CITIZENS TURN OUT FOR VITAL ISSUES:

FEP Gets City Council Approval

Capital Close-Up From Washington

BY CONSTANCE DANIEL

Moderation—Not Complacency

Washington, D. C.—"It's all right to talk strongly, but talk strongly, intelligently."

"Don't expect things to happen overnight."

"The liberal South is emerging, we must help it to emerge. We can't do it by blasting."

"... they can holler, scream, beg, but there's not a candidate who can get the Negro vote until he can produce something close to civil rights."

"I think we are keeping up this sensationalism because we have a bear by the tail, and don't know how to let go. If unchecked, it can destroy our influence."

"Tell those Democrats that if they keep stinking albatross like Senator Eastland around their necks, they can kiss our votes goodbye."

"Caesar's wife must be above reproach. We lose when we resort to abuse. That is definitely 'sowing the wind.'"

All these diverse statements have been made, within a month—some publicly, some privately—by hard-working NAACP leaders and top officials. We think that variation is a healthy sign, but find a distinct difference between what one of the leaders quoted above, called, "support and unsupportable emotion."

Some time ago we said, in this column, that few who uttered the in-

Citizens Crowd City Hall For Hearings of Two Vital Issues

A cross section of Des Moines citizens crowded the city hall Monday morning for the hearings of two vital issues: a proposed fair employment practices ordinance which the council ordered a drawing; and a debate on a motion to fire City Manager Leonard G. Howell, on which the council delayed action. In the foreground is City Manager Howell speaking following a spirited two and one-half hour de-

After Hour-Long Debate Council Orders Drawing Proposed New Ordinance

In a 4 to 1 vote Monday, March 19, the Des Moines City Council ordered the drawing of a proposed fair employment practices ordinance which would outlaw job discrimination in Des Moines.

After an hour-long hearing on the proposal, originally submitted by Local 89 of the United Packinghouse Workers (CIO), Jan. 9, Mayor Ray Mills, president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor (AFL) made the motion that the measure be drawn.

Councilman Allan W. Denny cast the dissenting vote. He said he opposed the ordinance because of the penalty clause stating that the present program based on education against discrimination is preferable.

The proposed ordinance would make it illegal for an employer, an employment agency or a labor union to discriminate against any person because of race, creed or color.

A $100 Fine or Jail Term

A violator would be subject to a fine not exceeding $100 or a jail term of not more than 30 days.

Councilmen Frank McGowan and Robert L. Conley said they favored the newly proposed ordinance 100 percent. Both remarked that there should be no discrimination against any American and any such act in employment should be made unlawful.

Representatives from the NAACP, local unions and interested individuals argued in support of the proposed ordinance.

Councilman Denny offered the only opposition expressing concern for the employers position should the ordinance become law.

Supporting Motion

city legal department's drawing of the measure were council members Robert E. Conley, Frank W. McGowan and Charles F. Iles.

Iles said he thought a "lot of progress" had been made in the educational program under the present Des Moines Commission on Human Rights, which the last previous council established July 9, 1954. He said he favored, now a fair employment practices law with penalties attached.

The proposed ordinance would create a Des Moines Commission on Job Discrimination, consisting of five council-appointed members.

It would be empowered to initiate complaints and to receive and investigate others; to seek conciliation, hold hearings, and make findings and recommendations.

If the state of recommendations were reached, and the person or organization complained against did not comply with them, the commission would certify the case to the city.

Ministers Preach

On Alabama

REV. DELUTHA P. KING

"As we come to the close of this Lenten season and as our eyes turn towards Calvary, it is appropriate and significant that we re-read and meditate upon the 17th Chapter of John's Gospel," preached the Rev. Delutha P. King, to his members at the First Colored Methodist Episcopal Church here.

"Jesus is the pattern for us in our relation to the world."

