Youth Corp Jobs Set For Iowa Kids

Labor Dept. Provides 234 Hours

For Each Enrollee At $1.60 Per Hour

Summer jobs for 4,810 disadvantaged Iowa youngsters are being provided under Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC) grants totaling $2,003,140, the U.S. Labor Department announced in Kansas City.

They will be employed by local sponsors in 19 areas of the state, and assigned to tasks by agencies of government or private, non-profit organizations, William S. Harris, regional manpower administrator, said.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps Summer Program is for young people, 14 and over, who intend to continue in high school. They must meet the family income criteria of other Economic Opportunity Act programs.

The Labor Department funding will provide 234 hours of work for each enrollee, at the federal minimum wage rate of $1.60 an hour. Sponsors may adjust weekly hours and length of program within the 234-hour total.

The funding includes a special Congressional appropriation adopted in June. It does not include funding of Recreational Support programs for younger teenagers, which is being developed.

C.R. Teens' Fact Finding Trip Proves Educational And Fun, Too

Cedar Rapids teens, traveled to Des Moines for a fact finding trip about services and programs for the Black Community to present to the Chamber of Commerce for similar programs in their city.

The Des Moines "Black Students For Dignity" welcomed the students for the two-day forum, and acted as "big brothers and sisters."

Charles Batey, Director of Urban Affairs, at Drake University, spoke of various programs that may be established as an evaluation for a model cities program.

Mrs. Edna Griffin explained the workings of the Chamber of Commerce and described its urban affairs committees and its effectiveness in the black community. These committees are made up of Des Moines business men who are members of the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce and serve without pay.

Plans are in the making for strengthening police-community relations and various drug programs.

Nolden Gentry then explained the functions of the Des Moines Housing Corp. comprised of members of local real estate firms working to rehabilitate and build new homes for low-income people.

He also discussed voluntary busing and acknowledged the need for more preparation for this program on the parts of children, parents and teachers.

Roger Maxwell, Equal Employment officer of the Iowa Board of Regents, revealed that he did not see many minority members applying for skilled jobs in industry and business. Iowa minority employees are very few and many employers bring in minority members from other states to fill their needs.

Last to speak was Silas Ewing of Spence-Ewing & Associates, Inc. and member of the Iowa Parole Board. Ewing pointed out the

NEWS In A Nutshell

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Paul Jennings, president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, lashed out at Vice President Spiro Agnew for "a shameful performance" in chiding both black leaders and union leaders during a recent press conference while flying from Africa to Spain during his world tour.

WASHINGTON — Constance E. Clayton, who has been active in numerous organizations and programs for black people, has been named director of a new Women's Bureau Region with headquarters in Philadelphia, Pa.

HOUSTON, Tex. — Two colorful parades, tours of historic sites and the Oil City Area, an Egyptian tea, a grand ball, a bridge and whist tournament, a bowling and golf tournament, a scholarship banquet and a salute to Black heroes of the past, including a local Houston citizen, are some of the events that have been scheduled when the Ancient Egyptian Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of North and South America and Its Jurisdiction, Inc. convenes here August 15-20.

NEW ORLEANS, La. July 15 — "New Bricks for Crumbling Walls..." That's the theme for the seventh annual convention of an association organized by some Americans who helped shore up the walls of freedom some 30 years ago — the first blacks permitted to enlist in the United States Marine Corps in 1942.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Protests are continuing about the murder of a black youth, Frankie Dunlap, by a city policeman on June 24. Patrolman J. D. Ensminger has admitted the shooting but he is still on active duty. Police Chief J. C. Goodman said it was a matter of self defense.

WASHINGTON — A demonstration project aimed at enhancing the vocational and personal development of Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC) enrollees by using them as helpers in day care programs, has been announced by Assistant Secretary of Labor Malcolm R. Lovell, Jr.

BIASED RECEPTION

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said July 21, he was dissatisfied with the response of the State Department concerning his inquiry about a racially segregated reception held by the American Ambassador in Capetown, South Africa on June 1, 1971.

The senator had raised strong objections that black Africans had not been invited or admitted to take part in this event.

BY MARSHALL G. HOOD

The decision whether or not to transfer funds now in use for the operation of neighborhood legal services and emergency food and medicine for the poor is still up in the air.

