Bird Principal Found Innocent of Assault in Disciplinary Incident

After a hearing in Municipal Court Friday afternoon Melvin E. Rexroat, 33, principal of Bird school was found innocent of assault and battery. The charge had been filed against the principal by the mother of a nine year old pupil who said his head had been "banged against a bookcase" and he had been "slapped" by Rexroat during disciplinary actions at the school on Jan. 18.

Denied Mistreatment

Rexroat, testifying Friday afternoon denied that he had mistreated La Mar Brandt, 9, who had been sent to his office following a disturbance in the classroom of Mrs. Erma McKinnon with another boy, Robert (Bobby) Furnish, 11, a ward of juvenile court and resident of the Des Moines Children's Home.

Shook Him

Rexroat said La Mar failed to heed repeated requests to "be quiet and listen," and that he picked La Mar up by the upper arms and shook him a few times. He said it was possible that La Mar's head touched the book shelving behind him but there was no "bang" or sound of such contact.

Warns Mother

Mrs. Kathryn Mosby, mother of La Mar, of 9b2 16th street was warned about "threatening" school officials by Municipal Judge Luther T. Glanton, Jr., who said "a responsible principal has the right to use corrective means, as necessary, as Anderson as the one who robbed him manner."

Leontyne Price Gets 35-Minute Roaring Ovation in Met Debut

New York, N. Y.—The magnificent soprano, Leontyne Price, almost established a record at the end of her debut at the Metropolitan Opera here last Friday when she was given a 35-minute roaring ovation at the completion of Verdi's "Il Trovatore." Cheers and calls of "Price!! Price!!" resounded throughout the theater. No one remembered to keep count of the bows. And when it was all over, Miss Price stood behind the great gold curtains with tears in her eyes.

Unusual in Debuts

"It has been exhilarating," she exclaimed. "The most exhilarating experience of my life."

One backstage veteran noted, "It is certainly one of the all-time demonstrations. This usually happens at a farewell, never at a debut."

On hand to witness their daughter as he does this in a moderate Price.

Maple St. Baptist Heads Drive for Clothing, Food for Tent City, Tenn., Families

A drive among churches in Des Moines to donate clothing, food and money for the distressed families of Freedom Village in Somerville, Tenn., is being conducted here by Maple Street Baptist church of which Rev. George H. Parrish is pastor.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Audrey Sanders of 1755 Walker street, chairman, a committee of women volunteers have been spending more than a half dozen hours a day at Maple Street Baptist church collecting donated items, sorting, washing, ironing, mending and packing.

Rev. Parrish, who hails from Tennessee himself, suggested the idea several weeks ago and officers and members of his congregation agreed that it would be a good plan to let other churches in the city participate too.

Workers

The ladies got together and sent out typed mailed notices to the various churches. They also asked for volunteers from the other churches. Among those working on the committee from Maple Street are Mesdames Dorothy Robinson, Ann Calhoun, Myrtle Powell, Ruth Forrester, Hortense Brodus, Cora Wright, and Lottie Igou. Mrs. Delores Bailey of St. Paul A.M.E. church answered the call for volunteers and came over to join the committee.

Smorgasbord

Last Saturday the committee and other ladies of Maple Street held a smorgasbord to raise funds in behalf of the effort. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peguese arrived with a large donation of clothing, and a dish for the smorgasbord. Rev. and Mrs. William Heath of Shiloh Baptist church brought over a donation of clothing. A box arrived from Bethel A.M.E. church of which the Rev. J. K. Brown is pastor.

Need Volunteers

When contacted Monday afternoon Mrs. Sanders said they were in need of more volunteers to help pack the boxes for mailing as they are expecting donations to pour in the next two weeks until the drive terminates then.

"We would like to have volunteers from other churches," she said, "as we especially would like for other churches to get in on this drive."

Truck Help

Mrs. Sanders also related that the committee of ladies usually meet at the church and work from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and sometimes return in the evenings to do more work. Her brother-in-law, Mrs. Harold Frye, a deacon at Maple Street Baptist church, has donated the services of his pickup truck to transport the packages to the station.

Two Women Molested By Night Intruder

Two Des Moines women described a Negro, wearing a leather or suede jacket as the intruder who broke into their homes around 4 a.m. Saturday.

Sharon McClish, 19, of 1187 15th street told police that she was awakened at 4 a.m. by a man in her upstairs bedroom. She said he held something to her throat and said, "If you scream, I will stick you with this knife."

