Governor, Mayor and School Superintendent Address First Meeting

By Caroline Pokrzywinski
News Editor

Governor Ray, Mayor Urban and Dr. Davis, superintendent of Des Moines public schools spoke at the opening of the Des Moines Charrette Tuesday morning, April 13 at Knights of Columbus Hall, 24th and Woodland Ave.

The Des Moines Educational Charrette is a unique community involvement project to plan two new replacement schools for Bird-Grant and Nash-Kirkwood Schools.

Governor Ray, the first speaker and a Grant School graduate, said that his interest in the Charrette is more than just "an impersonal experience."

Mayor Urban said the Charrette was a "splendid opportunity" and gave it his support.

Dr. Davis called the Charrette a unique experience to plan schools and curriculums.

Virgil Robinson, former head of the Charrette Steering Committee said that the future of the community and the children "depends on us."

"If we fail, don't blame the children," said Robinson.

After the opening speeches the 160 Charrette participants divided into seven discussion groups. The discussion group topics cover educational facilities educational programming, community development and school-community programs. For the two new replacement schools.

Charrette participants will spend time in each of the four groups.

Some issues discussed in the groups were:

1. School principals be replaced by a community-school director.
2. An advisory council of community members be set up to work with the community and the community-school director.
3. Transportation.

4. Selection of teachers by the community.
5. Establishing community health services for the Bird-Grant Nash-Kirkwood area.
6. Establishing a welfare agency in the community to deal with food stamp distribution, marriage counseling, social security information and child-parent attendance.

Among those participating in the Charrette are Bird-Grant Nash-Kirkwood area residents, Drake faculty members, local teachers and principals, teachers corps, Polk County Schools, Model Cities, United Way and the Jaycees.

Abernathy Launches Campaign Against A & P Tea Company

ATLANTA, GA. — Dr. Ralph David Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, announced from the Overseas Press Club

in New York City, plans for a nation-wide campaign against the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company (A&P). Dr. Abernathy was in New York this week to launch the second phase of the Spring "War Against Repression." Monday, April 5, 1971, the SCLC leader led thousands of demonstrators to New York's Wall Street, where he challenged the nation's economic leaders to invest in life rather than material wealth.

KANSAS CITY, KAN. (AP) — Richard Walsh, new mayor, says he has asked Boston Daniels to continue as police chief of Kansas City, Kan., and Daniels has agreed.

Daniels is the first Negro to be appointed police chief in a city this large.

Convention Planned for Selection of Black Governor

Final arrangements are being made for the nominating convention of the biracial Democratic Party and other groups to select a candidate for Governor of Mississippi on Sunday, April 18th, in Jackson.

In all likelihood Mayor Charles Evers of Fayette will be the convention's choice for the gubernatorial nomination. If he receives the nomination, he will be the first Negro to run for this office in Mississippi's history.

In addition, almost 150 Negroes from most of the state's 82 counties have already agreed to run for a variety of local and state offices in the 1971 elections next fall.

Meanwhile, despite court challenges, 21 counties have already begun re-registration of voters. They comprise about forty per cent of the black vote, most of which has been registered since the 1965 Voting Rights Act. Several counties have also redistributed, merging areas with black majorities to areas with a larger white vote. A sizable voter registration campaign is now being conducted by the combined rights and liberal forces in the state. Between March 21 and April 14th, 140 college students from the North and Midwest have been working in Mississippi as volunteers to register new voters and reregister old ones. They have come, at their own expense, from New York, and Minnesota.

The student volunteers, working on their Easter vacations, have been assigned to counties in all sections of the state.

On May 15th about 100 students from Seton Hall University of New Jersey will arrive in the delta region of Northern Mississippi for two weeks of volunteer work to aid voter registration.

A state-wide campaign headquarters will be opened in Jackson on the weekend of the nominating convention.

The Hawkeye Lodge #160 and Rose Temple #33 of Elks will celebrate their Thanksgiving Services at Bethel AME Church Sunday April 18th at the morning service.

NEWS In A Nutshell

CHICAGO — A march of over 1,000 demonstrated against the war in South East Asia, in support of the National Welfare Rights Organization's demand for an annual income of 6,500 end to the draft and release of political prisoners. Heavy Black and Trade Union support was very much in evidence during the demonstration. The Martin Luther King Memorial Committee composed of antiwar, trade union, and civil rights organizations sponsored the march and rally. Rev. Jesse Jackson of Operation Bread basket and Akbar Ahmed of the Harrisburg 6 both called for support for April 24.

STORRS, Conn., April — More than 100 University of Connecticut dancers will perform in a jazz concert here April 17 with a professional black dance company and one of the nation's "finest big bands."

WASHINGTON — Some 420 minority youths will be prepared for apprenticeship entrance test in the construction trades through Federal funding of Apprenticeship Outreach projects in New Jersey, Southern Illinois, and the District of Columbia, Manpower Administrator Paul J. ATLANTA, GA. — The Board of Directors of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference will hold its annual Spring meeting in Detroit, Michigan, April 13, 14, 1971, it was announced by Dr. J. E. Lowery, Chairman. According to Dr. Lowery, the policy making body will address national strike against A&P and the Nixon Administration's neglect of black and poor people.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. April 2 — Meeting here today, the board of directors of The American Institute of Architects passed a resolution honoring the memory of Whitney M. Young Jr., the man who sparked the architects' nationwide program of professional assistance to minorities when he addressed their 1968 national convention.

Howard and his wife have two children, Linda, age 11, and Steven, 5.

In making the announcement, Regional Commissioner Kreek added that some of the more important responsibilities in Howard's new assignment will be the supervision of social security retirement survivors, disability, and Medicare programs administration in the 13 county Des Moines service area.

Post First Held by Judge William Parker; Term Lasts Six Years

DES MOINES — A Des Moines businessman, Silas S. Ewing, 39, has been appointed by Governor Robert Ray to a six-year term on the State Board of Parole.

