Patrice Lumumba Seen as Martyr in Congo Strife

His Death May Serve
As Unifying Pivot for Rising African Nations

Leopoldville, The Congo.—The slaying of Patrice Lumumba took on an air of martyrdom this week and United Nations forces alerted their troops throughout the Congo against the possibility of mass reprisals by his leftwing supporters.

The slaying, announced Monday in the Katanga province capital of Elisabethville, brought to a head a simmering crisis the United Nations has been sitting on since shortly after the Congo gained independence from Belgium eight and a half months ago.

Fearful Whispers

Europeans whispered fearfully of a new "night of the long knives"—a phrase that cropped up during the Hitler purges of the 1930's and at the start of the Algerian war six years ago.

Won't Let UN
See His Grave

Elisabethville, Katanga.—The Katanga government shrugged off world reaction to the death of Patrice Lumumba and served notice it would not allow an inquiry commission to see his grave.

Reports of world-wide indignation at the death of the former Congolese premier appeared to have little effect on officials here.

It appeared certain the government of Katanga President Moise Tshombe would not permit a full

Rights Move in Palmetto State

Tallahassee, Fla.—The winds of change are blowing through Florida. Though geographically one of the deepest of the deep South states, Florida has taken a few halting steps toward integration in recent weeks.

Jacksonville, which last summer witnessed serious racial disorders in connection with sit-in demonstrations, is desegregating all city-owned or leased recreation facilities as a result of a Federal court order. Affected is the city baseball park, zoo, swimming pools, tennis courts and coliseum. Jacksonville officials decided not to appeal the decision.

Bi-Racial Commission

In St. Petersburg, meetings of a bi-racial commission resulted in lunch counters in 15 department, variety and drug stores being opened to Negro patrons. The municipally owned beach and swimming pool were also recently integrated. They had been closed twice in 1959 when Negroes attempted to use them.

U. of Miami

Confusion over civil rights in the minds of white Floridians was borne out by a state-wide opinion poll. Though 88.3% agreed that Negroes are entitled to "all the legal rights and privileges that the law gives to all citizens," 66.8% opposed Negroes being served in "white" restaurants and less than 40% agreed that Negroes and whites should attend the same public schools.

However, the University of Miami student newspaper urged that the school admit Negro students. A Miami newspaper seeking student reaction to the editorial found that 31 of 40 students questioned favored integration.

Rejected by Natives, Korea Negro Orphan Boys Look To Adoption by Americans

By Frances E. Hawthorne

For those who have seen or experienced it first hand, they know that the aftermath of war is far more demoralizing, more soul destroying and physically cancerous than the actual battle grounds can ever be. They know of the physical and emotional suffering of those who wander alone without loved ones, without food, shelter. They know of the famine and the jobless, the mute efforts to regain and restore a way of life almost totally destroyed.

Worse of All

But worse of all there are the children and the small babies born of native mothers and conquering soldiers who came to bring the peace, but sometimes knowingly, and sometimes unwittingly leaving behind a worse turmoil, and ageless war to be waged by desperate mothers. Such it was in Europe and even more recent, in Korea, the land of the 38th parallel.

American

In 1955 an American named Harry Holt, then living in South Dakota, heard of the plight of the Korean orphans of war. He and his wife, who is a native of Des Moines, decided to adopt some of the children. They adopted eight, one for each of the members of the family to hold.

Pitiful Plight

However, having been over and seen first hand the pitiful plight of the orphans, Mr. Holt decided to do something about them. Out of his thinking and plans came the Holt Adoption program with headquarters in Creswell, Ore. With the help of his wife, his daughter, who recently returned to the United States to further her studies in nursing, and other members of his families and a staff of 100 employees they have seen that more than 2,200 babies and children have been adopted by American families in the U.S.

Baby Boys

The Korean-Negro American female girls and babies have been adopted by couples in the United States but most of the boys of Korean-Negro American parentages have been left behind. Yet, if they are not adopted by American couples their future is certain death, for the Korean people have said they have never had a race problem and never intend to have one. They have vowed that no boy of mixed races (Korean-Negro or Korean-White American) will be allowed to reproduce in their country.