3 Blocks Apart

Miss McClish said she broke away from the man and ran down the stairs, and the man followed her, then ran out the front door.

Ten minutes later Marlys Maxine Bush, 29, who lives about 3 1/2 blocks away from Miss McClish, told police that she was awakened by a man in her first floor bedroom at 4:10 a.m. he held a screwdriver, she said and clapped a hand over her mouth and told her not to scream. She struggled with him and in the scuffle he bit her on the shoulder and struck her on

Benny Richardson Says Clerk Sold Him Bottle of Chloroform for Magnesia

Katz Drug Company was sued for $50,000 in a civil damage suit in Polk County district court Tuesday. The plaintiff, Benny Richardson, of 1354 Buchanan Street charged that he ordered a bottle of milk of magnesia and was sold a bottle of chloroform instead.

Richardson asked $25,000 actual damages and $25,000 punitive damages. He also asked for a jury trial.

Chloroform

In his petition Richardson, who had been suffering from ulcers, said that on April 3, 1960 he went to Katz Drug Co., at 7th and Locust Street and asked the clerk for a bottle of milk of magnesia, which he had been taking for the relief of his ulcers. Richardson said the clerk sold him what he thought to be milk of magnesia, wrapped in plain paper, totally concealing the label. Immediately after paying for what he believed to be the milk of magnesia, Richardson said he removed the cap from the bottle and drank from it, not knowing that it contained chloroform.

In Coma

Upon swallowing the chloroform, Richardson said he became ill, lost consciousness and was required to obtain medical attention and was immediately taken to a hospital.

Charging the defendant with negligence, Richardson said because of the intake of chloroform, he was severely and permanently injured in body and mind, that he remained in a coma and in a semiconscious condition for several days and that he could not eat or swallow and was required to take nourishment intravenously, by injection.

Membranes Burned

Richardson said that the membranes and tissues of his mouth, throat, stomach were seared, burned and permanently injured and damaged and that the chloroform caused lasting damage to his liver.

Richardson said that prior to these injuries he was in sound health except for ulcers, which did not impair his ability to provide economically for his family. Since the injuries Richardson said he has suffered loss of earnings.

Organizations Agree on Aid For Two Tennessee Counties

Memphis, Tenn.—Representatives of 12 national and local organizations attending an NAACP-sponsored conference to coordinate aid to Haywood and Fayette counties agreed this week to formation of a national group of organizations.

Gloster B. Current, NAACP director of branches, said this combined body would have three major purposes:

—To continue to use their influence to solicit and contribute to the beleaguered counties.

—To explore long-range problems and find long-range solutions.

—To clarify and interpret the needs of the distressed families and to give accurate information on the overall situation.

Negro farmers in the two Tennessee counties have undergone endless economic reprisals for daring to vote last November. Many have been driven from the land they have farmed for tyars.

Other organizations represented at the NAACP-sponsored meeting include the AFL-CIO, National Council of Churches, Memphis Urban League, Fayette County Civic and Welfare League (headed by John McFerren) and the Congress of Racial Equality.

Also the American Friends Service Committee, the National Sharecroppers Fund, Lemoine College, the First Baptist Church of Brownsville (Haywood County), the Memphis Council on Human Relations and the National Student Association. Jesse Turner, president of the Memphis NAACP, who called the meeting, presided. NAACP staff workers on duty here, Phillip Savage and W. C. Patton, also attended.

Personal Tour

After the meeting, Current made a personal inspection tour of "Tent City," temporary home of ten Negro families on the farm of Shepard Towles.

"They are getting along well," he reported. "They now have two double beds instead of one, and most of them have two stoves in operation, one for heating, the other for cooking," he said. "It seems unbelievable, but some of the tents are warmer than the cabins they formerly occupied as sharecroppers."

Rome, Italy—Lester B. Granger, executive director of the National

GRANGER

Urban League, was elected last week president of the International Conference of Social Work. It is the first time a Negro has been elected to the post. Granger's election came

More than 2,500 delegates from 34 countries attended. Pope John XXIII received the delegates in a special audience at the conclusion of the meeting.

A former vice-president of the Conference, Granger, who has served more than 40 years in the field of social work, was U.S. chairman of the International Conference for four years (1952-56).

Affiliation

In this capacity he led the American delegation to biennial meetings in India, Canada, and Germany. He has served also as president of the National Conference of Social Work, representing social welfare in the United States.