At a Greater Opportunities meeting last night, attended by three members of the Office of Economic Opportunity from Region 7 in Kansas City, Al Brown, director of G.O., said, "Recipients will be harmed if funds are shifted."

"Prior to 1964," explained Brown, "the poor were beaten back from the door but now they look to G.O. as a clearinghouse for all services."

"The record is not the issue," said William Shovel, funding chairman and designator of Thursday's informal meeting.

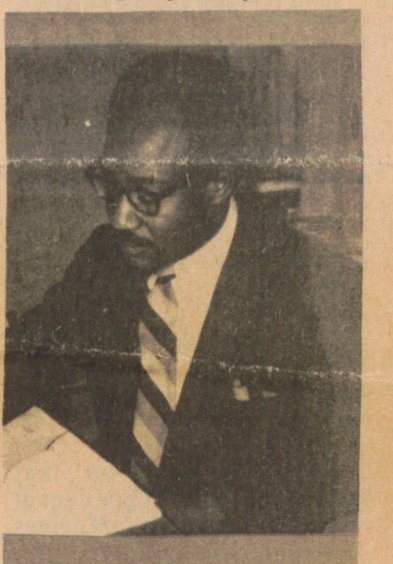

If the decision to transfer the funds is made, it will be discussed at a formal hearing. Last night's meeting was a formal one. G.O. will receive funds through August although the decision to continue appropriations is based on a tentative decision.

"There are more ways to administer the available funds than G.O.," said Bob Watson, general counsel for Office of Economic Opportunity.

The purpose of the hearing was to "allow the grantee Greater Opportunities to show cause why funds should not be cut off."

Of the 800 persons employed by Brown, 143 full-time, the G.O. director claims that 75-90 per cent came into his employ at poverty level.

AL BROWN

When asked if these people depend upon the money from the legal aid and emergency food and medicine to pay part of their salaries, Brown replied that between 5-25 per cent would be cut off some salaries in the central office.

Watson doubted this fact and responded with, "stick with the truth."

Velma Fisher, coordinator of the emergency food and medicine program, employs 8 persons — the majority being in the disadvantaged group. This program receives recipients from the neighborhood center, Planned Parenthood and Polk County Welfare.

"A lot of pregnant women will be in the soup line," responded one woman, "if these funds are transferred to the state."

Mary Hohrman, a Legal Aid board member since 1968, said that "legal aid is the proper recipient of the funds," and added, "the funds are at the best advantage" where they are.

Ione Lloyd also of Legal Aid prodded Shovel with a question which prompted chuckles from the panel and audience:

"Is this a political move," she queried, "to phase out legal service to the poor?"

"No," replied Shovel, with a grin.

There was a disagreement between the council and the three Kansas City officials concerning the mailing of a letter explaining the legal procedures involved in a hearing of this type.

Al Fromm, counsel for G.O., felt there was a "laxness" in the notice for preparation in this hearing and the funding should not be changed.

His contentions were noted by Shovel.

Driving Force In Coalition Is Holman, New President

M. Carl Holman was named as successor to Jack H. Vaughn as president of The National Urban Coalition.

Holman has been senior vice president for Policy and Planning at the four-year-old social action organization.

In announcing the appointment, Sol M. Linowitz, Chairman of The National Urban Coalition, said that "probably more than any other man, he characterizes the spirit and the philosophy of coalition, and no man has worked harder or more imaginatively to bring it to success. He shares my deep conviction that our 42 local coalitions can play a more significant role in solving this nation's critical urban problems."

Holman, 50, joined the Coalition in 1968 and was elected a national co-chairman last May, occupying the post formerly filled by A. Phillip Randolph and the late Whitney M. Young, Jr.

As senior vice president he

was instrumental in developing such Coalition programs as the Minority Contractors Assistance Project and of Counter-budget, a proposal to establish new national priorities through a reform of the Federal budget process.

But perhaps his greatest contribution to the Coalition and the cause of human justice has been in his broad series of initiatives to reconcile urban racial and ethnic minorities so that they can work together on their common problems. Under Holman's general direction the Coalition developed the 1970 Mid-America Criminal Justice Seminar which brought together the mayors, police chiefs and citizens from 15 Midwest cities.

He played a key role in assisting in organizing, with the Conservation Foundation, the 1971 National Conference on Public Transportation which drew representatives from many national organizations.

