Attorney 'Shocked', Hears TV Newscasts of Jailbreak Plot to Use Her As Hostage

By Frances E. Hawthorne

A Des Moines attorney returned from a church function Monday evening, turned on the TV set and heard news reporters telling how she had been the central figure in a plot for an attempted jail break at Polk County jail here last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Willie S. Glanton, telling of her reactions to a story released Monday by Polk County Sheriff Wilbur T. Hildreth, said, "I was shocked."

Turned on TV

"My husband (Municipal Judge Luther T. Glanton, Jr.) and I had just come in from the Des Moines Area Council of Churches meeting. I turned on the TV and at the same time noted a phone number left by the babysitter.

Phone Number

"I called the number and to my surprise it was the parents of my client (Fred L. Lamp, 20), and they wanted to know if I was alright. I didn't know what she was talking about. And then I noticed they were talking about me on TV. I was listening to her and the TV at the same time. It was quite a shock."

Sheriff Hildreth

According to the story released by Sheriff Hildreth following an investigation of the incident, Edward James Miller, 26, who is awaiting trial for first degree murder, and Mrs. Glanton's client, Lamp, had plotted to break jail by using Mrs. Glanton as a hostage.

The plot failed, Hildreth said because Mrs. Glanton was not brought up to the second-floor cellblock areas as the prisoners thought she would be.

"They had it worked out so that when Lamp was called out of his cell to see his attorney Miller would rush the guard, which he did, carrying a sharp instrument (a rusty piece of shower curtain rod) in his hand," Hildreth explained.

Mrs. Glanton

When questioned about the Friday incident Mrs. Glanton said, "I was waiting for my client. I heard a commotion going on. He (Lamp) came down the stairs kind of half running. I asked what was going on. He said something about there being a fight and a guy trying to break jail.

Delayed Reaction

"He gave no indication that he was involved or that there had been a plot. And then I heard this on TV last night (Monday)."

Mrs. Glanton, who says she is not one to fall apart admitted to having a little delayed reaction Tuesday morning, "When I was having my coffee, I couldn't seem to keep the cup still," she said.

HISTORIC BREAKTHROUGH

Florida School Ordered to Integrate Teachers, Students

Jacksonville, Fla.—Integration of Negro and white teachers, along with their pupils, has been ordered for this city and surrounding Duval county by the U. S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Announcement was made in New York City this week by Jack Greenberg, director-counsel of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, whose attorneys handled the case.

Sweeping

This marks the first Appeals' Court ruling since the historic 1954 Supreme Court school integration decision, that specifically includes administrative and teaching personnel.

The three judge court also ordered an end to separate budgets, employment and construction contracts, curricula and program.

Greenberg said that this is a "most sweeping school integration victory.

The court granted every request in our prayer for relief."

Attorneys

The case was argued before the Court of Appeals by Earl M. Johnson of Jacksonville, one of the Fund's cooperating attorneys. Constance Baker Motley and Leroy D. Clark of the Fund's New York City headquarters, were of counsel.

The Fund's lawyers pointed out that in some instances, "some of the minor plaintiffs and other minor Negroes are required to travel twenty miles to attend Negro schools, whereas they reside much nearer a white school."

Ministerial Alliance Submits Proposed Housing Ordinance

Spearheading a drive for a housing ordinance in Des Moines, the Des Moines Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance, presented a proposed ordinance to the City council at its meeting Monday morning in City Hall. The proposed ordinance was sent to the Human Rights Commission for study and recommendation. Making the presentation was Rev. E. P. Williams, president of the Alliance.

The proposed ordinance is the same as the one first presented to the city council last fall by the Des Moines Human Rights Commission on Job Discrimination, also containing the three exemptions as recommended by the Commission.

The ordinance would make it unlawful for any real estate broker, salesman, agent, or any owner, to discriminate against any person on the basis of race, creed or color in any housing transaction—sales or rental.

It would apply to all housing units in Des Moines.

Exemptions

The three exemptions are:
Rental of a two-family dwelling when the owner lives in it.

Rental of rooms in a one-family dwelling occupied by the owner.

Institutions such as nursing homes that give preference to members of a religious group.

Last fall, the City Council voted down a similar ordinance, plus another that had no exemptions. That council vote came after a month of controversy climaxed by a public hearing attended by more than 500 persons.

New Council

In the meantime, however, the make-up of the council has changed. Three of five councilmen—Mayor Charles F. Iles, George J. Nahas and Wallace E. Buss—are on record in favor of fair housing ordinance. Jens Grothe and George C. Whitmer voted against both proposals last fall.

We had several communications last week so without further preliminaries we will get into our column this week which will be composed of the letters.

Our first was from Mrs. Joseph (Helen D.) Wimberly, who with her husband, is vacationing in Compton, Calif., as the guests of a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hutchinson Beshears.

