Glanton, who was a halfback at Tennessee State University, said he has met Slater on several occasions and that his campaign committee extended the invitation for Slater's visit.

Mrs. Bradley Makes Plea 'For Us to Wake Up; Been Asleep a Long Time'

A crowd of about 800 persons last Sunday afternoon filled the auditorium of Willkie House and waited patiently an hour and ten minutes for the arrival of their guest speaker, Mrs. Mamie E. Bradley, whose plane was delayed during a storm enroute from Chicago, Ill.
The mother of Emmett Till, 14, who was kidnapped and slain while visiting relatives in Mississippi last September, was presented here at a mass meeting sponsored by the Des Moines branch of the NAACP, in the interest of the Fight for Freedom Fund, which netted $400.
Rushed from the airport, Mrs. Bradley was presented to the audience.
"I am a little shaken up from the trip," she paused. "It seems that everywhere I go, people are so interested and so sympathetic."
She told of receiving the news that her son was kidnapped, allegedly after wolf-whistling at a white woman.
"Finally, the news came that he was dead. I realized that I could not stop. It was like some machine clicking in my soul. I realized that I had to do something.

Would Cry
"It came to me that the mothers and fathers of America would cry for

'Bo' (Emmett); and I asked everyone to be calm."
Mrs. Bradley revealed that she met trouble when she tried to get her son's body from Mississippi, after learning that already it had been taken to a cemetery. She said an uncle secured it, took it to Charleston, Miss., where a white undertaker agreed to prepare it for shipping, after a seal had been made that the casket could not be opened upon arriving in Chicago.
When her son's body reached Chicago, "I took over," she said. Wanting to be sure, "I would still have to see."
In examining the body of her son, and seeing the horrible treatment it had suffered, Mrs. Bradley said "it just looked as though all the hatred and all the scorn, ever had for a Negro was taken out on that child."
At that moment, "I gained interest in everybody's child under the sun—to shake people and wake them up."
No One Safe
"Had I been rich, I could have thought that they wanted my money; but, all the money I had was seventeen dollars. Then I knew it could happen to any boy as long as it happened to one. No one is safe. Get busy and let it be known that we are

South Carolina Wants
Militant Minister from New York Returned

Lake City, S. C.—(CNS) South Carolina police are trying to extradite militant Negro minister J. A. Delaine on the charge of firing two shots into an automobile containing four white men on the night of October 10th.
Delaine, now in New York, did much to break down segregation in the schools of South Carolina. On the incident in question, he says two shots were fired from an automobile as it passed by his home so that he fired shots back and then fled town.
Claims Florence County Deputy Sheriff H. A. Myers: "We will take every legal step possible toward returning Rev. Delaine to Florence County to face charges."
Delaine's church was burned down on October 6th because of his intense activity in the celebrated Summerton school case in Clarendon County. State insurance representatives are

Says NAACP Has Worked 'All Times with Tools of Democratic Government'

New York — Replying to charges made by Georgia Attorney General Eugene Cook that the NAACP is a "subversive" organization, the Association's executive secretary, Roy Wilkins, asserted that the NAACP never has been named or listed by any "official body" as a "communist or communist-front organization."
Among such "official federal" bodies Mr. Wilkins mentioned in his reply on Oct. 19 are the U. S. Department of Justice and the House Committee on Un-American Activities.
In addition to not being listed as subversive, the NAACP, the Wilkins statement pointed out, has been endorsed by FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover who declared in a letter that "the NAACP has done much . . . to perpetuate the desires of our founding fathers."
'Good Wishes'
Mr. Wilkins charged that Mr. Cook "cannot show anywhere to anyone a listing of the NAACP as subversive by any responsible body."

On the contrary, the NAACP official continued, "on March 10, 1954, our Freedom Fulfillment Conference in Washington was greeted in person by President Eisenhower who expressed his 'good wishes' for the prosecution of our work."
In his speech, delivered before the annual convention of the Peace Officers of Georgia Association in Atlanta, Mr. Cook termed the Association "sinister" and said "the issue involved is not one of race but rather of subversion."
Replying, Mr. Wilkins maintained, Mr. Cook knows that the NAACP is not a communist organization or a communist-front organization.
Defiance of Constitution Involved
Mr. Cook's speech, the NAACP head added, "is apparently part of a conspiracy by some southern state officials to combat the U. S. Supreme Court's order to desegregate the public schools by charging the NAACP with being subversive."
In this connection, the Wilkins (See Page FOUR)

Education Week
Nov. 6-12; Open
House at Schools

The thirty-fifth annual observance of American Education Week will be held Nov. 6 thru 12, sponsored by the National Educational Association, the American Legion, the U. S. Office of Education, and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.
The central theme to be emphasized this year is: "Schools—Your Investment in America." Each daily topic will consider some phase of that investment: "Character Building," "Teachers," "Fundamental Learning," "Better Living," "A Strong Nation," and "Your Responsibility."
Special Invitation
During American Education Week the nation's schools extend a special invitation to the public to visit classrooms—to see the schools in action. The sponsors estimate that twenty million people will accept that invitation. Millions more will learn about their schools through newspaper and magazine features, radio and television programs, displays and demonstrations.