Holman was born in Minter City, Miss., and spent his youth in St. Louis, Mo. He graduated magna cum laude from Lincoln (Mo.) University and later earned a master's degree at the University of Chicago and a master of fine arts degree from Yale University.

NAACP Urges Halt Funds to Biased Schools

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has called upon the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare to cease sending federal funds, under provisions of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, to the Bullock County, Ala., school system until that system stops discriminating against Negro teachers and administrators in its summer school program.

Marines Welcome All Militants

Black militants are welcome to enlist in the U.S. Marines.

So declares a top Marine Corps officer, Brig. Gen. Robert D. Bohn, commanding general of the 2nd Marine Division at Camp Lejeune, N.C., where one out of every five Marines is black. Writing in the August issue of Sepia magazine, a leading black monthly, General Bohn states:

"There is a place in the Marines for militants of any race who are proud of their heritage and resent any slur upon it or upon themselves."

Speaking for the Marine Corps, which had an unofficial ban on blacks in its ranks until World War II, the 2nd Division commander declares in his Sepia article that recruits carry into the Marine Corps "prejudices felt by all Americans" but insists:

"Not only can we not tolerate discrimination, but we have the task of dispelling any appearance, however unintentional, of discrimination."

General Bohn describes the program of the Marines to educate whites in its ranks to "the aspirations and frustrations of the black American." One phase of the program, called sensitivity training, places black Marines in the role of white commanders and requires white Marines to act as blacks in special racial situations.

"In order to form a cohesive unit, one which can only be as strong as its individual fighting man, we must insure that prejudice, overt or hidden, is recognized and replaced by mutual trust," writes General Bohn in Sepia.

Last figures show that blacks comprise 11 per cent of all Marines. Of all Marines killed in Vietnam, 12.3 per cent were black.

Black Identity Misunderstood Panel Shows

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Admiral Chester R. Bender, the Commandant of the U.S. Coast Guard, recently sponsored a civil rights panel here to obtain more first hand knowledge of how Coast Guardsmen feel about racial issues in their service.

High on the list of concern among blacks was the inconsistency of administering regulations. They thought, for example, that maximum hair length should be the same everywhere. They agreed that visual black identity and unity symbols such as Afro hair styles, wearing dashikis, and the clenched fist, were generally misunderstood by whites.

An NAACP complaint filed with HEW Secretary Elliot Richardson charges that the Bullock County Board of Education "persists in employing a disproportionate number of white persons in administrative, teaching, and teaching aid positions," even though the student body of 1,130 is 99 per cent black.

Further, the complaint points out, there in the county school system are Negroes qualified for all categories of employment.

"All white principals and teachers who desired employment in the summer school program were given such," the complaint said.

Meanwhile "two black principals and several black teachers were refused employment in the summer school program."

Because of discrimination more than 1,000 of the system's 1,130 students have been boycotting the summer school program since June 16, Mrs. June S. Alexander, the Association's education director, reports. The students have the backing of the Union Springs, Ala., NAACP Branch, their parents and other groups in the county.

As a result of this action HEW, late in June, temporarily withheld Federal funds from the system. Following negotiations with the school board the students' major demands were granted, except the one seeking an end to discrimination against black administrators and teachers. The boycott was continued and the school board sought a temporary injunction to halt it.

Black College Fund Honors Entertainer

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Entertainer Dionne Warwick was honored recently when the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students (NSSFNS) presented Miss Warwick with her portrait. The portrait was painted by Don Miller, noted artist from Montclair, N.J.

In making the presentation, NSSFNS president Hugh W. Lane said, "This is but a small token of our appreciation for your generous support of students using the NSSFNS program as a vehicle."

Miss Warwick, a former scholarship recipient, contributes annually through her own named fund, which is administered by NSSFNS. Students receiving scholarships through the Dionne Warwick Scholarship Fund have increased from five in 1968 to twenty-five in 1970, with a national distribution of awardees. Dionne Warwick scholars are selected each year from among thousands of students counseled and Africa's Ivory Coast President Felix Houphouët - Boigny accepts report on SCLC's Poor People's Campaign and film on Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s life from Hosea Williams.