"In John's Gospel we find these words: 'I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world, but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil.' (John 17-15), the Rev. Mr. King based his Sunday morning message, then later in his sermon applied the 'prayer of Jesus' to the racial oppressions in Alabama."

Challenge

"This prayer of Jesus upon this occasion is a challenge to us this morning as we pray for the oppressed minority in the South of which we are a part; and, for those leaders of our race who have taken a stand for right."

"We pray, not that the conditions that prevail should be removed, but, in spite of prevailing conditions and under these conditions, that men of all races, creeds, live together in peace."

'Living Oneness'

"We pray, not for the destruction of our adversary, nor for the attaining of our rights by coercion, but through the love of God, the ap-

REV. E. A. GALTERS

The Rev. E. A. Galters, of 1135 Tenth Street, field secretary of the American Baptist Theological Seminary, Nashville, Tenn., had this to say of the racial oppression in Montgomery, Ala., in recent sermons here:

"The situation in the Montgomery, Ala., boycott would be comical if it were not for the fact that it contains tragic implications. It is tragic that such can happen in a Christian, democratic nation and within a Republican form of government. We proudly boast of our 'American way of life' and feel to have justifiable reasons to criticize other people of the world because they reject parts of that 'way of life', or disapprove of its philosophy."

"Time and incidents are proving to the rest of the world, that we have not accepted or adopted even as yet our 'American way of life'. Surely if we are to survive much

Mother of Mrs. Mack Carson Dies

Mrs. Mack Carson, 964 Twenty-third street, returned Monday from Slater, Mo., where her mother, Mrs. Maude Allen, was buried on March 8. She died there March 4.

Mrs. Carson received word on March 15 of the death of a cousin, Mr. Walter Allen of St. Paul, Minn., a Pullman porter who had visited here on many occasions.

Rev. Gaines' Murder Trial Opens in Polk District Court

The murder trial for Rev. Seymour J. Gaines, 36, opened Monday morning in the Polk County District Court, before Judge Tom K. Murrow.

The early part of the week was spent in selecting a jury to hear the case.

Much time was given to questioning prospective jurors on matters of "trying a minister of the gospel," self-defense, capital punishment.

The Rev. Mr. Gaines, pastor of Union Baptist Church, is accused of fatally shooting Johnnie Brown, 47, of 1213 Eighteenth street, on the morning of Jan. 15.

The shooting occurred in a parking lot near the Metropolitan Drug Store, at Tenth and Crocker streets, operated by the Rev. Mr. Gaines. Mr. Brown was a grocer.

Attorneys Charles Bowers and W. Lawrence Oliver are representing the minister.

County Attorney Leo J. Tapscott said he expected the trial to last up to two weeks.

Ala. Bus Boycotters Tell of Smooth-Running Car Pool for Protestors of Jimcrow Travel

Montgomery Ala.—The mass trial of the 93 Negro citizens, including 23 clergymen, who were indicted as leaders of the 16-week-old boycott of Montgomery city line buses, began here Monday.

The Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., one of the 93 arrested, Tuesday told how a smooth-running motor pool provides transportation for Negroes who boycott buses to protest racial segregation.

Other witnesses testified that a newly-organized Montgomery Improvement Association, which came into being the day the boycott started last Dec. 5, arranged for the car pool and has paid for gasoline and other expenses of the driver.

The Rev. Mr. King is president of the Association. The state is endeavoring to link to a "conspiracy" to hinder the operation of Montgomery City Lines, Inc., a privately operated bus company.

Motorists Volunteer

Rufus Lewis, chairman of the Improvement Association's transportation committee, told the court how the committee inaugurated the car pool soon after the Negroes stopped riding city buses in protest against segregated seating facilities.

Lewis said the committee arranged to pay volunteer drivers $4 a day for the use of their cars and bought gasoline for some. He said approximately some 200 Negro motorists volunteered for the assignments of getting other Negroes to and from work.

He said the committee worked out a detailed list of "dispatch" stations to get Negroes to work in the morning and "pick-up stations" to get them home at the close of the day.

