Large Ford Grant Goes for Development

New Employment Survey Reveals Upward Swing In More and Better Jobs

Aimed to Promote Community Programs

NEW YORK — The Ford Foundation this week announced grants to promote development of community programs in housing, day-care centers, health, and education.

They include five grants totaling $875,000: $315,000 to the National Council of Negro Women for promotion of home ownership for low-income public-housing tenants through the federal government's "Turnkey III" program.

$150,000 to the Black Women's Community Development Foundation, for technical assistance to day-care and early childhood programs.

$100,000 to The Woodlawn Organization, for a community economic development program on Chicago's South Side.

The grant to the National Council of Negro Women will support informational and educational activities to promote the federally sponsored Turnkey III program, which enables public-housing tenants to become home owners.

Under the program, tenants receive a combination of government subsidies and credits for maintenance services they perform while paying rents until they have sufficient equity and income to assume title to the house.

The council, which successfully tested the Turnkey III program in Gulfport, Miss., offers such services as negotiating with local housing officials to

'Separatism Integration' Newspaper Must Help

CINCINNATI, Ohio — "Our newspapers must help us find a way to resolve the conflict of black separatism versus racial integration now racking the black community," said Civil Rights Leader James Farmer in an address here last Thursday.

The former Assistant Secretary of the Department of Health Education and Welfare, a sub-Cabinet post in the Nixon administration, was speaking before the three-day Mid-Winter Workshop of the National Newspaper Publishers Association at the Netherland Hilton Hotel.

"Black Think Tank" Farmer said his own efforts to help resolve the conflict are being approached through the establishment of a "Black Think Tank" composed of the best minds in America.

Prior to Farmer's address, Michigan Secretary of State

SBA Sponsors Business Seminar

The Minority Enterprise Seminar, sponsored by the Des Moines District Office of the Small Business Administration, in conjunction with Model Cities, was held Jan. 26, at the YMCA.

Representatives from Des Moines, Davenport, Waterloo, Cedar Rapids and Carlisle attended, 80 in all.

Participants included: Mr. Gerald Jepson and Mr. Elden Wolf from the Kansas City Small Business Administration, Mr. David Taylor, president of First Federal State Bank, Des Moines, Mr. Sam Stanley, Model Cities Planner, and Nelson Urban, Des Moines Service Core of Retired Executives (SCORE) and Richard J. Roberson, program manager for Minority Enterprises, Washington, D.C.

Presentations of specific interest were made by: Clarence Prazier, owner of Betty's Cosmetic and Beauty Salon and Prazier's Barber Shop, Waterloo, Iowa; George Greer, president of Greco Enterprises, Davenport, Iowa; and Paris Williams, proprietor of Paris Foodland, Des Moines, Iowa, concerning the operation of their businesses and participation in the Small Business Administration Programs.

The afternoon session consisted of three workshops concerning: 1. Loans and loan making, 2. Contract procurement for small businesses, 3. Management assistance programs and economic development.

Other seminars will be held in the future by the Small Business Administration which is a Federal agency of the government.

Twenty-four people received aid on the basis of need and family circumstances.

Recipients ranged from beginning college students to an ADC mother.

United Black Federation Scholarship funds are low. The college information service hopes to raise funds so the service can be continued.

Press Has Obligations

"Unless the black press keeps the black community better informed on their problems and how and by whom they can best be solved through the political process, it will not be done and our people who are the most under-represented and mis-represented segment of our population will go on being poorer and hungrier and more jobless than any other group," he declared.

The other three principal speakers at the workshop were John H. Sengstacke, president of the association who pressed for the support of NNPA programs designed to strengthen the black press; Abraham S. Venable, director of Minority Business Enterprises of the U. S. Department of Commerce who discussed a recent report on federal aid to black capitalism which he and the Secretary of Commerce presented to President Nixon.

Venable pointed out that financial grants, loans, and guarantees to minority business enterprises in 1970 total $315 million—some $200 million more than in 1969. Also he said the government signed contracts with minority businesses totaling nearly $22 million, compared with only $9 million the year before.

The third of these speakers was W. Beverly Carter, Jr., Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs and former publisher of the Pittsburgh Courier who talked about problems in South Africa and the general progress of the black African nations.

Urban League Obtains $1.4 Million Contract

The National Urban League's Labor Education Advancement Program (LEAP) has tripled its quota and received a new $1.4 million contract. This announcement was recently made by the Manpower Administration, Department of Labor.

The extended contract through August, 1971 will bring to 3,000 the number of minority youths being prepared annually by the League for apprenticeship entry tests and employment in the construction trades. According to NUL Labor Affairs Director Napoleon Johnson, this puts the League ahead of all other

Department of Labor "Apprenticeship Outreach" sponsors in number of placements.

Referring to the past year's LEAP record (in a recent Construction Labor Report of the Bureau of National Affairs), Manpower Administrator Paul J. Fasser, Jr., was quoted as saying: "We had expected the League to place only about 1,000... but the League has placed almost 2,800—nearly tripling its expected contract goal—without additional funds, also—and we salute the League for this outstanding accomplishment."

Since that report, Mr. Johnson indicated the League's placement record had reached 3,000. During the same period the League recruited 10,000 youths in 34 cities for the program, showing a far higher proportion of apprenticeship test completion and job placement than the 10% expected by the Labor Department.

