adam clayton powell dies

Adam Clayton Powell

Adam Clayton Powell, flamboyant former Congressman died Tuesday in a Miami Fla. hospital following heart surgery. He was 63.

The former representative became the first eastern black to be elected to congress in 1945. As chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee he claimed pushing through 56 of the most progressive bills during the John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson administrations.

Powell, known for crossing party lines and articulateness in speaking was voted out of Congress in 1967 for misuse of funds and was re-elected in 1968 but was made to pay a $25,000 fine and give up his seniority.

He lost a six man democratic primary by a scant 150 votes in which his health was a factor in 1969.

He was first married to a dancer, Isabel Washington in 1933 but was divorced 12 years later when he wed a pianist, Hazel Scott who bore his first son.

Divorced again in 1960, he married a Puerto Rican divorcee Yvette Diago Fiore. She also bore him a son and they became estranged several years later.

Powell was born in November of 1908 in New Haven Conn. but his family moved to New York six months later. He graduated from Colgate in 1930 and received a master's degree from Columbia, became pastor of his father's church in 1936.

angela's defense opens

SAN JOSE, Cal.—Avowed Communist Angela Davis labelled allegations by prosecutor Albert Harris that "simple human passion" for Soledad brother George Jackson drove her to become a part of the murder-kidnap plot to free him as "utterly fantastic, utterly absurd."

The 28-year-old former UCLA assistant professor, acting as her own attorney, told the 12 jurors at the murder-kidnap trial, the prosecutor in his opening argument had "transformed the character of this case."

"He would have you believe that lurking behind my stony appearance are sinister emotions and passions that know no bounds," she told the eight-woman and four-man jury. "That is utterly fantastic, utterly absurd. Yet it is understandable that Mr. Harris would try to take advantage of the fact that I am a woman. Women are supposed to act in passion. This is an example of male chauvinism."

Miss Davis maintained an even tone throughout her address to the jury which rose only when she made references to the Soledad Brothers and Jonathon Jackson.

Earlier, the prosecutor had told the jury Miss Davis had been driven by an uncontrollable passion for Jackson to take part in the attempted breakout at the Marin County courthouse on Aug. 7, 1970.

The prosecutor said Miss Davis' only reason for participating in the abortive attempt was to ransom the freedom of George Jackson. Four people died in the attempt.

In his opening statement, Harris revealed most of the circumstantial evidence the state has tying Miss Davis to the seizure of hostages from the courtroom that ended in the slaying of a judge. He also said letters between the black militant and Jackson, who was killed in August in an alleged prison break attempt, would show that she deeply was in love and that on one occasion they met in a holding cell and had a "close, passionate and physical involvement."

Miss Davis refuted Harris' allegations one-by-one in her hour and twenty-minute statement.

*To charges that she purchased hundreds of rounds of ammunition for criminal purposes: She said she had developed a hobby of sport shooting over the years and the ammunition "is attributable to the fact I was engaged in this hobby."

*To charges that she furnished guns used in the attempt: "While I did purchase guns, I did nothing to furnish Jonathan or anyone with the guns I purchased." She said they were bought to protect herself from potential violence from extremists who had threatened her.

*To charges that she became a fugitive right after the abortive attempt: She said she dropped out of sight a time later, when she discovered a search was underway for her. "I had reason to fear police violence if I produced myself."

Miss Davis then began to describe her political activities since 1970, which involved not only Jackson, but the Soledad Brothers, Huey Newton, Erika Huggins and Bobby Seale and a number of other "political prisoners."

She also denied that she was involved with Jackson, saying, "Long before I knew George Jackson, I began to lay the basis of the movement to defend the Soledad Brothers. I developed a deep affection for George Jackson and a great compassion for Fleeta Drumgo and John Clutchette, as well as a love for all brothers oppressed behind prison walls."

"These three men were being persecuted not for any crime but because of their militant political stance. We knew our most effective approach had to be by informing people about this case. We sought out those kinds of activities...to involve greater numbers of people, and that they would be freed in that way."

The two surviving Soledad Brothers were found innocent of murder by an all-white jury in San Francisco. Clutchette and Drumgo were returned to San Quentin immediately after the verdict in the most heavily-guarded trial in judicial history in San Francisco.

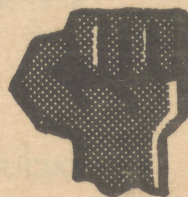

As testimony began in the Davis case, Maria Elena Graham, one of the three jurors taken hostage on Aug. 7, said she heard several times the cry that the Soledad Brothers be freed. She said Jonathan Jackson had cried out, "We are the new liberation, we want the Soledad Brothers free."

As they were getting in the yellow van where the escapees took the hostages, Mrs. Graham said she heard Jackson tell one of them, James McClain, they were going to the San Francisco airport. She was the first prosecution witness.

blacks unite to fight apartheid

Saturday, May 27, thousands of Black people from all over the country will converge on Washington, D.C. to demonstrate our support for African Liberation Day.