Last November, Mr. Granger was named by Eisenhower Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell to the chairmanship of the Federal Advisory Council on Employment Security.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Infectious hepatitis cases are on the increase in Des Moines-Polk County reports the city-county health department. 37 cases have been reported since January 1, 1961 in the whole Des Moines-Polk County area.

Infectious hepatitis is an infectious disease which attacks the liver and is caused by a virus. It specifically means "inflammation of the liver." Overcrowded living conditions, poor personal hygiene and unsanitary plumbing facilities contribute to the spread of the disease.

Two Types

There are two types of hepatitis, caused by two different viruses. At first the two forms of the disease were believed to have the same cause. Formerly, hepatitis was referred to as "yellow jaundice" or "catarrhal jaundice." Now, however, the most common variety is termed "infectious hepatitis" and the other is called "serum" hepatitis.

The virus of infectious hepatitis is transmitted primarily through personal contact with someone who has the disease, however, it can be spread in water, milk and food.

Incubation Period

The disease has a long incubation period of from two weeks to six months; but the symptoms have a tendency to appear suddenly. Acute respiratory infection, headache, fatigue, back and joint aches, nausea (with or without vomiting), loss of appetite, and abdominal pain usually mark the beginning of infectious hepatitis. Occasionally there is tenderness in the region of the liver, and lymph nodes in the neck and spleen may become enlarged. The yellowing symptom, if it occurs, will be noticeable in the white of the eyes and also give a slight yellowish cast to the skin.

Consult Physician

Where these symptoms occur, your family physician should be consulted immediately. Gamma Globulin has been successfully used as a preventive measure to treat persons who have been in contact with the disease. An injection of gamma globulin, if administered early enough during the incubation period, can prevent the disease or lessen the intensity of an attack. The severity of the disease depends upon early discovery and proper medical treatment.

Personal hygiene and the sanitary disposal of waste and sewage can scarcely be overemphasized as preventive measures in the control of infectious hepatitis. Milk and water should be obtained from sources that are known to be tested frequently and careful attention should be paid to storage of food.

Urge Executive Action In Civil Rights Field

Washington, D. C.—President Kennedy can do a great deal for civil rights through executive action, asserted NAACP attorney J. Francis Pohlhaus this week.

"A significant civil rights advance could be made by requiring that all federal funds be used in a non-discriminatory manner," writes Mr. Pohlhaus in the current issue of Community, a Catholic lay publication.

Mr. Pohlhaus, counsel for the Association's Washington Bureau, reports that over $2,000,000,000 is spent yearly by the federal government in educational aid alone and another quarter of a billion goes for hospital and health services.

Knife-Pointing Bandit Waives to Grand Jury In Parking Lot Holdup

John Herbert Andersons, 27, of Oklahoma City, Okla., who was caught by two alert policemen two minutes after he held up a parking attendant at knife-point last Thursday, has waived to the grand jury on a charge of robbery with aggravation. He is being held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Detectives Paul Thomas and James Thompson were cruising nearby when they heard a radio report of the robbery at the Hotel Parking lot, 219 4th street by a knife-pointing bandit. They noted that the robber was wearing a brown coat. As they neared 5th and Grand avenues they saw a man so clothed run from the drug store to the Union Bus Depot, across the street.

The officers followed him into the bus depot where they questioned him about the robbery and found he was carrying the money changer and the money bag. They took him to the police station where he signed a statement admitting the robbery.

Prior Arrest

Donald Robuck, of 1828 Franklin ave., attendant at the parking lot at the time of the robbery identified Anderson as the one who robbed him of a coin changer containing $2.95 and a bank money bag containing approximately $5.

Anderson, also known by several other names, had been arrested a week earlier on an intoxication charge. He was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence on that charge on condition that he leave town.

Handy Incinerator

FOR burning household rubbish, an incinerator built of concrete blocks on a concrete foundation is excellent. The base is 4 by 5 feet, and the concrete should be reinforced with chicken wire, according to Family Handyman.

Use standard size building block, setting the first course on a thin layer of mortar and leaving two 8"x8" spaces at the front to provide ample draft for complete incineration.

The cover is turkey wire, 1 1/2" mesh, with welded joints so the wires won't separate due to heat. Eye-bolts may be inserted in the joints between two of the top building blocks, if you want to hinge the mesh cover by looping down two pieces of the wire into the metal eyes.