Retention rate of recruits, once placed in jobs, was 88.45%—compared to the national average for apprenticeship of 50%. Mr. Johnson attributed LEAP's success to the experience and dedication of League staff, and their proximity to, and understanding of, the recruits and the community.

The program recruits widely from schools and neighborhoods, evaluates applicants against basic qualifications, prepares them for written tests for entering Race Bias Hurts U.S.

Racial prejudice is costing this nation a heavy toll in the wastage of human resources, a conference of 250 educators and parents were told in Greensboro a conference in human relations.

"There is a lot of human wastage," said Dr. Dorothy Dr. Williams was the keynote for the conference at A&T State University. Speaking on "The Nature of Prejudice," she urged the administrators and teachers to offer each child in school "the best kind of education he can get."

Dr. Williams said the widespread prejudice found in the United States has far reaching implications.

"The image of our country is at its lowest ebb," she added. "This is due to the fact that the other countries don't understand how a nation as developed as ours, simply can't handle our racial problems."

Dr. Williams cautioned against the use of intelligence tests and skin color as measures of a person's worth. "We have not been successful in defining intelligence, so we use cultural measures. Then there is something about skin color that gets us up so tight that we can't get over it."

'Project Read' Launched in Public Schools

The Des Moines Public Schools System is undertaking one of the largest reading programs ever developed — PROJECT READ — to improve the reading ability of some 1,880 pupils.

"The Board of Education's agreement with Behavioral Research Laboratories, Palo Alto, California, calls for that firm to coordinate an intense linguistic programmed reading project for students in grades K through 6," Superintendent, Dr. Dwight M. Davis, announced today.

The local schools currently involved in PROJECT READ include: Casady, Dunlap, Lucas, Moulton, Nash, Sablin and Scott Elementary Schools, and the Douglass Learning Center, special educational facility for junior high-age students in Des Moines.

Dr. Davis in announcing this new program, further stated, "My confidence in PROJECT READ is based on the fact that this is a complete program — far more than the materials alone. In addition to the materials, the program includes teacher-supervisor training and direct parent-community involvement in the total educational process. Board approval to go ahead with PROJECT READ indicates once more that improvement in reading skills is one of our major priorities."

To insure that the community has an opportunity to become actively involved in PROJECT READ, parents and other representatives of the local school community in which the programs are being conducted are invited to observe student progress and learn more about the programmed reading methods

Minority group Americans continue to move upward in the Federal civilian work force both in total numbers and in the number of better paying jobs held, reports the Civil Service Commission.

In releasing results from the minority group employment survey covering employment changes during the 6-month period from November 1969 to May 1970, Commission Chairman Robert E. Hampton said:

"The number of minority employees in the Federal service increased since the survey in November 1969, despite a decrease in total Federal employment. Minorities now hold more top-level positions at GS-16 through GS-18, (salary brackets from $28,129 per year to $37,624 per year.) and more positions at the highest pay levels of other schedules, than reported in any previous period."

In addition, the number of minority employees at GS-5 through GS-15 (income from $6,938 - $24,250 per year.) continues to increase at a faster rate than that for non-minorities. This extends the trend for minority employment reflected in the previous survey."

Fed. Employment Down
While total Federal civilian employment decreased by nearly 8,700 positions during the 6-month period from November 1969 to May 1970, minority group employees in Federal jobs increased by nearly 1,400 during the same period.

Negroes, Spanish-surnamed Americans, Oriental Americans, and American Indians now comprise 19.4 percent of the 2,593,000 Federal employees, up from 19.2 percent in November 1969. Over one-half million minority group Americans hold Federal jobs.

White-Collar Gains
Significant gains were posted for the 6-month period at the highest and most responsible white-collar levels, including those under both the General Schedule and other pay schedules. Minority employment at GS-16 through GS-18 increased by 14 positions.

"This is more than the increase at these top levels during the preceding 2 years," said Chairman Hampton, referring to an increase of 10 in minority employment at grades GS-16 through GS-18 from 1967 to 1969. This brings the total number of minority officials at these levels to 11.

In addition, minority employment in positions under other schedules paying $24,000 per annum or more rose from 109 to 156, including an increase of 23 positions in the top salary brackets at $30,000 or over.

The proportion of white-collar jobs held by minorities increased during the survey period. While net General Schedule employment increased by 3,204 jobs, minority employment in these white-collar jobs increased by 4,445, raising the total percentage held by minority employees to 14.4 per cent.

Nearly 10 per cent of the increase in minority white-collar employment (437 jobs) occurred in the senior and management levels at GS-13 and above.

Tables released by the Commission today reflected a higher representation of minorities in all grade groupings of the General Schedule, including the middle and upper levels.

In Federal pay systems other than the General Schedule:

—Increases, although slight, were reported in total minority employment in the Postal Field Service in the better paying jobs at PFS-6 and above.

—There was a decrease in total employment under wage systems (blue-collar

Calif's W. C. Riles Debuts New Plans

BY JACK MCCURDY
Los Angeles Times
Education Writer

Wilson Camanza Riles made his public debut as state superintendent of public instruction with ambitious plans, abounding enthusiasm and hopes of producing a new era in California education.

