KENNEDY-MILLS TICKET

In The Hot Box

Here Are The Facts

A concerned group of Des Moines Black citizens requested of the Program Director of KYNA, Soul Radio, that the Black National Anthem be played each morning and evening when signing on and signing off. This request was flatly denied. Some white people do not yet understand that our music is our soul and heart. It is not to be manipulated, mutilated or mangled by them. Your reactions are necessary because Radio Station KYNA is not for my edification; it does not belong to me or that Program Director or any stockholder. The ultimate owner of any radio or television is you the community; it purports to serve. If you think the Black National Anthem is worth playing at sign on and sign off, voice your opinion by calling KYNA at 244-8109.

Judges Face Impeachment On Busing Issue: Nixon Backs Amendment

WASHINGTON — (NBNS) — Federal court judges face the possibility of impeachment if they try to carry out the provisions of President Nixon's busing moratorium, former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg predicts.

Goldberg told the House Judiciary subcommittee hearing testimony on the President's busing moratorium and Equal Education bills that they restrict a court's power to order busing to achieve desegregation and are unconstitutional. He said a proposed constitutional amendment to ban forced busing would put a halt to desegregation as well.

"It (the moratorium bill) would be a cause for impeachment if a federal judge tried to follow the order of the legislation," Goldberg said. "The judge would violate the constitutional provisions for separation of powers of government and as we know all judges are sworn, under pain of impeachment, to uphold the constitution."

"Separate Cannot Be Equal"

He also told the lawmakers that the Administration bills would "be a tilt toward the doctrine of separate but equal schools. We tried that from 1896 to 1954 and we are paying the penalty for that now. It didn't work. The Supreme Court has said that separate cannot be equal."

In several cities, the Justice Department continued to intervene in school desegregation cases.

In other testimony before the House subcommittee, Thomas F. Pettigrew, Harvard University Professor of Social Psychology, called busing "a fake issue, the real issue is the quality of our schools."

Busing Aids

Positive Attitudes

Pettigrew said if interracial education is begun in the initial grades, numerous studies have shown that more positive racial attitudes and behavior among black and white children resulted.

And a 3-day demonstration against busing to achieve racial balance ended here with a rally of close to 800 people around the White House. But supporters of the rally were visibly disappointed in the small turnout.

WASHINGTON — (NBNS) — Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm (D-N.Y.) believes that neither she nor any of her competitors in the Democratic primaries will end up with the Democratic Presidential nomination.

She thinks the final ticket is likely to include Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Congressman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas.

"It's my humble opinion," she said, "that not one of us who is running right now for the nomination is going to secure the nomination at the convention."

"I believe that the way the political picture is developing right now — and remember that from day to day things change in politics. But the way it's moving right now, I could see the possibility of a Kennedy - Mills ticket. I really do."

Has Heard Remarks

Mrs. Chisholm, in a television interview, explained:

"I figure it out on this basis: The fact that when you go into the convention, you have the Credentials Committee that will have to settle a great number of challenges that are going to be a great deal of dissatisfaction. The morale is going to be deteriorated, because I've already heard some of the remarks in terms of who is not going to be seated, and who is going to be seated."

"Now, if indeed the old bosses in the party start fighting these challenges that will be bought out by people who've never participated in national politics, but want the convention to be representative, it means that before the formal business of selecting candidates to be the nominees of our party gets underway, the morale would have been deteriorated."

The first objective, then, Mrs. Chisholm believes would be to choose someone who could "save the party and save face."

"You've got to come forth with some candidates who will be more or less acceptable to a broad cross section. Senator Kennedy will be acceptable, more or less to the Northeastern, or the liberal or progressive wing of the party."

Mills is Southern Input

"And the South will not accept Senator Kennedy unless they have input into the ticket. And the input they'll come forth with is Wilbur Mills," she continued.

"I may be wrong. But Wilbur Mills will be more acceptable to a broader cross section of the South, rather than a (Florida Gov.) Ruebin Askew, who represents one side of the South; or a (Alabama Gov.) George Wallace, who proposes to represent the opposite side."

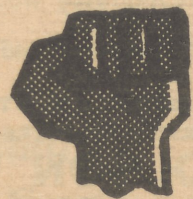

"So they'll put the ticket together with a Kennedy and a Mills, to save face because that's what they will be doing."

Mrs. Chisholm, who is campaigning to give a Democratic convention voice to "people who have never had any input into the presidential selection process," said she could accept a Kennedy-Mills ticket in the general election in November.

"I think it's possible to accept that ticket," she said. "depending on what the platform is going to be. It's not only a ticket in terms of the men. It's a ticket — in terms of what the Democratic Party's commitments are going to be in 1972."