BY CONSTANCE DANIEL

Washington, D. C.—Story is that Joseph H. Rainey, appointed, last March, as Information Specialist at Housing and Home Finance, is moving around the corner, to the headquarters of the Republican National Committee at Sixteenth and Eye, as assistant to Minorities Director Val J. Washington. Rainey, grandson and namesake of the first Negro in the U. S. House of Representatives, is a veteran of both the daily and weekly press in Philadelphia, and is well-known in the East as a former Philadelphia magistrate and member of the Pennsylvania Boxing Commission. He is a clear and objective thinker and a good analyst—business-first, but easy to meet. We congratulate GOP headquarters on acquiring his services—if it has!

Urges Drive on Race Bias in
'Formative Years'

The executive secretary of the Des Moines Commission on Human Rights Monday suggested forming an educational committee to work for better understanding between the races in the city's schools.
The commission spokesman, Robert C. Sweet, addressed a meeting of the Des Moines Interracial Commission in Bishop's Cafeteria banquet room.
"I was talking with the head of a large firm here recently about his employment policies," Sweet said. "I asked him whether he hired with regard to race or color."
"He told me he'd like to hire on a straight merit system, but his employees wouldn't accept it."
Prejudices start to take shape in the early "formative years," Sweet said. Consequently, he said, the place to attack them is in the schools.
"We ought to see what can be done through education in the schools to develop those attitudes which permit co-operation among the races," he said.
"I think the Des Moines schools are doing a good job in this respect," Sweet continued. "But I think it would strengthen the educational system to have a program to achieve better understanding among the students."

'Many Things That Must Be Done' to Prevent a Repeat Of Emmett Till Atrocity

New York — In response to numerous inquiries from all sections of the country about the role of the NAACP in the Emmett Till case, Roy Wilkins, the Association's executive secretary, has announced a seven point program of action to meet the Mississippi situation. Thurgood Marshall, NAACP special counsel, has issued a statement explaining the limitations imposed upon the NAACP in the area of legal action in the case.
"First," Mr. Marshall said, "the prosecution in the Till case, as in other criminal cases, is in the hands of the local law enforcement officers. A private agency, such as the NAACP, has no role in the prosecution of such case beyond assisting in obtaining witnesses. The NAACP, along with Dr. T. R. M. Howard of Mound Bayou, Miss., and certain newspaper correspondents did uncover some witnesses in the case.

Can Be No Appeal
"Secondly, there can be no appeal nor any new trial of Bryant and Milam, who have been acquitted of the murder of Emmett Till. This is a basic fact in American law which prohibits 'double jeopardy'.
"Thirdly, the NAACP will not be able to participate in the prosecution of the accused in the kidnap trial when and if it is held.
"And finally, under existing law, the United States Department of Justice says it cannot enter the Till case either on the murder of the kidnap charge. The Lindbergh kidnap law applies only to cases in which the victim is transported across a state line."

- Things to Be Done
- While the Association's hands are tied so far as legal action is concerned, "there are many things that can be done and must be done in order to prevent a repetition of the Till atrocity," Mr. Wilkins, points out.
- There is a continuing need for funds to help clean up the Mississippi situation, he asserts. According to the NAACP leader, present plans call for a program of action to:
1. fight revival of lynch terror;
 2. secure enactment of civil rights bills pending in Congress;
 3. obtain more adequate law enforcement with equal protection for all citizens;
 4. remove racial restrictions on the franchise;
 5. accelerate compliance with the Supreme Court edict banning racial segregation in public schools;
 6. end economic reprisals against Negro citizens demanding their constitutional rights; and
 7. eliminate racial discrimination from all phases of American life.
- This is a long-range program, Mr. Wilkins said.

Baptist Group Pull Meeting from Hotel When Negro Was Denied

Haverhill, Mass.—(CNS)—When the Treeholm Manor Hotel refused a reservation for Dr. George D. Kelsey of Drew University in Madison, N. J., the Baptist group retaliated by pulling its meeting from the hotel.
Dr. Kelsey was the only Negro among seven guest speakers. His reservation was refused by the management which later apologized when it lost the rest of the reservations from the group.