Mrs. Wimberly wrote: "We have been in California a month today (Jan. 11) and no day has been cool enough to wear more than a sweater. In the middle of the day no wrap is needed at all. For us coldbound Iowans it is an unusual experience."

"We are having a wonderful time enjoying old and new friends. We are going to an "Iowa" reunion dinner next Sunday (Jan. 19) with old schoolmates and one classmate, she and I are the only ones living who graduated together. Judge Duke Slater is here in Los Angeles and he'll be there too.

"New Year's day we barbecued and ate dinner out on the patio. We didn't go to the Rose Parade but watched it on our color TV. The next day however, we drove to Pasadena to the park where all the floats were on exhibition. Their beauty was breathtaking. Thousands were milling around as we were, taking pictures still and movie. There were elevated platforms all around from which you could take pictures as well as have a panoramic view of all the floats."

Mrs. Wimberly also reminded us about forwarding the Bystander to them so they could keep up with hometown news while they are away.

Another communication came earlier this week from Mrs. Annabelle Blaney, president of Mary Church Terrell Club No. 2. Mrs. Blaney wrote about a club meeting and it was so interestingly written that we include it in its entirety here as follows:

"The Mary Church Terrell Club

No. 2, Friday night, quizzed their palates with a wine-tasting party. Although professional wine tastings are conducted on a grand scale—ours was simple—but large enough to make an extensive sampling of varieties.

"We tasted eleven varieties of wines. New York, Ohio and California red and white varieties plus Imports and Domestic wines. So that no one could be influenced by trade names—the labels were covered. Each member was given a pad and pencil to rate the three essentials of wine—the color, bouquet and taste according to her own reaction.

"The comments were interesting. Some members thought the Imports were "horrible and it tastes like medicine—what was that?"

"There were some informative talks given on the etiquette of serving wine. The art of the champagne producers was explained and one member gave us the details of making domestic wine—another gave recipes where wine is used for enhancing the flavor of foods cooked in wine.

"Typical of most of America we discovered we like the Imports the least and have a leaning to the sweeter varieties and domestic type wines. It's fun—try it at your next gathering of close friends."

Our Browine Troop No. 397 which will hold its investiture ceremonies today (Thurs.) were making plans for a tour of a candy making plant sometime early next month. Mrs. Betty Jones, 1229 10th street, along with yours truly was checking slips to see what mothers had volunteered transportation when needed. She pulled out a slip and said aloud, "This mother here has checked off outdoor activities but she has nothing about providing transportation." A second later to her chagrin, she realized the slip was her own. And she has no car!

WHITE HOUSE CHANGES WORTH NOTING

When the late President Theodore Roosevelt entertained Booker T. Washington at lunch in the White House, it made big headlines in the news. Negroes and their friends praised it; opponents led by the South condemned it from the house tops. They blasted it as a road to social equality.

When Antonio Segni, President of Italy, was in Washington last week President and Mrs. Johnson gave a state dinner at the White House in his honor. Among the guests were Roy Wilkins, NAACP Executive Secretary and Mrs. Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs. Eustance Gay, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Harris, and Austin Norris. There was no mention of this in the daily press in this area; it came through the NAACP news service.

This, of course, was a social event. It marks the great difference in values in 1904 and 1964, certainly a mark of progress. And it offered the Italian president an opportunity to see some of the better things America is doing in human relations.

Of course, the President should take the lead in human relations as an example for others to follow.

President Eisenhower employed the first Negro, E. Frederick Morrow on his staff; the late President Kennedy followed by making Andrew Hatcher an assistant press secretary; President Johnson has retained him and also employed Geraldine on the staff as one of his secretaries.

These are advances of which the whole country should be proud. They help make the status of the Negro less an issue in political campaigns. It does so in the daily things the people of America go about doing.

CRIMINALS FAKING THE CONSEQUENCES OF THEIR DESPERATE ACTS

During a hearing for Jack Ruby, killer of Harvey Oswald, alleged assassin of President Kennedy, for the purpose of determining whether he should be released on bond, psychiatrists testified that he was unaware of his acts and thus should not be held for first degree murder.

If this had been done in the heat of passion, such a finding would have been bad enough. But Ruby went to the jail with a gun on him, evidently fraternized with the jailers in order to gain entrance and chose just the right time to commit the crime. Nowadays much of this blacking out to kill people and then plead that the murderer did not know what was going on tends to let criminals who know perfectly well what they are doing escape punishment.

When Harry Thaw, Pittsburgh millionaire playboy, killed Stanford White in Madison Square Garden in New York, more than a half century ago, his lawyer used this as a defense (he called it Amerigo Demento). Thaw was committed to an insane asylum. He was finally discharged.