Seeking Black Unity In Africa

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — Hosea L. Williams, National Program Director of SCLC, and President Felix Houphouët - Boigny met in closed session discussing ways and means of unifying the efforts of Black Americans and Africans in, what Williams calls "making Dr. King's dream come true." This was the third African nation visited by the civil rights leader who is conducting an SCLC Goodwill Brotherhood Tour in more than eleven African countries.

A spokesman for SCLC says, "Hopefully, Mr. Williams' trip will result in Black Americans becoming as concerned and committed about their Black brothers in Africa (and vice versa) at least to the degree that American Jews are committed to their brothers in Israel."

In seeking help for the civil rights movement in America from one of Africa's strongest leaders, Williams told President Houphouët - Boigny, "The Blacks' struggle in America for equality is running into the same problems it ran into after the days of Reconstruction following the Civil War. Not only can Black Americans help Black Africans reach their potential, but Black Americans need help from referred through NSSFNS. In announcing her initial support of the NSSFNS program three years ago, Miss Warwick said, "I'm making good money and feel duty-bound to help young students who don't have money to attend the universities of their choice. I shall always remember that because there were others who thought then as I do now, I was able to attend the School of Music at the University of Hartford, even though I had no money."

President Houphouët - Boigny is reported to be Africa's foremost proponent of peace. He has gone as far as advising other African leaders to open up discussions with South Africa. After accepting the film on Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s life, President Houphouët - Boigny told Williams, "Dr. King was the greatest man of our times and nothing will ever be able to kill his great works even though they killed him. Peace is the only answer to man's problems — first peace within one's self; second peace in the home; then peace in the community; peace within each country, and then, and only then, will we have lasting peace in the world. Violence is the most detrimental instrument possessed by man. If we attempt to use violence in settling our problems, we will not only destroy our oppressors, we will destroy ourselves in the process."

their African brothers in fully realizing equality in America. The Black man's problems are not only national, they are international; therefore, we must join hands across seas to eliminate racism and poverty."

Liberia's Tubman Dies In London

The man who ruled a nation founded by freed American slaves for 27 years died Friday in a London Clinic of a massive hemorrhage.

President William V.S. Tubman, 75, suffering from a prostate gland ailment, came to London from Africa's oldest republic.

Tubman's second in command, Vice President William R. Tolbert, was sworn in as successor.

Tubman was recently elected to another four year term as Liberia's president.

From a small settlement in 1822, Monrovia, named for U.S. President James Monroe, grew to a nation of 1.1 million of "America - Liberians".

With the chief exports of rubber and iron, Tubman led Liberia from a primitive state to one with 500 miles of new roads, an air-conditioned hotel, a dozen modern hospitals, a water system and a modern sewage disposal plant.

Tubman, with an invitation from President Franklin Roosevelt, came to Washington, D.C. and was the first Negro to spend the night in the White House.

Programs May Increase Black Doctors, Lawyers Etc.

A special educational program to increase significantly the number of minority group students qualified to enter medical and health sciences schools will be developed under a contract awarded to the American Foundation for Negro Affairs (AFNA) of Philadelphia.

AFNA is a nonprofit organization set up to increase the number of blacks in the major areas of American life ranging from medicine, law, and education to the arts and humanities.

Supported by an $85,000 contract from the Division of Physician and Health Professions Education (DPHPE), a component of Bureau of Health Manpower Education, AFNA will formulate a four-year, premedical curriculum intended to give minority group students greater access to graduate schools of medicine and health sciences. The curriculum will be designed to be fully accredited and nationally applicable.

The curriculum will be tailored to take into account the varying backgrounds, abilities, and goals of disadvantaged students. It will specify the major science, liberal arts, and remedial subjects required as the "core" curriculum.

The program will be devised so that if a student does not complete studies required for admission to medical school, he can enter other health professions.

The new course of studies will be formulated under the supervision of AFNA's Steering Committee which includes the deans of Philadelphia's six medical schools: University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital, Temple University School of Medicine, Medical College of Pennsylvania, Thomas Jefferson University, and Philadelphia College of Osteopathy. Also on the Steering Committee are representatives of Philadelphia Community College, Philadelphia Board of Education, Pennsylvania Hospital, and Philadelphia General Hospital.

