Trial for Georgia Voting Violations Hits Legal Snag

Americus, Ga.—When attorneys asked for a dismissal Monday, the first federal trial of allegedly voting discrimination received its first major setback. The trial, brought by the U.S. Civil Rights commission on behalf of four Negroes, was made possible under a 1957 civil rights act. It was speculated that the legal move would cause delay that might run beyond the time for enactment of a new civil rights act which is pending in congress.

The case was filed in September by the justice department based on charges of four Negroes that they were flunked on their registration literacy tests. Two of the four hold master's degrees; the others hold bachelor of arts degrees. To pass the literacy test in Georgia, an applicant must read and write correctly a section of the constitution of the state or of the United States.

New York—Nominations for the Spingarn Medal for 1958 will be received until April 1, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, announced here today.

For the first time in its history, the award for 1957 went to more than one person, the Little Rock Nine and their mentor, Mrs. Daisy Bates. This also marked the first time that the medal was given to minors. Medals were presented to the Association's 1958 convention in Cleveland on July 11.

The field of achievement of prospective Spingarn Medal winners may be intellectual, spiritual, the arts, science, business, education or other.

NEWS In A Nutshell

Kansas City, Mo.—Picketing of five downtown department stores which refuse to serve Negro customers in their eating facilities, went into its fourth week with no indication of a change of policy on the part of boycotted stores.

Hackensack, N. J.—A white man filed suit for $250,000 against the Englewood board of education last week claiming racial integration at an Englewood school caused his 14-year-old son to lose a leg. He stated his son fell against a desk in the struggle, hurting his leg, which later had to be amputated.

Special Legislative Session To Draft Laws for Quasi Private-Public Schools

Washington, D. C.—Disparaging remarks about integrated school in the nation's capitol made by Gov. J. Lindsay Almond of Virginia in his effort to influence Virginian's resistance against de-segregated schools, met with harsh criticisms from school officials here.

In his radio address Monday Gov. Almond referred to "the vivid stench of sadism, sex, immorality and juvenile pregnancy infesting the mixed schools of the District of Columbia and elsewhere."

In adjoining District of Columbia, top school leaders sharply rebuked Gov. Almond, calling his verbal onslaught "a gratuitous and intemperate attack upon the innate decency of 114,000 children and youth in our public schools."

Richmond, Va.—The Virginia Supreme court was notified Tuesday by the attorney general that the state would seek a rehearing of the case in which the court last week knocked down Virginia's anti-integration laws. Court sources indicated that the effect of Tuesday's notice and an expected petition to be filed later, will be to stay the court's order invalidating the school laws.

Who's Who in Iowa

Russell Reeves Holds One of Top Assembly Jobs, Union Position at Armstrong Rubber

This is the 49th in a series of articles featuring Negro, firsts, leaders and outstanding personalities in Iowa who are excelling in civic, professional, business, religious, educational, fraternal and entertainment fields.)

By Mrs. Frances Hawthorne

"I believe a job's due me, if I can do it," says Mr. Russell Reeves of 3013 W. 3rd street, and that remark very well sums up his philosophy toward life.

As a windup operator in the four roll calendar at Armstrong Rubber company, he holds one of the top paying jobs, working in one of the key operations of the rubber plant. In his 14 years there, Mr. Reeves has held three jobs, beginning as a regular utility worker. Then for four years he worked as a mail man before he began working in the four roll calendar four years ago.

Dipping Unit

Mr. Reeves described the calendar operation as a two-machine dipping unit, when the cord is dipped, dried, then goes into the four roll calendar where rubber is impregnated on both sides.

"This dipping unit was installed in the plant a little over a year ago at a cost of over $1,500,000," he revealed.

In All Departments

"Negroes are employed in all departments at Armstrong," he stated. "I'm not saying there's no prejudice. Negroes have to fight for what they get there like any other place."

He explained the company has a bidding system in which any worker has the right to bid for a job if he qualifies and has seniority. After getting the job, the worker has a 30-day trial period in which he can give notice that he will keep or prove he can handle the new job, or re-claim his former job without loss of pay-scale and seniority.

Union Worker

During his employment at Armstrong, Mr. Reeves has been equally active with notable achievements in the local of the United Rubber Workers Union, AFL-CIO. He is in his 9th year as a member of the executive board and served as chief steward in the mill department for five years. He also was a member of the negotiating committee five years and up until two years ago his name appeared along with others on the working contracts.

