APOSTOLIC FAITH TEMPLE CHILDREN CHOIR

Andrews heads black gospel music TV program in Iowa.

ANDREWS

For the first time in Iowa TV history, Iowans woke up on March 7 and could listen to a regularly scheduled Black Gospel music program. At 7:15 a.m. on KRNT TV, channel 8 in Des Moines, Mr. Andrews was being presented with a group of singers ranging in age from 6 to 18. Among them was an 11 year old, considered the best in the city (little Elizabeth). The Apostolic Faith Temple Children's Choir has been an outstanding choir from its very beginning and has indeed presented a worthy presentation. They are not new to TV. However this is the first time they have been regularly scheduled.

Sharing the spotlight with Mr. Andrews is the 17 year old director. Not only is he a director but he also tailors each song to fit the choir. This is a sometimes very tedious job. Involving both rewriting songs and rearranging songs and music. An outstanding example of this is some of the songs the group have recorded. Some of them were written by Mr. Andrews. Michael Frazier, the director, assisted in the music and arrangement.

For the past 5½ years, Mr. Andrews has been heard on WKY radio with gospel music, and preaching. He presently has an ½ hour program on this station 9:00 to 9:30 p.m. Sunday. The children's choir has been broadcasting regularly since its beginning. They are presently heard on WKY and on WOI Ames, Iowa at 7:45 a.m. on Sunday.

Mr. Andrews also pastors a church, and publishes a weekly bulletin and a monthly magazine.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. I have been told that, when a bride displays her wedding gifts at the reception, she must remove the cards of the donors. Is this correct?

A. There is no definite rule about this. Many prefer to remove the cards, but there is nothing wrong either with leaving them on the gifts. And of course the signed cards often save the family the trouble of answering countless questions about "who sent what."

Q. How does one properly introduce one's stepfather?

A. Introduce him as "my stepfather," and be sure of course to mention his name (which is different from yours), as, "Mr. Harrison."

Q. When serving a fruit juice as the first course at the dinner table, where is this glass placed?

A. On the place plate — not with the water glass.

Q. I'm a girl about to be married for the first time, but my fiancé is a widower. I have heard that a second marriage always dictates a simple, informal wedding. Is this true?

A. No. The man's status has nothing to do with it. If the bride has not been previously married, she may plan her wedding on any scale she wishes.

Q. We recently moved into a new neighborhood, and some of our neighbors have been kind enough to call on us. When should these calls be returned?

A. Within two weeks or thereabouts. Failure to return these calls could indicate your unwillingness to accept the new friendships.

Q. Is it really the accepted form for a woman to use her maiden name as her middle name after she has married?

A. This is the established custom. After Judith Helen Anderson marries Robert Hall, she then becomes Judith Anderson Hall.

Q. Is it all right to eat bananas with the fingers when at the table?

A. No; they should be skinned on the dessert plate, then cut and eaten with the fork.

Q. When a host is doing the carving of the meat at the dinner table, does he usually cut enough for everyone before serving anyone?

A. This is the usually accepted procedure.

Dulin was the first black student to enroll at St. Joseph's College, Rensselaer, Ind. and the first black high school coach in Iowa.

High School Basketball
Tournaments Are Valuable

Iowa high school girls basketball season came to a thrilling close Saturday evening with a stunning upset victory over twice champions Montezuma and the easy victory by Farragut who was not favored to win.

At the closing Saturday, state championship teams in various sports were presented and it was announced that approximately 22 hundred girls participated in athletics during the 1970-71 season.

Participation in athletics helps to build coordination, self reliance, cooperation with others, discipline, unselfishness, character and other benefits to the body and mind which help to make well rounded students.

We were not aware of any Negro girl among the players because none live in the small towns from which most basketball teams come. Teams in other sports were from those where few Negroes participate. Of course, there have been great Negro players from Ankeny and West Des Moines.

The tournaments display some of the things that girls have been doing all year and which are valuable additions to the training of all students.

The Negro Press After 144 Years

The week of March 14 to 21 marks the 144 anniversary of the Negro Press. The findings of a survey by a researcher in the journalism department at the University of Iowa reported that not enough attention had been given the Negro press either by advertisers or the Negro himself, passing up the best method of reaching the Negro market by business; the best means of keeping up with Negro accomplishments which will make history and also what has already been accomplished.

We reprint a report on the survey from the Daily (Iowa City) Iowan (see page 2) which reveals much that has happened and little known. For example, there are only 5 Negro newspapers being printed today which were in operation at the turn of the century (the By-stander is one of them) which reminds the reader that their death rate has been terrific.

Lack of capital, knowledge of newspaper operation, poor advertising lineage and the difficulty of getting and holding circulation present problems that have floored many. This has been true of weeklies operated by white people in large cities where Negro newspapers are published.

Conditions are changing. More youngsters are choosing journalism as a career studying it while in college. Large advertisers that never bought space in Negro newspapers are doing so now. In short the business is beginning to pay.

Great credit is due those pioneers and others in years later who stuck with fourth estate in order to publish news about Negroes which the white press passed up except for crime news.

Today, the white press, like other white business, is bidding for Negro business. Their social columns are open - unheard of only a few years ago. Their employment policies should change too. It is as it should be. But it will make Negro newspapers tighten up and operate more effectively.

The By-stander has more white subscribers than ever before; bigger advertisers than ever before. And it has come in response to the demand to spend a part of the business advertising dollar with the Negro Press; to reach more and more Negroes.