Lewis said mimeographed lists of the stations have been distributed in Negro communities and read at mass meetings held twice weekly in Negro churches since the boycott started.

Two Brothers Jailed

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Two Negro brothers Monday were convicted of assault and battery for an attack on a University of Alabama freshman which they blamed on their bitterness against treatment of Autherine Lucy, Negro coed expelled from the school.

An all-white jury returned the verdict after deliberating 30 minutes, fixing a fine of 500 and recommending "maximum imprisonment." Judge Reuben Wright then sentenced Arthur Washington, 23, and John Washington, 19, to 6 months in jail for the Feb. 14 beating of Samuel Perrin Taylor, 19.

Burns Fatal to Walter Byers in Apartment Fire

Services were held Tuesday morning at Estes and Son Funeral Home for Walker Byers, 66, of 934 Ninth Street, with burial at Glendale Cemetery.

Mr. Byers died Sunday, March 18, at Broadlawn General Hospital of burns he received in a fire at his apartment on March 11.

Born in Mahaska County, he had lived here 15 years. Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Hazel Johnson of Omaha, Neb.

Carried Down Ladder

Mr. Byers was carried down a ladder by firemen after he made his way to a window. He suffered first and second degree burns over about one-fourth of his body.

A visitor in his apartment, John Schooler of 1164 Twelfth street, also suffered burns. He smashed out a window and dropped to the ground from the second floor of the six-unit apartment building.

Rites Held for Mr. Harrison A. Beckton

Services for Harrison A. Beckton, 68, of 532 S. E. Twenty-seventh street, who died Sunday at his home, were held Wednesday afternoon at the L. Fowler and Son Funeral Home. Burial was in Glendale Cemetery.

A life-long resident of Des Moines, Mr. Beckton was employed as a shipping clerk at Wolf's store before his retirement several years ago.

Surviving are his widow, Elizabeth, and a brother, Angus Beckton of Chicago, Ill.

Alfred O. Roper Given 30 Days

Alfred O. Roper, 43, of 1653 Walker street, was sentenced to 30 days in jail by Municipal Judge Ray Harrison after he pleaded guilty of driving while intoxicated.

Roper was arrested Feb. 6 by Patrolman Joe Williamson following an accident at E. Fourteenth street and Euclid avenue. The jail sentence was recommended by Assistant County Dale Spencer.

'We Had to Do Something About Police Brutality'

Cleveland, Ohio—"Perhaps you've heard that Negroes will not stick together. Well, if you hear it again remember Montgomery, Alabama."

This was the admonition given here last week by one of the 24 ministers indicted in Montgomery in February for their participation in a mass Negro protest against discrimination in Montgomery city buses. A total of nearly 100 Negroes were indicted.

Addressing a crowd of 2,100 persons at a prayer-protest rally, sponsored by the Cleveland NAACP, the Rev. L. Roy Bennett recounted that "we decided to go to jail together instead of one by one."

A total of $3,301.64 was donated by the audience to aid the Montgomery group in its fight against segregation and to help in the legal defense of those arrested there.

Mr. Bennett, a Methodist minister in Montgomery, related: "Our story started in April, 1955, when a young girl refused to give up her seat on a bus, thereby violating city and state law, was jailed and fined. She had moved across an imaginary line set up by the bus driver."

Woman Refused to Give up Seat

"Then, last December, a woman who had sat in the same bus seat for years refused to give it up to a white man. That was the straw that broke the camel's back. She was arrested, and that night there was the biggest and most spontaneous mass meeting ever seen at our church."