Sending Letters

Mrs. Joe Stronczek of 1230 15th street who is sending out letters to major Negro publications in an effort to bring the problem of the Korean orphans of mixed races to prospective American Christian adoptive parents, told of an incident related to her by her niece (Mrs. Stronczek and Mrs. Holt are sisters).

Recalls Experience

"My niece Molly, who has just returned to this country from the orphanage in Korea, told of this experience. She was on a bus in Pusan and a little Negro boy got on. He didn't have enough money to pay his fare and native people got up from their seats and pulled his hair and pinched him, and was about to throw him off, when Molly intervened and took him 300 miles later to her father's orphanage, where like 450 others he was clothed, well fed and given a bed of his own to sleep in. Some old man had taken care of him before.

Refused to Accept

"The general public has refused these American Korean babies. The white babies are treated as badly as the Negro and many of them have been killed by people in the street. The Holt orphanage has been like

Open Occupancy Housing Best Insurance Against New Ghettos in Big Cities

By Dr. Robert C. Weaver
Vice Chairman, New York City
Housing and Redevelopment Board

Enforced residential segregation is a relatively recent phenomenon in American cities. Its true beginnings coincide with the rise of suburbia, where one of the principal sales appeals has long been exclusiveness. Recently, more and more emphasis has been placed upon single-class, all-white neighborhoods in new developments. Soon it was institutionalized into racial ghettos.

Urban Renewal

Plans for urban renewal are also threatened by the growth of ghetto patterns. One of the principal objectives of the present program for revitalizing the city is to arrest the rapid movement of middle- and upper-income families from the heart of urban communities. It is a slum clearance effort. Yet it has, to date, accelerated the exodus of middle-class families to the suburbs. Such ironic perversion of urban renewal is closely associated with enforced residential segregation.

Downtown Slums

In an effort to eradicate the worst of the downtown slums, areas selected for clearance and redevelopment have frequently housed a large proportion of minority families. These families have access to only a part of the total housing market. Principally they have found alternative shelter in already overcrowded areas of non-white concentration. Their arrival has worsened an already bad situation. Doubling up, inadequate conversions and rapid deterioration follow. Prior to urban renewal, this development had been a major factor in the spread of blight and slums. Since this program got under way, the process has been greatly accelerated.

New Slums

In the wake of new slums and blight created by relocation connected with urban renewal, more pressure has been placed upon middle-income white families to leave the city. For over a decade social scientists analyzing non-white popu-

Freedom, Not Disorder, Is U.S. Negro Hope for Congo

New York—It is natural that American Negroes should protest the Congo developments which led to the murder of Patrice Lumumba, Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary, declared this week.

But the demonstrations at the United Nations on Feb. 15 do not "represent either the sentiment or the tactics of American Negroes," Mr. Wilkins said.

The press "labeling of the disturbance as activity of 'U.S. Negroes' has created a misleading picture of the position of American Negro citizens," he declared.

Appreciation

The truth, he asserted, is that too many of our citizens and public officials have failed to appreciate the deep and warm feeling American Negroes have toward the efforts of Africans to achieve freedom from colonialism.

"This emotion," Wilkins declared, "is heightened as they note the discriminations and inequalities they themselves continue to suffer 98 years after the Emancipation Proclamation."

The result is that American Negroes tend to identify themselves with the Africans, who are struggling against the withholding of freedom and human dignity by white people, who "except for language, could be Mississippians or Alabamians or South Carolinians," he said.

Lumumba

scale international investigation into the circumstances of Lumumba's death.

Belgian officials were particularly worried about eight Belgian businessmen being held in Stanleyville, capital of oriental province where former Lumumba aide Antoine Gizenga and other leftwingers have set up a revolutionary movement against the central Congo government.

Rampage

Immediately after independence, Africans went on a rampage, attacking white men and raping women. Thousands of Europeans fled.

Opponents of the goateed, bespectacled Lumumba blamed his inflammatory speeches both before and after independence for stirring up the trouble.

