Wilkins: Nixon Destroying Law

President's Attitude
Emboldened Wallace

A SURE WAY TO "ELIMINATE THE GHETTOS"

NEW YORK, N.Y. — "The President is indirectly responsible for tearing down the law of the land," NAACP Executive Director Roy Wilkins said on August 12 after Mr. Nixon threatened to fire Administration personnel who sought to impose busing upon children beyond the minimum required by law.

"The personal attitude of the President ... emboldened Gov. George Wallace to order an Alabama school board to ignore a Federal court order," Mr. Wilkins said.

This forceful, direct language was contained in a telegram sent to the President after the Alabama governor ordered the Birmingham Board of Education to ignore a Federal desegregation order and reassign a white girl to a school closer to home. In issuing his order, Mr. Wallace said that he was "assisting" the President.

Wallace threatened to issue additional orders along the same lines and said that they will involve entire schools rather than a single child.

Wilkins said: "The President's anti-busing statements also directly undercut those courageous officials, who, often against their personal feelings, have nevertheless devised and effected school desegregation in accordance with the Constitution."

The full text of Mr. Wilkins' telegram follows:

"NAACP suggests that the personal attitude of the President of the United States in opposing the busing of children to effect desegregation in the schools has emboldened Governor George Wallace to order an Alabama school board to ignore a Federal court order and that thus the President is indirectly responsible for tearing down the law of the land. The President's anti-busing statements also directly undercut those courageous officials who, often against their personal feelings, have nevertheless devised and effected school desegregation in accordance with the Constitution as interpreted by the U.S. Supreme Court in an unanimous opinion in Swann v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg.

Board of Education no later than April 20, 1971. We are not proud of our country's leadership."

NAACP Mourns
Negro Newsmen

NEW YORK — Following the death on August 6 of Orrin C. Evans, dean of black newspapermen, NAACP Executive Director Roy Wilkins said that he "counted Orrin as a good friend with whom I had watched the favorable change in the hiring of Negro newspapermen by daily papers. . . Orrin was the pioneer in this effort."

Mr. Wilkins' statement was contained in a letter to Mrs. Florence Evans, the reporter's widow. The civil rights leader also noted that "it was so fitting and so true that he (Mr. Evans) was honored by his colleagues at the recent NAACP convention in Minneapolis for his great example - by doing in his profession."

Mr. Wilkins was referring to a resolution passed by the July 5-9 NAACP convention, attended and covered by Mr. Evans, which said:

"We also take public notice of the 48-year career as a professional journalist of Orrin Evans of the Philadelphia Bulletin who has long covered activities of the NAACP and brought a great deal of understanding and clarity to the Association's work and meetings. The consistently high caliber of his work and his deep human warmth have been sources of inspiration to younger newsmen for decades."

Coretta King Advises, Promotes Women's Lib.

NEW YORK, August 18 — Mrs. Martin Luther King, Jr., widow of the assassinated civil rights leader, today urged the members of the Women's Liberation Movement not to become "bitter or vindictive" if they hope to succeed in their fight for equality.

In an interview published in the current issue of Redbook magazine, just released, Mrs. King suggested that Women's Lib look toward the black woman for inspiration in combating the oppression which exists against women today.

"The black woman has a special role to play," she declared.

"Our heritage of suffering and our experience in having to struggle against all odds to raise our children gives us a greater capacity for both suffering and understanding. This has enlarged our ability to be compassionate. We have, I think, a kind of stamina, a determination, which makes us strong." Expressing the belief that women will become powerful as activists and as women as they become more involved in social issues, Mrs. King said, "Women in general are not a part of the corruption of the past, so they can give a new kind of leadership, a new image for mankind. But if they are going to become bitter or vindictive, they are not going to be able to do this."

King Sports Medallion To Paige

COOPERSTOWN, New York, August 12, 1971 — Baseball Hall of Fame Pitching Star Satchel Paige receives the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Sports Medallion provided by Coca-Cola USA during ceremonies here this weekend when Paige was inducted into the Hall of Fame. Making the presentation is W. Levis Prather (right) of the soft drink firm's Public Relations Department. With them is Monte Irvin of the baseball commissioner's office. Paige received the award for his outstanding achievement in sports and for his contribution to the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. baseball classic.

New York, N.Y. — The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission has asked the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith to assist it in recruiting members of "the minority community" for some 75 new engineering jobs in the $15,000 to $25,000 class.

BOSTON, MASS. — Jazz singer Ella Fitzgerald can expect to regain useful vision after cataract surgery in both eyes, say specialists at Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Miss Fitzgerald, 53, is scheduled to be discharged from the infirmary Friday, then fly to Los Angeles to rest.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The government approved a nearly $2.4 - million loan Friday to help establish a chain of restaurants owned and operated by blacks in Chicago, Cleveland and Washington, D.C.

DETROIT, MICH. — Prophet Jones, the flamboyant, highstyle preacher who became the spiritual leader of thousands of blacks and some whites in the 1940s and '50s, is dead at the age of 63.

Former Iowan Dies In New York

Mrs. R. A. (Naomi) Dobson died in New York City August 5. Funeral services were held at St. Luke's Church and burial in New York.

Mrs. Dobson was the widow of the late Dr. R. A. Dobson of Sioux City, Iowa. They moved to New York several years ago and resided with their son, Dr. R. A. Dobson, Jr., who survives her.

Frustrated, Resentful Youths Blamed For Trouble In Waterloo

The trouble which erupted in Waterloo last Friday night was blamed by Willie Mosely, director of The Waterloo Human Rights Commission, on "frustration and resentment among the young people in the black community."

He cited the incidents of rock-throwing, window breaking and other disturbances as resulting from high unemployment and poor housing conditions in the black community.

"Exaggerated" Waterloo Police Captain Duane Murray said reports of the disturbances were "greatly exaggerated."

Thirteen young persons — ranging from 12 to 17 years old — were arrested and charged with drunkenness, disturbing the peace or unlawful assembly.

Nine of the 13 were arrested Sunday night following incidents of broken windows in a grocery store, an overturning of a telephone booth and a fire bombing of a small manufacturing plant.

The "sporadic gunfire" reported to police Saturday night while firemen were attempting to extinguish a fire at the St. Vincent De Paul Outlet Store may have been firecrackers.

"We were getting reports of gunshots, but how do you know if they're gunshots or firecrackers?" Capt. Murray asked.

One Bullet Hole "No one was hit, and so far we've been able to find only one bullet hole — and that was made Friday night. But in a situation like this, everyone assumes there were gunshots."

The Waterloo business district of Sullivan Park was the scene of disturbances involving 100 to 150 young persons Saturday and Sunday night.

Murray said: "It's just a group of young blacks. We've had problems with so many of them before. It seems like about this time of year they always take off on a tangent. I don't know what's behind it."

One person was injured in the disturbance. Ten-year-old Bernice Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller of Charles City, was struck on the shoulder by a piece of flying concrete thrown through her parents car. She was treated at a nearby hospital.

Man Shot Wife Held

A domestic argument resulted in the death of a 30 year old Des Moines man Saturday morning, Irwin L. Wade died of a gunshot wound allegedly fired by his wife in the midst of a family argument at their home at 1621 Twelfth Street.

Wade ran from the house after being shot and died Saturday at Broadlawns Hospital.

Charges against Mrs. Wade are pending for a preliminary hearing.

Wade is survived by his wife, Jacqueline; three daughters, Deartra, Marnee, and Jacqueline; five sons, Richard, Brian, Mark, Barry, and Irwin Jr.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wade of Des Moines; three sisters, Barbara Wade, Mrs. Elisanetta Gunn and Brenda Wade, all of Des Moines; four brothers, Charles, Jr., Harrison, Louis and Melvin, all of Des Moines; and a grandmother, Mrs. Jennie Royston of Des Moines.

Civil Rights Commission Against Anti-Busing Plan

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The U. S. Commission on Civil Rights today issued a statement strongly differing with the President's announcement that he is "against busing as the term is commonly used in school desegregation cases" and that he will request Federal Departments to modify the Administration's proposed desegregation plan for the Austin, Texas public schools.

The school desegregation which is required by the Constitution can be brought about in a variety of ways, of which busing is only one. It is plain that in many situations, however, transportation of students is essential to eliminating segregation.

Based on the Supreme Court's decision of April 1971 that busing is a necessary element in school desegregation and objections to it have validity only if they risk the health of the children or significantly impinge on the educational process, the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare applied that standard in developing plans for abolishing the dual school system of Austin.

Other school officials throughout the country have accepted the ruling as their mandate to desegregate their schools in the coming academic year.

The President in his March 3, 1970 message on "Education Reform" stated that "Quality is what education is all about; desegregation is vital to the quality." On April 12, 1970 the Commission called this "an accurate and succinct description of one of the cornerstones of established policy" and went on to say that "the key question now is not the relative merits of desegregation but how to accomplish it."

"Unfortunately," said the Commission, "the President's statement almost certainly will have the opposite effect of undermining the desegregation effort. It will confuse the American public and erode the position of those school officials who have prepared themselves to carry out the law of the land.

Had he presented an effective alternative, his statement would have found acceptance among those who have waited 17 years after the Supreme Court school decision of 1954 to see the law become implemented. We regret particularly that the President has seen fit to take this position on the eve of the opening of another school year."

The U. S. Commission on Civil Rights is an independent, bipartisan, factfinding agency created by Congress in 1957. Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., Chairman; Stephen Horn, Vice Chairman, Frankie M. Freeman, Maurice B. Mitchell, Robert S. Rankin, and Manuel Ruiz, Jr. John A. Buggs is Acting Staff Director.

Back-to-School BELL-RINGERS!

There is little unemployment in Des Moines among those minorities who are prepared; there are more openings for those who are willing to prepare themselves.

Subjects on this page are employed in industry, in sales, in finance of some of Des Moines' largest institutions. They are holding down better jobs each year because the companies are "equal opportunity employers", that are willing to give them an opportunity to work and learn more about what they have been taught in school. We have more companies which don't just

"donate to a cause" but provide jobs where these youngsters can make a decent living.

