

Student of the Week

As our second student of the week series we present to you a young man who was born and reared outside the United States but has always dreamed of coming to this country to attend school here. He is Moses Muchari Thomas, 16-year-old student from Kenya, Africa.

For the past month he has been attending classes at Roosevelt high school. He came here four weeks behind but has been able to catch up with the rest of the class.

Name Given

Young Thomas' dreams came true from his sponsor, Mrs. Pauline Humphrey, owner-manager of Crescent Beauty school and pioneer in the field of cosmetology in Iowa and the Midwest. Mrs. Humphrey's name was given by a friend in California, a Mrs. Chiano, who had already sponsored a student from Africa. Mrs. Chiano thought Mrs. Humphrey might be interested in doing the same so she sent her name to the authorities.

About a year ago, Moses began writing letters to Mrs. Humphrey, who described the letters as "very interesting ones." She has also kept them all.

Finally Accepted

The Des Moines school board was contacted. Roosevelt high was selected as the prospective school for him. The principal there had assured them that they would take him any time. As time went by Moses wrote the Des Moines school board himself advising them of how anxious he was to come here and begin his studies. The school board's response was positive and Moses was on his way with a group of 120 young hopeful Africans who would spend their school time likewise in various schools around the country.

When Moses arrived in New York,

Arrival

the group was practically without a penny to their name as far as U.S. currency goes. They had their native money of exchange, but it was not accepted here. Officials called his sponsor, Mrs. Humphrey, and she vouched financially for the remainder of his trip to Des Moines.

He arrived here about five weeks ago and on the basis of his transcript he was placed in the 10th grade at Roosevelt. His home room teacher is Lacey Spriggs, biology instructor there.

MOSES M. THOMAS

Moses speaks good English says Mrs. Humphrey. "He is bright; he wants to go to college and seems studious, bringing his school work first. He has adjusted himself well."

Studies

"A good example is when I asked him to appear before the (Cosmetist) club here and relate his experiences, he replied that he would be glad to if he is through with his home work by then," she recalled.

As his sponsor, Mrs. Humphrey is responsible for his entire care, food, clothing, books, medical care, shelter, etc. His tuition is already paid.

Own Family

"At the moment I can't seem to tear him away from my daughter and son-in-law," she said. He is staying in their home now. They are Dr. and Mrs. L. A. James of 678 26th street.

Moses leaves behind his mother and father, a married sister and two brothers, one of whom, like him, wants to come to the United States and study, too.

Hearing in Cobb Case Scheduled for Today

Atlanta—Club women of this city have protested the transfer of 15-year-old Preston Cobb to Reidsville prison where hardened criminals are confined. Young Cobb, convicted of slaying a 70-year-old white farmer and sentenced to death, was sent to Reidsville after a preliminary hearing in Milledgeville, Ga., on a motion for a new trial, Oct. 6. A further hearing has been set for Oct. 26.

Because of his youth, the death sentence imposed upon him aroused worldwide reaction and prompted Governor S. Ernest Vandiver to recommend revision of the Georgia law which now permits execution of convicted children as young as 14 years of age.

Heads Mitigwa Camp Expansion

Norris F. "Ring" Crosby, Executive Vice-President of Wright-Lithographing and Printing of Des Moines, has been named to head up the Camp Development Committee for the expansion of the Mitigwa Scout Reservation, by Leonard C. Neufeld, President of the Tall Corn Area Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Plans to enlarge facilities at the 460 acre camping area on the Des Moines River near Woodward, Iowa, have been under study by the Boy Scout Council for several years, according to Mr. Neufeld. Overcrowded conditions and some very old facilities at the Camp make it necessary to complete the expansion and remodeling plans in the immediate future.

Slum Improvement

The controversial views of the former president of Harvard University are set forth in his new book, Slums and Suburbs, published this week by McGraw-Hill. Dr. Conant maintains in his study that "it would be far better for those who are agitating for the deliberate mixing of children to accept de facto segregated schools as a consequence

Conant's School Views Challenged by NAACP

New York—Dr. James B. Conant's assertion that "the real issue" in public education "is not racial integration but socio-economic integration" has been challenged by Robert L. Carter, general counsel of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

HEALTH FOR ALL

What Happened to the First Square?

