Rigged School Probe
Still Producing Benefits

Washington, D. C. — Committee hearings and suppressions, charges, attacks and counter-attacks only served to underscore important facts revealed by unforseen testimony, last week, at the second week's round of the D. C. school integration hearings.

Georgia's Congressman James C. Davis, who chairs the investigating subcommittee set in motion by his colleague and fellowprober John Bell Williams of Mississippi, hurled "hit-dog" charges at the NAACP, after Democrat Nominee Adlai Stevenson's message to a protest mass meeting, here, addressed by NAACP Secretary Roy Wilkins, to the effect that the hearings are "serving no constructive purpose."

We agree, rather, with President Eisenhower's statement, following his obviously correct reply that he could not, as the Executive, interfere with a legislative procedure, that he did not think that the investigation would impair integration, here. And we think that this opinion has already been brought out by the

International Assembly of Disciples An Impressive Interracial Event Here

By WM. K. FOX

The 9,441 persons who recently attended the annual meeting of the International Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) which closed here Wednesday at Veteran's Memorial Auditorium made an impressive interracial, as well as intercultural, assembly.

"We heard the call for all Christians to come," said Dr. E. J. Dickson of Indianapolis, Ind., "and we are here." The convention convened Sept. 28 through Oct. 3.

Mr. Dickson is the executive secretary of a service agency pointed toward many of the small Negro congregations.

Oriental and Spanish speaking members of the Protestant body were in significant participation. However, several of the feature events highlighted contributions made by American Negroes.

Main Speaker

Dr. Cleo Blackburn, director of Flanner House in Indianapolis, Ind., and president of Jarvis Christian College, Hawkins, Texas, was the main speaker for the luncheon dinner under the joint sponsorship of the National Benevolent Association and the Department of Social Wel-

With World Three-Fourths Colored, U.S. Segregation Is Termed Deadly Enemy

"The good in the United Nations is that it takes the position in nations of moral judgment and that is having a salutary influence on nations," Dr. Archibald Carey, Jr., of Chicago, Ill., said here Saturday night.

A former first alternate delegate to the United Nations general assembly, a practicing lawyer and fourth generation A.M.E. minister, Carey spoke at the kickoff membership dinner of the Iowa Association for the United Nations at St. John's Catholic church.

Back from a short trip to the Middle East, Carey said the papers give just as much front page space to this nation's segregation troubles in the South as they do to the Suez Canal crisis in their own back yard. He informed that the papers carried pictures of soldiers escorting a colored child into a white school, fifth a mob standing around.

He also is vice-chairman of President Eisenhower's committee on government employment policy.

Supports U. N.

Carey commented on Middle East attitudes toward the United States after an address in which he supported the U.N.

He said he always gives a simple, unqualified, categorical "no" when asked if the United States should withdraw from the U. N.

"Most of the nations of the world are members, and this is no time to withdraw," Carey declared. With Russia ranking second to the United

12-Year Desegregation Plan in Hopkins County, Ky., Is Barred by Judge

Owensboro, Ky.—A 12-year desegregation plan proposed by the Board of Education of Hopkins County, Kentucky, does not meet the requirements of the United States Court anti-segregation ruling of May 31, 1955, United States District Judge Henry L. Brooks ruled Sept. 27.

The Hopkins County board, citing "serious problems," offered a year-by-year plan to complete desegregation of the county schools over a period of twelve years. After hearing argument by NAACP attorneys Jack Greenberg of New York, and James A. Crumlin and J. Earl Dearing of Louisville, Judge Brooks ruled that the plan was in nature and accordingly could not be considered by the Court. The remaining problems, the Judge asserted, were relatively insignificant and did not require 12 years to overcome.

Judge Brooks directed the school board to present to Court at its next session in January, 1957, a plan to effectuate compliance with the Supreme Court's ruling as soon as possible.