As the first black state schools chief, Riles said he will push for early childhood education, instruction in drug abuse, improved teacher training, school finance reform, more relevant schooling and, most of all, performance accountability in the schools.

He believes the California voters who elected him over incumbent Max Rafferty last November are concerned mostly about divisive controversy in education, high property taxes and lack of discipline in public schools. These concerns, Riles added, will become part of his own priorities.

To carry out his ideas, Riles recently shook up the higher echelon of the State Department of Education, which he heads as state superintendent. In announcing the re-assignment or removal of six top officers, Riles said he was seeking a "team approach to solving California's educational problems, rather than a divisive approach."

In a quiz program conducted by Vivian Hayes of Charleston, S.C., Red Cross recreation worker, a GI gives the V-for-Peace sign as the answer. He and the other U.S. servicemen seem to enjoy Vivian's visit, a regular Tuesday event for units of the 101st Airborne here.

Vivian Hayes-Making Someone Happy

CAMP EAGLE, South Vietnam, January 1971 -- Tuesday is the big day of the week for some units of the 101st Airborne here.

So a GI told Vivian Hayes, Red Cross recreation worker. Why is that? "Tuesday is when you Red Cross girls come to see us," he replied. The attractive black girl was not surprised by the remark. She hears it often and it always pleases her. "When they say that, you know you're making someone happy," Vivian said.

70 Women Deployed
She is one of more than 70 young American women, deployed throughout South Vietnam in the American Red Cross center-clubmobile recreation program. They visit with American servicemen at support camps and forward firebases, drawing them into group participation activities.

"The Red Cross is eager to send more young black women to work in this program," Vivian says. "Qualifications are a four-year college education and ages between 21 and 24 years. Girls interested should get in touch with the local Red Cross Chapter. They will find that the Red Cross is interested in them."

Morale is a Problem
GIs can get pretty down over here; morale is a problem, Vivian explained. "So when they respond to our programming, it makes me feel we are doing something worthwhile. I like being able to make a guy smile when he wasn't smiling."

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Hayes of Charleston Heights, S.C., she is a 1968 graduate of North Carolina A & T State University, Greensboro.

After graduation, she joined the Red Cross overseas recreation program and spent a year in Korea, doing much the same work as now in Vietnam. "I can't really see that much difference between Vietnam and Korea. The men are the same all over. They are bored there, and they're bored here. And they still have that same response."

Reach the Black GI
Before, in Korea, and now here, though she gives attention to all, she makes a special effort to reach the black GI. "I think it's only natural," she said. "I'm going to say 'Hello' and visit with them especially because I think they often feel sort of left out. When I do, they feel that maybe I, somebody really cares. Our coming by each week becomes something to look forward to."

Vivian emphasized that a girl does not need to be black to reach a black GI. She recalls an incident recently when the girl with whom she was teamed that day spotted a GI sitting over in the corner by himself. "He was black and he was depressed. After the program she went over and talked to him and got him to ride back to the compound in the jeep with us. He's been smiling ever since. The other night he just dropped by our trailer simply to say 'Hello.' It's the little things that help a lot."

Program Needs Blacks
Just the same she is acutely aware of being the only black girl around and feels the program needs more blacks.

"So does the Red Cross and it's trying hard to recruit them," Vivian observed. "The men want to see more black girls over here."

"If I were talking to a Sister, trying to persuade her to come over here, I would say, 'You've got Brothers over here who need your help. They need to know we care.'"

A Side of Life Not Seen
"Of course, the travel is fun," Vivian continued. "People back home think it's a frightening experience to come to Vietnam. There's a war, and they think of something bloody and melodramatic. But we rarely see that side of life over here."

"I'd explain to the Sister that the job is so big, it's really fantastic. You're not giving up a year of your life, you're getting good experience in a desirable job, and you're helping people."

And Vivian repeated, "If you're interested, write the Red Cross in Washington. It's interested in you."

Geo. Johnson Joins Board

George E. Johnson, President of Johnson Products Company, Inc., of Chicago, last week officially became a member of the newly-created U. S. Postal Board of Governors.

Mr. Johnson and six other board members were administered the oath of office during a Washington, D.C. ceremony and convened for a two-day meeting as the official governing body of the United States Postal Service.

ed Governors named Winton M. Blount as the first Postmaster General of the new Postal Service.

Mr. Blount has served as Postmaster General of the old Post Office Department since 1968. He was also elected Chairman of the new Board of Governors and will serve for an indefinite term.

The Governors and Mr. Blount will later elect a Deputy Postmaster General to round out the 11-member governing board established under the Postal Reorganization Act signed last August by President Nixon.

July 1, 1971, was set as the date on which the new U. S. Postal Service will officially replace the old Post Office Department operations.

Mr. Johnson, 42, founded the Johnson Products Company in 1954. The firm, which manufactures hair preparations, has an integrated administrative staff and more than 150 employees, predominantly black, at its headquarters in Chicago.

A native of Chicago, Mr. Johnson is presently active in numerous civic and socially-oriented organizations. He is Vice President of the Chicago

Gulf Highlights Year of Advancement of Blacks

The appointment of Daniel G. Kean to the position of Administrator, Equal Employment Opportunity in February of 1970 highlighted a year of advancement for blacks at Gulf Oil Corporation.

