President Gives Audience To Four Negro Leaders, Does Not Commit Himself

Washington, D. C.—Little Rock... which fired the "integration resistance shot" heard round the world, ... flung another unexpected echelon round over the past weekend.

As Negro leaders girded themselves to fight the legal blow dealt them Saturday by Federal District Judge Harry J. Lemley when he ordered suspension at Central High school, four met Monday with the President of the United States—asking him to use the esteem of his high office to insure continued protection and education of Negro students at the now famed school.

"Shocked"
In their 45 minute audience with the president, the leaders told Eisenhower that the court-suspension order at Little Rock, Ark., "has shocked and outraged Negro citizens and millions of their fellow Americans."

Four Leaders

The four—A. Phillip Randolph, president of the International Brotherhood of Sleeping Car porters; Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Lester B. Granger, executive secretary of the Urban League, and Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., president of the Southern Leadership conference and leader of the Montgomery bus boycott, had gained appointment for the conference at the White House prior to Judge Lemley's ruling.

Emphasized Integration
With special emphasis on integration and Little Rock, the leaders urged the President to order the justice department to intervene at Little Rock as a friend of the court. In addition they presented Eisenhower a nine point program covering a wide range of civil rights issues.

Ice Sympathetic

All four leaders said Mr. Eisenhower listened sympathetically to their presentation, but took no side on any part of the specific program they set forth.

"We tried to impress on him the colored people are frustrated and angry," Wilkins said.

"We think the President understands a little bit better the mood of the colored people. And the face-to-face observations helped us to understand him a little better."

Refuses Stay

At the same time, Negro attorneys in Little Rock, after filing notice of appeal from Judge Lemley's ruling, asked the Federal District Judge to stay his own order. An hour after the hearing was recessed,

Police Chief Urges Use of New Signal

With the long 4th of July weekend coming up, Chief of Police Howard R. Eide today urged use of a timely new signal and slogan to save lives over the long weekend—and all summer.

"Many of our citizens will be among the thirty millions of Americans of all ages who enjoy the invigorating and pleasant sport of boating. It is one of the safest forms of recreation, yet just as motoring has its irresponsible 'hot-rod jockeys' and 'drag-race show-offs' so does boating have a few smart alecks who imperil the safety of themselves and others," he declared. Chief Eide added that "out of a desire to curb the outlandish and exhibitionistic behavior of this reckless minority has sprung a new idea—'Thumbs Down Means Don't Clown!' The objective is simply to discourage goofy and dangerous antics by giving the familiar 'Thumbs Down' gesture to the offender."

Curiosity and Capacity for Learning Should Be Considered When Parents Want to Postpone Some Lessons on Developments of Attitudes

UNDERSTANDING IOWA CHILDREN

SPONSORED BY THE IOWA CHILD WELFARE RESEARCH STATION

Written by Lloyd Lovell, SUI Assistant Professor

SOME LESSONS SHOULD NOT BE POSTPONED

We parents often think of our children's education as involving a rather formal process which takes place either in the school or on occasions when we make a point of teaching our children a particular skill or set of facts. Actually, our children are learning a great many things in a casual way, from informal sources. Sometimes our own attitudes and responses to our children's activities and questions teach them things that we do not intend.

Certain Age?

We may plan to help our children learn a given thing when they reach a certain age. We may feel this way about giving sex education, for example, or using a gun, or cooking or using potentially dangerous tools. What we often find when we decide that the time is now ripe to teach the child these things is that he is already learned quite a bit about them—and we are not always delighted by what he has learned.

Developed Attitudes

If we have discouraged a child from helping us in the kitchen or the workshop until he is "ready,"

we may find that the child has learned attitudes of distaste toward those activities, or what he has lost his initial interest. Children may have experimented with matches or other risky objects before we have begun instructing them in using such things. If we have postponed sex education until a given age, we often discover that our children have already developed strong attitudes, and perhaps much misinformation, before we begin our teaching.

Ability to Understand

This is not to suggest that all education be accelerated; children need a minimum ability to understand before they are capable of learning many things. If we artificially postpone their learning long after they have the capacity and the curiosity to learn about some things, however, we must take it for granted that our instruction will not be the first learning opportunity the child has found.

Perhaps satisfying the child's expressed interest in a topic or activity—within the limits of his capacity to comprehend and to manage—is one way of building a foundation for the later lessons that we feel will be helpful to him.

Summer months are convention churches, federated clubs, professional vening for their annual meetings.

The Iowa Association of Colored Women convention held in Sioux City was followed by the Eastern Star convention in Davenport last week. This week Mr. and Mrs. John M. Estes Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mitchell are attending the National convention of Links, Inc., in New York City. Also the Knights of Pythias, 57th Grand Lodge are holding their annual meeting this week-end.