"We had to do something to stop the brutality of police and the drivers. We set December 5 as the day for our protest, in which no Negro would ride on a bus... We, the six or seven thousand Negroes gathered at our Dexter Avenue church that night, set up three things to accomplish:

"First, to request more courtesy to our people from the bus lines; SEE PAGE TWO

Caravan Carrying Garments, Food for Needy Families In S. Carolina 'Squeeze' Areas

New York, N. Y.—A six-car "mercy caravan" carrying thousands of garments and shoes for men, women and children and a heavy load of canned foods gathered by the National Committee for Rural Schools was scheduled to leave New York City, March 16, for Columbus, S. C. Volunteer drivers expect to push the express run through in 18 hours of steady driving.

The entire shipment will be immediately distributed to needy families in Ellery, Orangeburg and Clarendon Counties, S. C., where much of the Negro farming population is destitute in the face of underground reprisals that took place when they practically unanimously signed petitions for the integration of their schools. The NCRS sent cash contributions last week for the purchase of seeds and farming implements.

Rendezvous Point

Rendezvous point for the caravan, consisting of 5 sedans and a station wagon, will be Public School No. 2, 1365 Fulton Avenue at 169th Street, the Bronx at 2 P. M. Co-leaders are Richard Parris, New York City School teacher and NCRS board member, and Richard Gangel, union leader. Delivery point will be the NCRS Clothing and Food Bank, 1719 Taylor Street, Columbia, S. C. The office is headed by the Rev. A. C. Redd.

Clarendon County, one of the depressed areas for which clothing and food is intended, has strong memories of the long legal struggle that

Lenten Lunch

It needn't be Friday to enjoy this delicious "quickie" lunch. Fish sticks in frankfurter rolls is the latest suggestion from the Minute Maid-Snow Crop Frozen Foods Test Kitchen—and a wonderful idea it is too!

Quick, easy and economical, this is a menu specially apt for Lent, but appetizing enough to serve year 'round. Allow 2 Snow Crop Fish Sticks per serving (the 8 ounce package will serve 4 people). Heat, following label directions, then sandwich in the frankfurter rolls. You can warm your rolls in the oven along with the Fish Sticks, or toast them if you prefer. Tartar Sauce and lemon slices belong, of course, but there's no law says you have to have them.

For crisp contrast try celery and carrot curls, radishes served plain or fancy, your favorite beverage and maybe some fruit for dessert. You've got an attractive lunch that takes only minutes to set up.

QUICKIE SANDWICH 4 frankfurter rolls, hot or toasted

1 8 oz. package Snow-Crop Fish Sticks

Heat fish sticks, following label directions. When hot, place 2 fish sticks in each roll. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

"December 23 was the last of the meetings we had with city officials. They refused any compromise on our first two points. On the third they said union rules would take a little time for any integration of Negro drivers into the union.

Negroes Have Walked and Walked

"Since then Negroes in Montgomery have walked and walked and walked. . . In a sense it is a spiritual movement. While we are walking, the bus line has lost $3,500 a day. Imagine, $3,500 a day for 91 days. We're going to fight until we can sit down where we darn please."

The call for funds at the meeting was led by the Rev. Angus C. Hull, Jr., of the Cleveland Baptist Association, who also served as moderator.

Mary Learned to Play With Other Children

"I gave Mary my tricycle—she wanted it," said five-year-old Billy. Asked where it was, he cheerfully said that Mary took it home with her.

A trip with Billy to Mary's home recovered the tricycle; Mary's mother hadn't noticed it out in the side yard.

Billy's mother had been puzzled for some time about Billy's inability to stand up for himself, and also about Mary's domination. She was Billy's only playmate.

Was this a question of property rights? Possibly, but the greatest problem was Billy's too submissive spirit and Mary's need to "boss" him.

We can't make over our neighbors' children—though plenty of folks have wanted to try! Billy's mother wisely did some study of the situation, finally coming up with the idea that Billy's too submissive attitude might come from his lack of experience with children. He just didn't know how to play with other children.