A glass of juice, a cup of coffee and a dash for the door—that's become the average American breakfast. Yet three square meals a day have long been our symbol of success. And, heaven knows, everyone from Teenager to Pop needs to start the day with a substantial meal if he is to get through to his mid-morning snack, let alone lunch.

Need More

Sure, the juice is needed for its Vitamin C. The coffee helps pep you up and makes the day look a little brighter. But you also need more—perhaps enriched or whole grain cereal with milk, and at least one egg.

If you've been a juice-and-coffee breakfaster all your life, this menu is going to seem impossible. Just the time it takes to get it down! Well, get up a bit earlier. You can do it.

Forcing Down

For the first few days you may have to force the stuff down. But after a bit it will even get to taste like food. Before you know it, you'll be enjoying it, and you'll wonder how you ever did without it.

Weight watchers needn't get alarmed either. Substitute skim milk for whole milk on the cereal. Make that egg boiled or poached rather than scrambled or fried. You'll find you may even be able to skip that second breakfast at the office and you will no longer be so ravenous that you overeat at lunch. Your Christmas Seal Organization, Polk County Tuberculosis & Health Assn.

of the present housing situation and to work for the improvement of slum schools, whether Negro or white.

Modern Urban Center

Commenting on the educator's views, Carter contends that socio-economic integration "cannot be achieved in a modern, large urban center without racial integration. The NAACP, in attempting to achieve this goal, contributes therefore to socio-economic integration."

Further, the NAACP lawyer points out, "de facto school segregation stems not only from residential segregation, as Dr. Conant contends, but also from local custom, apathy, inertia, and traditional criteria for zoning. Certainly, greater integration in metropolitan areas, and in many smaller systems, could be achieved despite housing patterns."

Fort Dodge Interracial Commission Hears
Panel Discussion on "What Is An Ideal World"

Fort Dodge—More than 100 persons, including several youth groups from Fort Dodge churches, attended the first full meeting of the Fort Dodge Interracial Commission at the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon. Julius Gaines, Webster county school psychologist, was moderator of a panel discussion on the subject "What Is An Ideal World?"

Dah Lee of Formosa, formerly of the mainland of China, who is a student at the State University of Iowa believes that "Americans hold the key to the ideal world. We look to see what America is going to do." Quoting Sun Yat Sen, the founder of Nationalist China, he spoke of three kinds of equality: International—among nations; political and economic equality, both of which are within a nation.

Greg Olson, Fort Dodge Community college student, said that in an ideal world there is a safe and free relationship between groups; that the individual is supreme, with the right of peace, freedom and prosperity. "There is no place for nuclear weapons in an ideal world," he declared.

Harvey Leavitt, a member of Beth-El synagogue and recently a student at the University of Iowa, expressed his idea that there are three forces in today's world—democracy, communism and the force of the emerging nations of Africa—the last being the most important, in his opinion. "The world can have education without democracy but it cannot have democracy without education," he said.

Mrs. Annell Banks, president of the group, presided at the meeting. Other Interracial Commission officers are Miss Faye Tonsfeldt, vice president; Miss Alta Wade, secretary, and Marshall Wells, treasurer.

The Rev. Carl Sanders, pastor of Second Baptist church, gave the invocation. Miss Ethel Shannon, scholarship chairman, introduced

CORE ENDS MICHIGAN
DRESS SHOP BOYCOTT

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Ann Arbor CORE has called an end to its 18-month boycott of the Cousins Dress Shop. The termination of the boycott followed a series of tests which indicated the company has discontinued discriminatory selling practices. Gloria Ramirez of Fort Dodge Community college, who is this year's scholarship recipient, Mrs. John Meeklenburg, program chairman, introduced the panel.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. LeRoy Patterson, Mrs. Alan Kaufman, Mrs. Roy Williamson and Mrs. Walter Strong.

