NAACP Earns Retrial in Bias Case

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Supreme Court of the United States, in response to a petition filed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has ruled that a complainant charging racial discrimination under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 need not submit the complaint to a state or local anti-discrimination agency before appealing to the Federal judiciary for relief.

A ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit requiring exhaustion of state or local remedies was vacated by order of the Supreme Court, January 18, and the case remanded to the U.S. District Court for the District of Arizona for reconsideration. This was the first instance in which the Supreme Court agreed to hear a case under Title VII.

Changes Racial Bias
Miss Erlene Crosslin, a Negro, filed charges of racial discrimination in employment against the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company. The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission validated her complaint and was sustained by the District Court. The company appealed the District Court's ruling to the Court of Appeals which held that Miss Crosslin was not entitled to a trial on the merits of her claim and that the District Court lacked jurisdiction over the case because of certain alleged defects in the filing of the administrative charge.

The alleged defect was her failure to file charges with the Arizona Civil Rights Commission prior to seeking a Federal remedy. However, EEOC had previously ruled that prior resort to the Arizona Commission was not required because the commission was not empowered to offer adequate relief.

"Not Import", Says Court

At the request of the Court of Appeals, the Solicitor General of the United States filed a brief amicus curiae asserting that the issue raised by Miss Crosslin and the NAACP "is not now, in our view, of sufficient importance to warrant review by this Court at this time." The NAACP branded this statement, "grossly incorrect. It is clear to us that the Department of Justice has interposed itself between the EEOC and this Court and is not accurately or adequately reflecting the views of the EEOC itself." The Federal employment agency had urged the opposite in its brief to the lower Court.

The decision of the Court of Appeals, NAACP General Counsel Nathaniel R. Jones asserted, would have deprived Miss Crosslin "and all similarly situated charging parties in Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Maine, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Vermont . . . of important Federal rights." The Department of Justice, he charged, "ignored the real issue in this case, while suggesting a palliative rather than a solution to a problem of great importance to the private citizen and the EEOC who have borne the real burden of enforcing Title VII."

In its brief to the Court of Appeals, the NAACP said: "Congress made it clear that state and local agencies could not cause unwarranted delay in the prosecution of Federal claims. Congress did not intend to create a technical barrier to Federal claims." The Supreme Court sustained the NAACP view.

New Federal Wage Law Effective Feb. 1, 1971

Iowa employers in certain retail and service businesses or institutions experienced the change in the minimum wage provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) which became effective on February 1, 1971.

Employees brought under the protection of the law by the 1966 amendments to the FLSA became entitled to a minimum wage of not less than $1.60 an hour. The $1.60 rate will apply to most workers in the retail trades; in both public and private schools, colleges and universities; in hospitals and nursing homes, whether public, private or non-profit; in restaurants, hotels and motels; and in laundries and dry cleaning firms. The past rate for these employees is $1.45 an hour.

URBAN LEAGUE Expressed Concern Over Davis Trial

The National Urban League today expressed "grave concern" that Angela Davis may not receive a fair trial and called on all citizens to "join in demanding a fair trial for Miss Davis, for when the rights of but one person are compromised, then the rights of all are endangered."

The agency's Board of Trustees declared: The National Urban League expresses its grave concern that Angela Davis may not receive the fair and impartial trial to which she is entitled.

We well know that the system of criminal justice in America often discriminates against black people, and in the Davis case, the public has been bombarded by prejudicial and sensationalistic media coverage that presumes her guilt. The seriousness of the charges against her, combined with the sparse evidence yet made public, do not justify the widespread presumption of guilt that endangers her right to a fair trial. Angela Davis is on trial for her life, and while we reject violence and Communism, we demand that her trial be based solely on the evidence, and not on her beliefs or political affiliations.

The State of California has the responsibility of seeing to it that Miss Davis is given a scrupulously fair trial; that she gets every legal right due her; that she be tried by a jury of her peers including black people, and that she receive all courtesies and rights due her during her period of pre-trial imprisonment.

It is imperative that all Americans, regardless of color, politics, or philo-

She Brought Tears To VIP Guests

WASHINGTON — Gospel Singer Ethel Waters brought tears to the eyes of guests at the White House Sunday, Jan. 24, in a moving, poignant church service.

"This is not an easy audience to impress," President Nixon said after the service. "They have all heard the best. Perhaps this could only happen in the White House."

Miss Waters, who knew the President's mother, sang three songs, including "His Eye is on the Sparrow," the title of her autobiography. She also sang one of her own compositions, "Partners with God," and a traditional hymn, "Choose Now."

Her rendition of the Sparrow song brought tears to the eyes of the 280 persons attending the services. The audience included members of the Cabinet, members of Congress, Chief Justice and Mrs. Warren Burger and former Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren.

"I feel right at home here with all my family," she said to those attending the services.

In 1969, he was cited by the New York Chapter of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History "for bringing honor and hope to black seamen."

Following Recognition He Resigns Judgeship for Post with Veterans Administration

A Waterloo municipal Court judge was named "Person of the Year" during the Chamber of Commerce annual meeting Friday night.

Named "Person of the Year" by the Chamber was Judge William W. Parker.

The Chamber's "Person of the Year" is chosen for the individual's past year's civic contributions. Just Thursday it was announced Parker will leave Waterloo next month to become deputy director of the Veterans Administration contract compliance service in Washington, D.C.