Despite Plans to Get Rid Of NAACP, 'Unabated Support' Found in States

St. Louis—NAACP leaders from 14 southern and border states unanimously agreed that the current "wave of persecution" in that region "would not deter them from continuing to carry forward the legal and constitutional efforts to secure compliance with the Supreme Court ruling banning segregation in public schools," Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary, reported following a conference with the Association's leaders in those states.

Unabated Support

The conference, held in St. Louis on Sept. 22, explored ways and means of counteracting punitive measures against the NAACP. Organizational, legal and public relations aspects of legislative and court action to hamper the NAACP were discussed with national office staff members, who participated in the conference with the state leaders.

Despite official and private efforts to get rid of the NAACP, the southern leaders reported "unabated support for the NAACP program in their respective states."

At the conclusion of the session, Mr. Wilkins pointed out that local courts in "three states—Alabama, Louisiana and Texas—have granted injunctions banning NAACP activity. Virginia, South Carolina and other states have passed laws designed to restrict the activities of the Association. Mississippi has announced the formulation of a secret police force."

The St. Louis conference, the NAACP leader said, "was called to consider methods of dealing with the issues created by such state action. In addition to anti-NAACP legislation, mob defiance of the Supreme Court ruling against segregation in public schools was reported upon by representatives of the states concerned."

'Can Be No Middle-of-Road Attitude' Towards Rights

NEW YORK — Southern Negroes do not seriously expect much change in their civil rights status through "grass roots conversion," despite the insistence of white southerners that the region should be left to work out the present racial crisis in its own way, President Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University declares in a copyrighted article in the New York Times Magazine.

State governments in the South are dominated by rural legislators, whose overall attitude is "anti-labor, anti-capital, anti-race, anti-liberal, anti-civil rights, anti-education, anti-intellectual, antitechnology, anti-Federal Government." Most significant improvements in the southern Negro's status have come, consequently, as a result of Federal insistence and world public opinion, according to the noted sociologist.

New Attention

"It is a tragic pity," he writes, "that while the rest of the world is giving new attention and respect to basic human rights, every device from subversion of law to violence is being employed to defeat the Constitution, and with such frantic desperation that no voice of stern national statesmanship dares defy, without apology and compromise, this organized retreat from freedom to tyranny and feudalism."

The middle-of-the-road philosophy that seems to dominate much of the nation's thinking in matters pertaining to race is due to a confusion of the "moral imperatives," according

Say House Subcommittee Hearings on Desegregation Are Used 'To Spread Hate'

Washington—Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary, charged here at a mass meeting last week that a current Congressional investigation on school desegregation in the District of Columbia has led to Negroes being "smeared from one end of the country to another."

Eugene Davidson, president of the District of Columbia NAACP branch, which sponsored the meeting, asserted that during the hearings the "halls of Congress" are being used "to spread hate."

No Constructive Purpose

Some 400 persons who attended the gathering read a telegram from Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential candidate, which said: "I think the hearings are serving no constructive purpose."

President Eisenhower previously had sent a telegram, through an aide, to Mr. Davidson, in which he expressed the opinion that the hearings, conducted by a special subcommittee of the House District of Columbia Committee, would not impair school integration in Washington.

Committee Members

Mr. Wilkins told the audience that he preferred Mr. Stevenson's view on the matter. He denounced the hearings as the action of some southern Congressmen "to force their views and those of their constituents on the nation through the mechanism and publicity of a Congressional committee."

Easy Fall Supper.

Margined peas nested in mashed yellow squash are surrounded by pork links.

Squash seems especially suitable for late summer and early fall meals. It is colorful, and its flavor blends so well with other vegetables. It is especially good when mashed and then seasoned liberally with margarine and a little brown sugar. The combination of flavors is a bit similar to that of candied sweet potatoes, without being cloying and too rich.

Squash can be the foundation of many attractive, colorful late summer and early fall meals. It goes well with many meats, especially with ham, chicken and pork. It plays the star role in an easy supper that is served all on one big chop plate or platter. Either fresh squash or frozen cooked squash may be used.

