Alpha Founder, First President, George B. Kelly Dies in N.Y.

Washington, D.C.—George Biddle Kelly, born July 28, 1884, one of the seven founders and the first president of Alpha Phi Alpha, the first national Greek letter fraternity for Negroes died May 5th at Leonard Hospital, Troy, N.Y., after a prolonged illness.

The son of a veteran of one of the Civil War regiments from Massachusetts and a native of that state, entered the college of Civil Engineering of Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., in 1905 and received his degree in 1908, first having transferred from Rensselaer Polytechnical Institute, Troy, N.Y.

His passing leaves only one other founder, Dr. Henry A. Callis, Washington, D.C. The fraternity from this beginning in 1906 has expanded to over 300 chapters including undergraduate, intermediate and graduate chapters in this country and abroad and having about 29,000 initiates.

Rep. Kyl, Ia., Helps Youth in D.C. without Political Fanfare

By EDWARD PEEKS
of the Washington Afro-American
Washington, D.C.—Rep. John H. Kyl (R-Iowa) deserves the warm thanks of District residents for showing genuine interest in a positive program to prevent juvenile delinquency and rehabilitate youthful offenders.

"Prevention is twice as effective as punishment," he says. He is for a "youth assistant" sys-

The average youngster who gets into trouble usually bears the burdensome belief that nobody is genuinely interested in his problems, real or fancied.

Rep. Kyl has seen adult concern dispel such beliefs and do wonders for boys seemed bent on a career of crime.

Prevention Program

In a recent story in the Washington Post, he spoke of his knowledge and his personal involvement in a preventive program here in the District and back home in Bloomfield, Iowa.

He frequently rides in a police cruiser with officers of the Youth Aid Division, visiting potential trouble spots at night and talking with youths as an adult sincerely interested in their welfare.

The father of three children has done these things without fanfare and publicity since he came to Washington as a congressman in 1959.

Juveniles

Some 53 per cent of juveniles booked last year in the District got into trouble again with the law, but Rep. Kyl believes:

"If they had someone to help them, they wouldn't get in trouble. We must save the first offender."

Quarterly Conference Must Rule on Methodist Church Sale of Lot in Cedar Rapids

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Largest Methodist church in Iowa which sold property to a Negro member and physician, again was in the news, when it was learned that the proposed sale must be reviewed by the quarterly conference.

The lot originally was given to the church by Robert Armstrong, president of Armstrong's clothing store here, during a building campaign last year.

NAACP Is Still Hopeful on Senate 'Literacy' Struggle

Washington — Stressing that the Senate vote, May 9, of 64 to 33 against tabling the Administration's literacy test bill, indicated that most Senators really favor the bill, Roy Wilkins, the NAACP's executive secretary wired messages of appreciation to the 43 Senators who earlier voted to close the Southern filibuster against the bill.

He urged them to vote again for closing debate on May 14 and "against any move to set the matter aside."

Wired 31

Secretary Wilkins also wired 31 Senators asking them to reconsider their votes "against cloture . . . and to vote on May 14 against setting the matter aside."

He urged them to vote again for Armstrong was recognized as leader of the faction which supported the sale of the lot to Dr. Harris. The membership voted 460 to 291 authorized the sale, at a special congregational meeting last Dec. 13.

Majority Vote

Despite that action, Friday's notice said: "The majority vote of the members of the quarterly conference granting such authorization also is required under the provisions of the Methodist discipline." The notice was given by Rev. Milton R. Vogel and the Rev. Charles Q. Wallace.

The ministers said a resolution would be presented at the May 22 quarterly conference authorizing the board of trustees and its officers to execute a warranty deed conveying title of the land to Dr. and Mrs. Harris.

"In stripped-down language," Secretary Wilkins added, "literacy tests in most states are devices nakedly employed to deprive Negro citizens of the right to register and vote."

Name Moore U.S. Marshal; Only 2nd Negro in History

Washington, D.C.—Chairman John M. Bailey of the Democratic National Committee today hailed the appointment by President John F. Kennedy of Luke Moore as United States Marshal for the District of Columbia.

Chairman Bailey noted that Luke Moore is the first Negro since Reconstruction to be appointed United States Marshal in continental United States.

Luke Moore an Assistant U. S. Attorney succeeds Marshal James McShane who will become Chief of all United States Marshals. McShane headed the group of marshals sent to Alabama to protect the "freedom riders" last year.

Mr. Moore, an Assistant United States Attorney in the District of Columbia, was born February 25, 1924 in Collinsville, Illinois. He attended LeMoine College, Memphis, Tennessee from September, 1941 until May, 1942.

Moore is believed to be the second Negro in history to serve as a Marshal in the continental United States. The first, Frederick Douglas, also served in the District of Columbia from March, 1877 until May 1881. Two Negroes have served as Marshal in the Virgin Islands.

