way. Once he gets there he may not stay. His excuse, "They call me stupid."

Billy is an attractive, likely youngster, but after two years in school he feels he is a failure at "book" work. There are thousands of boys and girls like him failing in school today because they are barely able to read. Their natural intelligence has had no chance to function.

Recognizing the problem is half the battle. Because of busy teachers with oversized classes, reading defects may not be noticed in class, but there are several signs parents can watch for. If a child moves his lips while reading, always follows words with his finger, holds the book exceptionally close, insists he hates reading, concentrates on comics, lisps or stutters, he may have a reading problem.

If your child shows any of these signs, a trip to the oculist for a thorough eye examination comes first. If there are no serious eye defects, his difficulty may be the result of an emotional or physical upset in his early school years—a broken home, death in the family, changing schools, or a serious illness. Or he may have been forced to learn to read too early.

Find out if there is a reading clinic at a college or university near enough for you to pay at least one visit with the child for diagnosis of his problem and for advice on helping him. Most remedial reading techniques can be learned by an intelligent adult. There is much you can do on your own with sympathetic and consistent help. Within a few months, he will discover the pleasure of reading, and there will be no question of his being labeled "stupid."

Rep. Parker Opens Campaign Hqrs.

Paul L. Parker (Republican), State Representative from Polk County, announced today for re-election, Sept. 21, announced the opening of campaign headquarters at 205 Continental Bldg. Mrs. A. B. Chittenden, Jr. will act as office manager.

Parker also announced the formation of a campaign committee which will be headed by William Blackburn.

In making his announcement, Parker called attention to several measures passed by the 1953 Legislature which he had authored. These included the legislation of the sale of yellow oleo the extension of East Walnut street, the revision of the State Dept. of Public Instruction, and an Anti-Discrimination resolution. Parker stated further, "Iowa will continue to grow only as we are able to attract new business and industry to our state. Increased encouragement must be given to the Iowa Development Commission to meet this challenge. Central Iowa is also in need of another large recreational area easily accessible to Des Moines and Polk County. The plans of the Iowa State Conservation Commission for an artificial lake and state park near Des Moines must be put into effect."

Charles adopted a common sense view. He simply intends to go on fighting. Maybe he will do all right.

Baseball

The Pennant Races are decided and it is the Cleveland Indians with Earl Simpson and Larry Doby against the New York Giants with Fabulous Willie Mays, backed up by Hank Thompson and Monte Ervin. People who like to razz us about teams with Negroes in the lineup will have to adopt a neutral attitude or keep still.

We thought the Dodgers might make it. In fact dropped a small wager on them. We figured the Dodgers always get hot in September, but they folded up this time. Now we will have to go with Cleveland.

MY VIOLIN

The craftsman's hands that fashioned it have long returned to dust. The tools that formed its' grace and tone the centuries ate with rust. Prayer must have blest its' woods and love enriched each part, Because it sings—of living things that dwell in every heart. Sometimes it's sad—but mostly glad, it likes to laugh, be gay, So everyone who hears its' voice, is happier—all day. It always knows—just how I feel, just like the heart of me. Sometimes sadness shadows us—but soon, we laugh with glee, No matter what the throng may do, what shape the world is in, We have a planet all to ourselves I—and My VIOLIN.

gard to the Near East and the Far East.

Specific U. S. foreign policy moves which have brought about highly unfavorable Asian public opinion were cited by Mr. Carrington as:

"The rigid, inflexible stand of the United States on the question of Communist China," when most Asians think Communist China should be admitted to the United Nations as representing the people of that continent.

"The help extended by the U. S. to the French in the Indo-Chinese war, seen in Asia as direct American aid to French colonialism.

Pressure Exerted

"The pressure exerted by Washington on Asian nations to 'line up militarily' in the cold war between East and West, when Asian public opinion favors the avoidance of war by remaining neutral in this conflict;

"The recent Southeast Asia pact promoted by Secretary of State Dulles, seen in many Asian capitals as a move towards war; and

"The recent U. S.—Pakistan pact, which has caused widespread ill-feeling in Pakistan itself as well as in other nations in Asia.

Miss Ann Varner of the Cleveland, O., NAACP youth council, also returned this week from the World Assembly of Youth, where she had served as an associate U. S. delegate.

Varner, who begins a teaching career in the Cleveland public schools this month, made an around-the-world tour, visiting with youth and college groups to discuss problems confronting students in each nation.

Out of The Living Past—The Negro?

BY Marion E. Hockenhuell

We are still visiting with the people of Damascus, which is one of the oldest cities of Syria. The country of Syria, was first called Aram after the leader of an African tribe during Biblical days.

Syria, then extended from the Mediterranean sea to the Tigris, and from Canaan to Mt. Taurus. The Syrian desert extends to the Euphrates. The principal rivers in Biblical days were the Orantes, El Nsy, the rebellious, and the Litany.

Syria was settled by a tribe of the descendants of Ham.

In Damascus, the operator sits on the floor of his open booth, facing the street—because no Damascus carry on his business with his back turned to the ever-marching crowd.

People might call a people out of their rightful name, but they cannot change the facts of a people. The majority of the people of Damascus reminds one of any heavily crowded Afro-American street or neighborhood. The only differences are in the language, the dress, and most of the Egyptians there have donkeys, while the Egyptians here—some of them have cars. The donkeys there, large or small, if standing are kicking and braying in contrast to the Afro-American cars, parked too long at one place or speeding to fast on a crowded driveway.

Damascus is one of the oldest cities known to history. About 800 or 1,000 years before the coming of Christ, Damascus was known for her fine fabrics.

In fact, the Demask silks and sword blades are still famous.

On February 27, 1954, Damascus was involved in revolts. The rumors were that the Northern army forces had caused the rebellion which had proclaimed Hachem Bey El-Attassi, an old and revered former president, as Shishkeky's successor, but this was denied. Aleppo is now Syria's largest city.

There are many things of interest about the African people that from time to time will be said.

The African people are a Biblical people. One reads about them in church on Sunday—then jimcrows and segregates them from Monday on.
