Vinnie Brewer, Iowa State Cage Star, Arrested

Car Theft Charge Reduced; Now Loses Eligibility for Cyclones

Ames, Ia.—A misstep in society by Iowa State University basketball star, Vinnie Brewer, 21, has resulted in some serious consequences not only for himself and his immediate education, but also for the Cyclone basketball team.

About 2:30 a.m. Saturday morning Brewer and another student, Fred Capalonga, a freshman wrestler, emerged from a downtown Ames tavern and decided to take a car from a downtown parking lot and go joy riding. They told police they broke the exit gate of a parking lot and took a car belonging to Larry Tweed of Randall, an employee in an Ames store. The two did not get far before they were caught after a brief chase by police in which Brewer, driving the car, almost lost control of it turning a curve.

Pleads Guilty

On Saturday both faced charges of car theft, a felony which carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and $1,000 fine and another charge of damaging public property. Municipal Judge Milton Seiser delayed the case until Monday in order for the Brewer and Capalonga to decide on their pleas.

Suspect Arson in House Fire

An empty house at 333 Allen street which was purchased recently and being remodeled by its owner was severely damaged by fire, set by suspected arsonists, here Saturday evening.

Donald Mayberry (right) 27, of 1617 Carpenter ave., who recently bought the house, and his friend, George Lockett, 60, of Route 1 Ankeny, stand in front door after surveying the damage.

Mayberry told fire investigating officers that he and Lockett had been having trouble with neighborhood youngsters who broke windows and did other minor damage.

Detective Dan Kauzlarich, police arson specialist, said he suspects that teenagers may have started the fires. He said word had been passed through the vicinity to "expect some excitement" Saturday night. Photo courtesy of Des Moines Sunday Register.

'A Raisin' in Sun' Boasts All-Negro Cast and Director

"A Raisin In The Sun" by Lorraine Hansberry comes to the KRNT THEATER for two performances on Monday and Tuesday evenings at 8:30, Dec. 12-13.

It is a powerful play, dealing with a poor Negro family living on the south side of Chicago, trying to make do with a minimum of creature comforts. Presiding over this household is Lena Younger, played by the star Claudia McNeil. She is a mountain of strength and strict disciplinarian. The family all want to escape from the poverty and social restrictions under which they live and the receipt of an insurance legacy they believe is their opportunity.

Cast

Walter Lee Younger, the son, played by Douglas Turner, wants to go into big business. His loyal and devoted wife, Ruth, played by Frances Foster, is a domestic as is his mother and this must stop. Lena's 20-year old daughter is being maintained in college and she wants to become a doctor. Diana Sands has this role.

Then there is the ten year old grandson, Travis, enacted by Tyrone Cooper, whose future education is to be considered—but who must learn that dreams cannot be fulfilled through his father's schemes. But mama has her mind set on one thing. She wants to buy a home—which she does—and around all this is a dynamic drama larded with basic humor. It finds its roots in simplicity, not in sophistication.

Negro Director

"A Raisin In The Sun" was directed by Lloyd Richards, himself a Negro as is Lorraine Hansberry, the author—and the cast is all Negro excepting one lone Caucasian.

Philip Rose and David J. Cogan are the producers, their first effort on Broadway, or anywhere else in fact, winning with it the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award as the best play of the year.

was hurting him more than his friend, Jack.

This second trial, Ungar is a trying witness to say the least. He has refused to answer the Asst. D.A. Scott's questions as to the agreement to pay for the remodeling of Jack's apartment—leaving some doubt as to whose side he is really on.

Declares Electoral Change Aimed at Minority Voters

Columbia, S. C.—NAACP Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins countered arguments to change the electoral college this week by calling for "free access to the ballot box" for southern Negroes.

Wilkins, referring to the fact that only one out of every four southern Negroes is allowed to vote, challenged politicians to "propose a new plan fair to all voters." Wilkins pointed out that efforts to curb the electoral college in the past, "were made with the objective of cutting down the influence of the Negro vote in large urban centers in the North.

Aimed at Negro

"Congressman Gossett of Texas joined some years ago with the then Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Mass., in sponsoring a resolution which Rep. Gossett frankly described as an effort to cut down the Negro vote in the North," Wilkins said. "The resolution lost in Congress as did a later one by the then Senator (now Governor) Price Daniel of Texas.

"So you see, the past efforts aimed at the electoral college have really been aimed at the Negro voter," he said.

Current Critics

Addressing himself to current critics of the system, Wilkins said, "let them have fair debate on all proposed changes." He spoke to more than 1,000 civil rights enthusiasts attending a mass rally sponsored here by the South Carolina Conference of NAACP branches.

