U.S. RIGHTS COMMISSION

Accuse Nixon of Stalling Program Court Curbs Rights Commission

Can't Assess Damages Against Racial Bias

Even though guilty of racial discrimination the Iowa Civil Rights Commission cannot assess damages against an offender.

The unanimous decision stems from a case in which Iron Workers Local 67 here and its business agent, William Reed of Des Moines, were accused of discriminatory practices when a black man sought membership in the union.

The high court reversed Polk County District Court decree upholding an earlier Civil Rights Commission ruling and ordering Local 67 to pay $1,033.50 in damages to The Weitz Co., a Des Moines contracting firm.

But the high court rejected claims by Local 67 that parts of the Iowa law dealing with discrimination in hiring minority groups was unconstitutional because of vagueness and improper delegation of powers.

This was the first appeal of an Iowa Civil Rights Commission decision to reach the Iowa Supreme Court.

The decision, in effect, upholds the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Commission law but apparently limits the commission's power to levy fines or award damages.

In attempting to fix damages, the court said, "the commission clearly exceeded its statutory authority," and declared: "A judgment for the employer does not affirmatively make Negroes more welcome in Local 67."

The decisions were appealed by the union to the Iowa Supreme Court.

Alvin Hayes, executive director of the Civil Rights Commission, said that as a result of the ruling, the commission in the future will ask lawyers to file for civil damages in federal district court in cases of discrimination.

Nominations Sought For Spingarn Medal

NEW YORK — Nominations are now open for the NAACP's coveted Spingarn Medal to be awarded in 1972, the Board of Directors' Committee of Award has announced. Nominations should be submitted in writing to the Committee of Award on or before December 31, and should be accompanied by a detailing of the achievements of the nominee.

The Spingarn Medal was instituted in 1914 by the late J.E. Spingarn "to call the attention of the American people to the existence of distinguished merit and achievement among American Negroes, and secondly, to serve as a reward for such achievement, and as a stimulus to the ambition of colored youth."

Recipient of the medal in 1971 was Dr. Leon H. Sullivan, pastor of Zion Baptist Church in Philadelphia and founder of the OIC (Opportunities Industrialization Center). Dr. Sullivan was cited as one who "transmuted the social gospel into economic progress for his people," and who "melded religious leadership and social vision for the advancement of black folk."

Nominations for 1972 should be mailed to Committee of Award, NAACP, 1790 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Senate Urged by NAACP To Reject Rehnquist

WASHINGTON — Branding William H. Rehnquist as a racist and a "self-proclaimed segregationist," Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington Bureau of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, urged the Senate Judiciary Committee to investigate further the charges against President Nixon's nominee for the Supreme Court of the United States.

In testimony before the committee here, Nov. 9, Mr. Mitchell documented the charges against Mr. Rehnquist citing the Arizona's public opposition to enactment of civil rights legislation in Phoenix in 1964, to desegregation of the schools of that city in 1967, to equal voting rights for Negroes and Mexican Americans in 1964, and his denunciation of persons participating in a demonstration for civil rights at the Arizona State Capitol in 1964.

Joining Mr. Mitchell in testifying against the Rehnquist nomination was Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., speaking in behalf of Americans for Democratic Action. Both are also spokesmen for the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights. The ADA leader questioned the nominee's current disavowal of anti-Negro actions and positions with which his record is blemished.

Commenting on Mr. Rehnquist's testimony on his change of heart, Mr. Rauh said that the nominee had been "evasive" repeatedly. He charged him with being "opposed to the goal of desegregation, not just the means," and called him a "laundered McCarthyite," who tried to smear the Warren Court because of what Mr. Rehnquist calls its "extreme solicitude for claims of Communists and other criminal defendants."

Mr. Mitchell, basing his testimony on information and affidavits from NAACP leaders in Arizona, charged that the Rehnquist record revealed "a consistent pattern of opposition to the rights of black Americans in the areas of public means," and called him a "laundered McCarthyite," who tried to smear the Warren Court because of what Mr. Rehnquist calls its "extreme solicitude for claims of Communists and other criminal defendants."

On Thursday, the Logan Board will meet at Logan Opportunity Center, 1725 E. University Ave. at 6:30 p.m. and the Model City Citizens Board will meet at the Model City Planning Center 703 Seventh St., at 8 p.m.

Cite Instances Where Efforts to Curb Racial Discrimination Blocked

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A report issued today by the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights credited several key Federal agencies with making notable progress in developing necessary mechanisms for carrying out their civil rights responsibilities. The overall performance of the Federal Government, however, continues to get low marks, said Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, chairman of the commission.

"In the commission's view, actual performance in the resolution of problems, not progress in the development of mechanisms alone, is the realistic yardstick by which the Government's civil rights efforts should be measured," Hesburgh said.

Hesburgh spoke at a press conference held by the commission to release its "One Year Later" report, an evaluation of Federal agencies' response over the past year to the findings and recommendations of its milestone October 1970 report, "The Federal Civil Rights Enforcement Effort."

Government ineptness The 1970 report strongly criticized the Federal Government for its ineptness in enforcing civil rights laws. A followup report last May showed that the Federal Government had responded with tentative first steps for improvement with "promises to do better in the future."

One year later, the commission, an independent, factfinding agency created by Congress in 1957, examined the promises and performances with questionnaires and interviews with more than 30 Federal agencies from the White House through Federal regulatory agencies.

The commission pointed out that the White House has taken some important steps toward fulfilling its civil rights leadership role by providing more attention and improved mechanisms for civil rights affairs.

It has failed, however, to develop and communicate to the public a sense of urgency over the need to end discrimination. In some cases, the President's statements have deterred a clear, affirmative direction needed to confirm a strong will by the Federal Government to enforce civil rights laws, the report said.