When Simpson College at Indianola, Iowa, bestowed an honorary doctor of letters degree upon Rowan in 1957, it cited his ability to "challenge man's humanity with insight, courage and compassion."

Sense of Justice

This keen sense of justice and courage to challenge man's humanity have made Rowan one of the nation's most honored journalists. He is the only newspaperman to win three successive annual medallions from Sigma Delta Chi, the nation's leading organization of professional journalists. He was named "journalist of the year" in 1958 by the Capital Press Club of Washington, D. C. In 1959 he was cited by the National Conference of Christians and Jews "for outstanding contributions promoting the cause of good will and understanding . . . and bringing us nearer the goal of the Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God."

Staff Member

Rowan has been a member of the news staff of the Minneapolis TRIBUNE since 1948, prior to joining the Tribune he worked for the Spokesman and Recorder newspapers and the Afro-American newspaper and has covered many of the major news events of the last decade—such as the visit of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to the American Midwest; the Hungarian and Suez crisis in the United Nations; the U-2 spy plane debates in the United Nations; the school desegregation troubles of Little Rock and the Asian-African Conference in Bandung, Indonesia. His writing assignments have carried him all over the nation and to Asia, Africa and Australia.

Bethune College

The 15th annual UNCF Alumni Conference will be held on the Bethune-Cookman College campus in Daytona Beach. Bethune-Cookman is one of the 32 member colleges of the United Negro College Fund.

2-Day Series

Alumni volunteer workers from all parts of the country, UNCF students and campus alumni directors will attend the two-day series of workshops and discussion meetings. Experts will present new ideas in the techniques of educational fund-raising to delegates for application in their own cities and on campuses during the 1961 Fund appeal.

brated their 75th Anniversary during the week of Jan. 21-25.

The 75th Anniversary Banquet highlighted the week. Mrs. Belle Davey and Mr. Thomas Lloyd, two of the oldest active members of the church, gave the history as far back as records permitted. Invited guests included the Mayor of Muscatine and all ministers throughout the city.

Lighthouse

The little red brick building on the hill at East 7th Street has for many years stood as a "Lighthouse" for those who would seek rescue.

The people of the community are humbly proud of the service fostered in the name of Christ. We resolve to make greater strides in community service the ensuing year.

Beginning

It was during the God guided pastorate of the Rev. W. A. Alexander, now deceased, in the year of 1885 that this church structure was erected and dedicated to the service of God. It stood as a refuge for many of our slave brothers who prayerfully sought a way to freedom. God leads his dear children along.

Alexander Clark

From this church came men such as Mr. Alexander Clark. Mr. Clark came to Muscatine as a barber, but because of delicate health he channeled his interest elsewhere and he became a steamboat supply contractor on the muddy Mississippi which flows through Muscatine, Ia. His business spread elsewhere rapidly. He was the superintendent of Bethel A. M. E. Sunday School, and was also known as the local preacher. He would take charge of the pulpit until a minister was sent by the Bishop during Annual Conference. Mr. Clark also crusaded for integrated schools in the state of Iowa. He was victorious.

REV. COOPER

No Small Town

Muscatine is often referred to as a small charge in a small town, but to we who reside here it could never be a small church. A book could be written on the beautiful history of our forefathers, a sermon could be preached upon the lives of those who left this edifice here as a testimonial of their love to God and to man. We that remain shall carry the staff until God shall say "Well done, come ye blessed of my Father."

For Christmas or New Year's—or any holiday affair, you can make a memorable display of your punchbowl with simple Christmas decorations. Nest the base of the bowl in a wreath of holly, and add more sparkle with a sprinkle of glass Christmas tree globes. Crystal punch cups march around the base of the bowl, and a torte plate holds canapes or Christmas cookies.

"A 'conversation piece' is always a good party idea," says Miss Catherine Gray, Fosteria Glass consultant on table settings. "This decorated punch bowl is one of the easiest to make and one of the most delightful to see. You can use it for everything from children's fruit punch to New Year's eggnog."

A CHILD LEARNS HOW TO EAT

No child has to be trained to walk. He learns. In some measure this is true of feeding habits. He eats when he is hungry—if mother is on the job.

As the child grows and develops, his needs change. He eats more and different foods. He begins to act the way other folks in his environment act. He learns to use a spoon and fork, and to drink from a cup or glass. He will eventually learn to say "please" at the table if he hears other persons saying it pleasantly to each other.