"Any change ought to give all voters, regardless of color, free access to the ballot box. If that were done," he asserted, "perhaps the nation would find out how the people feel, not how a small clique feels."

Mississippi

Secretary Wilkins pointed out that Mississippi has a population of more than 2,000,000 persons. Over half are of voting age. "Yet a total of only 109,000 votes were cast Nov. 8, for a slate of unpledged electors," he said. "The nation is being told that 'the people of Mississippi' have spoken. "This is the kind of nonsense that will have to be discarded SEE PAGE THREE

Three Arrested; Material Witness Asks Protection; Grand Jury Indicts Eight

With the arrest of three more persons here Tuesday arrests for violating the Iowa Narcotics code were brought up to 20 for the year. And in connection with the latest arrests Rosetta Louise Bryson, of 1315 Crocker Street, who had been also taken into custody as a material witness, asked to remain in jail because she "fears for her life," against the accused.

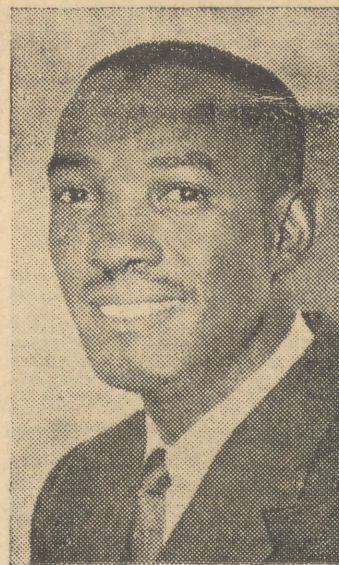

Arrested

Arrested were Johnnye C. Bell, Jr., 28, charged with violation of the state uniform narcotic drug act and Percy Rochon, 36, of 825 15th Street, and Robert Welsey Massey, 35, of 843 17th Street, both charged with resorting to a place where narcotics are used. Bell gave his address as 908 14th Place, and was ordered held in jail in lieu of $10,000 bond pending action of the Polk County grand jury, which he waived to. The other two are in jail for failing to post $1,000 bond pending a Dec. 8 hearing.

Forged Prescription

The eight were charged after raids by vice squad and state narcotics agents. Officers said they worked together to obtain drugs with forged prescriptions. Police said the forged prescriptions were filled in at least 10 drugstores here and were written on blanks taken from three Des Moines hospitals.

All but three of the accused were able to post bond of $5,000 and were released pending trial. Banks, Gilmore and Bolden are in Polk County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Integrated New Orleans Schools Boycotted; Jeering, Shouting Mob Grows Ugly

New Orleans, La.—Following a week-long holiday, New Orleans public schools entered their second week of token integration with an almost total white student boycott of the two schools attended by six Negro first grade girls.

Unlike the first turbulent week when throngs of yelling, screaming, name calling white segregationists, gathered in front of the two integrated schools and at times had to be dispersed by police and firemen, the second week entered on a quiet note; there were only a dozen or so jeering spectators, Monday, but crowds grew in size and anger Tuesday.

Attend in Another County

At the two schools, only the four girls and a handful of white pupils attended while the bulk of remaining students attended segregation schools in nearby St. Bernard parish (county).

In the latest of its maneuvers the Louisiana House of Representatives under the sponsorship of Rep. Percy Branton had threatened to withhold the state's 10 electoral votes from President-elect John F. Kennedy. However, Branton, made an about face and beat house foes to the punch by making the motion himself to kill his resolution which was done unanimously.

Turning to the New Orleans crisis, Wilkins said segregationists there have, "supplied a better argument for a federal civil rights law than our side could have ever thought up." "Gov. New York—Miles Davis Nok Criticized by Fellow Americans . . . Miles Davis created quite a stir in London when the critics and the British public expressed a coolness to his coolness to them. And so Davis came home only to find that fellow Americans are beginning to wonder if the British aren't right.

Great Musician

That Davis is a great musician—no one can deny. But that Davis is just plain rude—that fact is beginning to be accepted. Everyone attributed Davis' questionable manners to his greatness and excusable therein. But the trouble with the British is beginning to throw it all in a different light.

Miles' group is playing currently in New York at the Village Vanguard. This is his first U. S. stand and his work is being called "sincere and skillful." But his disappearances right after his playing and his own cold way of handling the audiences—these mannerisms are being criticized highly.

Gloria Lynne

Gloria Lynne's sensational pairing with Harry Belafonte on his TV spectacular "New York 19" is causing her career to get a new look.

