OEO Threatened with Budget Slash

Seek to Cut $500,000 from Local Askings

By Caroline Pokrzywinski

A proposed national budget slash of 24% of all OEO funds was recently announced by John Wilson, director of research for the office of Economic Opportunities in Washington, D.C.

The proposed budget slash will take effect July 1, 1971, and severely cut OEO employees and projects in Des Moines.

The budget cut comes from the Office of Management and Budgets in Washington, D.C.

Cut Is "Broken Dream"

Mr. Frank L. Bailey, chairman, Greater Opportunities Board of Directors said that the budget cut, "is just another broken dream for the poor and disadvantaged."

Des Moines now receives $2 million in OEO funds.

The total amount of money in the Des Moines community paid through salaries from the Office of Economic Opportunity funds totals $66,364.09.

Greater Opportunities, Inc. receives $265,048 from OEO to pay their trainees.

Mrs. Davis director of Tiny Tots, Inc. said that her day care program will be cut by the OEO budget slash. "The state should make contributions so funds wouldn't be cut," she said.

Increase Employment Unemployment

As of October 31, 1970, OEO employed 242 Des Moines residents, 85-90% of these people were either unemployed, underemployed or on public assistance of some type.

Greater Opportunities (funded by OEO) employs 1600 people in its various training programs.

Tiny Tots Inc. took employs 17 people from ADC roles.

"I honestly feel that if the OEO budget program is cut the vast amount of unemployment will be chaotic," said Bailey.

"We appeal to everyone to back the program, cutting OEO funds will contribute to the national 6% unemployment rate," Bailey said.

Programs are Cut

Greater Opportunities and other OEO funded projects will have to be cut or operate on a smaller scale if the proposed 24% budget cut takes effect.

Al Brown, Executive Director of Greater Opportunities, said that the health centers and the education programs could possibly be discontinued and other projects would have to be reduced.

Phasing Out

"The government has been gradually phasing out OEO since 1968," said Brown.

"Phasing out OEO is getting rid of citizen participation and eliminating a way of life," he said.

Bailey suggested that perhaps the government is beginning to fear the "sleeping giant of the poor."

Fine Alabama Judge for Contempt of Court

Montgomery, Ala. — The refusal of a probate court judge to put the name of Negro candidates on the ballot in 1968 has led to conviction.

Judge James Dennis Herndon of Greene County, Montgomery, Ala. was convicted of civil and criminal contempt and fined $5,752 in federal court.

Herndon, who goes out of office Jan. 19 and will be succeeded by a Negro who defeated him for reelection also was put on probation for one year and ordered to pay the court costs growing out of the proceedings.

He was not sentenced to a jail term as he could have been under the criminal contempt conviction.

The three-judge federal court ruled that the judge, despite his denial had "actual knowledge" that both the three-judge court and later the U.S. Supreme Court had ordered the names of candidates of the National Democratic Party of Alabama put on the ballot of Greene and other counties.

The court said his refusal to do so was a "willful violation."

In the civil contempt order Herndon was fined $5,452 to be turned over to the six blacks candidates whose names he kept off the ballot.

Ask $100,000 in Hair Law Suit

Mrs. Vera Morrow, 1160 17th Street, a beauty operator, has filed a $100,000 law suit in the Polk County District Court against McRay's Inc. of Madrid, Iowa.

In her petition, she states that she had used the product for 12 years until one day it burned off a chunk of her hair.

The product was removed from the market in 1969 after the alleged incident occurred, said Mrs. Morrow's attorney.

Urges College Support

Students at 1,700 U.S. colleges and universities are being asked to support the widespread "Letter to Hanoi" protest campaign of the American Red Cross.

The campaign's goal, according to ARC President George M. Elsey, is to convince the government of North Vietnam that it should adhere to its Geneva Convention pledge in the treatment of U.S. prisoners, some of whom have been held in captivity for as long as six years.

Many Letters to Hanoi Since the campaign was first launched November 1969, hundreds of thousands of letters have poured into Hanoi asking that the North Vietnamese president promptly identify all prisoners, allow prisoner camp inspection by teams from the all-Swiss International Committee of the Red Cross, and the release of the seriously sick and wounded.

There has been a noticeable change in the North Vietnamese stand on the prisoner issue since the letter-writing campaign got under way. The number of U.S. prisoners identified by North Vietnam more than tripled, there has been an increase in the number of captives allowed to communicate with their families, and identified prisoners now are allowed to receive comfort parcels every other month.