Ray announced the appointment Wednesday. Ewing's appointment is subject to confirmation by the Iowa Senate. The term begins July 1, 1971, at an annual salary of $9,000.

Ewing will succeed John E. Andrews, Des Moines, on the three-member board. Other members are George L. Paul, Brooklyn, and Jack Bedell, Spirit Lake.

Ewing, Chairman of Des Moines Human Rights Commission is best characterized by poise and as having a manifest interest in the readiness of the Des Moines' business sector to respond to the problems of poverty and racism.

Essentially a methodologist, Mr. Ewing advocates and practices a sympathetic understanding of social problems accompanied by a dynamic program of social action - in a city which boasts of some 11,000 Blacks citizens, a large percentage being unemployed, under-employed or hindered from entering certain areas of the labor market.

With a quiet reflection he recalled his own experiences as he attempted to obtain employment in the sales field soon after he was graduated from Drake University with a B.S. in Business Administration (1958).

A small frown pierced his brow as he reminisced. The thing that provoked him the most was the methods and techniques used to discourage his efforts: (1) he was encouraged to go into medicine (which by implication would preclude direct or intimate contact with Caucasians); (2) he was told that he was over-qualified; (3) he was often required to be interviewed by top executives of an industry while seeking a job of mediocre status (to mention a few).

These negative experiences were during a percentage of Black men holding down semi-skilled and skilled positions in both the North and South U.S.A. was relatively small. But Mr. Ewing persevered until at last one firm hired him: The Preferred Risk Mutual Insurance Company of Des Moines. His entry job was as an Account Clerk - a position when generally required a high school education.

Moves Up Quickly - Although hired far beneath his ability to function and his potential for learning, Mr. Ewing's first advancement came relatively early. In 1959 he was sent to the Regional Office in Colorado Springs as Acting Manager for the Accounting Division. In late 1962 he was given permanent status as Manager of the Accounting Division in the Des Moines Headquarters now located at 1111 Ashworth Rd., - he has 7 employees directly under his supervision - they deal with figures in multi-million dollar dimensions. In looking backward, one of the present executives realizes that the belief that they had done a "wonderful thing" in hiring him as an accountant clerk fully symbolizes the extent of the unawareness of injustice that prevailed during this period.

Mr. Ewing gives credit to several of the executives at Preferred Risk for both his hire and subsequent upgrading to managerial status.

Newton Trial Set for May

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF. — Black Panther co-founder Huey Newton is to be retried on a voluntary manslaughter charge May 30, a judge said Monday.

Newton has been free on $50,000 bond since reversal last May of his previous conviction of killing an Oakland policeman in 1967.

Aameda County Superior Court Judge Harold B. Hove set the new trial date. Hove has been continuing the case from month to month until Black Panther attorney Charles R. Garry can appear to defend Newton.

Garry is defending Black Panther chairman Bobby Seale and Ericka Huggins in a New Haven, Conn., trial for the alleged murder of Alex Rackley, 24, of New York.

Free After 23 Years in Tennessee Penn.

NASHVILLE, TENN. Willie Lee Henderson, an inmate at Brushy Mountain State Prison for 23 years, was ordered freed Monday because Negroes were systematically excluded from the grand jury that indicted him for murder.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank Gray ordered the release on the grounds that the Davidson County grand jury that indicted Henderson "was not a grand jury at all."

Henderson pleaded guilty in 1948 to first-degree murder in the robbery slaying of W. B. Cotte, 68, during a liquor store holdup. Until 1953, Gray said, all black residents whose names appeared on the county's lists of prospective jurors were "marked with the designation 'c' or the designation 'col' to signify that the person listed was colored."

Robert Weston Named To Restaurant Post

Robert E. Weston of Des Moines has been named manager of Sunny Time Restaurant, established by Hy-Line Poultry Farms to explore potential for expanding consumer demand for eggs through public eating establishments.

Courtney P. Allen, Hy-Line director of marketing, who announced the appointment, said that the restaurant, located at 1120 Mulberry Street, has been conducted on a trial basis for about four months. Breakfasts and lunches are served, featuring egg dishes in many forms, and box lunches are available.

Weston formerly served as building engineer for Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., of which Hy-Line is an associate firm. A lifetime Des Moines resident, he and his wife Frances are parents of two children, Maria, 7, and David, 3. The family resides at 2321 Payne Road.

Producers of "Sesame Street" Create New Field Department

NEW YORK — The Children's Television Workshop has announced the promotion of Charlie Smith to the newly created position of director of national field services.

Joan Ganz Cooney, president of the Workshop, which created and produces the popular educational television series "Sesame Street," said the new assignment reflects increasing responsibilities of the Workshop in working with community and school organizations across the country.

Smith will direct the day-to-day activities of some 35 full-time Workshop Field Services coordinators assigned to 12 of the nation's largest metropolitan areas, and another 10 staff members assigned to the Workshop's New York headquarters.

In addition to working with individual parents, day care and Head Start centers and neighborhood groups interested in early childhood education, the Field Services group also conducts bilingual projects in Spanish-speaking neighborhoods. This includes distribution of a Spanish-language edition of "The Sesame Street Magazine."

New Black Magazine Nears $1 Million Mark

NEW YORK - Black Enterprise, a monthly magazine directed to existing and prospective black businessmen, expects to reach the one million dollar mark in its advertising sales by the year's end, it was announced recently by Earl G. Graves, publisher of the magazine.

"I feel that we have been fortunate in selling our new publication to major advertisers throughout the country, particularly in a year when the economy nationwide has experienced a decline," said Mr. Graves.

"We have come a long way since we published our first issue nine months ago," he added, "but despite the distance that we have covered, the why of Black Enterprise has not changed. It is a "how to" magazine for black entrepreneurs who are trying to make the free enterprise system work successfully for them.