Miss Lynne in Philadelphia is already being seen with different eyes . . . The Mills Brothers are in San Francisco, following our favorite Ella Fitzgerald who grows mellower with the years.

Belafonte

There's no let-up in the coining of money by Belafonte. In Canada following his TV show which outdid his last one—Harry was sold out for two weeks in advance in Toronto. The six performances will take $102,000 . . . Meanwhile, back in Detroit, it was the same old story. SRO for that that deal also.

Eartha Kitt

Eartha Kitt goes to Puerto Rico in February. She's booked for the fabulous Caribe Hilton—one of Conrad Hilton's most lush hotel of the string.

Sammy Davis, Jr.

If Sammy Davis, Jr. is having trouble paying his '59 taxes—some one ought to investigate his accounting department. The 34 year old indefatigable grossed $22,000 in 7 days' work for one San Francisco engagement. Come now, Sammy, you can count out $16,000 for back taxes surely.

To Be Civic Minded Is To Acquire Certain Wellbred Characteristics

BY. ATTY. WILLIAM S. JOY
Editor's note: Atty. Joy is well known Chicago attorney. He is a close friend of Mr. Gus Smith of Des Moines. They both attended Northwestern and The John Marshall Law school together many years ago.

The word "civic" is derived from the Latin word "civitas" meaning a member of a free city or rural society; one possessing all the rights and privileges which are to be enjoyed and exercised by every person living under its (constitution) laws or ordinances.

Duties

But the above description of the subject would be amiss impracticable to perform if we failed to point out that there are duties and obligations that must be carried out and very definitely followed by each person in this small segment of society.

Wellbred

So then to be civic minded is to possess or acquire certain characteristics (wellbred) such as being polite, kind, intelligent, well-behaved and respectful, especially toward women; it makes no difference who they may be or whether they have good breeding or not, but you yourself must have it.

Lord Chesterfield

The story about Lord Chesterfield goes that he was walking down one of the streets of New Orleans, La.,

one day and he met a Negro prostitute; he tipped his hat to her as a gesture of politeness and gentlemanship. As the story goes his friend who was with him at the time turned and said why did you tip your hat at her. It is reliably said that Lord Chesterfield replied, "I'm a gentleman."

No peoples or nations shall be able to rise nor reach the high pinnacles of government and society of the men of that society or government is liking in these basis principles.

Qualifications

There are of course qualifications of equal importance also. One of them is the preservation of property. No one should trespass property of another for to do so is to violate a very sacred right. A proud person is one who is honorable; he has deep and noble admirations not only of himself but for his fellowmen as well.

Not False Pride

I am not speaking about a pride that goeth before a fall, a social utility; nor that pride that is tainted with conceit or selfishness and used in the common parlance of daily conversations; The pride we are describing here is a glorious and noble attribute which generates human interest and stimulates community welfare and has for its goal the salvation of the great problems that effect our lives in these troubled times.

Who Designs the TB Christmas Seal

A committee met last month with an almost impossible task ahead—to recommend one out of some 500 designs for the 1962 Christmas Seal. The call for designs went out last Spring to art schools, known artists, and to newspapers and magazines. Designs came in during the following months from children, high school students, housewives, businessmen, professional artists.

Art Experts

Early in October a group of art experts met with the committee, representing TB association workers all over the country, to consider all the designs, with the art experts' suggestions to guide them but by no means to limit their choice. As a result of many hours of careful deliberation, one design finally came out on top. It was accepted as the 1962 Christmas Seal.

Seal Design

The design for the 1962 Christmas Seal was submitted by artist Philip Richard Costigan in 1958. Mr. Costigan was born in England, went to school and college there, majoring in Fine Arts at King Edward's College. After further art study both here and in England, Mr. Costigan settled down to make his home and work in Lenhartsville, Pennsylvania.

An artist of great versatility, Mr. Costigan has designed crystal for Sweden, textiles, wallpaper, posters, and silverware for England. His designs in fine china have been exhibited in European and American museums.

Personal Interest

Costigan has a highly personal interest in the fight against tuberculosis. An uncle who was living with him died of the disease. You'll see Mr. Costigan's design when your Christmas Seals arrive in the mail this week. You can help keep everybody safe from TB by using Christmas Seals on your cards, letters and packages.

Drive Against Xmas Gift Buying Spreads to 300 Cities

Atlanta, Ga.—Announcement that Negroes in more than 300 communities in six southeastern states have launched a "No Christmas Gift Buying" drive was made here today by a high NAACP official.

Ruby Hurley, the Association's southeast regional director, said in a Thanksgiving Day statement that, "Negroes are not going to spend their money where they are not treated with dignity."

