N. Y. Night Club Sues Ertha Kitt

New York, N. Y.—A night club Friday sued singer Ertha Kitt for $200,637.

It was alleged she poured champagne on patrons, shattered glassware and struck one of the owners when he tried to talk with her about a $137 bill.

The suit was filed by E. J. H. Bar and Grill, operator of the African Room at 780 Third ave. It asks $160,637 for the club and $50,000 for Harold Kanter, one of the officers.

The complaint said Miss Kitt and a party of guests entered the night club about 1 a.m., June 5, and ordered drinks.

Offensive

"Ertha Kitt," the complaint said, "became loud and boisterous, commenced to shatter champagne glasses, pour champagne and liquids on the table and became generally offensive to the patrons" and Kanter instructed the waiter not to serve any more drinks. He "presented a reasonable and proper bill."

The complaint charged Miss Kitt then shouted "This is a clip joint."

Revised Bill Would Be 'Bitterly Disappointing' to Millions of American People

Washington, D. C.—President Eisenhower declared Friday the jury trial provision added to the civil rights bill by the senate threatens to weaken the nation's judicial system.

It will make the bill "largely ineffective" in protecting the rights of all Americans to vote, he asserted.

Mr. Eisenhower, previously pictured by Senator Potter (Rep., Mich.) as "damned unhappy" over the senate action, gave his views in a statement marked by sharp language.

The statement gave the impression that the president would veto the bill if it were to reach him in its revised form.

He said the 51 to 42 vote guaranteeing jury trials in criminal contempt cases would be "bitterly disappointing" to millions of Americans since it has the effect of leaving great numbers of qualified voters disenfranchised.

"Rarely in our entire legislative history have so many extraneous issues been introduced," he said.

Find Outdoor Toilets in Use, Water Carried for Blocks, Shacks for Aged

Touring sub-standard housing areas in Des Moines last Friday, was a committee of the Des Moines Area Council of Churches led by Frank C. Price, city-redevelopment and housing administrator, who planned and led the tour.

The group saw: Places that have been condemned as unfit for use; others that the city would like to condemn. (Some are condemned as they become vacant.)

Many of the 3,000 outdoor toilets still in use.

Occupied homes where residents must carry water three blocks to be assured it is pure. (Some of these homes have pump wells.)

Frame shacks occupied for $6 a month rent, many by old age pensioners.

The housing project built 7 years ago for families displaced by building of the sanitary landfill sewage disposal.

Called Appalling

Areas that might be developed for adequate housing for people now living in sub-standard homes.

"We have seen enough about our own city to know there is certainly a very large area of concern for housing, slum clearance and integration," said the Rev. Harold Varce.

Our churches need to be concerned in the area of Des Moines where there is no plumbing," he added. "This is appalling."

Industrial South Needs All Of Its Human Resources: Negro and White-Wilkins

Gulfport, Miss.—The right to vote is "a precious American right which must be protected for all citizens," Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told more than 700 persons attending a mass meeting of the local NAACP here on Sunday, July 28.

"The government," Mr. Wilkins asserted, "must be given all legal weapons, including injunctive civil action, to see that citizens are not deprived of their rights and of equal protection of the laws."

Southern senators, the NAACP leader pointed out, "have declared again and again that they are opposed to any kind of civil rights bill, with or without a jury trial amendment. Yet they are supporting such an amendment. Why? It is fair to assume that they are doing this because they know that the jury trial amendment will make the bill meaningless. Thus they could afford to let it pass—all the while howling against it right to the end."

The new industrial South, Mr. Wilkins declared, needs all of its human resources, Negro and white. "It needs them as producers and consumers," he said. The full potentialities of the South, he indicated, cannot be developed within the Council of Churches committee on community relations.

Ralph C. Norris, county superintendent of schools, heads this subcommittee on Interracial Fellowship.

"We are trying to learn the overall housing problem by covering projects that are being considered," said Norris.

"I'd like to see some of the city's housing improved," he added. "The

Patrol Areas in Chicago After Rioting and Stoning of Civic Club Picnickers

Chicago, Ill.—Police are still mobilized to prevent any further violence which has reached alarming proportions in the Chicago area. As temperatures rose so did tempers and incidents.

There have been autos stoned and overturned, name calling and individual injuries as crowds as high as 3,000 milled about certain areas of the city.