Now his supporters were expected to use his death as a new rallying cry to try to oust the pro-Western Central government of President Joseph Kasavubu.

Congo Broke

The Congo is broke, hungry and disorganized. Only the presence of the U.N. force has kept it from disintegrating and Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld has warned he may have to pull the troops out if a civil war erupts.

This would create a vacuum that would suck in military aid from East and West and possibly turn the Congo from a cold war center to an East-West hot war.

The Katanga provincial government of President Moise Tshombe, which announced Monday that Lumumba and two aides had been "massacred" by villagers following their jailbreak, continued to push its offensive against Baluba tribesmen in the North.

Seize Towns

A government spokesman said Katangese security forces had seized the town of Gukama, North of Lubana, and were driving in the direction of Kabondodiana, another town on the Elisabethville-Kamina railway line.

The spokesman said 300 Balubas had surrendered and the others were fleeing.

Katanga Interior Minister Godefroid Munongo refused to disclose where Lumumba and his companions had been slain but it was disclosed later that their bodies were found near the copper-mine town of Kolwezi, 155 miles northwest of Elisabethville.

Shock and Horror

Rajeshwar Dayal of India, Hammarskjöld's chief representative in the Congo, expressed "shock and horror" at the news of Lumumba's death.

He said it was bound to have a serious effect both within and outside the Congo.

In Elisabethville, a U.N. official said it now was more necessary than ever to investigate the circumstances surrounding Lumumba's escape and death but the Katanga government turned him down.

"I forbid the United Nations the right to take a position in this matter," said Munongo.

Many Aspects

Therefore, while American Negroes may be no more clear on many aspects of the Congo situation than their white fellow citizens, they are clear in their belief that "their country should help the Congolese people to self-sustaining independence and that Belgian colonizers should not be replaced with Soviet Union colonizers."

Further, they do not wish, Wilkins said, "for this country to do anything to facilitate control of the Congo by any European nation, or by any African nation or faction acting in behalf of a European power."

Korean Babies

an oasis in the desert offering the best of physical care to homeless children regardless of race or color of skin.

Requirement

Chief requirement for adoption of one of these tots is that the adopting couple be Christians and that it is wanted by both parents. After writing for the adoption of a Korean child, a home study conducted by the government will be done which takes from four months to a year. A charge of $450 must be paid for orphanage care, hospital fees, immigration fee, shots, and passage over by plane. The adoption couple must then go to the West coast to pick up his adoptive child. Because adoption is by proxy, the adopting family must also give Mr. Holt power of attorney to make necessary arrangements in Korea.

80 Orphanages

The Holt orphanage which is one of 80 such orphanages in the Pusan area, was first financed through the personal funds of Mr. Holt. Since they have been depleted the orphanage has continued through the aid and contributions of interested American Christians and from royalties from a book, "Seed from the East," written by Mrs. Holt.

How to Contact

Those who are interested in adopting one of the children or babies may contact the Holt Adoption Program in Creswell, Ore., for further information.

BICYCLE SAFETY

"A potential bicycle rider is born every eight seconds." This statement preceded the following rules for bicycle safety which were distributed by the Iowa Congress of Parents and Teachers at their annual convention in Davenport October 20-21, 1960.

The introductory paragraph continues: "Bicycle riders are using the same public thoroughfares used by cars, which weigh 3000 pounds as compared to a bicycle which weighs only 40 pounds, so cyclists should always realize that automobiles are bigger, faster and heavier than bicycles. Therefore, cyclists must obey the same traffic rules that apply to motorists."

Solution: Many bicycle accidents and injuries could be avoided if the following 10 simple safety rules were taught and obeyed by every cyclist.