"Our advertisers, who are many of the country's leading corporations, are proving that advertising space in the magazine is a sound business investment. We produce a quality magazine, and the advertisers are reaching a corner of the market, with an efficiency in dollars, never before available to them."

Black Enterprise speaks primarily to 4 per cent of the black community that accounts for 50 per cent of consumer dollars spent. It has a controlled circulation of 100,000: 45,000 black businessmen; 25,000 black professionals; 25,000 black business oriented students and faculty members; 2,000 black elected officials; 2,000 leading black ministers; and 1,000 heads of black economic development groups.

Each month the magazine provides its readers with helpful articles and features on what the black businessman is doing, what he must do in the future, which organizations specialize in aiding black businessmen, where to obtain such help and how to evaluate information about career opportunities. In addition, there are special sections on "how to" book-keeping, marketing, and financing.

"For example," said Mr. Graves, "our April issue 'Special Careers' provides the reader with an account of the historic plight of the black man in the labor market and business field; the career choices of black high school students; and advice from such notables as the late Whitney M. Young, Jr., Labor Secretary James Hodgson and Roy Wilkins; and features on those black men and women who have chosen and are successful in careers that were, at one time, closed to blacks."

"Although we are still young," added the publisher, "I can feel our voice growing stronger and steadier with every issue. The April issue of the magazine represents the largest current single concentration in the magazine field in the area of careers for blacks."

"In addition, over $225,000 in advertising was sold in this issue. And we are hoping it will be the pace setter for advertisers in future issues of Black Enterprise."

"The Board of Black Enterprise," said Mr. Graves, "has worked long and hard to make the magazine a major force in helping to bring as many black businessmen as possible into the growing affluence of this nation."

The editor of the nearly year-old publication is Pat Patterson, formerly of Newsday and The Manhattan Tribune.

Schwengel Urges Thaw on Funds

DAVENPORT, IOWA—At a news conference last week Congressman Fred Schwengel said he is urging the Nixon Administration to release funds appropriated for cities and housing projects.

Schwengel said he is particularly concerned about the "freeze" on the allocation of funds for the low rent housing for the elderly program.

"Several cities in the First District, Davenport, Muscatine, Ft. Madison, Mt. Pleasant, Fairfield, and Lone Tree have applications on file for low rent housing for the elderly projects," he said.

"Processing and funding of these projects is being delayed pending the release of the funds Congress appropriated," Schwengel stated.

Congressman Schwengel noted that when the low rent housing for the elderly program was authorized it took Iowa communities "a little while to qualify" because of state law requiring an election to approve low rent or public housing projects.

"When Iowa communities finally were eligible to apply, the funds to meet the needs were no longer readily available," Schwengel said, "That is one reason I so strongly supported the HUD appropriations bill last year. It provided for additional money for low rent housing for the elderly projects."

Schwengel said he believes the problem of making adequate low rent housing available for our senior citizens warrants the release of the appropriated funds.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Citizens Advisory Committee on Civil Rights meets in Washington April 14 to discuss USDA civil rights policies and procedures. Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin will welcome the committee.

Mr. Hardin in a memorandum last October establishing the civil rights committee, said it was created "to renew and strengthen our efforts in this important area."

NBL President Venable Honored For Work In Minority Business

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The widespread interest in Black and other minorities succeeding in business has been to a large degree the responsibility of Abraham S. Venable.

Berkeley G. Burrell, President of the National Business League and General Chairman for "A Salute to Abe Venable" announced that some 500 friends of Mr. Venable's from coast to coast will gather at the Twin Bridge Marriott Hotel, April 21, for a dinner honoring his achievements and express confidence in his ability to succeed in his new assignment with General Motors Corporation.

25% of Black Car Dealers Close

NEW YORK, N.Y.—Business Week magazine stated that nine of the nation's 38 black car dealers have closed their showrooms in recent months and many of those surviving are in trouble.

In March, the nation's first, and only, black car dealer in business prior to the 1967 riots, closed his Chrysler-Plymouth agency in inner-city Detroit, stating, "My feeling was that things may not be getting any better."

Back of the shut-downs, the magazine reports are several factors.

The auto makers accepted inexperienced applicants for dealerships after the rioting in an effort to make up for the previous lack.

The new black dealers lacked qualified black executives to head up departments such as sales, service and parts. In the past, blacks had been "employed as porters, or at best as new car salesmen, but were never exposed to the management side of the business," the magazine said.

Business Week also noted, "Half of their potential sales are lost because of credit turn-downs, and dealers insist that many of the refusals are unjustified."

"I believe resident address on a credit application has a hell of a bearing on whether it is approved," says Clarence Carter, a black Chevrolet dealer in Detroit.

Pilferage, theft and high insurance premiums take a big toll. One black Ford dealer in Chicago says he pays $30,000 a year for insurance and $600 more each month for a burglar alarm system and a watchdog.

Finally, the recession, coupled with the trend of car dealers to follow the money stream to the suburbs, combined to hurt the new inner-city black dealers.

"If Detroit made serious mistakes in locating and selecting initial black dealers," Business Week continued, "it has also erred in not following through with enough management assistance, dealers point out."

"The total effort from Detroit has been modest at best," the magazine continued. "Only 11 blacks are in training to be dealers. Neither GM nor Chrysler has any formal program to train black middle managers, although they say they are working on plans. Ford expects to train 15 blacks for management positions this year."

The auto makers note that the business of running a dealership is complicated — involving controlling costs in a $6 million business, supervising about 30 people and four department heads.

One black dealer who made money in his first year is Detroit's Nathan Conyers, a Ford dealer who opened up 15 months ago not far from where the Detroit riots began. A lawyer with a sharp business sense, his showroom attracts white employees from a nearby office-shopping complex, as well as blacks.