Honoring Roy Wilkins

On the Occasion of his Seventieth Birthday

Executive Director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People

Rights Leader A Sound, Responsible Champion of Human Rights

Since being named to the chief executive post of the Association in 1955, Mr. Wilkins has provided the key leadership to both the NAACP and the rights struggle during their most crucial years. Under his stewardship, the NAACP has more than doubled in size, outreach and finances. There is no comparable black organization in our nation.

During his forty years of affiliation with the NAACP including the last sixteen years as its head, Roy Wilkins has remained steadfast to certain basic philosophical principles — his unrelenting pursuit of truth, his unswerving devotion to non-violence, his unshakable faith in the goal of one integrated society for all Americans. He has never hesitated to denounce racism in all its forms, to reject separatism or to oppose the use of force and intimidation. Other groups have come and gone during the past two decades, other individuals have gained public attention and then receded from view. But no other group or individual has achieved more in the struggle of the Negro's freedom and equality than the NAACP, now 63 years old. And the man most responsible for these achievements is Roy Wilkins.

Mrs. Cottie Lucas Entertains

Mrs. Cottie Lucas held her seventh annual picnic on July 11, 1971, on the spacious grounds of her home at 1329 Jefferson. Each item of the menu was prepared by Mrs. Lucas.

The picnics are an outgrowth of increasingly larger dinner parties given by Mrs. Lucas over the years. Finally determining her overly large grounds to be the perfect setting for as many guests as she desired, she established the beginning of annual at-home get-togethers. A superb cook and a people lover, Mrs. Lucas finds each affair to be larger than the former.

This year the guests were entertained by a musician, Jerry Yovonie, a student from Sierre Leone, West Africa. He performed on the Kongoma, a box-type instrument which is vaguely like a guitar. Yovonie presented mostly African folk songs intermingled with Christian songs, which, of course are not of African origin.

Mrs. Lucas entertained more than fifty-one guests.

The Now Washbasket
By Joyce Champion

Today's homemaker, as anxious as anyone else to reach a "pollution solution," has been facing a dilemma in buying a satisfactory laundry detergent.

She must make a choice. If she prefers to use one of the new non-phosphate detergents she must decide whether she is willing to sacrifice the cleaning performance of the older, time-tested phosphate detergents.

Mounting legislation against phosphates, which are heavy duty cleaning agents, is spurring the homemaker's demand for the non-phosphate substitutes.

However, in many cases, she has complained that the bright colors of permanent press garments have faded. This is caused by the high alkalinity content of many of the new phosphate-free products.

And those who have returned to using soap are discovering that their automatic washers are becoming clogged with insoluble scum. This is caused when the calcium magnesium in ordinary hard water mixes with the soap.

Manufacturers, of course, are seeking more balanced formulations to eliminate these problems.

One solution for the homemaker is to use an additive such as Borateen, which acts as a buffering agent and re-

Q. Are invitations to an open house informal enough to be phoned, or must they be mailed out on cards?

A. An open house is so informal that you may not only extend your invitations by phone, but by word of mouth. In a very small community, you may even place a notice in the newspaper — provided, of course, your guest list is unlimited.

Q. Is a man always supposed to light the cigarette of the girl he is escorting?

A. When he can do so easily, yes. This does not mean he must run across a room to light her cigarette, or if he's driving his car, he doesn't take his attention from the traffic to perform this service.

Q. When drinking from a long-stemmed goblet, how do you hold the goblet?

A. Firmly between thumb and forefinger at the juncture of the top of the stem and the bottom of the flared part of the goblet. Avoid spreading your whole hand around the flared top of the goblet.

Q. Isn't it proper and customary for a woman to use her maiden name as her middle name after she is married?

A. This is the established custom. In other words, after Anne Virginia Miller married William Robert Harris, she becomes Anne Miller Harris.

Q. If a man is being entertained at luncheon by another man, should the guest leave a tip for the waitress, or at least offer to do so?

A. Not necessary. This is one of the duties of his host.

Q. Is it considered proper to abbreviate the name of the month in the date line of a business letter?

A. No. Neither the name of the month nor of the state is properly abbreviated — even such states as Mississippi, Tennessee, or Pennsylvania. It is considered more polite to write them out.

Q. Is it all right for a bride to make use of the folded top of thank-you cards for acknowledging her wedding gifts?

A. A folded card with "Thank you" imprinted on the face is quite all right — but she MUST add a handwritten personal message.

Q. If a widow is to be married for the second time, would it be proper for her two married daughters to mail out marriage announcements in their names?