Police riot squads comprised of white and Negro officers have been put on emergency call, all leaves and off days for officers have been canceled as tension sparked by a park picnic.

Negroes Stoned

A Negro club, the Bodine Social and Civic Club, were holding their annual summer outing at Calumet Park last Sunday. There were approximately 100 in attendance. Police report that a group of 50 to 60 whites began throwing stones at the group.

Police arriving on the scene found the groups battling with sticks, stones, bottles and planks. Over 100 officers answered the first call.

Mrs. Dorothy Fike, 35, and her two daughters, 12 and 13, of 3425

Beatrice street, were injured as their auto was stoned while driving through the city. They were returning to Detroit after a visit.

Police took them to a hospital for treatment and later escorted them to the city limits.

White Girl Shot

A white girl was accidentally shot by a Negro policeman as persons in a large crowd jostled and mauled him, causing his car to fire.

Negro policemen reported being stoned in and out of their scout cars.

Negro bus drivers were provided with police escorts as they drove their busses throughout the city. Motorists were provided with police protection while driving.

City officials stated that this is the worst outbreak of racial tensions in the last 15 years.

A Negro detective said he had to draw his gun to disperse several white youths who surrounded him in his car.

Leo Blackburn, 36, secretary of the Negro Bodine Social and Civic Club, told police that men of his

S. C. Bus Boycott Leader Threatened

Rock Hill, S. C.—A Negro minister, leader of a Negro boycott of city-franchise buses here, said he received three anonymous telephone calls Friday night, one saying that the caller "wanted to be sure you're there before it goes off."

The minister, the Rev. C. A. Ivory, said the caller did not specifically mention a bomb or otherwise explain the remark.

Ivory said he had notified police, who still were in the area of the minister's home Saturday.

The minister said the last caller warned him to call off the boycott. The boycott, two weeks old, started after a young Negro woman allegedly was ordered by a bus driver to leave a seat she had taken beside a white woman.

Tuskegeens Speak At Vote Meeting

Washington—Several residents of Tuskegee, Ala., charged here this week that only a sparse number of Negroes in rural Macon County, Ala., where Tuskegee is located—are permitted to vote.

The spokesmen, representatives of the Tuskegee Civic Association, stated that in Macon County during the past two months 73 Negroes have appeared at the registration site. Only 33 of these were permitted to make formal application to the Board of Registrars and only seven received certificates of registration.

They said that the U. S. Department of Justice has investigated the Macon County voting situation and has found that a number of white persons who filled out voting questionnaires incorrectly were permitted

Serve Cool Meals for Hot Weather Appeal

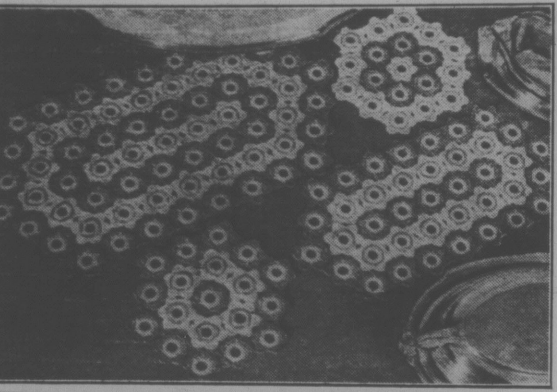

Chilled, refreshing foods such as this macaroni salad with bologna slices, crisp relishes and cold beer will arouse mealtime interest on summer's hottest days.

When the temperature is high and it seems entirely too hot to cook, don't try. Instead, change your usual menu pattern and specialize in meals that are cool, tempting and easy-to-fix.

An ideal choice for a warm-weather luncheon or supper menu is this macaroni salad which calls for zesty seasonings and the crunchiness of raw carrots and celery. For extra-appeal, chill the salad in a ring mold and garnish it as suggested in the recipe.

Macaroni Salad Ring
(Makes 4-6 servings)
8 ounces freshly cooked elbow macaroni
1/2 cup finely chopped carrots
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon worcestershire
Dash of tabasco
1/2 cup mayonnaise
salt and pepper
Rinse cooked macaroni in cold-water; drain thoroughly. In a large bowl, mix drained macaroni with remaining ingredients, seasoning to taste with salt and pepper. Pack into an oiled 1-quart ring mold. Chill several hours. Unmold on chilled square serving platter. Fill center with radishes and whole black olives. In two opposite corners, overlap bologna slices. In other corners, place crisp lettuce leaves with sprigs of watercress and bright tomato wedges.