New inroads were made in the hiring, training and upgrading of blacks at all levels throughout the corporation. "We made a lot of progress in 1970," Kean said, "but we still have quite a way to go. Our goal is to have thorough participation of blacks at all levels and in all departments of the corporation. We cannot be satisfied until this is achieved."

Progressive Strides

Kean, a veteran of 16 years with Gulf in the company's Marketing and Public Relations departments, pointed out a number of accomplishments to substantiate the progress of blacks at Gulf during 1970.

Among the many new blacks at Gulf were several who hold master's degrees in business administration, a lawyer, an industrial hygiene engineer, an industrial relations specialist, an advertising trainee, a computer programmer, a chemist and a journalist.

Looking over new assignment

Among the more significant advancements of blacks during the year were the promotion of Kenneth L. Hawthorne to the post of Advisor to the Worldwide Marketing Coordinator in February and the naming of John T. Mitchell as an accounting supervisor in June.

Walter A. Jackson, a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Journalism, was hired by Gulf in January of last year as a staff writer in the Advertising and Public Relations Department. In November, he was given new responsibilities in the department and appointed to the post of Supervisor, Minority and Academic Relations.

Gulf continued to employ blacks in many other positions, including clerks, stenographers, computer operators, messengers and technicians. Five more blacks were promoted to the position of retail sales representatives in the eastern marketing region of Gulf Oil Company — U.S.

A number of organizations involved in working for black advancement in the areas of economic development, civil rights, education and community improvement received financial assistance from Gulf.

Gulf Aids Education

In another area of interest to blacks, aid to education, Gulf continued its program of giving capital and departmental grants to institutions of higher learning. This program has covered every private, four-year accredited Negro college in the United States, as well as a number of state-supported predominantly black schools. Roy Kohler, Manager of Community Relations for Gulf, said that Gulf participated in more than 100 functions in the black community during the year.

Medal Goes to Ex-N R.O.T.C. Head

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Navy Commander Gerald E. Thomas was awarded the Meritorious Service Medal Dec. 17 for his duty as commanding officer of the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps Unit at Prairie View A&M College, Tex.

Cmdr. Thomas, now a candidate for his Ph.D. at Yale University, received the medal, which ranks just behind the Bronze Star, from Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Manpower and Reserve Affairs, James D. Hittle, in a ceremony at the Pentagon.

Cmdr. Thomas has been selected for Captain and will be promoted in the Spring of 1971, becoming the fourth black naval officer to hold the four-star rank.

"Pleasant things occasionally happen in my present job," said Secretary Hittle before the ceremony. "Such as this presentation in recognition of your unique service to the Navy in a job that needs to be done, namely to increase the number of black officers in the Navy and Marine Corps."

NAACP Publishes Housing Report

NEW YORK — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has published a report on housing building systems in European cities. The 120-page paperback book is designed to bring to Americans related to the building industry knowledge about the relatively new "industrialized housing" process and its adaptability to reverse the urban housing shortage in this country.

The report, entitled "New Housing Concepts," will have special value as a guide to local public and private organizations in their efforts to encourage greater use of minority-group builders, professionals, and skilled and unskilled workers in the development of housing.

Data for the report was gathered in the course of a tour organized by the NAACP and participated in by more than 100 minority entrepreneurs, architects, engineers, and community organization representatives. The tour visited five cities: Milan, Amsterdam, Paris, London and Stockholm. William R. Morris, NAACP director of housing programs, was also director of the tour.

J.S. Redding at Drake

By Caroline Pokrzywinski

"A new sense of racial pride destroyed the myth of the old Negro in literature and brought a demand for more courses and mass media presentations on black culture," said author and historian Dr. Jay Saunders Redding.

Dr. Redding presented a lecture on "Politics and the Black Writer," Thursday, Jan. 21, at Drake University. Presently, the Ernest I. White Lecturer at Cornell University, Redding spoke on "Trends in Black Literature From 1787 to the Present."

"Black man arrived in America in chains and slavery was written into the constitution," said Redding.

Due to the oppressed condition of the Negro little important black literature came out of the 1700's.

Paul Lawrence Dunbar, writing in the Negro idiom, was the first black poet of distinction.

W. E. B. Dubois, writing in 1903, was the first editor of the NAACP magazine Crisis. "The literary audience wasn't ready to hear a young black militant like Dubois," said Redding.

During the 1920's "the negro developed pride in his race and destroyed the old myth of the Negro," said Redding.

"The Supreme Court decisions of and an effort to Americanize blacks are factors in the literature of the 50's and 60's," said Redding.

"The literature now is more militant and aimed at a broader bi-racial audience," said Dr. Redding.

In an interview following the speech Redding said that he agreed with Roy Wilkins, Executive Director of the NAACP that the Nixon administration is anti-Negro.

"It is significant that all 13 black members of the House boycott Nixon's State of the Union address," he said.

Redding said that there has been progress in the Civil Rights Movement in the past two years and asked if there was a leader of the nation's blacks Redding said, "There is no one leader, Martin Luther King was no one leader."

