To the Editor:

Your front page article (July 1, 1972) titled "Aid Probe in D.M. Sought" and subtitled "involves OEO Agency and Community Development" appears to smell like political boondoggling in opposition to the poor. It is not my intentions, of course, to descend into irrelevant subtleties concerning the problem (not at the moment anyway). But I do want to address some of the inaccurate conceptions presented.

The first paragraph states that "Gov. Robert Ray has requested an investigation into the two federally funded programs". An investigation is not necessary. All His Honor need to do is read the enabling legislation which brought the two programs into existence to find that duplication of services does not, I repeat, does not exist. Title IIA subsection 212 in the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 (EOA), and Title I section 103 (a) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 (MDA) has different scopes of services enunciated. The only reasons for the investigation, perhaps, is the Governors hidden desires to deactivate the vocal cords of the citizenry in the decision-making process in Iowa. He has already started by thwarting the initiative of Head Start parents, and this latest endeavor represent the follow-up coup de grace.

The EOA makes it mandatory for a coalition to be formed to establish policies. The MDA designates elected officials as policy makers. The involvement of citizens in the MDA is buried in some innocuous euphemisms like "citizens advisory" or "citizens participation". The EOA goes farther than the advisory capacity for citizens. It advocates the redistribution of power which enables the poor to be definitely included at the policy making level.

The article, also, states that "both programs are designed to help poor people...". The "help poor people" slogan is accurate. However, there is a big difference in how it is to be done and the quality and quantity of that help. The Community Development Agency (CDA) give services to the poor through traditional main line agencies. Greater Opportunities (GO) enables the poor to reach a degree of self-sufficiency through their own efforts.

Further on down the line, the article stated that His Honor and other officials are concerned about the six neighborhood offices the CDA established in the past six months. "All except one within a few blocks of the six neighborhood offices that GO has been operating about six years". The former Model Cities Director (Bill Snyder) recognized the point approximately a year ago. He was in the process of operating the citizens participation component through the existing GO neighborhood center. (GATEWAY) However, the plan was "shot down the tube" in the CDA process. I am assured that the GO officials would have obliged in coordinating efforts with the CDA, or serving as the delegate agency for citizens participation. The historical records show that the GO officials have been trying to sign a letter of agreement with the City Council for a number of years to enhance coordination. GO even allocated $60,000 dollars to further the process. The Council has ignored their pleas.

The Governor said he would like regional and State OEO officials to meet with Des Moines Mayor Richard Olson to see if there is a duplication of services between GO and CDA".

Mayor Olson said "that he would like GO's programs in Des Moines to be absorbed by the city CDA to eliminate any duplication." The question of law - and - order comes into the picture here. The law states that a policy making board for a community action agency must have on its board the community representation which is as follows:

a) one-third of the members representing public officials,

b) at least one-third of the members are persons chosen in accordance with democratic selection procedures adequate to assure that they are representatives of the poor in the area served, and

c) the remainder of the members are officials or members of business, industry, labor, religious, welfare, education, or other major groups and interests in the community.

The structure of the City Council, the CAB, nor any other CDA group is so comprised.

African Report

The Ministerial council of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) has pledged its support to Senegal in its frontier conflict with colonialist Portugal. An autonomous state since 1958, Senegal has a common border with Portuguese Guinea.

The council of the OAU sent a telegram of support to Senegalese President Leopold Sedar Senghor during its meeting in Rabat, Morocco.

The death of an Indian detainee in Johannesburg last October has been declared a suicide by a magistrate who termed the possibility that the man was murdered, or that his death might have been accidental, as "ridiculous."

The 30-year-old teacher, Ahmed Timol, who was being detained in Johannesburg on terrorism charges, had been arrested at a road block in a car whose trunk carried pamphlets allegedly distributed by the banned African National Congress.

A bomb intended for Zambian head of state, President Kenneth Kaunda, exploded in the Zambian state house at Lusaka, completely blinding the president's secretary and severing one arm of the victim.

At the time of the explosion, the Zambian leader, President Kaunda, was 400 miles away in the upstate town of Chinsali attending his mother's funeral.

First reports of the explosion by the South African (Johannesburg) Star said the explosion also extensively damaged the interior of the Zambian state house. Zambian Vice President Mainza Chona ordered a full scale investigation into the circumstances surrounding the incident.

Secretary General Waldheim of the United Nations, speaking at the 19th session of the Council of Ministers of the Organization of African Unity, praised the effectiveness of the O.A.U.

"Considering the record, the Organization of African Unity has proved itself to be the United Nations' best ally for the maintenance of international peace and security on the African continent," he said.

Secretary General Waldheim referred to the efforts by the 41 black and Arab member nations to settle numerous boundary disputes since the organizations foundation in Addis Ababa in 1963.

Dr. Waldheim also took the opportunity to warn colonial and minority-ruled territories of the inevitability of the "wave of independence" in Africa which would be eventually completed either peacefully or by force.

Diplomatic cablegrams reaching Washington report that the Burundi Government, headed by Lieut. Col. Michael Micombero, is prolonging the wave of reprisals that began April 29 when elements of the country's Hutu majority staged an abortive coup against the ruling Tutsi minority.

One State Department specialist on African affairs said that reports of continuing repression are reaching the Administration but reminded that "early reports of genocide and mass slaughter in Biafra also proved unfounded - so perhaps we'd better wait 'til the United Nations mission reports."

Ovamboland, the most populous tribal region of Namibia in South West Africa, was granted "self-rule" in an announcement made from Pretoria by Chief Filemon Elifas, chief councillor of the Ovamboland executive council.