A. No. Under these circumstances, the marriage should be announced in the name of the woman and her new husband.

duces alkalinity of the non-phosphate detergents. Just add one cup to your detergent for a regular washload or one-half cup if only a few things are being laundered.

This product contains borax and other cleaning agents that combine to boost the cleaning action, plus a bacteriostat to freshen and deodorize the clothes.

Your professional hairdresser knows the answer...

Was haircoloring first done in Africa?

Centuries ago in Africa (before it was explored by Europeans) beautiful black women used herbs and other ingredients to change the color of their hair. It was one way to complement their dark rich complexions... to accent their natural warmth and beauty. Whether or not Africans were the first to use this method, no one is sure. Yet, they are among the first in terms of recorded history to go through the then-tedious process of coloring their hair.

Today changing your haircolor can be as quick and as brief as a visit to your professional hairdresser. That's because many professional hairdressers use Miss Clairol® Hair Color to lighten hair, to make slight color changes and to cover gray. Hairdressing experts know that exotic blacks and browns are generally gorgeous for darker skin tones. Golden or red shades are stunning for lighter tan complexions.

Today black pride brings you closer to the cultural ways of your African heritage. Haircoloring is a part of black history too. Ask your professional hairdresser about changing your hair color with Miss Clairol... and be more beautiful than you already are.

Public Officials Must Follow
The Law; Not Personel Dislikes

At the first meeting of the organization convention of the Des Moines Veterans Auditorium, the late Roy Stiles, father of the chairman of the present commission, introduced the following resolution.

"In the construction and operation of the Veterans Auditorium, there should be no discrimination on the basis of race, creed or color."

It was carried unanimously, following strong endorsement in speeches by members of the delegation.

While "religion" was not included, there is little doubt that the delegation wanted the use of the auditorium open to all.

The Bystander holds no grief for draft dodgers or those who refuse to heed the call of this country in time of need. But is also believes law and order means obedience to the decisions of the courts. And since the Supreme Court reversed Mohamed Ali's conviction and sentence as a draft dodger, it is the duty of the commission to comply with the decision, they themselves being an arm of the government.

Promoters of a proposed closed circuit television of the Mohamed - Ali - Ellis were denied by the manager and the board basing their decision on personal dislikes rather than law. Public opinion forced a reversal of the decision.

Commission Needs To Fight Rather Than Sleep

Anthony Gales, director of the city's Youth Affairs Office, criticized the Des Moines Human Rights Commission Thursday during a panel discussion at Drake University on equal opportunity in Iowa.

The chairman of the commission, Silas Ewing, said the accusation was ill timed but admitted that some revamping was needed to strengthen the commission.

Judging from Ewing's reply, one would reason that he agrees, in part, with what Gales had to say.

Forces that championed the founding of the original commission did so primarily to improve employment of minorities in Des Moines. They pointed out that youngsters graduating from high school had little incentives; that those who prepared themselves were forced to go elsewhere for a job in keeping with their training; that business, industry and labor were failing and refusing to hire and - or upgrade minorities. They recognized, and rightly so, that unless a man can earn a decent living, good housing, education, decent living are hard to come by.

And as a result of aggressive action by a courageous commission going directly to industry and business, even though without any enforcement powers, employment for minorities began to open more.

Much progress has been made but it has slowed up. Aggressive action by commission has slowed up. And in spite of all the laws, regulations and money spent by government agencies for opportunities for minorities, we are gaining few jobs in the construction industry, in industry, the public utilities or are shown little improvement.

Writing on the little progress being made in the employment of minorities, Sylvia Porter in her nationally syndicated column said,

"Despite all the headlines about training programs for blacks in the construction industry, fewer than 2 per cent of unionized electrical workers and fewer than one per cent of plumbers are blacks. Blacks still are concentrated in the lowest-paying job classifications."

"Although they make up 11.2 per cent of our population, blacks represent less than 7 per cent of the membership in the building trade unions."

"Fewer than 2 per cent of our top federal employees (in the $16,000 and up income bracket) are blacks."

"Only 250 of the nation's 40,000 state troopers are black, and blacks account for only 2 per cent of our total number of military officers."

This situation is even worse in Des Moines but the commission seems unwilling to challenge those who continue to block Negroes from decent employment. And the city fathers appear satisfied because the commission dreams rather than fights.