Hotel Manager Joseph Messina called it a "terrible blunder . . . what we did was wrong and we're sorry," he said.
But Rev. Edwin H. Tuller announced that other arrangements had been made for quarters for the speakers and that Dr. Kelsey would stay at the home of Rev. Clifford V. Meeden, pastor of the First Baptist Church, here.

South's Challenges and Opportunities, Based on Thoughts, Actions, Listed

Tuskegee Institute, Ala.—Picturing the South of the next half century as being a land teeming with challenges and opportunities, Dr. Guy B. Johnson, Professor of Sociology, University of North Carolina, spoke last Sunday evening on the Tuskegee Institute Entertainment Course series.
He opened his message with two pertinent questions — What sort of world will you be living in tomorrow? and — What sort of attitudes and values will you need in order to meet the challenge in the next fifty years?

South Tomorrow
He reasoned that the 1400 students and adults gathered in the Institute Chapel will be living in the South tomorrow and "That South," he said, "has too long clung to its fears and obsessions concerning the race problem."
Speaking further he said, "It has followed behind in the march of social and economic progress."
"However," Dr. Johnson continued, "in the economic realm the South is stirring like a great giant, as if it wants to make up in the next 25 years all of the ground that it has lost in the past 100 years."
He said, "It is also stirring under the impact of the May 17, 1954 decision of the Supreme Court." This battle over desegregation, he believes, will be fought for the next twenty-five years or longer.

Changes
Changes in the next half century he pictured as: Movement of larger numbers to the cities; mechanization changing entire pattern of rural living; Industry discovering its need for the South and the South discovering its need for industry; Productivity and prosperity following these changes in our pattern of living. With all of these changes, the speaker stated that desegregation will become a reality. "The virus of fear and guilt will in time be eradicated," he said.
Thoughts - Acts
Dr. Johnson warned that we need not expect miraculous changes overnight because we are dealing with thoughts and acts of private citizens.
He told the young people in the audience that they will be privileged to take part in the greatest social adjustment that the South has ever made. He reminded them that they will not need only vocational and technical competence but social competence as well. He said, "There will be more emphasis on your character than upon your color."
Dr. Johnson then proceeded to announce that he would be in Minneapolis, Minn.; and a brother, Elijah, Ottumwa.

United Campaign In Action

Not a one among us is disinterested in leading a more useful and happier life. We've got a place in Des Moines with just such an aim in mind for those who come there in search of help. It's Family Service, one of the 33 United Campaign agencies you help support with your gift each fall.

Who comes to Family Service needing help? Well, to cite only a few, a man with chronic illness, the parent of a retarded child, a couple neglectful of their children, a woman who feels inadequate, a young man who has a hard time earning his livelihood.

Others too: a lady retired on a small pension, but with a strong desire to be self-supporting, a person whose marriage ended in divorce who wants to find out now the real reasons why, a woman with feeling of guilt because of a temper.

We could go on. But we'll only add that some come bundled in despair. And others show courage in crisis and adversity that is sheer inspiration.

Family Service is there to help in family counseling, with personality problems and mental illness. Often too there is financial help available.

All told Family Service is one of the most essential community services Des Moines can boast of.

Jesuit college founded in 1789, the year George Washington was elected President of the United States. Father Healy was president of Georgetown from 1873 to 1882, and vice-president from 1869.

Last week, from his office in Healy hall, Georgetown's administration building the Rev. Edmund Bunn, Georgetown's new president, publicly disavowed statements denouncing racial integration, Supreme Court decisions and Negroes, per se, allegedly made by Charles Callan Tansill, history professor in Georgetown's graduate school—both in interview with Washington Daily News reporter, Tom Kelley, and in a speech before the Defenders of State Sovereignty and Individual Liberties, in Arlington County, Virginia—just over the line from Washington.

Tansill's books include "The Purchase of the Danish West Indies," (Virgin Islands) published by Johns Hopkins and Oxford Universities in 1932, while he was a professor at American University, in Washington. The report that he was dismissed from American University, five years later, for public defense of Hitler and the Nazi regime, was denied by Dr. Posner, head of American University's department of history, in response to questions by this column. He was, however, the subject of indignant protest over charges, in 1947, that Lincoln had tricked the South into the Civil War.

