"...Must Live As Brothers or Perish as Fools"

Dr. King Tells 800 In Davenport Speech

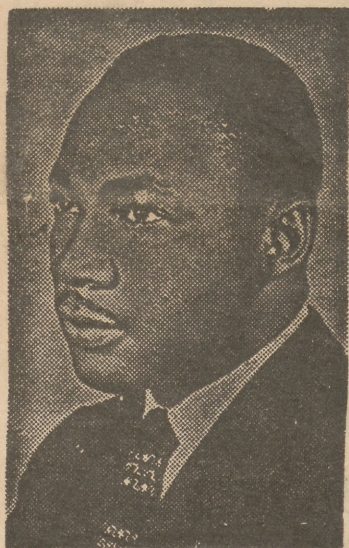

Davenport, Ia.—"We must live together as brothers or perish together as fools." Those were the words of the Reverend Martin Luther King, Jr., as he spoke to more than 800 persons gathered in the Davenport Masonic Temple to honor him Apr. 28.

Here to receive the Davenport Catholic Interracial Council's 1965 Pacem in Terris peace and freedom award, Dr. King called for social action and civil rights legislation.

Full Reality

"To make justice a reality," Dr. King said, "we must develop massive action programs."

"With a strong action program—picketing when necessary, demonstrating when necessary, marching when necessary—all undisciplined with the philosophy of non-violence we can bring the American dream into full reality.

"It's a great opportunity for America and the people who live in it," he told the crowd who interrupted his speech with frequent bursts of applause.

Plea For All

Dr. King launched a plea for all Americans to participate in activities to end segregation.

"The whole country may have to pay soon," he said, "not for the bad people like those who bombed the church in Birmingham, but for the appalling silence of the good people who sit around and wait on time."

It's a myth that only time can solve the segregation problem," he said.

3rd Recipient

Dr. King is the third recipient of the Pacem in Terris Award, and the first Negro to be so honored. The Davenport C.I.C. created the award in 1964 to commemorate the late Pope John XXIII's widely acclaimed encyclical letter of the same title, and to pay tribute to an outstanding, contemporary leader in the areas of peace and freedom.

The initial award went to the late President John F. Kennedy, posthumously, and to John Howard Griffin, noted author and civil rights leader.

This is the 13th year that this organization has received a grant from the foundation, whose sole source of funds is the Maytag company, Newton, Iowa, laundry appliance manufacturer.

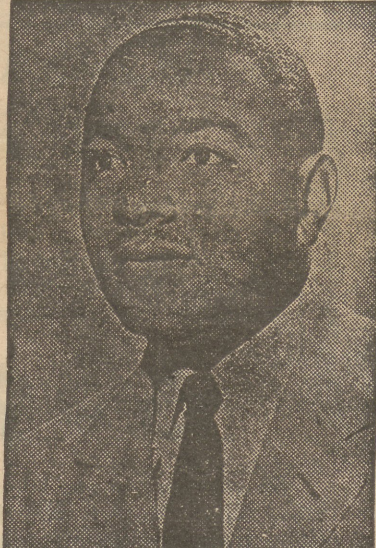

7 Negro Students Sue Gov. Wallace

Montgomery, Ala.—Seven students at a Negro state college here, charging intimidation by expulsion threats, have filed a $105,000 damage suit against Gov. George Wallace and other state and college officials.

The students, who were suspended from Alabama State College during civil rights demonstrations last week, also claim they were denied legal counsel at a hearing before college officials. They asked an injunction that would prohibit enforcement of the suspension notices.

This Program, subsidized by the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, is designed to step up or refresh, to the 8th grade level, the reading, writing, English, spelling, and arithmetic abilities of persons eighteen years of age and older.

These same type classes are planned at a later date for Jewish Community Center, Wilkie House, YWCA, Salvation Army Corps No. 1, and Salvation Army Community Center.

The Program is administered by the Department of Adult Education, Des Moines Public Schools.

Special Election Will Send 6 Negroes to Georgia House

Twenty-four Negroes including top officials of two major civil rights organizations are candidates for the special state primary election here May 5.

June Election

Seventeen Negroes are running on the Democratic ticket and seven for the Republican Party. Negroes are running in a total of 12 races for the newly re-apportioned state house.