Minorities Aided By Program

By ANDY HILLER
Times-Democrat

Davenport-Bettendorf, Iowa The Tri-City Building Trades Apprentice Outreach Program is a roundabout name for two men with a straightforward purpose: to qualify members of minority groups for high-paying jobs with trade unions.

Conceived by the Building Trades Council, an Iowa-Illinois Committee comprised of business agents from 30 unions, the council's secretary admits the outreach program was originally aimed at terminating rumors of discrimination within trade unions.

But the program's potential overshadows its expedient beginning.

"Our job is to recruit interested people and to see that they have the necessary qualifications for joining unions," Jerry Harvey, the program's Outreach worker, explained. "We are not a hiring agency or a referring agency. We are an assistance agency."

With the federal funds and pledged support of Quad-City contractors, who employ 6,500 workers, Harvey and Rebello hope to help place 30 men by the end of 1971, depending on economic conditions.

A close watch is kept on the program's operations. Should the Department of Labor deem the program ineffective, it would end nearly immediately, since grants are made in two-month allotments.

If the local program continues for a full year, a total of $56,000 will be granted. Rebello said the largest portion of the funds will be spent on tutoring services, interviewing, helping applicants obtain necessary documents, preparing informational material and defraying the usual costs involved in running an office.

"This program is not for the hard-core unemployed," Rebello said. We can't do anything for a second grade drop-out, but we can help a high school graduate overcome his fear of exams and pass a union test," Rebello said.

"After a man gets a job, our task is to counsel," Rebello said, "The man does the job for himself."

Those placed in jobs will be paid at a pro-rated scale based upon their experience, as are all new union entrants.

More than 10 interviews have already been conducted in the program's recently furnished main office in Rock Island's Fort Armstrong Hotel.

Rev. Benjamin Hunte, a native of the island of Trinidad (where he says the temperature never falls below 60 degrees) was greeted with sub-zero readings and mounds of snow in Des Moines this week.

Despite the weather and a natural tendency to drive on the left side of the road, he found much to like in Iowa.

"You have a tremendous country," said the Open Bible Minister, "and your people are blessed by the love of God."
The first native of Trinidad to be ordained an Open Bible Minister in 1960, the Rev. Mr. Hunte has been in the United States since last June, conducting Evangelistic services at Open Bible churches throughout the country.

QUESTION: I will reach 65 three months from now. The company I work for has compulsory retirement at age 65. I want to file for my social security right away in order to have it start as soon as possible. What should I bring with me?

ANSWER: I assume you carry your social security card with you, so you will have your social security number. You should also bring a certified copy of your birth certificate. In addition be sure to bring a copy of your Forms W-2 for 1970, since your wages for 1970 are not all credited to your account as yet.

QUESTION: My wife is 62 and I will soon be 64. I have been farming. My 1970 net was only $3000.00. Should I file for social security and if so, what should I take with me when I go to the social security office?

ANSWER: It appears that you can qualify for some social security benefits for 1970 even though your net was $3000.00. Since your application can go back only 12 months before the month which you file, you should waste no time in getting to your social security office. Take a copy of your 1970 tax report with you. Also, take a birth certificate for yourself and your wife. Don't forget to take your wife along. Don't delay, go today.

QUESTION: Does everyone receiving social security benefits have to file an annual report if they earn over $1680.00 in a year?

ANSWER: In most cases, the answer is "yes". There are two situations where an annual report is not necessary. Any person seventy-two or older in all months of the year does not have to file a report and any person receiving a disability benefit on his own account is not required to file an annual report. However, any person receiving a social security benefit as a disability dependent must file if they earn over $1680.00. Only the disabled person is not required to file. It should be pointed out that even though a disability beneficiary doesn't have to file an annual report, he jobs), but the percentage of the decrease was slightly lower among minority employees than among non-minorities.

The proportion of jobs held by minorities under "other pay systems" increased. (This category includes Foreign Service, TVA, AEC, and others.)

Chairman Hampton attributed the upward movement of minorities to affirmative actions in all areas of Federal Government personnel management under the new program directions of Executive Order 11478.

The order, signed by President Nixon in August 1969, calls on Federal agencies to apply equal opportunity policy to every aspect of personnel policy and practice, under the overall leadership of the Civil Service Commission.

How can you tell if home wiring is adequate for new appliances?

If you have questions concerning the wiring in your home, have it checked by a reliable electrical contractor or your utility company. If you have noticed a dimming of lights or poor radio and TV reception when appliances are in use, slow operation of heating appliances such as an iron, frypan or toaster, or overheating of motor, these are symptoms of inadequate wiring.

OPERA STAR LEONTYNE PRICE presented Saturday night by the Civic Music Association of Des Moines was a pleasure to hear for all those fortunate enough to have been among the almost completely filled KRNT Theater. She merits all that is said in praise of her talent and more. The 'more' is that she possesses and expressed a warmth equalling the greatness of her voice. To a loving audience, she loves in return... full measure.

MISS PRICE'S ENTRANCE ON STAGE WAS EXCITING! She wore an emerald green jersey, floor length gown with a train. The off-white, jeweled neckline could be described as t-shaped — reaching across the neckline area it extended down the hemline. Her hair was worn in a most becoming Afro. She wore long brilliant earrings.