Business Week concludes, "Detroit realizes that the future will be agonizing, and there are no promises of any gains in numbers of black dealers. In fact, one informed source believes that half of all existing black dealerships will be closed by the end of the year.

"New ones, of course, will open, and the Big Three insist the program for this has high priority. But Conyers is not optimistic. Says he of the auto makers' efforts:

"I don't sense that the commitment is growing."

Black Sailors Write Heroic Chapters in Navy History

Fifteen hundred blacks served our country in the Navy's first sea battles of the Revolutionary War. And one of every six of our Navy men in the War of 1812 was black. But it wasn't until the Civil War, and its more effective record-keeping, that individual deeds of valor by black Navy men began to be documented.

Aged to document.
 At the battle of Mobile Bay in 1864, John Lawson was one of six men killed or injured by a shell that crashed into the flagship Hartford. He was wounded by the explosion and thrown violently against the bulkhead. Though ordered to tend to his injuries, he refused to go below and stayed at his station through the remainder of the action. Lawson subsequently received the Medal of Honor, being one of five black men, in the War between the States, to receive this nation's highest military decoration.

A black "volunteer" carried out one of the more incredible naval feats of the entire Civil War. On May 13, 1862, while the officers of the Confederate steamer Planter were ashore in Charleston, S.C., an escape party of 16 slaves under the guidance of Robert Smalls stole aboard the ship and made for sea.

In fleeing the harbor, Smalls had to pass several Confederate forts. As he passed each outpost, he gave the correct signal with the ship's whistle. Finally the steamer came abreast of the huge guns of Fort Sumter. Smalls boldly signaled and kept a steady course as though the Planter were engaged on a routine mission. The ship was permitted to pass. When he was out of range of the fort's cannon, Smalls hoisted a white flag and sailed the ship directly into the hands of the Union Fleet blockading the harbor.

This "crew" of eight men, five women and three children received a cash award from President Lincoln for their bravery. Smalls himself was named captain of the vessel and served as its commanding officer in the Union Navy until the ship's decommissioning at the end

Here are a couple of year 'round hints to keep in mind that are not only "safety-oriented"—but "economy-oriented," too.

1. Regardless of the type of air conditioning system you have, it's a good idea to have it serviced before the warm weather approaches. If it isn't operating properly and efficiently, it will certainly cost you more to operate.
2. Keep your furnace filter clean! Your furnace may be in good condition and may operate all day long—especially during very cold days—but the system won't be operating efficiently if the filter is clogged or dirty. This can be expensive and dangerous. Filters are inexpensive, so change them often as necessary—but at least twice a winter.

Policyholder Questions Answered by The Institute of Life Insurance, 277 Park Ave., N. Y., N. Y., 10017

Q. My husband and I have five young children. He's an electrical engineer and is doing quite well. From the time we were married he's always had life insurance. Recently I've been thinking how much it would cost to take care of the children if something should happen to me and that maybe I need life insurance, too. Is it common for wives to be insured?

A. Yes, it's becoming quite common for wives to have life insurance. In fact, according to a recent Institute of Life Insurance survey, 71 per cent of all wives had some insurance. With such items as taxes, wages, marital deductions, and bringing up children it's important to consider what the loss of a wife would mean financially to a family.

The question is: When should a wife take out life insurance? Here are some yardsticks to measure by. First, your husband should have at least enough life insurance on himself to cover final expenses; enough to provide adequately for you and the children until they are college age, including some tuition money to get them started. After these are taken care of, then insurance for you should be considered. You'll want to talk this over with your husband and your insurance man to decide on the best plan for your family.

Q. I'm contemplating taking out a bank loan and understand that credit life insurance goes along with it. What is it exactly and how do they figure the cost?

A. Credit life insurance is used to repay a debt in case the borrower should die. It is term insurance, generally decreasing as the loan is repaid. It protects the borrower's family against the burden of a debt that might be left if he should die. Credit life insurance is issued through life insurance companies to lenders such as banks, finance companies, credit unions and retailers. During 1968, credit life insurance in the amount of $76 billion worth of protection was in force in the United States.

Premiums are figured at a flat rate - about 6 cents a month for each $100 of a borrower's outstanding debt.

Sickle Cell Anemia. . . The Government's Counterattack

For the first time in the history of this country the Federal Government has launched a major attack on an illness that affects one out of every 400 Afro-Americans; sickle cell anemia.

Current estimates are that at least 50,000 blacks in the United States suffer from the disease while about 2 million are "carriers" of the sickle cell blood trait.

We recognize, with regret, that little has been done in the past to ease the terrible suffering associated with the illness. President Nixon, in his Health Message to the Congress said:

"It is a sad and shameful fact that the cause of this disease have been largely neglected throughout our history. We cannot rewrite this record of neglect, but we can reverse it."

Already plans are under way, first to ease the suffering of those who are af-licted with the illness and second, to make the public more aware of the disease. These efforts are already well into the planning stage and will be implemented long before Congress acts on the Administration's proposed Sickle Cell Anemia Program.

Through an extensive information and education campaign, more people all over the country will know about sickle cell anemia and what they can do, right now, to start turning the tide.

Sickle cell anemia is a blood disorder which is inherited from parents. The parents may not actually have the disease but may merely carry the particular trait. Such "carriers" can pass this trait onto the child. Children born of marriages between carriers stand a one-out-of-four chance of being afflicted by the disease.

If every black couple contemplating marriage were to request a blood test for sickle cell anemia, half the battle would be won. If every black American would ask for the sickle cell test, the problem would be even less.

If every doctor, when examining a black person, would include the sickle cell test as part of his routine physical, we would have more information about the disease and would be able to do more to prevent its occurrence.

The administration has also proposed that the Congress appropriate funds for a new and expanded effort to discover a cure for sickle cell anemia. This $6 million will build upon our present research program which itself is designed to prevent suffering and to save lives.