Cited as encouraging developments were the establishment of a Civil Rights Committee by the

Blacks Schools Cited for Developing Excellent Students at Morgan State

BALTIMORE, Md. — William M. Boyd, II, executive director of the Educational Policies Center in New York City, praised black institutions of higher learning for their role in developing excellent students.

Addressing the 37th annual Honors Day Convocation at Morgan State College recently, Boyd blasted those critics who claim that "black schools make up the tail end of the academic procession as headline-grabbers." He said that black schools actually educate their students better because black institutions are primarily established with the preferences and needs of black students in mind.

"All schools are dependent upon outside financial assistance to survive. Those which get most of this assistance," Boyd said, "are most likely to achieve prominence." He said that prominent schools usually receive the most generous assistance. As a result, black schools receive less than their white counterparts. "We get less from government at all levels, less from corporations, less from foundations and least from wealthy individuals. Predominantly black public institutions like Morgan State get least of all," the Honors Day speaker declared.

Boyd urged black schools to press for the maximum number of new opportunities while maintaining and improving upon what they already have.

Distinguished Honor Students for the 1971-72 academic year were presented certificates of achievement following the keynote address by Boyd. Over 800 students were cited for academic excellence.

rancorous discussions by political and economic leaders of the national Black community.

A highlight of the three-day event was a series of seminars held for executives of participating corporations aimed at making them aware and more sensitive to the total Black life; the existence of Black business and the urgent employment needs and potential of Black employees.

The seminars were also designed to expose to the executives the range of products and services available within the Black community.

About 20 per cent of the WW II and Korean Conflict veterans have income protection riders on their G.I. insurance policies, according to VA.

Economic Stabilization Inquiries Run High

DES MOINES, Ia. — Richard C. Voskuil, Acting Director of the Iowa District Office, Internal Revenue Service, said today that his office has received several hundred inquiries concerning Phase II of the ESP.

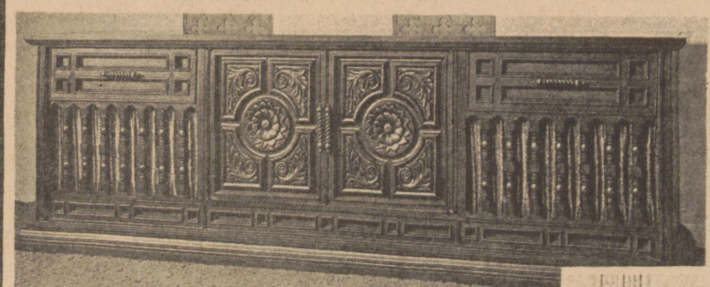

Three subjects seem to be of prime concern to Iowa's citizens. The first is: Can wage increases under existing contracts and pay practices go into effect as of November 14, 1971?

Pay adjustments under contracts existing prior to November 14th are allowed to go into effect. However, they are subject to review by the Pay Board when challenged to determine whether the increase is inconsistent with criteria established by the Board. Voskuil said that this means the way is clear for teachers to receive their increases on their 1971-72 contracts beginning November 14, 1971. Pay adjustments in the building and construction trades regardless of when agreed upon, must be pre-approved by the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee under criteria established by the Pay Board.

The second subject deals with whether retroactive wage increases can be paid.

Whites in South Africa Increasing Opposition To Its Hated Apartheid

By James E. Alsbrook
Some time in the distant future when South African blacks will have attained status approximating equality in their native land, the name of a white man probably will be remembered there as the names of Charles Sumner and William Lloyd Garrison are remembered now in the United States.

This candidate for distinction is the Very Rev. Gonville A. French, Beytagh, the Anglican Dean of Johannesburg. The outspoken, 59-year-old opponent of apartheid has been sentenced to five years in prison for violating the Terrorism Act and for "participating in terroristic activities."

What the Shanghai-born bachelor is really guilty of is (1) sending money for food, medicine and similar help to the families of black South Africans who have been jailed because of their opposition to apartheid, and (2) telling a growing number of white religious groups that South African racial policies are un-Christian.

Police Uneasy
South Africa's racist government has been concerned because an increasing number of religious groups are questioning apartheid more openly. The police have been snooping around at these groups' meetings and pestering various members. The government also has been expelling foreign missionaries suspected of harboring feelings or beliefs not compatible with apartheid, and attempting to find black stool pigeons who would betray any person — white or black — who makes statements or takes actions not favorable to apartheid.

Charged with ten questionable "crimes," the plump, white-haired dean was found guilty on four counts:

1. Possessing pamphlets belonging to banned political organizations, including the black people's African National Congress.

2. Encouraging violence through remarks made to the Black Sash, an organization consisting entirely of church-going, middle-age white women who oppose apartheid.

3. Urging a member of his church to take part in an "uprising" against apartheid. The specifics were not spelled out.

4. Distributing money on behalf of an English group opposed to apartheid.

South African law provides that persons charged under the Terrorism Act are guilty unless proved innocent, so the burden of proof is on the defendant.

To Be "Example"
Dean French - Beytagh is free on $14,000 bail pending an appeal which appears likely to be heard within about four months.

But informed observers are predicting that the dean will be jailed next year to show anti-apartheid groups that the South African government really means business and will tolerate no significant dissent to apartheid.

Meanwhile the ranks of anti-apartheid whites slowly grow and the South African government is trying to get big-name blacks from America to appear conspicuously and entertain under the sponsorship of that jim-crow nation.

Paying short-sighted American blacks to sing and dance is no substitute for the granting of more freedom to the millions of oppressed South African blacks.

I am confident that the Very Rev. Gonville A. French - Beytagh and other opponents of apartheid — white and black — will persist in their opposition to apartheid. Relentless change will vindicate their opposition.