Habits Habits of feeding will develop more happily if mother expects her young child to eat. If she gives him his first solid food, for instance, expecting him to eat, there will be much more chance that he will do so. He may spit out the first solid food just because it is different. Up to now, he has only taken his food by sucking. It takes time for him to learn to handle his tongue and swallow the food. If the new food is given to him when he is most hungry, he is more likely to eat it.

Feeding Problems Some feeding problems that mothers have asked about are the evident dislike of food—the child who refuses food even though he at one time seemed to like it. We get too distressed over our child's refusal to eat. Sometimes he finds it very satisfying to be the center of interest at meal times. He enjoys the fuss that is made over him, and one sure way to make it happen is to refuse to eat.

What to do? Reduce the amount of food and stop fussing. He won't starve. And remember that sometimes he is coming down with a cold or is sick, and if mother keeps on urging, she soon has a problem on her hands. Sometimes a child is too tired to eat. A rest of fifteen minutes before meal time helps in some cases.

MUFFIN-SIZE PIZZAS A POPULAR SNACK

This quick version of the popular Italian pizza calls for a halved English muffin as the base and a broiled topping of cheese, tomatoes and zesty seasonings. With tall glasses of beer, they're ideal afternoon or evening refreshments.

Guests will find these miniature pizzas an intriguing and welcome change from the usual cheese and cracker tray—and hostesses will find them easy to make. When company is expected, they can be prepared in advance and tucked into the refrigerator until time to broil.

Snack-Time Pizzas

- (Makes 6)
- 4 English muffins
 - Butter or olive oil
 - 2 fresh tomatoes, chopped
 - 1/4 green pepper, chopped
 - 1/2 medium onion, chopped

Cheddar cheese, cut in pieces
Anchovy fillets (optional)
Mushroom slices (optional)
Cayenne pepper

Tear muffins into halves with two forks. Brush lightly with butter or olive oil; toast until lightly browned. Mix together tomatoes, green pepper and onion; spread on muffins. Top with cheese and anchovies or mushroom slices. Sprinkle lightly with cayenne pepper. Place under broiler until cheese is melted. Serve piping hot with plenty of beer and paper napkins.

It's only a matter of a few weeks now before spring will be here and perennials and our favorite shrubs and trees will come to life. It doesn't happen too often, but how many of you have noticed that Easter Sunday falls the day after All Fool's day, or April Fool's day as we all call it? Yes, Easter falls on April 2 this year. And that is exactly eight weeks from today.

At Christmastime many of us entertain friends who come from afar or perhaps take a trip ourselves, but hardly anyone gets to take a trip out of the country during the holidays. That was not the case of Miss Marian Ash, a junior at Drake university, who hails from Liberia. She has an uncle, James D. Dennis, who is a librarian in Cairo, Egypt; he invited Miss Ash to spend the holidays in Egypt with him.

Leaving Des Moines Dec. 17 by car she joined her boyfriend and other friends at Ames, Ia., and they journeyed to New York City where she boarded a jet airliner bound for London, England. The journey took them to Frankfurt, Germany, where they had a five-hour layover at the Frankfurt airport. Miss Ash said she had the pleasure of visiting by telephone with a girl friend from her hometown in Liberia who is in Germany studying. From Frankfurt they journeyed to Athens, Greece where they stopped and then onto Cairo.

"When we arrived in Cairo it was so different than I had expected," she said. "The city of Cairo is very modern in every way with tall skyscrapers of buildings that remind me of home. It made me a little homesick."

While in Cairo Miss Ash was conducted on tours of the ancient, beautiful city. "The city is a flat plain, no mountains at all. The Nile runs right through the center of the city. But the landscape is so beautiful."

Miss Ash visited the Sphinx of Giza and the Pyramids where the tomb of ancient King Koofo lies. She climbed steep long stairways of stone inside the Pyramid and visited the rooms where mummies of ancient leaders lay.

"This was peculiar experience for me," she said, "because the mummies looked so frightful, human-like in their conditions. They were all enshrouded in white cloth, and enclosed in glass cases."

Miss Ash rode a camel, "but I was afraid I would fall. You are supposed to wear a long, wide skirt when riding camels, but I had on one of these straight skirts that we wear in the United States."