BACKSTAGE MISS PRICE joined a throng of autograph seekers. This time she wore a lovely, sleeveless black jersey dress, a triple strand of rope pearls and matching long pearl earrings. Over her shoulders was white fur coat! Again she was completely lovely.

LEONTYNE PRICE, THE ARTIST, was utterly unforgettable as she came into view — backstage — walked to a small table and chair, seated herself and, for what seemed to me an eternity, signed autographs; smilingly acknowledged the pleasantries extended her, and made small talk to little children. Summing up this last contact, again, to a loving audience, she is loving in return.

DAVID GARVEY, THE ARTIST'S ACCOMPANIST graciously visited with those of us seeking to meet him, too. He and Miss Price have known each other since their days at Juilliard School of Music when he was a graduate student. He has played for her since 1952.

NOTED IN ATTENDANCE: Irv White, Mr. Show Business! Mr. and Mrs. James McDaniel and daughters, Suzanne and Prudence. Also Mrs. V. K. Ashford, Sr.

MET MR. AND MRS. ANDREW VARLEY AND SON of Stuart, Iowa; Royce Thornburg, Menlo, Iowa. Caught a glimpse of Mrs. John Estes, Jr., Mrs. Clifford Watkins, Miss Alberta Bates. Met Mrs. Inez Neal, newcomer to Des Moines. Saw Mrs. Gwendolyn Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Mays, Mrs. Paul Wilson and granddaughter, Resa.

MET MELTONIA GRIF-FEN, of Tallahassee, Florida, second year graduate student from Florida A&M College now attending the University of Iowa. She will graduate from the U of I in May '71. She is a music major and hopes to become a piano accompanist.

MET LINDA HEIDELBERG (MRS. AARON, JR.) and mother of three year old Anthony, who comes from Miss Leontyne Price's home, Laurel, Mississippi, she told me smilingly! A graduate of Jones County Junior College, she is now a social worker major at U of I from which she will graduate in '71.

HEARD ABOUT THE 'DAYS? I understand them to be half dog and half cat. Read that a London pet shop owner claims to have crossed a black cat and Scottish terrier with resulting 'days'. They were said to have heads like dogs, fur, whiskers and claws like cats. Owner, cat, dog, and cats are living happily ever after!

What's A Fondue?

Fondue, the national dish of Switzerland, has become a favorite American snack. It's a hot saucy dip into which pieces of bread are dipped.

The word FONDUE is French, derived from the word "fondre" which means "to melt." Often thought of as a cheese dish, fondue can be comprised of many different ingredients.

The idea is to keep fondue as simple to make as it is to serve. That makes convenient canned meat spreads perfect fondue ingredients.

Deviled Ham Fondue and Chicken Spread Fondue are deliciously different, easy for the hostess and a delight for her guests. Serve them as snacks or as a main dish, for parties or a family supper. Everybody will love a meat spread fondue.

Fondue Au Diable
2 cups grated Gruyere cheese 1 1/4 ounce can deviled ham
2 teaspoons flour 1" French bread cubes
6 tablespoons dry Vermouth

Mix grated cheese with flour. Heat vermouth just until it begins to bubble. Add cheese gradually to vermouth to melt cheese. When all the cheese has been melted, stir in the deviled ham and heat. Place bread cubes on fondue forks and dip into fondue.

Chicken Spread Fondue
1 10 1/2 ounce can condensed cheddar cheese soup 1/2 cup milk
2 4 1/2 ounce cans chicken spread 1 tablespoon sherry
1 teaspoon lemon juice 1" French bread cubes

Place soup, chicken spread, milk, sherry, and lemon juice in a blender. Blend until all ingredients are thoroughly mixed. Heat until mixture is hot. Place bread cubes on fondue forks and dip into chicken spread fondue.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Please comment on the correct manner of eating soup?

A. Remember that the cup or bowl of soup is tipped away from you. Your spoon is also filled by dipping it away from you. The soup is then sipped from the side of the spoon, as noiselessly as possible of course. The entire spoon is never thrust into the mouth.

Q. When a man finds it necessary to introduce himself, does he prefix "Mr." to his name?

A. No. He can say, "I am Douglas Craig," or "My name is Craig," unless of course he has the title of Doctor, which he then properly includes with his name.

Q. If it so happens that a bride-elect has already had an opportunity to thank a friend for a wedding gift received, is she still obligated to write a thank-you note?

A. Indeed she is — and as soon as possible.

Q. My sorority is giving a dance soon to which we shall invite boy friends. Do we girls pay for everything, including corsages and entertainment?

A. Each girl buys the tickets for herself and her escort, and, of course, pays her share to the sorority for whatever food and entertainment is provided at the dance. Your escorts, however, pay for your corsages and provide the transportation.

Q. Is it ever permissible to reach across one person in order to shake hands with a third person?

A. Best to avoid this. If, however, the other person seems bent on shaking hands, be sure to ask the pardon of the person across whom you must reach.

Q. Would it be proper for a widow's married daughter to announce her mother's second marriage, and may the widow's son give her away?

A. The announcement should be made by the widow and her second husband, but it would be quite all right for her son to walk down the aisle with her and give her away.