1. Always use hand signals
2. Obey all traffic laws, signs and signals. A stop sign means a FULL stop.
3. Always have a light on front and reflectors on the rear fenders if you must ride at night.
4. Ride in a straight line. Don't stunt, race or weave in and out of traffic.
5. Ride single file, close to right-hand curb. Ride with, not against, traffic.
6. Never ride double on your bike.
7. Walk bicycles across busy intersections and railroad crossings. (Cross busy intersections by walking with bicycle in pedestrian lanes).
8. Carry packages in carriers—not in your arms.
9. Never hitch rides on cars or trucks.
10. Be a courteous cyclist. Respect the rights of pedestrians, drivers and other cyclists.

OPEN OCCUPANCY

lation movements have warned planners and housing officials that racial ghettos usually impede effective city planning and threaten urban redevelopment. There is an impressive body of research which indicates that free access to housing on the part of minorities is the only way out for most industrial centers.

Best Insurance

This free access of minorities to housing, or open occupancy, is the best possible insurance against further ghettoization of our cities. The first effect of open occupancy would be to syphon off a segment of the middle-income non-whites now in segregated areas. This would reduce densities, diminish the pressure of demand for a limited supply of housing and thereby relieve, to some degree, the inflationary pressure in the non-white housing market. More important, open occupancy would facilitate movement of middle-income non-white families to the suburbs. Not only would this give minorities more equal housing opportunities, but it would do much to take the prestige out of racial exclusiveness.

Free Movement

Removal of impediments to the free movement of non-whites, while an indispensable element, is not enough in itself. A large part of the problem of shelter is purely economic. There is a sizable segment of both white and Negro families with insufficient income to afford decent housing. Those who have the ability but not the opportunity to earn adequate incomes must, through removal of age, sex and color job discriminations, be freed from their disadvantages. Fair employment and fair housing practices will reduce the need for social and financial assist-

WILEY COLLEGE COED CROWNED "MISS NATL. UNCF" AT ALUMNI CONFERENCE

Daytona Beach, Florida — The crowning of Wiley College co-ed Winnie Vance as "Miss National UNCF" highlighted the 15th annual conference of the National Alumni Council, held Feb. 11 and 12 at Bethune-Cookman College, Daytona Beach, Florida. Miss Vance, a junior was selected as the representative of the student body having the highest per capita giving ratio to the 1960 UNCF campaign.

Delegates

The 200 delegates heard banquet speaker Dr. R. O'Hara Lanier, projects director for the Phelps-Stokes Fund, in New York challenge the Fund Colleges and their students to strive for increased excellence in their academic preparation; and he reminded the alumni of their responsibility to help the colleges in the achievement of this goal by increased support of the annual UNCF campaigns. Awards were made at the banquet to the Chicago Inter-Alumni Council for showing the largest percentage increase of alumni support of any Council in the country; and Tuskegee Institute was honored for having the largest student delegation at the conference.

Address

James E. Stamps, Fisk University alumnus, founder and president emeritus of the National Alumni Council, delivered the principle address at the final conference meeting on Sunday, attended by the delegates and the entire Bethune-Cookman student body.

Third Year

It marked the third consecutive year that Wiley College has produced the national queen. The crowning took place in the Moore Gymnasium, built with money raised by the United Negro College Fund. Alumni volunteer workers from all parts of the country, UNCF students, and alumni executive secretaries attended the two day series of workshops and discussion meetings. New ideas and concepts in the techniques of educational fund raising were presented for review and evaluation, in preparation for the 1961 Fund appeal.

IOWA POWER HAS RECORD 1960; REVENUES—$51 MILLION, EARNINGS UP

Record revenues, earnings and taxes were reported to shareholders of Iowa Power and Light Company, Des Moines-based electric and natural gas utility serving the state capital city and central and southwest areas of Iowa.

$50 Million

Revenues topped $50 million for the first time as this largest of the Iowa utilities continued to show business expansion in keeping with industrial and population growth of its service area. Climbing revenues have marked the company's reports for many years. Revenues were $51,140,000, up 9.8 percent over 1959. Net income advanced 10.1 percent over 1959 at $5,553,000 with per-share earnings on common stock up to $2.20 from $2.06 the previous year.

Annual Report

The annual report issued over the signatures of N. Bernard Gussett, chairman, and A. Paul Thompson, president, showed taxes paid out by the company at a record $9,631,000 or 19 cents for taxes on each revenue dollar.