She noted that the temperature was springlike although it was the winter season in Egypt and many pedestrians wore coats and sweaters. She also noted that most of the people wore western style modern garb and clothing and saw very few native dress or costumes.

Miss Ash also visited the ancient city of Alexandria, an Egyptian seaport city which also is modern in layout. "Egypt is very self supporting in respect to food and clothing, growing and making their own," she said.

Miss Ash who is majoring in biology, brought her "adopted mother" while in the U.S., and close friend, Mrs. Jessie Mae Rogers of 1424 Maple street a beautiful handbag back as a memento of the trip. She also has a sister, Miss Louvenia Ash, who has been in the U.S. for nearly eight years. Marian expects to graduate in another year.

Several weeks ago political bigwigs and personalities from all over the country converged on Washington, D. C. for President Kennedy's inauguration. And among those attending from Des Moines were Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Jackson of 1405 Buchanan street. The Jacksons left Des Moines Jan. 18 by plane for Chicago where they boarded a jet airliner which made the trip to Washington in one hour and ten minutes, cruising at 620 miles an hour at 32,000 feet.

They just arrived in the Capitol city before the storm broke there which dumped seven and a half inches of snow which tied up traffic terribly for the influx of thousands who planned to attend inauguration ceremonies.

The Jacksons stayed at the Diplomat motel where many of the congressmen and political dignitaries eat. The Jacksons arrived on the Capitol grounds for the inauguration about 9:30 p.m. Mr. Jackson had bought a pair of galoshes for Mrs. Jackson, because she was not prepared for the unexpected heavy snow and slush. The temperature fell to 20 degrees and the wind was blowing at a 35 mile an hour clip, making it even chillier, so the Jacksons left and returned to the motel where they viewed the swearing in ceremonies and the inaugural parade on television.

They had two tickets for the inaugural ball and their motel was only five miles from the National Guard Armory but the deep snow and slush had tied up traffic so much in the city that radio messages were advising those who were at home to stay there. Mr. Jackson had rented a car soon after he arrived.

Anyway, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson boarded a jetliner Friday about 8:30 p.m. for the return trip home to Des Moines. The plane forgot the luggage and had to taxi back for it. When they got to Chicago the Jacksons ran into another storm. They had planned to visit a while there but decided to come on through. They arrived in Des Moines early Saturday morning, Jan. 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson are parents of two children, Roxanna, 10 who attends Webster elementary school and Robert A. Jr., who will three in April. Mrs. Jackson is a beautician

SENATOR GOLDWATER'S
VIEWS OUT OF STEP

Senator Goldwater of Arizona, one of the most able and provocative of the so-called conservatives in the Republican party, suggests that the white and Negro people of the South should be left free from outsiders to work out their own problems.

The Senator is a successful businessman and makes a very outstanding representative of his state. With this most people will agree. Because of the position he holds as chairman of the Republican campaign committee, it is disturbing to find a person with such views in these days.

Senator Goldwater forgets that the South is part of America and what affects it, affects the whole country. He should realize that the position these people take on the race question is at variance with the law of the land and thus, in their effort to keep their antiquated way of life, find themselves out of step with true democracy.

On the basis of Senator Goldwater's views, America should not participate in the settlement of foreign affairs outside of its border. It should not have fought in World Wars I, II and Korean, or participate in the efforts of foreign countries and organizations to maintain peace. And the United States has learned that its problems, like those of other countries, are world problems and that war between any of them may draw the whole world into armed conflict.

The Senator is a brilliant man and it is unfortunate that he poses these views—views that don't fit twentieth century relationships man to man.

APPOINTMENT
IN GOOD TASTE

In the selection of Carl Rowan, newspaper columnist and correspondent for the Minneapolis, Minn. Star, as an assistant Secretary of State, President Kennedy has again recognized the modern, well trained, forward looking Negro for posts in his administration.

Rowan is a young man from the South, educated in the North and thus knows the race question from the standpoint of those who have few rights and seek full citizenship and those living in comparative freedom but have vast problems to surmount.

He can bring to the administration a fuller knowledge of the aims and aspirations of the darker races not only in America but also in other parts of the world. He knows that there can be no world peace without the full participation by all peoples and all should be considered fully in any arrangement under which they must live.

RULES VICTORY HAS ITS DISADVANTAGES

When Rep. Joseph Cannon was speaker of the House of Representatives he incurred the ill will of the liberal element of both parties because of the dictatorial manner in which he presided over that body. Then, it was the speaker who pretty well decided what measures should be taken up and by the same process the ones to be sidetracked.