Segregationist Mississippi

Jackson, Miss.—A United Press story published in the July 28 edition of the Jackson Clarion-Ledger and Daily News reports that Negro spokesmen for segregation in Mississippi have been caught between two fires: anti-segregation Negroes and white "extremists." The segregationist Negroes are not acceptable to either group, the story says.

Two such Mississippi Negroes are cited. They are the Rev. H. H. Humes of Greenville, editor of the Delta Leader, and Percy Greene of Jackson, publisher of the Jackson Advocate. Their troubles began following publication of an Associated Press story in the Jackson (Miss.) Daily News last July 7 listing payments made to them, among others, by the State Sovereignty Commission set up by the Mississippi Legislature to preserve segregation.

Mr. Greene, the story says, has lost both distributors and advertising, while Mr. Hume, a Baptist minister, is said to have been injured in his standing with national Baptist leaders. Both men were condemned by a state minister's group, the report says.

"Humes accepted a contribution from the (State) Sovereignty Commission for a special edition he is publishing showing progress Negroes have made in Mississippi within its pattern of segregation," the UP report continues.

"Greene accepted travel expense to appear on a Memphis radio panel in which he said migration of Negroes from Mississippi is caused by economic, not social, conditions."

"I couldn't have made the trip otherwise," Greene said.

"He also said the (State Sovereignty) commission copies of his papers' condemning the NAACP and he was paid by the commission for printing a pamphlet calling for parallel but separate progress for Negroes."

Trip to Jamboree

Keokuk, Ia. — Jerry Lawson of 1017 Fulton tells about his Jamboree scout trip.

"Sunday July 7, we left Burlington, Iowa, for Chicago, Ill. Among the 24 Jamboree scouts, 3 Jamboree scouts and our two leaders, I was the only Negro. I'm an Eagle Scout from Explorer Post in Keokuk.

"Before telling you about the actual trip I feel that I should go back about a year and a half where we first got the idea of going to the Jamboree.

"Among the 17 Explorers in our group, 8 of us thought that it would make an interesting trip, so we started working. We held ice cream socials, chik suppers, went on paper drives, did various other things. In the summer I worked on the Camp Eastman Staff to earn a little extra money. We made enough money in the post to give each boy $100. The trip out cost $250, so that still left $150 for our parents and us to dig up, but we all made it.

In Chicago

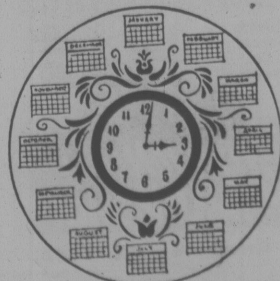

"In Chicago we stayed at the Congress Hotel on Lake Shore Drive.

Collar the Clock!

PUTTING a collar on the average kitchen timepiece will brighten up the clock wall and make it both attractive and more useful.

Lay the clock on a piece of paper and trace its outline. Transfer the drawing, by means of carbon paper, to a panel of Masonite Tempered Presdwood one-eighth inch thick. The material should be large enough to allow for the sawing of a "collar" to fit around the clock.

The center of the "collar" may be cut out with a coping or similar-type saw. To get the blade started, insert it in a hole bored near and inside the line marking the outline of the clock.

Shape of the clock will determine whether the outer edge of the "collar" is round, square or hexagonal. The distance between the clock and the outer edge of the Presdwood should range from four to six inches, depending on the size of the clock and the amount of wall space available.

Friction ordinarily will keep the "collar" in position, flat against the wall at the back of the clock, but if the sawing has been irregular and the border is loose, insert small pieces of wood to take up the slack.

Arranged in clockwise order around the clock's new border may be glued the leaves from a small calendar. The ingenious homemaker can decorate the clock in various ways.

Be sure that everything is in order for projecting your film before the meeting opens. That's the secret of a good smooth showing.

Films Give Variety to Club Programs

Many clubs and organizations have heard their film "meeting come to order" for the season, and program chairmen are looking for good material.

That's why we feel it's a good time to talk about the vast fund of program material that's currently available in professionally-made movies—and at prices well within the budget of even the smallest club group. For they not only offer fine fare for a tiny price, but present a wide enough choice of subject matter to fit any type of program you may be planning.