Ordinarily, African Liberation Day is recognized and Celebrated each May 25, throughout the African World, but this year because of the increasing severity of the confrontations encountered by Africans all over the world in our efforts to survive and develop, it was decided that this year's African Liberation Day program ought to include some dramatic manifestation not only of the African in America's consciousness of Pan Africanism, but also specifically there ought to be some graphic demonstration of support for the struggles of our brothers and sisters on the continent, in their thrust for self determination.

Particularly in support of the liberation struggles in southern Africa and Guinea Bissau, where armed struggle rages this very moment, to rid the African continent of the most blatant examples of European Colonialism.

The members of the African Liberation Day Mobilization Steering Committee, some of whom are represented at this press conference, and some of the other names you can recognize on the release, felt that it is essential to the movement for total African Liberation and self determination that Africans living in the western hemisphere (since brothers and sisters from the West Indies and Canada, will also be taking part in the Washington tactic) begin to very openly and dramatically support these struggles on the African continent, because reality teaches us that they are part and parcel of our struggles here in the west. Because at base the enemies of Africans in Africa, are the same people who viciously repress Black people all over the world.

Demonstrations Planned

African Liberation Day Committees have been formed in most of the 50 states, the West Indies and Canada, who will coordinate the movement of Black people into Washington to march in support of African Liberation, and also to reveal to the world that Black people are beginning to understand internationally who the enemies of the Black people are.

We will demonstrate in front of the Portuguese Embassy because of the Portuguese continuing nazi repression campaigns and colonialism in Angola, Mozambique, Guinea Bissau; in front of the Rhodesian information offices because of the continued illegality of the Rhodesian white settler minority regime, which has in defiance of all the forces of reason, disregarded the needs of the African majority in Zimbabwe; in front of the South African Embassy because the white settler minority government which rules Africans in Azania is in clear violation of all human rights, and the clearest example of nazi-ism in the world today.

It is to register the overwhelming opposition of most Black people in the world to catatonic statements like Roy Wilkins' that the Steering Committee of the African Liberation Day are bringing Black people to Washington, D.C. not only to show our absolute commitment to the struggles of Africans but by marching in the seat of power of the United States of America to demonstrate as well Black peoples disgust with American foreign policy towards Africa.

This policy showed itself most clearly last week in the movement of Rhodesian chrome ore into the United States, violating sanctions the United Nations placed on the illegal minority white settler government in efforts to get this illegal government to recognize the rights of the African majority in Zimbabwe.

The United States through the machinations of Harry Byrd (W. Va.) and the lobbying of Foote Mineral Company and Union Carbide, have begun to import this chrome ore, though we are asking Black people all over this country to challenge this racist move, just as Black students in Louisiana did last week.

Urges Culture Consciousness

In order for the Black majority on the continent of Africa to move swiftly toward complete liberation and self determination, self respect, self reliance and self defense, it is absolutely necessary for Africans wherever we are, to unify through the political consciousness call Pan Africanism.

America, is one of the chief oppressors of Africans in the world. The foreign policy of America will change toward Africa, when Africans in and around America force that change through the rise of our political consciousness that we are also an African people, by race, culture, history, politics and emotion. The strengthening of Africa is the strengthening of ourselves.

We are urging all Black people, all Africans in the western hemisphere to come together near the government of our oppressors, but paradoxically in a stronghold of Black life, Washington, D.C., to move the struggle to yet higher levels, May 27,

North Of Freedom

By I. Sojourner

"Black Brother, how're you doin'?" Tim Hatrack inquired as he climbed into a chair at Stoney's Barbershop for a haircut. Stoney grunted without looking up and continued to hone a razor. He turned finally to squint with one eye along its edge in stormy silence.

"—always enjoy getting a haircut at Stoney's," Hatrack commented. "My barber makes you feel right at home."

"Hatrack, don't come in here with no mess this mornin'! Ever since that Black National Caucus in Gary, Indiana, first thing in the morning and the last thing at night, all I can hear is George Wallace and them Black radicals against bussing. It ain't ten o'clock yet and all my corns and my head are hurtin'! Them Black radicals have really lost their minds. Since when have Black folks been on the same side of the fence as George Wallace. Will you kindly explain me that?"

"Before you start cuttin', Black Brother, maybe I'd better remind you this ain't George Wallace settin' here in this chair. I'd hate to go out of here with a George Wallace haircut," Hatrack cautioned Stoney.

"O.K. Hatrack, O.K. But I'm serious. How come we can be agreein' with Wallace?"