The next meeting of the commission will be an evening concert Nov. 19 by Miss Penny Johnson of Minneapolis, Minn. It will be at the First Methodist church.

TO WATCH OR

NOT TO WATCH TV?

Chuck, a fifth grader goes home every day right after school and immediately turns on the television set. He averages three hour a day in front of the "tube." His grades in school are below average and his parents blame his television habits. Paul, one of Chuck's classmates, spends as much time watching television programs, yet receives grades that are above average.

Effect

Several studies have been made concerning the effect which television viewing has on a child's grades. One group study found that grades made by children in families buying a first television set dropped fifteen per cent after the set had been purchased. Yet another study showed that 60 per cent of students with television sets in their homes received better grades than students without access to television.

Differences

A study of elementary school pupils showed that children in the top quarter of their class spent about six hours less per week watching television than children in the low-evaporates when it comes to teaching their wives.

When I learned that AAA was all filled up and that the Adult driver classes were inconveniently held in the evening, I decided to turn to two women friends, who are both very good drivers in their own right.

When others learned of my plan to learn to drive they all said, "Don't let your husband teach you." To add fuel to the admonishments, came an article in a national circulated weekly magazine supplement, screaming the same thing in large bold type. By that time I was adamant in my position, but was glad the article had been published after my announcement.

After one lesson in which my husband and youngest offspring sat in the back seat, one of my friends became ill. The other had out-of-town visitors for two successive weekends, and worked during the week. I was becoming discouraged and trying hard not to show it. At the same time I began to wonder if I was selling my husband short. Just maybe he was one of those exceptional husbands who could teach their wives to drive.

Abruptly, one Sunday afternoon he picked up the keys and said, "Come on; I'll take you out to the Fairgrounds and give you a lesson."

I was a little apprehensive, but decided to give him a least one try. He did so well, to my great surprise, that I took the initiative and told him if he would take me out each day for a week I thought I would be ready to go down and take my driver's test. He looked a little skeptical at my week's deadline for myself but retained his own counsel.

He was very efficient. He had already showed me all the things I needed to know about the car, the numerous instruments on the dashboards and even went under the hood to explain various parts, but alas, he lost me there. I must say he was very thorough and efficient. He advanced me at successive stages never trying to do everything each day. When I made mistakes he explained what they were and the dangers of such if committed in traffic. After several days he too felt that I would be ready to go down on my appointed day; I was immensely relieved in another aspect; it meant that no one else would have to drive his car, and husbands at their best, are very particular about their automobiles. I was terribly relieved that not once he ever raised his voice or act as if I was a nincompoop.

Anyway, I went down for the appointed time for my test. It was teacher's convention day in Des Moines and my first time in real traffic, so without realizing it, I jeopardized my chances by getting into an outside lane the first chance I could, and was called on floating; then given the choice of a permit, or coming back. I decided on the latter. After the weekend I was back again, and though given a different test route, did fine until about two blocks from the driver's test building, and practically threw my license away, by running a traffic signal. Though very disgusted with myself, I went back the next day, passed with flying colors and heard the wonderful words from the highway patrolman tester, "Go in and get your license."

And just think if it had not been for my husband, I would not know how to drive yet. Afterwards he paid me an oblique compliment, "Some people don't follow instructions when you try to teach them anything."

Mrs. John M. Estes, Jr., and Mother, Mrs. James Graham Back from 6-Week European Vacation

Mrs. John M. Estes, Jr., of 1012 University avenue and her mother, Mrs. James Graham, of Springfield, Mo., returned recently from a six week tour of eight European countries. They visited Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Austria, France, Holland, England, and the smallest principality in the world, Liechtenstein.

Cable Cars
Mrs. Estes and Mrs. Graham left New York City by Sabina Jet airlines landing in Brussels, Belgium. She remarked that it was a surprisingly clean, modern city, with beautiful homes. They rode down the Rhine river to Trier, Germany where they took a cable car ride into the Alpine mountains. At the top a small church was located and Mrs. Estes picked some mountain flowers and brought them back with her to dry.