Focus On Campus

While college students have participated in past "Write Hanoi" campaigns, Mr. Elsey pointed out that the current effort marks the first time that the "protest" has focused primarily on the campus.

A specially designed public service advertisement has gone to daily and weekly publications at each of the 1,700 schools. The Red Cross also has provided

NAACP Urges Defeat Of Educational Bill

In an effort to protect and extend gains in school desegregation, the National Association of Colored People called upon Congress to reject the $1.5 billion emergency educational bill unless two anti-Negro amendments were deleted in the last days of the 92nd Congress.

In a telegram to Clarence Mitchell, dispatched, December 3, Executive Director Roy Wilkins called upon the Association's Washington representative to "advise senators and congressmen of our stand."

The text of the telegram follows:

We understand emergency education bill authorizing one billion five hundred million dollars in federal assistance in carrying out desegregation policy will be considered in closing days of session. This bill contains two amendments, one prohibiting the use of any of the funds for the busing of children and one permitting tests of pupils to determine if they shall be entered in desegregated schools. The national association for the advancement of schools. The National Association For The Advancement of Colored People is opposed to both these amendments and, accordingly, cannot support the bill of which they are a part. The whole Desegregation Policy and the court orders thereon would be nullified by the prohibition against busing in cases where that is the only method through which desegregation can be achieved. To allow local authorities to give tests before according pupils the right to education in an unsegregated school system would be to sacrifice the future of little black children to a political maneuver designed to return public education to the status of the period before 1954. Please advise senators and congressmen of our stand.

DRAKE Presents Certificates to 64 Trainees

Sixty-four men and women, now completing two years of training through the federally funded New Careers program, received certificates of completion from the University College of Drake University at commencement exercises Saturday in Meredith Hall, 28th Street and Carpenter Avenue.

Jerry L. Kirks, assistant to Drake President Paul F. Sharp, and Art Jackson, Director of Career Development for the city of Des Moines.

The New Careers program is sponsored by the United States Department of Labor through a grant to the city of Des Moines that is administered by Greater Opportunities, Inc., with an education program coordinated by Drake's University College.

Commencement speaker was Dr. Hoke L. Smith, Vice President of Academic Administration at Drake University and the Rev. Lewis Grady, associate pastor of the St. Paul AME Church, will give the invocation. The Valley Singers of Valley High School, West Des Moines, performed. Roger S. McCann, assistant dean of University College presided.

While receiving training to qualify as paraprofessionals in human service agencies, New Careers students have taken college courses at Drake in subjects related to the fields in which they are training, according to John Garvey, training coordinator of the New Careers program at Drake University.

"We provide," Garvey said, "subjects relevant to their work, so their academic training parallels their on-the-job training."

The students have been training in such jobs as welfare worker aides, teacher associates, inhalation therapist aides, audio-visual media technicians and psychiatric nurses aides.

New Careers participants have worked with such agencies as the Des Moines city government, Goodwill Industries, the Polk County Welfare Office, the Des Moines Public Schools, and hospitals in the Des Moines area.

Those receiving certificates were: Ethel Ack-for Des Moines Public Schools, various model city neighborhood programs, local businesses, human service agencies, and Drake University.

Mrs. Mary Clark is the Educational Counselor for the students in the Occupational Upgrading program.

"Mary's job," Freeman said, "basically is to help the students set their own goals. Some students plan to get degrees, and others plan to get enough formal training to realize their occupational goals."

Students Are Assessed Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Willa Parker, Occupational Upgrading's Psychometrist, assess each student's abilities before he enrolls in courses.

"What courses the student takes," Mrs. Clark said, "depends on his goals and what his assessment shows. Usually, a student starts with courses in communications skills and social sciences."

Justice Dept. Will Not Prosecute Davis on Loyalty Oath Charges

The Justice Department will not prosecute black militant Angela Davis in connection with her signing of a loyalty oath in 1967 as a condition for getting an education fellowship.

The decision was relayed to Representative William Scherle (Rep., Ia.), who suggested that department agents interview Miss Davis about when she actually became a member of the Communist Party.

Robert C. Mardian, assistant attorney general, wrote Scherle that the department had considered whether a criminal action was warranted under the National Defense Education Act "on the basis of Miss Davis' alleged party affiliation at the time of applying for or receiving funds under the act."