"Know Your Neighbor" Panelist Tells of Group's Trip to Nation's Capital, Md.

BY FRANCES E. HAWTHORNE

Last week six Des Moines housewives, members of the award-winning Know Your Neighbor Panel, created a sensation when they gave an hour-long program before some 3,000 businessmen attending the 53rd annual convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

National Recognition

Their national recognition increased when they appeared the following evening with their personal experience - type program geared at better human relations, at the University of Maryland in Baltimore.

A few days after they arrived back home we sat down for an interview with one of them, Mrs. James B. (Arlene) Morris, Jr., one of the Negro members of the 14-member panel, and the only Negro making the trip to the nation's capital.

Enjoyed

"We didn't have a question and answer period after our program in Washington, D.C. but afterwards, many of the Chamber men came up to us and told us how much they enjoyed the program. Several invited us to appear in their hometowns," said Mrs. Morris.

"Later, in the lobby three men from North Carolina, who are involved in a human relations group back home came up to my husband and me and started talking about the panel. They wanted to know if our panel could help them."

MRS. MORRIS

3 Years Ago

Mrs. Morris, who joined the panel a year after it was organized in 1961, said that the Maryland program had a question and answer period. The panel appeared before the second annual Community Conference of Prince George's Human Relations Committee.

"They wanted to know if we felt that the sit-ins and demonstrations did more harm than good, especially the sympathy demonstrations," she said.

No Control

"My answer was that we have no control over the sympathy demonstrations. Each community and each individual must decide for themselves. In some areas where they have no other recourse, demonstrations are the last method left to bring attention to race relations problems. They have already tried other methods."

"Many of them in the audience wanted to know when the panel started and the pattern of living in Des Moines. Some wanted to know if we were actually neighbors."

Questions about the panel itself, Mrs. Morris said are answered by the attending moderator, either Mrs. Arthur Stein, Jr., founder of the panel, or Mrs. Lewis Goldberg.

Manager's Confab

She revealed that the Washington, D.C. appearance grew out of the presentation of the panel last fall before the Manager's convention in Des Moines.

"It wasn't long after that, when we received the invitation from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. And of course, we were invited to the University of Maryland soon after when they learned we were going to be in that part of the country this spring."

To New York First

The panelists, whose out-of-town round travel expenses are always paid by the inviting group, made the trip accompanied by their husbands, by jet airliners, stopping off first in New York for a visit and sightseeing. Then they went on to the nation's capital arriving there on Sunday.

"We attended the Iowa congressional dinner on Sunday evening and talked with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Her-ring, Senator and Mrs. Jack Miller and Rep. and Mrs. Neal Smith, in addition to many others."

Other Relatives

In the audience that day the panelists appeared on the platform of the huge international ballroom of the Washington Hilton hotel were

Former FBI Undercover Agent Tells Eye-Witness Tale of Chase, Shooting

Haynesville, Ala.—On the second day of the trial for Collie LeRoy Wilkins, Jr., one of three klansmen charged with first-degree murder in the sniper-slaying of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo of Detroit, Mich., the court heard a dramatic eye-witness description of the 100-mile an hour chase and of the shooting from a former undercover agent for the FBI.

Wilkins, who is accused of firing the fatal bullets, went on trial Monday morning after an all-male white jury was impaneled.

Gary Thomas Rowe, of Birmingham, Ala., the FBI informer, told a Lowndes county jury:

Fired 2 Shots

"Wilkins put a gun out the window at elbow length, and as we got even with the front window of the other car, the lady driving the auto looked at us and Wilkins fired two or three shots."

Moments later as the Klan car sped on down the highway leaving Mrs. Liuzzo dead at the wheel of her vehicle, Rowe said that Wilkins declared:

"Baby brother, I don't miss. That so-and-so is deadlier than hell."

At the wheel of the Klansmen's car, said Rowe, was Eugene Thomas, 42, and beside him was William O. Eaton, 41.

Three Were Armed

Rowe, a red-haired man of 34, said that three of them were armed, with Thomas having surrendered his weapon to Wilkins just before the slaying.