A great fight developed over speaker "Uncle Joe", as he was called, with the result that the rules committee was credited to which the authority of his dictatorship was transferred.

In recent years, the rules committee has become the dictator with the power to decide which measures should and should not come before the house for consideration. Thus, the so-called liberal measures, including civil rights, have been bottled up with little chance of getting them on the floor for consideration except by a discharge petition signed by several members. This method is about as hard as breaking a filibuster in the Senate.

Up to now, the committee consisted of 8 Democrats and 4 Republicans. Critics charged that the 2 conservative Democrats and 2 Republicans teamed up to refuse to report liberal measures to the floor. By a vote of 217 to 212, this combination was changed Tuesday by adding 2 Democrats and 1 Republican.

Unfortunately, the rules committee was helpful to many members who opposed measures and were able to kill them behind closed doors without recording their position in public. This will be changed—for a while at least.

Opponents of the change voted Tuesday claim that it is similar to the effort of President Franklin Roosevelt to pack the Supreme Court with justices favorable to his political philosophy. But as popular as the late Mr. Roosevelt was, congress, nor the people, was willing to tamper with the Supreme Court.

No doubt some of President Kennedy's program is desirable and some undesirable. Congress should have an opportunity to consider it in open debate. On the other hand, changing the rules to fit legislation has some angles that are questionable and may, in later years, work to the disadvantage of those who changed them under present conditions.

The closeness of the vote raises a question as to whether the change will accomplish what its proponents predict. Many who oppose the gag rule of the committee still will not support liberal legislation. But time will tell and we hope for the best for the country in spite of the gloom which some picture it to be.

Banks Signs Pact
For Reported 65Gs

Chicago, Ill.—Ernie Banks, the slugging star of the Chicago Cubs and the National League top fielding shortstop in 1960, has signed his '61 contract with the team for a reported $65,000, an increase over his salary last season.

The lanky, tan Texan who now resides in Chicago, was the 14th Cub player to come to terms. While the Cubs apparently failed to advance him substantially in salary, it is believed that Ernie will share in other fringe benefits which will hike his pay even more.

While his overall batting average dipped slightly last year, Ernie continued to blast home runs and was the best fielding shortstop in the league for the second straight season.

People, sometimes ask some rather silly questions, such as the guy who asked us why Negroes were literally taking over in basketball, football, baseball and track. He thought it must be due to something in our ancestry that made Negroes stronger, quicker or faster on foot.

We listened while he expounded his theories and then got a few of our own off our chest. Our argument was that most Negroes don't have too many things to play with except their hands and feet. Even in families where the wage earner makes a good salary, he needs it all to provide a comfortable living for his family, so the Negro boy who would stay in school usually is without a car or many of the so-called necessary luxuries.

retary of the Des Moines Commission So he walks to school developing his legs, plays with his hands, boxing, wrestling and other games that demand coordinate use of the hands and feet. As a result he becomes the guy you see in college and pro-basketball and football with a lightning reflexes.

These reflexes are not the result of anything but a long period of childhood conditioning that we argue is a result of economics; where the white boys are in the same category, they too develop the speed of hand and foot. At times there will be an athlete of either race who is just a natural or a fellow who forgoes the easy living in order to become a good athlete. These fellows also become stars.

Walking

But, when we can get the vast majority of our boys back on their feet to where a five mile walk isn't an ordeal we will have trouble meeting the athletic challenge of the Russians or anybody else who wants to come up the hard way.

There were other phases of the debate or discussion that pertained to music and such, but they weren't sports.

Basketball

Watched a couple at pro-basketball game over the weekend. No wonder Wilt Chamberlain has a hard time collecting points at times. The other guys literally gang up on him all the time and any points he gets he really earns.

Watched two of the nation's top teams in college ball. We would have to say that a game between Ohio State and Bradley would be decided by the location of the game. A neutral court would make the thing a toss-up. Can't see Iowa doing much with the Buckeyes; in fact, the

"Goose" Tatum: "Not Going to Lose Any Sleep"
On Federal Income Tax Evasion Indictment

Dallas, Texas—Reece (Goose) Tatum, the madcap magician of basketball, said a grand jury indictment isn't going to cause him to "lose any sleep" or cramp his style on the court.