He was appointed to the federal post by Donald Johnson, former National American Legion Commander who now heads the Veterans Administration. Johnson formerly lived in West Branch.

Judge Parker was elected a Municipal Court judge for Waterloo in 1963 and was re-elected in 1967. He is the first black to be voted into public office here.

He also serves as administrative judge for Black Hawk County juvenile courts and as minister for the Antioch Baptist Church.

Born at Des Moines, Parker graduated from East High school there after winning honors in scholastics, debating, dramatics and earning two letters in track. He was also a member of the school tennis team and active in other sports.

He received his Bachelor of Arts degree in social science from Arkansas A. M. & N. in 1941, where he was awarded a gold key in dramatics. He was also a member of the debating club, winner of junior-senior oratorical contests and a member of the History Club and track team.

In March of 1943 Parker enlisted in the service and was in the Naval Reserve for 36 months. He entered Drake University Law school in 1946 and three years later was transferred to Rutgers University school of law where he received Bachelor of Law degree in 1949.

Practice Law
Since that year, he practiced law in Waterloo. He is a member of county and state bar associations, being a past secretary of the county group.

In 1961 he was appointed by the then Gov. Norman Erbe to a post on the Iowa Board of Parole.

JUDGE WILLIAM W. PARKER

NAACP Urges No Rate Increase

NEW YORK—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will present testimony at a hearing before the Federal Communications Commission, March 29, urging the FCC to deny any rate increase requested by the American Telephone and Telephone Company as long as that giant corporation denies equal job opportunities to Negroes, women and members of other minorities.

The company originally sought an increase in the amount of $550 million. The FCC continued consideration of this petition and, in the meantime, granted a second petition in the amount of $250 million. The NAACP retained David Cashdan, a Washington attorney, to intervene before an FCC hearing to assure consideration of the question of AT&T's racial policy before granting any increase to the company.

Stay of Proceedings
In the event that the FCC denies jurisdiction, the NAACP, on January 29, filed a motion for a stay of proceedings in the District of Columbia Circuit Court of Appeals.

Action against granting of the increase was initiated by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. In addition to the NAACP, other groups which requested consent to enter as intervenors include the National Organization of Women (NOW), the American Civil Liberties Union, California Rural Assistance, and a Mexican-American organization.

Legal Principle
The NAACP and the EEOC are attempting to establish the legal principle that the FCC is constitutionally prohibited from conferring public benefits in the form of rate increases upon a company which maintains blatantly discriminatory employment practices.

The EEOC's brief charges that "AT&T's record in providing equal employment to women, blacks and Spanish-surnamed Americans is appalling." The brief reviews that record from 1940 until the present. A huge holding corporation, AT&T controls 24 operating companies employing 700,000 NAACP

Project Aids Minority Area

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Project BOLD, a unique, new federally-funded project, created by the National Business League to assist in the economic development of minority communities, in six major cities was officially launched with Kickoff Ceremonies in Indianapolis, January 27th and Milwaukee, January 29.

Berkeley G. Burrell, president of the National Business League, vice-chairman of President Nixon's Council on Minority Enterprise and the nation's leading spokesman for the Black business community, was on hand for the ceremonies in Indianapolis and Milwaukee along with the local staffs of Project BOLD and a host of business and civic dignitaries.

Plan Is Dangerous
Mr. Burrell cautioned that President Nixon's $16 billion state revenue sharing program was exciting, revolutionary, but potentially dangerous for powerless minorities.

He told his audience, "The Federal Government is going to be reorganized, but the same old state and local bureaucrats, racist and scheming, will be allocating this $16 billion with Blacks absent from the room when the priorities are being set."

Not A Black Fool

He added, "I am a Black Republican, but I am not a Black fool. We are going to be left out in the cold of unemployment, inflation and inferior housing. Only the rhetoric will be decentralized." "The only way for Blacks to get an equitable share of the pie, is to put in some of the ingredients and supervise the baking and slicing of it."

The multi-phase program of minority business assistance has as its goals both to offer top level technical assistance to existing Black entrepreneurs as well as to recruit and assist potential entrepreneurs to successfully get in business for themselves.

Other Openings To Follow

Following the Indianapolis and Milwaukee kick-offs, there will be Project BOLD openings in Atlantic City, Jersey City, Houston and Oakland in the next few weeks.

President Burrell called Project BOLD "The most innovative of NBL programs to date" and views it as "another step toward NBL's ultimate goal of including ALL Americans; Black, Brown, Red and Yellow into the economic mainstream of American society."

With the launching of BOLD, NBL's management and technical program is available in seventeen cities throughout the United States.

Young People Show New Awareness Of Racial Issues

NEW YORK — While young people are more aware than ever of injustices to blacks and other minority groups, they are also more hopeful of ultimate racial understanding and reconciliation.

According to a Seventeen Magazine survey, two out of three boys and girls (64.6%) feel that blacks are treated unfairly in the country, but nearly as many (60.1%) believe that race relations will take a turn for the better.