Play Group

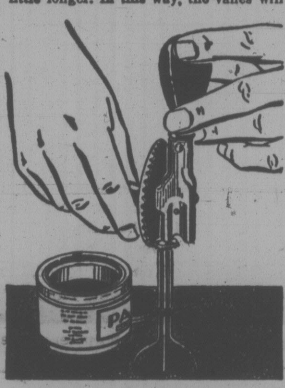

She looked up the neighborhood children, organized a play group in her yard—a play group that included Mary. She supervised the play group enough so that in the beginning she could re-direct Mary's bossiness.

Billy soon learned it was fun to play with the other children. Partly in imitation of them and partly from his own inner development with never play equipment, he began to stand up for himself. It took time, but when summer was over Billy's mother felt rewarded. Gradually the children handled Mary. She learned it was more fun to play with the others than to boss them; that when she grew angry at not having her own way, threatening not to play, the children just said: "Go on

"Why Christ prayed such a prayer: why they should not be taken out of the world? Because, the world needed Christ's people. Visualize, for a moment, the condition of the world when Jesus came—darkness, enshrouded the earth. The doctrine everywhere was that death was an eternal sleep, the grave ended all, that there was no hope."

IBPOEW's Board of Education to Grant Scholarship to Miss Autherine Lucy

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—George W. Lee, grand commissioner of the department of education of the IBPOE of W., recently announced the decision of the Elk's Board of Department to grant a scholarship of $1,000 to Miss Autherine Lucy.

Mr. Lee, in a statement to the press, said, "I feel that this young lady, Miss Lucy, stands as a symbol of our unquenchable faith in God and man. Her expulsion by the board of education of the University of Alabama cannot put out the light of our hope and faith that all men wish to be free and will continue the struggle even against odds for freedom and justice."

'More Than Dream'

"Miss Lucy is the living representation of our conviction that no form of discrimination ever can for long starve or torture average men and women out of that dream of freedom. Yes, it is more than a dream, it is the aim of mankind, the purpose of history, the desire toward which all men have marched."

"Today and tomorrow men and women of the Southland, the flower of America, are carrying the light of hope a little nearer to the goal of Lincoln and Douglass. They are carrying the light of liberty and democracy to sections of hate and oppression, not in hatred but with determination to break the shackles of enslavement everywhere. Our Elk's Department of Education is resolved that this march towards real democracy dramatized by Miss Lucy at the University of Alabama shall attain its goal."

'Great Storm'

"The great storm that now sweeps humanity has swept us all with it and our little fight in the South against discrimination has become a part of the tremendous struggle for human freedom upon the globe. The Negro simply wants to be free in the American nation and not just living here in suffrage. He wants to be a part of all American institutions, he wants to work as an individual and not as a group in the American society."

"What he wants is equal rights and opportunity to make the best place he can with his life and family and

MOTHERS! FATHERS!

EXPLAIN MY 4 RULES FOR KITE FLYING TO YOUR CHILDREN . . . IT COULD BE A MATTER OF LIFE OR DEATH!

Report any Kite you see tangled in wires to Ipalco at once. It's serious! Phone 8-7161 in Des Moines!

KITES AND KIDS go hand-in-hand to make March a wonderful time of the year. Many places there's little to worry about. But kids will be kids — and it's every parent's job to tell them all the facts as far as kites are concerned — right now! Take a few minutes off to talk with Jack or Jill before they fly their first kite. And a reminder of Reddy's Safety Rules to the older kids will be time well spent.

YOU CAN HELP THEM
 Look around the neighborhood for a spot with no electric wires — where it's safe to fly a kite. Or, hop in the car and take them out to a pasture. Grown-ups like kites, too! Make sure the string they're using is a dry cotton string — DO NOT USE a string that has been impregnated with chemical that conducts electricity, or a string that has a metallic thread used for greater strength.

Be sure the type they buy or make is free of metal parts (Metal braces or wires falling across electric wires can cause serious damage).

Be sure that the kite string does not have a long wire in it and that there is no wire in the tail of the kite.

If a kite becomes caught in wires, call IPALCO. We'll get it for you if we can — and for FREE! Please leave the pole climbing to the experts.