"The fact is, Stoney, Black people do not all agree that bussing really provides real education for our children. Around here, you don't have to send your kids out of your neighborhood if you don't want to. Some kids don't want to leave their friends in the neighborhood schools. Some parents are forcing them to go just the same. Other parents don't bother. That's probably true in other parts of the country. I ain't no expert, Stoney, but the way I got it figured the bus ain't where it's at. Kids have been bussed for about ten years from small towns to consolidated schools right here in Iowa. There were a few hassles — not about bussing but about which town would have the school. The minute the bus was used to break through racial segregation of children in school systems, all hell broke loose. George Wallace and a whole lot of so-called white liberals discovered that bussing violated the rights of parents and abused their children. You're right about one thing, Black Brother. George Wallace is looking for votes and he ain't particular about how he gets them. Wait 'til his followers come home from the polls and open their notices of increased taxes. George just may have to leave the country, Stoney. I think our folks will get the Black radicals back on the right track in just a little while. I may be wrong but I kinda believe their mistake was talking about the bus instead of what our children are being taught. As near as I can tell, the neighborhood school will be replaced by area schools because modern equipment and materials for education are so expensive they cannot be provided on a neighborhood basis. High taxes getting higher and higher will unite us all, Stoney."

The Barber handed Hatrack a mirror. "—hope you know what you're talking about, ole buddie, 'cause if you don't, I can give you a Wallace shape-up on election day!"

"That looks pretty good, Stoney. Take care of them corns so your head can quit hurtin' in time for you to go vote. Who? How the hell do I know. I get paid tonight. I'll pay you in the morning, Black Brother."

Woodard-I'll Fight Hildreth

"I'm going to give Hildreth a real fight," said Jack Woodard, Republican candidate for Polk County sheriff.

Woodard stated, at a coffee given for him at the Bavarian House recently, that when elected sheriff, he plans to "clean up the sheriff's office."

Former deputy sheriff Woodard said, "I will insist on professionalism in the Polk County sheriff's office. There is no room for politics, favoritism and nepotism in the sheriff's department."

"Polk County needs educated, well-trained law enforcement officers who are not under political pressures and restrictions," said Woodard.

The coffee was an informal meeting attended by some of Woodard's steering committee, party members and supporters.

In a question and answer session, Woodard explained some of his campaign tactics, and said, "I guarantee you the most exciting race for sheriff that Polk County has ever seen."

massey: man of iron

Most of us who work from nine to five every day never get any higher off the ground than stepping up for a curb. But imagine, if you will, being nine or ten stories off the ground, defying gravity by walking along a narrow nine inch steel beam, with nothing separating you and a possible ten story fall but steady nerves, confidence, and air. Quite possibly you and I will never experience this sensation somewhat akin to flying, (as told to me by an ironworker) but this is the drama that unfolds daily in the life of the structural steel worker, or as he is more commonly called, the ironworker.

Ironworkers erect, assemble, and install fabricated metal products mainly in the construction of industrial, commercial, and large residential buildings. Putting up the framework for buildings often calls for working at somewhat hazardous heights. In addition to new construction, ironworkers do some alteration work. For example, they may install steel stairs in, or add window guards to, existing buildings. They also remodel existing structures and do repair work, such as replacement of metal bridge parts. Iron workers comprise four related trades; structural ironworker, metal ironworker, rigger and machine mover, ornamental ironworker, and reinforcing ironworker (rodman). Although these are distinct trades, many craftsmen are skilled in, and do the work of, two or more of these trades.

One member of the ironworkers local union No. 67, is Morris R. Massey, a first year ironworker apprentice. Morris was recruited for the ironworkers union by the Apprenticeship Information Center, along with several other candidates. After meeting the ironworkers basic qualifications, he was called in for an oral interview by the ironworkers Joint Apprenticeship Committee, at which time he was told he had been accepted into their program.

Currently he is working for the F.R. Orr Construction Company, which is out of Denver, Colorado. They are presently building the Low Rent Retirement Home at 11th and Crocker. When completed the home will be nine stories high.

Morris expressed much satisfaction with his chosen craft, and feels he is accomplishing a lifelong goal.

questions & answers on social security

QUESTION: My mother is 67 and gets monthly social security retirement checks. She is healthy and wants to work. Why won't she get all of her benefits if she earns over a certain amount?

ANSWER: Monthly benefits are not intended as an annuity to be paid to a person regardless of the amount of earned income he or she may have. They are intended to partially replace the income your mother or any other worker loses when he or she retires. According to the law, a person under 72 receives monthly payments only if he has fully retired or has limited earnings (usually she will get all of her benefits if she earns more than $1,680 per year). However, many people work part time and still receive all or most of their social security retirement benefits. The people at the Des Moines social security office will be glad to explain how earnings from a part-time job might affect your mother's cash benefits. Of course, your mother is eligible for Medicare protection no matter how she earns.

QUESTION: My sister's 17-year-old daughter died last January following a car accident. She had a social security number and had worked part time at a drive-in for nearly 2 years. Could her mother get a social security death benefit toward her daughter's funeral expenses?

ANSWER: It's possible. A person who dies in his teens or early twenties needs only six quarters of coverage, about 1½ years of work under social security, for a death benefit to be payable. Your sister should call any social security office for more information.

QUESTION: When I got married recently I wrote my new name on my social security card. Should I do anything else?

ANSWER: Yes. You need to fill out a form to change your name on your social security record kept in Baltimore, Maryland. You can get the form from any social security office. After you send it to us, we'll mail you a new social security card showing your new name and the same number you were originally issued.