The study, compiled through interviews with 2000 young people, ages 14-22, across the country, and forming the basis of an extensive article in the February issue of Seventeen on "What's Right & Wrong with America," also reveals:

● On politics: Julian Bond placed 8th among the 10 men young people would most like to see elected President in '72, outranking both Spiro Agnew (10th) and Nelson Rockefeller (12th). Edward Kennedy was first, followed by Richard Nixon, Eugene McCarthy, Edmund Muskie, John Lindsay, George Wallace and Hubert Humphrey, respectively.

● On education: Better than half (52.5%) would vote against compulsory busing to end school segregation, but a significant 45.8% would like to see Afro-American history taught at schools. Another half (51.3%) disagree that schools in the South are not being forced to integrate.

● On dating: Three out of five young people (59.5%) But the generation gap once again makes itself felt — 87.3% declare most parents oppose interracial dating.

● On minority groups: American Indians emerge as the group young people feel is most unfairly treated in the United States (67.3% say Indians are discriminated against), followed by Blacks (64.6%), Mexican-Americans (42.8%), Puerto Ricans (39.9%) and Orientals (15.6%).

One-tenth (10.5%) agree the nation would be a "nicer place to live in" if racial problems were corrected through government legislation, and 42% go so far as to say white supremacists constitute a "serious threat" to the United States.

Attempt Breakin At Gun Shop

Athan Robinson, 24, of 1235 Fifteenth St., was charged Monday night with attempting to break into Ted Holm Gun Sales and Service, 1524 Clark St., after police noticed that one of the store's windows had been broken.

Police said they picked up a 15-year-old boy who they said was in an alley near the shop when they were investigating the broken window. After putting the youth in the car, police said, they saw a man, later identified as Robinson, running about a block away.

Police said they pursued the man and arrested him near Sixteenth Street and Forest Avenue. Robinson was held in the Polk County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bond pending a hearing Feb. 9 in Municipal Court.

The boy, who police said was wearing a bayonet and a bandolier-type leather strap with a 12-gauge shotgun shell in it, was turned over to Polk County Juvenile Court for alleged attempted breaking and entering.

Robinson has been re-arrested and held for work release violation. He is a Korean war veteran and has been attending AIB while working as a part time advertising salesman for the Iowa Bystander.

Aerosols

Aerosols can provide a source of danger as well as a form of convenience. When used improperly, the aerosol can cause serious injury or death. Be sure to read all labels carefully and obey them. Never puncture the can, throw empties into a trash burner or incinerator, place an aerosol on a hot stove, near a furnace or radiator, or leave them in a closed car or trunk where they will be directly exposed to sunlight.

Ia. Power Files For Rate Increase

Iowa Power and Light Company announced that it has filed with the Iowa State Commerce Commission a request for an increase in electric rates to be made effective March 1, 1971. This adjustment in rates will affect all of Iowa Power's residential, commercial and industrial customers.

For the average urban residential user of electricity, this increase will mean he will be paying approximately 4.3 cents more per day — 30 cents a week. An average monthly bill of about $15.00 would go up to about $16.30. Costs for commercial and industrial customers will go up an average of 8.2%.

Inflation Is Blamed
President Dwight H. Swanson said, "Naturally, we aren't happy about asking for an increase in rates. However, like other businesses and citizens, inflationary pressures are now pushing up expenses faster than revenues. In 1970," he noted, "Iowa Power's costs rose $6.3 million while revenues increased only $5.1 million. Because of this, we must raise our prices in order to continue providing customers with a high standard of service."

First Increase In 13 Yrs.

Swanson pointed out that this would be the first general rate increase for electricity in 13 years. The last one was in 1958 but with expense trimming, installation of improved equipment and greatly increased volume, electri-

QUINCY JONES

Quincy Jones- 'Oscar's' New Music Director

Quincy Jones, a three-time nominee for Academy Awards and winner of a Grammy Award last year, has been appointed music director of the 43rd Annual Awards Program of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, it was announced by Robert E. Wise, producer of the program.

A talented composer, Jones won his Oscar nominations for the score of "In Cold Blood" and the song "The Eyes of Love" from the film "Banning" — both in 1967 — and for the title song from the picture "For Love of Ivy" in 1968. His Grammy for best jazz instrumentation was awarded for the album "Walking in Space."

NAACP Team Tours U.S. Bases in Germany

HEIDELBURG, Germany — A three-man team of NAACP officials arrived here Friday, Jan. 29, for the second stop on a three-week tour of American military installations. The team is investigating persistent and serious charges of racial discrimination both on various bases and in surrounding civilian communities.

Nathaniel R. Jones, NAACP general counsel; Julius Williams, director of military and veterans affairs; and Melvin Bolden, assistant counsel, have already spent two days in Frankfurt and will visit several other cities. They have interviewed a number of black servicemen to determine, first-hand, the nature and extent of racial discrimination here.

A special effort will be made to determine whether Negro servicemen are prevented from securing adequate off-base living accommodations because of racial prejudice on the part of German landlords. Numerous such reports have reached the National Office of the NAACP in recent months. Should these reports be substantiated, the NAACP is prepared to challenge the practice with the Pentagon.

marks, Swanson mentioned that the company has also increased its expenditures for environmental improvement and pollution control. He said, "In future years more money will be needed and spent if we are going to improve our environment and abate pollution. An increase in electric rates will help meet this challenge."