Ask your kids to help Reddy Kilowatt maintain his good record. Reddy will appreciate your help in making this kite season a safe one.

flammatory spoken word were ready to accept responsibility for the consequences. Talmadging by any other name is as bad. We think that stereotyping and "blasting" should be left for the kind of leadership that wants run-sheep-run response, since they are not calculated to make people think sanely or act wisely, and are evidence of neither strength nor courage.

"The Courage of Prudence"

By way of comment on courage, we commend "Reporter Magazine's" March 8 editorial, "The Courage of Prudence"—which took courage to write.

Moderation Without Complacency

Asked for comment on the 19-Senator Southern manifesto (Senators from Tennessee, Oklahoma and Kentucky did not sign, and Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson was not asked to sign) President Eisenhower urged "moderation without complacency," and expressed the opinion that "extremists on either side are not going to help." We agree.

As in all debate, a common denominator of expression is needed.

Belling the "Commission" Cat

There is also much divergence of opinion as to whether "an investigative commission" should be authorized by Congress to look into the desegregation problem and the entire field of racial rights," as President Eisenhower requested in his State of the Union message, or whether such a commission should be established by the Chief Executive.

This column, from the beginning has supported a Congressional authorized commission. Even before the rise in the emotional temperature, the handpicking of members by the Executive seemed to us to be undesirable. Without "ducking the issue" in any way, such an arrangement appeared like an open invitation to partisan feuding over personally-selected participants.

Independent-minded members of the legal fraternity concede that a commission established by the Congress would be in a better position than an Executive-named commission to reach findings and produce constructive legislation—but that this would take longer.

Excluding political partisans who would like to "put the bee on the Boss," those preferring a bi-racial commission named by the President point to the time element—the speedier action possible in an emergency where speed "is of the essence" as against the probable time-lag, with answers long forthcoming, indicated by past experience with legislative-sponsored commissions.

The Protest Press

Last week, on March 17, the Negro "Protest Press" celebrated its 129th birthday—the anniversary of the day, in 1827, that the first issue of John B. Russwurm's "Freedom's Journal," the first paper published by Negroes in America, came off his press in New York City, with the words,

"We wish to conciliate all and to irritate none, yet we must be firm and unwavering in our principles and persevering in our efforts."

In the century and a quarter intervening, the Negro press has come to be more than a press of protest, but from the results of recent sessions at the Capital Press Club, here—with members representing just about everything published by Negroes in this country, the opinion seems to be that the function of this press is still, basically that of "protest"—including interpretation and presentation of all points of view—the latter a goal not always attained.

We think that we should be able to look ahead, beyond next week's headlines to better planning, more factual reporting, and an extension of the wholly admirable work of recent weeks by editors who have given a place on their pages to the points of view of editors of non-Negro papers, to an extent that has not been seen before.

Holy Week services, leading up to Easter, will begin Monday in many of the churches and theaters here.

It is a refreshing pause in the day's occupation to attend one of the noonday Holy Week meetings, held annually at the Paramount Theater, where one can hear fine music of integrated choruses of the Des Moines High Schools and an uplifting message.

The Good Friday music will be offered by a community chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Lauretta Hughes.

Easter shopping has been going on at full speed, aided by the arrival of spring, a beautiful but cool Tuesday. But, winter had made a surprise return with a light snow that covered the ground Wednesday morning.

Eying one of the white straw toppers for her Easter bonnet was Mrs. Vera Spencer, a downtown elevator operator.

"It's a darling thing—and, only $5.95," she pointed out. I smiled and told her that with Easter coming on April 1, the weather is just likely to fool her, with so much of the white stuff on the ground that you will not

SOME BRILLIANT MEN HAVE BAD STREAKS

During the course of discussions, both verbal and written, about the manifesto issued by the 10 Congressmen against the Supreme Court segregation case, many views have been expressed.