Delegate

In 1956 Mr. Reeves was a delegate to the United Rubber Workers Legislative Institute in Washington, D. C., attended by delegates from locals all over the United States and Canada. There is chance he will attend

Rights Group Asks City to Draft Anti-Bias Housing Law

The city legal department was asked by the Des Moines Commission on Human Rights to "draft an ordinance which will require builders and developers to sign an affidavit that will insure the availability of new housing developments in the city to all persons regardless of race, color, or creed."

In a letter, made public Tuesday, Malcolm B. Higgins, executive secretary of the commission wrote City Attorney Robert J. Spady:

"Whenever the City furnishes facilities or services in connection with new housing developments, such as approval of plats, fire and police protection, water and sewer, etc., these special services should be made available to all people, regardless of their race, color, religion or national origin."

Private Builders

"The practice of private builders of obtaining such services from the City in order to construct new housing which is made available only to white buyers is detrimental to the best interests of the community."

"Such discrimination disregards the rights and privileges of our Negro citizens and undermines the foundations of our democratic government. The City has an affirmative obligation to prevent such discrimination and see that all citizens have the same opportunities for decent housing."

The letter ended, "The Commission will be happy to work with the Legal Department and City Planning Director in drafting a new ordinance, or amendments to the present Code on approval of subdivision plats, in order to deal with this problem."

UNDERSTANDING IOWA CHILDREN

SPONSORED BY THE IOWA CHILD WELFARE RESEARCH STATION

LEARNING PROPERTY RIGHTS

"See, Mama! Roger has lots of these things and I don't have any like them—so I just brought some home."

A disconcerted mother looked over the toys Billy had brought home from the neighbors. Three children in the neighborhood played freely in each other's homes and in Roger's absence Billy had helped himself.

His enthusiastic showing of all the wonderful toys he had found was proof that he had no idea of property rights; he was almost four years old.

Understanding Person

Carefully, because she was so upset, his mother explained that the toys were really Roger's, that he would miss his things and finally, that she and Billy would return them. This they did to find a wonderfully understanding person in Roger's mother.

Also in the family was an older woman, an aunt, who comforted Billy's young mother saying: "Don't call anything like this stealing. Billy has just not learned property rights; he will learn in time and this may well be his first lesson in such learning."

Property Rights

How does a young child learn property rights? If he has some things of his own which others recognize as his, he will begin to learn. How could Billy's mother help him, since he had said: "See, Roger has these nice things and I don't have anything like them?"

She might select one toy and explain that if Billy saved his money, he could buy it. Saving for an immediate goal means more to a child than waiting too long for something he wants.

A child young as Billy has no idea of things "belonging" to him or to another. He has to learn this by association with the desired toy.

Little by little, the child learns, probably by the time he is five, that other children like their own things and that his own toys belong to him.

Learning through experience is the method here.

The current classes of mid-year graduates have all marched around the rostrum to receive their well-earned diplomas in a mixture of pride, traces of regrets that that phase of their education is over, and with their eyes turned to the future.

This will be saying a mouth full, but few could have graduated with a greater sense of pride of accomplishment than did Mrs. Delbert Jones, sr., of 1604 Lyons street.

Mrs. Jones, the former Sadie Harris, and a fulltime wife and mother, graduated from Drake university just weeks after giving birth to her fourth son.

She recalled she entered Drake in Sept. 1947, was a junior majoring in education, when she quit to marry her husband. She says she had always yearned to get her degree, not just for its own sake, but because "a degree" opens more doors than "if you just had been to college."

She had been substitute teacher since her marriage.

About two and a half years ago she enrolled in Drake Community college, attending night classes with the full backing of her husband and mother.

"My husband was my baby sitter, my mother (Mrs. Gertrude Harris) had the money for my finances, and I had the time, so I enrolled," she said.

"When I became pregnant I was so close to getting my degree, that I decided not to stop this time," she went on. "I figured if I went to summer school I could just about make it."

"So by attending classes last summer, I pulled through," she smiled. "I was excused from the finals when the baby came, and of course, I told menecement."

"All I wanted was to get that piece of paper in my hand," she said laughingly.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones named their them at Drake, I wouldn't be marching with the class, and they agreed to mail my diploma after com-fourth son, David (He was two weeks old last Monday, Jan. 26) Mrs. Jones said they had "just about run out of names beginning with 'D' for boys."