The author finds that many successful Negroes ignore the Negro press as they leave the ghetto. And we can testify that some don't pay their subscribers so well but show up when there is a death or a marriage in the family.

Like the small town or the neighborhood newspaper, Negro newspapers provide a niche not in competition with the dailies, but a closeness with neighbors that will be with us a long time to come.

We Lost A Leader Who Lead With Intelligence

In these days of turmoil, strife, distrust, etc, the country is sorely in need of men who have the training and ability to point at the trouble spots and come up with solutions.

Whitney Young, Jr., who died last Thursday, was such a man.

Well educated in the basic fundamentals of government and its responsibilities to all the people, he chose social work for a life career. As a teacher and head of chapters of the Urban League in large cities, he was well prepared to move this organization forward.

He was a consistent fighter for civil rights and yet he was able to solicit large sums to carry on his work. He was among President Nixon's closest advisors because he made his point with intelligence and, forcefulness which made his counsel valuable.

We need more such men and are sorry to have lost Young, a man whose work will live in the hearts of all people of goodwill.

Health for All

THEY GOT RHYTHM

A furry animal can cause asthma. So can a thousand other irritants. Drugs can help treat asthma. Maybe music can, too.

Some people with asthma suffer from sudden, severe attacks. They feel as if they are choking and cannot get enough air to breathe. The experience can be terrifying, especially for young children.

If a doctor can locate the irritant that is the source of the allergy, desensitizing injections can be administered. And further attacks can be alleviated or prevented.

In addition to medication, an unusual approach to help asthmatic children is underway at the National Jewish Hospital and Research Center in Denver. Some of the children there have had asthma all their lives. Because of their illness, their emotional and physical development often lags behind that of other youngsters their age. Music therapy is spurring their progress.

The children learn to make music themselves, not just listen to it. With a special instructor, children start off with patty cake and then go on to singing, drums, and recorder. Even preschoolers learn to set down on paper the rhythms and melodies they hear first. Then they write their own.

Music makes good vibrations. It does more for asthmatic children. Attempts at rhythm, harmony, and

ON THE SPORTS SCENE

The biggest fight since Cain tangled with Abel is history, and the people who weren't at the telecast of it or at the real thing seem to know more about what happened than those who were there.

Almost all the white people we talked to seemed very happy that Frazier won. Everybody seemed to have a different theory as to why it happened.

We thought that the Ali fellow had to go the distance at top speed if he won, apparently he didn't.

As we studied the pictures of the brawl, we could see that Ali was about a month away from being in top condition. Maybe that might not have made any difference. We don't know. But just about everyone who was at the telecast said he would go to a rematch. And most of them seemed to think that Ali will be the winner this time. Whatever anybody thought, both men made a lot of money, and that is the name of the professional fight game.

Drake

We wonder if Drake Coach, John, would have taken the Iowa State job if he had known that his Bulldogs would be in the running for a national title again. The new fellow, Stacey, seems to have what it takes. Now, one wonders if the black coach he hired was for window dressing, or if he will be a coach. Gus Guydon is a coach in every sense. The fact that he would even be mentioned as a possible replacement for John speaks for the regard he was given by Drake fans and alumni. He was probably right in saying he needed more experience, but he would have been under more pressure than anyone would care to be, and the Bulldogs had better not come up with a losing season.

With Allen Ashby

It is hard to comment on some things that we would like to because of our deadline. People often ask us why we don't give so and so the same sort of a writeup that he got in the daily paper. Well, we have to write our stuff on Monday afternoon in order to get it in by Tuesday noon. Between Tuesday and Friday, the story breaks in the daily paper, and our stuff would look like a rehash of that story. And that we have tried to avoid for years, although we have been accused of doing it at various times.

BASKETBALL HONORS

The selection of Notre Dame's Austin Carr as the year's top basketball player makes one wonder if he would have been chosen over U.C.L.A.'s Sydney Wicks if the Notre Dams had not beaten the Uclans in their one meeting so far. Carr never had a bad game, for if he didn't score and sometimes when he did, the Irish lost a ball game. Wicks was also a consistent player while the other fellow Artis Gilmore had his good and some rough days. Against Notre Dame Wicks had probably a half dozen shots go in and pop back out of the basket. If they had stayed down Sydney might well have received the year's top cage honor.

North High

We aren't saying anything about North High because by the time this comes out, they will either be playing for the title, or be licking their wounds. One of our friends thought that more than two of the Polar Bears should have been on the all city team, but we were glad to see two on it, and if they hadn't won the city crown, maybe there might have been only one.

Telephone
Earnings Down

Northwestern Bell Telephone Company experienced a decline in earnings in 1970, Thomas S. Nurnberger, Company President, states in the firm's annual report released today.

He points out that the decline was due to "sharply increased costs, in part a reflection of rising inflation," which "pushed company operating expenses beyond our ability to absorb such increases through normal revenue growth and intensified operating efficiencies."

He continues: "Northwestern Bell is firmly dedicated to high standards of service. In order to maintain this commitment, it is necessary that our financial performance be good. We expect that some repricing of our services will be necessary in the near future if we are to have the financial resources needed to meet immediate and future customer demands."

Earnings Down

Earnings per share of company stock were $2.28 for the year, down from $2.47 in 1969.

The report notes that costs of running the business were the highest in company history, up 12 per cent over 1969 and nearly 50 per cent higher than five years ago. Although revenues rose also, they didn't rise as fast as the year before, nor did they keep up with the increase in expenses.

The slowdown in the nation's economy was reflected in lower levels of growth in long distance volumes and business services, the report explains. But main, or basic, residence tele-