VA says a veteran with a permanent plan G. I. insurance policy over one year old can borrow up to 94 per cent of its cash value.

VA will issue an American flag to the next of kin, close friend or relative to drape the casket of an eligible deceased veteran.

Roland Hayes Warren Western and Southern's First Million Dollar Producer

The Western and Southern Life Insurance Company presents a member of its staff whom it feels has exhibited pride, an unselfish desire to help others has carried him to the success achieved in its agency. These are the words used by Associate Sales Manager Donald Warren to define Roland Hayes Warren.

Roland is Western and Southern's first million dollar producer since its conception here in Des Moines and Iowa over 18 years ago.

This is to say that Roland is the first agency to so achieve and it is said without reference to race. Warren, speaking in praise of his company, add that it is the first major insurance company to extend full and absolute participation to its black employees. This is demonstrated, according to Warren, by its promotion of himself to associate sales manager rank within Des Moines, and the same promotions given to two other blacks to districts outside of Des Moines. The firm has been a fair practicing agency for at least eighteen years.

Specific credit is given to the present district manager, Walter Veach.

WASHINGTON — Clarence Mitchell, director, NAACP Washington Bureau, last week called for the elimination from two bills before the Congress of references tending to identify sickle cell disease as one specifically affecting Negroes. He was testifying before the District of Columbia Subcommittee on Public Health, Education, Welfare and Safety.

Specifically, he asked for deletion of the words "primarily among the black population of the United States" because "limited research in this area does not appear to establish a sufficient body of scientific evidence on which to base a finding by the Congress."

Ella Ruth Piggee Gives Top Performance In Narrated Dance

On Sunday night, Songstress Ella Ruth Piggee fulfilled The Scene's promises made for its presentation of our City's First Narrated Dance featuring this exciting performer.

Songstress Ella Ruth Piggee

Against the narrated background of her own rich experiences in eight years of the nightlife of road entertainment with bands, both small and large, and spanning 28 states, Ella Mae Piggee took center stage to bring to the songs of her past.

Grasping her microphone, she began to unravel her picturesque past. There was intimacy, warmth and complete sincerity in her rendition of each ballad. As promised, there, indeed, was Miss Piggee's unique but very personal resemblance to the style of Pearl Bailey. A listener heard and absorbed the empathetic expressions of personal experiences, which though wholly Piggee, of necessity bore a likeness to the style of Aretha Franklin — as predicted. Taking us back over the years, Miss Piggee displayed tremendous acting skill, whatever the place in her story of song. She came across so very clear and again we were mindful of the grace of Sarah Vaughn but in a personal Piggee style.

For her three sets Miss Piggee wore first a low-cut sleeveless, ankle length, white satin gown; second, a high neck, long sleeve, ankle length, pink satin gown. Her third costume was a yellow leather pantsuit.

The songs, grouped in three sets were: "Got to be Mellow, Steal Away, Baby, Sweet Baby, and Ghetto"; "No Where to Run, Soulsville, You and Me, Hammer, and Bill Bailey"; and "Respect, Dr. Feel Good, and Spirit in the Dark."

Miss Piggee was backed by The Billy Holloman Trio of Minneapolis, Minnesota, who are currently appearing at The Scene.

Deputies Graduate From Academy

Three Deputies of the Polk County Sheriff's Office were graduated from the Iowa State Law Enforcement Academy at Camp Dodge last week. They are Deputies Jay Cornwell, James House and John Hample.

The three officers have been attending a four week session to accumulate the 160 credit hours necessary to qualify for law enforcement duty under state law. House file 260 requires all full time peace officers to attend the academy within "a reasonable" period of time following their appointment.

The academy is funded by the State of Iowa and the expenses for the men are covered by a 60 - 40 Federal - County grant.

The intensive study period consists of instruction in riot control, fire arms, photography, hit and run investigation, defensive driving, motor vehicle codes, polygraph theory, records, juvenile management, FBI systems, patrol theory, communications, physical combat, civil theory, locks, safes, finger - printing, bomb instruction and jail theory and operation.

Cornwell, Hample and House increase the number of deputies on the Sheriff's staff to 18, with more to be enrolled. Polk County Sheriff Wilbur T. Hildreth said: "...these young men are the cornerstone of tomorrow's

Black Caucus to Release Secret Documents

Representatives Shirley Chisholm and Ronald V. Dellums today announced they will release heretofore highly classified Defense Department communications explicitly restricting assignment of minority servicemen in certain nations when the Congressional Black Caucus opens three days of Washington hearings tomorrow dealing with the responsibility for racism and repression in the military.

The Caucus - sponsored open hearings will be held in room 2175 of the Rayburn House Office Building beginning at 9:30 a.m. (On Wednesday the hearing shifts to room 2261; the final Thursday session will again be conducted in room 2175.)

Mrs. Chisholm and Mr. Dellums will chair the hearings. "Since we announced them nearly two weeks ago, we have been inundated with potential witnesses and supportive material," Congressman Dellums said. "One set of documents came from an anonymous source and shows direct negotiation between Defense Department officials and foreign governments to limit numbers of minority servicemen."

The hearing co-chairman said they would release copies of the documents at Tuesday's session which concentrates on both national and international problems of minority servicemen with specific emphasis on issues of military justice and discharge procedures.

United Methodists to Raise Funds for Reconciliation

United Methodists in Iowa will highlight their fund for Reconciliation on Sunday (Nov. 21) in an attempt to do their share toward a national four - year goal of $20,000,000. Iowans have pledged $696,000 to the Fund and have paid through September $507,211. One-half of this amount has been used for special projects within the state of Iowa.