All four occupants of the car lived in the Birmingham area and upon their return there after the killing, Rowe testified:

"Gene Thomas said, 'let's go by the dragon's house.'—that's Robert Creel, the grand dragon of the state of Alabama—and tell him what a good job we did."

Rights March

Mrs. Liuzzo, 39, of Detroit, mother of five children, had come to Alabama to take part in a civil rights march from Selma to Montgomery. She was shot to death the night after a march to the state capital.

At the time, Mrs. Liuzzo was ferrying marchers back to Selma in

Geo. W. Carver Scorned Wealth While Creating Multi-Millionaire Industries

New York, N. Y.—While creating multi-million dollar industries by his experiments with peanuts, soybeans and other farm products, George Washington Carver refused any increase in his $125-a-month starting salary during his 46 years on the Tuskegee Institute faculty.

This is revealed by Lawrence Elliott in "Beyond Fame or Fortune," a new biography of the famous Negro scientist, published in the May Reader's Digest.

Dyestuff Firm

Often he delayed cashing his salary checks until the treasurer protested and frequently he gave them to needy students. He refused to go to work for Thomas Edison at $100,000 a year. A dyestuffs firm offered Carver a laboratory and a blank check. He sent back the check with formulas for 536 dyes that he had discovered.

No Charge

When Florida peanut planters sent a box of diseased specimens with a check and offer of a retainer, he diagnosed the disease and returned the check. "If the good Lord charged nothing to grow your peanuts," he wrote, "I do not think it fitting of me to charge anything for curing them."

Spurred by Carver's research, America's peanut crop, Elliott writes, today is our sixth most important agricultural product. The two billion pounds harvested each year are worth close to 300 million dollars to the farmer and another 200 million to industry.

Presidents

In addition to the admiration of scientists everywhere, Carver won ida A&M University for more than 15 years as Director of Extension and Director of Continuing University Studies, is regarded as an outstanding program developer in the area of adult education.

the friendship of Presidents Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge and Franklin D. Roosevelt, and also of Henry Ford, the industrialist. Ford and Carver visited each other for years and Ford named a Dearborn school for him.

Three years before he died on Jan. 5, 1942, Carver, who never married, gave his life savings of $33,000 to the Carver Foundation to provide more facilities at Tuskegee for research. Other gifts followed and the Foundation now has a two-million dollar building.

Congress passed unanimously a bill by Sen. Harry S. Truman creating the George Washington Carver National Monument on the site of the farm near Diamond Grove, Mo., where Carver was born a slave in 1862.

$100,000 Grossed at Detroit NAACP Dinner

Detroit — Nearly 2,000 persons paid $100,000 to hear Massachusetts Attorney General Edward Brooke address the tenth annual Fight for Freedom dinner of the Detroit Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People here, Sunday, April 25.

The glittering, $100 per couple affair—attended by civic, business, professional and political leaders of both races—grossed more money for the Association than any previous Freedom Fund dinner. Entertainment was provided by the celebrated singer, Billy Eckstine.

Largest Branch

Co-chairmen of the dinner committee were Dr. Lionel F. Swan and Melvin D. Jefferson. The Rev. James E. Wadsworth, Jr., is president of the Detroit NAACP, the largest branch in the country, with 22,400 members.

In the ten years that the branch has been sponsoring the annual Fight for Freedom dinner the affairs have grossed half-a-million dollars.

Publishers Assess Value of Advertising in Negro Press

New York City—The prediction that American industry will significantly increase its advertising expenditures in the 150 Negro newspapers in the nation (The Iowa By-stander is included) was made here Sunday by John H. Sengstacke, President and Publisher of one of the country's top Negro publications, THE CHICAGO DAILY DEFENDER.

Good Reasons

Sengstacke, who is also President of Amalgamated Publishers, Inc., which represents more than half of the U. S. Negro newspapers, had good and sufficient reasons for his optimism. API had just concluded—Saturday and Sunday at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel—its first annual workshop, which was attended by 35 advertising executives of the Negro press.

At a luncheon, held on Saturday, more than 100 top officers of top-drawer corporations and advertising agencies heard the Chicago publisher in a brilliant presentation of the important role the Negro press has played and is still playing in the life of the Negro in America.