Next week state and local delegates will be concluding preparations to attend the National convention of the NAACP in Cleveland. Other national meetings are the National Association for Colored Women in Detroit. Fraternal orders of Elks, Shriners and Masons have upcoming convention dates also.

A national convention just concluded was held here in Des Moines last week. More than 200 women and students from just about every state in the nation attended the 49th annual convention of Theta Sigma Phi, national fraternity for women in journalism. Through the recommendation of my predecessor, Miss Ross, I was extended (and accepted) an invitation to the formal banquet Saturday night at Hotel Fort Des Moines. The convention proper was held at Drake. Seattle, Wash., will be the site for the Golden anniversary.

More about Mable Roman . . . local gospel singer with the "Mahalia Jackson voice." The formal gown she wore for her singing appearance at the Art Center June 15 was a gift from her employer, Mrs. James W. Wallace. However, the sweet pea pink chiffon over pink taffeta creation was designed especially for Mrs. Roman by Mrs. J. B. Morris, Sr., 955 17th. Wife of the Bystander editor and publisher, Mrs. Morris is a superb seamstress of long standing and one of the city's leading club women and civic leaders.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris also attend the same church as do Mr. and Mrs. Wallace. It was Mrs. Wallace who helped Mrs. Roman to get the singing engagement at the Art Center, and of course, it was Mrs. Wallace, also, who recommended one of the finest seamstresses in the business to design and make her gown.

Mrs. Helen Anderson, of Denver, Colo., penned a note along with her news of her recent visit to our city.

months. And all over Iowa various churches, federated clubs, professional vening for their annual meetings. She wrote, "I enjoy reading the news in your paper so keep up the good works as you are doing. It is a paper to be proud of." It is notes like these that make us all at the Bystander feel good.

Another visitor to the city, Mrs. Anna Lee Jefferson, of Seattle, Wash., dropped in the office for a brief visit and promised to take out a subscription before she leaves so "she can keep up with all the news about the folks back home." Mrs. Jefferson who had not been back in Des Moines for 10 years, joined eight other brothers and sisters here recently for the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of her parents, Elder and Mother A. B. Brewer.

One of the newest Bystander's subscribers is Dr. Eddie V. Easley, this week's subject for our "Who's who in Iowa" feature.

Dr. Easley reported he read the Bystander each week in the Drake library . . . so we suggested he subscribe to it so he and his wife, Ruth could enjoy it at home in Wakonda Village.

When a person goes on a trip, especially out of the country, there is so much to tell. Such is the case of Mrs. E. P. Jackson, of 1155 Enos, on her recent tour to Europe, she added to her collection of miniature dolls of foreign countries by purchasing one in all but two of the 11 countries she toured last month. Mrs. Jackson began her collection when she visited Mexico last year.

We extend an invitation to all of our readers, to give us the names of candidates for "Youth of the Week." All acknowledgements will be given in this column, the same week the candidates appear. A name was given me of the teenage daughter of Mrs. Helen Wilson, as a likely candidate. We have no address of her mother or phone number. The daughter is very active in oratorical contests. Anyone know her? If so, drop us a line or phone call.

Sadie B. Jones Visits in Omaha

JUDGE SHOWS
SEGREGATIONISTS
HOW TO STALL

Following a hearing on the petition of the Little Rock, Ark. school board, Judge Lemley of Hope, Arkansas, a roving U. S. Judge in Arkansas, has ruled that integration be suspended for 2½ years. The board had argued that Gov. Faubus, who started all the trouble over integration, would be out of office after two years and a better opportunity would be open to elect one whose views were not so violent.

The Little Rock situation, along with the whole integration problem, has been allowed to drift without a rudder and thus the problem has gotten out of hand.

Speaking before the American Law Institute recently, Chief Justice Warren said not only was it the duty of the courts to interpret the law but also to enforce the law. Unfortunately, the executive branch of the government has left the enforcement of the civil rights laws up to the NAACP thereby ducking its responsibilities.

The decision of Judge Lemley gives further encouragement to those who would flaunt the law; those who have followed a policy of mob rule. On the other hand, the decision discourages those liberal white people in the South, some of whom believe in integration; some don't but would rather comply than nullify court decisions.

Four prominent Negroes met with President Eisenhower Monday to discuss the status of the whole civil rights program. (The meeting had been arranged prior to Judge Lemley's decision.) They suggested a nine point program. Most of them have been advanced on other occasions but the following proposals offer a tremendous arm for the court, first by pinpointing definite leadership for integration and second by creating an atmosphere conducive to obedience to law and order.

These proposals call for: "A nationwide presidential announcement, before the reopening of schools in September, that the law will be vigorously upheld with the total resources at his command. "Calling a White House conference by the president to discuss ways of obtaining peaceful compliance with court rulings in the civil rights field."