While the squash cooks or defrosts and heats, cook green peas and pan-broil some pork links. Then arrange the hot margined squash in a ring on a big hot plate or platter. Pile the hot margined peas in the center of the ring and arrange the broiled sausages around the edge. For a salad, serve thick slices of tomatoes, French bread or hard rolls with margarine give the meal a pleasant touch of crispness. For dessert, sweetened sliced peaches over vanilla ice cream complete this easy meal.

EASY SUPPER

(6 servings)

2 packages frozen cooked squash
1 package frozen peas
2 cups thin carrot strips
2 tablespoons margarine
2 tablespoons brown sugar
Salt
Pepper
1/4 cup melted margarine

1 pound pork link sausages

Defrost squash in top of double boiler. Cook peas and carrots separately in boiling water with 1/2 teaspoon salt for each. While vegetables cook, broil or fry sausages over gentle heat. When squash is hot, beat in brown sugar and 2 tablespoons margarine. Drain peas and carrots. Pour one-fourth cup melted margarine over peas and carrots, tossing lightly with fork. On hot serving plate arrange squash in circle. Pile margined carrots in center of plate. Pile peas around carrots, just inside ring of squash. Arrange broiled sausages around edge of plate and serve at once.

A Peach of A Jam

TALL TINKLING, ICED DRINKS, cool, crisp salads, cold cuts, spiced up with rolls and homemade sweet spread are a gourmet's delight.

Delicately flavored peaches are easily spoiled by over cooking. So when this pink-cheeked fruit is at its prime, we have a special reason to appreciate short-boil recipes for jams and jellies.

With the short-boil method use only fully ripe fruit. By adding natural fruit pectin only one minute's boil is required and the real flavor is sealed right in. The color is bright and natural, the texture and consistency excellent, and the taste—delicious.

PEACH JAM

4 cups prepared sugar 5 cups sugar
1 box Sure-Jell

First, prepare the fruit. Peel and pit about 3 pounds fully ripe peaches. Grind or chop very fine. Measure 4 cups into a very large saucepan.

Then make the jam. Measure sugar and set aside. Add powdered fruit pectin to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once stir in sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover jam at once with 1/2 inch hot paraffin. Yield: 9 medium glasses. (ANS) success depended on sufficient teachers, reduction of class sizes and more social and welfare service with pupils' families.

"The Washington Committee on Public Schools"

Such never-intended testimony not only supports the President's expressed opinion on the hearings, but is providing alert citizens with the material they need to combat the anti-integration action of the "2 to 1" probe subcommittee—three Southern Democrats and one Southern "Republican"—all Southern Manifesto signers, against two liberal Republicans.

A new "Washington Committee on Public Schools," composed of leading area citizens of both races has released a school integration fact-sheet pointing to racial differentials in pupil expenditure, here, prior to integration; differentials in school buildings, number of classrooms and pupil-teacher ratios; to the influx of less-privileged pupils from the South; and to the lack of special teachers for a typical or problem pupils, available to white but not to Negro schools—an important factor in the variations old "white" and "Negro" schools, in disciplinary methods between the which has occasioned much comment, but has received little analysis.

Val Washington Disagrees With Certain Statements On Rights by Roy Wilkins

Washington—Val J. Washington, Director of Minorities for the Republican National Committee, Sept. 26 disagreed with certain statements on civil rights made by Roy Wilkins, NAACP Executive Secretary, in an address here Sunday, Sept. 23.

"Mr. Wilkins and all others may as well face up to the fact that more has been accomplished in the field of civil rights under Eisenhower than by any other administration in a similar period of time," Mr. Washington declared.

The veteran Republican leader "disagreed thoroughly" with Mr. Wilkins' statement that "neither party has much to brag about on civil rights," but "I can understand why he made such a statement."