But, Mardian said: "After thoroughly examining the facts and related evidentiary problems, we concluded that prosecu-

Drake Aids Model City Residents Thru Training

Des Moines' model city area residents are preparing themselves to be advanced in jobs through Drake University's Occupational Upgrading Program.

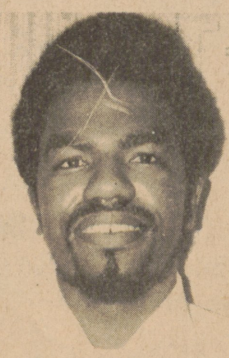

The program, which operates through Drake's University College, provides college training to those residents and qualifies them to be placed in jobs as paraprofessionals and or promoted to higher levels.

Pilot Plant Operator

A little more than two years ago Ron Booker was moving furniture and pondering a hitch in the U.S. Navy.

Today he's assisting in experiments in alpha olefins research for Gulf Research & Development Co., a subsidiary of the Gulf Oil Corporation, at Harmarville, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

Why the change? He enrolled in the successfully completed Gulf's probably unique Technician Training Program, a two-year, earn-and-learn course developed to upgrade the skills of high school graduates who were unable, usually for financial reasons, to continue their education.

Gulf Trains Technicians

The program trains laboratory technicians, a job that in the past has required two or three years of college or vocational training. Technicians are highly skilled assistants to professional scientists conducting laboratory experiments and related projects.

Ron Booker is one of eight young men who were graduated from the course recently, five of whom were black.

They received certificates of recognition, but more importantly they were promoted to new jobs with increased responsibilities and challenges—and better pay.

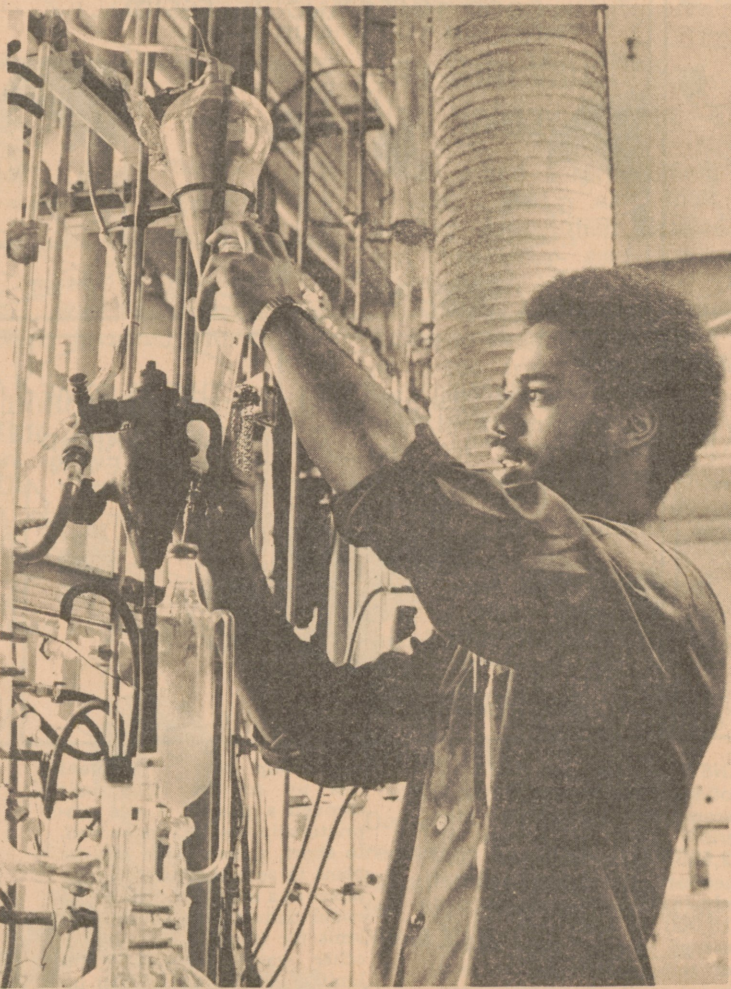

Ron Now in Research

Mr. Booker, who started with Gulf Research in 1968 as a temporary Materials Handler following graduation from Kiski Area High School, is now a Pilot Plant Operator in the Petrochemicals Division, assigned to the research section studying new production processes for alpha olefins, an important substance used in the manufacture of biodegradable detergents, plastics, epoxy glues and dozens of other products.