General interest, pure entertainment, special interest, educational—dramatic or documentary—you can have what you want strictly a la carte! If yours is a literary group, look into the classics of literature available on film. A Mothers' Club and the Parent-Teachers' Association will be interested in films on child care and development. The garden club will be pleased with films on flower growing and arrangement. An internationally-minded group would probably be attracted by films about distant lands or perhaps a visit to the United Nations. For farm groups, a film program devoted to specific agricultural problems might well be your best choice.

If you're not familiar with the sources from which rentals may be made, just go to the public library for information. In some cases, you'll find that the library itself has a film-rental department. If not, you will be given a direct lead to a convenient source. You might also like to know that the Government Printing Office publishes a little fifty-cent book, called "A Directory of 2,660 16mm. Film Libraries." If you order a copy, you'll discover an extensive list of film sources in your area—including your state film library—along with a description of the type of film carried by each source.

So we say, never underestimate the power of a movie—it may turn out to be the best program material your club ever had!

The second trip made to the city we saw a ball game between Philadelphia and Cincinnati. That was the last activity we saw before we started on our long trip home. We didn't stop at any cities on the way home except Chicago where we changed trains. As I said before I had a real nice time and hope to attend the World Jamboree in Australia in 1959 if I can find a sponsor. White Fruited Ivory Baneberry Comes in Late Summer or Early Fall

Most persons in the United States who have access to rich woodlands have seen one or another of the white-fruited bane berries in late summer or early fall. Strangely enough the ivory baneberry Actaea Arguta, is probably a white-fruited form of the western red baneberry. Some western botanists stick to the name red baneberry and merely say that the fruits are sometimes white.

This baneberry is found in moist, open woodlands from Alaska to central California and east to Montana and New Mexico or even north into Alberta. The eastern white baneberry ranges from Nova Scotia to Georgia and west to Minnesota and Missouri.

"Doll's Eyes"

The white fruits are about 1/3 inch long, generally spherical, borne on pinkish or reddish stems and are sometimes appropriately called "doll's eyes". They may appear to be good to eat but they are probably poisonous affecting the heart and having been reported to have caused the death of children who have eaten them. At least this record holds for some of the eastern and European for this one. The eating of but 6 berries of the eastern red baneberry has been known to increase the pulse, cause dizziness, colicky pains and a burning of the stomach. It would be wise not to experiment to find out if this holds for this western species.

Fruits Poisonous

In spite of the fruits being poisonous to man they are fed on by some insects. The eastern white baneberry has its fruits eaten by a caterpillar that develops eventually into one of the dainty azure butterflies. The bees that pollinate the flowers feed on pollen rather than on nectar.

The plant grows to a height of three feet, is bushy and somewhat branching. In the upper areas the plant may be finely fuzzy. The leaves are few, the lower ones being long-stalked and the upper ones rather stalkless. They are compounded of many sharply toothed or cut leaflets with long tapering points. The leaflets may be to nearly 4 inches long and are arranged along the supporting structures like the parts of a feather. Their veins are conspicuous.

The flowers appear in early spring, are whitish, are borne at the ends of short stems, have a sickish odor. The clusters may be to 4 inches long in the fruiting stage at which the stalks supporting each unit may be to 1 inch long. The petals are shorter than the stamens. There are 3 to 5 sepals and 4 to 10 petals in the flowers of the baneberries and the stamens are always numerous. The many seeds to be found in each fruit are arranged in 2 rows.

The 6 known species are all to be found in the north temperate zones of the Old World and of the New. The genus Actaea is an ancient Greek name for the elder and probably refers to the similarity in the shapes of the leaves of elders and of the baneberries.—E. Laurence Palmer.

More about vacation trips this week!

Thanks to Mrs. H. D. Young, 1164 Fourteenth Place, for the following account of a recent vacation trip of her neighbors, Leon and Estella Mann, 1161 Fourteenth Street, who motored to the East Coast accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mann, Sr.

From Chicago, the Manns went to New York City. They took the Toll Roads all the way to the Empire State. On arriving in New York, they stayed at Hotel Statler. They were highly entertained by the Manns of New York City, Brooklyn, Long Island City and St. Albans, N. Y.