The paramount job of the commission is to work to help solve this problem which cannot be done by writing, making speeches and issuing statements. And if the members of the commission continue to drag their feet and be satisfied with honors, someone should be named who will see that the objectives of the commission are carried out.

Roy Wilkins

Members and friends of Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, are honoring him on the occasion of his 70th Anniversary on August 30.

As head of the largest and most influential civil rights organization in the country for 16 years, Mr. Wilkins has guided it through the most crucial period of the Negroes' fight for equal citizenship since reconstruction days.

Through all of it he has been aggressive, intelligent and at the same time, maintained a high standard for himself and the organization.

His services have been invaluable and while he will not be serving in this capacity for another 16 more years, he will leave an example for his successor which can perpetuate the work so nobly carried on by him.

Health for All

Blowing out a single long breath of air into a mouthpiece - connected to an instrument called a spirometer - is now part of a medical checkup for more and more people. The spirometer can measure how well your lungs are doing their job.

Three measurements are of interest to your doctor. They all test your capacity to exhale.

One is vital capacity, the largest amount of air you can exhale slowly after a deep breath. Another is forced vital capacity, the amount of air you can exhale as forcefully as possible. And a third is timed forced expiratory volume, the amount you can exhale in a given timed period.

Together these measurements can help detect the earliest signs of breathing disorders.

Shortness of breath is one of the symptoms of a respiratory disease. And the spirometry test is especially useful with persons over 40, particularly smokers, who are most likely to be in the early stages of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease but who have no obvious symptoms yet.

The National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, in cooperation with the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, has begun a project to underscore the value of the test to physicians

ON THE SPORTS SCENE

In the Bystander mail last week was a letter from Gary Fletcher, whom I regard as one of our friends. Gary had some very constructive criticism to offer as to how we could build our waning tennis interest. He suggested clinics featuring fellows like Arthur Ashe, Lance Lumsden, and others of equal caliber.

Says these fellows have held clinics for kids in underprivileged areas, and might do so here if they were asked. Mr. Fletcher could be right.

We have often held clinics featuring local players of their time like Ben Beckerman, Harris Cogeshall and others. We had several matches with these players, and we got a pretty good response.

By hard work, our Hilltop club grew to a membership of about thirty five. We have had our best success with a series of sessions with about a half dozen kids, and the number gradually grows. And even then, there were times when the people doing this work consisted of Brother Bill, Chet Williamson and your illustrious scribbler. Then, later Everett Mays and Mrs. Myers gave a lot of their time and developed quite a group of promising young players.

But, about Gary's idea of featuring players of national repute, we may have been a bit ahead of our time, but we tried to get such clinics and schools in sports like baseball, basketball and also tennis. We got the same response each time. That Des Moines is off the beaten path, and it would cost a lot of money to get people here for what we had in mind. Maybe now with distance cut to nothing, that might not be the answer we might get.

With Allen Ashby

But, someone would have to get the ball rolling on such a project, and I bet we could get some help from Mr. Fletcher. We would like to hear from a few people about this. Maybe the fellow has something.

But, as we have said so often, our major problem is getting the people who are athletes to take up tennis seriously. The white people have the same problem, but it doesn't show so much because there are so many of them. Just to play with numbers. Say there are two hundred - thousand people in town. About fifteen thousand of them are black. Now, you have roughly about one half of one per cent of white people playing tennis which comes to about seven hundred and fifty, if our figures are correct.

Social Security

Health, Education
Welfare

QUESTION: I have never worked under social security but will soon be 65. I am not protected by anyone else's work either. Am I eligible for any coverage under Medicare?

ANSWER: You can be covered by the medical insurance part if you file an application in the correct enrollment period. Contact your social security office for this information.

QUESTION: Does a person have to be disabled to the point that he is bedridden before he can get disability benefits?

ANSWER: Not necessarily. Disability determinations are made by a team of specialists trained to review medical evidence. In reaching their decisions they compare medical findings with the claimant's age, his education, and his work experience. If he is not medically capable of performing the type work he is qualified to do, his claim is approved.

and to emphasize the importance of detecting respiratory disease early. Medical students have been recruited from selected areas across the country to demonstrate personally the lung-testing equipment to private physicians.