"It's an exciting job," Mr. Booker says. "I find my assignments interesting and also those projects my friends in other divisions tell me about. We're involved in everything."

Hired in Jobs Program

He was originally hired as a summer employee under the JOBS program of the National Alliance of Businessmen, designed to aid disadvantaged youths. He had hoped to go to college, possibly on an athletic scholarship, but his track and football skills weren't good enough to earn the assistance he needed.

GULF TRAINEE NOW TECHNICIAN — Ron Booker, a Pilot Plant Operator in the Petrochemicals Division of Gulf Research & Development Co., Harmarville, Pa., conducts an experiment in an alpha olefins research unit. A high school graduate, he started at Gulf Research as a Materials Handler on a temporary summer basis under the National Alliance of Businessmen's JOBS program. But he entered and completed Gulf Research's two-year, earn-and-learn Technician Training Program and now fills a job that has in the past required two or three years of college or technical school.

Hauling furniture and equipment into a new GR&DC building that summer, he was expecting to enlist in the Navy in the fall.

But in August he learned he was eligible for the Technician Training Program just being started. He signed up and on September 2, 1968, was reclassified as a Technician Trainee.

Vital Courses Included

Twelve men were in that first class. Some were Gulf employees looking to improve their positions, as was Ron; some were hired from the outside. The program of study included subjects vital to the oil industry and the job training in various divisions of the plant.

Ron Booker was married earlier this year, and is considering continuing his education, either in a nearby community college or at a technical school.

"I was good in high school in English and sciences," he said. "I'd like to develop my skills to help me improve my job performance and for personal satisfaction."

campus radio and television stations with spot announcements concerning the "Write Hanoi" effort. In addition, special exhibits have gone to some 500 colleges and universities for display in campus buildings.

Fans Urged to Protest

The campus campaign got under way at the season-end football bowl classics where over one-half million "Write Hanoi" leaflets were distributed to fans urging their participation in the protest.

The Red Cross, which has vowed to "pursue without interruption" its effort to gain humane treatment for war prisoners, sees the issue as one on which hinges the "continued confidence of the world in the integrity and solidarity of the Red Cross as an instrument committed to the cause of humanity."

"Hanoi has repeatedly shown its awareness of public opinion in this country," said Mr. Elsey. "The 'Write Hanoi' campaign is one more means of mustering world public opinion and thus convincing the North Vietnamese they have more to gain by honoring their Geneva Convention pledge than by continuing their intransigent attitude."

It's coffee time any time in our part of the country. Every housewife has her own brand and way of making coffee. Here are a couple of hints that prove most successful:

1. Use a clean coffee pot. Coffee has a tiny film of oil, so add detergent to the hot water when you wash the pot. Be sure to rinse well.
2. Determine the measure you like and stick to it. Most people use one tablespoon of coffee for each cup.
3. Watch your timing when you percolate coffee. Six to eight minutes is about right.
4. Use only fresh water and fresh coffee.

Follow these ideas and you'll be the best maker of coffee in your area.

Seek to Register 18 Year Olds

A nationwide drive to register the newly enfranchised 18-year-olds was announced this week by James Brown, Jr., director of the Youth and College Division of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The campaign, he said, will be kicked-off late in January.

The NAACP Youth Division has been among the most active forces in the successful campaign to lower the voting age to 18. In April, 1969, this unit sponsored the National Youth Mobilization Conference which brought more than 2,500 young people to Washington to lobby for the then pending measure.

Mr. Brown and Miss Philomena Queen, president of the Maryland State NAACP Youth Conference, testified in support of the legislation before the Senate Sub-committee on Constitutional Amendments.

The youth division is committed to continuing its efforts to get legislation enacted in all the states to assure the right to vote to all 18-year-olds in all elections, Mr. Brown said.

QUESTION: I am planning to invest in an HR-10 pension plan (self-employed person's tax deductible premium plan) and am not sure how to figure how much I can apply to this. My net income from my business is about $18,000 a year, but I have another $8,000 a year from dividends on stocks, mortgage interest and capital gains on security sales. Can I use the maximum 10% on my total $26,000 income?