QUESTION: I was hurt recently in an accident and I've been told that I'll be off work for more than a year. I heard about disability payments from social security and also something about a 6-month waiting period. Should I wait 6 months before applying?

ANSWER: No. Although social security cannot pay disability benefits until the 7th month after the month in which a worker became disabled, you should not wait 6 months to apply. Apply immediately, so your claim can be processed. Then, if you are found eligible for benefits, your first monthly check will not be delayed.

QUESTION: I'm enrolled in both parts of Medicare and I need new dentures. Will Medicare pay for them?

ANSWER: No, Medicare does not cover such items as dentures, hearing aids, or eye glasses.

esophagul cancer rising in blacks

CLEARWATER BEACH, FLORIDA — The occurrence and death rates from cancer of the esophagus or gullet among Afro-Americans has been steadily rising during the last decade it was reported at the American Cancer Society's 14th Annual Science Writers' Seminar.

The gathering of scientists and medical journalists at Clearwater Beach discussed and considered the latest developments in cancer research and management.

Dr. T.W. Roberts, Chief of Pathology at Harlem Hospital of New York City reported that in a ten-year study (1958 - 68) there was a total of 117 documented cases of the disease. Part of the digestive system, the esophagus, is a muscular canal about ten inches long extending from the throat to the stomach through which food passes.

"During this period there was a total of 227,231 hospital discharges showing an approximate hospital population incidence of 51 per 100,000", according to Dr. Roberts and his associates.

Connection with Heavy Drinking Seen

U.S. Public Health Service figures over a 40-year span shows the non-white esophageal cancer death rate has jumped from 1.0 per 100,000 in 1930 to 6.7 in 1968.

Of the Harlem Hospital patients 85% were men. Except two males who were in the 30 - 39 year group, the patients were from 40 to the 80 - 89 year age group. Among males 40% were in the 50 - 59 year age group and 33% were between 60 - 69 years.

The women patients were younger with 33% in the 40 - 49 year group and 44% were among the 50 - 59 year olds.

Some connection between heavy drinking and the disease was indicated Dr. Roberts said, since 80% of 45 patients used alcohol were "heavy drinkers". There was also "a possible direct relationship between syphilis" and cancer of the gullet. This was indicated Dr. Roberts said, when during the period studied the venereal disease among all patients at the hospital varied between 15% and 28% yearly, while it was either present or past treatment was revealed among 38% of 77 of those with esophageal cancer.

Diet, Culture Significant

These findings were similar to those reported recently by investigators at the almost exclusively black Freedmen's Hospital of Washington, D.C. There a 20-year retrospective study reflected the USPHS figures on the rise of esophageal cancer among non-white males and females (more than 95% Negro).

Clearly Dr. Roberts commented "there is some connection between the low economic status of these patients and their condition". It might be reflected he surmised, "in certain dietary or cultural patterns but the inference is definite".

17 million into minority-owned banks

In an effort to expand the lending power of minority-owned commercial banks, the Office of Economic Opportunity has stimulated additional deposits of $17 million, Phillip V. Sanchez, National OEO Director, announced this week.

As of last December 31, OEO had surpassed a $10 million goal pledged by OEO to the Administration as part of a government-wide effort to expand deposits in minority-operated banks, Sanchez said.

"I am pleased," Sanchez said, "that OEO has exceeded its goal. We were successful because OEO Regional and Headquarters offices urged agency grantees, including Community Action Agencies, to assign funds whenever possible to minority-operated banks."

SHAW, Miss. — NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund attorneys were victorious in the Hawkins v. Town of Shaw case.

The January 1971 decision by three Fifth Circuit panel judges that the town of Shaw, Mississippi, must provide municipal services on a racially equal basis to its black and white residents, was upheld by all 16 judges of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

Legal Defense Fund Director - Counsel, Jack Greenberg indicated that "LDF plans to sue other cities, large and small, North and South, for municipal failures generally, and particularly in the areas of police protection, fire protection, and garbage collection." Greenberg explained that "the Legal Defense Fund has been awaiting this decision, in order to launch similar campaigns throughout the country."

Jonathan Shapiro, one of the LDF attorneys handling the case stated that, "the affirmance of the original panel decision in the case by all sixteen judges adds immeasurably to the significance of that decision. Because of the agreement of all the judges, the decision will unquestionably be binding in all of the deep Southern States over which the Fifth Circuit has jurisdiction."

"The message is now clear to cities and towns throughout the South and hopefully throughout the nation; that the federal courts will no longer tolerate any inequality in the provision of municipal services to black and minority group citizens."

mass transit grants to black colleges

Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe announced that three predominantly black colleges are among the 33 American colleges and universities receiving grants for research and training in urban transportation.

The colleges, sharing in the University Grant Program of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) for the third consecutive year, are:

Atlanta University, Atlanta, Georgia — $113,210; North Carolina A&T College, Greensboro, North Carolina — $53,810; Southern University, Baton Rouge, Louisiana — $52,000.