The Black Man Black Man's Courage Is Proven Early

EARLY BATTLES PROVE BLACK MAN'S COURAGE

(Ed. Note: This is the first of a three-part series describing the historical participation of the black American in the United States Navy. Part one traces his role in seapower from 1775 to 1865.)

The 35,000 black Americans now serving with their non-black shipmates in the U. S. Navy work with highly technical equipment on board air-conditioned ships. Their way, however, was paved with the blood and sweat of early black sailors whose history forms one of the most exciting, but overlooked, chapters in Naval History.

Stories of these seamen doing their jobs during times of war and peace have gone untold, and their participation in the Navy has become a forgotten part of their heritage.

Revolutionary War

In the Navy's sea fights, those of the Revolutionary War, 1500 blacks served their country loading guns, working sails, manning boats, and piloting coastal vessels. If a sailor was a slave, he was emancipated after three years of military service.

During the war of 1812, the Navy's first test in defending the newly-formed United States, one out of every six sailors was black.

Comm. Oliver Hazard Perry

Black Americans served proudly with Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry when he won a key battle against the British on Lake Erie. After the battle, Perry said of John Johnson, one of 15 black sailors on board, "His name ought to be registered in the book of fame and remembered with reverence as long as bravery is a virtue."

During the battle, Johnson was struck in the hip by a 24-pound cannon ball and was nearly cut in half. As he lay dying on the deck, Johnson said over and over, "Fire away my boys, no haul the color (the American flag) down."

Mexican-American War

During the Mexican-American War (1846-1848) some 1,000 black Americans served in America's young Navy.

Some 30,000 blacks fought in the Union Navy during the Civil War, and many others on Confederate ships. Some were slaves, and some were freedmen.

In the Union Navy one sailor in four was black. Many slaves attempted to flee the South during the early days of the war. While thousands succeeded, few escapes were more daring than that of Robert Smalls, a coastal pilot on the new Confederate steamer CSS PLANTER.

At 4 a.m. on May 13, 1862, when the officers were ashore, Smalls, and an escape party of 15 slaves got the PLANTER underway. The 313-ton ship pulled slowly from the wharf near the Confederate headquarters in Charleston Harbor. With the Rebel flag flying, the ship was steered toward the open sea.

Getting out of the harbor was no easy job because several Rebel forts guarded the harbor entrance. As he passed each outpost, Smalls gave the correct sign with the ship's whistle. Everything was made to appear as though the PLANTER was on a routine mission.

Hoisted White Flag

Finally, the ship came abreast of the huge guns of Fort Sumter, and since everything appeared normal she was allowed to pass. As soon as he was out of range of the fort's cannon, Smalls hoisted a white flag and sailed the ship into the hands of the Union fleet blockading the harbor.

For their brave acts, Smalls and his crew were awarded half the cash value of the ship and its cargo by President Abraham Lincoln. In addition, Smalls was named Captain of the vessel and served as commanding officer until the PLANTER was decommissioned in 1866.

Robert Smalls, a native of South Carolina, was later elected to both the South Carolina and U. S. House of Representatives.

During the War Between the States, five blacks were awarded the Medal of Honor. The first so honored was Robert Blake, an escaped slave. Blake's ship, the USS MARBLEHEAD, was lying at anchor in the Stone River of Legareville, N.C.

In the early morning hours of Christmas Day, 1863, the Confederates attacked the ship. Blake, a stevedore, could have hidden below decks; instead, he substituted for an injured powderboy and routinely served the rifle gun during the 14-hour battle. He was praised for his "cool and brave" conduct by his commanding officer.

Three black Americans were cited for outstanding bravery during a key naval battle at Mobile Bay, Ala., less than one year later. John Lawson of Pennsylvania was a crew member on Rear Admiral Daniel Farragut's flagship, the USS HARTFORD. Lawson's battle station was below decks where he supplied powder to the gun crews above him. A shell struck his position and Lawson was smashed against the side of the ship. Although badly wounded in the leg, Lawson ignored his injury and kept passing powder to the guns.

USS Brooklyn
In the same battle, on board the USS BROOKLYN, two other sailors distinguished themselves in combat and were also awarded the Medal of Honor.

William Brown of Maryland and James Mifflin of Virginia, served the powder line of their ship (which took two direct hits during the four-hour battle), stood their ground and kept the guns supplied. Fast, accurate Union gunfire, made possible in part by these men, helped the Union Navy defeat the Confederates at Mobile Bay.

The fifth Medal of Honor of the War Between the States was earned by Joachim Pease of New York, a gun loader on the USS KEARSARGE. The KEARSARGE had chased the powerful Confederate raider CSS ALABAMA into the French harbor of Cherbourg. When the ALABAMA tried to make a run for the open sea, the KEARSARGE challenged her and a bitter 60-minute battle followed. While the gun crew on the ALABAMA fired fast but wild, the KEARSARGE made each shot count.

The ALABAMA was sunk in 40 fathoms of water, and, according to his commanding officer, Pease "fully sustained his reputation as one of the best men on the ship."

Navy Man Goes Nuclear

Steven L. Stevens, has enlisted in the United States Navy and has been selected for one of the Navy's greatest educational opportunities — he will receive extensive training in the Nuclear Field Program.

Steven will experience one of the most vigorous and rewarding training programs the Navy has to offer. He will enlist in the Paygrade of E-3 and be sent to Recruit Training Center at San Diego, California for Recruit Training.