Last week, an editorial from the Wall Street Journal was reprinted in the Des Moines Tribune. And while it was somewhat baffling to follow the line of reasoning because the article blew hot and cold on both sides of the question, the editorial emphasized that the manifesto deserves great weight because such brilliant names as that of Senator George and Russell of Georgia and others appeared on it.

In other words, to follow this line of reasoning, because these men are brilliant in some things, what they do wrong in other things makes little difference or "the King can do no wrong."

This is dangerous doctrine for some most brilliant men in many respects have been scoundrels in other respects. Take some of Hitler's advisers, some of Mussolini's, some who help lead their countries into the most devastating wars the world has ever experienced. Think of the most inhuman things they did—using the massacre of Jews as an example. Many of these men had brilliant minds but also a streak of savagery which America, along with other nations, went to war to stamp out.

Did the views of such men prevail at the peace table? No, for some of their views were contrary to the things for which their conquerors fought.

In spite of the Journal's plea for deference to these men because of their great ability, their views are not going to prevail because they are wrong, contrary to the things for which this country stands.

PEOPLE FORGET EASILY

When the city manager plan was before Des Moines in the first attempt to adopt the system, one of the issues which led to its defeat was the provision that the manager would be empowered to fire employees with or without cause.

This issue, threw a scare into dozens of civil service employees who feared that, even though holding records of years of service, if the manager-council form of government was adopted, they stood the chance of losing their jobs without cause.

Policemen and firemen got out and campaigned openly against the plan. They got the support of a lot of people who thought the manager-council plan desirable, yet contained inherent weaknesses which might work a hardship on some of the city's most valuable employees.

But little was said at the time about the provision dealing with firing the manager "at any time." The opposition was not interested and the proponents were so sure that future council members would never attempt to fire a manager without good cause that they too did not attempt to make it an issue.

That was eighteen years ago. Six years ago the manager-council form of government was adopted and a manager hired. And contrary to expressed fears of the opponents of the plan, Leonard Howell has reinstated employees and/or reduced fines of several who, having been punished by their immediate chiefs, appealed to the city manager for a review of their cases.

In the controversy over an attempt to fire Leonard Howell, the same people who feared employees would be dismissed without cause are trying to dismiss the manager without cause.

It is ridiculous that a man of Howell's ability, training and experience is subjected to the petty fogging that has gone on since the city election. But he goes on calmly, listens to the charges, for each which he has an intelligent explanation or reason for his action.

Many men would not take such abuse. He said it is a matter of principle. And it is true. Unfortunately, too few men take that course. Certainly his accusers have not.

'Meat' of Measure

Robert Jones, president of Local 89, of the Packinghouse Workers Union, who submitted the ordinance, had outlined and pointed to the section on procedure in handling complaints of job discrimination as the "meat" of the measure, which provides for private conciliation and that failing for public hearings.

Richard Bruner, district program co-ordinator for the United Packinghouse Workers Union, cited data gathered from questionnaires answered by 16 city and state commissions operating under compulsory fair employment practices laws.

Of a total of 8,207 complaints received by those commissions, "only 25 were taken beyond the private conciliation state to the public hearing stage—only three-tenths of one percent," Bruner said. Only two cases reached court, he added.

Denny, who was "wondering where this problem (of job discrimination) comes from" asked Bruner: "Are there any unions that have excluded Negroes or have no Negro members?" When Bruner replied that there are no such unions in his organization Denny wanted to know: "How about the bricklayers."

Bruner, representing the CIO, said he was not qualified to answer about the bricklayers, an AFL union.

Bricklayers

Henry L. Robinson, 1451 E. Eighteenth street, in the audience revealed that he came to Des Moines holding an international union membership card in the bricklayers.

Robinson said he was put to work as a bricklayer, but that at noon of his first day, the other bricklayers walked off the job.