"I am pleased with the encouraging report that I have received concerning the programs developed by the three schools," Secretary Volpe said.

"Each of the institutions has worked creatively toward finding a solution to the transit problems in their respective communities," Secretary Volpe said.

"The reported enthusiasm, the involvement and the commitment of the students enrolled in the program to work on the problems of transportation is inspiring. This spirit indicates that our investment in the future through the college grant programs is well spent."

RATED "G" pollution and conservation control in the home

By Ann Kastler

You can stop pollution and help conserve our natural resources. Be a pollution watchdog in your home.

In your cooking, use the lowest flame that will do the job and preheat your oven only about 10 minutes. This will help to conserve the fuel you are using. Also remember to cover saucepans when you have them on the burners. That helps the food cook faster, and saves on the natural gas. Above all, do not try to heat the kitchen with the oven—it was not designed for that.

If you fix a leaky faucet, you are helping to conserve water—another of our natural resources. And, you can cut down on the amount of water you use by not running the dishwasher until you have a full load, and the same goes for your clothes washer.

Noise Pollution Harmful

The greatest source of pollution in our home is noise pollution. Think about everything in your home that makes noise when it operates. If that noise or unwanted sound gets too loud it can have harmful effects, both physical and psychological. Experts say that sometimes when we cut ourselves with a knife or fall off a step—stool it may have been the direct result of noise pollution.

The kitchen can be considered the noisiest room in the house. Some ways to cut down that noise is to make sure all appliances are level so they can't wobble. Get a few rubber kitchen mats and use them in the sink and on counter tops to absorb noise from pots, pans and dishes. Also, some kitchen exhaust fans can be very noisy, especially if the baldes are coated with grease and dust.

In other parts of the house draperies, carpeting and other sound absorbing materials will help reduce the amount of noise. Covering the stairs with rubber mats will take care of a lot of the clatter made by people running up and down. Use silent electric wall switches and turn down the volume on the telephone if you don't need it to ring all over the house.

Leave Windows Closed To keep outside doors, storm doors and screen doors from slamming, equip them with a mechanical closer. Rubber stops can be used on interior doors. Also you can keep a lot of racket out of the house by leaving windows closed and weather stripping them. Any window not needed for ventilation will be more sound-resistant if the storm window is left in place all year.

There are many other ways you can help stop pollution and conserve our natural resources. Let's see what you and your family can do to help clean up and preserve our natural resources.

the fine print

By Mike Morrow

Four years ago there was a group of blacks that were politically organized and had specific goals for the Black community.

The Black Panthers with raised, clenched fists, chanting "Power to the people" and other slogans faced the American people.

The factor that disturbed people the most, both black and white, were the rifles.

But to the people that listened instead of reacting towards the Panthers heard something that hadn't been heard since the days of Marcus Garvey.

Self identity, free breakfast programs and day care centers. More importantly, organizing the community politically was what the listener heard.

Just now are people realizing that the Panthers' goals are being attained.

The new direction they are taking makes people ask: aren't the Panthers becoming peaceful?

I hardly think so—you could say the Panthers are into Phase II—changing the mind of the community to create an attitude far more devastating to the system than it realizes.

I always thought the Chicago police were more trigger-happy than anyone else. Someone took the time to look into it and sure enough they agreed with me.

The study of New York, Los Angeles, Detroit, and Philadelphia was conducted by Northwestern University. It concluded that blacks were six times more likely to be killed by Chicago police than anyone else in the world.

Chicago seems to be like an old western movie, you know—the only good Afro-American is a dead one.

The Congressional Black Caucus is on ole Mista' Nixon again. This time it's the economy. Mainly, the case is: poor people can't get a raise to cope with rising prices and businesses can't get a ceiling on profits.

If we could only trade places; but what Hart

Shaftner and Marx suited businessman would want my Levis' workpants? Anyway with prices going up I guess there'll be more vegetarian nudists around.

Pele, most famous athlete in the history of sports, will assume a leading role in a worldwide Pepsi-Cola youth soccer program, according to a joint announcement today by the star and Peter K. Warren, president of PepsiCo International, which markets soft drink products in more than 120 countries.

As part of the agreement signed in Sao Paulo this morning, Pele will head a program whose aim will be "service to youth through a game played in 115 countries of the world."

"Our products are bottled and enjoyed in every nation where soccer is played," Mr. Warren stated, "and our more than 1,000 bottlers all over the world are all deeply involved in the lives of their communities — especially with the health and welfare of young people."

"We are therefore immensely proud, on their behalf, to announce our association with an international hero of young people, the great Pele."

Welcomes Opportunity

According to Pele, "clearly, no athlete can hope to compete successfully forever — but every athlete hopes to remain connected with the sport he loves throughout his lifetime."

"I have always wanted to work with young athletes, and I welcome this opportunity Pepsi-Cola is giving me to share my experience the way older players helped me in my own early years."

He described Pepsi-Cola's program as "modest, but serious," with features that can be of real benefit to large numbers of young people.