Upon completion of Recruit Training, he will further his education by going to Class "A" School and after successful completion, will be advanced to pay grade of Petty Officer Third Class, E-4.

Steven's education has not finished at this level. It has just started. From here, he will be transferred to either Bainbridge, Maryland or Mare Island, California to the Navy's Nuclear Power School. The course is twenty-four weeks long and covers all subjects basic to an understanding of the theory and operation of a Nuclear Propulsion Plant.

After completion of Nuclear Power School, he will be transferred to a Nuclear Power Training Unit where he will attend twenty-six weeks in studying and qualifying as a Nuclear Propulsion Plant Operator on one of several land based prototype reactor plants.

Here is where Steven will put to use all that he has learned so far in Recruit Training, Class "A" School and Nuclear Power School.

After qualifying as a Plant Operator, he will go to still another school — Submarine School which is from four to six weeks at New London, Conn. Here, Steven will learn the basic knowledge of submarines.

Stevens graduated from Central High School, Davenport, and resides at 911 Harrison St., Davenport, Iowa.

TREAD AND TRUE ECONOMY

The current money pinch is prompting economy-minded motorists to take a long look at retread auto tires—both for winter and warm weather driving.
The Tire Retreading Institute of Washington, D.C., says sports and conventional car drivers alike are discovering that the "new breed" of quality-certified retreaded tires available today give the same smart look, high safety performance and road mileage as comparable new tires—at half the cost.

The "new breed" of retreads has been made possible by vastly improved retreading equipment, materials and techniques, and quality control, the Institute explains, adding that: "About 70% of the cost of a new tire goes into its casing. It makes good sense for motorists, from the standpoints of safety and economy, to have their tires retreaded by reputable quality retreaders."

LeROY MITCHELL HAS BEEN WELL-KNOWN in Des Moines for as long as I can remember! His story should really begin something like "known, well-known and better known". Stating my opening lines in this way is to say that LeRoy, having grown up here, can be said to have a life that is an open book. And looking back on that statement, the idea develops into -- "a book it should be" and "what a book it would be!" Mitchell set about the business of living very young, was in and out of mischief, and as a teenager "did his thing".

THEN CAME A SUNDAY MORNING when I unfolded my Des Moines Sunday Register and there just below the center (as I remember it) of the front page was a photograph of a young pair, surrounded by still other young people, singles and pairs, the male of the first pair was undisputedly LeRoy Mitchell! Completely stunned, I swiftly read the print below the large picture. The central pair were none other than Drake University's Homecoming Queen accompanied by LeRoy Mitchell! Again doing his thing! This, you see, was another time, another place in the life of this young person.

AGAIN AND AGAIN THERE WOULD BE NEWS of Mitchell, by now a young instructor in the Des Moines Public School System. His name always associated with art. And as time went on, art, continued as his interest but the forms continued to multiply.

EAST HIGH LIBRARY'S ART EXHIBIT featuring the works of Artist LeRoy Mitchell.

chell dated January 24 - February 4 - and perhaps longer brings us up to date with out subject!

THIS COLUMN SEEKING TO HONOR ARTIST LeROY MITCHELL repeats the incredibly beautiful lines written by Donald R. Emanuel, Principal of Kurtz Junior High School describing LeRoy Mitchell, the man, the artist.

"LeRoy Mitchell is an artist not only of design and color, but he is an artist of living. To create the expression of an idea if one has all the proper materials is one thing, but to take whatever one has to work with and then create beauty of form and strength of idea is even more impressive.

This has been and is Mr. Mitchell's way of life, for he started with little of life's wealth, but he created from it a life of rich service to his community. By setting goals of high quality of work, by demonstrating his artistic talents as examples of what dedicated workers can achieve, and by living and working creatively, LeRoy Mitchell, the artist, and LeRoy Mitchell, the man, is an inspiration to those of us who are proud to know him."

MITCHELL IS MARRIED AND HE AND HIS WIFE, SHIRLEY, have three children. There is Jay Kevin, 13, Karen Kay 11, and Lloyd Kerry 9.

D.M. Represented At D.C. Conference

Des Moines' day care services were represented this fall by Mrs. Floyd Loggins, Director of Forest Avenue Day Care, at the century's seventh White House Conference on Children held the week of December 13, 1970. Approximately 4,000 delegates attended and are said to have included governors, mothers, youth, blacks, Indians and many others.

The conference undertook to determine what the nation must do now and through this decade to meet the needs of America's 55 million youths under 14 years of age.

Addresses by President Richard Nixon, Stephen Hess, national chairman, and Walter E. Washington, mayor, opened the sessions.

Leaders were foremost personalities and included such figures as Haim Ginott, the psychologist and author; Joan Ganz Cooney, executive director of the Children's Television Workshop, producer of "Sesame Street"; Peri Thomas, author of "Down These Mean Streets"; James Parton, President of the Encyclopedia Britannica; Dr. Jean Mayer of Harvard, chairman of the 1969 White Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health; Katherine Dunham, the dancer and Governor Melvin H. Evans of the Virgin Islands and others.

Also at the conference were 100 participants representing 40 countries -- including the Communist nations of Yugoslavia, Romania and Hungary -- and 17 world organizations.