Between President Healy's administration and President Bunn's, the waters of controversy had flowed, freely, over the dam of Georgetown's race relations. For many years American Negroes were excluded, as they were also excluded from Catholic University, across the town, in Brookland. First Catholic University, and—much more recently—Georgetown, have recognized their error and dropped the bars against Negro Americans. Georgetown, at its last Commencement, graduated a Negro Doctor of Laws. Disavowing the statements attributed to Tansill by the reporters for the Arlington Sun and Washington News, Father Bunn dispatched letters to protesting citizens, stating that Tansill's remarks, as reported, were "absolutely contrary to the policy and teaching of Georgetown University" and "opposed to the teaching of the Catholic Church." "We publicly disavow these opinions," wrote the reverend President, "and take this occasion to reaffirm our adherence to the principles of justice and charity promulgated in the Papal Encyclicals, the Declaration of Independence, and the American Constitution."

Georgetown's Board of Directors is expected to meet, without delay, on the Tansill case, and the belligerent professor given opportunity to prove the reporters wrong, or withdraw some of the more lurid comment attributed to him, such as the description of Negroes as "morons" who had made no contribution to American culture.

The hearings will doubtless be held in Healy Hall, named for Georgetown's scholarly Negro president, of whom it was written in the Georgetown College Journal, "We trust . . . that Father Healy may still preside at Georgetown when her centennial is reached." We think that that progress is being made.

Leontyne Price Praised

Soprano Leontyne Price scored again, here, last week, at her recital before a capacity audience at Metropolitan A.M.E. Church, but press and other music critics were less than happy over the Margaret Bond arrangements of one group of spirituals, which one critic called "trashy," and all agreed were jarring on sensibilities, and destroyed their value as an expression of folk feeling.

But of Miss Price's voice there was only the most enthusiastic comment. Said Critic Paul Hume, "It comes right out into the audience and makes you glad that you are there to hear it." He called the concert "What may well be the best song recital that Washington hears this year." We hope that, one day, she will be presented in an acoustical setting worthy of her voice—one more adequate than the churches can provide.

Children, When Given Opportunity To Understand Their Parents Problems, Often Can Be of Real Help

BY LLOYD L. LOVELL,
Asst. SUI Professor

Jack Hardy's teachers had noticed that for several weeks his behavior had been different. Sometimes preoccupied, he frequently flared out in temper outbursts, and he was restless and undisciplined. Finally the basketball coach asked him what had been troubling him.

After a long pause Jack mumbled, "I just can't figure out what's going on at home. Everybody looks worried, and nobody's any fun any more, but when I ask them what going on, they say nothing is. I don't get it."

What Jack didn't know was that his father had been told that he must undergo an operation requiring a long convalescence. Mr. Hardy and his wife were trying to make the necessary plans about managing the house, paying hospital bills and continuing some installment bills while he would be away from work. And he was worried about whether his job would be waiting for him when he had recovered.

Sincerely trying to spare their children any unnecessary troubles by not discussing these problems, they did not realize that they were causing their children great concern.

Children react, of course, to their parents' moods and preoccupations. When they are given an opportunity to understand their parents' problems, they can often be of real help.

For Jack, a realistic understanding of the problems facing the family would have been easier to cope with than were the mysterious and unexplained changes that he had noticed.

Jack had to be faced with his father's illness and the changing family circumstances sooner or later. Giving him an opportunity to help in making realistic plans both for himself and for the whole family during that period would have made life easier for him and would probably have greatly eased the burden his parents bore. Children can take it!

It's got to last a lifetime

...let's make sure it's the best!

After our youngsters receive their diplomas, it's too late to wonder if their education could have been improved.

If we are to continue to provide our children with the kind of schools they deserve, it is essential that we plan at least ten years ahead. Especially now — when schools are faced with overcrowding, teacher shortages, and other problems resulting from steady increases in enrollment.

These problems are the main topic of the state educational conferences requested by President Eisenhower, as well as of The White House Conference on Education to be held in Washington, November 28 to December 1.

Make your voice heard for the kind of schools you want for our children! Join your neighbors in local educational conferences — or help get one organized, if none are now planned. Southern Plot statement cited recent speeches by officials in North Carolina, South Carolina, and Mississippi, which either charged or hinted that the NAACP is a subversive or a "foreign" organization.

"The real subversives," Mr. Wilkins declared, "are those who defy the Constitution of our country and openly declare they will not obey it, or who scheme to evade it and counsel others to do likewise. Mr. Cook has said that the Supreme Court ruling on segregation in the public schools should not be obeyed. He has advised on ways and means of circumventing it."

The NAACP statement continued, "It is he, not we, who is seeking to undermine the government of the United States. There is nothing subversive in demanding equality under the Constitution. The Constitution prescribes equality for citizens."