The report noted continued gains in Iowa's industrial growth and improvement in the company's position with an overwhelming vote won during the year in a special municipal election in Des Moines granting the company new 25-year franchises for both electric and gas service.

NEWS AROUND IOWA

Muscatine, Iowa

The youth of Bethel A. M. E. Church, under the direction of Mrs. Nina Roberson, the Superintendent of Sunday School, was in charge of the morning service. Miss Betty Lloyd conducted the entire worship period with the exception of delivering the sermon, Miss Bonnie Davis brought the message entitled "The Meaning of Lent."

In the afternoon the youth presented a fellowship meeting. Invited guests were youth from Spangler Chapel, Muscatine Methodist Church, and Friends Church. Following the program there was a get acquainted period over a cup of tea and crumpets.

The opening devotions for the afternoon program was led by Carl Greaves, of Spangler Chapel. Miss Zulmira Maria Oliveira de Freitas, an exchange student from Brazil gave a very enlightening report on "Life in Brazil," after which she answered questions asked her by the members of the congregation.

A question asked her by one of the members of the visiting churches was, how does Brazil compare with America economically and socially? her answer was this, "America is far ahead of my country and many other countries economically and in many other ways also, but as far as brotherly love and equality it is at the bottom of the list, with my country and most others."

She went on to say, "when Brazil received their independence from Portugal, every one received their freedom, slaves and all." Miss Freitas represented the Muscatine Methodist Church. Mrs. Inez Paetz gave a beautiful reading titled "A Strong Hold In God." It was given with a soft background of piano music.

Mrs. Paetz is a member of Spangler Chapel. Mrs. Relva Stellrich brought to the youth a portion of history on the early life of Roland Hayes. She stringently told the story of hardship and loneliness he encountered in life and how through his beautiful tones in his voice he reflected his past. Miss Lynne James and Miss Nancy Peterson gave the closing devotions. They are members of the Friends Church. Miss Bonnie Davis and Miss Betty Lloyd, members of Bethel A.M.E. Church were the mistresses of ceremonies.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Iowa cities in the 5,000 to 10,000 population group are showing one of the sharpest increases in traffic deaths on record, the state safety department warned today.

Traffic deaths in these cities last year were up 100 per cent over an average of the three previous years, according to William Burnett, safety education director.

Average

Burnett said a study just completed by the safety department shows 16 traffic deaths in the 5,000 to 10,000 cities compared to an average of 8 a year in the three previous years.

The record isn't much better in cities of 10,000 to 25,000 population he said. There the traffic death toll last year was up 87 per cent over the previous three-year average.

"There's no reason to think this trend won't continue unless cities take steps to organize stronger enforcement and safety education efforts," Burnett said.

Decline

He pointed out that cities in the 50,000 to 100,000 population group last year showed a 34 per cent decline in traffic deaths compared to the three year average.

Cities of 2,500 to 5,000 population had a 22 per cent decline in traffic fatalities, according to the study.

Last weekend's severe ice storm which turned Des Moines into a city of sparkling diamonds of ice was a wonder to behold but for some residents its beauty was chipped by the aftermath of the storm, broken power lines which left homes without heat and light and in some cases, also telephone communication to the outside world. Homeowners sat and shivered before kitchen gas stove ovens and out of habit wandered through chilled rooms automatically flipping on light switches which failed to respond for lack of power. Others moved in with friends or more fortunate neighbors. In addition others sat tense listening to falling limbs from trees in their own yard or those of neighbors.

At the height of the storm last Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wimberly of 2720 Amick ave., and a neighbor, Mrs. G. B. Tucker of 2708 Amick ave., were returning from the annual Roosevelt club game dinner at the Airport Shelter house, about 10 p.m. They were just opposite St. John Catholic church at 21st and University ave., when the huge bolt of lightning crashed around them with a deafening roar.

"I have never seen anything like it before. The lightning flash seemed to envelop our car and the car rocked and vibrated something terrible," Mrs. Wimberly related.