Switzerland
At Zurich, Switzerland they saw the famed Black Forest, the Dance of Death bridge and dined at the famed Stadt-und-Rethauskeller restaurant known for its native foods, especially cheese fondue.

In Liechtenstein the travelers saw the palace and were taken on a tour by the baron. From there they went to Austria, where they visited the art museums and viewed its famed rococo work. They traversed the famed Briner pass to Italy, and visited Venice, Florence and Rome. In the latter they saw the Vatican, the Cistine chapel, and the Lady of Flowers cathedral, and viewed famed, ancient paintings of Micheangelo, Rafael and other noted art works.

From Italy they went to Nice and Paris, France, and toured the famed Louvre art gallery. Then they continued to Amsterdam and Rotterdam, Holland, which they called the cleanest country they visited. They then went to London, England, viewed the Towers of Lond, Dicken's House, No. 10 Downing Street.

PRIMARY ELECTION
VOTE BELOW PAR

In spite of the fact that 17 candidates were in the field, a relatively small vote was recorded. It takes important issue and competitive discussion by candidates to arouse voters and draw them to the polls.

True, there were several prominent issues involved. However, annexation, redevelopment were debated at times (particularly the Bartholomew plan for downtown Des Moines). Apparently these issues, while extremely important for they reach the pocketbooks of every citizen, do not generate interest among the average voter, and thus he is not particularly interested in voting.

Des Moines has not had a good vote for candidates since the council-manager system was adopted. Apparently too many voters feel that between the manager and council, things are run purely as they see fit without regard to suggestions from but a few. Therefore, it makes little difference who is elected.

The Bystander has been disappointed during the past four years with some of the candidates it favored at previous elections because they went far afield from some of the pledges made in the campaigns—pledges which were not special favors but honest statements of policy that all men receive decent consideration of his problems.

The next two weeks will develop a clearer picture of the six candidates. It will demonstrate whether a progressive forward-looking council will govern the city or whether selfish interest, thriving on the very things—federal participation in projects—will dominate the city. Unfortunately too many standpatters have held sway to keep industry and population growth below the national average.

SOUTHERN STATES
LEARNING THE HARD WAY

The United States Supreme Court in a ruling Monday on procedural law reversed the circuit court of appeals directing that the case against Alabama, which has barred the NAACP from operating in that state, be tried on its merits in the U. S. District without waiting for state courts to hear the matter.

Seldom have circuit courts ruled against these attacks on segregation or devices designed to foster it.

The southern states and their legal advisers will learn, it is hoped eventually, that the Supreme Court is the court of last resort, that its decisions are final and that it is just as important to obey laws outlawing racial discrimination as any other.

ASK HIGHWAY COMMISSION TO ENFORCE CONTRACTS

Last week the Iowa Advisory Committee of the Civil Rights Commission, following a study of highway projects in Iowa which are paid for in part by federal funds, has asked the Highway Commission what is being done to assure that employment is not being denied on the basis of race, creed or color.

There was evidence before the committee that the provision was not being complied with, in some instances, and even though a part of the contract, officials have apparently winked at the contractors and done nothing.

Every contract let by the government these days or those partly paid for by federal funds contains provisions against racial discrimination. There are many such jobs being done in the state.

The Iowa civil rights law was dormant for many years. Public officials throughout the state failed or refused to enforce it. Many took it as a joke. But until some people stood up and fought back—insisted on their rights—very little was done. But the situation has improved in recent years. People did something about it.

But in these times, where federal funds are involved, the responsibility rests with the contractors and those who let the contracts. This provision is a part of that contract and in the case of the highway commission it is a part of their job to see that it is enforced.

Citizens of Des Moines went to the polls Tuesday and nominated six candidates to be voted on in the final on November 7.

PICKET HOUSTON
OILERS IN BOSTON

Boston—Thirty pickets from CORE and the NAACP picketed the Boston Patriots-Houston Oilers football game at Boston University Stadium. The demonstration protested discriminatory practices in Houston where seating is segregated and the Negro press is excluded from the press box. Attempts to negotiate a change in policy have failed. The 23,000 seat stadium was only two-thirds full as 15,000 people attended the game.