House That Tech Built

An Open House for "The House that Tech Built" will be at 3410 East Jefferson May 20 and 21.

May 20 is by invitation only to the neighbors on the street, the parents of the students, who worked on the house, the school board members, Governor Ray and Des Moines City Councilmen.

The realtors will have an Open House for the public on Sunday May 21 and every Sunday after May 21.

The house is a ranch style house on a 120 x 154 foot lot. It has three bedrooms, one and one half bathrooms, kitchen, living room, patio, a walkout basement, and a porch deck on the first floor level. Features include central air conditioning, two-car garage, and two large picture windows.

There is hope for a profit. This profit will be used to purchase another lot so Tech students can begin to build another house next Fall.

Tech High Principal Donald Blackman says, "We've had excellent cooperation from the community. Local realtors are selling the house without a fee as a public service."

A corporation was formed called "Career Opportunity Incorporated". This group borrowed money from Des Moines Savings and Loan to finance the Tech High project. The Board of Education also helped finance the building of the house.

"This has given approximately 100 young men the opportunity to work on the house and use what they have learned from their major areas of study," says Mr. Blackman. He says, "There is one problem, Contractors have hired some of our students before the house was completed."

"Some schools teach you to know, but Des Moines Tech High teaches to DO and know," says Principal Blackman.

Mr. Robert Meharry and Mr. Jim Hashman are the instructors. Mr. Meharry is the project director.

The Tech career areas that worked on the house include carpentry, cabinet making, industrial electricity, refrigeration, air conditioning, commercial painting, sheet metal and welding.

The journalism class, photography, commercial arts and radio and T.V. areas were responsible for the publicity.

During the open house, E. Jefferson street will be closed.

Black Colleges Get Grants

WASHINGTON, D.C. — (N B N S) — Five predominately black colleges and universities have been awarded $670,342 in U.S. Department of Agriculture grants for research in agriculture and rural development.

Arkansas A & M Normal College, Pine Bluff, Ark., was awarded $112,440 for a study comparing the aging poor and the economically secure, and $93,120 to determine the effects of family orientation on the personal characteristics of college freshmen.

Langston University, Langston, Okla., received $69,423 for an analysis of the socio-economic characteristics within black communities, and $71,254 for an experiment in early education for rural children.

Tennessee State University, Nashville, was allocated $48,516 to study some of the aspects of low and moderate income families.

Other awards to Southern University and A & M College, Baton Rouge, La., and Prairie View A & M College, Prairie View, Tex., were given grants for research on various farm and animal husbandry subjects.

Inmates Get Second Chance

Twenty convicted inmates of Green Haven State Prison in Stormville, N.Y., may get another day in court because 18 Columbia University law students wanted some firsthand legal experience.

The students are members of a seminar that offers them contact with actual clients — a rare opportunity in legal education. The counsel they are providing is virtually the only free legal help available to the prisoners, who believe mistakes have been made in their convictions.

A report issued yesterday (Sunday) on the project's first year calls it "highly successful as a clinical education for students, who seem to prosper under the challenge."

Its "chief success," however, is "the provision of service itself" to prisoners, the report states. Out of 200 who applied for help since the project began at Columbia last March, 20 have been found to have tenable grounds for legal relief.

One inmate hopes to get his murder conviction and sentence set aside with the help of a Columbia law student who has drafted documents showing that the inmate's trial lawyer was incompetent and had persuaded the accused man

Child Care Bill Won't Do Job

WASHINGTON — (NBNS) — A watered-down child care bill, approved by the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee last week, "just won't do the job," claims Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm.

The New York Democrat said the bill passed by the committee "eliminates a great deal of the kind of parent involvement we felt was needed in the nation's child care programs."

The measure, somewhat similar to a bill vetoed by President Nixon last December, would provide free, high-quality day care for the children of the poor, subsidized care for low-income families and care at fees set by the government for other children.

The Senate bill authorizes expenditures of $1.2 billion for the year starting in mid-1973 and $1.6 billion the following year.

Nixon Objects

"But," Mrs. Chisholm said, "that amount is less to plead guilty against his will.

Another prisoner's conviction is up for review because, he and his Columbia law student maintain, his constitutional right to have a free lawyer for his first appeal was denied. The authorities, they claim, should have told him he could claim indigence and have a free lawyer for the appeal.

And another inmate, with a student's help, will petition the State Supreme Court to set a new trial because his allegedly incompetent lawyer had not interviewed key witnesses.

The cases usually involve appeals and petitions for rehearing on original convictions, based on claims that errors were made in the trials, convictions or sentences. An indigent prisoner has no legal right to a free lawyer in preparing such claims.