"We knew it had struck something, but did not know until the next morning that it had struck the church just opposite us at the time.

All of the neighbors of the Wimberlys, including the T. S. Martins, Jr., John M. Estes, Sr., G. B. Tuckers, Everett Newcombs, Morton Graves, Sr., and others, were without heat or electricity most of the weekend. Some who had kitchen gas stoves used the ovens in an attempt to ward off the creeping chill. Some, like the Wimberlys who have an electric stove, did not even have that much heat.

And of course they, like homeowners on 11th street from Enos Ave., to Day street lighted their homes by candlelight, such as Mrs. Leola Hubbard, the Stanley Proctors, the J. W. Mitchells, Mrs. D. Ward, and others along the street, which was still without power Monday afternoon.

The Henry Wilcoits of 1104 17th street counted themselves fortunate since they were without power for one day only and part of that was during the night when they were sleeping. Power was restored to them on Sunday.

And at 1060 9th street, the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, she had been without lights up to Monday afternoon, also, but she had a gas furnace, not electrically operated and so was not affected by loss of heat.

12th street was not affected too much, only without street lights for awhile. Mrs. Donna Williams, 1119 18th street was without electricity or heat and the rest of the east side of 18th Street was thus affected, but the west side of the street continued to enjoy the miracles of man made inventions which modern people have long taken for granted until such a crisis as last weekend occurs.

And of course the ice storm was blamed in part in preventing mid-year high school students from bringing in pictures and writeups to the Bystander news stand as they had planned Saturday morning. Because of that and several other reasons, the staff decided to postpone the publication of the annual graduate page from this week to Thursday, Mar. 2. So if you are a graduate reading this, or if you have a son or daughter who had planned to get theirs in to us, will you have them in by the new deadline, Saturday, Feb. 25? We would appreciate it very much if you do not wait until the last minute. Those who do not have theirs in, will also be contacted by phone, again.

Getting their first introduction to the Des Moines Community Playhouse are Kay and Bill Downey of 1358 E. 15th street who are serving on the property committee. The function of the property committee, of course, is to get the various furniture, flowers, cigarettes, guns, and any other items used by the actors for a particular play and have it ready during various acts when needed.

Back on her feet after several weeks of illness which at times put her in bed, is Mrs. Edythe Spates of 1244 13th street.

Words can never express how we feel when in a time of deep need, my husband stepped in, and with words of "not to worry about a thing," took over this column and much of the news in last week's issue of the Bystander. Several readers were kindly thoughtful and called to express how much they enjoyed his writing and how nice it must be to have a husband and wife working together that way.

With all the holidays and special days that February brings, perhaps more than any other month, there is also the celebration of Brotherhood week, Monday was the annual celebration here with the wives of the governor, mayor, city councilmen, legislators and other prominent civic women as honored guests. Among those serving as personal hostesses to these honored guests were Mrs. A. P. Trotter for Mrs. Walter O'Malley (wife of the state senator) and yours truly for Mrs. Reinhold Carlson (wife of the mayor).

In keeping with Brotherhood month, when there is considerable exchange of speakers in white and Negro churches, I spoke to a group of high school youngsters at Glen Echo Christian Church February 12. Students of this age are pretty outspoken and following my talk of twenty minutes on the problems of Negroes in Des Moines, the question period went on for almost an hour. Here, no punches were pulled.

The first question "my father said a Negro was kept on his job in spite of the fact that he was not qualified for fear management would be accused of racial discrimination. Do you agree with that?"

"Absolutely not," I replied "for a firm which discriminates in favor of Negroes may turn and do just the opposite, I don't endorse inefficiency in favor of Negroes or anybody else."

Next, "I was bumped in the hallway by a Negro girl who accused me of not speaking to her in a downtown store. Is this fair?"

"No, it is easy to miss recognizing people in crowds such as are down town at times. Further, nobody is under such obligation to speak to another which was true in this case. I thoroughly disapprove of this. This girl spoke of 'several fine Negro students at North High' and thus I don't believe she carried a chip on her shoulders."