On the Board

He made it, Mr. Washington explained, "because he has on the NAACP board of directors such partisans as Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Walter Reuther, who have endorsed the pitiful record of the Democrats on this matter in toto." Continuing, Mrs. Washington said:

"Mrs. Roosevelt has already taken umbrage at some of Mr. Wilkins' statements in praise of Republican efforts and has threatened to resign from the Advancement Association board."

The GOP Minorities Director asserted: "I do not know what Mr. Wilkins means when he says Adlai Stevenson, the Democrat Presidential candidate has 'the better choice of words' in his telegram to Eugene Davidson, President of the District of Columbia Branch of the NAACP, concerning the congressional investigation of Washington public schools."

Telegram Sent

"Certainly, the telegram the White House sent to Mr. Davidson exactly expressed the situation that the investigation will not impair integration in District of Columbia public schools."

By DELORES CALVIN
New York (CNS)—Show business fights discrimination at last... at last, show business is beginning to do the job it is so well cut out for and can attack with telling effect—that is discrimination in theaters.

Not only that, the folks who are sponsoring the current job are some who have made a fortune off Negro stars, so that it's only fitting that they get in there and press the issue.

We're referring to the "Birdland Stars" unit with Billy Eckstine, Sarah Vaughan and Count Basie, which hits the road in February. A proviso is in all contracts for this jazz group that the guarantee for the show in any area shall be forfeited by the promoter should the theater or arena sell tickets in a manner to indicate there's been discrimination because of color. Overall backers of the "Birdland Stars" are Morris Levy and Al W. Wilde. Wilde has long been associated with Gale Agency which almost exclusively handled Negro stars and certainly made its first million from them.

Now the group is taking the chance to do its bit against Jim Crow. It has several southern dates at Washington, D. C., Charleston, W. Va., Winston-Salem and Charlotte, N. C., and Louisville, Ky.—the better race-conscious cities. Should all go well this may set the pattern for future dates. Anyway, the group reasons that with the Supreme Court ruling on segregation, the same ought to apply to show business behind the footlights. And if they can hit the youngsters—the teenagers, they can pull over a lot of the young generation to thinking in the right way.

We say hats off to the backers of "Birdland Stars." Only wish they had done it earlier.

Harry Belafonte's not-up-to-par performance at the swankiest of schools, nor will it reflect upon the fine manner in which it was accomplished.

"What Mr. Wilkins ignored was the fact that the money which is being used to conduct the investigation was voted by a Democrat-controlled Congress, and that the investigation itself was voted by a Democrat-controlled House District of Columbia Committee."

W. Jones of North Carolina, all Democrats—whose utterances on the subject display a contempt for our highest court, the Constitution, and a sense of fair-play and an implacable intention to evade or defy the law of the land.

"Apparently, Mr. Wilkins now feels that it is necessary to criticize the Republican as well as the Democrat party. But I think he should stick to the record, including the record of his own earlier utterances."

Meanwhile, Mr. Washington added, House Majority Leader McCormack (D, Mass.) claimed Tuesday in a letter of Washington NAACP Director Clarence Mitchell that both he and Majority Leader Sam Rayburn (D, Texas) are powerless to stop the probe, widely characterized as a "sneak attempt" to discredit school integration efforts.

Rep. McCormack explained that all he or Speaker Rayburn could do would be to "request" a stoppage of the District school probe, without saying whether such a request would or should be made.

Best Proof

"If the Democrats were not in control of the 84th Congress," averred Mr. Washington, "this investigation would not be going on. The best proof of this is the fact that it is an all-Democrat subcommittee which is running it."

"The three committee members holding the hearing are Rep. James C. Davis of Georgia, John Bell Williams of Mississippi, and Woodrow his style? Few performers will admit it, but steadiness at home has a whole lot to do with smoothness before the public. Then the behind-the-scenes happenings at home have just as much to do with their career as anything else... Time will tell.

Don't be surprised if Lionel Hampton and crew don kilts November 6 and 7. That's when the work is scheduled to be in Scotland and Lionel likes to do in Rome as the Romans do... Already in Scotland is veteran Sidney Bechet, who got tremendous applause from the frugal Scots. When the saxist did "When the Saints Go Marching In," audiences cheered for an hour...