The program is called the Green Haven Prison Project. It is funded by the New York State Crime Control Planning Board, with additional support from the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and Columbia University.

The program's main benefit, besides its educational value, is the determination of whether a prisoner's claim has a chance in court, says William R. Fry, the project's director and assistant dean at the Columbia Law School. "The need of inmates for legal help is clear; whether or not the courts will support an inmate's claim, he has a need and a right to assert that claim and few inmates can do this without legal help," he states in the report.

Angela Plans Book On Prisons

SAN JOSE, Calif. — (NBNS) — The Angela Davis trial marked time last week while Judge Richard E. Arnason wrestled with the prosecution's insistence that an abbreviated version of an 18-page "diary" found in George Jackson's cell be admitted as evidence.

Previously, Judge Arnason, who had permitted the introduction of three of Angela's letters to Jackson, had refused to allow the presentation of the longer document.

Prosecutor Albert Harris Jr. then submitted a shortened version of the diary, declaring its admission as evidence to be "critical" to his case against the 28-year-old former U.C.L.A. assistant professor.

In the meantime, Miss Davis, who is accused of murder and kidnapping in connection with the seizure of hostages in a San Raphael courtroom, submitted to her first national television interview.

Talked of Prisons

She did not, of course, discuss the issues in her trial. She talked instead about the 16 months she spent in jail, prior to her recent release on bail, and about the concern for black prisoners which led to the present charges against her.

She is writing, she said, a book on prisons which will be entitled If They Come in the Morning.

The title is taken from a James Baldwin letter to George Jackson in which he wrote: "If they take you in the morning, they'll be coming for us that night."

"In the 16 months I spent in jail I experienced some of what so many of my sisters and brothers have been experiencing for many, many years," Miss Davis said in her interview.

Knew What to Look For

"I don't say that my own experience in jail can even compare with the levels of brutality which have been experienced by others. But I would say that, having been active in the prison movement beforehand, I did know what to look for when I went to prison.

"Certainly many of the things we had been talking about before were confirmed in my own personal experience in jail. And then, of course, I did in some instances have the occasion to become involved with the kinds of struggle that are going on inside the prison walls today."

That struggle, she said, is closely related to what is going on outside the prisons.

"I was able to see with my own eyes how profoundly the movement on the outside has affected people who are in today and how intense a consciousness prisoners have today, not only of what is going on inside prisons, but of the causes of the repressive prison system and the problems on the outside, the problems which stem from a racism which exists in the society today, the problems which stem from the need on the part of the American government to engage in aggressive military activities abroad.

Viet Frequently Discussed

"The war was indeed a very frequent topic of conversation and I know personally of a number of anti-war demonstrations that took place on the other side of the prison walls."

There is also, she said, "a great concern on the part of prisoners for their economic well-being and for the exploitation that they are experiencing which is really nothing less than slavery."

"So," she said, "in a number of prisons throughout the country today, there have been attempts not only to organize labor unions to destroy the system which permits the jailers to force prisoners to work for, like, two to 10 cents an hour.

They're not only attempting to smash that system, but also the unions which are formed on the inside attempt to affiliate with the unions on the outside.

"So you can see that there are direct lines between the broader problems, the very critical problems with which this society is plagued, and their more intense microcosmic forms within the prisons."

Cites Example

When asked whether she was talking about the "average prisoner, one who is in for a robbery or a burglary" or "are you talking about a political prisoners," she said:

"It's difficult to decide what one generally would call an ordinary prisoner and a political prisoner, precisely because of the fact that the society is now so polarized and because of the fact — well, let me just give you a concrete example.

"I, in my own personal experience in black communities in southern California, discovered that often when a policeman was in the community making arrests, most of the time arbitrarily, that what they were doing was attempting to defend what is supposed to be America from black people. So, therefore, you have a situation where there are many, many innocent men and women in prison today, simply because of the fact that they happen to be in the way of a policeman.

"I know, myself, when I lived in Los Angeles before the whole controversy at U.C.L.A., frequently I found myself stopped and frequently had to call lawyers and other people to help me get out of a situation which arose simply because of the fact that I was a black woman driving down the street or walking down the street in a Los Angeles black community. So the line is not a very clear one."

Will Continue Struggle

What does she see as her role in the future?

"I really have not sat down and worked out a blueprint for exactly what I am going to do after I get out of this particular thing. And one of the reasons why I haven't done it is that I feel that my life belongs to the struggle. And whatever must be done, whatever there is to do, that's what I have to do.