ANSWER: Certainly you cannot use 10% on your $26,000 income as the legislation prescribes 10% of income of $2,500, whichever is less. Furthermore, this may be applied only to earned income, or the $18,000 in your case. One's "earned income" must be under self-employment; so one cannot combine income earned as an employee of another with income earned from one's own business or businesses. A person having more than one business can combine the earned incomes. Or a partner covered under an HR-10 plan of the partnership may supplement this up to the legal limit through a plan in a sole proprietorship that he runs as well. In short, a man could not use plans in several separate enterprises as a method by which he could deduct over the $2,500 limit for himself. Put still another way, the 10%-2,500 limit applies to the earned income entry on the individual's income tax return.

Your professional hairdresser knows the answer... Is braiding your "natural" the only way to make it look better?

Do you have to braid your hair every night or everytime you wash it? Going through this process makes it easier to comb, keeps down split ends and helps give your 'fro more body. However, it sometimes takes several days of braiding to achieve these results.

The best and quickest way to keep a nice shaped 'natural' is to go to your professional hairdresser for the Kindness System from Clairrol. It's the new way of styling and making a flimsy 'fro a fuller 'fro. The Kindness® Instant Hairsetter & Kindness® Heat-Activated conditioner are the instant problem solvers for tangles, breakage and damaged ends. It's great for all kinds of hair styles and wigs too!

After washing and towel drying your hair, the professional hairdresser applies the Kindness Heat-Activated Conditioner. It's formulated to give hair deep-down body and a healthy glow. Then, the Kindness Instant Hairsetter, with its warm-hearted rollers, is used to help penetrate the conditioner gently into your hair. This gives your hair more beauty and hold power for a style that lasts and lasts. Then, of course, the expert does the styling.

Why not talk to your hairdresser about using the Kindness System. From wash to set... including shaping... it takes less than an hour. Your professional hairdresser knows that the Kindness System is far better than tiresome braiding.

Ready Use Factor In Locating Bath

It's economical to put a second or third bathroom close to an existing one, to utilize the same plumbing. But an added bath is primarily for convenience, so place it where it can serve most of the family, even though pipe runs may be longer. For a distinctive bathroom, panel the walls with western red cedar lumber paneling. It's highly stable despite alternate dampening and drying.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. I have received an invitation to a bridal shower on a girl whom I scarcely know. Am I justified in ignoring this invitation entirely?

A. This would be bad manners towards the hostess who invited you. However, that hostess did forget the fact that showers are for CLOSE friends and relatives of the bride, neither of which you are. Acknowledge the invitation, saying simply that you're sorry, but you have another engagement for that particular date.

Q. When dining in the home of friends, and ashtrays are placed on the table, is it permissible to smoke between courses?

A. Never! Wait until the meal is over.

Q. Is a bridegroom always expected to pay a fee to the clergyman?

A. Yes. The amount depends upon the size and expense of the wedding itself as a rule, and is given in new bills in a plain white envelope. This is given by the groom to his best man, who later gives it to the clergyman.

Q. When served baked potatoes recently at a dinner, the man next to me proceeded to remove the potato from its skin and mash it on his plate. Isn't this the wrong way to eat baked potato?

A. Yes, correctly, it is eaten from the skin.

Q. Is it acceptable now to send a typewritten note of condolence, signing it of course by hand?

A. While most social correspondence may now be typed, it still is considered in better taste and more indicative of sincere sympathy to write letters of condolence by hand.

Q. Is the napkin always used at the dinner table before drinking from the water glass?

A. Yes. This is one of the napkin's main functions, the idea being that you avoid leaving an unsightly smear on the edge of your glass.

Q. My husband and I have received an invitation to a wedding, but I shall be unable to attend. Would it be proper for my husband to go alone, or must we both decline the invitation?

A. There is no reason at all why your husband should not attend alone.

Q. I have a surname which is constantly being mispronounced by other persons. Should I overlook this, or am I justified in correcting it?

A. You are in perfect right to correct it — such as, "I'm sorry, but my name is Harrigan, not Hennegan."

DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR.

Friday marks the birthday of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., one of the dynamic leaders this country has produced.

His crusade for non-violent action for civil rights reached deep in the hearts of many people helping to provide common ground for a better attitude for minorities - for the poor.

In recognition of his great contribution to the cause for which he gave his life, many schools and public places will be closed Friday. Proclamations are being made by State and county offices. A campaign to make his birthday a national holiday is gaining ground. We hope for its success that one of our holidays will be in memory of a Negro.