General Crusade
Pointing out that "the NAACP has worked at all times within the framework and with the tools of democratic government," Mr. Wilkins noted, "the great religious faiths have been with us in our general crusade."

"On this very question of desegregation, all three faiths and all major denominations have officially called for compliance with the Supreme Court ruling on public schools."

"It is a fact that the official Communist statement from Moscow on the public school opinion of the Court is that it will not be implemented. In this belief the Communists are joined by Attorney General Cook who also says it will not be implemented if he can prevent it."

Implication of Georgia Anti-NAACP Bill

In his address, entitled "The Ugly Truth About the NAACP," Mr. Cook announced his intention of asking the Georgia legislature in January for "appropriate action" on the "subversive nature" of the NAACP.

In his reply, released to the public simultaneously with the delivery of the Cook speech, Mr. Wilkins noted:

"We understand that Georgia already has on the books a law to take care of subversive organizations. If he is so sure we are subversive, why does he not proceed under the present law? Why does a special law have to be passed just for the NAACP?"

Louise Parker on 'Music Room' Oct. 30

New York—Louise Parker, young contralto who won the Marian Anderson Award for two consecutive years, will be soloist on CBS Radio's "The Music Room" Sunday, Oct. 30. Miss Parker will sing three of Manuel de Falla's arrangements of popular Spanish songs, a modern song by Alicia Scott and two spirituals.

A graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music and a former member of the Hall Johnson Choir, Miss Parker has given recitals in several American cities. In September 1951 she went to Europe with the Hall Johnson Choir on a trip sponsored by the U. S. Department of State, and stayed on after the choir left to study with Mrs. Nannie Larsen-Todson, distinguished Swedish singer, formerly a member of the Metropolitan Opera. During the past three years, Miss Parker has sung with great success in Norway, Sweden, Holland, Belgium and Italy.

Continuing in the same vein, Congressman Diggs termed Brownell's dodging of the civil rights issue as "an open appeasement of southern forces for political purposes".

Collar the Clock!

PUTTING a collar on the average kitchen timepiece will brighten up the clock wall and make it both attractive and more useful.

Lay the clock on a piece of paper and trace its outline. Transfer the drawing, by means of carbon paper, to a panel of Masonite Tempered Preswood one-eighth inch thick. The material should be large enough to allow for the saving of a "collar" to fit around the clock.

The center of the "collar" may be cut out with a coping or similar-type saw. To get the blade started, insert it in a hole bored near and inside the line marking the outline of the clock.

Shape of the collar will determine whether the outer edge of the "collar" is round, square or hexagonal. The distance between the clock and the outer edge of the Preswood should range from four to six inches, depending on the size of the clock and the amount of wall space available.

Friction ordinarily will keep the "collar" in position, flat against the wall at the back of the clock, but if the sawing has been irregular and the border is loose, insert small pieces of wood to take up the slack.

Arranged in clockwise order around the clock's new border may be glued the leaves from a small calendar.

The ingenious homemaker can decorate the clock in various ways.

Personal Touch
By MARIE ROSS

People are still talking about Mrs. Mamie E. Bradley, the courageous little mother who is touring the country on speaking engagements in the interest of NAACP's fight for the civil rights of the Negro citizens in Mississippi and elsewhere in this country.

When she reached Wilkie House here Sunday afternoon, an audience of nearly 800 persons had waited patiently for an hour and ten minutes. Her plane had been delayed by a storm, in flight from Chicago, Ill., her home city.

Young people who lined the corridor, caught a glimpse of her as she made her way to the speaker's platform. Some of the youth remarked: "Isn't she tiny like a doll?" "She must be a brave mother."

Mrs. Bradley appeared tired; but when she stood before the mike and began to unfold the story of the tragedy that befell her 14-year-old son, Emmett Till, who was kidnapped and murdered; and, the untold agony she suffered when she learned the news, and later had his body returned to Chicago, she spoke as though she were being supplied by some power greater than herself. She did not hesitate or flinch, outwardly, during the description of her son's body that was returned to her. Gasps and laments were heard throughout the audience, but the little mother talked like one who has dedicated her whole life to the cause of civil rights.

All this week, over lunch and coffee counters downtown, and on street corners, there was talk about Mrs. Bradley; which makes me think that the little mother could have packed a much larger auditorium.

Sometimes we get so upset over the outrageous misdeeds against racial groups in the Southern part of the country, that we fail to see weeds of prejudices right in our own back yard at home, until we stumble over some of them.