"Why do Negro students gang up to themselves in clusters in hallways, make a lot of noise and, at times, make it difficult to pass. White ones do foolish things too but I want your idea on this."

"I think such conduct is bad both for the youngsters who do it and the schools. In fact, the teachers should not tolerate bunched up in this way as all too often it is some extrovert who wants to show off and leads other youngsters in scallied innocent pranks which often lead to more serious things."

They also questioned why Negro students bunch up in assemblies and other school gatherings, when they should mingle generally with the crowd.

"The school gives proms for the students but seldom any Negro students come. These are school functions where everybody is welcome. Why?"

"This," I said "is a mistake. If Negro students were barred, their parents would protest. I believe Negro students should participate fully in everything the schools have to offer. Both white and Negro students must become accustomed to working with and appreciating each other for, in most cases after graduation, they will be working together. So if they have come to live with and appreciate each other in school, it will be easier to carry on in adult years."

I shall not mention the names but one girl spoke of a Negro boy in her class who was a star athlete. She said "everybody appreciated him. He was a good student and did not allow his popularity as an athlete to warp his disposition to get along."

"This, of course, is encouraging," I said "and goes to show that the one who conducts himself with decorum and does his best to do his school work gets along pretty well anywhere". She said "this I believe fully."

Recognizing that racial problems exist everywhere, I asked if there was any racial tensions in the schools. "At times, yes" one said. Then I asked if any lectures, discussions or other gatherings are held in the schools which emphasized good human relations between all groups and races. The reply was "no".

"Of course," I said, "it is not proper to raise the race issue unnecessarily but we must not bury our heads in the sand—and this includes the teachers and school administrators—and expect these things to 'just luck out good'. After all, students come from all kinds of homes: some which attempt to bring their youngsters up as good citizens and some which don't care and/or lose control over them."

This was an enjoyable evening because their adult leader wanted them to participate in a full discussion on where we stand on the race question in Des Moines, the criticism of those students whose conduct is bad and praise of those whose conduct is good and a willingness to do something tangible to improve race relations.

I told of the improvement in housing in Des Moines and the willingness of some whites in most neighborhoods to sell to Negroes who can pay for the property. They were surprised at the exclusion and failure to upgrade Negroes in employment and thought this was wrong.

As one boy said "every fellow should have a chance."

I left the meeting with two thoughts in mind: first, the school administration should give more attention to creating better race relations between the students rather than wait for some trouble to occur, and second, churches and Sunday schools should spend 75 per cent of their time teaching youngsters how to live and 25 per cent on how to die, remembering the late Booker T. Washington's admonition to Negroes: quit spending so much time preparing to die. If you live right, you will die right.

Is there anybody in the state who doesn't know about that Ohio State-Iowa U. basketball game Saturday night? Yours truly is mad, not angry, because we passed up a chance to go to see the thing. We had tried to make connections during the first semester and failed. Then when all the guys got kicked out we had a chance to grab a couple of seats. Thinking there wouldn't be much to it, we passed it up. And later when the Hawkeyes looked tough again we couldn't even steal a ticket.

Pool Hall Coaches

The pool hall coaches had a ball Monday morning. All Iowa had to do was so and so, and the game was in the bag. The loss was the coaches' fault. The fact that Ohio State got 62 points might have helped a little. But, all the coaches agreed that Iowa should have won the game until some not so bright fellow remarked that if Iowa had made 63 points instead of 61 they would have won. But, it was a great game, and we doubt if the other four guys in the lineup could have made a better try.

Drake

Meanwhile, back in the Capital city, Drake was getting even with Wichita for that early season pasting. Now, the only team Drake hasn't caught up with is Cincinnati. They are the only team to hold two wins over the Bulldogs.

Iowa State hustled past Oklahoma and now is in the thick of things for a third place berth in the Big Eight. Which team is the best of the three? It probably depends on what night you pick them.