These annual "Back to School" pages are designed to encourage Negroes that they can have the good things in life by preparing themselves in schools, by entering apprenticeship training and pursuing it to the status of journeymen.

Government Funds Clerk

Danelia is a 1969 graduate of Des Moines Technical High School. She has attended one semester at Drake and will return there this fall to continue her studies in Sociology for a degree which would enable her to be a social worker. She desires to be a social worker, because she would like "to do work to help other people learn to live a better life."

She sums up her thoughts toward education, "a college education used to be a luxury, but now I feel it is a necessity."

It appears that in today's economy, there is a direct relationship between the amount of knowledge a man accumulates and his financial success. In the past two years, I have become increasingly aware of the importance that education can play in the continual growth of a career, so much so that I plan to attend night class in the fall.

"Education is a must if you intend to exist in this highly competitive world. Basic skills such as the ability to read well, reason logically and to express oneself are very important. Opportunities are open to "qualified" people. Stay in school. Learn to take advantage of all opportunities and use your ability."

FRED NICHOLS
Production Control Scheduler

This is Fred's first summer with John Deere and he has worked all summer scheduling parts into his department so that the assembly line would be well supplied.

Fred is a 1969 graduate of Des Moines' North High School, where he played football and was active in the Black Student Organization. His favorite hobby is playing the piano.

Fred definitely feels education is a must. This is evidenced by the fact that in the fall he will return to Iowa State to complete his sophomore year, enrolled in a combination pre-law and pre-med curriculum.

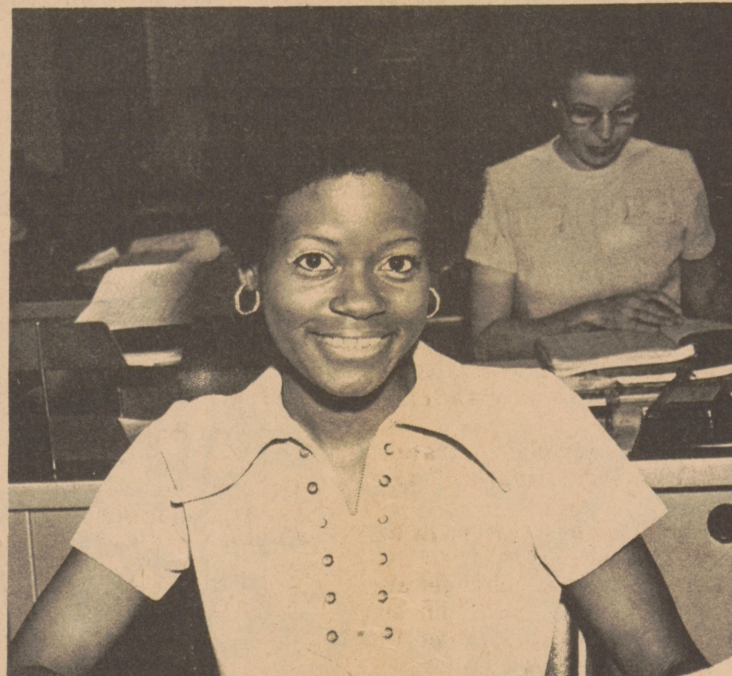

BETTY JONES
Crockery Department, Younkers

The early years of school are very intricate parts of a young person's life. It is during these years that the foundation for a person's vocation or profession in life is built.

I will be leaving Younkers to return to school, not as a student, but as a teacher. School was a wonderful experience for me. It was interesting, challenging, and exciting. I developed a strong desire to gain more knowledge. It also taught me how important an education is for a vocational or professional career.

There are more opportunities for students today, but with the job shortage, it is necessary for all students to complete High School. For most students they must continue in some institute of higher learning. I don't only mean college or university, but also such schools as: business, data processing, radio and television, apprenticeship trades, medical fields, and other technical and trade schools.

The opportunities are there, and it's up to today's student to prepare himself to take advantage of them. So a successful business career will be achieved.

Flexibility is very important in keeping your mind open and alert, and getting a high school diploma is a good start in learning how to cope with the world. One good rule for living is not to worry about the future until we have learned to manage the present.

It's quite difficult to improve yourself if the only model you have to copy is yourself. In order to keep up with this changing world, one needs to be definite in their ideas and goals — know who you are, be proud of what you are, know where you're going and get there.

I relate this message to the old as well as the young. Stay in school — you're never too old to learn. It's easier said than done, isn't it?... Nothing in life is easy and, believe me, there's no such thing as an easy way out.

Howard majored in printing at Des Moines Technical High School and graduated in 1969. He had worked at the Register and Tribune in the summer of 1968 and returned after graduation as an engraving delivery man. In October, 1969, he was offered an apprenticeship in the engraving department and is now in a five-year program that leads to be a journeyman position.

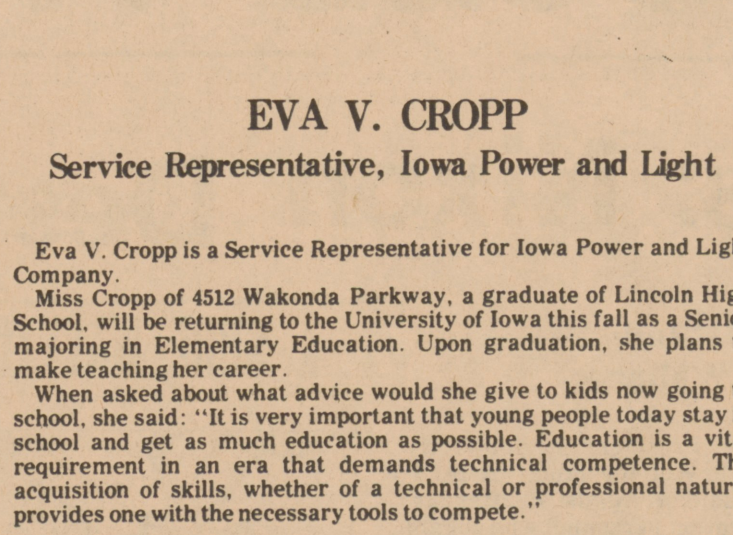

"The printing trades offer great opportunities for young Blacks," says Howard, "and I would like to see more of them enter this field. But first, get a high school education. It's almost impossible to go any place unless you are a high school graduate."

"My advice to the young people of today is to stay in school and receive as much education as they can; that cannot be stressed too much in this day and age. Your first and most important responsibility of all is to yourself and the only way to bring happiness and fulfillment into your future is by passing through the doors of education and grasping as much knowledge as you can. Education is the key to success in this fast-moving world in which we live."

Miss Cropp of 4512 Wakonda Parkway, a graduate of Lincoln High School, will be returning to the University of Iowa this fall as a Senior majoring in Elementary Education. Upon graduation, she plans to make teaching her career.

When asked about what advice would she give to kids now going to school, she said: "It is very important that young people today stay in school and get as much education as possible. Education is a vital requirement in an era that demands technical competence. The acquisition of skills, whether of a technical or professional nature, provides one with the necessary tools to compete."

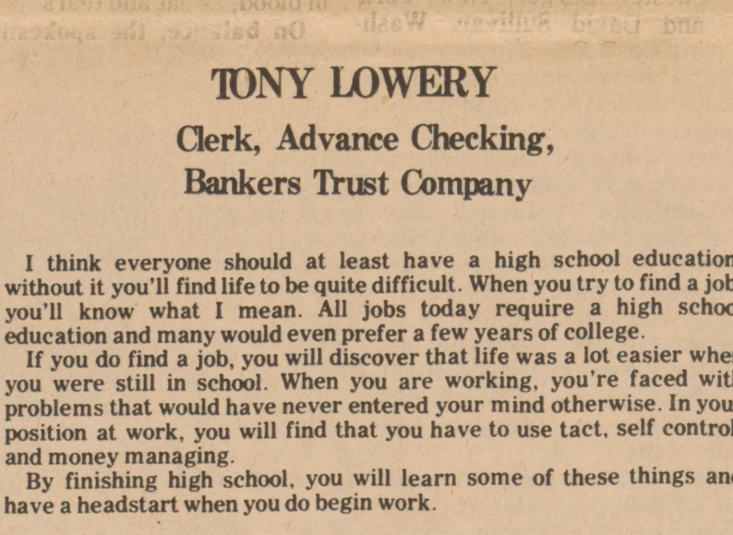

ANDRE JOHNSON
Stock Clerk Trainee, Younkers

School is a nice place for people of any age. Most of us go to school to get an education, meet people, learn about the world, and learn to work together with people from different backgrounds.

Some people say that school is not everything in life, but I believe that education is the most important aspect of life. Jobs, in today's world, are harder to get, because more employers are demanding people with a college education. I think that with a college education people have a better understanding of the world and people around them.

I have set a goal that someday I will be playing Pro-basketball. Right now that's all I have on my mind for a career, but before I can get that far I must continue my education.

I feel that school is one of the best things that this world has to give the people.

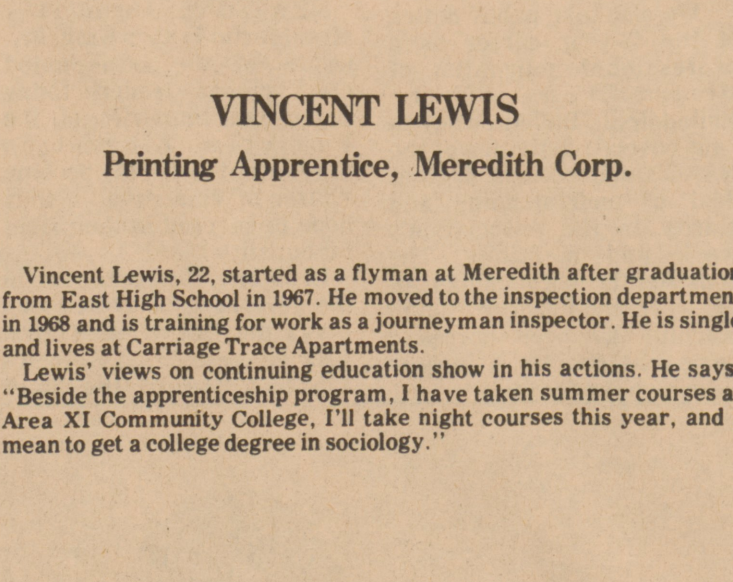

TONY LOWERY
Clerk, Advance Checking,
Bankers Trust Company

I think everyone should at least have a high school education, without it you'll find life to be quite difficult. When you try to find a job, you'll know what I mean. All jobs today require a high school education and many would even prefer a few years of college.