The emphasis in local churches will be to encourage the giving of additional monies and the payment of pledges in order that commitments to some 46 special projects within the state might be completed. Most of the money is being used to improve education and/or economic power for minority groups including Blacks, American Indians, and Migrant Workers.

According to Bishop James S. Thomas, head of the Iowa Area, the Fund for Reconciliation has been in operation since 1968. Nationally, it has led to the creation of police - community relations programs, voluntary service of more than 750 young persons in a Peace Corps type program, rehabilitation projects in Vietnam and a church - related black community development program. Child care centers, non - profit housing projects for the elderly, medical and personal development care programs are some of the other areas of involvement.

The portion of the Fund used in Iowa has made possible sending pigs to Mississippi farmers to establish them in raising pigs for market, helping persons to purchase homes through H.O.M.E. Inc., sending volunteer college students into southeast Iowa to provide a summer program for under - privileged children.

In general terms the Fund has provided help in community action programs, urban ministries, minority cultural development, minority business development, migrant programs, legal services to the poor, housing, equal employment opportunity, scholarship and educational aid, child day care centers, coffee house ministries, family services, and programs for the elderly.

Bishop Thomas said, in a statement to the churches, "The Fund for Reconciliation is a way of saying and doing the Gospel. It is a way of being present - as food for the hungry, as healing for the hurt, and as liberator for the oppressed. A gift from a deeply sensitive and reverent person is his presence."

The Rev. Stanley C. Woeste, pastor of First United Methodist Church, Ottumwa, as chairman of the Committee on the Fund for Reconciliation in Iowa, has indicated that a number of projects are waiting to be funded if new money is made available as a result of the November 21st emphasis. These include day care centers, a family counseling center, a community youth center and a community center for both youth and the aging.

Last June the members of the Iowa Annual Conference, under the leadership of Bishop Thomas, passed strong resolutions dedicating the Conference to the effort to continue support of the many projects earmarked for funding, of which there are more than 800 across the country.

So. Baptists Chided By Black Baptists For Recall Of Interracial Cover Magazine

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The executive committee of the National Baptist Publishing Board has rejected as a setback to Christian racial endeavors the removal of a picture of a black boy and two white girls from a Southern Baptist publication. The National Baptist Publishing board is the largest affiliated arm of the 3 million - member National Baptist Convention of America. Its executive committee sets board policy for publishing literature more than 15,000 Sunday schools and Baptist Training Union classes in local churches throughout the country.

The white Southern Baptist Sunday School Board recalled 180,000 copies of the quarterly, "Becoming," to take out the picture that illustrated the accompanying article, "A Ministry of Reconciliation."

"We feel," said the committee, "that at a time when we of the Christian family are attempting to build better relationships among the races and better fellowship among the redeemed regardless of race, that such denunciation and calling back of the article, "Becoming," the quarterly for 14 and 15 year - olds, because of the cover carrying a black boy and two white girls is a setback in our Christian racial endeavors."

Dr. T. B. Boyd Jr., Nashville, secretary - treasurer of the National Baptist Publishing board, served as spokesman for the committee. Others present were the Rev. N. Samuel Johns, Nashville, editor - in - chief; the Rev. S. H. Simpson, Nashville, chairman; the Rev. Jessie Nightingale, Nashville; Dr. John W. Williams, Kansas City; Dr. P. S. Wilkinson, San Antonio, Tex.; and Dr. Robert Rowe, Dallas.

"Many of us in our pulpits," continued the committee, "in our Sunday schools, BTUs, and our missionary departments are encouraging Christian fellowship regardless of race, and we feel that the killing of the racial art text by the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board offers material to those who are against integration or Christian fellowship in any form."

The white Baptists said they withdrew the material because "it could have been subject to misinterpretation."

Magazine Week

The black male is not socially castrated and his household is not run by his womenfolk.

In fact, in the opinion of Dr. Robert Staples of Howard University, that's so much propaganda from the sociologists.

In the current issue of Intellectual Digest, Dr. Staples is quoted as saying the black man is being "assaulted" by sociologists not because he is impotent, but because he is potent.

The New Yorker this week has a baseball round-up in which the publication pleads with Willie Mays to hang up his spikes. While Mays got four hits, including a homer in the play-offs, the aging San Francisco Giants star might look better going out in a blaze of glory, rather than hanging around and petering out.

The same issue, noting that Vida Blue worked over 300 innings this year, says the A's may have hurt their sensational left-hander's arm by that workload. Young pitchers like to work but it is dangerous to pitch them this hard, the magazine notes.

The newsletter Behavior Today, published by the Psychology Today group, reports that two black suburbs around Chicago are doing a bang-up job of polite protection because of community control.

Three other police districts, inside the Chicago city line, wound up spending 14 times as much money for crime-fighting but didn't do any better. Political scientists Elinor Ostrom of Indiana University and Gordon Whitaker of Brooklyn College said black cops got great support and cooperation from the suburban blacks.

On the book front, I would advise you to rush to your nearest bookstore to get John Burby's "The Great American Motion Sickness" published by Little, Brown ($8.95) except that Mr. Burby says you can't rush to get anywhere any more.

His book, a real must for city dwellers, explains the politics and pressures which result in billions being spent on superhighways, barge canals, and subsidies for private pilots while city residents choke on the smog and auto exhaust and struggle to get to work on pokey buses.

Downtown traffic in New York is going slower today than when people got around town with horse and buggy power, Burby says.

Those who think birth control is a white man's trick ought to take a hard look at what Mao's China — no lover of the capitalists — is doing in that regard. The Chinese, according to the current (Nov. 6) issue of Saturday Review, are fining people who have more kids than the government allows. The big famine of 1962 scared Peking out of its Marxist pants on birth control.