Floyd Patterson
Ignores Routine

By Floyd Patterson

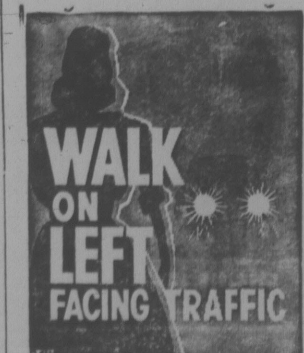

Spring Valley, N. Y.—Here we go again—and I'm ready to go into the final training for my fight with Ingemar Johansson March 13 at Miami Beach with a mental and physical fitness I never had before.

The reason is that I've learned to do what comes naturally in my conditioning. In other words, I ignore routine for routine's sake. I work when I want to, I rest when I want to. And, when it comes to the show-down in the ring, I have everything I need.

My proof came in my return with Johansson, the fight for which I was stronger, faster and harder-hitting than in our first fight, or in any fight I ever had.

The next few weeks I'll be living a fighter's life. That will be an adventure, because one day I might box at 8 in the morning, another at 8 in the evening. I might train hard five days in a row, I might take off a similar time.

But bet on one thing, I'll be doing what comes naturally.

Baylor Scores
2,000th Point

Elgin Baylor scored his 2,000th point of the season Thursday night in National Basketball association play, the second straight time he has done it.

The only other NBA player ever to rack up a 2,000-point total for a season is Philadelphia's Wilt Chamberlain.

Baylor hit the 2,000 mark after scoring nine points for the Los Angeles Lakers in their game with the St. Louis Hawks, and he then went on to capture the game's high scorer honor by collecting a total of 45.

NBA Games

But it was to no avail as far as the Lakers were concerned. They lost the game at the Los Angeles Sports Arena to the Hawks, 123-113.

In other NBA games Thursday night, the Cincinnati Royals downed New York, 119-115, and the Syracuse Nationals beat the Philadelphia Warriors, 136-126, in a double-header at Philadelphia.

Excellent

The Nationals put on a display of excellent team work in capturing their victory with Larry Costello high with 24 points and five other Nats also hitting the double figures. Syracuse led, 71-60, at half-time and the Warriors never really got into competition after that.

BAYLOR

CHAMBERLAIN

In the first game of the double-header, Cincinnati staged a rally in the late stages of the game that allowed them to keep the lead after being tied with New York 12 times. Hub Reed sparked the Royals' winning drive when he got off the bench at the close of the third quarter and hit for eight straight points that put Cincinnati out in front for good.

Mays Inks Giants'
Pact For $85,000

San Francisco—The fabulous "Say Hey" Kid, Willie Mays last week signed his contract with the San Francisco Giants for a reported $85,000 and retained the honor as baseball's highest paid player.

According to reports, Mays' 1961 past with the West Coast nine calls for him to receive the same salary that he received in 1960.

Mays stated from his Rochelle (N. Y.) home Thursday that he signed the contract and returned to it owner Horace Stoneham.

Mays asserted that he was happy over the contract and that he and Stoneham had no squabble concerning terms.

WHEN I CLOSE MY EYES

When I close my eyes and breathe a prayer
With open arms, you are standing there:
Upon that sacred, precious ground
That our love shall ever, hover 'round.
Here our darlings lie at rest
Until the Saints and all the blest:
Shall come unto that loving heart
And nevermore shall we be apart;
From these dear ones whom we adore

But hold them close forevermore.
We thank Thee Lord, our Saviour King
For all the gladness, Thou dost bring.
My soul takes wing, above these skies:
To see Thee... When I close my eyes.

PEOPLE MAKE

...the editor

Iowa can be proud of its newspapers, and the men who edit them. Wherever you go, the local editor is in the front rank of everything good for the community. He is more than a leader, too; he is a friend on whom the whole town relies.

The brewing industry is proud that more than three-fourths of Iowa's 410 fine newspapers are carrying the series of advertisements telling what this beverage of moderation means to the state... in larger Iowa payrolls—over $30,000,000.00 per year; in huge purchases of farm products—totaling $250,000,000.00 nationally; in business investments of $62,000,000.00 throughout the state; and in many other ways, too. It is the factual story of how...