"I said on the court . . . not in the courts," Goose said with a grin. Then he spread his arms to the full wing-span of eight feet, let them drop to his sides and got serious for a moment.

"Actually, I don't know much about it," he said. "I've got a lawyer handling it for me. I'll just do what he says."

2 Charges

A Federal Grand Jury in Kansas City, Mo., indicted Tatum on two charges of income tax evasion. One alleged his gross income for 1956 was $52,896, and the other alleged he earned $40,924 in 1957.

Tatum said he learned about the indictments when he got to Dallas with his Harlem Stars for a performance at The Southern Methodist Coliseum against the New York Rens.

The Goose, who long ago earned the title "Clown Prince of Basketball," entertained the crowd like he didn't have a care in the world.

Tatum said he would rather talk about basketball than taxes in Texas.

Court Play

"It's (the indictment) not going to keep them free throws from going through," he said. "And did you see the one I drop-kicked in from mid-court?"

Tatum, somewhere between 40 and 80 (he admits to 42 years), was accompanied by another ageless athlete, Leroy (Satchell) Paige, the pitching wizard and baseball legend who starred in a halftime performance.

"Seriously, Goose, how old are you? Are you older than Satch?" "Man, there ain't nobody older than Satch."

Arkansas Native

Tatum is a native of El Dorado, Ark. He joined the Harlem Globetrotters in 1940 and starred with them until 1955 when he broke away and formed his own company. At that time, he was known as the highest paid basketball player in the nation.

"You know, I never had any trouble wit' taxes before," Tatum confided. "But I don't know nothing about legal things. That's why I'm letting my lawyers handle it. I can't help myself there . . . but I'm still going to be able to drop-kick 'em in the bucket."

Floyd Patterson Gets 10 Gs Guarantee
Against Jim Crow In Title Bout

New York—Floyd Patterson who established a pugilistic precedent when he became the only man in boxing's history to regain the world heavy-weight boxing title, set a precedent as an advocate of race relations last week.

Patterson, insisted upon and got a $10,000 guarantee against racial segregation at his forthcoming rubber match with Ingemar Johansson at Miami, March 13.

Sole Judge

The youthful champ, the youngest man ever to hold the title, also established himself as sole judge of whether there is any segregation at the fight.

"If I find there is any segregation," he said, "I'll go ahead with the fight, but I'll collect the $10,000 and turn it over to the NAACP."

There is no record of any fighter ever having succeeded in introducing such a clause and guarantee in a fight contract and it may establish a precedent for other big fights held in cities where there is a possibility of racial segregation.

Race Conscious

Patterson is one of the most race conscious champions the world has known. Shortly after regaining his

Hawks may get theirs when they tangle with a fast improved Cincinnati club.

Looks like the end of the victory line for Drake and Iowa State. Oh well, it was great while it lasted.

Cincinnati Reds
Inks Marshall Bridges

Cincinnati, Ohio—Pitcher Marshall Bridges and five other players have signed their 1961 baseball contracts with the Cincinnati Reds, the club front office announced. The amounts of their salaries were not disclosed.

Besides Bridges, a tan player who saw action briefly in the National League last year, the other signers were pitchers Mary Fodor and Harvey Alex and second baseman Tommy Harper. Also, second baseman Bill Spalding and pitcher Roland Passaro, two farm hands from Washington and Slatington, Pa.

TRUE LOVE

They say if love is really true, it's something that comes but once to you.

Because if love is true it will always be. Forever growing within the heart of thee.

True love is like the richest wealth, the best of health, and that life has to offer with one exception; That after all has passed, true love will always last.

If you should lose that one chance at happiness, and fine somebody new. But are wondering what will become of you, even though deep in your heart you're wondering too: Will your heart still flutter for that someone?

Though you think you love another. And if you should see that certain someone who reminds you of the past.

Will it make your heart stop still and gasp.

So, now you ask yourself, is this really the end. Or maybe we two can still be friends. But pride and jealousy is very strong. And always shows up where it doesn't belong, to keep two lovers far apart. If it were not for it they would get a new start, so still the heart might ache, for little memories keep it awake.

YOU WILL KNOW

You will know, and will not falter.

When salvation shows the way.

This short span of earthly living.

Just prepares us for the day.

For the day will soon be coming.

That His children do not fear.

On that grand and glorious morning:

Hallelujah! He'll be here!!!

In the days of preparation.

On this sick old world below.

In our souls' anticipation.

You will know, and I will know.