This week, Mrs. Trella Perry of 1014 Tenth street, phoned an unpleasant experience she had, about which she commented: "I just had to let you know because I wouldn't want the same thing to happen to any other colored person."

She had been listening for sometime to an advertisement over the radio which invited the public to bring in their used clothing for resale or exchange.

Mrs. Perry said she got a box of dresses and took them to the East-

The Arthur W. Turners to Celebrate Golden Wedding at Open House Nov. 6

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Turner, 1424 East Eighteenth street, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday afternoon, Nov. 6, from 3 to 6 p. m., when their children, Mr. and Mrs. George Maxwell (Isabell Turner) of Chicago, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Turner of Pontiac, Mich., will be hosts at an informal open house.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner who were married in Iola, Kas., in 1905, have lived in their present home in East Des Moines for 37 years. They came to Iowa in 1937.

Both active members of Bethel AME church, Mrs. Turner is busy in the affairs of the Dilettante and Garden clubs of Wilkie House, and the Hands of Love club of the YWCA.

Mr. Turner was retired last year by the American Optical Company.

April 5 traffic death of an eight-year-old girl who was riding a bicycle when his car allegedly struck her, was sentenced to an eight year term in the Iowa State penitentiary by Polk County District Judge Ray C. Fountain.

Robinson, arrested at his home, a short time after the accident, denied the charge.

A jury in Judge Fountain's court deliberated only 40 minutes May 23 to find that Robinson was the driver of a car which struck and killed the girl.

Robinson's mother, who visits him frequently at the penitentiary said that her son still insists, that he doesn't know a thing about the accident.

Out at the A. A. Alexander home, 2200 Chautauqua parkway, last week, Mrs. Alexander was having quite a time re-training her terrier, Rex. Since he got back home after 17 months in the Virgin Islands, her pet dog has been difficult to get along with—barking and snapping at everyone, she said.

Getting back into the routine of being just another housewife, after the role of "First Lady" in the Virgin Islands, Mrs. Alexander immediately got interested in her flowers, trimming and re-potting a night-blooming cereus, similar to some of the night-blooming cactus that grow wild in the islands; transplanting for inside flower boxes, salvia, which she had tried, unsuccessfully, to grow in the islands; and potting foliage and other plants.

While awaiting the arrival of their furniture from the islands, Mrs. Alexander said she will be busy house-cleaning their home here.

Asked if she will miss all of the maids and servants that were at her wish at the Government House in the islands, the former "First Lady," remarked that she "never got helpless or had the help to wait on her."

One of the tributes the Government House employees paid her, she revealed, was that she was unlike former "First Ladies," in that she worked right along with the help; and, they appreciated that and will miss her help and guidance.

The former governor, Mr. Alevander, though "taking it easy" after his recent heart attack, spent a few hours at his office last week, then left Saturday for a business conference with his partner, Maurice Repass in Washington, D. C.

Minnie Wray Completes 25 Years Service at Iowa Methodist Hospital

Miss Minnie Wray, nurse aide in the operating room at Iowa Methodist Hospital here, celebrated her twenty-fifth anniversary Oct. 1. She came here in 1930 as a "flower girl" on East 4 floor.

In those days there were no Nurse aides and the floor staff were graduate nurses. In 1930 during the depression graduate nurses were working for room and board.

Miss Wray recalled that she "felt very grateful to have a job at all." She had formerly been a music teacher in Afton, Ia.

Miss Wray described some of the changes in the operating room during her quarter century. Her job is the care of the instruments.

When she started in the operating room, all instruments were boiled in open type sterilizers, whereas today, the instruments are quickly sterilized in high speed, high pressure autoclaves.

She hasn't decided how she will spend her time when she retires. She is looking forward to more time to play the piano.

Miss Wray, a member of St. Paul AME church, is active in the church's senior choir.

MRS. BRADLEY DISPLAYS COURAGE AND VISION

Fortunately for Des Moines, its citizens are favored with the presence of a wide variety of important people. And the presence of Mrs. Mamie Bradley, mother of the late Emmett Till Sunday, was no exception to the rule for in addition to the horrifying experience through which she went and related she has the courage and strength to stand before audiences telling them that her efforts were directed toward a prevention of a recurrence of what happened to her son.

Of course, the story of the Till case has been told over and over again, but she was able to give her audience a close up of the means and feeling of a trial in Mississippi where the racial tensions in the air could just about be visible with the naked eye.

It is hard to imagine the treatment even Negro visitors received at the hands of the officers; how much more so those who live there.