Bitterness

She is in charge of NAACP activities in Alabama, Florida, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Tennessee. Mrs. Hurley emphasized the bitterness felt toward merchants who refuse to treat them courteously and deny them employment.

"We are going to sacrifice buying Christmas presents in order to enjoy human dignity and freedom. And, we are going to let merchants in this region know that we will not be satisfied with less," Mrs. Hurley declared.

Booming Start

The NAACP-sponsored Christmas withholding drive got off to a booming start in South Carolina last week, when more than 1,000 persons attending a mass meeting in Columbia passed a resolution calling for such action.

Roy Wilkins, principal speaker at the rally, gave the Christmas withholding drive the blessings of the Association's national office.

He told the cheering audience that, "it is just common sense to buy from your friends at Christmas time and at all other times. 'If you cannot buy from friends, don't buy,' he asserted.

Rev. Matthew D. McCollum of Orangeburg, told those attending the rally to put their Christmas gift money in the bank, give it to their churches or give it to the NAACP.

GUIDING THE ANGRY CHILD

What can parents do in guiding and directing the young child when he is angry?

First, check the child's physical condition, his schedule and play environment over-fatigue, irregular be guided and directed into a motive force of great value to the child's developing personality.

Body Movement

In the young child anger is caused by hampering his body movements, blocking activities that he has started, thwarting desires and wishes. Again, misunderstood speech, too difficult tasks, interruptions of the daily schedule or lack of attention may thwart desires and produce anger.

In one study it was found that anger is apt to occur in homes where parents are overanxious and concerned with whether the child's behavior is "good" or "bad," rather than in the homes where behavior is looked upon as a learning process.

Anxiety

Anger also occurs where there is anxiety and worry rather than a sense of humor. The nagging or over-critical parent causes more anger reactions than the calm, confident one.

Cultivate a sense of humor and let it function. The nonsense rhymes of childhood, those of Lear and the frog of Okefinokee of Laura E. Richards' fame, help in the everyday wear and tear of existence. hours for sleep or for eating are a strain. Or, he may need simpler equipment or toys more suited to his age such as "do-with" toys which he can manipulate successfully.

charge was reduced on a motion of George Larson, assistant Story County attorney, to one of operating a motor vehicle without the consent of the owner. The reduced charge is still a felony and carries one year in prison and $500 fine penalty. Judge Seiser gave the defendants enter a plea to the new charge.

Cage Eligibility

Immediate concern was voiced by Iowa State Basketball Coach Glen Anderson who was anxiously wondering if Brewer would be allowed to play this season. Brewer, the team's leading scorer last year with a 15.3 average per game, would be a severe loss to the team if he was ineligible for playing.

Punishment

Robert L. Jones, assistant director of student affairs at Iowa State, said the cases involving Brewer and Capalonga will be referred to the university committee on student conduct, which has power to impose discipline, including suspension from the school. He said he expected the committee to act on the matter later this week.

lally by a very young child, as a means of "getting attention." Giving attention to desirable behavior and ignoring his undesirable acts will often help overcome this difficulty.

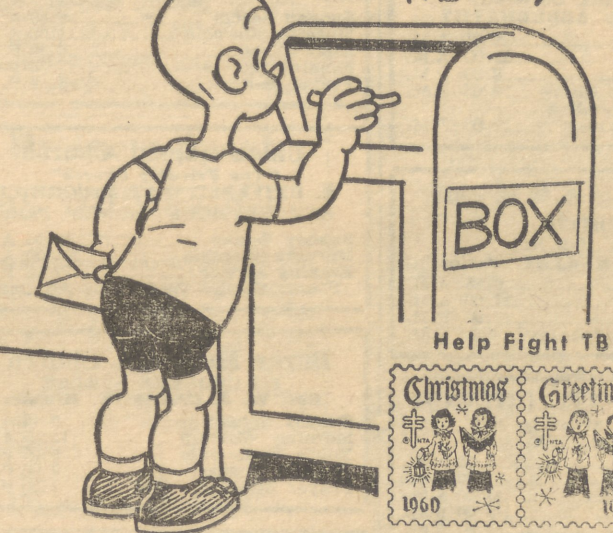

Highly Imitative

Remember that children are highly imitative. If nearby adults give way to anger, so will the child just as he tries to imitate grown persons walking.

If your child has a temper, be glad of it; but realize that guidance is needed here as in all of the child's other ways of life. A basic, natural drive in the human being, anger can

Family Finances

by John Roberts
Insurance Counselor
Old Equity Life, Evanston, Ill

Trading is an age old method of obtaining goods or services.