How far away is the final cure for sickle cell anemia? Until research provides us with dramatic new weapons, the final cure will have to rest almost entirely in the hands of black citizens.

To date, the most important and effective measure to decrease the incidence to sickle cell anemia is parental planning. Afro-Americans should become aware of the disease, how it is inherited, and how blood tests can be used to detect carriers of the illness. Those who are found to be carriers should then understand the importance of avoiding pregnancies when both parents carry the sickle cell trait. This will prevent the birth of children who inherit the disease and greatly reduce the numbers of other children who would be carriers and perpetrators of sickle cell anemia.

Every effort will be made to ease the suffering of those who now have sickle cell anemia and to find ways of preventing and curing this dread disease. A major objective of the administration is to assure that the victims of this disease will no longer suffer in silence.

WARDROBE WISDOM

BY JANE DONALSON

Today's gal . . . dynamic and fashionable . . . has more going for her wardrobe than ever before—like filament yarns with permanent waves!

When a straight piece of filament yarn is crimped, it looks like it just got back from the hairdresser. The result of this fabric "coiffing" can be compared to a soft but sturdy spring or cushion which helps absorb the shocks and strains of everyday wear. That's why Ban-Lon apparel, with fabrics made this way, wears so well, lasts so long and looks so great.

And, because the physical shape of the crimp makes it possible for air to be trapped easily, Ban-Lon continuous filament fibers are also made light, pliable, resilient, permanently lively, and highly absorbent, with a dry, warm, crisp hand . . . offering outstanding gal-on-the-go fashion comfort.

An added comfort factor: the crimp causes the fibers to stand off from each other, so that the garment can "breathe." This assures greater bulk and increased covering power with less weight.

In a way, this well-coiffed Ban-Lon yarn has built-in air conditioning too—being cool when it's hot, and warm when it's cold. And—of course—piling or fuzzing is virtually eliminated.

Black Directs Pasadena Urban League In 'Helping People Help Themselves'

"More and more of our efforts have to be to address ourselves to helping people help themselves," said John Reagan, director of the Pasadena-Foothill Branch of the Greater Los Angeles Urban League.

"My own philosophy and in a greater sense that of the Urban League is that an open society with complete integration is compatible with internal strengthening of the black community," he concluded.

Mr. Reagan came into his job with new ideas. But he has done that all his life. He was one of the first dozen black officers who were commissioned in the Navy in March 1944, in Great Lakes, Ill.

He has kept his involvement with civil rights as his foremost philosophy, and also retained his commission in the Naval Reserve for 23 years. He held the rank of Lieutenant Commander.

Mr. Reagan has been director of the Pasadena Urban League for two years, as long as there has been a chapter in this southern California city. He has primarily been concerned with influencing California business leaders to improve the employment situation for unemployed and under-employed blacks.

"We felt there was a great need in this area to work with people with an education who were finding difficulty with their careers," he said.

After his commissioning in 1944, Ensign Reagan joined the patrol ship USS Cahto (YT-215) on the East Coast for convoy and cargo assignments. He later served with a logistics support company seeing duty in Guam and Okinawa.

After the end of the war, Mr. Reagan returned to college to finish his degree in economics and so-ciology, and then played pro football in Canada. He was honorable mention All-American at Montana State.

"After a year of pro ball I came to Los Angeles to live and went into the insurance business. Eighteen months later, the Navy asked me to come back on active duty for recruiting. During this tour, Korea broke out and I ended up spending four years on active duty," he recalled.

During this second tour of active duty, Mr. Reagan was promoted to Lieutenant and assigned as Executive Officer of a troop ship.

American Cancer Society Meets To Discuss Latest Developments In Research and Management

An array of over 50 American and foreign scientists—including Afro-American and non-white scientists—discussed the latest developments in cancer research and management at the 13th Annual Science Writers' Seminar of the American Cancer Society.

At the meeting in Carefree, Ariz. near Phoenix, the distinguished scientists spoke to an equally stellar gathering of the nation's medical and scientific journalists. But "these new and magnificent advances American medicine is creating will be largely useless" the writers were told "unless we find ways of delivering them to all the American people who need them—poor and rich alike," declared Dr. James G. Haughton, Executive Director of the Health and Hospitals Governing Commission of Cook County, Chicago, Illinois.

Dr. Haughton who is reorganizing the Cook County Hospital system said that the "ultimate control of cancer and all other diseases will only come when we stop thinking of the poor getting their health services in one place and the more affluent in another."

In the research area, if the thinking behind a series of experiments at Howard University Medical School prove fruitful the now extensive surgery performed on persons with colon cancer may be limited, reported Dr. La Salle D. Leffall, Jr. Chairman of the Department of Surgery.

Presently, besides removing the primary malignant tumor, surgeons take out surrounding lymph nodes, the idea being to prevent the spread (metastasis) of cancer cells into other parts of the body by the lymph network which act as a drainage system. The nodes are small bean shaped bodies in the lymphatic vessels which perform as filters and remove infectious and toxin materials from lymph the clear liquid that flows throughout one's body. It is also believed that they take part in the creation of antibodies that help fight disease. Physicians have been dismayed by the growing incidence of colon cancer. In the United States it is more common than any other type besides skin cancer and according to the American Cancer Society strikes about 75,000 Americans yearly and kills about 46,000 annually. The death rates are about the same among blacks and whites.

Dr. Leffall noted that "cure rates up to 80 percent can be achieved in colon cancer when the diagnosis is made early and appropriate treatment instituted." Early diagnosis he noted is facilitated by "the procto" a rectal examination with a lighted tube enabling the physician to observe the colon.

Besides Doctors Haughton and Leffall, the Science Writers Seminar heard presentations from two other non-white scientists.

Dr. Takao Ohnuma, Research Clinician at Roswell Park Memorial Institute of Buffalo, New York, reported on bleomycin a new anti-cancer drug developed in Japan. The drug has many advantages over several other anti-cancer agents.