The same issue tells more of the inside feud between the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and LBJ. According to John Kenneth Galbraith, the Harvard economist, LBJ worked hard to keep RFK from getting the vice-presidential nomination in 1964.

Galbraith said that LBJ's new memoirs are full of "whoppers" and that one of them was that LBJ cared deeply for RFK. Galbraith said he knew the true story because both men used him to negotiate their differences in 1964 before Atlantic City's Democratic convention.

Change, the magazine of higher education, reports in its November issue that about 20 per cent of the students at Columbia University, black and white, "engage in some degree of regular homosexual activity." The author, Dr. Robert Liebert, says U.S. universities, like Columbia, are sitting on a powder keg over how they are going to deal with the problem.

Harper's this month has an intriguing article how the Federal Parole Board ignores the wishes of sentencing judges when it decides on a man's parole. Chairman George J. Reed told the magazine that sentencing judges lose authorization over a prisoner in 120 days anyway, so why bother with what the judge intended? The ruckus over the Parole Board's conduct has to do with the fact the conscientious objectors opposed to the Vietnam war for political reasons have been drawing longer sentences than men who refuse to fight for religious reasons.

Business men can learn a lot from the current issue of Business Week, which deals with how service industries are trying to streamline their operations in order to make it. Service industries take in laundries, hotels, restaurants, gas stations, and other areas where blacks are trying to get footholds.

A small magazine published in Madison, Wis., The Progressive, recently carried an excellent piece of blacks in colleges by William Steif. The number enrolled jumped from 274,000 in 1965 to 522,000 in 1970 - 71, a 91 per cent increase.

This month's Atlantic has a detailed account by Ross Terrell of how Mao's thought absolutely envelops every Chinese from dawn to dusk. He finds their collective spirit "ennobling" but asserts "I could not live like that — how can others do so?"

President's Council on Domestic Affairs to focus specifically on civil rights issues of national importance, and the incorporation of civil rights concerns into the operation of the Office of Management and Budget.

It credited the Department of Housing and Urban Development with issuing a number of policies and procedures that offer potential for improving HUD's enforcement activities. They included guidelines for non-discriminatory advertising, affirmative marketing requirements for developers of FHA-insured homes and criteria aimed at preventing the concentration of subsidized low and moderate income housing in minority areas.

Ambiguous
The yardstick to measure progress, however, was made ambiguous by departments and agencies which claim headway in civil rights enforcement efforts, Hesburgh said.

"In response to commission inquiries, agencies are quick to announce structural changes that they plan to make or that they have just made," Hesburgh said. "Rarely do they report full implementation of these changes and more rarely still can they point to measurable improvements in minority living conditions as a result of them."

One example is an agreement by HUD and the General Services Administration last June to cooperate in assuring the availability of non-discriminatory low and moderate income housing as a condition for location of Federal facilities.

The "One Year Later" report disclosed that it took nearly 5 months before any regulations were issued, and internal operating instructions still have not been developed.

The report cited Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's efforts to achieve employer compliance, but also noted it has done little to combat union discrimination.

Minority employment in the Federal Government has improved but the Civil Service Commission has not developed a Government-wide plan for achieving minority group parity in Federal jobs nor has it required agencies to develop specific numerical goals and timetables.

The report measured the efforts of Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) and the Department of the Interior as "grossly inadequate."

Non-Existent Program
LEAA's compliance program, it charged, is virtually nonexistent and it has not even determined precisely what aspects of its programs are covered by Title VI, which prohibits discrimination in federally-assisted programs. The report said that 7 years after the passage of Title VI, the Interior Department is still developing a staff and compliance program. Its civil rights office has fully reviewed only one of its more than 650 recipients and sub-recipients of development and planning recreation grants.

"Perhaps, the principal impediment the commission has found is inertia on the part of the Federal bureaucracy — in some cases, a blind, unthinking fidelity to the status quo; in others, a calculated determination to do nothing to advance the cause of civil rights," Hesburgh said.

In most cases, Hesburgh said, the threat of public exposure and embarrassment is what has compelled changes, warning again that the poor progress has "increasingly tragic and real implications for the future well-being of this country."

"We are asking nothing more than that Federal officials fulfill the obligation which our Constitution has imposed upon them — that of faithfully executing the law," Hesburgh said.

accommodations, freedom of expression, education and voting. These, taken singly or together, raise grave doubts about whether he could mete out to the black citizens of America equal justice under law."

The NAACP representative further expressed the belief "that no black man and, perhaps, very few members of any other minority could believe that Mr. Rehnquist would give fair and impartial consideration to any legal question involving race that would come before him as a Justice of the Supreme Court."

Concluding his testimony, Mr. Mitchell said:

"The Rehnquist nomination raises a grim warning. Through that nomination the foot of racism is placed in the door of the temple of justice. The Rehnquist record tells us that he hand of the oppressor will be given a chance to write opinions that will seek to turn back the clock of progress. We cannot believe that this is fair to our country in a time when we are trying to build bridges of friendship to other nations of the world."

"We hope that the nomination will be rejected because it is an insult to Americans who support civil rights. But, if that is not sufficient reason to vote against it, we hope that it will be opposed because it will follow the President and our representatives wherever they go in the civilized world. No matter what they may say about our intentions, the Rehnquist record will speak louder and against us."

Minority Population at Navy Academy Doubled

With the entrance of the Class of 1975 the number of black midshipmen at the U.S. Naval Academy has doubled, and Academy officials hope that number will increase with each new class.

Increased recruiting in minority groups and changes in many programs designed to appeal to young men today has brought about the largest number of candidates to Annapolis in the history of any of the service academies.

Varied Courses
A major revamping of the academic program at Annapolis several years ago now allows midshipmen to major in one of 26 subject areas including engineering, management, languages, English, history or economics. Under the old curriculum, all midshipmen took the same 40 courses. Now they can choose from over 400 electives.