With a little imagination you can give your budget a lift by trading time, talents, or both.

The suggestions below are helping other families financially. They may also give you ideas for other trading methods.

Many neighboring young couples trade off baby sitting for each other.

A young lawyer had a garage badly in need of repair. His neighbor who is handy at carpentry needed personal legal work. By trading time and talents both satisfied their needs.

Then there was a housewife who couldn't afford the luxury of a beauty parlor. Talented at sewing, she swapped services with the beautician and both were happy with the outcome.

If you have more time than money, trading time and talents can give your family an income boost. The dividend payments are making new friends, cementing old friendships, and gaining new experiences for a richer life.

SAMMY DAVIS HONORED

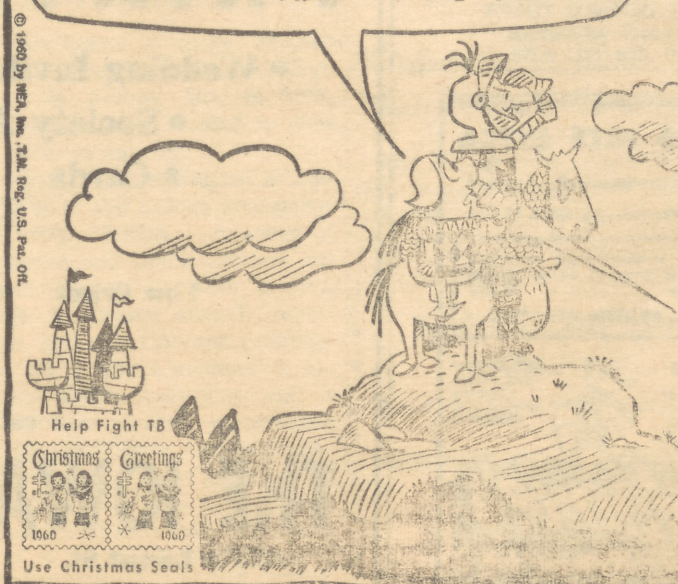

Beverly Hills, Calif. — Sammy Davis, Jr. was one of 10 world famed personalities selected to receive the State of Israel's highest honor to non-natives—the Medallion of Yavor. A recent convert to Judaism, the versatile entertainer, representing the arts, thus drew the decoration that is accorded to "world leaders who have utilized their special talents and high abilities on behalf of all people, and particularly in behalf of the people of Israel." Besides Davis, folk singer Harry Belafonte was also named for the honor as a representative of the arts.

The scheduled revival at Burns Methodist church has been canceled because the guest minister is unable to come.

"DAMN THE LAW" Birmingham, Ala.—The Rev. L. Shuttlesworth acted as his own lawyer at the Federal Court hearing of his suit to stop city detectives from attending civil-rights meetings here.

"Some Little American Girls Going To School"

This caption was over a picture that appeared on the front page of "The Des Moines Register," Thursday morning, Nov. 17th. The picture showed four little Negro girls with their books, on the way to school. The other part of the picture showed a mob of white people standing along the pathway, their faces and actions displaying intense resentment, hatred and vindictiveness towards the little girls.

In Shame

This picture is, of course, a reenactment of a scene that is now taking place in one of the largest cities in our Southland. And as we read the newspapers, hear and see these events, we bow our heads in shame at the mockery and hypocrisy of those who profess to live by the Christian faith, in a country that supposedly represents to the world, a land of freedom and democracy.

Who To Blame

If these children and other youths of the darker races grow up with malice and hatred in their hearts for the white race—who is to blame? If violence should break out in New Orleans and hundreds of people of both races are killed or injured—who is to blame?

How can we point to the South

This gave the militant minister a chance to question Police Commissioner Eugene "Bull" Conner about statements he has made about the struggle for integration in Birmingham. For example, Conner couldn't recall saying, "Damn the law. We make our own law down here." However, a reporter for the Baltimore Afro-American testified that Conner did make the statement.

"It Must Not Happen" To TB Seals Drive

Word received today from the Polk County Tuberculosis and health Association was anything but encouraging. Ted Sloma, executive director, states that contributions are running $4,000 behind last year at the same date. If this present trend continues, we will wind up several thousand dollars short of our needed goal of only $68,000; and this will mean a drastic cut in the free x-raying and tuberculin testing in Polk County for 1961.

Provides Essentials

Christmas Seal dollars pay for the thousands of free chest x-rays and tuberculin tests given each year in Polk County. Voluntary contributions provide the essential materials and information used in schools, industries, professional and other groups for educational and scientific programs.