Q. Must a man, while dining in a restaurant with his wife, always rise whenever another couple stops at their table for a few words?

A. He must always rise when a woman stops at his table.

Q. Would it be proper for us to send a wedding gift of money to some newlyweds who live in a distant city?

A. Certainly, quite proper.

Differentiating Between Means of Personal 'Redress for Wrongs

The entire delegation of Negro members of the House of Representatives boycotted the session when President Nixon delivered his State of the Union message. They are all Democrats.

Senator Brooke of Massachusetts attended. He is a Republican.

The decision to remain away from the session was based on the refusal, they say, of President Nixon to give them an audience. We have seen no denial of the charge. The President apparently did not take notice of their absence.

If what they say is true, the President is wrong. On the other hand, courtesy -- and this word no longer appears in some people's vocabulary -- dictates that the office of President and not Nixon was personally involved. Some other show of displeasure would have been more effectual.

No man has a right to insult another man. On the other hand, the aggressor often lowers himself by resorting to tactics for redress that don't pay off in the long run.

This turned out to be much of a partisan move which, in some instances, are not proper. This was the situation with the black congressmen.

Federal Tax Sharing Fine; But With Reasonable Restrictions

Among the recommendations President Nixon made in his State of the Union message last week was that of sharing tax revenue with the states in order to relieve the taxpayers' heavy burden and to bail the broke cities out of their dilemma.

On its face, this sounds plausible except that federal expenses far exceed its income.

The President stated that these funds, $16 billions in the next fiscal year, would be given without any strings attached. But he hastened to say that no racial discrimination in its spending would be permitted.

But there must be some strings attached otherwise a few organized groups in the cities will use their great pressure to boost salaries with impunity and thus leave city officials crying that they need more money.

Highly organized groups have often forced their will on the public without regard to the consequences. They have ignored court orders and made remittance of fines and jail sentences a condition for settling strikes.

The federal government is interested in well run cities and towns as one of its means of collecting tax dollars. And since most of this sharing will go to the cities, the money should be spent to maintain what we have -- by freezing prices -- otherwise the city deficits will continue to be financed by citizens miles and miles away.

Guilt of Whole Group by What Someone Does

Few people are experts in every field but too many people show their ignorance or lack of knowledge or understanding by trying to be.

The Bystander has been disappointed that some members of our city council fall into that class and demonstrate it by loose remarks that show it.

While the trouble on University Avenue was at a dangerous stage there was much fear of injury to the traveling and local people. One council member said the funds for the Model Cities program should be withheld unless the difficulty ceased.

Recently, another member wanted to disband the police cadet program because, he understood, one of its members was involved in a drug raid.

We did not, and do not, condone lawlessness on University Avenue or any other place. But it is foolish to talk of scrapping a program because a few people insist on violating the law -- be they black or white.

In fact, on the basis of these men's thinking, everytime an employee of a business or member of an organization does something wrong, the group should be disbanded.

Of course, in these instances, Negroes were involved and these councilmen, like many ignorant people, charge Very Negro in the community for a wrong done by one of their race. This is wrong whether white or black groups are involved.

Fortunately, all members of the city council don't feel as these two gentlemen do who, in spite of being city fathers, cling to the outmoded notion that what one black man does is the act of the whole race. They are poor officials of the community.

Activities of the Iowa Civil Rights Commission

COMMISSION'S 1970 ANNUAL REPORT: A SYNOPSIS

The 1970 reporting year evidenced by far the largest caseload in the Commission's five-and-a-half year history, with the filing of 169 complaints (formal charges of violations of the Iowa Civil Rights Act) and 77 file matters (either discriminatory situations or intergroup disputes settled preliminarily without need for the filing or processing of formal charges).

The 101 complaints resolved in 1970 alone almost equalled the total of 108 complaints resolved in the Commission's previous four-and-a-half years combined (July 1965 - November 1969).

Of the 101 complaints resolved in 1970, discrimination was found in 42. Thus, almost 60 percent of the complaints were resolved without a finding of discrimination -- 43 were dismissed on the merits as having no probable cause that discrimination occurred, while 5 were withdrawn subsequently by the complainants and 11 were dismissed by the Commission for lack of jurisdiction (either because of subject matter or time limitations on filing).

Of the 169 formal complaints filed in 1970, 103 were in area of employment, 27 in housing, 36 in public accommodations and 3 in aiding and abetting. The key issue in employment discrimination was firing, on the basis of race.

The key issue in the 27 housing cases was the rental of apartments, with all 10 of these cases being raised on the basis of race.

The 36 complaints in public accommodations involved a wide variety of issues and numerous classifications of respondents. The leading issue was allegedly disparate treatment of minorities by city or county police -- with the individual complainants being 7 Negroes, 2 Mexican-Americans, and one American Indian.

The 169 complaints were filed against a wide range of respondents, with 73 companies, stores, or shops leading the way. Governmental agencies were the respondents in 26 of the other complaints.

ON THE SPORTS SCENE

With Allen Ashby

The basketball games of the weekend seem to prove what a fellow we know has been saying for a long time, that any team in another team's level, is apt to beat any other team in that class in either football or basketball.

The games during the last couple of weeks of football season went a long way to help our friend to prove his point.