A new emphasis on leadership has lead also to changes in the military system at the Naval Academy. Regulations have been relaxed on such things as liberty and weekends, especially for upper-classmen, and the traditional Plebe (freshmen) indoctrination System has been extensively modernized and tailored to contribute to the professional training of the young midshipmen. Hazing, in any form, has been specifically prohibited by law.

Travel
Midshipmen consider travel one of the best benefits of the Academy program. During the summer third class (sophomores) and first classmen (seniors) cruise aboard ships of the fleet especially designated for midshipmen cruises to ports like Copenhagen, Athens, Hong Kong, Pearl Harbor, Auckland and Brisbane. Second classmen, meanwhile, divide their summer between flight training, Marine Corps indoctrination and amphibious training at various Navy and Marine Corps training centers.

When midshipmen graduate from the Academy they receive a bachelor of science degree and a commission as an ensign in the Navy or second lieutenant in the Marine Corps. They have a wide choice of career fields.

How to Apply
There are many ways to obtain a nomination to the Naval Academy. Young men interested in finding out more about the entrance requirements, nomination procedures and programs at Annapolis should write the Candidate Guidance Office, U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland 21402, or your local Naval Academy Information Officer.

SONGSTRESS ELLA RUTH PIGGEE was radiantly lovely on Sunday night in her long, long dresses. These were worn through her first two sets. In the third set she wore a yellow leather pantsuit and tall boots to match! (we women were green-eyed, Ella! And confidentially, Ella, you look totally unlike the so slim youngster of yesterday and it is all for the good. You are super!)

MONDAY EVENING AT THE DES MOINES ART CENTER was much too short a pleasure. Paul Tishman's lecture was just long enough to make one aware of how very much more one would like to hear! And to read! YOU WILL NEVER BELIEVE IT, but African art has been a windfall in my life for the past two weeks!! On Sunday, October 31, I dropped by to talk with Judge and Mrs. Glanton. It so happened that Mrs. Glanton had an appointment to view some African art. With greater boldness than I felt, I expressed an interest in the subject and in meeting an African. She readily extended a most courteous invitation to join her. I felt like (WOW!!) but murmured thank you. I walked out behind her (was running like wild, really) so excited I could scarcely wait to get there.

AT HOTEL SAVERY we met two very fine African gentlemen: Ali Sillah, who spoke excellent English, and Amadon Berety, who was hesitant in his use of the English language. Their room had about three rows of items running along two walls of the room. Calming myself so I would represent the rest of you nicely, I looked coolly about me at one of some most beautiful work of art I shall ever see. Identical types were seen in the Paul Tishman Collection! Since my small denominations of bills were actually my week's pay, I thought I was well-situated, but quotations of 200, 300, 700 — keep going — were made by even my friend unfamiliar with English. I soon realized the state of the nation (as applies to me!). But I did find some very small items on the dresser top. Brass birds and other small items. I made four purchases — two for me and two for Mikel. Upon learning that the two men would be around on the following day, I returned with Mikel and again went some of my precious coins. Oooh but am I ever happy with these few things.

THESE TWO PLAN RETURNING TO THE STATES in about three months and expected to contact Mrs. Glanton prior to their appearance here. Let's hope that they do and that she sets a night aside for all of us. I'll let you know, if you'll let me know should you hear first.

Art Center Shows African Sculpture

MIKEL JEAN JOHNSON

Monday evening, November 15, 1971, marked the opening of the first major exhibition of African sculpture ever held at the Des Moines Art Center. At this time, center members and their guests were treated to a preview of the collection itself and an illustrated talk by the collection's owner, Mr. Paul Tishman of New York.

The works are on extended loan from Mr. and Mrs. Tishman's private collection and are being circulated by the International Exhibitions Foundation, Washington, D.C. The exhibition is entitled "Sculpture of Black Africa," and includes some 200 examples of sculpture created from various woods, metals, ivory, shells, fiber and leather, unique to the various countries which make up sub-Saharan Africa.

In the catalogue which accompanies the exhibition, the collector has said of his treasures:

"African art can be fully appreciated only from a humanistic point of view. It is within this frame of reference that my own interest in the field was born and the concept of the collection determined."

"I came to realize that no matter in what part of Africa the material originated and no matter how diverse the tribal or regional styles, through most of it runs the spirituality, the same invocation of magic, the same attempt to express in image form the unknown forces with which the African has had to deal in daily life."

The works attempt to represent the history, culture and traditions of the various regions from which they were collected.

The Tishman collection is considered to be one of the best private collections in the country and has appeared at galleries in Atlanta, Ga., Richmond, Va., St. Louis, Mo., Austin, Texas, and Huntington, W. Va. before coming to Des Moines.

During the preview guests were invited to sample a variety of African food and drink.

The collection will remain at the Art Center until Jan. 9. Further information on exhibition hours may be obtained by contacting the Art Center.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Is it all right to use printed cards of thanks for acknowledging flowers, mass cards, and donations sent during one's bereavement?

A. It is better to send a note rather than a commercial card — but if a very great many must be sent, it is permissible to send the printed cards, since friends understand the stress you are under at such a time. These acknowledgments should be mailed out as soon as possible.

Q. Would it be proper for a divorcee to have bridesmaid attendants at her second wedding?

A. No. Her wedding must be as simple as possible, and she should limit her attendants to one.

Q. When are the children at a table served — before the adults, after adults, or in regular rotation?

A. Serve the children in the same rotation as the adults.

Q. I see more and more people cutting their bread and rolls at the table with their knives. Is this now considered correct?

A. Not at all. Good behavior still requires that bread, rolls, and the like be broken into small pieces with the fingers, and each piece individually buttered as it is eaten.