If you do find a job, you will discover that life was a lot easier when you were still in school. When you are working, you're faced with problems that would have never entered your mind otherwise. In your position at work, you will find that you have to use tact, self control, and money managing.

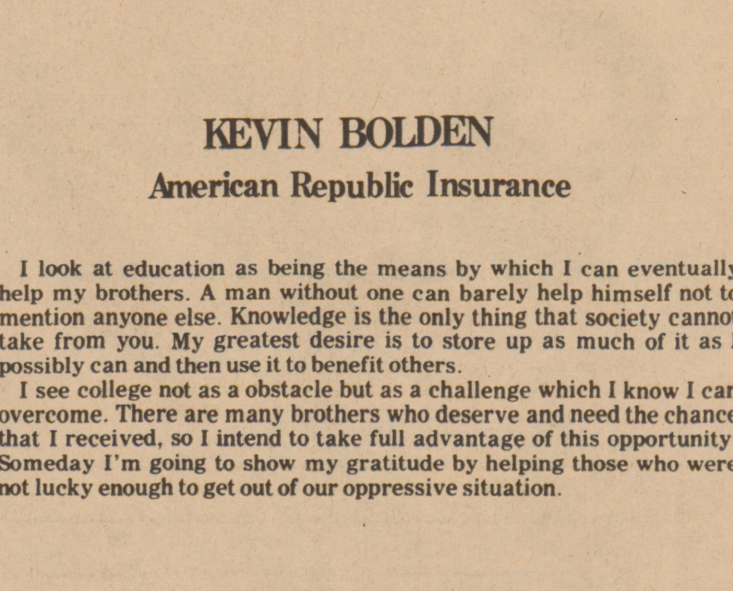

By finishing high school, you will learn some of these things and have a headstart when you do begin work.

Vincent Lewis, 22, started as a flyman at Meredith after graduation from East High School in 1967. He moved to the inspection department in 1968 and is training for work as a journeyman inspector. He is single and lives at Carriage Trace Apartments.

Lewis' views on continuing education show in his actions. He says, "Beside the apprenticeship program, I have taken summer courses at Area XI Community College. I'll take night courses this year, and I mean to get a college degree in sociology."

KEVIN BOLDEN
American Republic Insurance

I look at education as being the means by which I can eventually help my brothers. A man without one can barely help himself not to mention anyone else. Knowledge is the only thing that society cannot take from you. My greatest desire is to store up as much of it as I possibly can and then use it to benefit others.

I see college not as an obstacle but as a challenge which I know I can overcome. There are many brothers who deserve and need the chance that I received, so I intend to take full advantage of this opportunity. Someday I'm going to show my gratitude by helping those who were not lucky enough to get out of our oppressive situation.

"Black People, Come Home" Julian Bond Says In Ebony

The future of black people in the South "is growing" but it needs more black hands, Georgia State Representative Julian Bond said this week.

Bond is one of many black spokesmen urging the return of northern blacks to the South.

Remigration

"There must be a re-migration," Bond declares. "The blacks who are helping corporate America function by posing at the desk nearest the door ought to help us build our own neighborhood community - owned corporation."

Urban League Elects Trustees

The National Urban League announced the election of twelve new members to its National Board of Trustees, including a 19-year-old college co-ed; the re-election of nine former members of the board, and the elevation of one of its vice-presidents to the position of Senior Vice-President.

In other actions at its Detroit Conference the League re-elected James A. Linen, Chairman of the Executive Committee of Time, Inc. as President, elevated Mrs. Ersa Poston, Commissioner of Civil Service for the State of New York, to a vice presidency from her position as Secretary to the Board and named Mrs. Helen Mervis, New Orleans civic worker, as Secretary to the Board to succeed Mrs. Poston.

Other officers re-elected were James Kennedy, Vice Chairman of the Celanese Corporation, Vice President; Donald H. McGannon, President and Chairman of the Board of Westinghouse, Vice President; William J. Trent, Jr., Assistant Personnel Director, Time Inc., Treasurer and Leslie N. Shaw, President, First City Savings of Los Angeles, Assistant Treasurer. Chester Burger of Chester Burger and Company, was elected Assistant Secretary.

The twelve new members elected to the National Board of Trustees are Michael Burke of New York, Chairman of the Board and President of the New York Yankees, Inc.; Dr. Ronald R. Davenport, Pittsburgh, Dean of Duquesne University Law School; James H. Gilliam, Wilmington, Delaware, Vice President of Leon N. Weiner & Associates Inc.; William A. Hilliard, Portland, Oregon, City Editor of the Oregonian in Portland.

Also, George A. Jensen, St. Louis, a partner in the law firm of Pepper, Martin, Jensen, Maichel and Helage; Charles W. Johnson, Minneapolis, Director, Systems Development Center, Data Systems Operations, Honeywell Information Systems; Arthur E. Larkin, Jr., White Plains, N.Y., President and Chief Operating Officer of General Foods Corporation; Clarence G. Littlejohn, M.D., of Los Angeles, a Fellow of the American Academy of Medicine and Children's Heart Specialist.

Also, Edward R. Lynn, Jr., Los Angeles, Associate Director of MEDEX; Charles Drew, Post Graduate Medical School of Los Angeles; Edward J. McMahon, New York City, Senior Vice President of Construction Products, St. Regis Paper Company; Charles H. Smith, Ph.D., New York City, Educator and Public Administrator, and Andrea Torres, Spring Valley, N.Y., a Smith College Junior majoring in Psychology.

The nine former board members who were re-elected were William M. Batten, New York City; Leslie N. Shaw, Beverly Hills, California; W.J. Trent, Jr., New York City; Dr. Daniel A. Collins, San Francisco; Charles Hamilton, Cambridge, Mass.; John S. Hayes, Washington, D.C.; Gerald Taylor, New York; Chester Burger, New York and David Sullivan, Washington, D.C.

The trustee who moved up to Senior Vice-President was Wendell G. Freeland, a Pittsburgh attorney. He succeeds Detroit publisher Louis E. Martin who did not stand for re-election to the Board of Trustees.

Mr. Shaw, Mr. Trent, Mr. Taylor and Miss Torres were elected for one year terms expiring in 1972. All others were elected for three-year terms expiring in 1974.

While Bond said he was dubious of those who claim the South is "better" than the North, he urges, "Black people, come home. We need you. We may make it on our own but your roots, like ours, are here. Put them down again. The black soil here — both actually and spiritually — is rich."

"Our future is growing, but it needs a cultivation you can help provide," Bond concluded.

Bond is one of a distinguished group of black Southerners asked to give their subjective view points on the region of their birth. The editors of Ebony also asked Charles Evers, mayor of Fayette, Miss.; John Lewis, executive director of the Voter Education Project, Atlanta; Dr. Ralph D. Abernathy, president of SCLC; Mrs. Fannie Lou Hamer, vice chairman of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party; and Barbara Jordan, Texas State Senator.

Also responding were Dr. Benjamin Mays, chairman of the Atlanta Board of Education; Maynard Jackson, vice mayor of Atlanta; Dr. John C. Cashin, chairman of the National Democratic Party of Alabama; Dr. Norman C. Francis, president of Xavier University; Emory O. Jackson, managing editor of the Birmingham World; and John R. Harper II, president of the Citizens' Party of South Carolina.

In a position opposite that of Mr. Bond's, Dr. Abernathy said "I would not advise Northern blacks to migrate South at this time, simply because they are likely to find the same misery and oppression that exists in the North."

Stay And Organize

"Until the South offers more opportunities," Rev. Abernathy continued, "I would say that black people generally need to stay where they are, if at all possible, and organize their own communities."

Dr. Abernathy went on to declare, "I hope that my black brothers and sisters in the North will recognize that they live 'up South', that there is no paradise now for blacks anywhere in the country, and therefore that we must all stay on the case, wherever we are."

"I would not advise black persons in the South to migrate to the Northern states in order to improve their situation," said Mrs. Hamer.

"On the other hand, I feel that a person who has lived in the South and gone North should come back to the South."

She went on to say, "I expect a dramatic change and breakthrough, because at this point people in the South are sick and tired of gradual changes and we will make the changes."

Mayor Evers cautioned, "Reverse migration of Northern blacks to the South doesn't seem to promise a solution to our problems at this point in our history. If the Northern blacks used their vote as we are beginning to do in the South, great improvements could be made."

Progress From Pressure

There was some feeling among the spokesmen that, in general, the South was making progress under the pressure of reform-minded blacks, and that Georgia had made the most gains. It was universally felt, however, that the South had a long way to go.

After noting electoral victories in Alabama, Dr. John Cashin, chairman of the National Democratic Party there, said, "With such rapid change in the political climate of the South, a reverse migration of blacks from the Northern ghettos is inevitable and should be encouraged. It is up to the black leadership of the South, however, to provide the drastic changes that will bring our people back to the land we paid for in blood, sweat and tears."

On balance, the spokesmen thought the South offered an opportunity for a better future for black citizens. Dr. Norman C. Francis, president of Xavier University, said, "We experienced the South's inhumanity and condemn it, but I have faith that having faced the horror of that inhumanity, the South has the best chance of forging the kind of alliance between blacks and blacks, whites and whites, blacks and whites, and have - not to solve our problems."

He concluded, "This decade will see in the black South the emergence of a just reconstruction which the nation as a whole might well emulate."

Campbell Protests As Congress Kills Grant

NEW YORK — "The incredibly ugly action of the Congress in perpetrating genocide upon black and Puerto Rican children is riding high, wide and horribly in Washington these days. If you doubt it, check out the act of the House and Senate on August 5th and 6th. Those two days will go down in history as the most blatant piece of discriminatory legislation in modern times."