Harlem taking the Dodgers' last stand in their stride — though they are wishing fervently all comes out well... Eartha Kitt leaving Las Vegas shortly to be on Ed Sullivan Show October 7th... Josh White is doing the supper club circuit though his folk songs have never made the money of Belafonte and that class.

"Take A Giant Step" which got a second hearing at a small off-Broadway theater received wonderful notices from New York critics. But then they thought the play wonderful last year and Negro playwright Louis Peterson outstanding. Already the new version has an advanced sale of $1,500 and this is considered large for an off-Broadway theater.

"The Great Gildersleeve" is back on radio but without Lillian Randolph in the delightful role of "Birdie"... It's Amanda Randolph instead—Lillian's sister. So "Birdie" is still in the Randolph family.

Carey Speaks

contributions is only a percentage of what is spent daily through World War II.

Longtime Objectives

Nor is the moral obligation that those who are strong should bear the infirmities of the weak to be overlooked, Carey warned.

Carey said the U.N. goals, to abolish war and to secure the dignity of every individual, are longtime objectives.

Even though the U.N. really has no power to raise troops, it has drawn people from around the world to the conference table, "where whosoever wants to, talks."

"There has been a lot of talk, but a lot of shooting has been avoided because people have done a lot of shouting. They have said sharp things, but they sit beside each other all the time they are saying them. The U.N. has had a tremendous effect of keeping peace in the world."

Deadly Enemy

Carey termed segregation a deadly enemy in our midst, because three-quarters of the world is colored.

Carey praised the work of U.N. agencies—the children's fund, world health organization and agricultural programs, results of which he has seen overseas. He also said seven nations had been created under U.N. aegis; 600 million persons gained freedom under its auspices; and seven places where war threatened except for U.N. consideration.

Carey said the U.N., which is American tradition at its best, may not achieve its goals in our time—but its possible for those who are children today.

In reply to a question, Carey said he favored sacrifices of "some national sovereignty" to achieve world peace, because that had been the development from the city-state, as in ancient Rome and Greece, through to the United Nations.

"All of us go along fine at home by sacrificing some sovereignty," Carey explained. "As long as we are in the same world, it's necessary, too."

The Des Moines Veterans Memorial Auditorium has housed a variety of events since the new building was completed, not many months ago.

Thousands and thousands of persons have thronged corridors, ramps, auditoriums, balconies enjoying the ultra modern facilities of the building.

During the intense heat of this summer, the main auditorium of the building was transformed into a spacious frosty ice skating rink, where youth and adults sought recreation as well as comfort.

One of the most unusual and impressive events that has or ever will come to the auditorium, unless it returns, took place last Sunday afternoon when about 10,000 worshippers participated in a solemn communion service of the International Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ).

One might have compared the throngs, the crowds of the Disciples of Christ from all parts of the nation and from many lands about the world, who were in Des Moines, to the multitudes written about in the Holy Bible during the days when the Disciples were following Christ.

The expert lighting system of the auditorium, sent a celestial-like ray shining down upon a long, white cloth-covered Supper Table, illuminating the silver Communion vessels which centered the table, and lighting the faces of the three elders one of whom was a Negro.

The decorations of the raised platform on which the service was conducted were richly colorful, yet simple.

Like in some of the religious temples of old, a maroon carpet covered the dais, which was decorated with green potted palms, white chrysanthemums and golden candelabra.

When the service opened the music of a great organ filled the auditorium.

Sunday, Oct. 21, from 4 to 7 p.m., at Willkie House, the Mary Church Terrell club has set as the time and place of its fiftieth anniversary tea and program. All clubs of the city and friends are invited to attend.

ium, the gigantic maroon-colored curtains, behind the dais, moved backward, slowly on a track, bringing into view a 300-voice choir. In the choir were two Negro singers, one of whom was Mrs. Rose Page Welch of Chicago, Ill.