MAKING PUBLIC OFFICIALS OBEY THE LAW

Last fall, the probate judge in Montgomery County, Alabama, was ordered by a federal court to place the names of Negro candidates on the voting ballot. The judge refused.

A group of Negroes brought an action against the judge accusing him of contempt for his flagrant violation of the court order.

Last week, a panel of federal judges found the judge guilty of contempt and meted out a heavy fine to him.

It would seem that a judge should not permit his prejudices to so far ignore authority. But in some of our backwoods communities Negro rights mean nothing to officials who feel they can get away with anything.

This is an instance of no respect for the law by some people in high places which must be dealt with by prompt and decisive action.

CREDIT WHERE CREDIT BELONGS

Simeon Booker, chief of the Washington Bureau for Johnson publications, writing in Jet magazine, said Negro leaders oppose a welfare measure before Congress because it was proposed by President Nixon. They overlook the good or refuse to recognize it.

When Bishop Spottswood made the wholesale charge that President Nixon was doing nothing for Negroes, facts and figures were presented showing that more money is being channeled in Negro activities today than ever before.

True, President Nixon has done some things Negroes don't like; some that the Bystander does not like. So have other Presidents. On the other hand, a fellow should be praised for the good things he does, just as he should be criticized for those we don't like.

Said Booker, "The big effort to enact welfare reform legislation on Capitol Hill is being engineered by John Gardner and his newly formed Common Cause organization. The National Urban League's Whitney M. Young, Jr. is listed among the supporters of the drive. However, because the legislation is a brainchild of the Nixon administration, most Black groups - and politicians (excluding Rep. Augustus Hawkins (D., Calif.) - are surprisingly silent on the measure that could enrich the lives of millions of Blacks in southern states. Sadly, Black lobbying is nothing like the past efforts to push civil rights laws."

UNPREPARED FOR SNOW REMOVAL

It has been a long time since Iowa has been invaded by a snow storm such as moved in last week. Untold inconvenience and much suffering, of course, resulted.

There has been much criticism concerning the manner in which the city of Des Moines has handled the snow removal. Some of it is justified for in spite of the efforts of city workers, the job was slow.

SPORTS

With Allen Ashby

People have been asking us what we think of Iowa University's latest football coach. The guy has developed winners where he was, and we guess that if he is left alone, he will come up with a winner at Iowa.

We like his philosophy. We think the sort of thinking the man does is necessary for a winning ball club. One can't say much more than that about him until next fall. One thing is certain: he will very likely be the team boss, right or wrong.

Drake Is Hurting

And now to basketball. We have been just about the only person who thinks Drake doesn't have the ball club of last year. Maybe we got a few joiners after last weekend. This is not to disparage the Bulldogs, but those other fellows had played together for at least three years, and that went a long way toward making them into a ball club.

Then just about each man was a star in his own right, as evidenced by the fact that they all went to the pros if they wanted to. These guys may be tough as the season goes on, but we don't think that will come in time to save their championship for Drake.

Ia. U Has Same Problem Iowa U seems to have the same problem, lack of consistency. It is very hard to guess where they will finally finish in the Big Ten race, but we still say it won't be near the cellar. The Hawks are capable of beating just about anyone at times. We think they will be up enough times to make for a respectable finish.

Iowa State Looks Good Iowa State is still tabbed as the Big Eight spoiler in our book. They are almost sure to upset some title-bound team that just has to have the Iowa State game. And that one they won't get.

The Cyclones are learning to take advantage of their lack of size, and turn it into an asset. If they ever get a big man, look out Big Eight. North Pulls Away

Here at home, North High seems to be gradually pulling away from the pack in the city race. The Polar Bears beat both of the teams they had to beat, and that is generally the mark of a champion, although it is a bit early to be handing out laurels.

But, do you know, Roosevelt is coming on, and may be a deciding factor in the city race yet.

We still think Tech is turning the corner, and will get tougher as the season wears on. They seem to think so too.

Wonder how long it will be before the Metropolitan champ will automatically qualify for the sub state meet as they do in other states? Do you think never?

Sonny Dies

We were a bit surprised

It appears that the city was caught short by failing to arrange for a private source to take up the slack. Of course, it would be idle to expect a regular crew to tackle such a job. But the city can contract with private individuals to pick up the slack.