Five months of preparation preceded the meetings. The delegates were divided into 24 groups of 160 persons each. The main consideration was the various aspects of the development of children up to 13 years of age.

Their working papers were in one of six major "clusters": individuality; learning; health; parents and families; communities and environments; and laws, rights and responsibilities. Each cluster was composed of three to five forums that took up specific issues in that study area.

Hess sought proposals that could become reality undertakings by business, labor, education, government, churches, mass media, associations and other institutions that comprise the country. Films, videotapes, photos and slides were used.

Mrs. Loggins found participation in conference to be rewarding and inspiring. President Nixon's visit to the sessions gave great credence to the undertakings.

Congressman Jack Miller, his office and associates made the whole of Mrs. Loggins' attendance and that of other Iowans especially, highly informative and enriching. Mr. Miller and his office recommendations to his constituents facilitated other ventures into the capitol.

Mrs. Loggins was selected by the Iowa Governor's Commission. A formal invitation was given to her from President Nixon.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Just how much may a "lady" properly make up in public?

A. The rules regarding this are much more relaxed than they were once upon a time. However, anything too technical in the matter of making up—hair combing, mascara applying, painting on of lips, application of a cake makeup, manicuring—are all in very bad taste. A light dusting of powder and an unobtrusive repair of lipstick are acceptable—and usual—in public places.

Q. Is one supposed to open one's napkin into the lap as soon as one sits down at the table, or should one wait until the food is served?

A. Guests should wait until the hostess takes up her napkin before opening their napkins.

Q. When a girl is attending a boy friend's church with him and his parents, is she supposed to drop an offering of her own into the collection plate when it is passed?

A. Although not exactly required of her, still it would be nice of her to give an offering of her own—just as for any good cause.

Q. Someone has told me it's not good manners to use the handkerchief while at the dinner table. Is this true?

A. This is not so much a matter of "good manners" as of "necessity." Certainly, if the handkerchief is necessary, use it—but do so as inconspicuously and as quietly as possible.

Q. Is it all right, if more convenient, to mail out the marriage announcements a few days before the wedding itself?

A. No—and for the simple and logical reason that the couple is not really "married" before the wedding has taken place. These announcements are properly mailed out immediately after the ceremony.

Q. Should one have salad forks, or may medium-sized regular forks be used?

A. The medium-sized fork serves all purposes and is always in good taste.

Q. What is the correct salutation to a business letter written jointly to a man and woman?

A. "Dear Sir and Madam."

Before packaging poultry for the freezer, remove the original wrapping and cardboard plate.

The first may not be moisture- and air-resistant; the second absorbs moisture and may impart flavors and odors to the poultry during freezer storage. Use a Tupperware plastic container for best freezing results. There are many sizes and shapes to choose from and all have unique airtight seals to lock in goodness and freshness.

Freeze your best sauces in Tupperware 2-ounce Midget plastic containers and, when frozen, store the cubes in polyethylene bags. When a recipe calls for just a few tablespoons of basic sauce, put the cubes into a measuring cup . . . set the cup into a skillet of simmering water . . . and the sauce will be deliciously ready in only 10 minutes.

Why not double or triple quantity when preparing favorite dishes? Then, you can eat one portion for dinner that day—and freeze the rest for dinner a week or two later.

Gun Permit List Reveal Names
Of Some Shocking Holders

The Des Moines Tribune is in the process of printing the names of those holding gun permits in Polk County. They are issued by the Sheriff.

If ever there was justification for opening public records to the public, this proves to be one.

The list reveals many surprises with names of some people who have no business carrying a gun, with some people who should be ashamed of themselves. Some are designated by law to carry a gun because of their business.

It is understandable that some of these people have taken out permits because of fear as the crime rate gets higher and higher; as people become more fearful of walking the streets without being attacked. And there are many in whose hands guns are dangerous.

At least we know who have them and can guard ourselves in dealing with them.

Undoubtedly, this has enhanced the political advantage of a sheriff which, in the long run, decreases his effectiveness in enforcing the law.

Mob Action For or Against Defendants Is Illegal

Requests from organizations and individuals are being made to the State of California that Angela Davis be given a fair trial.

This, of course, we all want and yet it is rather ludicrous to presume that she would not.

Miss Davis will be tried by a jury under the guidance of a judge. And, in spite of what views some may have hidden in their breast, the court would take a big chance of being reversed should the trial not be legal.

Then, too, she is surrounded by a battery of lawyers, some looking for fame and publicity, some that justice be done. There are organizations set to pick out any little step that might point to a mistrial. There just are many chances of her being tried with fairness and legality.

Under our system, courts are not to be intimidated by outsiders or influenced by them in their decisions. We had enough of that in the South in years gone by as citizens milled around jails and courthouses demanding conviction and of lynching defendants.

The U. S. Supreme Court has held that trials under such circumstances violate the constitutional rights of the defendants. The same reasoning could be applied where mobs demanded that defendants be found not guilty.

Let's not have individuals forcing influence for justice whether for or against a defendant.

Tax Increase Must Relieve Burden on Real Estate

In his state of the state message, Gov. Robert Ray has recommended an increase of 40 per cent on personal tax articles as an increase in corporate and cigarette tax to raise additional funds to help meet the state's needs and more school aid over the state.

This represents a change by Gov. Ray from that of no increase in taxes. However, unforeseen economic changes that have come about have made the move necessary.