Clinics Clubs Set

Its initial elements, Pele said, would include soccer clinics conducted by his personal physical education instructor, Professor Julio Mazzei; a series of instructional films in which the star will appear; and a communications program directed at young men in schools and youth clubs.

A further aim of the program, he said, will be the

With Allen Ashby

A couple of recent events have made me think. First, there was the article blasting the cage officiating in the city by a fellow I know pretty well. And do you know he had a gripe coming, but, shucks, fellah, you haven't lived as many years as I have been watching us get that treatment.

In the days when there was hardly ever more than one black boy on one of the teams, it was just about open season on us. I would guess that North High had the first real team of Brothers. Back in my kid days the Polar Bears had a football club of five brethren, four Irishmen, one Jewish fellow and an Italian. Folks who have followed North High teams say that this is perhaps the greatest gridiron team in North High history.

East never had more than one or two Blacks until Mike Augustine took over as head coach, and he had so many sports then

brothers that we quit trying to keep track of them. Then North, under Billy Sherman, Johnny Johnson, and a couple of others had their share in later years. Then there were a couple of coaches who sort of went for the quota system. Old West High, later to become Tech, had a boast for years that no black boy could make their team or finish a game against them. Then the roof fell in. A little East halfback not only finished the game against one of the better West teams, but gained more ground than the entire West team put together.

Then, a year later, this North machine of many races tromped West, and the next two years literally ran over them. Then, to add insult to injury, a husky fellow who had quite a rep as an amateur boxer became the first brother to make that ball club at West. He played tackle, because that was where he could use his knowledge of boxing and did.

When Roosevelt was put into city competition, there was no black out there until Big Jim Thompson made it at end, and they probably wished he hadn't.

But we had our problems. There was the matter of not being allowed to stay in hotels in certain towns (yes, in Iowa). Sometimes blacks couldn't eat in places with the rest of the team. Coach Harry Bell took a real stand on this one day at one of our northern towns. When his team was denied the right to eat, Bell simply loaded up the team and headed for home. As I got the story word got around, and amends were soon made. The late Mr. Bell was quite a man because that was in the early twenties. I could go on like this for hours and reams of paper, but it would just raise my ancient blood pressure.

It was always open season on us in any basketball or football game. In my playing days, people stood around the sidelines, and you had more than a little trouble with them when you got near the sidelines. Then there was nothing to keep them from taking a shot at you on the sideline after the play was over, whether it be blocking or tackling.

This was football, and in basketball you had 4 fouls called on you pretty quick if you were supposed to be good. So I made it a policy that whenever I fouled a guy, everybody in the house knew. No need for the ref to blow his whistle. Better to try to help the poor devil up to the foul line. Needless to say, I didn't play too much, but people began to avoid me on the court, and I lasted fairly well in some games.

Whenever there were more than one of the brethren on a basketball team, they had trouble, and never thought they got what was due them. The officials always claimed that they did, so who would you believe? So, fellow, about all you did was bring some memories of days that I had never really forgotten, and make me relive some of them again.

In consideration of the working mothers on your guest list, try not to give your party on a Sunday—when they might well prefer... being home with the kids.

It's a good idea to send out all your invitations at the same time. Otherwise, a "late receiver" might think he was just an "afterthought."

Keep a plastic bag full of ice cubes in your freezer compartment—to accommodate unexpected guests... who like their drinks on the rocks.

Here's a tip from the folks who make Johnnie Walker Red Label, the world's largest selling Scotch: You can get about 20 more drops out of an "empty" bottle of whisky by placing it under hot, scalding water.

The best way to plan a party is with pencil and paper. No matter how good your memory is—be sure to write down... what has to be done.

22 christian martyrs became first black saints

No Black man was admitted to sainthood by the Catholic church until 1920 some 50 years ago. But in that year 22 were canonized as a group, according to facts uncovered by author Irving Wallace during 10 years of research for his new Simon and Schuster novel, "The Word."

This first group of Black saints were Christians who were burned alive or tortured to death by a Ugandan king in 1888, Wallace reports. Their sainthood was established 38 years after their deaths through papal decree.

Because the lands where Christ walked and talked were in Africa, Wallace believes Blacks were more involved with Christ and the founding of the Christian religion than most historians and scholars have reported.

"The Word" Plausible For example, many of the references which Wallace studied describe Simon of Cyrene, who helped Jesus carry the cross to the place of execution. Simon was a Black born in Africa.

Wallace's "The Word", which may become the biggest seller so far in the career of this best - selling author, is a suspenseful, action - filled account of the dramatic events which follow discovery of a missing piece of gospel which proves that Christ actually lived for 19 years after His crucifixion. Although fictional, the extensive research Wallace put into his project gives it the ring of plausibility.

To prepare "The Word", Wallace purchased 178 books, some of them quite rare, and consulted over 300 additional books in various libraries, some housed in special archives in Europe, from which he had passages translated. In addition, he accumulated more than 3,500 newspaper and magazine clippings for reference purposes.