Mrs. Bradley's talks are designed to build sentiment against a system which allows the Till case to occur; against those people who oppose the simple constitutional guarantees to all citizens; for those in Mississippi, black and white who don't approve the heaping of injustice upon Negroes and who don't speak out for fear of reprisals and those who dare speak out in spite of sanctions.

LITTLE INTEREST IN THE CITY PRIMARIES

The primary election Tuesday brought out a small vote—a vote which indicates that there exists a pretty clear division between those supporting the good government candidates and those supported by the American Federation of Labor.

It is not fully clear whether the AF of L opposes the good government committee endorsement of candidates who generally have won in the elections or the city council-manager form of government. Certainly, they have had splendid recognition on the committee and in the selection of candidates for the city council.

The Bystander has said that experience shows that the business of the city is in excellent shape and there remains no need to change.

NICHOLAS MAY ENTER LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR PRIMARIES

Former Lieutenant Governor W. H. Nicholas of Mason City was in Des Moines last week and according to radio announcements he may enter the Republican primaries for lieutenant governor in 1956.

In 1950, he surprised the voters by capturing the nomination, going on to be elected in the fall and made an excellent record as lieutenant governor. Nicholas sought the nomination for governor in 1952, when the late governor Beardsley ran first, former Lieutenant Governor Evans second and Nicholas third. However, in 1954 he bounced back by polling the second largest vote in the primaries with six candidates in the field.

In none of these cases did Nicholas have the backing of the so-called Republican organization but won the vote on his personal popularity and the assistance of a larger number of supporters and well wishers in the party. Bill Nicholas has always polled an excellent vote in his home territory which indicates the excellent regard his neighbors have for him.

Bill Nicholas has refrained from the controversial bickering which prevails entirely too much within the ranks of some leading Republicans today, which among other things, including his record as a successful business man makes him a logical contender for the nomination for lieutenant governor in 1956.

While the information as to any proposed candidacy did not come directly from him to the Bystander, he certainly is logical choice for the Republican voters in 1956.

NAACP Plans Program

SEE FRONT PAGE Wilkins points out, calling for continuing action on the Washington level as well as in the states and communities.

Long-Range Program "Money is needed for lobbying, for research, for literature, for political and educational action. We can't bring little Emmett Till back to life and we can't convict Bryant and Milam. We can work toward the day when we will not again be confronted with such an atrocity."

"The NAACP is the organization most feared by the southern bigots," Mr. Wilkins asserts, "as witness the attacks by Attorney General Eugene

Mrs. Bradley Speaks

SEE FRONT PAGE not going to stand for it," she pleaded.

"The more I talk the lighter my burden feels," the mother paused. "Truly I have had the feeling that I have been put under ether. I am more or less numb."

Mrs. Bradley urged her listeners to go to the polls and "speak through the ballot on what we want. Go to Washington and see what your senator is doing about civil rights."

She touched upon the recent trial in Sumner, Miss., in which two white defendants, were acquitted of the murder of her son. Kidnapping charges are still pending.

"Just a few of the colored people were allowed in the courtroom. The rest stayed out on the court house lawn," offering their bodies as protection to her, she felt.

Waking Up "Everybody is waking up," she observed, referring to the Mississippians, "I don't know if they can fight this job from the inside. It is going to take more. This is your share of freedom that you are buying."

"In Mississippi, they told me 'you don't need protection,' but God did not let anybody bother us."

"It is time for us to wake up. We have been asleep a long time. We have been waiting for somebody to come and hand us something—and—that is not the way it is going to be. If you want to buy a car, you go out and plan for it. If you want this freedom you are going to have to plan for it, too."

Millions of Mothers "With millions of mothers behind me, it is nothing for me to do but to carry this ball over the goal line. I have millions of children to live for now."

"Thanks for your letters and prayers that I might go on. "With God helping me and you behind me, I don't think the devil stands a chance," Mrs. Bradley concluded.

Bishop L. H. Ford, pastor of the Chicago, Ill., church of which Mrs. Bradley is a member, and also, minister of the East Seventeenth Church of God in Christ, Des Moines, accompanied Mrs. Bradley, her father, Mr. John N. Carthan, and his daughter, Miss Mary Ann Washington, both of Detroit, Mich.

While awaiting the arrival of the guest speaker, Mr. Ernest (Speck) Redd, Des Moines musician and instructor of music, played an impromptu concert of piano numbers.

Arthur (Pat) Black, a young pianist, also offered a number. Other music was by the St. Paul AME choir directed by Mrs. Lauretta Hughes.

Presiding at the meeting was Atty. Archie Greenlee, president of the Des Moines Branch of NAACP.