Iowa Hawks Launch Potent Air Offensive
Annihilate Wisconsin 47-15 Before 60,000

By Staff Writers

Iowa City—In this, the modern age of missiles and rockets and such, the Iowa Hawkeyes, in keeping with the times, launched missiles of their own here Saturday, football-wise, as they bombarded the Wisconsin Badgers 47-15 before a thrilled Homecoming crowd of 60,000 plus.

The aerial blast began in the young moments of the contest and continued relentlessly and mercilessly throughout. And like missiles and rockets will do, the surprise attack left the Badgers limp and saddened for they came with their own aerial equipment in quarterback Ron Miller and end Paul Richter. But the Hawks having dealt with this Miller-Richter combination before had their defense aligned just right as they pulled fullback Bill Perkins from the line to defend the highly lauded, receptor-Richter. Perkins didn't allow him to snare one all day.

Air-Ground Attack

It was the Iowa potent air attack that befuddled the Badgers but it was the combined air and ground attack that annihilated them.

The generals of the air forces were basically quarterback Matt Szykowny and the end with the magnetic hands and the jumping jack legs—Cloyd Webb. The attack was sudden and enduring. Iowa scoring seven T.D.'s and amassing a whopping 451 yards.

Fast Touchdown

Iowa received the opening kick off and in four plays ate up 72 yards with converted halfback Joe Williams breaking through and scooting 59 yards to set up the tally. Defensive specialist Bernie Wyatt scored the touchdown on the following play. Szykowny hit Webb on an 11 yard pass for Iowa second tally. From then on Iowa began to gain momentum. Szykowny throwing, Webb catching, Williams and Sammie Harris running and so forth and so on that at half time Iowa had a run-away lead of 33-0. Szykowny threw nine passes in the first half completing every last one of them. Most of them to Webb.

Miller Falls

Miller, the Wisconsin passing ace could not do anything right this day as pass after pass was intercepted and turned into Iowa touchdowns. And on it went until, as if to save face, the Badgers scored two touchdowns in the last half. But they had come to win and had lost in the most humiliating fashion. They went home dejected and disappointed thinking the Hawks to be bad boys for the surprising trick they had played on them but giving them credit, definitely, for being good football players.

But tomorrow is another day and the Hawks must keep in the groove for the next foe and the next—the immediate next which is Purdue at Lafayette, Saturday.

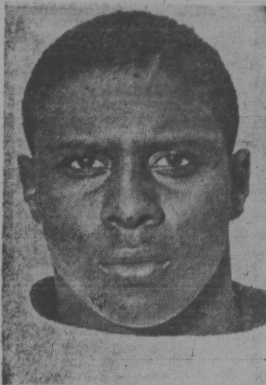

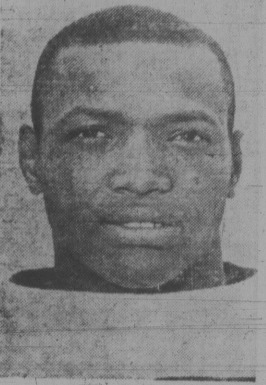

Social Security
Benefits Amended

The 1961 Amendments to the Social Security Act extended the deadline for applying for disability benefits to June 30, 1962, according to Leo W. Smith, manager of the Des Moines social security office. This gives people with long-standing disabilities a year longer in which to apply than the old law did. Workers who delay their application beyond June 30, 1962, may lose all rights to present and future benefits for themselves and their families. The important point is that action should be taken now.