New Radio Relay Tower at NWB

A new look atop the radio-relay tower beside the telephone building at Ninth and High Streets will be a part of a major expansion of communications facilities between Chicago and Omaha, R. R. Howdle, District Manager for Northwestern Bell Telephone Company said today. Work is underway to install five giant, horn-shaped antennas of the latest design to replace five earlier rectangular and two round, "dish" type antennas now in operation on the 400-foot tower.

Part of First

The 450-mile Chicago-Omaha route is a part of the first transcontinental radio relay skyway completed in 1951.

The Long Lines Department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is replacing antennas at 20 stations to accommodate a new system capable of doubling the communications capacity of the route.

Horn Antennas

The horn antennas are required to apply a new technique in transmission which increases the communication carrying capacity of the system. The existing radio-relay system beams 12 super high frequency radio channels. A pair of these channels, one in each direction of transmission, can carry up to 600 long distance calls at a time or

FREE KITCHEN PLANNING SERVICE

Let Iowa Power specialists design a lovely and practical new kitchen for you.

There's far more to clever kitchen planning than buying new appliances and cabinets!

First, because a homemaker spends about half her wakeful hours in the kitchen, it should be a reflection of her tastes and personality. Second, it should be styled to suit the needs of the family using it. (Do you eat most meals in the kitchen? Just serve lunch there? Do you have youngsters? How many? And so on.)

Third, a kitchen should be planned practically—with expert attention to the placement of windows, doorways, cabinets, plumbing and other connections... and that's a job for a pro!

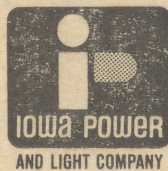

HOW IOWA POWER WILL HELP—FREE. Our specialists will interpret your ideas in floor-plan drawings. Assist you in the selection of appliances and materials. Even come to your home and show you how to operate and care for your new appliances.

Keep your money in your pocket—Iowa Power has no appliances or fixtures to sell. The service is free and without obligation. Phone your nearest Iowa Power office and ask for "Kitchen Planning."

HEALTH FOR ALL

KEEP YOUR HAIR ON!
Heavens, a brush full of hair! What's happening to the crowning glory? Nothing, probably.

Most hair loss is temporary. Hair is normally shed every day. At times you may find yourself shedding more than usual. Everybody has these heavy molting periods. An illness accompanied by high fever can cause temporary loss of hair. So can pregnancy. None of this is anything to worry about. The lost hairs are always replaced.

Not Living
The hair you see is actually not living tissue. The living part of the hair is at the bottom of the hair shaft in the scalp, so the best way to keep your hair on is by taking care of your scalp. Good general health is important here—the right food, exercise, enough rest and sleep. Brushing stimulates the part

American Pianist Forced to Perform Abroad Because of U.S. Sexual and Racial Prejudice

In a revealing article in the June issue of Sepia magazine, concert pianist Philippa Schuyler writes that because of the obstacles in America of racial and sexual prejudice, she has been forced to tour the world to make a living.

Miss Schuyler, born in New York City, writes that as an adult she encountered "vicious barriers of prejudice against me in the field of employment because I was the offspring of what America calls a 'mixed marriage.' Miss Schuyler's father is Negro and her mother is white.

Pressures

To escape from the social and economic pressures here, Miss Schuyler left the country. Today she says if she ever decided to change her citizenship she would become either French or Portuguese.

Not Popular

Miss Schuyler also claims in the article that female concert pianists do not have as good a chance to become popular in this country because of sexual prejudice. According to her research for the article, nine out of ten local concert organizations in this country are controlled by women. In Europe, she states, the organizations are always controlled by men, giving the female pianist the advantage.

Considered among the world's great pianists, Miss Schuyler has appeared in 70 foreign countries playing command performances before the royal families of the world.

UNDERSTANDING IOWA CHILDREN

Written by May P. Youtz, S.U.I. Association Professor

DON'T LET CHILDREN "PRESSURE" YOU FOR FAVORS

George had just settled in bed for the night—at least his mother thought so—when a plaintive call came from his room. His mother went upstairs and asked, "George, what is it?"

"I want a piece of candy," said small George.

"Oh, no! We don't eat candy when we go to bed. We had candy after dinner but not now."

What To Do

Most emphatically George said, "Go down and get me a piece of candy, or I won't love you!"

When his mother told me this, I said, "What did you do?"

She replied, "I just said, 'All right—you won't love me then,' and went out quickly and shut the door!"

Wise mother—not to confuse the issue of love with overindulgence, wheedled by her son.

Clear Thinking

Clear thinking on the real issues of life are demanded of us as we guide our children. Just as George's mother would not let love of her child confuse the issue involving standards she felt were important, so we should not use denial of love to gain our ends with them.