Their other sons are Delbert, 8, Dennis, 5, and Douglas, 3. Mrs. Jones said she will probably pass up a teaching assignment next fall because little David will not be quite a year old, but the following year she plans to teach.

An East High graduate told me that when her class graduated from Amos Hiatt junior high school, there were lots and lots of Negroes along with her. Yet when the class came out at mid year last week, there were only six graduates among a class of about 150.

Many had just dropped out even in their junior and senior year, she said. When you listen to such news reports such as Edward R. Murrow's analysis, "Lost Class of '59," in which high school students of both races, yearningly, almost pathetically spoke of vanished plans to be doctors, teachers, etc. because of school integration-defiance in the South... you really wonder. There many are forced to postpone education and careers because of forces beyond their control.

Back to Des Moines, this same graduate and others said. "They never thought of quitting, even though there were times when they wondered if they would make it."

If some of you are wondering why the annual "Boy of the Year" from YMCA branches has not been made public, Mr. James F. Dixon, executive-secretary of the Crocker "Y" informed us the names will be made known in the corner stone laying ceremonies of the new YMCA building in April.

Speaking of youth, we have endeavored to revive our "Youth of the Week" articles but something or other has interfered with our chosen subjects. We still enlist your help for candidates. If you know of any deserving youth between the ages of 13 to 21, please call us. We will give you credit for the nomination.

On our reports about little Jan Archer last week, we got a little off base. The gash he sustained in his head in the fall required stitches, but he was taken to the office of Dr. C. R. Bradford and not a hospital. By the way, the little fellow celebrated his second birthday last week, also.

SENATOR JOHNSON'S CIVIL RIGHTS BILL

Senate Majority leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas has introduced a civil rights bill in congress. This move is a complete surprise to the Eisenhower administration and those who have sponsored civil rights measures in the past, for it appears to be aimed at drawing a segment of warm senators from a bill which would more nearly meet the problems which the country faces today.

The bill would extend the life of the Commission on Civil Rights through January 1951, (under the present law it expires in September); makes bombing of churches and schools a federal offense, establishes a conciliation service to iron out racial difficulties and gives the attorney general power to subpoena documents in voting right cases.

While all of these things are important, says Roy Wilkins, "the bill by passes the most controversial issue facing America today and this leaves the loosely involved program which the courts have used to make the progress that has come in this field."

Of course, the bill can be amended or others substituted for the one Senator Johnson introduced. Naturally, the author wishes to hold his party together and by thus giving the northern wing a small part of what it wants and rubbing the southern wing with ease so that it can swallow the dose without too much complaining motivates his action.

RECENT CITY GOVERNMENT HAS NOT WORKED

A movement is on foot to scrap the council-manager form of government in Des Moines in which all councilmen are elected at large and go back to the ward system thus electing members from districts or wards. Just how much appeal this makes to the average voter is uncertain, but some groups look upon a change rather favorably.

The Bystander has supported the present council-manager form of government over the years because the old system had gotten so far out of hand that, at times, good government seemed a thing of the past.

As time goes on, detailed discussion of objection and support will be put before Bystander readers. And, of course, one of the first and most appropriate angles is just how well have Negroes fared under the system. Under the old system, there were Negro members of the fire department, there are none today and none has gone to work under the present system; there are no more policemen; not a man is working in the city hall except as a janitor and a blessed few women (only two). In fact the situation is terrible and it seems difficult to break through the present barriers which the present system has allowed to grow up and has served to keep the situation well under control.

In most communities, Negroes fare well where civil service procedure is used to select employees. For many years, federal civil service employees among Negroes were at a low ebb but today the situation is quite liberal. However, under the Des Moines civil service system an excellent job has been done to even discourage Negroes from taking examinations.

Negroes have enjoyed a lot of platitudes from those they have helped bring about the council-manager form of government but have gotten little out of it in the way of jobs for themselves.

And while spoils do not constitute all the results of political participation, without it no system ought be allowed to survive.

After all, it is pretty hard to keep one fellow satisfied with kind words while the others get the money. And that is just what the city government in Des Moines means to the Negro.

Thus, those people who believe in the present system and want it continued will lose a lot of Negro votes and support should this matter come before the voters unless some tangible changes are made which will make for a fairer deal in what the system has to offer. Certainly, to date, it has been a farce in this area operations.