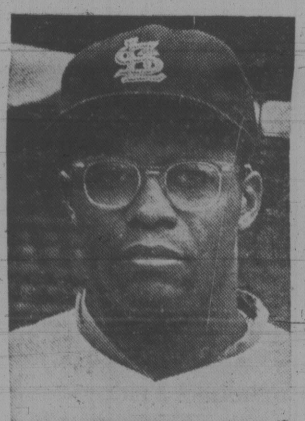

Disability

Smith also pointed out that monthly social security disability benefits were payable to young severely disabled workers and their families starting in November 1960. Prior to that month, cash disability

Purdue HalfbackDONALD RAGDALE
Purdue EndGeo. Crowe Will Scout
For St. Louis Cardinals

St. Louis—George Crowe, greatest home-run pinch hitter in the history of baseball, has signed a contract to scout for the Cardinals, it was announced today by General Manager Bing Devine.

CROWE

The 38-year-old Crowe, recently given his unconditional release as a player by the Charleston, W. Va., club of the International League, a Cardinal affiliate, holds the major league record of 14 pinch homers.

Crowe will make his headquarters at his home in Springfield Gardens, N.Y., but will not be restricted to benefits were paid only if the worker had reached his 50th birthday. If you are a disabled worker under age 50, find out from your social security office right away whether you are eligible for monthly benefits.

Retroactive

If you have worked under social security for at least 5 out of 10 years just before you became disabled, you should apply for benefits. Remember this—retroactive benefits can be paid for only 12 months before the month the application is filed. This means that to be eligible for back benefits beginning with November 1960, you must file before the end of November 1961. Check with your local social security office if you have any question—the Des Moines office is located at 205-12th Street.

SUGAR RAY

Guess the Iowa critics were silenced at least for a week. Don't know what we could say about the Wisconsin game that has not already been said. Either Webb is one of the greatest pass catchers in Iowa history or he had one heck of a day against the Badgers. There was never any doubt about Matt Szykowny's ability to throw but he lacked Holli's running ability. But maybe that accurate passing will loosen the enemy defenses enough to let the running game get into high gear. If it does the Hawks will be unbeatable. They were really fired up for this one.

Holli's at Half

Holli's would likely play halfback or end in pro ball instead of quarter. We have always thought. In these remaining games his running game may be impaired by the fact that opponents will know that he isn't going to throw the ball and the safety man and the deep defensive backs will hurry up to help stop the guy. We will guess that in some games where he is really needed Holli's will throw and really surprise everyone on the Iowa team including yours truly.

Iowa State

At Iowa State the Cyclones lost one of their most exciting players in years. Every time Clay got the ball Cyclone fans stood up because he might get away. We wonder if he can get another year of eligibility. Or perhaps this is the end of a very promising career.

High School

North High continues to play the any area in his scouting.

Pinch Hitter

Crowe spent almost eight years in the National League, after becoming a professional player in 1949. He was a first baseman by position, but was used mainly as a pinch-hitter in his last two seasons.

Eight of his pinch homers were hit for the Cardinals—four each in 1959 and 1960. He hit his first for Boston in 1952, one each in 1953 and 1955 for Milwaukee, and three in 1956 for Cincinnati. His finest year in the big leagues was 1957 when he hit 32 homers and had 92 runs batted in for the Reds.

PSYCHO-POWER

The psycho-power we possess.
Could clear the world-wide fouled-up mess.
Even those who realize.
The master keys would make them
wise.

Will not invest a single hour.
To learn the ways to hidden power.
The time they waste throughout each day.

In entertainment... foolish play.
Could bring the treasures of the world.
And show the ancient scrolls unfurled.

So one could read and understand.
All wisdom culled from every land.
To gain the things that we desire.
The soul must know eternal fire.
No peril then will be too great.

To thwart the will to mould our fate.
All answers dwell in psycho-power.
Our cosmic strength at any hour.
No limit to its potency.
Eternal is its destiny.

WIND

Wind—you are the living breath of earth.
The sun and sea both gave you birth.
Though you blow free on sage and fool.

The wise find you a useful tool.
When in the throes of your great wrath.
Grin wreckage marks your fateful path.

And yet, O wind of many moods:
We know your quiet interludes.
When lone and lost—and weighed with care

Your gentle touch, caressed our hair.
Out on a wild and desert place.
We felt your kiss upon our face.
The strato-planes and clippers fly.
Along your currents, in the sky.