The judge has ordered Ruby examined by a disinterested psychiatrist wishing to be certain that he was unaware of his acts at the time of the shooting. In plain words, Ruby is an extravert, knew the consequences of his acts and should be tried and if convicted punished like any other murderer.

High Court Refuses To Rule on Baton Rouge Injunction Case

Washington, D. C.—The U. S. Supreme Court Monday refused to rule on the question whether Baton Rouge, La., was properly denied an injunction against demonstrations by the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

In doing so a ruling by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals which overturned an earlier decision by the U. S. District Court which granted the city an injunction to bar breaches of the peace and agitation likely to cause violence—remains the law. John Christian, mayor-president of Baton Rouge, appealed to the high tribunal to overturn the decision by the U. S. Circuit Court in New Orleans.

The litigation developed from demonstrations in Baton Rouge on Dec.

Drake Rolls on; Beats Old Nemesis-- Cincinnati--in 13th Try, 76-66

By Staff Writer

The Drake Bulldogs continued their winning ways here last Saturday and the elixir of their victory was considerably heightened when they subdued their old nemesis, Cincinnati, in overtime play, 76-66.

Eleven thousand fans nearly brought down the roof of Veterans auditorium after they watched the see-saw game, then saw Herman Watson, a sophomore reserve, tie the game at 60-all with 2 minutes and 44 seconds to go. The Bulldogs stalled for a final shot but Billy Foster was called for charging before getting a shot off. The momentary groan changed to happiness when Cincinnati's Ron Bonham missed a shot in the final three seconds.

Overtime

The overtime play was different from the regular game in that Drake got the ball, again from able Watson, and continued to pull ahead ending the game 10-points ahead of Cincinnati, whom they were meeting for the 13th time, and had gone victory-less before.

It also was the 500th victory in school history for the Bulldogs (2-1) who replaced the Bearcats for second in the league standings and now are 10-3.

Two in Row

Foster, as usual, was a package of energy as high-flying Cincinnati went down to two straight defeats (Bradley Wednesday) for the first time since the 1958-59 season.

The Bulldogs, undefeated in eight home games this season, meet the Air Force Academy here Saturday.

Purdue Catches Iowa, 90-75; 3rd Big 10 Loss

By Staff Writer

Lafayette, Ind.—Iowa was leading Purdue 32-19, but hit a scoreless slump which lasted seven and a half minutes, and when it was all over, found they had lost 90-75 in their third Big Ten defeat.

Big guns for Purdue were Mel Garland, who whipped in 32 points and sophomore Dave Schellhase with 27. The Hawkeyes had a chance to regain the lead early in the final period, but squandered it when Andy Hankins missed two free throws after Bill Skea's goal.

Cyclones Commit 30 Errors; Lose 74-51

Lawrence, Kans.—In the first few minutes of the game here Saturday Iowa State began working on its total of 30 errors and unable to gain the lead in any portion of the game, lost to the Kansas Jayhawks, 74-51.

The Cyclones hit only 29 percent of its shots, 16 of 55 in a Big Eight Conference game. Kansas hit a blazing 46 per cent by connecting on 32 of 70 field goal attempts. The only departments in which Iowa State was superior were free throwing (19 of 28) and rebounding (50-44).

Bob Hayes, Honored As Fla. Top Athlete

Tallahassee, Fla.—(FAMU)—The nation's sports scribes and organizations continue to heap honors upon Florida A&M University's brilliant track star, Bob Hayes, as the new year begins.

The 21-year-old Jacksonville junior was named Florida's amateur athlete of the year by the University Club of Miami and feted in the duPont Plaza Hotel in Miami. He ranked second in the national poll of the AAU track and field stars.

Commenting on his style in an article under the topic, "Champions Who Gave the Year Its Flavor," the Jan. 6, 1964, Sports Illustrated said:

"Despite a wobbling, bowlegged style that was a source of constant embarrassment to his coaches, Robert Lee Hayes twice ran the 100 in 9.1, one-tenth of a second faster than Frank Budd's world record. A muscular, 21-year-old junior, Hayes is also a lightning-fast 220-yard man and a star halfback at Florida A&M, where he led the team in scoring. He may play professional football when his days as an amateur sprinter are over—but not before he has a go at the Olympic sprint record this year in Tokyo."

15, 1961, by Negro students of Southern University, in Scotlandville, La. They marched to Baton Rouge and after a large crowd of Negroes, including the students, gathered in the Courthouse area, police made a number of arrests on charges that traffic was blocked.

Just North of Freedom

Sojourner Truth

Heavy vibrations from the juke box of the O-Be-Joyful tavern nearly drowned out the male singer's wailing of woman trouble. Jessie Mae was in no mood to hear his sad, sad story. In fact the subject irritated her soul as she slid into the first empty booth. For no reason at all an utterly ridiculous idea hovered in her thoughts.