Now come the cage games, and who is to say who is number one among the major college basketball teams. A team who has played all the top ones, and lost four or five games ought to get pretty big rating. When they knocked off the number one club.

Then there are just any number of unbeaten teams who could lay claim to the top spot. One good thing about the basketball season is the fact that the top teams usually have a showdown tournament, although the top ranked club may not always make it to the final week.

So, no matter who comes out with top billing, that club will have to prove its rating in a tough couple of weeks.

That Drake game was just about as much of a story book finish as anyone would want to see. We had thought the Bulldogs would likely drop this one, and they nearly did.

Now the guys have at least an outside chance at defending their Missouri Valley crown.

Iowa U just can't seem to put together a full game. The Hawks seem to do all right for a while, and then drop a close one.

And poor Iowa State just doesn't have much help for Gene Mack. The guy has some great moves, and could play for anybody in the Valley or anywhere else, and we don't know what the Cyclones would do without him.

In our high schools front runner, North wasn't taking any chances with Dowling and are still on top of the heap. As if to add fuel to our oft repeated argument that Tech is coming out of the woods, the Engineers came up with a win over East last weekend. Give them a couple of more years, and they will be in the thick of things on the basketball floor and on the gridiron.

In most cities where there is a technical high school, those teams are among the top clubs because they get fellows from all over the city. Tech does have competition because a number of the other schools offer some trade classes so the fellows just don't have to go to Tech for some subjects as they do in other cities.

Now to get back to our rating situation. We once heard a fellow say that a lot of good teams get overlooked because they aren't in the right part of the country.

This fellow's argument is that since the sports writers do the voting, and most of the papers are located in the country east of the Mississippi, a western team has to be as good or better than UCLA in order to get a rating in basketball. He points to Drake a couple of years ago.

If ever there was a ball club that deserved to be in the top ten, it was those two Bulldog teams. So this year's club gets rated off the strength of those other two clubs.

Then, so often, a club will go unbeaten because they played a lot of weaker clubs, and build up a great record, and their defeat by a team in their class is called an upset.

To use football as a good example, we never could see Alabama as the number one club when they never played a team out of their own conference except in a bowl, and then it wasn't very often a top team. But, year after year, the Crimson Tide was voted the Number one. Maybe they were, but they hadn't proved it to us.

So it is with basketball. But in this case, all we have to do is wait until late March to know who really is number one.

A fellow wanted to know why we hadn't come up with a story on the Golden Gloves. Well, we just missed that one, largely because we figured there were too many fellows getting by without lifting a glove. That certainly won't help their chances in the national meet in our humble opinion. We still say there ought to be some professional bouts here so our amateurs could have someone to watch and improve themselves.

This is not to take anything away from the fellows who are teaching them, but it would make the teaching job so much easier if the guys could watch some seasoned veteran pros in action a few times.

THE CRISIS

A man of low degree was sore oppressed,
Fate held him under iron-handed sway,
And ever those who saw him thus distressed

Would bid him bend his stubborn will and Pray.
But he, strong in himself and obdurate,
Waged, prayerless, on his losing fight with Fate.
Friends gave him proffered hand their coldest clasp.
Or took it not at all; and Poverty,
That bruised his body with relentless grasp,

Grinned, taunting, when he struggled to be free.
But though with helpless hands he beat the air,
His need extreme yet found no voice in prayer.

Then he prevailed; and forthwith snobbish Fate,
Like some whipped cur, came fawning at his feet;
Those who had scorned forgave and called him great—
His friends found out that friendship still was sweet.

But he, once obdurate, now bowed his head
In prayer, and trembling with its import, said:

"Mere human strength may stand ill-fortune frown;
So I prevailed, for human strength was mine;

But from the killing pow'r of great renown,
Naught may protect me save a strength divine.

Help me, O Lord, in this my trembling cause;
I scorn men's curses; but I dread applause!"

Health for All

HURRY UP -- IT'S TIME

Time for your annual medical checkup. Now.

But for too many Americans, getting that checkup is no simple matter. There are just not enough doctors, for one thing. The Nixon Administration has warned that we are on the verge of a "massive crisis" in health care.

Every major city has its statistics about the ghetto in which the ratio is one doctor to a population of 20,000 or 30,000. Many poor rural areas are just as bad off.

A recent survey of 1,500 cities and towns in the Midwest showed that 1,000 of them had no doctor at all; and 200 of these places had only one doctor. There are only 203,000 physicians treating patients; and there are more than 200 million Americans. That figures out to one doctor for every 1,000 people. Theoretically.

More and more Americans have come to insist that health care is a right due every citizen. And they demand that right be met. Revamping the delivery of health care -- so that everyone who needs it gets it -- is a burning public issue.

Having a doctor and getting an annual medical checkup is an important part of that right. It can help prevent the development of disease -- such as tuberculosis and other lung infections -- before they really get started. Taking pills called isoniazid, for example, can stop tuberculosis infections from blossoming into active disease.

To get an annual medical checkup, see your doctor. To find out more about infections and diseases of the lungs, check with your

The 169 complaints arose in a total of 41 communities. Sixty-eight (68) of the 169 arose in the metropolitan Des Moines area, thus leaving 101 (or 60 percent) of the complaints arising in outlying areas.