Agency

The API President said the agency had been created by the Negro publishers in 1961 "to pool our resources, to improve our product, to get and present the facts on this half-recognized market of increasing urban concentrated earning power and quality consciousness.

"The publishers also felt that one agency could do a more effective job of serving agency and client by putting into operation for the first time in this industry the idea of one order, one billing and one check," Sengstacke said.

First Report

Luncheon guests received copies of Amalgamated's first research report, prepared for API by Data Division of Standard Rate and Data Service. The report is entitled: "A Consumer-Audience Profile Of The Negro Community."

Declaring that the fundamental role of the Negro press since founding of the first publication in 1827, has been the job of improving relationships and communication between white and Negro, Sengstacke militantly outlined the continuing need for Negro newspapers.

Set Awards For NCCJ Dinners

Albert C. Berkowitz, Harry I. Pugh, and George E. O'Malley, who recently retired as co-chairmen of the Iowa and Quad-Cities region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, have been selected to receive the organization's Distinguished Service Award. Silver plaques "for distinguished service in the field of human relations and to the cause of brotherhood" will be presented at the NCCJ's 37th Anniversary Dinner, May 19th at the Hotel Fort Des Moines.

various other relatives of the group who accompanied them from Kansas City, Iowa and even came down from New York City.

"I took my 'Goodwill Ambassador' pin along to wear and then I forgot to put it on that day," she smiled referring to the pin presented the panelists several years ago by the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce.

Questions

Reflecting on the questions most often asked the panelists from the audience Mrs. Morris, said, "They always asked about intermarriage.

This is both a racial and an interfaith question. Many of their questions reflect the current human relations events that have made the headlines.

"Many people come up to us after the program wanting to discuss a question further or ask one they had not wanted to ask publicly during the program. Giving a program before a youth audience is a little more stimulating. They are less inhibited about expressing themselves."

Unexpected

"I think one of the most unexpected questions came when we gave the panel at Simpson college. One girl asked me, 'Do you think Americans owe you anything?' As if I wasn't American!" she laughed.

The panel has given some 195 presentations to every conceivable kind of group or organization in some 40 cities including some of the larger ones, twice each in Chicago, Ill., and Minneapolis, Minn., once in St. Paul, Fargo, N. Dak., Toledo, Ohio, and later this month will travel to Superior, Wis., for an appearance.

Background

The mother of three sons and wife of an attorney in a family law firm, Mrs. Morris is a native of Moline, Ill., and is a graduate of the University of Iowa. She currently is taking graduate work at Drake university. Active as a member of the North

High P.T.A. and on the board of the Iowa Children's Home Society, she has had to curtail much of her civic activities which in the past has included vice president and secretary at Irving Junior High P.T.A., services on the boards of the YWCA, Child Guidance center, Planned Parenthood Committee, World Prayer Day committee, Broadlawn Hospital guild and working with the Polk County Foster Home committee.

Accomplishments

On the accomplishments of the panel she said, "it is hard to assess any influence in a given community, unless it is by the individual responses; and we get many of them. 'Some small communities with no minorities feel they have no problems; But others are quite aware of what is going on and when they are trying to get new industry in, know they are likely to acquire some Negro families. They often want to discuss things before they have a lot of problems.

Personal Gains

When asked what personal gains she had acquired as a panelist, Mrs. Morris answered, "Being on the panel has made it easy for me to discuss sensitive situations openly. For many years I would keep things to myself. An opportunity to discuss openly has been of great value. It has helped me to understand people."

Howard University President Says Recent Campus Demonstrations Are Unwarranted

Washington, D. C.—Howard University President James M. Nabrit, Jr. today cautioned student demonstrators at his institution against actions that would disrupt the work of the University, saying that such behavior, even when perpetrated under the guise of academic freedom, will not be tolerated.

In an address before some 1,500 College of Liberal Arts freshmen at their weekly assembly and in a statement which was distributed to the remainder of the student body and faculty, Dr. Nabrit declared, "I will not sit idly by and see (Howard) University become a place for lawlessness and disorder."