A lot of sight-seeing was done in the Lowans' seven-day stay in New York. A three-hour boat cruise around Manhattan Island, a tour through the N. B. C. and T.V. studios, a visit to Central Park where Cab Calloway was putting on a revue; a tour through the Empire State Building, walking around Times Square, were some of the highlights of sightseeing.

One night was spent having dinner in the Cafe Rouge of Hotel Statler. The Manns also visited Ray Robinson's Lounge, where they found Mr. Robinson "very cordial."

They left New York City, motoring to Buffalo to visit a god-child. Leaving Buffalo, they spent a day at Niagara Falls, visiting both the American and Canadian sides. They proceeded through Canada to Detroit, Mich., where they visited Dearborn Plant of the Ford Motor Company; and, Belle Isle.

From Detroit, the Lowans motored to Chicago, Ill., for a three-day stay—and then returned to Des Moines, reporting a "wonderful time."

Mrs. Lillie White Woods of Perry, Ia., who has been on a vacation since May, wrote from Colorado Springs, Colo., that: "I will be home in September."

Mrs. Gertrude Carl, Mrs. Florence Johnson, Miss Hazel Parker, accompanied their sister-in-law, Mrs. Irma Parker and daughter, Lynn, on a week's vacation and motor trip to Ft. Madison and Keokuk, Ia., and parts of Illinois and Missouri.

The vacationers were guests of Mrs. Parker's relatives, the Drs. Harry and George Harper of Ft. Madison and the Russell and Harry Dandridge family near Keokuk; who entertained for them, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Woods, who were their hosts, also.

While in Ft. Madison, housed in one of the air-conditioned country homes on the Harry Harper farm, the guests from Des Moines went fishing in the Mississippi River; and, horseback riding on the Dandridge farm.

The Child Must Eventually Assume Full Responsibility for His Own Adult Life

UNDERSTANDING IOWA CHILDREN

SPONSORED BY THE IOWA CHILD WELFARE RESEARCH STATION

BY LLOYD LOVELL, SUI ASSISTANT PROFESSOR

Jack came home from high school to find his parents in the kitchen discussing the family budget. "What's the matter, Dad?" Jack asked. "Is there any way I can help?" His father looked up distractedly. "Oh, we'll worry about it. It's not your concern," he said. Jack looked at him for a moment, then left.

A few days later his father overheard Jack telephoning worriedly about a softball league problem. His father asked, "What's the problem, son?" Can I help? Jack replied, "Oh, we'll worry about it. It's not your concern of yours."

Giving the growing child opportunities to help make important decisions and practice responsibility involves many conflicts. Naturally, parents don't want to trouble their children with problems that the children cannot directly help solve. Yet many parents feel that sharing in attempts to solve them is good experience and helps the child feel that he is a responsible member of the family that he is growing up, and that he deserves an increasing voice in managing his own life, including his share of the family's life.

Deciding Difficult

Deciding what are appropriate concerns for the child is difficult. It depends on the parents' own need for privacy, and on the child's wisdom and discretion. For example, some families feel that their high school children have no right to know the details of the family income and expenditures, but should know generally what the family's tions regularly from the recording and corresponding secretaries.

Plans are now being made for the fall conference to be held in Burlington, Iowa, October 26-27. Representing the State Conference at the National Convention held in Detroit, Michigan, June 25th was A. P. Trotter.

Hampton Head at Meeting of Thinkers in Nova Scotia

Hampton, Va., President and Mrs. Alonzo G. Moore, of Hampton Institute, have just returned to their home on the college campus here from a ten day intellectual conference of college and university leaders.

Site of the conference was the Cape Eaton "home for thinkers"—a 450-year-old colonial house on the edge of Pugwash harbor, Nova Scotia. This gathering of twenty college heads from the U.S. and Canada followed on the heels of a series held by the world's leading atomic scientists. The scientists debated how to control atomic power so that the future life of man may be made safe on this earth.

SOME GOOD IN CIVIL RIGHTS MEASURE

Laws passed by legislative bodies are said to be the result of a compromise of conflicting views of the members. This is well demonstrated in the status of civil rights bill as it stands.

Even though the measure, as it stands, falls in many respects to contain all that was desired, there is much for which to be pleased.

In years gone by, civil rights measures have not reached the point where they were discussed in the senate on their merits.

The bill provides that a federal agency will be created to deal with civil rights placing definite responsibility.