The Bystander disagrees with the Witnesses in no uncertain terms on this ground. On the other hand at disagree with both institutions which attempt to deny them the use of their facilities. They are built with tax payers' money, a part of which was contributed by the Witnesses. You can't take a fellow's money and deny him the use of what it produces. Certainly, the fair board and the veterans' commission are treading on unsound legal grounds.

SPORTS

BY ALLEN ASHBY

Took our second look at Iowa University basketball club on TV and figured we might as well give off with a few opinions along with the other sidewalk coaches. We thought the Hawks had great offensive power, but they lost the ball too often by bad passes or mistakes, such as going with a two and one or three and two play and then having the guy with the ball go all the way instead of passing off. They lost three or four possible baskets that way because the man trailing the dribbler blocked the shot.

Own Viewpoints

Now, these are our personal observations as viewed from a television screen and we don't want anyone to get the idea that we think we know all about the team or how to coach them. There could be a little pressure because the best combination the Hawks have fielded includes three Negroes and they really fell behind Northwestern when they weren't in there together.

Other Colleges

But, then Purdue has three and sometimes four Negroes in the lineup all the time. Illinois, Michigan State and Northwestern have two or three and Ohio State and Michigan have at least one. So it would seem silly for anyone to resent the presence of three Negroes at Iowa. But we won't ever know if it is true until the end of the season.

Drake

Drake has a basketball club just about as good as either Iowa State or Iowa U, but they are playing in the wrong league. Really, the Bulldogs wouldn't do any worse than either of the two state schools is doing in their respective leagues.

Boxing

Golden Gloves time is just about here. Have to give credit to Dave Nemo of the Jewish community center for trying valiantly to keep the thing alive here in Des Moines. But, as we see it the Gloves began to die when the officials limited the number of times a fellow could appear. Then the age limit was put on. Really there were very few fellows over 25 who fought in the Gloves. A lot of kids at 20 and 21 were veterans of four or five Golden Gloves meets. They were ring wise and could protect themselves. They inspired a lot of other kids to get in. Then it was a thrill for a guy to have been on half a dozen meets and then he wins.

Retired at 19

Then he has learned the lesson we all want to learn of success if one will keep on trying. But now a bid gets in the Gloves at 16. At 19 he is out and retired. Hasn't learned enough boxing to know a left hook from a right cross, but he is a retired Golden Glove. So he has no incentive or desire to do anything but just loaf around and not train. No wonder our youngsters are so soft.

HEALTH FOR ALL

New Society

We read health columns, too. In a recent one we found a proposal to which we gave a hearty amen. In his column the distinguished Dr. Walter C. Alvarez suggests the foundation of a "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Aged Parents by Their Loving and Over-Solicitous Children."

Do we hear applause from senior citizens throughout the land? Every doctor, every writer on health has received hundreds of queries like these: "My 80-year-old father has had a slight stroke. Shouldn't he give up his evening highball?" "My elderly father has high blood pressure, but he won't give up his pipe." "I've tried to put my 75-year-old mother on a diet, but she won't cooperate." "I want to buy my parents a retirement home in Florida, but Papa insists on staying in the old homestead where he strains his heart shoveling snow and chopping wood."

Early Grave?

Papa may like to chop wood. He likes his pipe, his apple pie, even, perhaps, an occasional glass of beer. If he wants to chop or smoke or eat or drink himself into an early grave at the age of 80, who has a better right? But his children want to treat him like a child.

Elderly people will, of course, feel better, avoid minor illnesses, and be able to do more if they follow the basic rules for healthy living. A regular check-up by the family doctor and reasonable attention to his suggestions is wise procedure. But no amount of fussing by the younger generation will help. It can do harm, by making healthy elders into burdensome hypochondriacs.

Own Old Age

The young people would do better to think about their own old age. How they live, what they eat in the 40's and 50's will directly affect their health in later years. Let them prepare for a healthy old age, and maybe they can avoid the well-meant but unwelcome interference of their children.

This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by: Polk County Tuberculosis & Health Assn.

Jackie Robinson to Be Honored by Sports Club Banquet March 6

Los Angeles, Calif.—Jackie Robinson, who might be more properly regarded as the 'athlete of the past quarter century', will be honored by the 100 Percent Wrong club as the "Athlete of the Decade" and will address the sports fans' club's annual Awards Banquet Mar. 6 at the Sheraton-West hotel.