The president's remarks, which were endorsed earlier today by a unanimous vote of the University's board of trustees, were prompted by a series of sporadic student protests at Howard during the past six weeks. The demonstrations reached their spokesmen of a group called Students for Academic Freedom voice a variety of complaints about alleged administrative policies and practices at Howard. The complaints ranged from dormitory hours, which SAF claimed are too restrictive, to a charge that a teacher was demoted and later dismissed for her advocacy of student rights.

company with a young Negro, Leroy Moton, 19, who was unhurt. He testified earlier that at the time the fatal bullet struck her, Mrs. Liuzzo was humming the civil rights theme song, "We Shall Overcome."

Before the dramatic eye-witness account by Rowe, the Negro youth, Moton, told the jury:

"A car pulled up in the other lane and shot into our car two or three times. Our car went off the road by itself."

Wasn't Positive

But under cross-examination by Klan attorney Matt H. Murphy, Jr., the witness said he could not be positive that the gunfire came from the passing car.

"The car pulled up and two or three shots were fired," he testified.

"The car was passing and the shots came in."

"You don't know where the shots came from, do you?" he was asked. "No," Moton replied.

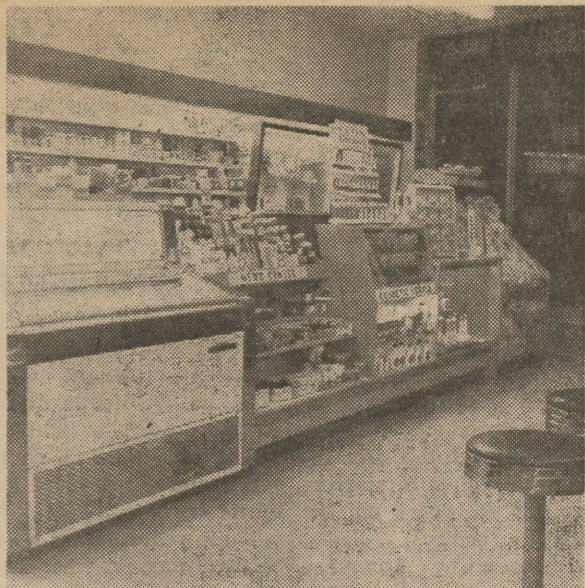

The Negro youth said he turned off the auto lights and the ignition after the shooting. "Then a car came back."

Moton said he covered beside the body while lights from the other car shone in his direction. He said he passed out for 25 minutes afterward. He was not wounded.

WE COVER A

WIDE TERRITORY

Speaking to the nation Monday night in an effort to clarify the U.S. policy in the Dominican Republic, President Johnson said he would not sit idly by in a rocking chair and allow Russia to gain another foothold on the western hemisphere. Evidently he was alluding to the Russian buildup in Cuba during the Kennedy administration.

Prior to the advent of Castro and his followers in Cuba, America had succeeded in holding the line established in the Monroe doctrine. But before America knew what was going on, Russia had established missile bases in Cuba.

President Johnson does not intend to stand idly by and court such a disaster as exists in Cuba.

In an effort to prevent the spread of Communism, American forces are scattered in far away places and in some instances are engaged in actual warfare even though Congress has not declared war.

Many people find it difficult to go along with our policy in southeast Asia and in the Dominican Republic with respect to landing troops in these countries. They say it constitutes aggressive action. On the other hand, there are those who approve it, feeling that it far outweighs the threats of Russia and China to join the forces against us.

It had been hoped that the United Nations would do much to spare the world these brush fire wars which have the potential of spreading to other countries. Firmness in decisions in a foreign policy is desirable, but we must not hesitate to end these little wars by agreement of the parties that are honorable and kept.

QUESTION VALUE OF PUBLIC DEFENDERS

The Iowa legislature has before it a measure which would permit counties to establish the office of public defender. Some states do have such. The public defender would represent persons charged with crime who have no funds to pay a lawyer.

The Bystander refuses to get excited over such a proposal. Years ago, counties maintained physicians who cared for people without funds to pay. This is no longer true. Now they charge regular fees paid out of public funds. But some doctors continue to give free time to Broadlawn hospital.

Champions of the measure foresee better service with the public defender rather than by the appointment of individual lawyers to try the cases.

We have watched the individual appointment of lawyers for more than 40 years. There have been no claims by individuals of inadequate defense by the appointed lawyer. And the defendants have been given every consideration. Their rights were defended by the lawyers and guarded by the judges.