With ample proof that Negroes have been denied their right to vote, the south has been placed on the spot of proving that they will abide by the law.

Every action of senators is tinged with politics. They trade one group consideration for that of another. And since the chairmanship of practically every committee is in the hands of southerners, their influence on what goes on is felt everywhere.

GOOD PEOPLE FAIL IN TUSKEGEE REDISTRICTING

It is often said that without the white trash, Negroes would fare pretty well in the south. But while the so-called good people are often intimidated themselves, entirely too much dirt is done apparently with their approval.

No better illustration can be found than the situation which exists at Tuskegee, Alabama today.

The record discloses that the State Senator of Macon county introduced the redistricting bill in the legislature removing voters living in Tuskegee Institute from the corporate limits of the city and thus from voting in the city elections.

The bill passed without objection and the governor allowed it to become a law without his signature. No protest was made by the good people of Macon county including the merchants with whom Negroes spent millions of dollars each year.

Here a state senator, the political boss of the country, is able to pull a deal which embarrassed hundreds of Negroes simply because he did not want them to vote and the good people did not raise their hand in protest.

And thus a comparatively good relationship which has existed among whites and Negroes for half a century is in a state of uncertainty for Negroes no longer are willing to be kicked around even in the south without putting up stiff resistance.

JUVENILE GANGS GETTING OUT OF HAND

New York and Chicago have experienced some rather serious clashes between rival gangs of youngsters and depredations against individuals including murder.

The situation is unfortunate and calls for very definite action to bring it under control.

Nobody seems able to come up with a solution, in spite of all kinds of studies and experiments being carried on by social forces and educators.

Undoubtedly, crime television shows and books do irreparable damage. There is too much of a disposition upon the part of officers to deal lightly with or shield juveniles.

Whatever the approach, a strong band is needed to control a situation.

Trying to Mix

Mrs. Cruell said then the mob accused them of "trying to mix with the white people and keeping the white children around us."

Waldrop is accused not of beating Cruell but of attacking another man he thought was Cruell.

Officers say that Waldrop attacked 38-year-old Willie Lewis Brown, on the night of July 20. The officers asserted that Waldrop mistook Brown for Cruell.

The Cruells own about 100 acres in Greenville county and live in a neat-looking five-room house. They have lived on the tract for about 25 years.

housing project (in the southeast bottoms) is a step in the right direction, at least it's an improvement over what they had been living in.

The Interracial Fellowship committee will be in charge of the first fall meeting of the Des Moines Area Council of Churches. At this meeting, Sept. 23, the group will report on its findings on housing problems in Des Moines.

At one point during the two-hour tour, Price told the group that "if the city wanted to condemn these houses it could, but what would we do with the people?"

He took the group down another street near Union Park where he said different racial groups are living side by side in harmony.

Became Interested

The recently created Interracial Fellowship Committee became interested in housing conditions in Des Moines when it decided that adequate housing was one of the principal problems of Negro families.

"We needed to get some firsthand information," said Norris.

Price once led the four-car delegation down alleys within a mile of the downtown area to show the group the need for better housing for many families.

Rental on the 46 concrete block homes built in 1950 by Des Moines Improvement, Inc., a non-profit group, averages $36 a month for each.

The rental, Price said, is keeping up the payments on the $140,000 mortgage.

Price said that some 200 buildings and homes have been condemned in the city, and that 80 of these already have been torn down.

He showed the group a 30-acre site in northeast Des Moines as the possible location of a 200-unit housing project to be built by private contractors.

The units, he said, are planned to sell for about $9,000. Some, he said, would be ideal for persons who may be displaced when the free-way is built through Des Moines.

Would Raise Values

There are about 30 frame houses and house trailers now in the area, he said, and the project would not only eliminate blighted housing but would increase property values.

"Most of the present housing should be removed, the land cleared and made available for low-rental type apartments and homes for sale," said Price.

Another area that Price showed the group that "should be completely cleared out" extends north from Veterans Memorial Auditorium, between Sixth and Second Avenues.

He said there are 424 buildings within the area, occupied by 922 family units, and with 156 owner-occupied. Two hundred of the houses can be moved, he said.

Price said "this is an old district, the structures are too close together, and they lack sufficient plumbing."

sues been introduced into the debate in order to confuse both the legislators and the public," he said.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, who said Mr. Eisenhower dictated the statement to him, declined to tell reporters whether the president will veto the bill if it is finally passed by congress in the form of the senate measure.