"And for that reason, I don't make personal decisions in a vacuum, because often those personal decisions might conflict with what are the larger necessities of the liberation movement."

Core Chapter in Iowa

C.O.R.E. which has been in existence for almost thirty years is a Black Nationalist Organization centralized in the capital of Black America, Harlem, U.S.A. It is composed of a network of chapters across the United States. Its members work exclusively in behalf of the liberation and self-determination of Black people in America. Membership in C.O.R.E. is open to anyone with African Ancestry. C.O.R.E. does not bar those blacks who seek membership but are not ready to define themselves as Black Nationalist. The only requirement is that such Blacks be willing to be liberated from their conflicting ideologies of the past.

In recent months, in Iowa, there has been a Quint - City Chapter C.O.R.E. formed. This chapter, whose offices are based in Davenport is set up to serve both the Iowa and Illinois side of the river.

The basic concept and philosophy of the Quint - City Chapter is as that of the National Organization including the adopting of the new policy of "Flexibility" within the Congress of Racial Equality. A policy which was explained by Roy Innis, National Director of C.O.R.E., as being in the best interest of encouraging unity in the Black Community. Mr. Innis, who spoke in Davenport, Saturday, April 8, at a Buffet Dinner sponsored by the Quint - City Chapter stated, "We would rather see integrationist and blacks with differing views working together within one community organization than to see proliferation of factional black groups divide the community." Mr. Innis also stated "What the black community needs at this point more than anything else is Unity," a concept which the Quint - City Chapter C.O.R.E. HOPES to achieve with the implementation of their Four Point Program which was released to the public some weeks ago and is (in brief) as follows:

1. EDUCATION: To launch an action program; To examine the counseling and disciplinary code and

2. EMPLOYMENT: To provide full employment for all black people who are willing and able to work including those who need education or training to make them willing and able to work.

* WELFARE RIGHTS: Organizing individual problems into an action campaign to insure the right to be treated equally which does not invade your right to privacy as a welfare recipient.

4. DRUGS: Eliminating the existence of drugs.

Quint - City Chapter C.O.R.E. sees that it is only through the combined efforts of people and organizations within the Quint - City Area, working together on programs, such as the Four Point Program and others, that unity among blacks in the Black Community can become a reality.

Davenport Girls Team

By Cecile Cooper

There will be an all Black girls softball team playing in the Davenport Park Board League this season. This will be a first in the history of the City League.

The team is made up of girls from ninth through the twelfth grades and are all from Davenport schools; J. B. Young, Smart, Williams, and Sudlow Junior High Schools and Central High School.

The girls were organized and are being managed by Burchard Elzy. His assistant coach is Nathan Petersen. Mr. Elzy has organized and managed several softball teams in the Davenport area over the past ten years, which included serving as player-manager for the Associated Dad's Mens Club team. During his affiliation with the Dads Club (5 years) he also served as Chairman of the Association of Dads Club Boys Program, and Treasurer of the Associated Dad's Club. At the same time he managed the Lincoln Bismarks of Lincoln School in the Dads Club League. They were League Champions every year and City Champions in 1968. Mr. Elzy also states that they held three second place spots and one fourth place spot in the City tournament during his affiliation. He began working in womens softball when he organized and managed the Davenport Spring womens traveling team, which is also Black. Although they have entered a league their game standings 27 wins and 20 losses. This team was organized in 1970, they are looking for another good season.

The girls team practice every evening 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at Lafayette Park and visitors are welcome. We are looking for the support of all of you to cheer these girls on to victory. We are also in need of financial support for uniforms and equipment. Any and all donations may be sent in care of Mrs. Billie Lloyd, 1708 E. 11th St., Davenport, Iowa 52803. Or pledges can be made by telephoning 319-324-4012.

So go-go-go team and good luck.

the fine print

It looks like our favorite magician, Dicky Nixon, has pulled another one out of his hat.

It was bad enough to bomb Hanoi and Haiphong but this thing of barricading the ports of North Viet Nam is something else.

First, whenever a nation barricades another the situation starts popping. The barricaded nation either starves to death or its allies comes to its defence.

Nixon must have realized the consequences of his act on the international scale. The American prestige has lost a lot with the Viet Nam war alone. But this recent development our prestige has fallen deeper into the international credibility gap.

Hanoi Won't Bend

If the barricade works in checking the incoming military apparatus, that is good but the important item to remember is that it restricts the incoming of non-military items like food. In a sense this is backing Hanoi into a corner; in doing so forcing the communists to take more aggressive action. So the North Viet Nam troops will be within maybe, the Saigon city limits before Hanoi will bend to the iron hand of U.S. military force.