No lawyer with years of experience would be a candidate for such a post. Every Polk county attorney during the past 30 years has been a young man with but little experience. Invariably these offices have been well conducted.

The present system offers training and experience for the young lawyer just as internships and residencies in hospitals offer the doctors.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT

County Attorney Fenton is to be commended for his appointment of Paul Thomas as investigator in his office. It constitutes an upward step in recognizing ability without regard to whether found in a black or white person.

Thomas made an excellent record in the police department. He did his job well and had the respect of his fellow officers.

This appointment is an example for other offices in Polk County which have Negroes on their staff but never rise above an ordinary clerk or turn key in the jail.

Last weekend was such a busy one that we overlooked a lot of things that happened. But we guess no matter how. They are old news. Iowa University opened its spring football drills as did a lot of other schools. This is the year Coach Jerry Burns should have a winning team so we think. The pennant races got off with the Yankees sort of floundering around but come September they will likely be there. We know a guy who has a crazy bet with a local tavern owner. Everytime the Yankees win a pennant or a World's Series he dances on the tavern owner's bar. When the losses one or the other he has to pay out a princely sum of cash.

Negroes in Sports

The last two years he has danced and then paid. But for a while he got in a lot of dancing practice.

Negroes are moving into other sports fields. They have hit the big time in bowling and pocket billiards. The three cushion billiard champion of Chicago, Ill., is a Negro who has defended his title several times. It is simply that given an equal chance Negroes can do anything anyone else can. The thing that makes a player of any game better than average is the opportunity to play with stiff competition. More and more Negroes are getting this chance in all sports.

Have you ever heard of a Negro polo player? Neither have we but there just could be some.

Boxing

The Clay-Liston fight seems to be on for real. Most of the fellows who know say Clay should win again. But there are a few who like Sonny best. With all the legal Shenannigans going on the fight will probably gross five million dollars. And do you think it won't be held? Silly!

Local

The Wells billiard parlor has announced plans for a handicap carom billiard tournament to start May 10. This ought to bring in a lot of the boys who claim to be good. Maybe we can get good coverage in the local daily.

Tennis

We have been informed by Garland Haines that his son is playing tennis on the North High team, and we thought we saw a couple of fellows at Tech the other night. Maybe we spoke too soon about no Negroes on the local tennis teams. May find some more.

We wonder if our local football team to come up this fall is going to sign some good former college players or depend on local talent. We are afraid local talent won't be enough to keep our city in the league.

Then there are the little leaguers coming out to play the game and listen to their parents argue. What fun these parents have! We know some parents of a couple of little leaguers who don't speak to each other during baseball season. Nothing beats fun at the old ball park.

Tennis Star Arthur Ashe Hits Stride Trying to Land Spot on Davis Team

Los Angeles, Calif.—Arthur Ashe, the flashy young UCLA tennis star and Number 3 rated player in the United States, seems to be hitting his stride in his bid to land the playing vacancy created by Chuck McKinley's desertion for Wall Street and the business of selling stocks and bonds. Ever since Chuck announced his future concentration on the business of making a living, there has been a mad scramble among American players to impress the Davis Cup hierarchy concerning who deserves the coveted spot.

Watched

As the pride-and-joy protege of Dr. "Whirlwind" Johnson and Dr. Hubert Eaton, the first vice president and president, respectively, of the American Tennis Association, Ashe's performance is being watched with much interest in those circles.

After his loss to Ron Holmberg at the national indoor championship matches in Salisbury, Maryland, Ashe no doubt lost some ground. Holmberg and young Cliff Ritchey, the Texas high school sensation, were quite impressive with their spectacular upsets during the indoor matches.

Recent Play

But now Arthur is again considered the man to watch based on his recent play in the Thunderbird invitational tournament at Phoenix, Arizona. Arriving in Phoenix on a late plane, Arthur immediately changed clothes and blasted Robin Royce out of the tournament in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4. In the quarterfinals he found himself pitted against the ambitious and cocky young "boat rocker" Cliff Ritchey, who has been mentioned prominently for the vacant berth as an actual player on the Davis Cup team. Ashe washed him off the court in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2.