70,000 Books on Christ

"To give you an idea of the task," Wallace says, "there have been 70,000 biographies of Jesus, alone, written and published in the last 100 years. Can you imagine that — 70,000 biographies devoted to a person who many people deny ever existed?"

Perhaps one reason for the extensive writings about Christ, Wallace suggests, is that Christianity is the world's most popular religion, with 1,000,000,000 followers. There are 600 million Catholics and 325 million Protestants. The second most popular religious faith is the Muslims' Islam, with 475,000,000 followers.

Wallace also learned that Pontius Pilate is worshipped by one Christian sect. The 10 million members of the Coptic Church of Ethiopia believe that Pilate repented his sin of having sentenced Jesus to death and became a convert to Christianity and celebrated at a special annual holiday feast.

waterloo citizens declare war on drugs

The Citizens' Committee of East Waterloo, Inc., in a special community meeting March 18 expressed support for the Eastside Ministerial Fellowship in their efforts to stamp out illegal use of drugs in Waterloo.

We commend the Eastside Ministerial Fellowship for their courage to take the first step. We, the Citizens' Committee of East Waterloo, Inc., join them. We can only reiterate that (1) there are no untouchable person or persons and (2) all persons of like mind must join in the crusade for the advancement and well being of our community.

We are wholeheartedly behind this effort and share in the responsibility in ridding our community of this tragic problem.

The following is a statement by the Eastside Ministerial Fellowship of Waterloo:

We take this opportunity to inform the city of Waterloo; and in particular our community that we will no longer sit silently by, while the health and well-being of the youth of our community is threatened by the damnable drug traffic that exists.

Too many of our promising young men and women are committing senseless robberies, shoplifting, petty thievery and serving long prison terms which can, in the main, be traced to their need for drugs. Further we are incensed over the fact that our community has suffered two deaths in recent weeks as a result of the use of illicit drugs and related substances.

We, the members of this Ministerial Fellowship, share in the responsibility of these tragic deaths. For there is an implied moral contractual agreement that each child born into our community will be protected from those who would convert their health, well-being and lives into cash. At our last meeting we decided by unanimous vote to help the users and pushers of drugs.

We therefore urged:

1. That all persons who are dealing and pushing narcotics, illicit drugs and related substances voluntarily get out of the business! For all those who fail to do so, we shall use all the power at our command to drive them out of business even if it means their going to jail.

2. That our law enforcement agencies become more diligent and productive in cracking down on this business on the eastside. (There are no untouchable person or persons in our community as far as criminal acts are concerned and especially those who deal in the drug traffic.

3. That our judicial system apply the full extent of the law to the dealers and pushers rather than to the users.

4. That persons having information as to the names of the dealers in our community confidentially pass this information on to us, so that we may inform the proper law enforcement agency.

5. That all persons in our community of like mind join with us in this crusade for the advancement and well being of our youth.

6. That proper and adequate recreational facilities be provided for the youth of our community whether from public or private funds.

We shall commence this program as of now and we shall see it through.

AT LAST A PRESIDENT WHO WILL BARGAIN..?

bussing big in wallace quest for presidency

WASHINGTON — Some of George Wallace's best friends rode school buses.

In the days when George and his pals went to school in the late twenties and early thirties it was a convenient way for hundreds of children to get from their homes in rural Barbour County, Alabama, to the four schools in Clon.

It was also a handy vehicle for slipping white children through their neighborhood schoolyard to an all-white school and for sending black children through their neighborhood schoolyard to an all-black school.

This was before the neighborhood school became sacred. It was called segregation. They don't do that anymore in Barbour County, Alabama, because the Federal courts caught up with the segregationists there.

They still bus children all over the county Wallace grew up in because that little ol' yellow school bus, just like the one that angry white parents buried a few weeks ago to protest busing in Kentucky, is a tool to insure that children receive a decent education regardless of race.

Blasts Ultra-liberals

Wallace knows this. He also knows that there are votes to be counted among distraught parents upset because their children are being bused to those "inferior black schools" which decades of segregation and an unfair distribution of public school moneys helped to perpetuate.

"You elect me on March 14 and they are going to end busing in this country," Wallace told a crowd of cheering Jaycees just before the Florida election. Often leading his audience to flights of whistling and foot-stomping, the governor then gets in his licks at the "ultra-liberals" and the "social schemers" responsible for such "disasters" as "forced busing."

"I like to watch them squirm," Wallace says of his rival Democrats. To their credit, many of the candidates for the Democratic nomination haven't squirmed. The few who have, did so with flair, in public.

The real loss has been serious national debate on issues that threaten the survival of the country. These are the problems of unemployment, inadequate housing, inflation, war and the right of every child to a decent education, a point obscured by the emotionally-charged issue of busing.

White Middle Class Support

Wallace's appeal is not without its contradictions. A recent study made by a team of university professors revealed that his support in three Northern cities was not centered, as many believe, among lower income whites.

Rather, it was among whites of medium income and limited education that he scored highest. These are families with incomes of between $7,500 to $10,000,

letter to the editor

The time has come for a report to the Model Cities community by the advisory board of Police Community Service Aides Program. A meeting will be set up for about the first week in May. The advisory board members will share their experiences and listen to those in the community who wish to be heard in support of or against the use of community service aides.