May Be Stymied

A possibility that it may not do so this year was foreseen by Senate Republican Leader Knowland (Cal.). He said he thinks the bill may become stymied in conference with the house, which passed the bill much more closely tailored to the Eisenhower administration's draft.

Hagerty did not dispute a newsman's suggestion that Mr. Eisenhower would hardly accept a bill which, in his opinion, weakened the American judiciary.

Resuming work on the bill Friday, the senate adopted another amendment by a voice vote on which no dissents were heard. It would set restrictions on a proposed commission to investigate the civil rights field.

HEALTH FOR ALL

GOING HOME

A year or more in the hospital. That's what people with tuberculosis had to face only a few years back. Imagine yourself faced with that prospect, and you'll understand how the TB patient of today feels when he hears words like streptomycin, para-aminosalicylic acid, and isoniazid.

Those words are mouthfuls, all right, but he doesn't have to pronounce them. He only has to swallow them. They are the modern drugs that mean the TB patient of today can usually go home after only a few months in the hospital.

The shortening of the hospital stay for TB is probably the greatest advance in TB treatment in recent years—certainly from the patient's point of view. A few months away from home isn't too hard to face. You don't lose contact with home and family and friends. The children still know you when you come home.

Of course, you can't come home and pitch right in to hard work. You have to take it easy, follow the doctor's orders, and take your pills. Otherwise, you may find yourself back in the hospital in the more serious condition than when you were first there. This puts a lot of responsibility on the patient. You have to behave like an adult for your own sake and for the protection of your family.

The fact that TB patients on the whole can now leave the hospital sooner has benefited the whole community. Only a few years ago there were to few hospitals to house TB patients. Many had to wait for months to get a bed. Old and outmoded facilities had to be maintained. New hospitals were needed in many areas.

Today, for the first time in history, there are enough beds for TB patients in almost every part of our country. The turnover is greater as patients are being discharged to their homes earlier. It has been possible to close down some of the old sanatoriums or convert them to other uses. Modern treatment of TB has meant better treatment for more TB patients.

Iowa Among Nation's Leaders in 1956 Park Attendance

Iowa ranked ninth in the nation in park attendance during 1956, a report of State Park Statistics for 1956 by the National Park Service of the U. S. Department of Interior, has revealed.

Iowa also was one of only 12 states in the nation that attracted 5 million or more persons to its parks in 1956, according to the report. Two of the 12 reported 5 million visitors for the first time. Iowa parks had attendance in excess of 5 million in 1955 as well as 1956.

Data submitted by 47 states for 1956 showed an upward trend in practically all categories when compared with the totals reported in 1955. Total attendance increased 9 per cent; tent and trailer campsites attendance up 19 per cent; expenditures increased 20 per cent; funds available for expenditure, up 28 per cent; revenue from operations increased 8 per cent and personnel increased 9 per cent.

UNBEARABLE SPORT

Some sportsmen select bull-fighting

For me, I will never choose

Because it's not a contest

And because the bulls always lose.

Although it's often relished

by some boasting, sporting men

To see a brave, fighting bull

enter a slaughter pen

The tooter toots his horn, matador

comes out

For some spectators, it's quite a thrill

Miss Kitt, expressing "shock and amazement" at the suit, told an interviewer she thought the $137 bill was preposterous.

"After our party was seated, we ordered four or five splits of champagne. I never drink, so I had nothing.

"To me the $137 bill was preposterous. I asked for the bill so I could have it sent to my office. They would not give it to me. That's all there was to the whole story."

Excludes 400

The Tuskegeens spoke at a meeting here on July 30. Tuskegee has been in the news lately because of enactment by the Alabama legislature of a law which shifts 3,000 Negroes from the Tuskegee city limits over to rural Macon County. The new city lines excluded 400 of 412 Negro voters registered in the city.

Tuskegee is the site of Tuskegee Institute and the U. S. Veterans Administration hospital.

To see the bull-fighter wave his cruel sword and getting ready for the kill. Mr. Matador gaily prances around fancy-clothed from hat to pants And very confident, with his cruel grin and knowing, the bull didn't have a chance All you enthusiastic bull-fighting fans You can keep that enfarious fun I would rather listen to a baseball game And praise the team that won.