Thus said Dick Campbell, Executive Director Foundation for Research and Education in Sickle Cell Disease in a radio WLIB broadcast this week when he learned that the House and Senate had passed President Nixon's $20.8 billion dollar Health, Welfare, Education and labor bill on August 6, but had struck down the $6 million dollar allocation for Sickle Cell Disease. Seven and a half million dollars for lead based paint poisoning, $6 million for Tuberculosis research and $25 million for hospitals improvement construction were also eliminated.

"All these items," said Campbell, "directly affect minority people; black, Puerto Rican, Mexican, Indian and poor white. I realize that in bills as large as this the Congress has to make cuts somewhere, just to make their constituencies think they are taking care of business."

Fifty-five residents of Des Moines' Model City area completed spring semester courses in Drake University's Occupational Upgrading Program, 23 went on with summer courses, and 53 are expected to re-enroll in the fall, Clarence Thompson, Dean of Drake's University College, announced.

Under the program, participants spend some 34 hours a week on the job and have the opportunity to enroll for afternoon classes at Drake. Roger S. McCannon, Assistant Dean of University College, along with Richard S. Freeman, Director of the Occupational Upgrading Program, and Mrs. Mary Clark, Counselor, supervise the program.

Schwengel Approves Wage-Freeze

KEOKUK, Iowa — Congressman Fred Schwengel said today he "heartily approves of the wage-price freeze ordered earlier this week by President Nixon."

At a luncheon here, Schwengel said, "President Nixon's decisive action is designed to bring prosperity as we end the war in Vietnam."

Schwengel said, the "economic boom" of the middle 1960s was due largely to the economic stimulus of the war in Vietnam. "Now with two million veterans on the job market," he said "and defense plants reducing employment, the challenge of keeping a full employment economy is monumental."

"Even in this situation," Schwengel said, "too many people forget the unemployment rate is lower now than the average unemployment rate during the years John Kennedy was President."

Schwengel said, President Nixon has tried sincerely and patiently to bring inflation under control without using "severe" measures. "Realizing that stronger action was needed," he stated, "the President acted firmly, but fairly by freezing wages and prices. His actions remind me of the bold leadership of another great Republican President, Theodore Roosevelt, and I like it!"

Congressman Schwengel said he hoped foreign countries would approve of and respect the new Nixon economic program.

"They should recognize our need to protect our economy and keep it strong," he said.

The veteran legislator said he would support the parts of the Nixon program that will require Congressional action.

received a 2.75 grade point average in their course work, McCannon said. Their credits may be applied toward a degree at Drake. Nine participants have entered degree programs, he said.

Five special courses, including six hours of communications courses and nine hours of basic or generic issues courses, have been approved. Students have also enrolled in regular Drake courses, including introductory psychology and sociology, principles of management, public speaking, and those designed for incoming freshmen.

The participants, most of whom are heads of households in the Model City area, were unemployed or underemployed before they enrolled in the Concentrated Employment Program.

Occupational Upgrading assessed and counseled 213 persons, of whom 77 have been enrolled at Drake at one or another.

Part-time instructors were engaged to teach the special classes.

The participants are in a wide variety of jobs that include police cadet, outreach aide, drug counselor, recreation aide, teacher associate, interviewer, home-school worker, homemaker aide, and store manager trainee.

"Manipulative duress" against black and poor people "is the style, plan and scheme of the total executive branch of the government," Stoney Cooks, Executive Director, told a closed session of the SCLC Board of Directors.

Speaking to the board as the organization prepared for its 14th Annual Convention here this week, Mr. Cooks said:

"Today, citizens are tried in the news media; presumed guilty until proven innocent; conspiracy indictments are conjured up in high places in government; repression, fear and hatred are the society's norm. When these concurrent events are prefaced by a decade of political assassinations, one wonders if it's only his individual paranoia that cries out ... fascism."

"We must move and organize and agitate and disrupt throughout this nation to capture the vitality of a new politics of poor people."

Mr. Cooks added that SCLC is responding to repression with intensive political organizing through the 1972 elections.

housing and Urban development to the Model Cities program, which subcontracted to the Concentrated Employment Program. CEP in turn subcontracts with Drake for the educational program. All contracting is subject to the approval of the Des Moines City Council.

The program has been able to retain more than 80 per cent of the participants, McCannon said, and their pay has been subject to the places of employment and the prevailing wages. Classes are kept small so that participants can receive individual attention. The program also assesses participants' abilities and counsels them on their educational plans. The program also provides them with tutoring and special testing.

"We review our program periodically to see what we are accomplishing in courses related to employment," McCannon said. "The program is kept flexible so we can offer courses geared to the needs of the students."

There are many good reasons today's modern family enjoys the benefits of an automatic dishwasher. If you're not convinced yet, you might be interested in a few facts:

1. Automatic dishwashers save about an hour a day of Mom's time.
2. They get dishes cleaner. Dishwashers use water around 160 degrees — hotter than your hands could stand. They use extra-strong detergents, too.
3. Save on hot water by storing dishes in them after one meal and combining with another meal's dishes.
4. Cuts down on dish breakage.
5. Eliminates the dish towel. Dishwashers use sanitized hot air — helps stop the spread of germs.

Mrs. Inez Fitz and her uncle, Taft Neyland are in New Orleans, La. visiting her uncle and Taft's brother, Rev. L. Neyland who is very ill.

Woodrow Anderson, Los Angeles, Calif. returned home Thursday morning after a busy two weeks of social activities with relatives and friends.

Sunday Mrs. Inez Ware and Mrs. Evelyn Snipes entertained 30 persons at a picnic at the home of Mrs. Ware.

Two long picnic tables were filled to overflowing with food and drinks. The evening was spent relaxing, and enjoyment as he is a native of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Anderson, his brother and sister-in-law entertained for him with a dinner party, his niece Mrs. Evelyn Dawson, his nephew, Don Anderson, and their families also were his host and hostesses.

Mrs. Jerry Dixon gave a cocktail party in his honor.

He enjoyed a delicious dinner with Mrs. Sylvia Brown. His time was too short for all his friends to entertain him.

Mrs. Dana Mixon and Mrs. Laura McAdams are motoring to Elkhorn, Indiana Sunday morning for a ten day vacation.

Judge Elizabeth Davis Pittman, first black woman to become a lawyer and judge in the state of Nebraska, will speak this Sunday at Bethel A.M.E. Church. Judge Pittman will speak at 3:00 P.M. in connection with Women's Day festivities at the Church.

She also has the honor of being the first woman in the Douglas County Attorney's office in Omaha, Neb.

She is listed in Who's Who in the Midwest and Who's Who of American Women.

Mrs. Pat Page and children, Pacioma, Calif. worshiped with the Tabernacle Baptist Church Sunday morning. Mrs. Page's husband, George, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ots Page.

They are visiting friends and relatives here a few days. The Deacons and Trustees of the Tabernacle Baptist Church will sponsor a special program, Sunday, 3:00 p.m. August, 22.

Guest speaker, will be the Rev. H. V. Colbert, pastor of the St. John Baptist Church, Omaha, Neb. The guest speaker's choir will sing.

Service for Murray A. Smith, 61, of 1917 Tenth St., who died Tuesday August 10, at the Veterans Hospital of diabetic acidosi, was held at 1 p.m. Saturday at Corinthian Baptist Church. Burial was at Glendale Cemetery.

MURRAY A. SMITH

Mr. Smith was a native of Fulton, Mo., and lived in Des Moines 45 years. He was a truck driver for the city of Des Moines for 23 years and was a member of the Songfellow's Choir at Corinthian Baptist Church. Surviving are his wife, Beatrice, and two brothers, Morris of Des Moines and Garnett of Omaha, Neb.

VETERANS

Q — Does VA's loan guaranty of $12,500 or 60 per cent of the loan limit the price I may pay for a home?

A — No. The price you pay is limited only by the amount the lender agrees to lend. But as you suggest, VA will guarantee only 60 per cent of the loan not to exceed $12,500.

Q — I have been training under the G. I. Bill at a vocational school, but plan to enter college this fall. What should I do to make sure I receive my educational allowance check promptly after changing schools?

A — You should fill out and submit to VA the Form 21E-1995, available at most schools or any VA office. This form should be submitted to the school before or at the time of enrollment, since schools use it to certify enrollment to VA.

Q — I am not eligible for VA pension benefits because of my income, but I recently filed for this benefit for my son, based on his deceased father's World War II service (my second husband). Since I was drawing widow's compensation based on my first husband's death during World War II, I wonder if the compensation I was receiving prior to my second marriage can be reinstated while my son is drawing pension?

A — Yes. A recent law permits a widow who has lost her pension or compensation because of remarriage to have this benefit restored if that marriage ends in death or divorce, provided she is otherwise eligible. Your son's pension would have no bearing on your compensation based on the death of your first husband.

SCANDINAVIA IS IN

Scandinavia entered the '70s with an impressive leap in travel. In 1970, delightful Denmark, scenic Norway, modern Sweden and exciting Finland showed a 12.9% increase in tourists over 1969. Of these figures Americans accounted for 477,352, an increase of 9.9 percent, and Canadians for 53,591 or 12.8 percent.

The prospects for '71 look even better, thanks to a bright array of new and old attractions.

A new hotel, Scandinavia's largest, is one of Denmark's major magnets. It is the Hotel Copenhagen-Sheraton with 1,000 beds, and a great fashion center adjoining it is the setting for many fashion events throughout the year.

The Danes love a celebration and in 1971 some of their most interesting festivities will be on the island of Fyn to honor Scandinavia's oldest castle, the Danehof Castle, which is 800 years old. Nearby are beautiful beaches, fine hotels and an excellent golf course. The locale is also ideal for excursions to the "fairytale islands" of Denmark.

In Finland, there is a festival to match everyone's taste. For the theatre buff, there is Tampere with its famous revolving outdoor stage; Savonlinna and Vasa for opera performed in old castles; Kaustinen for folk culture and music; Porvoo for jazz and "Turku for classical music. From Helsinki, the capital, visitors will be able to take a visa-free cruise to Leningrad on a Finnish cruise ship. New motels, holiday villages and lovely roads now cover the Finnish countryside. Moreover, you can even rent your own island!