One of the consecration prayers was offered by Dr. Cleo W. Blackburn of Indianapolis, Ind., and Hawkins, Texas, one of the Negro members of the convention who with Dr. F. J. Huegel of Mexico City, Mexico, and the Rev. Monroe G. Schuster of Anderson, Ind., conducted the communion service.

Most impressive was the serving of 10,000 communicants in four minutes time. After months of advance planning, some 350 elders and deacons of the church, during a "Choral Meditation" Sunday moved quietly and smoothly in a body, to all sections of the spacious auditorium and balconies, to serve the communion symbols of bread and grape juice to the ten thousand communicants.

During the benediction—the multitude of worshippers remained seated—and no one left the auditorium. Quietly and orderly, while the choir sang the recessional hymn, the spacious auditorium was emptied, section by section, as directed by the ushers.

If you were fortunate to attend the service—which was open to the public, it is a memory that you will treasure.

FEDERAL AID TO SCHOOLS PRESENTS DIFFICULTIES

Candidate Adlai Stevenson has accused the Eisenhower administration of neglecting the school classroom and teacher shortage. He declared that nothing had been done by the federal government to relieve the ever-growing lack of adequate facilities.

President Eisenhower strikes back by saying the teacher shortage had been relieved considerably, that more classrooms have been built and that a Democratic Congress failed to enact his recommendation that the federal government appropriate funds to help public education in the states on the basis of need.

Of course, most people recognize that the constant growth in population, the backwardness of some states in providing equal education for all and the ability and desire of more people to seek an education have contributed to the shortage of education facilities as both candidates districts find themselves unable to cope with the situation and thus most people think the federal government ought to supplement the already existing school funds.

Unfortunately, many states have deliberately allowed their school systems to lag behind in a blind effort to penalize the Negro from the lower grades up through their higher schools. And they have stepped up their efforts to better the situation only after they saw integration on the way.

However, no matter what President Eisenhower and Candidate Stevenson say, the task of getting Congress to enact this proposed legislation is a difficult one indeed.

During the present session of Congress, Representative Powell of New York introduced an amendment to the school bill which would deny funds to states and school districts which fail to comply with the U. S. Supreme Court school segregation case. While the amendment was opposed by President Eisenhower, it drew substantial support from both Republican and Democratic members. That combination was the core in the defeat of the whole bill.

Whoever is president will meet that same objection in the next Congress. And while the plea for better education for children may have more merit than desegregation, the sponsors of the Powell amendment had a weapon with which to help enforce the Supreme Court decision—a thing which Congress does not have the courage to do.

This position is sound; it is fair. There is no sound reason why a few southern states should dictate what the law is in America. Certainly, if Negroes were on the other side of the fence, their position would not be tolerated.

After all, our nation is governed by laws. And when there is a clear statement of what the law is, it is an anarchy to refuse to obey it. This is just what has prevailed in Tennessee, Kentucky and Alabama since the opening of the school year.

TOO MANY UNDERESTIMATE THE OTHER FELLOW

When President Nasser of Egypt nationalized the Suez Canal, most of the ship pilots resigned hoping, of course, to cripple the operations. It is announced that the Egyptian pilots did not have sufficient training to take the places of the resigned pilots and that it would take at least six months to train new people to do the job.

With this position the Bystander did not agree.

These same people think a lot of their brains and little of that of the other fellow, a failing which gets us in trouble at times.

joined the Brooklyn Dodgers, many of the old time players opined, "they will never make good. Negroes can't learn to play big league baseball." Even Iowa's great Bob Feller was one of those who fell into such a trap.

The record shows that none of those old timers knew what they were talking about.

News coming out of the Suez Canal this week states that convoys of ships are coming through, somewhat delayed with a few mishaps but only such as would have occurred under seasoned pilots.