Platform guests, aside from Bishop Ford and Mr. Carthan, were Ike Smalls, national vice president of NAACP; Mrs. Georgine C. Morris, president emerita of the Iowa Conference of NAACP Branches; Mrs. Rose B. Johnson, chairman of the NAACP's Fight for Freedom Fund; Rabbi Issac Nardoff of Bethel Jacob Synagogue; Rev. John E. Hunter, pastor of St. Paul AME Church; Rev. Lovell Johnson, pastor of Bethel AME Church.

Argonne Post of the American Legion men advanced colors at the opening of the program.

Mrs. Bradley spoke Sunday night at Seventeenth Street Church of God in Christ.

Cook of Georgia, the Assistant Attorney General of North Carolina, the Lieutenant Governor of South Carolina and others. This imposes upon all of us who believe in democracy, the responsibility of strengthening the organization which has consistently challenged the South's obsolete white supremacy practices."

Outlines South's Challenges

SEE FRONT PAGE swer his original question — What sort of attitudes and values will be needed in order to meet the challenge of the next fifty years? His advice was both sound and challenging. He held a question and answer period with a smaller group following his lecture.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Feeling Poorly

Sometimes there's just no other way to describe your condition but to say "I'm feeling poorly." Doctors call it "malaise."

There's no particular symptom. You just feel miserable. Of course, it could be the weather. There are gray days in October, when a steady rain falls on a sodden brown-leaf covered ground. Everything seems to be dying, and there's nothing to look forward to but winter. For the moment, you feel you might as well be dead. Fortunately, weather-caused malaise is usually cured when the sun comes out.

However, malaise can be a symptom of serious trouble. To the doctor, it's valuable to know that his patient feels "poorly." Even before the temperature begins to rise, or there is pain, or cough, malaise can give warning that something is wrong.

Certain diseases are notorious for the way they make patients feel. In hepatitis, a liver disease, the malaise is as obvious as the jaundice. The patient may be seriously depressed.

Extensive burns also cause the patient to feel extraordinarily miserable. He's certain he is being neglected and maltreated. But of all diseases causing malaise the worst in proportion to its clinical importance is the common cold, although sea sickness runs it a close second. A cold gives rise to malaise in its purest form; it permeates the whole body. It's beyond anyone's power of expression to tell just how terrible he feels.

Unlike other symptoms of disease, malaise is an elusive phenomenon that can't be tabulated. It's just a thing that happens to sick people. Some authorities believe it's the result of "toxins" of some kind released in the body by the infection or injury.

Medicine has still a lot to learn about malaise. But one thing is certain. You shouldn't feel miserable. And if you do, you should tell your doctor about it. It may help him make an early diagnosis of serious trouble.

SPORTS

BY ALLEN ASHBY

This will go down as the year that Negroes really took over the football in every section of the country, excepting of course, the South. The Big Ten has so many that they fall all over each other.

In the East it is the same way and the Pacific Coast is just like the Big Ten so many Negroes, one needs a score card to tell one from the other.

The Big Seven has its share with Iowa State having two who go all the time.

Here at Drake there is a big guy named Waterhouse who is currently making rabid fans compare him with John Bright.

As we listened to the Iowa UCLA game last week we got the impression that the Hawks didn't care too much about this one. That they would rather have Michigan. Maybe it's just seemed that way but now those Hawks who had what looked like a great year ahead could lose their last four games.

High School

Once again East and Roosevelt square off for the city title and people are beginning to count the number of times that has happened. Well, when there were only East, West and North, East and West fought it out for the title pretty often with North in the background. Once in a while the Polar Bears would come up with a great team, and that is about the way it is now. The East-Roosevelt game is only a continuation of the old rivalry.

Take Interest

"Wishing for good schools is not enough," declared the sponsoring committee. "Communities have good schools when the people want them enough to take an interest in them, to work for them, to cooperate with them. American Education Week is an appropriate time to reexamine the educational program of your community. To help your school, you need to be well-informed about it."

BURNING LEAVES Burning leaves, the signs of Autumn Pungent odors spice the air; Frosty nights are diamond-studded Days for the harvest, cool and fair. Picking corn and silo-filling There's a lot to do, we know; Tying in a lot of ploughing And the winter wheat to sow. When the frost is on the pumpkin Chilly breeze chews at the eaves, There's a lot of exaltation, From the scent of burning leaves. With the glory of the season Comes the gifts that each receives; Mother Nature's full fat bounty, At the time of burning leaves. When the water-fowl are flying We can see what work achieves, Great returns, there's no denying: Ushered in by burning leaves. —Glenn A. Gallagher (First American Serial Rights Only)