No Fund Drive

Many people are of the opinion that we receive money and help from other fund drives. The fact is, our sole support comes from voluntary contributions, by mail, to the Christmas Seal Campaign.

I'm sure if the people of Polk County want the free services of the Christmas Seal X-ray Mobile Unit, and the free tuberculin testing of their children continued in Polk County, they will support the Christmas Seal Campaign.

WHY DUCK THE CLEAR ISSUE?

There are people who are smart in one area and perfectly clumsy in another. And that pretty well sums up the predicament of Dr. Martin Luther King in his appearance on television Saturday night.

Dr. King had an excellent opportunity to present the case of the sit-in and sit-down youngsters. But in preparation for his talk, it is evident that he was not prepared to discuss the subject in a practical way—down to the earth position. That down to earth required the legal as well as moral aspects of the subject.

Dr. King was asked if he would advise sit-down participants to discontinue their activities if the courts held that their acts were illegal. The question was never answered. On the other hand, he said an illegal law was no law at all, and since segregation violated the moral law he felt that Negro youngsters should not obey it.

Now, the good doctor knows better than that. Negroes have insisted over the years that he be subjected to the same rules and regulations as others; that he would obey them and that others should do likewise; that any law he did not like should be obeyed but at the same time an orderly protest should be carried on rather than one of mob action such as prevails in New Orleans today.

We make no headway by trying to duck the law. Its our safest weapon. It has brought us thus far on to first-class citizens. Preaching a sermon in church and debating a sharp newspaper columnist on the radio are two entirely different jobs.

SCRATCH DEEPER FOR LAW VIOLATORS

During the past several months, law enforcement officials have apprehended and sent to prison an unusual number of Negroes on charges growing out of the narcotic trade.

This type of crime is most reprehensible—one striking a blow to all concerned with the sale and use of illegal drugs. It is well that they are being apprehended for their stock in trade is a blow to any community.

The strange angle to this campaign is that Negroes only are apprehended. Generally speaking, considerable money is involved, that most of the drugs are neither grown or manufactured here. Consequently, there are others involved who are not being caught.

The Bystander holds no brief for those involved; it does not accuse the law enforcement officials of impartially carrying out their job. But we are inclined to feel that the surface is not being scratched deep enough.

VOTERS ELECTED
QUALIFIED CANDIDATE

Commenting of the results of the election on Nov. 8, Gov. Loveless said the religious issue beat him; that two weeks before Nov. 8, he was ahead of Senator Jack Miller who beat him out as United States Senator from Iowa.

Undoubtedly, Gov. Loveless's guesses are wrong. Maybe he was ahead two weeks before the election but the closer November 8 came, the more voters realized that the governor is not senatorial timber such as to follow some of the illustrious men from this and other states who have served in that body. On the other hand, Senator Miller is well prepared to trade blows in debate, he has had considerable legislative experience and is an expert on taxation all assets which the governor does not possess.

The Bystander supported Jack Miller in the primaries and felt all along that he was the best qualified man in the race for Senator.

STRONG MORAL
LEADERSHIP NEEDED

Racial clashes and disturbances continue in the South as politicians and members of citizens councils retain the spotlight of activity in many communities. Much is said and heard about those frantic women in New Orleans, whose conduct resembles that of the lowest type of women in the old red light districts, while very little is said or done by those who stand for law and order.

Unfortunately, the leaders in government find all kinds of excuses why they should keep hands off when the problem is crying for strong moral leadership. Of course, nobody involved in the litigation should question a matter before the courts. But this is not the point. What is needed is for President Eisenhower and President-elect Kennedy to ask the people of the South to cease mob violence and conduct their protest in an orderly fashion without intimidating other people. Louisiana State Representative E. J. Grizzaffi said "We're the laughing stock of this nation . . . We've tried to call supreme court members Communists, what next. If we keep coming up with such resolutions, we're going to find ourselves in trouble." And the conduct of the segregationist women in New Orleans is making a mockery of America before the world.

Well, the happenings of the pre-Thanksgiving weekend gridiron doings weren't exactly news. Iowa came through as expected and in about the manner expected. Minnesota has a slim lead for the number one spot in the polls; the Hawks had the tougher schedule but they lost to the Gophers and any comparison of the two teams would have to include this fact. The big news of that weekend was the selection of the new coach at Iowa. Following this we found ourselves answering a bunch of questions and we thought they might prove interesting along with the answers that represent strictly our personal opinions.

Brains?

Q. How do you think the new coach will do since he is a fairly young man? A.—If he has the football brains he is credited with he would do alright at any age. If Evashevski thought Jerry Burns didn't have a chance he would not have picked him.