"We have the same thing," Robinson said, "in the plasterers, the electricians . . . and the plumbers." Denny asked about discrimination in the stereotypers' and pressmen's unions. He suggested that the hiring of some men under union contracts with the employer was determined by the union.

Bakery Drivers

Mills, saying he had been in the bakery-drivers union (AFL), commented he had no Negro members here, although "a colored person is just as welcome" as any other in the union.

Later, the Iowa Federation of Labor head said the baker drivers union at one time had two Negro members, who solicited orders among Negro residents.

The two quit work, Mills related, and one of them told him that the Negroes were "too jealous" to permit him to develop a bakery route.

File Opinion

The council formally filed the opinion which said in part:

"Since we have only a limited (state) civil rights statute, we are of the opinion that until the Iowa legislature grants more home rule authority to cities and towns, the power of the council to pass the proposed fair employment practices ordinance with criminal penalties is highly controversial."

The opinion added that some cities in other states have passed such ordinances that have been "left unchallenged."

Another hearing on the ordinance was set for next Monday morning when it is returned from the city legal department.

(Report of March 19 session will be continued in the next issue of the Bystander.)

HEALTH FOR ALL

Strange Diet

"The baby swallowed Father's cuff link!" Mother calls the doctor. Father calls the fire department. Hysteria reigns until Junior finds the missing cuff link under the bed.

Scenes like this have happened in almost every household where there is a baby. Children seem to be born with the desire to swallow anything small enough to be fitted into the mouth. Unfortunately, too often the cuff link is not under the bed. Baby really has managed to swallow it. Fortunately, doctors are constantly developing new ways to get it out again.

As early as 1620, medical history tells us, a surgeon removed nine coins swallowed by a boy who was about to be robbed. Today doctors try to find ways of avoiding surgery in removing objects that children swallow.

One new way of removing a metallic object is use of a very small magnet on a string. The magnet can be put into the throat and allowed to work its way down into the stomach or intestines. It is then withdrawn, pulling the indigestible tidbit with it. Doctors have had considerable success in retrieving Mother's bobby pins by this method. However, it is not an operation to be performed by "do-it-yourself" fans.

Physicians can now also give antibiotic drugs to prevent infection. Then they wait and watch until the object is eliminated naturally. An unusual case reported by one doctor is that of a year-old baby boy who swallowed five open safety pins and a dozen needles. He also managed to consume the balloon given to him at the hospital. The child was given antibiotics. Almost all the objects versity of Iowa cage team will have met the enemy in the final round of the NAAC meet and won or lost. If the Hawkeyes meet San Francisco with Bill Russell they have the stuff to beat the Dons. A blazing fast break that might beat Russell back to the basket will result in few being forced to stay at one basket on the other end and that could bring about his team's defeat. There isn't much need to say anything about Carl Cain because the daily papers are giving the full treatment.

Track

Judge by the results of the junior A. A. U. track meet last week, there will be some upsets when the local high schools meet outdoors. Tech High seems to have a strong team. The Engineers have a couple of point winners in most any meet. Young Graves is apt to score in the broad jump in most meets.

There is a young runner, Hutchinson, who will probably win a lot of dashes in outdoor meets. The kid is a slow starter, but really picks up speed after about forty yards. So in April and May you will probably see the Blue and Gold of Tech breaking the tape in most of the short dashes. They won the high school section of the meet Saturday and could win some meets or decide the winners in some important affairs later on.

SPORTS

By ALLEN ASHBY

Guess the good old pro-segregation boys who don't want their children to play with Negroes are going to have to stay home and play with each other. There are a surprising number of Catholic teams in these national tournaments and most of them have one to three Negroes. Then to cap it all, Negro schools are getting into the meets also. So it looks like the Dixie boys are going to have to set their sports program back about twenty-five years. It was a long time before southern schools were considered for positions on national all star teams because they only played each other. Wonder what they will do about the Olympics with its gang of people from all races.

Well, at least that is one way to keep your boys tops; by not letting them meet anybody you don't like.