It looks as if so much emphasis has been put on other things which made the city forget about snow.

to hear of the death of Sonny Liston, former heavyweight champ. Can't make a guess as to the cause. But, a fellow who has once been on top sometimes finds it had to accept the fact that he is a has been, harsh as that sounds. A fit of despondency, and that is it.

Maybe we are wrong, but this is a guess.

Then, another former champ, probably got a chance to regain his honors when the Supreme Court agreed to hear his draft case.

Another Champ Fights

While we never agreed with the champ on his draft stand, or his religious philosophy, we have never questioned his right to have either or both. As we have so often pointed out, Ali has fought his battle through the courts where they should be fought, using every legal weapon at his command, just as any American who can afford it does. And he has said that he will accept the final verdict as he put it "Like a man without crying or fussing." What more could anyone ask than that?

WARDROBE WISDOM

BY JANE DONALSON

Today's gal... dynamic and fashionable... has more going for her wardrobe than ever before—like filament yarns with permanent waves!

When a straight piece of filament yarn is crimped, it looks like it just got back from the hairdresser. The result of this fabric "coiffing" can be compared to a soft but sturdy spring or cushion which helps absorb the shocks and strains of everyday wear. That's why Ban-Lon apparel, with fabrics made this way, wears so well, lasts so long and looks so great.

And, because the physical shape of the crimp makes it possible for air to be trapped easily, Ban-Lon continuous filament fibers are also made light, pliable, resilient, permanently lively, and highly absorbent, with a dry, warm, crisp hand... offering outstanding gal-on-the-go fashion comfort.

An added comfort factor: the crimp causes the fibers to stand off from each other, so that the garment can "breathe." This assures greater bulk and increased covering power with less weight.

In a way, this well-coiffed Ban-Lon yarn has built-in air conditioning too—being cool when it's hot, and warm when it's cold. And—of course—pilling or fuzzing is virtually eliminated.

A dampened paper napkin will pick up all those tiny slivers of a broken glass—and protect children's bare feet.

Activities of the Iowa Civil Rights Commission

The Iowa Civil Rights Commission begins the new year of 1971 with renewed vigor and a hopeful outlook toward the future.

We make but one resolution for the new year, that is, to work even harder to eliminate discrimination as a practice. To this end, we pledge a stronger united front and a better understanding.

To this end, we will work to educate those who fail to understand or experience the effects of discrimination.

During the past four-and-one-half years of its existence, the Commission has failed to reach out to all minority groups. We have poor liaison with Mexican American and American Indian groups. We shall work to strengthen and improve these relationships.

We have found in our past studies that Indians live shorter lives and are subjected to as much discrimination as any race. Even more than this, suicide and alcohol problems are greater among Indians. We now know that discriminatory treatment is a major cause of early death and the use of alcohol among Indians.

We have found that Mexican-Americans are overworked, underpaid, and housed in inadequate facilities throughout the state. Many are denied educational opportunities, and pay for the right to work.

We shall look forward to new and stronger legislation to help the Mexican American in his health and well being. We pledge to work for a statewide minimum wage for the citizens of this state. Hopefully, this will help to improve the plight of the migrant.

Health for All

A new epoch started this month. No more cigarette commercials on TV and radio. Ever.

The American government has finally cracked down. There will be no more dazzling, visual images of swishing walks in the woods - with mentholated filters that capture the beauty of the moment for the two of you. No more rugged, super-masculine rides through Marlboro Country.

No more brainwashing that smoking is the ultimate expression of getting it together, of being young and cool and sexy and with-it.

Every year - year after year - the tobacco industry coughed up hundreds of millions of dollars to broadcast the brainwash. This is the message: smoking is an indispensable accompaniment for the perfect moments; it even makes the bad moments better. Can you lose with a pitch like that?

29 Million Have Quit The brainwash worked for years. But it is wearing off. More than 29 million Americans have already quit smoking.

The cigarette companies have not quit yet, though. They expect a high profit from continued sales. And they plan to step up advertising in newspapers and magazines, even though some of these have refused to accept cigarette ads. Women and blacks have been selected as special targets

We pledge ourselves to further efforts to improve the plight of the Indian. We shall lend our efforts to improve his health and well being.

We further pledge ourselves to a more involved relationship with our black brothers in improving statewide recognition of their accomplishments and the task that yet remains to be completed.