Much credit is due those aides who have stayed at their posts in spite of attacks that have been made against this new experiment in police community relations. There are several members of the advisory board who have stayed with the program through thick and thin in support of the aides. All of the present members are agreed that now is the time to be heard and to receive all points of view. It is also time for more community organizations to be represented on the advisory board. The Police-Community Service Aide Program is responsible to the Model Cities community for evaluation and support. Notice of the meeting will be given well in advance.

AT LAST A PRESIDENT WHO WILL BARGAIN.?

bussing big in wallace quest for presidency

WASHINGTON — Some of George Wallace's best friends rode school buses.

In the days when George and his pals went to school in the late twenties and early thirties it was a convenient way for hundreds of children to get from their homes in rural Barbour County, Alabama, to the four schools in Clio.

It was also a handy vehicle for slipping white children through their neighborhood schoolyard to an all-white school and for sending black children through their neighborhood schoolyard to an all-black school.

This was before the neighborhood school became sacred. It was called segregation. They don't do that anymore in Barbour County, Alabama, because the Federal courts caught up with the segregationists there.

They still bus children all over the county Wallace grew up in because that little ol' yellow school bus, just like the one that angry white parents buried a few weeks ago to protest busing in Kentucky, is a tool to insure that children receive a decent education regardless of race.

Blasts Ultra-liberals

Wallace knows this. He also knows that there are votes to be counted among distraught parents upset because their children are being bused to those "inferior black schools" which decades of segregation and an unfair distribution of public school moneys helped to perpetuate.

"You elect me on March 14 and they are going to end busing in this country," Wallace told a crowd of cheering Jaycees just before the Florida election. Often leading his audience to flights of whistling and foot-stomping, the governor then gets in his licks at the "ultra-liberals" and the "social schemers" responsible for such "disasters" as "forced busing."

"I like to watch them squirm," Wallace says of his rival Democrats. To their credit, many of the candidates for the Democratic nomination haven't squirmed. The few who have, did so with flair, in public.

The real loss has been serious national debate on issues that threaten the survival of the country. These are the problems of unemployment, inadequate housing, inflation, war and the right of every child to a decent education, a point obscured by the emotionally-charged issue of busing.

White Middle Class Support

Wallace's appeal is not without its contradictions. A recent study made by a team of university professors revealed that his support in three Northern cities was not centered, as many believe, among lower income whites.

Rather, it was among whites of medium income and limited education that he scored highest. These are families with incomes of between $7,500 to $10,000.

letter to the editor

The time has come for a report to the Model Cities community by the advisory board of Police Community Service Aides Program. A meeting will be set up for about the first week in May. The advisory board members will share their experiences and listen to those in the community who wish to be heard in support of or against the use of community service aides.

Much credit is due those aides who have stayed at their posts in spite of attacks that have been made against this new experiment in police community relations. There are several members of the advisory board who have stayed with the program through thick and thin in support of the aides. All of the present members are agreed that now is the time to be heard and to receive all points of view. It is also time for more community organizations to be represented on the advisory board. The Police-Community Service Aide Program is responsible to the Model Cities community for evaluation and support. Notice of the meeting will be given well in advance.

thousands pay tribute to black business promoter

Some 2,000 minority citizens from all over the nation joined Black business leaders last week end in paying tribute to former Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans at an appreciation dinner at the Sheraton Park Hotel.

The top Black and other minority businessmen and government executives joined with key industrial leaders in the testimonial dinner for Stans for his efforts to aid and promote Black enterprise and minority entrepreneurship.

Speaker after speaker, including John Jenkins, Director of the Office of Minority Business Development, Senator Edward Brooke; Abraham Venable, Director of Urban Affairs for General Motors, and Berkeley Burrell, President of the National Business League, lauded Stans for his efforts to aid Black and minority businesses. The dinner was sponsored by the National Business League, in cooperation with a number of other national Black and other minority groups involved in providing technical assistance to minority enterprises.

'Was Hard Worker'
—Venable

"I remember many nights leaving the Commerce Department at midnight and seeing the lights still on in Mr. Stans' office," said

Venable, former OMBE Director. "He made me feel guilty for leaving so early," the former government worker added.

Darwin Bolden, Executive Director, Interracial Council for Business Opportunity, who had been critical of Stans earlier, commended the former Secretary as a "man who developed strong commitment for the cause of helping minority businessmen to become a part of the economic mainstream of American life."

Dr. Leon Sullivan, Founder - Director of Opportunities Industrialization Centers, said Stans had done more provide new resources to assist minority businesses.

Made 'Soul Brother'

Other speakers praising Stans for his efforts included Benjamin Fernandez of the Spanish speaking community, attorney Hobart

Taylor, and W. W. Keeler, an Oklahoma Indian who is president of the Phillips Petroleum Co. Burrell described Keeler as "just a poor country Indian with a $200 billion company."