Robinson, who broke the color line in organized baseball when he was signed by the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1946, later sparking the Dodgers to six pennants in 10 years, actually has been a sports hero since the mid-1930's... as a spectacular football star at Pasadena Junior college, later as a football, baseball, track and basketball star at UCLA.

A 'champion' at any sport he took up, Jackie even threatened the Negro tennis title when he ventured

Archie Moore Wins Annual Neil Award

New York—The Edward Neil award as "Fighter of the Year" was awarded to Archie Moore last Thursday at the 3rd annual dinner of the Boxing Writers association at Waldorf-Astoria.

At the dinner, Moore, the old light heavyweight champion, was the center of attraction and moving about with the same agility that characterized his action inside the ring.

CONSERVATION CLUB TO DISCUSS PROJECT

John A. Williams, president of the Crocker Conservation Club, announced that at its meeting Thursday, Feb. 5, 8 p.m., Crocker Branch YMCA, the club will discuss undertaking a multiflora rose project for this year.

Mr. Williams reported that this is a program whereby the club, in conjunction with farmers and the state conservation commission, will assist in the planting of multiflora rose bushes in farm areas. These bushes will provide cover for such game animals as rabbits, quails and pheasants and thus will offer hunting enthusiasts an increased wildlife population.

into that sport briefly in 1941. He retired from baseball in 1957 after being "traded" to the New York Giants.

As a non-athlete, he has been equally outstanding. He is vice president in charge of personnel of a New York restaurant chain. He is active in the leadership of the national NAACP and for the second time will conduct its successful Freedom Fund drive.

"GRANDPA GREY" (AND THE TORNADO)

Well, what in the name of thunder, is that thing a comin' yonder? Sweeping trash, and dirt, and plunder everywhere.

Blowing sticks and dirt and plunder. Knocking everything asunder? Watch out! You will get some trash Right in your hair.

Well, I'll tell you I'm an old man And I've been here for a span.

And I've got a certain feeling, Sorta hard to understand. But I see that storm that's comin' And I hear that wind a humming. And I see its black clouds boiling, Like a smoke stack in the air. Son, I told you I'm an old man, And I've been here for a time, And that funny sorta feeling that That went crawling through my mind.

Told me, that this storm that's Coming, is an awful sight to see, And I think I'd better watch out, Yonder goes my apple tree. Oh Man! let me get to running. That storm's headed straight at me. By Jove! that there's a tornado Don't you know it? Can't you see?

Elgin Baylor's

New York—Minneapolis Lakers' basketball ace Elgin Baylor this week received a telegram of praise from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for sitting out a game in Charleston, W. Va., Friday.

"Congratulations on your heroic stand against racial bias," read the message signed by the Association's youth secretary, Herbert Wright. "Your action was one of courage," Wright continued.

"We trust that it will serve as a standard for all other Negro athletes to follow," the telegram concluded.

Baylor, 23, a former All-American at the University of Seattle and two other Negro teammates, Ed Fleming and Bob Ellis, were denied accommodations at a local hotel when they arrived in Charleston, Friday. The Lakers lost the National Basketball Association game 95-91 to the Cincinnati Royals.

AGGIES WHIP WINSTON-SALEM KEEP CIAA RECORD CLEAN

Greensboro, N. C.—The A & T College Aggies took a tighter grip on first place in CIAA basketball standings with a decisive, 84-60 victory last week over arch rival Winston-Salem Teachers College.

The game, played here last Tuesday night, drew the largest crowd in the Charles Moore Gymnasium to see a game this season. More than 2,700 spectators yelled themselves hoarse as the Aggies avenged an earlier defeat by the Teachers' in tournament play.

The victory gave the Aggies a 9-0 record in regular conference play and labeled them as favorites to repeat as CIAA visitation champs. A & T has an overall average of 12-2, the two losses being sustained in tournament play.

Aaron Balks Over Braves' Terms for 1959

Milwaukee, Wis.—Henry Aaron, Milwaukee Braves' slugging outfielder, Friday became the first member of the National league champs to publicly express dissatisfaction with his 1959 playing contract.

"The offer wasn't what I wanted," Aaron was reported as saying. "According to Milwaukee Sentinel Sportswriter Lou Chapman, Aaron refused to disclose the terms of the new deal, but he indicated his concern about the pact by delaying a scheduled trip with his family to Mobile, Ala.

Aaron, who clouted 30 homers and had 95 RBIs to go with his 326 batting average, told Chapman that "some important personal business is coming up and I can't leave for a while."