We have cited before in this column the episode of the mother who said, "Mother won't love you if you don't do what she wishes."

Whereupon her small daughter said, "Oh, but Mother, you will!" She knew her mother better than the mother knew herself.

Personally Yours
By Frances Muthorne.

There seems to be some type of virus making its rounds spoiling an otherwise wonderful May month. It has gone through our family with the exception of our oldest son. We have talked to several others who report the same thing.

It nearly prevented several mothers, who are retiring members of the Nash P.T.A. board, from attending a luncheon given in their honor at Younkers tearoom Monday. One was Mrs. Rufus Spates; her daughter was ill with it Sunday and Monday, and Mrs. Spates was feeling the effects of it Monday, hours before the luncheon. The other was Mrs. Carla Chandler, whose little boy was home in bed with it.

Late last week Mrs. Eddie (Barbara) Robinson, 1228 3rd street, had a few more worries that many of us at the time. She had just learned that her youngest, a two-year-old, had pneumonia, but doctors allowed Mrs. Robinson to keep her child at home. However, she had to take the baby in for various antibiotic shots. This week however, as Mrs. Robinson, reporting on her Blank Hospital Guild drive solicitation, said her baby was doing fine again.

Parents and friends who attended the Nash school music festival agreed that it was worth it and

Many of the classes in the same grade were combined, in most instances, making for a more musical presentation. Eyes of proud, dotting parents sought out their youngsters as they performed and clapped enthusiastically when it was over. A large crowd turned out for the event.

All groups got their share of applause but the third graders in their presentation of the "Hokey-Dokey" dance, broke up the audience in laughter and then a group of 12 much better than in previous years, girls from the same grade, did themselves proud with their fast stepping, rhythmic rendition of the "Dollhouse" dance. They reminded one of the drill team that is noted around Iowa, with their white tissue plumes.

All individual performers did very well. A nod has to go to eight-year-old Robert Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parker. He played a violin solo with the aplomb of a veteran performer. Other soloists on the piano were Peggy Spates, Linda Carter, Tony Morrow, Diana Cox along with David Harvey and Mary Powers.

With those who have graduates in the family, we would like to let you know that letters are being put in the mail. The deadline has been set for May 29, however we will allow

CAUSES PRODUCE

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS

In an effort to be consistent for a cause, some strange bedfellows get together. Recent examples found Russia fighting Germany in World War II along with the U.S. Now the U.S. lines up with Germany against Russia.

In some of the larger cities, an organization — the Muslims — insists which has for its purpose the extermination of the white man. Of course, this is ridiculous—foolish and yet they are able to gather a following.

Recently, one of their members was murdered in Los Angeles by police officers called to quell a disturbance. While public officials support the action of the police department, several groups including the NAACP have branded the action as police brutality and have joined in protest.

The NAACP does not, in any way, approve the objections or methods of this organization. But it does believe every American citizen is entitled to the equal protection of the law; that if police officers get away with illegal methods of law enforcement against Muslims, then they feel it permissible to do so against the NAACP members or other Negroes.

A mass meeting was held in Los Angeles protesting the murder of one of its followers by policemen and demanding that offending officers be punished. The NAACP joined in the effort. They did so because a great principle is at stake and therefore could not stand back for fear of criticism.

But in the final analysis, level-headed white and Negro citizens must work together so as not to let such things happen again. Extremists in either direction must not be permitted to ruin good relations in a community.

JOIN THE N.A.A.C.P.

FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

The Des Moines Branch NAACP, along with hundreds of others over the country, is conducting its annual membership drive. The quota is 1,200 members, the same as last year. And while the quota is proportionately higher than many cities of equal Negro population, Des Moines has been able to meet the mark set by the national office in years gone by.

The Bystander can think of no drive which is more important than that of the NAACP for the organization has made the constitution of the United States a living document for Negroes as well as white. It has successfully conducted its program in such orderly fashion that nobody has successfully challenged its objectives or methods.

Generally speaking, the public has responded to the NAACP's call for support. And it is from the membership that most of its funds come.

That support has come from the middle class Negro better proportionately than the top echelon for while the former gives his two dollar membership, the latter does likewise, invariably, when larger support should be forthcoming.

Most educated Negroes are doing well these days greatly because the NAACP has helped make it possible. And yet there are some who won't give even a two dollar membership. Frankly, those who take this position need their heads examined or their sense of responsibility is lacking in that they are riding free on other people's shoulders.

Fortunately, as in other successful movements, there are those who appreciate the tremendous job the NAACP has done. They realize that as in war, the army must be alert and fight to hold its newly won position for the opposition never quits.

The Bystander fully supports the NAACP, and while at times it has not agreed with some of its methods, those differences are insignificant to the great cause for which we are all working.