The big new Cinemascope motion picture "Song of Norway," depicting the life of Norway's great composer Edvard Grieg is expected to boost tourist traffic to this country. Special Song of Norway Tours will take tourists to many of the scenic destinations shot in the film, such as the fjords, one of nature's wonders. Tonsberg, Norway's oldest town, is celebrating its 1100th anniversary and will offer visitors many interesting events.

Sweden will also be celebrating this year: the 350th anniversary of Gothenburg with 350 events throughout the year, especially during the summer months. From Gothenburg excursions can be made along Sweden's sunny west coast and to the Archipelago with its many popular resort areas. Gothenburg is also the starting point for Gota Canal, the scenic waterway that cuts through lakes and locks and romantic scenery.

These are only a few reasons why Scandinavians think their colorful countries are in and well worth your entire European vacation for 1971. For further information write to the Scandinavian National Tourist Office, 505 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017, or see your local travel agent.

Spotlight on HEALTH

ALLERGIES EXPLAINED

The child who refuses to eat his breakfast cereal or eggs because, he says, he is allergic to them, may not be "conning" his parents after all. Approximately one-third of children in the U.S., and half the adult population, suffer from an allergic disease at some time during their lifetime.

"Allergy" as a word is less than 60 years old. However, the conditions this word describes are as old as mankind. An allergy is a person's abnormal reaction to certain substances to which he has become sensitized or unusually susceptible.

Parents sometimes have the mistaken idea that children outgrow allergies. However, physicians know that the allergies need to be identified and treated early in life.

Respiratory allergies, for example, often continue with increasing severity into adulthood. The child who always seems to have a running nose or other coldlike symptoms, or who sneezes when around certain trees, grass, or ragweed pollen at various times of the year, is probably suffering allergic symptoms, and should be given early treatment to avoid the possibility of developing asthma.

The visit to the physician will include his taking a medical life history of the patient, and an inquiry into his current activities, in an attempt to discover what allergens are involved. A complete physical examination with routine laboratory tests follow. Allergy tests help to determine more definitely the substances to which he reacts.

As a result of the interview and physical examination, the physician may decide to give the patient desensitizing injections to build up immunity.

He may also recommend a change in diet. For relief of sneezing, itching, and stuffed-up, runny nose, he may suggest the use of a nasal spray such as NTZ or other drugs containing antihistamines and a decongestant. For children, mild nose drops such as Neo-Synephrine are often prescribed in appropriate strengths for different age groups. Medical treatment for an allergic patient depends on the severity of the condition, as determined by the physician.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

While virtually all segments of the nation's economy were affected by the business recession of the past year, there were some industries which continued to post profit gains.

One of these was the food processing industry where most of the large diversified companies showed earnings improvement in 1970, demonstrating once again the relative immunity of food company earnings to an economic slowdown. This is discussed in a review of the food processing industry by Value Line, a leading investment advisory service.

Value Line notes that the industry offers some promising long term investment opportunities based on the prospects of continued steady earnings growth in the years ahead.

Three major trends are cited as important factors in the higher profit margins being sought and achieved by the group. One important element in the attainment of higher margins has been an upgrading of the product line from commodities such as milk and flour to more profitable convenience food products. This trend has caused many of the companies to be less affected by commodity price fluctuations since the cost of the commodity accounts for a smaller percentage of the cost of the end product. As a result, earnings growth becomes more dependable.

Value Line points out that the increasing affluence of the average American family has accelerated the demand for convenience foods. Another factor has been the growing number of working wives in our society. More money to spend and less time in the kitchen accentuate the desirability of commodities that are carried closer to the actual serving stage. This has resulted in a steadily increasing flow of convenience products such as frozen prepared foods of all types, instant puddings, prepared baking mixes, frozen sauces, and TV dinners, to name just a few.

Another important factor in the wider margins achieved by many companies in the food processing industry has been the growth of international operations. The increasing affluence of people in many foreign countries has opened up vast new markets for the introduction of convenience food products. Value Line notes that the economies of many countries are growing at a faster rate than ours, contributing to the expansion of these markets. Most large U.S. food processing companies do substantial business in foreign countries and in many cases their international divisions are among the fastest growing of their operations.

The third major factor in the development of higher margins in the industry is the growing trend of food processors to diversify. Through acquisitions, companies in the industry have diversified into allied fields such as restaurant chains and into a wide range of non-food operations including apparel, appliances, publishing, cosmetics, toys and other areas. Value Line points out that as food companies diversify out of their fields of basic knowledge, added risks are incurred and strong management on the part of the acquired company is most important.

In its summary, Value Line expects profits of the food processing industry generally to continue in an uptrend over the next 3 to 5 years. It comments that as competition in convenience foods slows profit gains for individual companies in this area, these companies will seek to increase their international operations and diversification programs in their quest for higher margins and continuing earnings growth.

2 Parties Voice Race Positions

The two major national parties will present their race relations positions for 1972 at the biennial convention of the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice in New Orleans this week.

Louisiana Democrats were invited to do so as well, but with little success.

The Democratic and Republican national committees have agreed to send representatives to the convention to give major statements reflecting the official party programs for coming years on civil rights and minority affairs.

Democratic Party chiefs Lawrence O'Brien and Republican Chairman Sen. Robert Dole were to name their representatives this week.

A panel composed of board members of the NCCIJ will question the party representatives.

The event will take place Friday, Aug. 20 at 9 A.M. on the Loyola University campus in a session titled "The Politics of Race," one of the ten major workshops to be held during the five-day meeting.

The convention, whose theme is "The Church in the City of Tomorrow," runs from Aug. 18-22.

Hurrah! Iowa State Fair Starts Tomorrow

It's good news tonight — the 115th running of the Iowa State Fair gets under way tomorrow morning, Friday, Aug. 20.

You've been reading all about it; now come look: there's a lot here.

No where else in Des Moines Friday will you see five men dance on a pole, and four hurtle headfirst toward the earth: the governor's free - for - all pace on the grandstand track; Chiapas dances; cow made of butter; wall fans of delicate oats; wheat and barley stalks; 40-acre jungle of leviathan-sized farm machinery; or all the glitter of fair time from the top of the ferris wheel.

The Campbell will be coming — Glen, that is, for the 6 and 8:30 p.m. grandstand shows. "Gentle On My Mind," "By the Time I Get to Phoenix," and all the other hits have piled up 10 gold records for the singer. Each sold a million platters.

Track shoes would help in getting from here to there, but slow and steady does it, with a dash of sound nerves and elbows.

Beef cattle are here; dairy cattle dates are next week. Some of the best of the 10 breeds hang around on the Blue Ribbon Road for 10 days so all can see. Judging of 4-H and Vocational Agriculture - Future Farmers of America livestock begins today; the champion market beef (baby beef in a less exact age) will be chosen Saturday, accompanied by smiles and tears.

Pigs will be in — not the parlor — put their pens; sheep and goats have their fans; some poultry is as exotic as tropical birds; Plymouth Rocks represent the sober types. Entries show the rabbit population has had a good year.

This is no time to bother about the decibel level. The first day of the Iowa High School Marching Band competition will bring the gaudily uniformed youngsters to toot and pound on the Grand Concourse. Teen Town bands will try to see which combo can make the most noise in their blue bawliwick. Barbershoppers (Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America) will harmonize either on the Plaza stage or in the Variety Theater, but they obligingly warble wherever they may be. Horses go round and round on the carousel to "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight". Sideshow barkers and concession hawkers will be in extra good voice.

Iowa-born Dr. Norman E. Borlaug is to be a special guest of the fair board Friday. Awarded the 1970 Nobel Peace Prize, Dr. Borlaug as an agricultural scientist is concerned with alleviating world hunger.

Friday night, however, he will crown the new Iowa State Fair Queen in a special ceremony on the Grand Concourse stage. The Jax of Harmony, Des Moines, will sing. Campbell will share his stage spotlight briefly later with the Queen and her entourage.

Talent Sprouts, Iowans of two through 12, will compete in their first annual contest at high noon on the Plaza stage. Each of the six final winners will receive a $100 U.S. Savings Bond. The fair's Talent Search, for performers of 13 through 21, follows daily. Awards in the Sunday, Aug. 29, finals will be a 1971 Pinto from the Metropolitan Des Moines Ford dealers and $3,000 from the fair board.

The small Sprouts will have their own variety show at 10 and 11 a.m. and 1:30 and 4 p.m. on the Grand Concourse stage. They trill, dance and out - act any professional.

Iowans will have a wonderful time burning their tongue on tortilla tostada or shutting their eyes to calories on the sweet Biznaga. All day long they may watch Mexican dances and hear old, old songs. Tortoise shell, basketry, laces, hand woven serapes will be displayed. All this is in the Women's and Children's Building, now our own Mexican Village.

The aerial Dance of the Voladores will be on Exposition Hill beyond the Village. Back home in Papantla, the Mexican Indians perform this ancient rite annually, but, Iowa wind and weather co-operating, it will be a two - a - day attraction here.

Mexican entertainment, water color and sculpture displays by their artists, and industrial exhibits will emphasize the country's culture and business as part of the "Discover Mexico" program.

Mexico in all its warm native charm and beauty is brought alive in the songs of Lucha Villa, the republic's top woman recording and motion picture star, and in the dance - song drama of the Ballet Aztlan de Mexico in a Tuesday night grandstand performance.

But there's something in discovering Iowa at the fair.

Jean Knight Strikes Gold With "Mr. Big Stuff"

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Stax Vice - President of Sales, Ewell Roussell, announced that Stax artist Jean Knight has made the two million mark with her first record on the Stax label.

The national hit, "Mr. Big Stuff" (now in its twelfth week) first brought Miss Knight a Gold Single Record and now a Platinum Single Record.

"Mr. Big Stuff" began to soar at a pace of 100,000 sales a week and in approximately six weeks, the record had made number one on every major radio chart.