India-born Dr. Keerti V. Shah, associate Professor of Pathobiology at Johns Hopkins University told of a virus that naturally infects the rhesus monkey of Southeast Asia. This causes malignant tumors in hamsters, rats, and in human tissue experiments produces malignancies in normal cells.

A YOUNG JEWISH COED, ALONG WAY FROM HOME, found herself facing the opening of the Passover with great hunger for the family hearth, the loving presence of father and mother, of sister and brother, and the many other relatives gathered to celebrate this great feast. She determined to prepare a Passover Feast and to serve those about her. Rising about 5 a.m. as would her mother, she prepared the food. Recalling and carrying out her mother's every move. She remembered, too, to leave a table setting and a glass of wine for Elijah.

I HAD THE GOOD FORTUNE TO BE AMONG HER GUESTS. Finding herself uncertain as to how to make the gravy, she asked for a volunteer to do so. Gladly I accomplished this small task. Soon our hostess called us to dinner. There was a beautifully browned turkey. It was most delicious and filled with the best dressing imaginable! There matzos fish balls, a salad of chopped pecans and apples covered with wine. Wine for every one and a dessert of matzos pudding topped with sliced blanched almonds. She fed us well, her "family", a mixed multitude.

AS WE GATHERED ABOUTHERSMALLTABLE, and here and there about the room, she told us the Passover story. The evening was a success! She had relived the role of her mother. She was as tired as would be her mother! Her guests were as humbly pleased and appreciative as would have been her real family. Oh yes, and on this warm evening, the front door remained open for Elijah!

I LONGED TO SOMEHOW COMMUNICATE WITH THE PARENTS OF THIS LOVELY CHILD. She placed her arms tightly about me saying this is my mother. I held her closely for her mother, and of course for me, too. But I tried to share the greatest portion of her affection, rightly her mother's. You see, she is a long way from home though home is Des Moines. A distance which I hope God will spare my allowing to exist between me and mine.

Grant me instead to forgive "seventy times seven!" MARY BRUBAKER OF KRNT-TV is well-known to Des Moines viewers and known personally to many others active in business, civic and social circles. On the occasion of AWRT'S (American Women in Radio and Television) recent hosting of their guest, Rahel Makuria, a broadcaster from Ethiopia, Mary extended invitations to many of her friends in the general community to an Open House at her home and so shared the group's distinguished visitor.

ATTEMPTING TO GARNER SOME INFORMATION ABOUT our lovely new friend, I noted first her name and quickly asked "what is Mr. Makuria's profession?" Smiling charmingly she replied that this was not his name. Rather it was Ezekiel Isaac. "Traditionally, women do not take their husband's names," I asked "But how would one know that you are married—that is how would you introduce your husband?" As though reading my mind, she laughingly explained that since this is the custom, it posed no problems. I began to feel that it might be a nice idea, really! I next asked "What name do the children take?" She replied that they use the father's first name as their last name. Her daughter, two year old Naomi, is named Naomi Ezekiel. She added that the family uses only biblical names. Mrs. Makuria's husband is a Communications Officer for the OAU (Organization for African Unity).

MRS. MAKURIA ON THURSDAY EVENING was the dinner guest of Dr. and Mrs. Eddie V. Easley and Mr. and Mrs. John Estes, Jr. Later chatting with the Easley I was delighted to hear them reflect my own tremendous curiosity about Ethiopia and eagerness to learn all that I can about Rahel's native land. They found Mrs. Makuria altogether charming, alert and delightfully perceptive. Her stay here was all too brief and we hope that her next scheduled visit in Houston, Texas, is a memorable event.

RAHEL MAKURIA, OF ADDIS ABABA, for the past five years has been active head of the Educational TV Mass Media Center there. AWRT arranged a three-day tour which permitted Mrs. Makuria to visit the most important events now taking place in Des Moines. AWRT groups of various American cities have hosted her stays.

Modern Etiquette By Roberta Lee

Q. Please comment on the correct manner of eating soup?
A. Remember that the cup or bowl of soup is tipped away from you. Your spoon is also filled by dipping it away from you. The soup is then sipped from the side of the spoon, as noiselessly as possible of course. The entire spoon is never thrust into the mouth.

Q. When a man finds it necessary to introduce himself, does he prefix "Mr." to his name?

A. No. He can say, "I am Douglas Craig," or "My name is Craig," unless of course he has the title of Doctor, which he then properly includes with his name.

Q. If it so happens that a bride-elect has already had an opportunity to thank a friend for a wedding gift received, is she still obligated to write a thank-you note?

A. Indeed she is — and as soon as possible.

Q. My sorority is giving a dance soon to which we shall invite boy friends. Do we girls pay for everything, including corsages and entertainment?

A. Each girl buys the tickets for herself and her escort, and, of course, pays her share to the sorority for whatever food and entertainment is provided at the dance. Your escorts, however, pay for your corsages and provide the transportation.

Q. Is it ever permissible to reach across one person in order to shake hands with a third person?

A. Best to avoid this. If, however, the other person seems bent on shaking hands, be sure to ask the pardon of the person across whom you must reach.

Q. Would it be proper for a widow's married daughter to announce her mother's second marriage, and may the widow's son give her away?

A. The announcement should be made by the widow and her second husband, but it would be quite all right for her son to walk down the aisle with her and give her away.

Q. Must a man, while dining in a restaurant with his wife, always rise whenever another couple stops at their table for a few words?

A. He must always rise when a woman stops at his table.

Q. Would it be proper for us to send a wedding gift of money to some newlyweds who live in a distant city?

A. Certainly, quite proper.

initiate awards to young college writers.

Dr. John Marshall Stevenson, director of the newly constructed Paul Robeson Theatre here and the Richard B. Harrison Players, announced that Davis' $100 gift is the first of a number expected from black professionals.