With my fingers crossed, the implications of this situation will cool down. What could be the implications? One, disastrous consequence in the treatment of our POW's, second, the impendence of a third world war.

Nixon on Tight Rope

Nixon is playing a tight-rope move in Viet Nam chess game — I don't think that he is any Bobby Fisher.

Des Moines may be slow but you have to admit it does get there.

Finally, naming a park after the late Martin Luther King. It is good also to see that the park is on the east side.

All too often the black community on the east-side is forgotten when it comes to state and federal aid. This could just one step in helping the brothers and sisters there.

It would be nice to have a recreational center built there and named after the late Malcom X.

Although they both had differing ideas on civil rights, both had the same goals in mind.

ONE OF OUR MOST ACTIVE YOUNG WOMEN is lost to Iowans in the passing of Cynthia Martin Turner Hutchins. As recently as say four years ago, she was a leader as concerns social agencies in Des Moines. She was involved with Roadside Settlement, Greater Opportunities under Don McKenzie, worked at Julia B. Mayer Center, and was among the first members of the United Black Federation. With each involvement she had at her side at one time or another one or all three of her lovely daughters, Carol, Carla and Cami.

CYNTHIA AND HER BROOD MOVED TO IOWA CITY, IOWA, so that she might pursue her major, political science at the University of Iowa, and where her daughters would have exceptional educational opportunities on campus. She was employed for a time by the Iowa State Employment Office and in the Office of the University of Northern Iowa.

AFTER CYNTHIA'S MARRIAGE to ELBERT HUTCHINS, the family resided in Waterloo, Iowa. Here she became a member of Payne Memorial A.M.E. Church where she was assistant director of the church Children's Choir. She served for one year as Human Relations Specialist on the Human Rights Commission of Waterloo.

MR. AND MRS. HUTCHINS AND THEIR DAUGHTERS attended last month's Drake Relays. Always personally involved in sports activities and with sports personalities, she was well known among them. Mr. Richard Bates, Director of Julia B. Mayer Center, who was a member of the nucleus of athletes which went to make up Cynthia's small world of friends, when she first moved here, described the loss this year's group will feel when word of her death finally comes to them. He stated she is so widely known, that it will be a full year and a half before such news can reach so many from so far away.

MRS. ANNA M. WEEMS OF THE IOWA EMPLOYMENT SERVICE read the paper honoring Cynthia Hutchins and we were moved by it, that I asked the privilege of presenting it here.

MRS. WEEMS BEGAN: I know that I speak for many of you and so unfolded her story: There was a king, I am told, who was confronted by hundreds of villagers protesting that a certain man did not get royal village treatment as did another man a week earlier! And the King, determined to clear the matter, strolled out on his balcony and uttered these words: The man in question I do not know! But the man last week believed in people and the word got around! So it is with Cynthia, she believed in people. And as you can see here today, she believed in people and the word got around. Mrs. Weems continued:

CYNTHIA MADE FRIENDS QUICKLY. Had the tact to disagree without becoming disagreeable; to dislike and remain tasteful. Mixed with everyone without losing her identity. Mrs. Weems first met Cynthia at the University of Iowa, where her daughter was enrolled. Cynthia counseled this daughter and many other young people; urging that 'though the going may be rough, keep on pushing, take care of business'. 'The fruits of Cynthia's pushing is now unfolding before us, these our leaders of tomorrow declared Mrs. Weems with a gesture indicating the many, many young people present. Students having listened to Cynthia, later 'thanked her for making me stay.' The speaker said again, Cynthia believed in people and the word got around.

SHE WAS HIRED AS AN INTERVIEWER but rendered a multitude of services: got food, housing, education, plus jobs; she tested and counseled. So many things outside the job specifications. She believed in people, and the word got around.

HER SERVICES WERE REQUESTED MORE THAN THOSE OF ANYONE ELSE. She could type, take dictation and had an excellent medical vocabulary. She could knit, crochet, cook, collected antiques; was a good mother and a wife who loved her husband. Just to look at her you would believe her to be an ordinary woman. But she was a champion in an extraordinary fashion, working in and out of the ordinary system. I admired her — and I've been thinking "My God, you've taken a leader from among us!" She had the cleverness and drive of a Mary McCloud Bethune; the intelligence of Phyllis Eheatley; the leadership of Shirley Chisholm, the love for all of mankind of Martin Luther King; the pioneering spirit of Jesse Jackson and determination of Frederic Douglas! I can see the qualities of all these individuals wrapped up in one person — Cynthia Martin Hutchins!