Drug Report

SAN CLEMENTE — President Nixon's drug abuse prevention advisors report to California White House. Dr. Beny Primm, seated left, program director of the Drug Addiction Research and Treatment Corporation in Brooklyn, New York, and Dr. Jerome Jaffe, head of the Administration's Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention report to the President on completion of their recent inspection trip to Vietnam. Dr. Primm will work with Dr. Jaffe in coordinating drug abuse rehabilitation and education programs now spread among nine Federal Agencies. Seated next to Dr. Primm is John Ehrlichman, Assistant to the President for Domestic Affairs.

Committee Forms To Research S. C. Anemia

Congressman Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Cal, announced from his Washington office the formation of a National Advisory Committee for accelerated research and treatment against sickle cell anemia.

"There will be a fivefold budget increase to $6 million to increase research on sickle cell anemia which along with cancer has been earmarked for concentrated research," Congressman Hawkins said.

"The committee will hold its first meeting August 13 at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda. The (NIH) and National Heart and Lung Institute (NHLI) will coordinate the program.

There is a representative from Watts on the committee, Mrs. Zeola Walder, Chairman, Citizens Advisory Board, South Central Multipurpose Health Services Center, Los Angeles' he added.

Chairman of the committee is Mrs. Ruth Aikens, Associate Director for Health and Health Programs, National Urban League, New York.

Sexual Revolution And The Black Reaction

HOUSTON, Tex. — To what extent has the "sexual revolution" affected the Black family?

How caught up are Black young people in the thrust for new approaches to male - female relations, marriage and family living?

Should Black women become seriously involved in the women's liberation movement?

These are some questions which will be explored at one workshop session at the Delta Sigma Theta Convention in Houston, August 8-13.

"As an organization of 55,000 Black women, we are very much concerned with the pathology of black family living, and all the moral and social issues related to the uprooting of traditional concepts about women and their role and place in contemporary society," stated Mrs. Lynnette Taylor, Executive Director of Delta Sigma Theta.

"We feel it is important to bring into the open, to put in proper perspective the impact and implications of new attitudes toward male - female relations, sexual freedom, marriage, abortions and commune living. We simply can no longer sweep these considerations under the rug and blame these differences on a generation gap," Mrs. Taylor said.

She explained that by fully discussing the "sexual revolution" and "women's lib movement" at the Delta convention "we expect to gain more insight into the extent of changes in mores and folkways in the Black community."

A panel of five members will lead the discussion. They are: Dr. Joyce Ann Ladner, Associate Professor of Sociology at Howard University and author of the new book "Tomorrow's Woman"; Dr. Gloria Scott, Professor of Education and Director of Institutional Research at North Carolina A & T State University; Miss Brian Hawkins, summer lecturer at the Smith College School for Social Work in Northampton, Mass., and the Outstanding Young Woman of the Year from Washington, D.C. in 1970; Mrs. Louise Ridgle White, Urban Specialist and Los Angeles television personality, and Mrs. Claudette Ford, Executive Editor, BLK Group, Inc. (consulting firm in Washington, D.C.), and co-chairwoman, Delta Sigma Theta Social Action Commission.

An initial grant has been received from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), providing money for use in counseling and related activities.

"This money gives us the chance to make necessary inroads into the shortage of optometrists in New York and specifically within the minority areas where the shortage is especially critical," said Dr. Morton.

The New York State Optometric Association has also made funds available to the Optometric Center, earmarked for students from minority groups.

Dr. Abernathy Reveals SCLC's Political Role

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 11 — The Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) will play an active and important role in the 1972 elections, from the courthouse to the White House, Dr. Ralph David Abernathy announced today.

The SCLC President said that the organization would involve itself in the presidential primaries, nominating conventions, and grass roots organizing across the South and in major Northern cities.

Black and poor people, he said, must "seize political power in their communities and control the balance of power in the nation." He said that SCLC will be working mainly through young people, workers, and the black and poor communities.

Dr. Abernathy's remarks came in the traditional President's Address to the opening session of the SCLC annual convention. He spoke at New Zion Baptist Church, where the organization of SCLC was completed 14 years ago.

End Repression

Speaking on the convention's theme, "The Politics of Poor People — A Movement to End Repression," Dr. Abernathy said that "repressive policies of the present administration" are unacceptable to poor and progressive people, and he challenged both major parties to repudiate such policies. "A party which fails to produce responsive candidates can no longer take us for granted," he warned.

Dr. Abernathy noted that black voters now hold the balance of power — or a majority in many cases — in hundreds of Southern counties, dozens of major cities, and many states which are critical in the presidential elections.

He said that 1972 should be the year when the first blacks since Reconstruction are elected to Congress from the South — in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, South Carolina and other states. He also said that "poor people's candidates" will run for and win public office at the local, county, state and federal levels.

ESTES PARK, COLORADO: We are housed in a gray, white trimmed cottage large enough to sleep ten people and presently accommodating three adults and one Champie Lee, (16 year old Siamese cat). One of our family is sleeping, another in our heated pool, as I write to you.

FIRST THINGS FIRST IN CAMP LIFE, to me, is practical assignment of rooms, sleeping areas, or whatyoumay call it. Here, it was bedrooms. After something of a fruitbasket upset approach, we were finally settled in our individual rooms. Pure chance gave me the ideal spot, to my taste! Enter the back door and you are standing in the kitchen directly in front of our gas stove, turn left, pass the sink, next the bathroom door, left you mount one step and you are in my domicile. It holds twin beds easily, a chest of drawers, a large (captain's) chair, which have been antiqued a lovely turquoise blue, and there is an ample closet — my very own. I have a large double window and smaller window which are on the only available walls and open nice and wide to bring the pure, mountain air! From them are perfect views.

OUR MOTEL HOSTESS WAS QUITE UNBELIEVABLE TO BEHOLD. Young 5' 6", 120 lb. former fulltime model, and currently a parttime model, motel owner-operator, and mother of two, she greeted us as though our arrival was of the utmost in all of her experience in the business. Not too much, nor overly. Her speech and slight husky voice are a delight to the listener. Her quick summation of each piece of business and instant solutions, all geared to your gain only, make for pleasing efficiency. One is immediately on her side and interested in contributing to what is best for this agency and its operator. (Salesmanship at its best and with most delightfully feminine approach.) She has "help" but no task fails to gain something of her personal attention whenever need dictates. Moving rapidly among the guest houses, she remains knowledgeable of all that is happening. And as she moves lithely about, she stoops picking up pop can aluminum tips, bits of wrappers, or whatever some absent-minded guest or child may have deposited here or there on the grounds. (Girls, wouldn't one call this exercising? Add all this and one discovers how she remains model-like! Hey, when a phone rings here and there, away she goes, sprinting but oh so beautifully! Dancer-like!

JUST GOT TO ADD THIS! One member of our hostess's girls arrived on the job eight days ago, weighing in at 275 lbs., and today weighs 11 lbs. less. That's how long it took her employer to involve this college junior in "Weight Watchers". Add to her boss's efficiency, "warm understanding."

ON THE DES MOINES SCENE: Terrasa Steele, lovely, local dancer, was a participant in a recent workshop entitled "Dance Caravan" held July 22, 23 and 24. Instructing the sessions were professional dancers from New York, Illinois and California. Among these were famed Roni Mahler, and the American Ballet Theater, and the fabulous Joan Taylor, a former Jackie Gleason performer. Classes were from 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and attended by 150 to 200 students, including many professional instructors for whom special sessions were offered.

TERRASA, WHOSE LIFE GOAL IS TO BE A PROFESSIONAL DANCER has studied for several years now and was one of those selected at the institute to demonstrate the new routines taught there. This columnist hopes that she will appear in some of the local productions which are vastly interesting and introduces to everyone our local talent in all fields. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elburen Steele. (One of my favorite people.)

MET MELVIN ROBINSON, A SEVEN SHADES OF BROWN, UNLIMITED, appearing at Roberts' Lounge. The group originates in Beloit, Wisconsin, and has traveled extensively. Our chat took place in the soul food eatery located at "Hardaway's Corner". Jewelry being one of my big interests, I was entranced by his wrist watch, mounted by a Mexican jeweler! Believe me, I was near a state of "coveting". Robinson plays the guitar, bass, piano and organ! Hey, he does something for the fellows' mod attire! (You're welcome, Robinson!)

VALHALLA, Elk Horn Cottage No. 7; FLORA MAE DANFORTH, Sydney and her boyfriend are scheduled to arrive here Saturday for a visit. Needless to say we are ecstatic. Flora Mae will be driving her Maverick and the young people will follow in their car. Flora Mae will remain over and who knows, maybe I'll just scoot into the Maverick (hitch - hiking?) and see a close-up view of her career in Denver. Anyhow would sure like to see LeRoy Bird, who faithfully makes the trek to Des Moines yearly. In any event Flora Mae and I are going to talk about alllllll of you far into the night! (Hope your ears burn!)

NYC VACATION KIT FREE TO VISITORS

A free New York City "1971 Vacation Planning Kit" is offered to those who drop a card or letter to: N.Y. Convention & Visitors Bureau, 90 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

New lists of "20 Free Things To Do" and "13 Off-Beat Sites" are special features of the 1971 kit. It also contains a full-color Visitor's Guide & Map (available in eight languages), a Weekend Folder, and pocket-size guides to hotels, restaurants, stores and shops. A calendar of events lists theatres and films, sports, art, music and dance, children's activities, sightseeing attractions, conventions and exhibits. To remind visitors of the uniqueness of a New York City visit, the N.Y. Convention & Visitors Bureau has selected "18 Only-in-New York Sites for Summer 1971" as the theme of its 18th annual "New York Is a Summer Festival!" season. A list of all the sights—which include the Statue of Liberty, Staten Island Ferry, Greenwich Village, Empire State Building, Rockefeller Center, the U.N. and Harlem—is contained in the Vacation Planning Kit.

Groups planning to visit New York are asked to write the Visitors Bureau's Group Tour Dept. for group rates and a Tour Leader's Guide.

LA Teacher Is Guest Here

Miss Alice M. Carroll was a recent house guest of her cousin Mrs. Jessie F. Taylor and family. A teacher in the Los Angeles City Schools, she was extended many social courtesies by Mrs. Frances Brent, Mrs. Geraldine Jackson and Mrs. Naomi Banks.