In other words, brains and brawn are to be found in men of all nations and races. Given training and opportunity they respond to whatever task is set before them. And while this is no argument in favor of President Nasser's position, it does demonstrate that neither he or his nation is as backward as some people thought.

Subcommittee Hearings

James C. Davis (D) of Georgia. Other sub-committee members are John Bell Williams (D) of Mississippi; Woodrow W. Jones (D) of North Carolina; Joel T. Broyhill (R) of Virginia; DeWitt S. Hyde (R) of Maryland; and A. L. Miller (R) of Nebraska. Reps. Hyde and Miller have not attended the hearings, and Rep. Broyhill, who signed the Southern manifesto, has been present only for brief periods.

The subcommittee proceedings were called "a Georgia and Mississippi hearing, not a hearing of Congress," by Wilkins.

He further charged that Reps. Davis and Williams "want to make a record so they can print and distribute it under the imprimatur of the House District Committee. They don't care whether it's the truth or lies. They'd prefer lies, of course."

The NAACP official declared that Negroes, while not achieving full civil rights at the hands of Republicans, at least "don't get slander." Neither party has much to brag about regarding civil rights, he added.

Shameful Frauds
Rayford W. Logan, professor of history at Howard University in Washington, told the audience that "one of the most shameful frauds in American history is the myth of the inherent, ineradicable inferiority of the Negro race."

He noted that most experts credited poorer performance of Negroes in school and psychological tests to social and economic factors, not to race.

The meeting was held on Sept. 23, to answer allegations made at hearings of the subcommittee during the previous week.

Preach at D. M. Churches

Among the visiting Christian Church ministers who were guest ministers in Des Moines churches last Sunday were the Revs. Emmett Dickson of Indianapolis, at St. Paul AME, R. H. Peoples of Indianapolis at Burns Methodist, W. K. Fox of St. Louis at Bethel AME, R. W. Watson of Kansas City, Mo., at Union Baptist and S. S. Myers of Kansas City, Mo., at Corinthian Baptist.

A group of the Negro visitors held a get-together Tuesday evening at dinner at Bishop's Cafe.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Iowa City, Iowa—Though good nutrition practices have been widely publicized, many Iowans still have poor diets, Professor Genevieve Stearns told dentists attending a post-graduate course in dentistry for children at the State University of Iowa Center for Continuation Study last week.

Dr. Stearns, who is a research professor in the department of orthopedics of the SUI college of medicine, told of protein and calcium deficiencies found in the diet of pregnant women who have participated in studies conducted at the University Hospitals.

It was found that nutrition deficiencies can cause miscarriages, premature births and congenitally defective or underweight children, Dr. Stearns explained.

Three Glasses
Though three glasses of milk a day would have met their calcium needs and made up their protein deficiency, many of the women said they did not like to drink milk. Some women also reported that they did not eat vegetables because their husbands wouldn't eat them.

Dried Skin Milk

Infants up to one year of age are the best-fed members of the family, Dr. Stearns commented, apparently because so much has been said and written about infant nutrition. But during the years one to five, children almost double the muscular proportion of their total body weight and must have more than a pint of milk a day to supply both calcium and high protein needs. Youngsters from one to three years, who are typically independent and negative, are apt to be tired of milk and want solid food. Yet mothers should be cautioned against letting them eat just easily-handled foods—such as bread and mashed potatoes.

SPORTS

Well, the Dodgers made it, but we didn't think they would. Talk about doing things the hard way! We thought Milwaukee would take the flag, but one has to admire Brooklyn whether he likes 'em or not. Three times they were counted out in the stretch and three times they came back to win. That kind of a team is a real championship outfit no matter what you might say about them.

On the stretch Manager Alston went with the old tried veterans, who didn't choke up or get jittery when they had to win. The good youngsters sat on the bench.

However we think the Yanks will win the Series. We will probably do as we did last year—Root for the Dodgers and sit on the Yanks.

Football

Wonder just how good the Iowa team is this year. Maybe they are a bit more of a team unit because they can't depend on Cal Jones on defense. If so, they will be tougher than we figured them to be. That was a convincing win over Indiana.