MRS. WEEMS CONTINUED: Cynthia was here in Waterloo a relatively short time, but her contributions were more than those of some of us who have been here all of our lives. She worked toward making all men brothers and sisters. Her desires for a program for aiding blacks to meet their educational levels will not be in vain. I dedicate my efforts to this, and as the King said, she believed in people and the word got around.

PASTOR LEONARD WILLIAMS blended the whole of what had been said by all. Praised again the fine character of Cynthia and her dedication to her Maker, her husband and children, her mother and her fellowman. In his closing, he, too, promised that Cynthia's efforts to create and promote a program aiding blacks to meet their educational levels will be carried on also by him and by his followers.

Cynthia believed in people, and the word has gotten around.

Sports Then

With Allen Ashby

I read that the city's best prospect for a professional fighter got kayoed in one of his bouts a while back. A fellow I talked with said he thought it was lack of proper conditioning. I disagreed. I thought, and still think that the guy has never had a real chance to prepare himself for tough competition.

There are no old pros for him to emulate or listen to. Time was when Des Moines was full of pretty fair pugs who could show any budding amateur some tricks. Of course, there weren't any Golden Gloves bouts then. If you wanted to fight you climbed into the ring and went to it for about $5 or maybe ten. But those old pros worked at their game, and were constantly discussing their tricks and strategy with each other.

A fellow could pick up a lot of ring knowledge by just listening. Then, often as not, they would demonstrate their stunts with each other, and one could pick up on them if he were observant. Some of those fellows, namely, Kid Lawson, Emil Morrow, Percy Owens, Happy Shade, and a few others, could make it on the big time today, but then good black pugs were as plentiful as corn in a cornfield.

Fought for Love and money

There wasn't very much to do in order to make money, and all of these fighters fought for what money they could pick up, and because they loved the game. It could not be used as a stepping stone to greater things, because the local black fighter, no matter how good he was, never got beyond the semi-final bout. Sometimes he got a chance to build the reputation of a budding local white boy that the promoters wanted to feature.

Everybody knew the black boy was tough, and if the local pride could whip him, he was ready for the bigger game. Well, I can recall sitting at ringside, or sometimes being in a fighter's corner, and watching him beat the stuffing out of the local pride, and the next day's paper would carry the story about how so and so shaed Kid Bip, local black fighter, when so and so would look as if he had tangled with a freight train and finished third, while the local black fighter would hardly have a mark on him.

This was the pattern for local boxers around here, and probably just about every where before the Second World War. Of course some guys like Sugar Ray, Henry Armstrong and Joe Louis made it because the cities were so full of good black talent that all of it just couldn't be kept down.

Jersey Joe Got A Chance too Late

Those were the days when there wasn't much future for the young black boy who didn't have to much education, so he turned to boxing. The money was better than anything he could get working, and if he could make it he could have some respect. No wonder those guys were so tough in the ring. And there were a lot of very good boys who boxed just enough to make enough money to go into some sort of business and were content to box locally for whatever they could make because were working towards a goal.

I know of one boxer who fought his way through high school, and another who financed a college education, and went into teaching. People were surprised when Jersey Joe Walcott gave Joe Louis the scare of his life in their first title bout, but Jersey Joe was just one of a lot of very good battlers who never got a chance until it was nearly too late. He was one of the lucky ones.

I can name a few right here in Des Moines who could have gone places had they been given the chance. I just wish I could bring back some of those old fellows for LaMont Lovelady to spar with and hang around.

He just might make it to where he wants to go. And, oh, yes, the best trainer who was ever around here was a guy called Kid Eggie, a black, who could look at one round workout and tell if the guy had it or not.

Vida Blue Back

No, said Vida Blue, he didn't think he had been unwisely advised during his holdout. Yes, he was glad to be back with the Oakland Athletics. No, he wouldn't do anything different if he had it to do all over again.

"We both made concessions," said the young lefthander. A's owner Charley Finley, sitting at Vida's elbow, nodded agreement.

"His salary starts as of April 27," Finley said. "And since it probably will take him at least three weeks to get in shape to pitch, the club is giving him a month's pay without performing at all — approximately $8,000."

This time Blue nodded agreement.

Letters From Prison

Dear Sir,

I think it is very unfortunate indeed that I a Black Minister, sit here in the Iowa State Penitentiary, convicted of a crime of the most heinous sort, and hundreds of blacks in the city of Des Moines, sit comfortable, knowing that I did advocate change in the status quo, and often times did rush to the defense of blacks, I didn't even know, who were being crucified right before our very eyes.