She also spent a day with Mrs. Ethel Smith in Marshalltown, Iowa and Mrs. Jean Wright a former Girl Scout Counselor whom she met in 1953 in Belle Plaine, Iowa.

She was Mrs. Taylor's guest at the fabulous T-Cwan's Dance at the Val Air Ball Room, and post-party at Mrs. Taylor's home.

Miss Carroll had returned from Nassau in the Bahamas before coming to Iowa.

She will also visit in Kansas and Missouri before flying back to Los Angeles.

Dr. S.D. Miller from St. Louis, Missouri was houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Bonnie Herndon last week. Mr. Herdon's sister, Mrs. Alonza Barbec of Kansas City, Missouri was a weekend houseguest.

Mrs. Sarrell Tours East

Mrs. Margaret Sarrell was among the Union Baptist Group that took a tour to Hampton Virginia last month. In Hampton she was the house guest of Mr. Wallace and Mrs. Issetta Gaines. Mr. Gaines a prominent business man treated the group of women to a free trip to his beauty shop for any beauty needs they desired.

Mrs. Sarrell was taken by Mrs. Gaines to Norfolk, Williamsburg, New Port News and many other interesting places in the vicinity and was a fishing guest of Rev. and Mrs. Seymour Gaines in Chesapeake Bay. Mrs. Sarrell caught fish which she brought home.

Hold School Of Instruction

Polk County School of Instruction was held at the Urbandale Legion Hall, Friday at 6:30 p.m. Mrs. Myrtle Taylor, Mrs. Mary Ratton and Mrs. Ruby Andrews attended.

It was very informative and interesting.

Mrs. Andrews was asked to serve on the committee to revise the rules and by-laws of Polk County.

Coffee, sandwiches and a salad was served.

Mrs. Ruth Lillie is the New Polk County president.

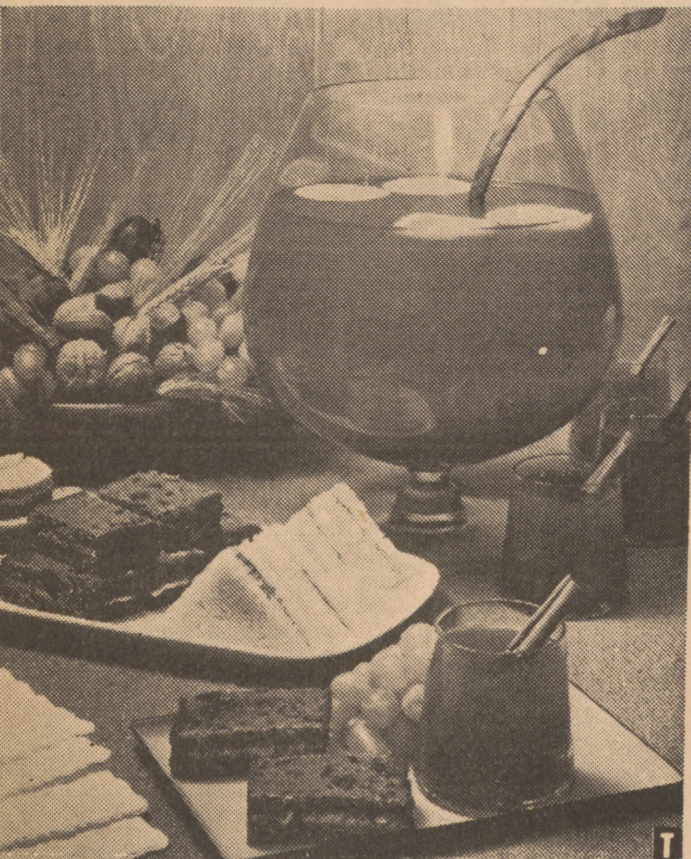

The first successful appendectomy was performed in Iowa in 1885!

HOT PUNCH FOR INFORMAL GATHERING

Having friends over to watch the football game—or just for an informal get-together? Plan your entertaining with easy-to-serve refreshments that can be prepared ahead of time. An ideal open house menu includes hot Raspberry Spiced Punch, an assortment of tasty finger sandwiches and an attractive fruit and nut bowl.

Whether it's served hot or cold, this sweet 'n' spicy punch is sure to please. Take an old fall favorite—apple cider—add several spices, and two jars of Strained Raspberry Cobbler.

The result—a delightful fruit-flavored punch that will be enjoyed by youngsters as well as adults.

For finger sandwiches, you can use a variety of different types of breads, such as date and nut, rye or white bread. Spread with your favorite meat or cheese fillings, after trimming the crusts.

Then just set out your bowl of punch and a tray of finger sandwiches with a stack of individual trays and let your guests help themselves.

RASPBERRY SPICED PUNCH

- 1 qt. sweet apple cider
- 8 whole allspice
- 8 whole cloves
- 1 4" stick of cinnamon
- Dash of salt
- ½ cup brown sugar, packed
- 2 jars Gerber Strained Raspberry Cobbler

Tie spices in a square of cheesecloth. Combine cider, spices, cinnamon stick, salt, and brown sugar. Heat slowly to boiling. Remove spices. Add Raspberry Cobbler and stir well. Serve hot or cold. If desired, add a stick of cinnamon as a stirrer in each glass or cup. Serves 8.

Before I joined the Payroll Savings Plan all I could save was string.

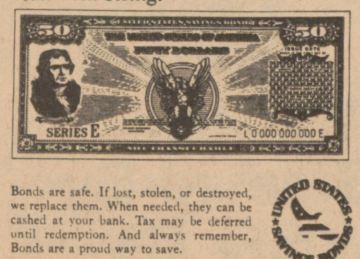

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½% payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970...

with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Stick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America. Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Do you think it is in good taste for a receptionist to smoke at her desk?

A. This depends upon the policy of her particular employers. Personally, I don't think it gives a good impression of the company she is representing. A receptionist should look pleasant, act and talk pleasantly -- and it's difficult to do these things while puffing away on a cigarette.

Q. What should a girl do if her family cannot afford an elaborate wedding?

A. The only logical thing for her to do in this case is to plan a very simple ceremony in her church. A big, formal wedding is NOT a requisite to or a guarantee of a happy married life.

Q. I've been criticized for eating all of one particular food at a time -- that is, all my salad, then all my potatoes, then all my meat. Is there anything wrong with this?

A. No. There's no rule of order regarding the eating of one's meal.

Q. When I am walking with my girl, who is quite a bit shorter than I am, and it begins to rain, should I let her carry the umbrella while I walk out in the rain, or should I attempt to hold it over her, despite the disparity of our heights?

A. You take care of the umbrella, and cope with the situation as best you can.

Q. Some of my friends, upon seeing the announcement of my engagement in the newspaper, have written me notes of good wishes. Am I supposed to reply to these?

A. While not absolutely necessary to write notes, it would be nice if you phoned these friends and thanked them for their kindness.

Q. When a hostess is serving cocktails and knows that one or two of her guests do not drink, what should she do?

A. A good hostess is always prepared for such eventualities ... she has a supply of soft drinks on hand.

Q. Does a woman ever take the aisle seat when she is attending the theater with a man?

A. Not usually. Sometimes, however, if the aisle seat provides a distinct advantage over the second seat so far as an unobstructed view of the stage is concerned, then her escort may suggest that she sit in the aisle seat.

Q. Is it considered poor form for a woman, at her second marriage, to have three or four bridesmaids?

A. Yes. The second marriage should be as simple and informal as possible, and the bride should have only one attendant.

How To Pack Like A Pro

If your family is among the one out of five families who will move this year, you will probably do your own packing. Whether you make your own or hire a commercial mover.

You can do a professional packing job by using a few "tricks of the trade."

The most important thing to do in packing cartons or boxes with fragile items is prevent contact. It's the key to successful packing no matter how long or short your move.

And preventing contact calls for a lot of paper and cartons of proper size to accommodate your things.

Newspapers work fine for cushioning and most wrapping. You may be able to buy shredded paper, but if it's not available you can make your own. However, because newspaper ink tends to rub off, be careful with fabrics, lamp shades, etc., that might be smudged. These items should be wrapped in tissue or plain paper first and then with newspaper for protective covering. Soft paper is easier to work with than regular wrapping paper -- it conforms to irregular off-shaped objects and provides better cushioning.

You can collect cartons from neighborhood stores, although it may be hard to find uniform-size cartons with the top flaps intact. Or you can buy wardrobe and utility packing cartons at reasonable prices from truck and trailer rental companies like U-Haul.

For fragile things, it's a good idea to "line" the bottom of the carton with balls of paper as a cushion. Heaviest pieces should go on the bottom with lighter things placed on top and arranged to prevent shifting. Use wadded paper to fill in spaces. Cartons should be fully packed, but not over-filled, so they will be flat on top when the flaps are taped down. Where necessary, fill the carton with tight balls of paper so the top won't sag if another carton is stacked on top.

Dishes and glassware demand a little extra care in wrapping and packing. Cushion the bottom and top of the carton, and loosely wrap each piece with plenty of paper. Dinner plates and saucers should be stood upright in the carton. Cups and glasses should be placed at random in a bed of paper. If you avoid contact, you avoid breakage.

Don't put a lot of books in one carton. They are very heavy in quantity. Use small and medium-size cartons. Pack the books flat, so the spines won't break, and do not jam them in tightly. Use wadded newspaper to fill in spaces -- books can easily break fragile items packed with them.

And don't overlook the valuable packing space inside appliances. Use it for bulky, lightweight goods such as large stuffed toys and pillows.

Many more helpful tips for packing and planning your move are available in a booklet from U-Haul, a rental service company of AMERCO. The new 24-page "Moving Guide" is free from any U-Haul dealer.

Or write: "Moving Guide" U-Haul Rental System, P. O. Box 21503, Phoenix, Arizona 85036.

Centuries ago in Africa (before it was explored by Europeans) beautiful black women used herbs and other ingredients to change the color of their hair. It was one way to complement their dark rich complexions... to accent their natural warmth and beauty. Whether or not Africans were the first to use this method, no one is sure. Yet, they are among the first in terms of recorded history to go through the then-tedious process of coloring their hair.