"We will use this gift to provide a prize for budding young black playwrights," said Stevenson.

Your professional hairdresser knows the answer...

How do you keep a 'Fro free from problems?

An "afro" or "natural" looks best when every strand of hair stands independently full and attractively healthy. But, kinky or frizzy hair mats and tangles easily and can break off in everyday combing. Because professional hairdressers realize this most of them use Clairol condition*—The Beauty Prescription for Troubled Hair*... as well as Clairol Hair-So-New*, the no rinse creme rinse for general softening.

They know condition* leaves dry hair shiny and plump. What's more, it silken and helps mend split ends. Hair is left stronger to withstand even chemical straighteners and the picking method of combing an "afro." A condition* treatment only takes a few minutes. And you can feel the difference in your hair right away.

For easy combing most professional hairdressers soften the hair first with a product like Hair-So-New. It temporarily relaxes hair so tangles and snarls quickly go away and scalp feels soothed. Combing is easy... and fewer ends are broken.

When you wear your hair in a "natural," you'll want it to look beautiful. The more beautiful it is, the better it expresses your black identity. That can be a proud distinction. But, whether you wear your hair "naturally" or straightened, see your professional hairdresser about giving you a treatment with Clairol condition* and Clairol Hair-So-New. You'll be so glad you did.

Charette Planning Must Not Omit Basic Education

A committee of citizens and teachers is in the process of planning for the construction of the new schools according to the Charette program and what is to be taught in them.

Great emphasis is being placed on community involvement. It is needed. But community involvement must not transcend planning courses which do not fit with the education process as a youngster moves from grade to junior and high school and college. It must fit its program of early education too so as not to handicap those who would go further in the trades and professions.

Laboratory At Ames Should Remain There

A few weeks ago President Nixon was in Des Moines and among other things stressed his program to help more people remain on the farms and in small towns.

Not so long ago, representatives from Iowa and surrounding states formed an organization to help build and hold the population in this area which seems to be dwindling each year.

The federal government is the largest single employer in America. And the excessive amount of its employees are centered in coastal states - some because their location and climate make it more desirable and profitable.

On the other hand, much of the coastal installations could just as well be placed in the sparsely populated areas which would help maintain the population on the farms and in small towns.

The location of many installations are political plumbs. In 1969 there was talk of moving the Biological Veterinary Laboratory of the Department of Agriculture from Ames to Lincoln, Nebraska. That subsided. Today, there is talk of moving it to Maryland which is loaded with federal employees. Political pressure is said to be the reason.

Finding Differences on Shakey Grounds

Speaking at Drake University last week, James Farmer, former Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said schools have failed to learn how to educate non-whites; that this was the prime cause of large unemployment among Negroes.

With this we have great reservations based upon the plight caused by the concentration of large numbers of Negroes in the North since World War I.

Finding themselves unable to earn a living they fell prey to relief and the slick politicians who will then, campaign year in and year out to get elected. Many of these people had skilled trades but were not permitted to join the unions (which hold control over who works in union jobs) and thus find themselves forced to poorer jobs. Many came with no training at all.

As their youngsters went through high school they saw that their parents were excluded from good jobs and concluded that they would not train for opportunities since there were none. As was the case in Des Moines prior to 1937, one or two youngsters finished high school each year. Today, there are dozens in college. Few of these youngsters went to college and the girls who did wound up

They must not omit English and arithmetic which are basic no matter what course a youngster plans to pursue. It has been too easy to overlook or bypass these subjects already.

We hope this community involvement will emphasize how to live, how to get along with and respect others, how to help family planning and keep up the neighborhoods. These are some of the things too many youngsters are not getting at home and that are important whether the life work is that of a mechanic, professional, white collar worker or just a plain housewife or common laborer.

Here is a perfect example of doing just the opposite of building population in the less populated states; it is an expensive operation at a time when the government is deep in the red financially; it concentrates too much government in a few areas of the country.

Rep. Neal Smith of the 5th Congressional Iowa district is leading the opposition against it. Every member of the Iowa delegation should do likewise. Congressional delegates from surrounding states should make their presence felt against the move. The government cannot expect business to help bridge this gap when it uses political tricks to do otherwise.

Gov. Ray says he will fight the move all the way to Maryland and has a promise from Secretary of Agriculture Harden that no move is contemplated.

Iowa feeds more hogs and cattle than any other state and is the logical location for the installation. On the other hand, the location of the facility is scattered over several buildings. Space should be made available by Iowa to help provide adequate room so as to cut that argument from the politicians.

The facility is too valuable to the people of Iowa to let it get away.

ON THE SPORTS SCENE

I won't be long, in fact about one more week when we shall be sitting at the Drake Relays again. This season is on in full swing. The Texas Relays, the Kansas Relays, and here at home, the Valley Relays, and now comes the biggest of them all at least around here, the Drake Relays. People used to wonder why most of the schools from the south usually gathered more than their share of victories, and why their marks usually bear those at the Penn show, the granddaddy of all the relays.

Well, we think they have finally come up with the obvious answer. The schools in the south have at least a month out of doors before the schools up this way do. They usually reach their peak about the last of April or May, while the northern schools don't get really ready until around the early part of June.

Then, in the NCAA meet, you usually see a lot of the April record holders finishing out of the money in this one, or at least, not winning. And this is no reflection on the boys who are victims of these circumstances. It just happens to be that way. We have seen enough of these races to be looking at the grand kids of some of the performers we first saw. And we can't say we won't be doing just that. But we can't recall watching very many of the third generation kids in this thing.

Wonder what happens to them?

We can remember when we used to wish this race would hurry and end whenever a black school was entered. For some time they just didn't believe what they had to do in order to just place in the Drake Relays. We recall when we were at Arkansas State, or AM&N, the boys there wanted to come up to the Relays.