Q.—How will this affect Negroes in the future? Will there be a gradual cutback of Negro players now? A.—We think that as long as the present gang is in power at Iowa, there will be no change in the status of Negro athletes. They will continue to come to the school in large numbers.

Outside Influence

Q.—Don't you think Burns might be more susceptible to outside influence and listen to some, say, frat brother who object to so many Negroes? A.—Burns like any coach wants to win; he is in probably the toughest league in the country. He can't afford to pass any player who might help him. You see what is happening at other schools. Well, all the Negroes Iowa passes up will go to some other Big Ten school and help beat Iowa.

Alumni

Q.—Will the alumni raise voices in protest at so many Negroes? A.—The school has made commitments on expansions that are going to cost somebody a lot of money. A losing team won't draw that kind of money. No the alumni had better keep still unless they want to go back to B.E. (Before Evashevski.)

We were a bit pleasantly surprised at the selection of Wilburn Hollis of Iowa U as All-Big Ten quarterback. We didn't know who would beat him out but we thought someone might. That backfield was probably the biggest in Big Ten history and if the critics had just wanted to do so they could have have made it all Negro. There weren't too many big, good Negro linemen around, but there were some. Probably Bobby Bell of Minnesota was the best along with Iowa's Al Hinton.

Another good deal was the selection of Hollis as co-captain. We believe he becomes the third Negro captain at Iowa. The first was Seal Harris, an end who captained a losing team. Then came Cal Jones and now Hollis.

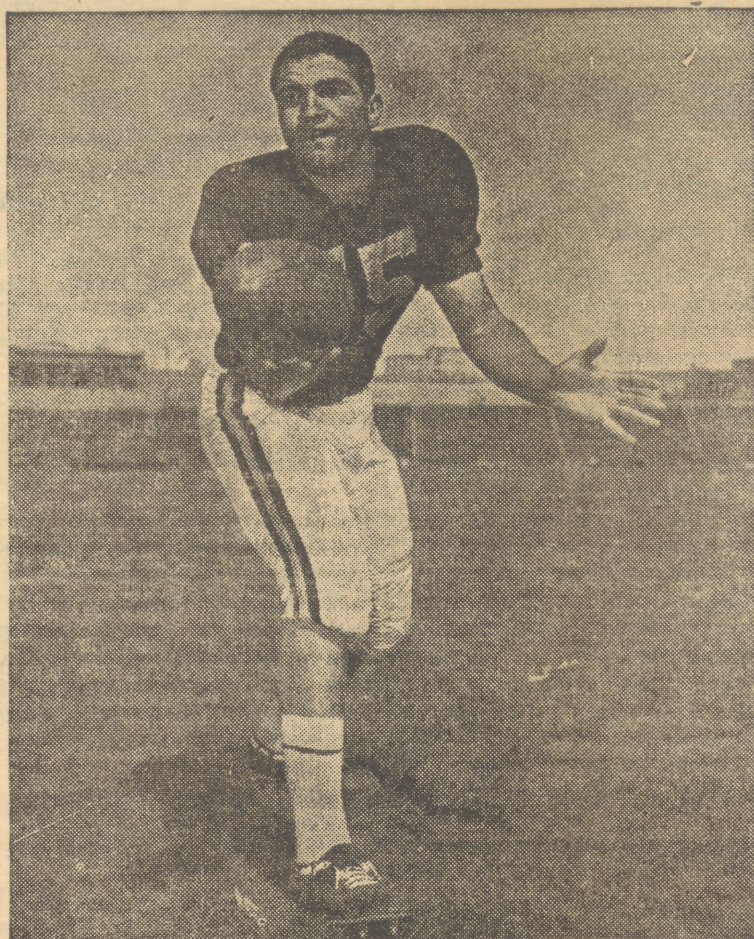

PR DEAN DIES

New York—James A. (Billboard) Jackson, a one-time railroad detective and minstrel performer, who became one of the acknowledged deans of Negro public relations men, is dead at 83. He pioneered in fields that were almost entirely unrelated—theatrical writing, government service and industry, for example—and for many years played a prominent role in a dozen or more Negro fraternal and business organizations. He was an active or honorary member of 37 such groups.

GHANA STUDENTS

Tallahassee—A citation was presented the Ambassador to the United States from Ghana by Florida A&M University. Ghana will send six students to Florida A&M each year to study agriculture, revealed Ambassador W. M. Q. Hal during a press conference.

Will Quarterback Gophers in Rose Bowl

Sandy Stephens, quarterback for the Minnesota Gophers, and who was responsible for converting opposing team errors into Minnesota scores during the Big Ten season, will lead his co-champions into the Rose Bowl on Jan. 2. Minnesota, No. 1 ranked team in the nation in both UPI and AP rolls accepted the Rose Bowl bid and will attempt to uphold the Big Ten honor against the Washington Huskies, West coast champions.