The high taxes on real estate, brought on partly by increased school costs was a prime factor that brought the change.

Pressure from teachers and administrators for more pay and the increase in services demanded of the schools have put too much of a burden on real estate, a burden many citizens don't help carry. Not that the Bystander is against paying people for their work, but we do oppose demands without regard to other people and the method being used to enforce them.

Undoubtedly, the legislature will be making appropriations to help reform the tax situation, but the increase should go to help relieve the tax burden and not to appease unreasonable demands by pressure groups.

Activities of the Iowa
Civil Rights Commission

The Iowa Civil Rights Commission has reviewed the budget recommendations of the Governor and the plight of the state is once again evident. Much is being said about the lack of revenue on the part of the state. Statements are being made that budgets must be held down, strong economy measures must be taken.

The proposals are all good, and important, but for Civil Rights this has been a perennial condition since birth. The Civil Rights Commission has never had adequate financing to do and carry out its legislatively required functions.

The Governor in his efforts to fairly provide for the needs of all state agencies has provided a $9,581,000 increase for the Civil Rights Commission. The last budget request of the Civil Rights Commission was fulfilled by a $1,000,000 increase.

In spite of the Governor's efforts to lend assistance to the financial woes of the Civil Rights Commission it is possible that the legislature may reduce this amount or grant no increase at all.

The Civil Rights Commission must be able to answer the complaints of the citizens of this state. We must be able to do this in a timely fashion, the investigation must be made when the parties are still present and events fresh in their minds.

The Iowa Civil Rights

Commission is on the bottom nationally insofar as state funding is concerned. Even within the state finances barely compete. The city of Des Moines Human Rights Commission has a budget almost as large as the state Commission.

The state of Kansas has a budget of $133,000,000 per year, and yet they cannot enforce sex or housing discrimination.

The staff people of the Iowa Civil Rights Commission work an average of 50 hours per week and carry 45 cases apiece at the present time. The Governor's economy committee made no recommendations to improve the efficiency of this department except the use of state cars.

The conclusion to be considered then is that the Civil Rights Commission operates economically. When all things are considered it is not possible for the professional staff to keep pace with the increasing demands.

The budgetary request made by the Commission was for one purpose only and that was more help. Let me make it perfectly clear that if the Civil Rights Commission gets behind on its work, the confusion, complaints, and irritations become a bottomless pit. People will complain because they feel discriminated against and they will complain also because they do not receive services for which they pay taxes.

ON THE SPORTS SCENE

With Allen Ashby

Well, if you saw or listened to the Drake-Memphis State game last week-end, you probably wondered when the Bulldogs had gone in for indoor football.

By the time you read this, Drake will have had the return engagement with those fellows, and we hope there weren't too many casualties. What makes a basketball game get out of hand? Nobody can really say.

Deliberate Fouling

It seems as if one team starts fouling because they don't know what else to do. Then the officials just can't see all the fouls if a team wants to deliberately do them. So the other team fights back, and before you know it, you have a first class riot on your hands.

The home crowd doesn't help either, especially if their team is getting the most fouls called.

"Best Club Ever Had"

Coach John seems to disagree with our estimation of this Drake club. He says it is the best club he ever had.

We still don't think it is as good as the two previous teams. Maybe he means in bench strength as compared to his other teams. There just aren't seven fellows around like the first seven on those clubs. This is our opinion, and we have been known to be wrong.

Hawks In Conference

The Hawkeyes finally got into the conference win and we still can't see them finishing eighth in the race. They nearly blew this one.

We would guess that they tend to be a bit too conservative when they have a lead, and once they lose their momentum, can't regain it.

Maybe they will get to banging all the way, lead or no lead.

Iowa State

Iowa State thought they might trip up a really fine Kansas team, but the Jayhawkers weren't for being tripped up by anybody. And, in spite of all that Kansas talent, Iowa State's Gene Mack is the best all around player in the Big Eight.

In our high school race, Roosevelt put some fireworks back into the thing by stopping North just when it seemed as if the Polar Bears would waltz right on through to the crown.

Now it will be a showdown scuffle between North and Hoover when they meet again. Just might be there. And Tech made it two straight before dropping one to Roosevelt. Those Riders are coming on strong in this last half. They might furnish some surprises in the tournament.

Frazier-Ali "Brawl"

And now to boxing. Wonder how many people were sorry there will be no closed telecast of the championship brawl between Joe Frazier and Mohamed Ali?

At least, at this writing, there doesn't seem to be a chance for one. Most of the people we talked to seem to think that Frazier will win the thing.

Wishful Thinking

Could be that they are indulging in wishful thinking. If the Ali fellow can go the distance at top speed, he will, in our opinion, take the Frazier fellow to the cleaners. If he can't he might get kayoed.

The advent of the current movie about the late Jack Johnson brings to mind some memories. We were pretty young, and we never learned what a white hope was until years later. But, we can't forget how people pulled for Jefferies to beat the Johnson fellow.

There was so much talk about it that one just had to notice it, even though we didn't understand just what it was all about.

"Realling Joe Louis

But we do recall that when Joe Louis was on his way to the top, that most white people were saying he never would become champ because boxing wouldn't let him. People who didn't know a boxing glove from a loaf of bread were saying a colored champion would be bad for the game and other people who were equally wise, would sagely nod their heads in agreement.