The coach there was a fellow from Colorado U. who had been there. He told them what they had to do before he would even consider taking them. He also said that he'd be damned if he would take a team that far to finish last.

Well, last year, the boys were here, and they didn't finish last. A long wait, but well worth it. When they came, they were ready as are all of the other black schools now.

People who had never heard of Texas Southern, Grambling, Southern U. of Louisiana, Prairie View, and the like can now tell you just where those schools are located, and the best way to get there from here.

The biggest professional tennis meet ever held in Des Moines, or for that matter, in Iowa has come and gone. The attendance was not what people thought it should be, giving the project a financial loss, it is said. For one thing, the fine weather made indoor tennis not too popular, and then we have often thought the game could stand some changes in general procedure and rules.

For instance, why should everyone have to wear white in all the matches? Why can't a fellow show up in green, or in his school colors if he took a notion?

Then, the game which was originally for only the aristocrats, still retains a lot of that stuffiness. The score announcement hasn't changed.

Fifteen, Thirty, Forty, Game.

Why not say one, two three, game? Fifteen love should become one nothing, and then everybody would know what you were talking about. We can remember when we used to have our final matches at Good park, and they involved all of us Hilltoppers. We always told the crowd they musn't yell, or make any unnecessarily loud noises, such as cheering for their favorite. "You can applaud good shots, but that is all. We often wonder how we drew the crowds we did at our finals, and some of our exhibition matches.

People like to let go and yell for their favorite or the guy they want to win. We can't understand why

From actual time of acceptance until the successful applicant can expect to go to work will of course depend on the amount of construction going on in the area, the number of new apprentices in the field, and the economy in general. In Lamont's case we feel he was fortunate in only having to wait 3 months before actually starting to work. Some accepted apprentices have waited as long as a year and still haven't been put to work as yet.

In summation I again state; Lamont Lovelady is presently working for the Plumber's Union as a Plumber Apprentice. He will finish up his first 6 month probationary period in a few weeks, and with a little diligence and hard work, he should go on to become a full-fledged journeyman plumber in another 4 1/2 years.

the pros who are making a living at the game should demand such absolute stuffiness. Getting out of one's seat during a rally is an unpardonable sin. We would think that our tennis pros know who is paying to see them play, and most of their prize money is coming from the public, that the public should be given some consideration for fifteen thousand or even five thousand dollars, we would like to see our concentration broken enough by a sudden yell or movement in the crowd. What we mean is that we would have trained our nervous system to accept that as a part of the game, and a playing condition.

And if they do that, they will find that people will attend tennis matches just as they will any other sport to see two of the best in it. Maybe our theory is all wet, but we do think it is time tennis was taken out of the days of nobility and brought into the present time.

During major surgery, a patient's breathing patterns are disrupted. Complications in the chest can result later. But big, relaxing yawns can help.

Under the influence of anaesthetics, breathing patterns are altered and slowed down. After surgery, decreased lung volumes in patients are common. Such changes are usually self-correcting in time. But not always.

Yawning is an effective way of increasing expansion of the lungs and the flow of used blood to the heart. Sighing is like a small yawn.

A group of doctors at Boston's Peter Bent Brigham Hospital have devised ways to encourage patients' yawns. They use a spirometer, an instrument to measure breathing, with a light on it. The light goes on when the user reaches one half of his measured breathing capacity. It stays on as long as a good yawn lasts.

Patients are told to try to keep the light on as long as possible. To do this, they must try to force a prolonged yawn.

Dr. Robert H. Bartlett, one of the spokesmen for the Boston group, says that changes in breathing patterns during surgery can lead to closing of some of the tiny air sacs in the lungs. Postoperative breathing exercises can alleviate some of the difficulty, but they are often painful to patients who have had abdominal surgery. Five sustained yawns repeated on an hourly basis, Dr. Bartlett says, help normalize the balance of blood and air flowing through the lungs.

Ala.'s Bear Bryant Invited to Lombardi Golf Classic

MENOMONEE FALLS, WIS.—One of the most successful coaches in the history of collegiate football, Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama, has accepted an invitation to play in the Vince Lombardi Memorial Golf Classic to be held here June 25.

The announcement was made today by Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers and his wife, Cherry, co-chairmen for the tournament. The two-man best ball event will be held at North Hills Country Club with a field of 160 sports celebrities, entertainers and government leaders.

All contributions will be given to the Lombardi Memorial-Georgetown (University) Fund and to cancer research.

The tournament has been authorized by Mrs. Lombardi. Miller Brewing Company has agreed to underwrite the event to assure its success. The former Green Bay Packer coach and general manager died of cancer on Sept. 3, 1970 after a long illness.

"It is a real honor for me to be invited to play in the Vince Lombardi Memorial golf tournament," said Bryant. "Coach Lombardi was...an outstanding coach and just as outstanding a citizen."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Lovelady Now Serving His Apprenticeship

Dear Sir:
Lamont Lovelady was first referred to the Plumber's Union on June 1, 1970. Prior to his referral, there were several qualifications to be met as set forth by the Plumber's Joint Apprenticeship Committee. All applicants for this particular craft had to be a high school graduate or have a G.E.D., which is a high school equivalency. In addition each applicant had to take both a physical and vision examination, as well as a General Aptitude Test. In Lamont's case he was a high school graduate, the aptitude test was administered by the Iowa State Employment Service, and the Apprenticeship Information Center arranged for both his physical and vision examination at no cost.

After a person has met all of the above qualifications, he is referred to the union where he submits his application. Usually there is a waiting period of a few weeks before the Joint Apprenticeship Committee meets to start interviewing applicants. After all the applicants have been interviewed, (the amount of additional time this will consume depends on the number of applicants for the particular trade) the committee selects those applicants they want as apprentices and notify them by mail. Those that are not accepted are also notified by mail.