POOR EXAMPLE
IN THE SENATE

The Senate has refused, on two occasions, to limit debate on the bill designed to make citizens with a sixth grade education eligible to vote in federal elections. It was designed to take from ignorant and/or prejudiced election officials the authority to pass on the educational qualifications of the voter—laws which exist in some states to stop Negroes from voting.

There is some doubt among constitutional lawyers as to the validity of the proposed measure. However, this should not have been a barrier to allowing senators to cast their vote on merits of the bill. Courts are the last resort in determining constitutional questions.

Here again, the senate allows a few hard core southern Democrats to block legislation in the senate as regards to civil rights.

Both parties have spoken out against Senate rule 21 which permits antics these Democrats carry on from year to year. But unfortunately, they have a lot of allies who are glad of the opportunity to duck going on record one way or the other.

We watched the Iowa U.-alumni game last Saturday and reached one conclusion. If the Hawks had as many high caliber linemen as they have backs, they would have to be considered one-two in the Big Ten gridiron scramble. As it is they may well be up there because we believe from what we saw Saturday, the Hawks will score against anybody they play.

Defense Weakness

Maybe they can cope enough to offset what may be a defensive weakness. Maybe that weakness may be helped when and if Dayton Perry comes back next fall.

Larry Ferguson
Left Halfback

But, the game was just about the best one of the series we have seen. There was plenty of hard hitting, long runs and at times, fierce defensive play by both teams.

Harris

Sammy Harris, kick off veteran was labeled in all the way from the moment he got his hands on the ball. They should be one whale of a scramble for starting backfield posts next fall. Larry Ferguson ran hard and was hit hard and his knee stood up. Joe Williams and Perkins may have to alternate at fullback. In our estimation Williams is a little better defensive player than Perkins. Although game experience may bring Perkins along.

Ends

Rodgers and Cloyd Webb should be tough at ends. But missing are those giant Negroes who played the line. And they could surely be used. In fact, we don't think Coach Jerry Burns would care if they were Oscar Robertson, All-Pro guard of the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association has joined the Pepsi-Cola marketing team. Robertson, shown here with James B. Somerall, vice president and general manager of Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Cincinnati, has begun an off-season job with the Pepsi organization, and has started a training program in preparation for a possible full time position when the "Big O" eventually retires from professional basketball.

green men from Mars if they weighed around 240 and could move. He would play them. Bob Jeter and Bob Fleming who were Iowa's touch-down twins a few years ago didn't do badly but lack of timing on their offense made it hard for them to really get going.

Perhaps, the guy we liked best was a big long freshman from East St. Louis, Ill., the alumni borrowed him. The fellow caught a lateral pass right beside the Iowa defenders and in just about six strides he covered around 40 yards and scored. Didn't even appear to be running hard or trying. Just pulled away from him would be tacklers like a car leaving a stop light. He will bear watching come next year. Yep it was a real good game.

Now, we bet the magic name of Johnny Bright will pull a crowd out to Drake to watch the Drake alumni play the varsity. We would like to be there.

WITHOUT REGRETS

Without regrets—the day is done, . . .
and softly, . . . with the setting sun;
the evening breeze—in its embrace, brings fragrance to caress the face.
The gentle song of a sleepy bird—whose melody is faintly heard, invites the tired world to rest, . . .
to nestle close to mothers breast.
—And murmur soft—the evening prayer—
the words of praise—to Him up

The principal speakers will include: Rev. E. H. Williams, Antioch Baptist Church; Rev. Pearl Hayes, Church of God in Christ; Rev. I. V. Tolbert, Payne A.M.E. Church; Rev. G. M. Williams, Macedonia Baptist, Des Moines, Ia.; and Rev. Percy Burt, Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

For Him we know, though we never met;
has made this day, . . . without regret.

ATTAINMENT

Attainment means the goal is reached—that all the barriers have been breached, we've crossed the moats of violent stress;
and climbed that craggy wall success . . .
Attainment by sheer force of will—through jungles that can maim and kill, . . .
the hazards of the city streets; . . .
where danger stalks and death repeats.
Attainments of a mind defiant, . . .
from an unknown to a mental giant—to whom no thing's insoluble;

no problem is impossible . . .
Attainment of that supreme goal—serene mind and peace of soul.
Acceptance of that master plan, . . .
designed for every thinking man.

Thoughts for Today

A world of peace and freedom from which the twin specters of war and insecurity will be banished, a world of equal opportunity . . .
where children may lead healthy, happy lives and grow into useful well adjusted citizens, where the personality is permitted to develop naturally and freely, where the individual is given a sense of personal worth and dignity and where his activities and ambitions are integrated with the development of group life —is the goal toward which mental hygiene must strive.—Albert Deutsch.