Q. When sending a reply to a wedding invitation and reception, should it be addressed to the bride-elect or to her parents?

A. Since the invitation is usually issued in the name of the bride's parents, your reply should be addressed to them.

Q. Is it necessary to reply to a wedding invitation, and if so, what is the correct form?

A. Invitations to the wedding itself do not require an answer. If a reception card is included, one answers in the traditional third-person form — "Mr. and Mrs. John L. McLean accept with pleasure Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Lindsay's kind invitation for Saturday, the tenth of December."

Q. When appessauce is served with pork, should it be eaten with the spoon or the fork?

A. Better to use the fork.

Q. My boy friend has asked me to go to a wedding with him, to which I have not been invited. Would this be all right?

A. If the wedding is to be in a church, you may go without an invitation. But you may not go to the reception following the wedding without an invitation.

PILGRIMS LIVE ON IN MANY LANDS

Without the helping hand of those first Americans — the Wampanoag Indians of Massachusetts — the Pilgrim Fathers might never have survived the bleak New England winter to celebrate their first Thanksgiving.

Today, 350 years later, millions throughout the world face the same hardships that plagued the Mayflower Pilgrims: hunger, disease and inadequate protection against hostile elements. This boy and his infant brother, for instance, live in the high Andes — the icebox of otherwise tropical Ecuador. Winds from the mountain peaks, snow-capped year-round, chill even in summer.

To relieve their plight, Catholic Relief Services this year is conducting its 23rd annual campaign to collect clothing for the needy in Ecuador and over 70 other underdeveloped countries. By taking your used but serviceable clothes and bedding to your nearest Catholic church during November, you can join in narrowing the gap between affluence and poverty.

Your professional hairdresser knows the answer...

Was haircoloring first done in Africa?

Centuries ago in Africa (before it was explored by Europeans) beautiful black women used herbs and other ingredients to change the color of their hair. It was one way to complement their dark rich complexions... to accent their natural warmth and beauty. Whether or not Africans were the first to use this method, no one is sure. Yet, they are among the first in terms of recorded history to go through the then-tedious process of coloring their hair.

Today changing your haircolor can be as quick and as brief as a visit to your professional hairdresser. That's because many professional hairdressers use Miss Clairol® Hair Color to lighten hair, to make slight color changes and to cover gray. Hairdressing experts know that exotic blacks and browns are generally gorgeous for darker skin tones. Golden or red shades are stunning for lighter tan complexions.

Today black pride brings you closer to the cultural ways of your African heritage. Haircoloring is a part of black history too. Ask your professional hairdresser about changing your hair color with Miss Clairol... and be more beautiful than you already are.

Decision Legal But
Misses the Point

The Iowa Supreme court, in a decision handed down last week, held that the Civil Rights Commission exceeded its statutory authority when it awarded damages in favor of an employer whose business was damaged by labor union which was found to have practiced racial discrimination against the employer whose work had been stopped.

The Bystander has no quarrel with the decision realizing that the measure is a creature of the legislature and is limited by what is described in the law.

Prior to the creation of the Civil Rights Commission, the old law (which was repealed) provided criminal penalties which when enforced hit the pocket book of the offenders. The penalty served to break up racial discrimination in places of public accommodations in Des Moines.

The penalties are also responsible for breaking up racial discrimination over the country.

The opinion contained the following sentence: "A judgment for the employer does not affirmatively make Negroes more welcome in local 67."

It should have been left out for it demonstrates that the author is not acquainted with the struggle of Negroes for their rights. Practically all have come because penal law in cities, states and in the federal government. Even with the 14th Amendment, which, while only recently enforced more fully, fines and other penalties have been a part of their provisions. He does not understand that Negroes are not trying to make people love or make them more welcome when they seek the enforcement of their civil rights. And neither do they wish white people who attempt to help him penalized.

As Alvin Hayes, secretary of the commission said, "Victims of civil rights violations can have their cases brought in federal courts and not only recover damages but attorney fees also."

The opinion tells the commission what it's authority is. They need it in carrying out the intention of the law - stop racial injustices.

Exceptions and Hardship Cases
Hurt Phase II

The second phase of President Nixon's program to control inflation is in operation. Undoubtedly the first phase did some good in demonstrating to the people that their interest is uppermost in the effort to control inflation.

When any law or regulation contains exceptions it becomes difficult to enforce. Phase I should have stopped everything where it stood at the time it began for the more hardship cases agreed to more will apply to be excepted.

Those applicants for exceptions are powerful groups which have used their strength not only to squeeze every advantage to their cause in many cases, penalized the public.

So far managers have resisted much of this pressure. They should hold fast against unreasonable demands.

Conservation Commission Could Improve Pheasant Population

Saturday, November 11th began the annual pheasant season which will continue until January 2nd. This is a long season as the commission feels that the pheasant population warrants it.

With this we do not agree. Hunters interviewed, who have been in the Iowa fields for many years find that a fair population prevails in a few areas but don't have the heavily populated ones that existed prior to the 1940 season.

A great difficulty with the pheasant population is the matter of cover. At one time drain ditches, hedges and highways provided excellent cover. Today farmers have pretty well eliminated all this. So far the commission has done little to correct the problem.

An agriculture director of a Minneapolis radio station made the suggestion that lands controlled by the United States government soil banks should be used to develop nesting and habitats for pheasants and other game of that type. It would further improve the land, hold the water and prevent excessive soil erosion.

The suggestion is a good one which the Iowa conservation commission should well explore.

Health for All

INVISIBLE POLLUTION

Pollution can be seen almost everywhere. But invisible pollution may be an even greater menace.