Minister to Activist

It comes as a bitter disappointment that each of you rest in beds of certainty that on December 24th, 1968, I changed from the young promising and talented minister in popular demand for several months, serving in various capacities, and raising money, causing folk to shout, speak out, and even boycott the public school system, resulting in the addition of a black counselor at East High School, that in the moment and the twinkling of an eye, changed into an animal. This comes to say to each of you, I still love you, but the next victim might be you.

I want each of you to sit down now and think very carefully. I was two hundred miles away, there was no pictures of me available, I surrendered to the police at Davenport, and rode to Des Moines. On the way, a body was discovered. I would that you read your U.S. and Iowa Constitution, the 5th and 6th Amendment, also the 14th Amendment, I ask then that you think back very carefully to the trial, and the atmosphere in 1968 and early 1969. As you do this, it is imperative that you ponder the word Murder, only, not Body, agreement, and the other things that you've read about, or heard about, or discussed, and pondered, that has you convinced. Just the word Murder, I ask only that you search, (pray), ponder, and question, thoroughly, each one of you who know me, personally or impersonally, and see if you can remember talking with me or seeing me as late as 12:30 p.m. on December 24, 1968. Pamela Powers, left her mother at 12 Noon, or 12:05, at the latest, she was missed at 1 P.M., and the search did begin.

Nobody Came

There are seven blacks amongst you, and I'm not going to call any names, one who talked with me as late as 12:30 p.m. in the Polk County Courthouse, one who spoke with me at the Polk County Jail, and two who saw me as late as 12:45 p.m. standing in the Y.M.C.A. restaurant, and three who were in court during the crucial hour at a divorce hearing.

My brothers and sisters, several murders of blacks have occurred, (1) in Ames, at least (2) in Des Moines, you set quietly and nothing was done. There are numerous cases here at the penitentiary of blacks who were victims of a racist system, the record bears witness, at the game nobody came.

Memories Like Scars

Soon, I will return to Des Moines, and the news, my attorney cannot finance my next proceedings, the word should read won't, because the State refuses to reimburse him, that means I've too got a listening ear, got to risk the loss of proper appeal, because the state of Iowa refuses to reimburse him, this means I've got to do the best I can, and I will prove beyond the shadow of a doubt, that Pamela was murdered long before I came home that day.

In conclusion to this letter, I say to you, I've got some unfinished stories that must be told, and hopefully a long time to grow old. My memories of Des Moines are like scars, I am not at all proud of my implication, but under the circumstances it was the only thing I could manage to do. Each one of you who ever loved me, served me, gave to me, blessed me, cursed me, learned from me, admired me, had a reason, I sung at your churches, I played at your weddings, and anniversaries, stood up and fought for you as the only black preacher, to stand in the Panther House, Soul Village, East High School, and I did accompany some of your children to jail, and assured their safety, I loved the children at the church, and they loved me in return.

Come now let us reason together, let us weep together, through the forthcoming trail, don't weep for me, but weep, because I am going to if needs be die, in order that your children might live in a community right here in Iowa, that is free of Government Pollution. As I said May 14th, 1969, and I believe four were in the court room, that is four of us, these hands have not shed any innocent blood, but that some little boy or some little girl, did walk the streets in danger, because of my conviction. I call your attention to July of 1969, two months after I had been processed into this the Iowa State Penitentiary. On the South Side of Des Moines, a duplication of the Pamela Powers murder, the child nine years old, raped, smothered, nude from the waist down, Patricia Veech, No mothers marched for the Death Penalty, No KKK threats, etc, no conviction.

Reports Not Good

Think my Brothers and Sisters, if there be amongst you those in agreement with the fact that there is a reasonable doubt, I ask only that you come to the courthouse and see. I say to you once again, as long as I remain here as I.S.P., you should be cognizant of the danger that lurks in the cracks and crevices of every street corner. I understand that the reports that are coming from Des Moines residents here at I.S.P., who are returning to the community are not good, I can't tell you what to believe, but my record here speaks for itself, and I ask that you ponder very carefully the percentage of data that is sifted to you, I am that I am, nothing more, nothing less.

Finally, I call to mind one black being tried very recently for murder, six people said he was somewhere else, when the crime was committed, six blacks, the judge declared a mistrial, please brethren read the handwriting on the wall, and govern yourselves accordingly.

MAY GOD BLESS YOU!

REV. ROBERT
ANTHONY WILLIAMS

Letter To The Editor

CALL FOR BLACK ACTION

In last week's front page edition of this newspaper, an article entitled "The Call For Black Action" appeared. The article was submitted by the Black Theology Swimming Pool Committee concerning the Julia B. Mayer swimming pool that has not been available to the community for about eleven months.

The purpose of the article was to request financial help from the community to repair the plumbing system which has left the pool idle.