"Supposing the next record was The Woman with her tale of woe. Wouldn't that be something?", Jess day dreamed. The bartender set a glass of beer in front of her. Business was at a standstill. Gus sat down with his only customer.

"Where ya been, Jess. Long time no see."

"I ben talkin' when I shoulda been listenin', Friend." Poor Gus was startled by his customer's sadness. Jess was always full of tall stories and surprises.

"Who has hurt your feelings, Girl?" Gus barked.

"You'd better ask whose feelings I have hurt and how many times," Jessie Mae re-phrased the bartender's question. She continued, "I've got a bad habit of storming about segregationists no matter where I happen to be. It clears away the tensions and frustrations of the day."

"I've ben drinking a good friend's beer while raving about 'tender-minded' white liberals in her living room."

The next month coming in will bring up a lot of boxing. The heavyweight battle if it is that between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston may be better than a lot of people think. Clay is big and fast and can hit. We don't think he can make the grade but it isn't impossible or improbable. But if Sonny lays one of those hams he carries around for hands against Clay's head just once, that will likely be it.

Then there will be the local Golden Gloves battle. We hope the people who handle those things will see that Mel Barber gets the credit he deserves for keeping amateur boxing alive in Des Moines.

Then when the big show comes on the guy is sort of bypassed for local celebrity. But who is in there all year with the would be Golden Glovers?

While we are on the subject we might as well discuss the difference between the way fighters are made and the way they were brought up.

Now the guy gets in a gym, flattens a couple of guys, gets in the ring wins two fights and he is on television in a main event. When there were a lot of small clubs a fighter was often paid a weekly salary just to train. The handlers decided when he was ready for a four round preliminary. Maybe the guy trained for from nine months to a year before he got a fight. Then it was a series of short fights with the fighter keeping all the money he got from those bouts.

His handlers were going to get theirs later on. In about two years the fellow was ready for the serious business of making big money for everyone. Then he worked up the ladder to a title crack.

Now? The battler wins an amateur title. Maybe he isn't even the best amateur around but he wins the title so he gets a big bout. In fact we think if we're going to criticize American sports, it would be that our amateurs don't get a chance to develop any more before they turn pro. A boy wins a tennis crown. There may be four or five other fellows who could beat him on a given court. But he is sharpest during the big week. He promptly turns pro. So it goes in just about every sport except wrestling. Maybe this is because amateur and professional wrestling are so different.

There isn't much chance for an amateur wrestler to work out with the pros and learn anything. So a fellow who wins an amateur wrestling title finds himself in a whole new world when he meets the pros.

"What's wrong with that?", Gus asked innocently as he set down a fresh glass of beer in front of Jessie Mae.

"Man, I've ben hassling about discrimination and civil rights so long I'm getting crude and uncivilized myself," Jessie Mae confessed while glaring at Gus as if he were to blame.

"More of us should get uncivilized about this race question, Sister," Gus commented.

"How would you like it if, every time I dropped by to see you, I was raving about the Uncle Toms we are carrying our backs to freedom—and drinking your beer, too?" The bartender saw the picture and joined Jessie Mae's hearty laughter over such circumstances in Gus's living room.

"Your friend is white, I take it," Gus double-checked.

"Now, Gus, how can I explain that when I show up at Ruth's or a few other friends, it's because I can relax and enjoy their company? What do I do to relax? I charge across the living room, up the walls and across the ceiling, sword and shield in hand after segregationists, liberals, Negro and white, coat-holders and gate-swingers without distinction!"

"Great God A'Mighty. There really wasn't a soul left in that living room but you," Gus chuckled. "Just think what could happen to Eastland."

"Gee, Gus, I don't even dare think of how many friends I have clobbered like that. I feel like a second-class heel."

"You ned a vacation, Jess. When you come home, put on your bi-focals so you can tell the difference between friends and segregationists."

What Do You Bring?

Of service, love and cheer.
I bring you a chance and a challenge new,
And fresh, new programs to dream and do,
With crimson dawns and skies of blue,
And it's up to you, my dear.
Out of the maze of yesterdays,
What shall I bring, New Year
"Bring with you courage that's born

of fight
For high ideals and the cause that's right.
Bring discontent for the 'status quo'
Where life is bogged and drab and low.
Bring me the faith that man's noblest dream
Is none too good to be true. Supreme
Let joys be counted that bring to men
The nerve to wreck and build nobler again.
Bring love that is sure that good can rise
And fill our horizons to the skies
With nobler structures on saner plan

Than self ever drew for the tasks of man,
Bring patience to wait, still contest the wrong
Though days be dark, nights dismal and long.
Bring memories where fear and failure met
With courage to tackle and conquer yet.
And, most of all, a heart full dressed To welcome and entertain Heaven's guest.
And out of His promptings your tasks shall spring
And make every 'Now' worth remembering;
It's up to you, my dear."