We talk about the health and welfare of the Mexican American, American Indian and the Negro, not because of physical problems they experience, but rather because of the difference in treatment they receive. They suffer long and courageously, and in spite of that suffering we as a people rise up.

We look forward to an exciting year in 1971. Our crystal ball tells us that there will be more black business ventures, more successes, and some failures. We also look forward to exciting new adventures in publication within the state.

There will be more attention paid to the accomplishments of minority groups and their activities highlighting in new and exciting ways their activities. With combined efforts things can only get better.

Watch for the latest Iowa Civil Rights Commission annual report. It's available now, and it is exciting. If you feel that you have been discriminated against, contact the Iowa Civil Rights Commission, State Capitol Building, Des Moines, Iowa; or telephone (area code) 515-281-5129. If you just want to know more about your rights, contact us. We aim to help.

Snowmobiling

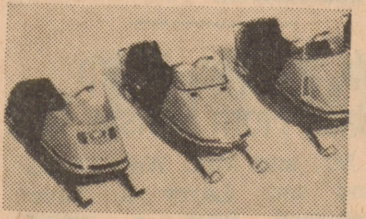

with Ralph Plaisted

Leader, Ski-Do Snowmobile Expedition to North Pole

If you're in the market for a snowmobile, you'll find this year of wide selection with some manufacturers offering two dozen or more models in several different series. You'll find new compact, new luxury machines... in fact, something for every pocketbook, with prices from $595 to $1,700.

Engine sizes range all the way from 12 to 35 horsepower. Electric start and reverse are options on many models. Both are convenient, but add weight and price. A snowmobile with a low-horsepower engine usually is a good choice for a new owner just starting the sport. People who already own a snowmobile will find many ideal second machines available.

Lighter weight snowmobiles are easy to handle and usually will provide more sporty action. If you plan on using your machine for utility purposes, however, larger engines and heavier duty components are desirable.

Snowmobiles come in one- or two-track models. The advantage of the twin-track is that it adds bearing surface for traversing deep snow, distributing weight over a larger area. Maneuverability decreases somewhat with two tracks, however.

On our snowmobile expedition to the North Pole, we used lightweight single track 12-hp machines that were highly maneuverable for getting across pressure ridges and dangerously thin new ice.

Talk to your local dealer about the machine best for you. With today's variety of machine sizes and styles, you may want two!

Stainless Steel School

A new secondary school in Allschwil, Switzerland, has its entire facade, including the window frames, fabricated of nickel stainless steel. This material, which is finding increasing architectural applications, offers resistance to atmospheric corrosion and damage. In addition, it requires little maintenance to retain its good appearance.

for big promotions in print.

There are ways to beat the brainwash and to start calling the shots yourself. There are ways to quit smoking that work. See your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association about some of the ways.

It's a matter of life and breath.

SUPPORT HOOVER; KEEP STANDARDS HIGH

To the Editor:

The cartoon on the first page of the Bystander (Dec. 31) furnishes material for a lot of serious thinking. It tells of J. Edgar Hoover's refusal of Robert Kennedy's request that standards be lowered in order that more black men be taken into the F.B.I.

Just why should standards be lowered? Down through the years thousands of black people have given positive proof that they can meet the requirements, whatever they are.

With crime on the increase, it would seem that more, not less, efficiency is desirable.

Maybe this was Mr. Kennedy's idea of kindness, however, it is plain condensation. In effect, it says, "there is little hope that blacks can reach up to our standards, so we will come down to meet their lack of capacity."

For many Negroes, this condensation is more irritating than outright rejection. This stereotype attitude is one of the most stubborn because it deceives so many black and white people.

Gordon Parks, famous photographer, was the fifteenth child born into a poor black family in Kansas. His mother died when he was young but he remembered that she always told him that he could do anything a white boy could do and that his color didn't hold him back. He believed her and proved her words true.

Of course, he had a lot of problems that the white boy did not have. Years ago, black parents told their children frankly: if you expect to compete with the white boy you will have to do more and better if you are to receive equal recognition.

Discouraging? No, it seemed to sharpen the child's determination to achieve. But maybe this is "handkerchief head stuff" today, but it was effective when parents dared to talk back to the kids.

The kids did a little back talk too, (if they were far enough out of reach) but usually the parents had the last word without sugar coating.

No group or even an individual can expect to gain respect or anything else of value, by lower standards. Always the goal must be higher and higher.