Pollution - control laws are directed at offenders that can be easily detected, but offenders may be making matters worse by going invisible, says Vincent J. Schaefer, director of the Atmospheric Sciences Research Center, State University of New York at Albany.

One method to cut down on visible pollution in industries, for example, is to dilute the escaping pollutants with cleaner air to make the particles smaller and unseen. The role that small invisible particles may play in health is not at all clear. But, according to research at the center, it is easy to show that the majority of small particles that reach the lungs remain there.

Schaefer also warns that buses and cars should not be allowed to idle for more than a few minutes. The exhaust from an idling car is often not visible, but if a plastic bag is held to catch the exhaust, the bag collects 100 trillion particles per second.

According to Schaefer, his testing shows that the air in many motel and hotel rooms is cleaner than the outside air in cities or along highways. This is especially true if there is a refrigeration - type air conditioner in the room, or if the air comes from a central control.

Find out about air pollution and how to fight it more effectively. Check with your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association, which is now conducting its Christmas Seal Campaign. It's a matter of life and breath.

EMPHYSEMA ON THE RISE

In Iowa, compared to 1959, emphysema deaths doubled by 1963 and increased 326 percent by 1967, according to the Bureau of Vital Statistics, Iowa State Department of Health.

There are many respiratory cripples in Iowa, and emphysema disability is difficult to picture statistically. According to a recent report of the Iowa Thoracic Society, hospital admissions for emphysema in 1969 totalled 4,460. Such a survey, of course, does not

ON THE SPORTS SCENE

IOWA TRIED AGAIN

Indiana had lost three hard luck football games, and from the way things started out at Iowa City Saturday, it looked as if they were about to drop another one, and not by a close score. But one had to feel that the law of averages was with the Hoosiers. After that opening score on a long run, the Hawks couldn't get close again. In one drive, they had fourth down and about a yard and a half. Most of the grandstand quarterbacks thought they should go for it, and your's truly thought that it was probably a swell spot for a fake placekick. But Iowa didn't fake it. They kicked and the kicker missed the shot.

Then there was that long pass that probably never will be forgotten by fans, as if Triplet were the only pass receiver in history to drop a pass. Usually when that happens, the receiver takes his eyes off the ball for the tiniest fraction of a second. We would guess that Triplet did so while trying to figure where he was on the field and which way he was going to cut after he caught the thing. Well, people who are supposed to know what it is all about say that if one doesn't actually see that ball hit his hands, he won't hold it, no matter who he is, whether he be a leading pro or a little leaguer.

But the game was surprisingly well played and hard hitting. There were very few fumbles. The two that Indiana had bounced right back up into the hands of the fumbler. Iowa fumbled only once and recovered that one. If one didn't know better, he might have thought he was watching a battle for the Big Ten title. It was that closely contested reveal the magnitude of the problem in the total population.

Emphysema is the second most common cause of disability among those entitled to social security benefits. (The leading cause is heart disease, while pulmonary TB ranks 6th.) The person with emphysema is generally on disability payments for the remainder of his or her lifetime.

and well played. But now comes Illinois, and Iowa really wants this one. Maybe the Illini are over due for a spill. They have won four straight, and really got lucky with Indiana. Perhaps the Hawks can get the law of averages on their side for once.

Iowa State

Maybe Iowa U should have played Iowa State this year or next year, because it looks like Johnny Majors is going to build a football power at the Cyclone school. And the longer things go, the tougher Iowa State will get. They had a good freshman club, and will maybe have a couple of red shirts for next year, to improve on this year's fine mark. No matter what they do, Iowa State has to finish the year on a winning note for the whole season.

Last week the fellows took apart what was supposed to be a tough Missouri defense, scoring more points than any ball club has yet. One can't help but wonder how much rougher they would have been with Moses in there this year. Maybe if the Nebraska and Oklahoma games had been spaced a little different, one of those teams might have gotten all they wanted before the game was over.

The Cyclones looked good, and seemed to show that they are well coached. A while back, we said that Drake just might have the best ball club in the state. Well, now we give the honor to Iowa State.

Drake Bulldogs

Drake got back on the winning track, and will have a good balance on the ledger, winning more games than they lost. They wanted a bowl bid, and they could still get it, but the odds are very heavy against them. We forgot where they finished in the Valley, but we are sure they didn't win it, because Louisville did that. But, seriously, the Bulldogs are enjoying a fine season, and will have a respectable mark.

High School

Our high schools finished the season, and nobody could agree on who was number one in the state. One poll gave it to East Waterloo, and the other handed it to Heelan of Sioux City on the strength of their win over Dowling. Maybe folks are just a wee bit tired of seeing the Trojans up there so often. And Phil Hamman made the second all State Team. Thought sure he would rate first team honors. Those other fellows must really be tough. Sure would like to see them.

Now that our travels to football games are over, we would like to extend our thanks to the Clarke family of Cedar Rapids for being our host whenever we showed up after each Iowa game. A couple of times we had other company in the presence of some poker players who were either afraid to go home, or were lost, for they were still battling when we hit the road for home. But we enjoyed our stay each time and are really thankful for it.

Personalized Christmas
Gifts Urged for Servicemen

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 18, 1971 — For a serviceman overseas, Christmas is just about the loneliest time of the year. But by using a little personal touch in selecting his Christmas gift, the American Red Cross says, you may provide the spark to cheer his holiday and remind him that he is not forgotten by the folks back home.

Represented at every major military installation overseas and many of the smaller ones, the Red Cross has found that servicemen want meaningful gifts that are reminiscent of home and affection.

Snapshots of family and friends, tapes of familiar voices with personal messages and favorite foods are some of the items proposed. Current musical and comedy records or tapes, paperback books, special - interest magazines, soap bars on ropes and plastic picture or identification holders are possibilities.