The committee avoided as much as possible shifting this burden on our poor community, when there are funding organizations who purport to be so concerned and interested in the state of affairs in the Black community. One of these two-faced, hypocritical organizations of so-called concerned individuals is United Way, who handles most of the financial problems of Julia B. Mayer Center.

With knowledge of the conditions of the swimming pool (the only one in our community) for the past months, there is no excuse why they haven't been able to tap resources to take care of the repairs. They have only offered a conglomeration of lies and excuses and had the nerve to say that the money had to be used somewhere else. Real concerned!!!

If they were so concerned, they would take into consideration that children need the proper amount of exercise and recreation to grow mentally and physically strong. Real concerned!!!

We should ask ourselves: Did they take into consideration that this is the only pool in our community, and if available it would cut down on transportation cost, allow more children to enjoy swimming privileges, possibly provide employment for lifeguards, and allow our children a few hours of mental solace from dire poverty. They are real concerned!!!

You can see why we must assume the responsibility of taking care of this problem. Past experience should teach us that we are going to have to rely on our own efforts and pool together our resources to solve just one of many more greater problems confronting us.

Another thing we must always keep in mind is our children. If we ignore their needs (social, education, etc.), there are many evils that lie in wait for despondent, disenchanted, Black youth; the drugs, reformatories, and lower elements of society, whose middle name should be "neglect".

We would like to also admonish Black Christians who feel we may be talking about another land. We are safe to say God would frown down on your arrogant, supercilious attitudes concerning your brothers and sisters.

Jesus was dedicated to eradicating social evils that plague the poor and oppressed.

Though we feel the Blacks must assume the responsibility in solving this problem, we accept any contribution that enlightened white people may make.

After reading this, we would like for you to keep three things in mind:

PRIDE: In ourselves and community

GOD: Who helps those who helps themselves.

LOVE: Love for our brothers and sisters and all oppressed people.

Send your 1 dollar contribution to:

The Black Theology Swimming Pool Committee, 1016 Forest Avenue.

Thank you.

Two St. Louis Cops Indicted

Two suburban St. Louis policemen were indicted by a federal grand jury today on summary punishment charges.

Acting Attorney General

Richard G. Kleindienst said separate indictments were returned against the officers in U.S. District Court in St. Louis.

Roy M. Jones, 52, of the Bel-Nor Police Department, was charged in a three-count indictment with beating three youths on August 21, 1971, during an investigation of teen-agers tampering with street barricades.

The victims were identified as Oliver W. Andrews, 18, James E. Claus, 17, and David C. Degnan, 17.

The indictment said the youths were deprived of their constitutional right to liberty and due process of law.

The other indictment named Marvin C. Miesner, 33, a part time officer of the Breckenridge Hills Police Department.

Miesner was accused of striking Ralph V. Bonds, 54, with a police baton in a cell at the suburban police station on December 11, 1971.

The assault deprived Bond of his right guaranteed by the 14th Amendment to personal security while in the custody of the State of Missouri or one of its agents, the indictment said.

SHOCKING NEWS

Though battery-powered vehicles are becoming increasingly popular and practical for industrial use, the idea of using them is far from new. Montgomery Ward, for example, was moving freight with electric trucks as long ago as 1904!

Stax Socks Soul To Shelby

Memphis - Commissioner Lee Hyden (r.) congratulates Stax's artist David Porter on coordinating a super-star benefit show at the Shelby County Penal Farm. The show featured such Stax artists as Rufus Thomas, Bar-Kays, Soul Children, Temprees, and O.B. McClinton. Porter, along with former songwriting partner Isaac Hayes, recently released the single "Ain't That Lovin' You" (For More Reasons Than One).

Memphis - As an example of Stax's humanitarian endeavor, artist David Porter recently coordinated a special benefit show.

"This program isn't just me — it's a lot of recording artists who want to contribute something here," he stated.

The 'here' was the Shelby County Penal Farm and the 'recording artists' were Stax's Bar-Kays, Soul Children, Rufus Thomas, O.

B. McClinton, Temprees, and David Porter.

Porter also provided a sneak preview of the single "Ain't That Lovin' You (For More Reasons Than One.)" by him and former songwriting partner Isaac Hayes.

The Bar-Kays triggered the show with the Hayes' Academy Award winning "Theme From Shaft."

Each artist rendered such hit tunes as "Hearsay" (Soul Children), "Explain It To Her Mama" (Temprees), and the "Funkey Penguin" (Rufus Thomas).

WHBQ (Memphis) disc jockey George Klein was emcee.

After the show one inmate exclaimed: "I've paid for shows that weren't this good! Look what I'm getting free!"