If one of the big corporations insisted on disregarding a Supreme Court decision as public officials in the South have, their officers would have been behind the bars long ago. Then too, worst of all, to allow laws to be disobeyed so recklessly makes a nation of lawless citizens who, accustomed to violating one law, are encouraged to do the same with others.

It looks as if America is too willing to allow the South to set the policy of this country toward Negroes. This just can't be allowed to go on because it is very clear that their ideas contemplate second class citizenship.

GOV. SHERMAN ADAMS
SHOULD RESIGN

Human nature has a way of demonstrating that people in all walks of life—high and low—are subject to the same conduct. Sherman Adams' frailties are no exception to the rule. No one suspected that he would have allowed himself to be caught in the embarrassing web of such imprudent conduct.

The Truman administration was plagued with an unusual amount of gifts to officials made in return of favors. The practice was a big issue in the 1952 campaign.

Thus, even though the record does not disclose that influence peddling is involved, Gov. Adams should have known better. And since his acts have become public, many people, even his friends, are disappointed. They can see little difference between what he did and others similarly situated.

Undoubtedly Gov. Adams should resign for what he has done is bound to have weight in the campaign next fall to the extent that many innocent office seekers will be penalized.

Of course, what Gov. Adams has done practically every official in Washington has done likewise. Members of Congress are no exception to the rule. Anyone who has any business in Washington calls on his representative or senator for help. They feel that these people know their way around in Washington and carry a certain amount of influence depending upon the importance of the job they hold. This practice has not been challenged seriously.

But like anything else, it can get out of hand and unfortunately this is just what Gov. Adams allowed his activities to do.

Minneapolis, Minn.—When basketball's Elgin Baylor of Seattle university, member of the all-America team and third ranking collegiate scorer makes up his mind he does it in a big way.

It was reported that Baylor, with a year of college eligibility left has signed a contract for an estimated $17,000 to $22,000 with the Minneapolis Lakers of the National Basketball Association. Baylor was reported on various occasions to be wavering between continuing in college or entering the pro ranks. Tennis

As we read of the progress of Art Andrews in the National Intercollegiate Tennis meet, we reflected when he was a junior here playing in our Hilltop open. That meet has had quite a few of the best in this part of the country. There was little Suzie Hamilton who went on to big time until she got tired of the pressure. Then her kid sister came along last year and took up where Suzie left off.

Roosevelt High

The best tennis team Roosevelt High has had in the last decade the Nadig boys, Don Middleworth, Jim Becherman and a couple of others have all left their mark on our meet. Strangely enough, we haven't been able to attract top notch Negro players. Maybe, some day we will. We would like to see one of the best come through here about the last of next month. Wouldn't he open their eyes.

That was always Bill's dream. We will certainly miss Esther Meyers. This was to have been her year. But, now it looks as if she will have to pass up a couple of years.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Something in Common

In Illinois a little boy waits with his anxious mother in the pediatrician's office. In California a first grade class lines up giggling and shoving. At a Georgia college, members of the football team roll up their left sleeves. In a Minnesota town, people of all ages line up at the Board of Health Office.

They all have something in common. They're about to get a tuberculin test. Just a simple injection of a little liquid between the layers of skin on the forearm. And then in a few days they'll come back and the doctor or nurse will check the results. Positive or negative?

Positive

The pediatrician explains to the mother that the positive result doesn't necessarily mean Gordie has TB. It does mean that he has TB germs in his body. Added to the symptoms that brought Gordie to the doctor—fever, loss of weight, coughing—it doesn't look good. X-rays and other tests confirm the doctor's suspicions. In a few days

Gordie is in the hospital.

Testing

The California first graders, are luckier. Only two have positive reactions and neither of these has the disease. Follow-up of their contacts discovers a grandmother with active TB. On the Georgia campus there are a few anxious moments when the star quarterback has to go for an X-ray, but the team gets a clean bill of health before the opening game. As a result of the Minnesota testing, the town is able to make a more accurate assessment of its TB problem and to plan where and how to attack it.

Most Efficient

This is the tuberculin test—one of the most efficient known to medicine. Health departments and tuberculosis associations are using it increasingly to find out those of us who are infected with germs that might cause TB. When you're asked to cooperate, be sure to get in line.

OUR HUMANITY

Our humanity unites us
Not our color, creed, or race.
The value's in the heart and soul,
Not in the skin or face.
When we find our true humanity
and act as humans should,
We're sure of one real certainty,
We'll live in brotherhood.
Who cares what this one calls his creed,

If his morals are all right?
Ideas may be worlds apart
But that should cause no fight.
Each brother prays to God above
The same as you and me,
So deep within, we're all akin;
That's—our humanity.

That the Golden Rule is for you and

It Doesn't matter whether we are

Love is the only permit to Right.
I am searching my heart
And I hope I will never find