Now if they can stay that rough the rest of the way, our football picker gives them four wins and five losses. Indiana was one of the wins.

Drake ran into trouble at Iowa State Teachers. Still think the Bulldogs have the makings of a good outfit and will surprise someone yet. East High came up with Jim Thomas to take the place of Chuck McQuerry who is now an Iowa freshman. The Lee Township lads will be a better outfit because they will knit into a well rounded offense. They don't have McQuerry to say "Gimme the ball and get out of the way." So they will block and make their plays run-off.

North really came a cropper at Mason City. Wonder if the Mohawks are that good or did North have a bad day? Then Dowling dusted them. Young Frank Allen got a taste of football and likes it. The kid may become one of the Dowling Stars before he gets out. But North may get going yet. The potential is there and needs only a spark to set it off. Tech

The milk needs of both adults and children can be met by adding dried skim milk to other drinks, to cereal, to mashed potatoes and to fresh milk. Drinking milk does not tend to make a person overweight, Dr. Stearns emphasized. On the contrary, a recent study of teen-ager girls conducted at Iowa State College, showed that those girls who drank more milk tended to be more slender.

If children have a diet which is adequate nutritionally, the only vitamin they need in addition is vitamin D, Dr. Stearns said, but she cautioned that real harm can come from giving the child too much vitamin D.

Four hundred units of vitamin D a day has been found to be adequate, Dr. Stearns explained, pointing out that some cod liver oils will run as high as nine hundred units of vitamin D to the teaspoon. If the child drinks vitamin D-enriched milk, this will supply his need of the vitamin.

'Sunshine' Vitamin

Adults get enough of this "sunshine" vitamin if they are outdoors some every day, and they get enough of the other vitamins they need if they eat meat, fruits and leafy vegetables and drink milk every day.

High dosages of the fat-soluble vitamins A and D can do more harm than good if taken in excess since they are not passed off in body wastes. There is danger of developing a low-grade toxicity from large amounts of fat-soluble vitamins, Dr. Stearns observed. Persons taking high dosages of vitamin A, which is now being given in treating some skin diseases, need to be checked by their physicians, she said.

The old-fashioned belief that if a little will do good, a lot will do better, is not only misleading, but in this instance, can be dangerous, Dr. Stearns stated.

pulled the surprise of the season by nearly beating Roosevelt. The West ends didn't take too kindly to the idea either. They let their displeasure be known in several unnecessary ways.

Connie Jones Breaks Ankle

We were sorry to hear about Connie Jones breaking his ankle, at South Dakota State. The fellow has been a star track and football man up there for two seasons and would have probably had a good one this year. Tough luck Connie. Jones was one of the members of the great North sprint relay team. Wonder where Reggie Kaiser is? We know where Nicholas and Scott are.

to the Johnson article. Transcending the future of any segment of the population is the fate of constitutional government in America. "There can be no middle-of-the-road attitude toward morality and legality, if the fabric of our society is to remain inviolate."

"Where there is repudiation of the (Supreme) Court, our ultimate constitutional authority, on one issue, there is repudiation of the Court and the law on any and all issues."

'Southern Way'

The arguments being advanced in defense of the "southern way of life" are "illusory" and "reckless," and completely ignore the views of southern Negroes. This, Dr. Johnson states, is part of the "southern way."

He cites as an example efforts to discredit integration by "proving" that Negro children are not as capable intellectually as white children. "It is a tortuous logic that would use the tragic results of inequality to establish the need of continuing it."

Dr. Johnson observes, in this connection, that in the comprehensive intelligence tests for army recruits, Negro recruits from Ohio, where better schools are available, scored higher than white recruits from every state of the South except Florida, where there has been an appreciable northern migration.

He concludes with the observation that this is not basically a struggle between whites and Negroes, or the North and the South, or between the national and international points of view, but a struggle between those who believe in democracy and those who do not.