When we asked them why that was so, they would mumble something and to this day, we never have been able to understand what the hell they were saying. There was speculation that Louis would be paid to throw the Max Baer fight but the guy forgot his lines.

Braddock's Choice

Then there was a story going around that Braddock chose to fight Louis because he figured the Brown Bomber wouldn't be as tough as Max Schemeling who had kayoed Louis. Well, if he did, he made a mistake.

Now, except for Ingemar Johansen and Rocky Marciano, there haven't been too many champions in the heavyweight ranks who weren't black. Wish some of the fellows we used to listen to were around today to hear about the biggest fight gate in the history of the game, and the biggest purse for the fighters. And who will be in on it? Ali, Frazier and Uncle Sam.

Median Wage Gain
Reaches New High

An all-industry figure of 27.9 cents an hour was the median negotiated wage increase in the first nine months of 1970, according to the Bureau of National Affairs. This is the largest step-up for any corresponding period in the last decade. It represents a 5.7 cent advance over the same period of last year.

Construction led the increases with a median settlement of 90.4 cents, 30.8 cents in printing and publishing, airlines, trucking and warehousing; 30.7 cents in utilities; and 30.6 cents in communications.

If you think the mayor, governor, senator or congressman are doing good jobs, let them know.

SOCIAL SECURITY

The IOWA BYSTANDER has made arrangements with the Des Moines office of the Social Security Administration to answer questions for our readers about social security and Medicare. Send your questions to Field Representative, Room 293 Federal Building, 210 Walnut St., Des Moines, Iowa 50309.

QUESTION: I was 65 in August 1970. I have never worked away from home. My husband is still working and he is 60 years old. Would I be eligible for Medicare? If so, which parts? When would it be effective?

ANSWER: Since you have never worked under social security and your husband is not eligible to file, you would not be eligible for the hospital part of Medicare. You should sign up for this part of Medicare as soon your husband is age 62. You are, however, eligible to sign up for the medical (doctor's) portion now and should do so before March 31. You would be covered starting July 1, 1971.

QUESTION: What is the connection between the Social Security Office and the office which administers Medicare?

ANSWER: The Social Security Office determines your eligibility for Part A - (Hospital) or Part B - (Medical) insurance. The processing of any claims you might have for Hospital or Medical expenses are then handled by the Medicare Office. In Iowa, most claims are handled by the Iowa Medical Service, Liberty Building, Des Moines, Iowa.

QUESTION: I am 40 years old and my birth was not recorded when I was born. Do I have to secure a delayed birth certificate to draw benefits when I reach age 62?

ANSWER: No, that is unnecessary. There are many proofs that can be used. We can use a baptismal certificate that was established before age 5. If this is not available, an early school record would be an excellent proof, or an early church record—even a marriage record if you were married before age 25. Your social security office will be glad to help you prove your age even though you are not age 62.

QUESTION: When is a worker considered disabled?

ANSWER: Generally speaking a worker is considered disabled if he or she has a physical or mental condition that is expected to last, or has lasted for at least 12 months, or is expected to result in death. And prevents him from doing any substantial gainful work.

QUESTION: When can I get a social security number?

ANSWER: Any time you wish. Contact your nearest social security office. If this is not convenient, get an application form SS-5 from your post office or the social security representative when he visits your area. Mail it to your social security district office. Most post offices will provide a self-addressed envelope. There is absolutely no age restriction when obtaining your social security number.

THE BLUE PALLOR OF
PRE-EMPHYSEMA

Information Service of
Your TB and Respiratory Disease Assn.

Youngsters who have chronic asthma often also have a lung condition called pre-emphysema.

Dr. Roy F. Goddard of the University of New Mexico Medical School estimates that seven out of every ten children with chronic asthma also have pre-emphysema. Another two or three, he says may have complete emphysema.

Emphysema is a form of damage to the lungs makes breathing a terrible struggle. Millions of tiny sacs make up the lungs, and in emphysema these sacs walls break to cause irregular openings; air is trapped inside the lungs. The process of breathing oxygen and exhaling carbon dioxide is severely disrupted. Although doctors use certain techniques to help persons with emphysema, there is not yet a cure for the disease.

In pre-emphysema, however, obstruction and inflation of the breathing apparatus is reversible if treated before permanent damage develops. As a result, says Dr. Goddard, it is extremely important that physicians perform periodic pulmonary function studies on children with pre-emphysema.

The child with pre-emphysema usually has shortness of breath and a history of a bad cough. Breathing is often accompanied by wheezing. According to Dr. Goddard, the child with this disease is sometimes smaller than average, has rounded shoulders and a bulging or barrel-chested appearance. He usually tires more quickly and is less alert than others his age. Often he has a blue pallor.

To find out more about emphysema and other lung diseases that affect people of all ages, contact your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. It's a matter of life and breath.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 — Danny Kaye, UNICEF's ambassador to the world's children, today accepted a check for $27,190.75 from Clark Gum Company presented by Arthur Ashe, America's second ranking tennis star. The contribution was based upon a gift by the company of 2½ cents for every Clark Gum package wrapper collected from October through December 1970. Over one million wrappers were returned. The money will be used for the U. N. Children's Fund to aid health and education.