Minnesota, which finished in the cellar in the Big Ten last year, roared back from oblivion to the pinnacle to tie with Iowa, whom they also beat in their game this year.

Hollis Named Hawks
Co-captain For 1961

Davenport, Ia.—Wilburn Hollis, all-star quarterback and Bill Van Buren, standout center, were named co-captains for the 1961 Iowa Hawkeyes at an annual football banquet here sponsored by the Davenport Quarterback club.

Hollis, who features the roll-out option, was Iowa's top scorer with 68 points. He was also Iowa's top gridironer in rushing—second only to fleet-footed Larry Ferguson.

Tennis Classes Slated
For Willkie House

The 6th annual indoor classes co-sponsored by the Hilltop Tennis club and the Willkie House have been underway for seven weeks with excellent results.

This year the east side is represented by Kimberly Reeves, and Patricia DeVan. Average age of the class is 9½ years; there are three sister-brother combinations, totaling seven persons; one third of the class is left-handed.

Unlike previous years, parents are now showing lots of interest and co-operation, which are necessary for the success of the program.

Persons wishing to donate racquets, or wanting information about the classes may call the Willkie House or Esthe Myers, AT 8-8719.

OPERATES WHISKEY STILL

Chicago—Willie Love, resident of Chicago's westside district, was arrested by Warren avenue police last week when neighbors complained of smelling a pungent odor coming from his home. Police sniffed their way

THOU MOON

Thou moon, o' cold and barren sphere
Through-out the ages circling,
On the endless seas of time.
Could Thee, in ages past, long dead,
Have lived Thy cycle through?
What mighty deeds were wrought on Thee,
Were there some souls who knew?
Did primordial forests bloom,
Upon Thy frigid face, o' moon?
And space-men land, upon Thy strand
A million years ago?
Somewhere out there in timeless
space,
The word comes through, 'tis so!!!
Deep in the cortex of all life,

The vital answer to all things,
Awaits the seekers touch and will
Sometime, somewhere, a wilful mind,
Will search through all the ancient lore,
And bring to light again, the master
key,
That He hath made to open every door.
All the mysteries beneath the age-
old dust,
Will be a clear and open book to all;
To all that care what lies beneath the obvious.
He who seeks to learn shall grow,
And have the power of the gods to go;
To go afar to answer this odd rune,
On what and how about Thou, aged moon.

Negro Takes U.S.
Tennis Championship

St. Louis, Mo.—Arthur Ashe, Jr., Sunday became the first Negro to win the National Junior Indoor tennis championship. He outlasted top-seeded Frank Froehling of San Antonio, Tex., 6-4, 16-14, 9-11, 3-6, 6-1, in a 4-hour 10-minute struggle here. Ashe, a St. Louis high school senior, had been ranked sixth. His victory gives St. Louisans five straight titles. Chuck McKinley did it the last three years and Earl Buchholz won in 1956.

Willie Mays Voted
"Most Valuable"
Giant in Japan

Shizuoka, Japan—The Japanese got a glimpse of the sensational Willie Mays during the San Francisco Giants' 16-game tour of Japan, and liked what they saw.

Mays, who batted .404 on 23 hits, including seven home runs, in 57 times at bat, was voted the most valuable player by a committee of managers and officials at the conclusion of the tour, which the Giants won by an 11-4-1 margin. They lost the first and last games.

Mays, who was feted several times at various stops on the tour, received a Japanese automobile for winning the poll.

The Giants' centerfielder was easily the most popular player with Japanese fans.

Badgers Elect First
Negro Captain

Madison, Wis.—Jim Biggs, a Negro senior from Chicago, Ill., was elected captain of Wisconsin's basketball team Saturday. The 6-foot 2-inch forward is the first member of his race to hold the post at Wisconsin. Biggs, who hit 30 points against Northwestern in his sophomore year, setting a school record, missed most of last season because of an operation.

Injury Sidelines
Clarence Peaks

Philadelphia — Fullback Clarence Peaks of the Philadelphia Eagles fractured a bone in his right ankle recently and will be out of action for the rest of the National Football League season, club officials reported.

Peaks has been a mainstay of the Eagles.

TOP JOB HOLDERS

Seven Presidents of the United States—Lincoln, Jefferson, Jackson, Fillmore, Buchanan, Garfield and Arthur—were born in log cabins. Eight Presidents didn't go to college; 23 were lawyers.