The spirometry test shows how clearly it's a matter of life and breath.

For more information about breathing disorders, see your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association.

Well, take that same percentage among the black people and you have about seventy five. Maybe we have that many black people playing tennis in Des Moines. I don't think so. The interest was sadly lacking when Ashe came to town with the Davis cup team. We counted all the black people there on the fingers of both hands, and a few of them probably didn't know a tennis ball from a boiled onion. Oh, yes, as an afterthought, our figures on the white people are a bit off, because we used one - hundred fifty thousand as our base.

The biggest problem is that we have in some manner to sell the tennis games to potential boxers, and basketball players and baseball players. And how do you do that? Somebody please tell us.

The other day we watched a little league game. One kid was called out on strikes. He threw his helmet clear across the ground between the plate and the bench. Some doting mother thought that was so cute. We couldn't help but tell her that the fellow was getting the wrong slant on the games and what they were supposed to teach. She listened, and we could tell from her expression, unless it was our inner thought prodding us, that she was likely wondering who I was and what business I had talking to her like that. But, she said, "You know, you are right". Don't know whether we felt good or put in our place. That of an old man.

Final Round--
Ali's Dancing
Ellis Dazed

2 minutes and 12 seconds into the last round, Muhammed Ali scored his first win, since losing a heavyweight bout with Joe Frazier.

Jimmy Ellis, Ali's former sparring partner, almost kissed the canvas twice from the barrage of lightning fast lefts and rights delivered by the much controversial fighter.

Ali, the nimble-footed master of fisticuffs, was in his usual form of precision punching and marathon mat dancing.

In what is considered his best showing in the ring since his return to the ring after the Supreme Court ruling overturning his draft-evasion conviction, Ali controlled the match after the third round.

"He could have been seriously hurt," said Ali. "I hoped they'd stop the fight when a man is that helpless."

"I wouldn't take a chance on hurting him for life," he added. "I can't see giving a man a concussion just to please the crowd."

Although Ali said he would be fighting again in six weeks, he did not name his opponent. Talk has it, however, that it will be Jerry Quarry.

A Silver Mine On Four Legs

DES MOINES, IA.: Iowa State Fair horse fanciers are looking at a lot of real money prancing about the livestock pavilion arena on society show nights.

Any one of these haughty equines represents enough cash to awe even the safely solvent.

A Hackney pony - no more than 58 inches high - costs up to $25,000. The price tag on a registered saddle horse runs from $30-$35,000 for the most part. An area horseman went all out with $40,000 for his mount.

Silver Trappings

The owner of a Parade horse may get by with $10,000 in silver - yes, silver - trappings. More than likely, however, he invests $40,000 or $50,000 for his well trained beauty. In some places a light hoist is used to raise and place the laden saddle on the horse. What straightens up the horse under this burden has not been released.

Because these horses make a regular circuit - Des Moines, Minneapolis, Lexington, etc. - they need mobile homes.

An air-conditioned van with accommodations for possibly a half dozen horses and staff means an outlay of $18,000 or $20,000. A trailer for one or two horses can be had for $1,000 and up.

Around these parts a trainer depends on volume for his income. His wages average about $150 monthly, out of which he feeds a horse. However, he probably will be in charge of a stable of 40 or so horses, so he is not a candidate for food stamps.)

People are riding these animals, jumping them over gates or driving the ponies. Drivers pay $2,000 for a 4-wheel show buggy and another $400 or $500 for harness.

They pay $75 each for silk toppers, a mere $40 for a helmet cap. A young woman's habit or man's formal attire costs up to $300 (and who would pack only one?) The high patent leather boots come to $60 (all well planned luggage has more than one pair).

New Shoes

In addition there are a lot of periphery costs riding on these animals - van drivers, grooms (often doubling backstage as stable boys) waving pompoms to alert a possible winner that the judge is coming by; maintenance, even the gilded may have carburetor trouble; enough insurance for a city block of householders, shoeing the horses every month or six weeks.

Because these horses never run with the plebeians in Iowa or Nebraska fields, they suffer from drafts as much as any old lady and from other debilitating ailments.

"Those vets bills . . ." exclaimed W. L. Yount, Altoona, in charge of all horse department entries at the fair.

Showing horses is not a money-making affair, he added.

If all this were added together, even Chase Manhattan might respect the total.