Today changing your haircolor can be as quick and as brief as a visit to your professional hairdresser. That's because many professional hairdressers use Miss Clairol® Hair Color to lighten hair, to make slight color changes and to cover gray. Hairdressing experts know that exotic blacks and browns are generally gorgeous for darker skin tones. Golden or red shades are stunning for lighter tan complexions.

Today black pride brings you closer to the cultural ways of your African heritage. Haircoloring is a part of black history too. Ask your professional hairdresser about changing your hair color with Miss Clairol... and be more beautiful than you already are.

President Nixon Envokes Much-Needed Freeze

The average man does not understand all the ramifications of President Nixon's recent announced economic and fiscal policy but he is aware for at least 80 days he will not find a higher price for what he buys everytime he goes to market.

Freezing prices and wages is a welcome move which should have been made months ago. It puts industry and labor on notice that prices have been rising without regard to the best interest of the general public.

This has been done by powerful groups which had power to put the squeeze on the public when little could be done other than bow to their demands. As a result, the disadvantaged is forced to bid for goods and services with the fellow who makes high wages, the company which charges unreasonable prices.

Of course, there will be some hard-ship cases where wages have been negotiated to take effect in the future. However, freeze must mean for everyone. Exclusions and exceptions will weaken the effort. The program is for the good of all and should not be tailored with exceptions.

Most people welcome the move. Most people will abide by it recognizing that the interest of all people is at stake.

And we hope the post office increase in fees will not escape the freeze.

Letting Down Bars Breeds Trouble Ahead

The State Advisory Commission of the National Civil Rights Commission has made a survey of higher education for Negroes in Wisconsin.

The report concludes that the university system is racist citing, among other reasons, the fact that 80 percent of those admitted drop out; that there is no program designed to help those students who find themselves deficient in their subjects.

Apparently, in an effort to make higher education available to more disadvantaged Negroes, the bars have been let down forgetting that trouble was bound to follow as the courses became stiffer and they could not keep up.

Many of these drop outs will tab the university racist and yet the authorities thought the students were being granted favors.

Our Contribution To More Education And Training

Three Negro boys were employed in one of Des Moines' industries. They balked on doing an unpleasant job because the work was beneath their dignity. They all quit. The father of one sent his son back. He was hired in another department as an apprentice. Today he is in his third year as an apprentice and earns excellent pay already. As a journeyman, his pay will be fabulous.

A white boy in Des Moines of wealthy parents graduated from one of the Ivy League schools. As he was to enter the graduate school, his parents had lost their money. He came back to Iowa, worked as a waiter and other jobs to finish his graduate education. Today, he is assistant manager of one of America's great corporations.

The Negro boy's father knew what it takes to forge ahead and saw that his son took advantage of an opportunity.

The white boy was willing to stoop to conquer and it paid off.

More of this kind of thing is needed that young people seize opportunities and make the best of them in spite of handicaps or arrogance. More grit is necessary to engender confidence in themselves; more is necessary by parents who know the fundamentals of what is ahead and how they should be dealt with.

The Back to School display each year emphasizing education in schools or on the job is one of our contributions.

Health for All

Humidifiers in homes and offices help prevent parched throats and cracked furniture. But some humidifiers harbor bacteria that can cause lung disorders.

Dr. Donald R. Tourville — chief of immunology and bacteriology at St. Barnabas Hospital in Livingston, New Jersey — reports that bacteria growing in some humidifiers flourish at high temperatures. When inhaled, they can cause an inflammation of the air sacs of the lungs. Some humidifiers attached to forced-air heating systems as well as those that permit an accumulation of residual water can be particularly troublesome.

Chills, fever, and breathlessness are some of the symptoms of infection. But identifying the source of such generalized symptoms can take time. One 65-year-old man was hospitalized four times in three months before the offending bacteria were identified and traced to the humidifier. By then, the man had irreversible lung damage.

The owners of humidifiers, according to Dr. Tourville, must learn to drain the water reservoirs in their humidifiers and clean the system thoroughly every two or three weeks to prevent the growth of contaminants. So-called air-freshening additives, some researchers say, have not been tested long enough to know how effective they are.

Although some humidifiers have automatic flushing devices, many must be cleaned by hand. Unfortunately, the construction of some humidifiers makes cleaning inconvenient or almost impossible. To get at the water pan, the entire apparatus must be dismantled. When buying humidifiers, ease of cleaning is one important feature to keep in mind.

To find out more about lung disorders and their causes, contact your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. It's a matter of life and breath.

Pok County Tuberculosis & Respiratory Disease Assoc., 208 Flynn Building, ph: 288-3349.

ON THE SPORTS SCENE

With Allen Ashby

You know, just about every magazine that has anything about sports has an article on Satchel Paige and his hall of fame induction (guess that's the word). At least one dug up a list of sayings made famous by the great one quite a few years back, and published them as late gems of wisdom. But, we were impressed by a column in a newspaper about the man.

This fellow says that Satch always knew what he was worth, and demanded it even to the point of making the owners of Negro baseball clubs very upset.

This probably explains why he sometimes didn't pitch a whole game. We recall hearing followers of Negro clubs say one never knew just how long Paige would stay in the game. You paid your money to see him, and sometimes that was all you did.

But, says the writer, that was because the club owners would try to be slick, and do the man out of what they had promised him, and then old Satch would pack up his gear and leave the mound.

So, the writer says that Satch always had his price, and that even now, if he were chosen to manage a major league club, which no one doubts that he could do, he would have to have his price, and wouldn't settle for a thing less. Now, all this fuss about a black manager in the majors keeps bringing up the name of Frank Robinson.

He could make it according to those who know him. Another one who could make a major league manager is Maury Wills, sportstop of the Dodgers. Both of these men are team leaders, and both seem to know how to get along with all types of men. The strategy is incidental. There is just so many things one must do in the course of a ball game, and he must have the players who can do what the situation calls for. Given that, the manager can look like a genius if his man does what he is supposed to. We have always contended that, given all of the managers of the various clubs and then the different teams, and put them in a hat, and pull out the names of team and manager together, that there would be not much drop in the order of finish of the teams from what they would be.

Of course, injuries could make a difference, but that is probably about all. Now that is strictly a theory of our own, and we don't know where we got it. Might be knocked into a cocked hat if it were tried.

Now, we are wondering about black quarterbacks in the major football leagues. We recall that when the subject of black baseball pitchers in the majors came up, people were saying that the players wouldn't play behind a black hurler.

Well, when enough was riding on the line, the players didn't care who was pitching, just so he didn't give up too many runs. Now we hear that a team just won't play with a black quarterback. Maybe, but Malin Briscoe had pretty good luck at Denver, and Archie Harris was a better than fair signal caller for Buffalo. This fellow from Texas A & I, Hart, may just be a good one.

The chief complaint of black signal callers is that they are frequently used as defensive backs, when they really would like nothing better than to call signals. Now, we believe as in baseball, that if there is enough at stake, the rest of the team wouldn't care a hoot who was calling plays so long as he could throw a TD pass, and enough of them to get his team in the win column. And this could be the year.

We are sure you read that column of a fellow named Murray in the daily paper last week in which he stated that way back in the ninties there were over twenty black players in organized baseball, and that one man was responsible for driving them out.

We had read that before, and nobody could explain the feeling behind what made the venerable Cap Anson draw the color line. Then, that was used to keep out possible black competition, and maybe old Cap was just following the trend set by the great John L. Sullivan when he barred Peter Jackson and others who he thought would give him a tough fight.

Oh, well, we are glad that is ancient history.

Morgan vs. Gambling Sept. 11

BALTIMORE, Md. — Two of the nation's most potent offensive teams among College Division leaders over the last five years — Grambling and Morgan State — square off against each other in New York City's Yankee Stadium in the Whitney M. Young Football Classic on September 11.

The stampeding Bears of Earl Banks, college division football's third winningest team (38-5-0) over the last five years, also rank fifth in scoring over that period with an impressive 33.0 points per regular season game as revealed by a compilation released by National Collegiate Sports Service.

Grambling, under the guidance of Eddie Robinson, ranks seventh among the college division powers with a 31.8 points per regular season game over the last five seasons.

Over the five-year span (1966-70), the Morgan Bears have averaged 39.7, 35.6, 25.3, 33.4 and 30.3 points while generating power from a strong winged-T offense with two setbacks and men in motion that's gone over 50 points seven times in that period.

"They come right at you," one rival coach was quoted as saying after his team was trampled by the Bears rugged ground game. "Their offense is not fancy, but they just hammer away at you in a rather consistent manner."

The two college division powers will go after each other on September 11 for the fourth successive meeting in this opening-season encounter, carried this year on ABC national television live at 6:30 p.m.

With series tied two games a piece, Morgan will be out to avenge two successive losses to the Grambling Tigers. Banks' Warriors dropped a 38-12 decision to the Robinson men at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh last season.

The year before, 1969, Grambling triumphed 30-12, while Morgan scored a 9-7 triumph in the initial clash in this New York series in 1968. The Bears, during the Eddie Hurt "hey-day" of the '40s, scored a 35-0 triumph over the Tigers (1946), to give the series an even two-all deadlock between the Louisiana and Maryland-based college division powers.

Grand Jury Ignores Fireman's Assault Case

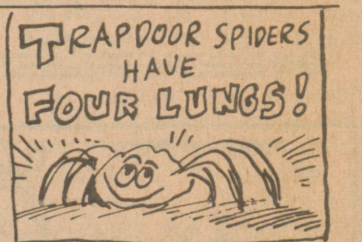

Two Charges of assault with intent to commit murder filed against a Des Moines fireman have been ignored by the Polk County Grand Jury.

John V. Smith, jr., 36, of 1602 Milton Ave., had been charged with shooting Frank Lowery jr., 15, of 1602 E. Nineteenth St., and Randy Craddock, 18, of 1545 DeWolf St., June 2.

Smith told police he fired into the air near the boys because he believed they were stealing auto parts from his father's salvage yard at 1625 DeWolf St.

Young Lowery was treated for 24 pellet wounds and the Craddock youth a right arm wound. The parents of the boys filed the initial charges after police failed to take action against Smith.