Theoretically, Ovamboland will be given the same degree of autonomy as the Transkei, the "most emancipated" of South Africa's "Butustans."

Ovamboland is part of the much disputed territory administered by South Africa in defiance of the United Nations and a World Court ruling.

Gibson-Harris Cited Outstanding Efforts

WASHINGTON— (NBNS)— If the Democratic Party makes it to Miami Beach intact, a large part of the credit will go to two blacks who headed key pre-convention committees.

They are Mayor Ken Gibson of Newark, chairman of the Platform Drafting Committee, and Attorney Patricia Roberts Harris of Washington, chairlady of the Credentials Committee.

Gibson headed the 15 - member committee charged with drafting a platform for the full committee to consider, but his skill was so universally respected that he ended up chairing most of the 150 - member committee's marathon sessions.

During these hours of almost continuous discussion, Gibson kept his cool, never lost his good humor, and helped the committee work its way through issues that might otherwise have ended in explosion. The result was a platform that represented a majority consensus—and no hard feelings.

Although there will be 13 minority reports on key issues at the convention, the Wallace people were unanimous in their praise for Chairman Gibson's fairness in the chair. In fact, during the standing ovation for Gibson at the final session, one lady delegate from Alabama pinned a Wallace button on the black mayor's lapel.

Gibson's skill as a negotiator and reconciliator may very well have been groomed during his years as chief executive of a 60 per cent black city, dealing with a city council on which he lacked a majority.

It may also stem from the six years of hard, continuous effort it took to get to the mayor's office. Gibson first ran for the office in 1966 and garnered 16,200 votes after a brief 6-week campaign which cost all of $2,000. Four years later, in an election that saw a record 70 per cent voter turnout, Gibson won by more than 12,000 votes.

As the Platform Committee astounded everyone by avoiding disaster and finishing its job in record time, the work of the Credentials Committee was getting underway across town at another hotel. Patricia Harris, who had been serving as temporary chairman for four months, was unanimously elected permanent chairman of the 150 - member committee.

Although Ms. Harris had been opposed by the McGovern forces when she was first elected to the post by the National Democratic Committee, her election this week was supported by all factions. Delegate after delegate at the opening session rose to express gratitude for her fairness in handling their challenges and requests for hearings.

Further praise came from the speakers of the evening, including two of the chief reform architects, Rep. Donald Fraser of Minnesota, co-chairman of the McGovern Party Reform Commission, and Rep. James O'Hara of Michigan, chairman of the Rules Committee.

Counsel for the Democratic National Committee, Joe Califano, referred to Ms. Harris as "brilliant, humane and charming" and attributed to her two qualities which she will certainly need during the deliberations ahead at the convention—"a sense of justice and a sense of politics."

The task facing the Credentials Committee is a formidable one. At the deliberations last week, 1,289 of the 3,109 elected delegates— 41 per cent— had been challenged in a total of 82 separate challenges in 30 states and one territory. Additional charges were being received daily and the Credentials Committee report is the first order of business when the convention opens July 10.

As presiding officer of the committee that will be dealing with these problems, Attorney Harris will be making full use of both her legal experience and her long-time involvement with civil rights and civil liberties.

A former dean of Howard University's School of Law, Ms. Harris was the first black woman to be named to a top post in the foreign service, serving two years as Ambassador to Luxembourg during the Johnson Administration. Her diplomatic expertise may be sorely tested—as it has been already— during the coming weeks.

Black Women Take Reign's Of Women's Liberation

WASHINGTON, D.C. — (NBNS)— The National Women's Political Caucus, in a decision calculated to expand the base of the women's liberation struggle, has elected two prominent black women to the top leadership positions within the alliance.

Gwen Cherry, a Florida state legislator from Miami, and Ms. Carol Ann Taylor, assistant to the director of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's women's unit, were voted chairwoman and vice-chairwoman respectively of the NWPC.

There they will work with such nationally well-known activists as Betty Friedan, Gloria Steinem and New York Congresswoman Bella Abzug in advancing issues in behalf of the coalition of women's groups.

Chairwoman Cherry and Vice - Chairwoman Taylor had barely assumed their offices when they were embroiled in such significant issues as pressing for planks in the Democratic Party's platform and inspecting the views of front - running Presidential candidates on their attitudes toward issues of concern to women.

State Rep. Cherry is serving as a legal advisor in a challenge as well to the seating of the Florida delegation— 75 delegates of whom are pledged to Alabama Gov. George Wallace and the other six to Sen. Hubert Humphrey— in violation of the Democratic Party's reform rules due to a lack of delegate representation by women.

The Florida challenge is only one of numerous challenges involving 30 state delegations which will have to be decided by the Party's Credential Committee and, in appeal cases, by the convention itself.

Ms. Cherry, following the announcement of her appointment at a news conference in Washington, revealed that an ambitious recruiting drive to enroll new members in the National Women's Political Caucus was in the offing.

"We're doing well, but not well enough. We are going to get more women involved than ever before."

"This holds true for the welfare mother to the Tiffany woman who's got her own thing going," Ms. Cherry said.

Concerning the stance of several candidates for President on women's rights issues, she said:

"(Congresswoman) Shirley Chisholm was the most enthusiastic and seems to be the most progressive in supporting the causes of concern to women. She does not hedge on the issues."

"McGovern, probably because he is now the front - running candidate, hedged a bit with us." The Women's Caucus, she said, was particularly disturbed by McGovern's refusal to endorse a repeal of all laws which prohibit the right of a woman to decide matters which affect her person, such as abortion.

"He said his position was to leave the question up to the states. That's like leaving civil rights up to the states," Ms. Cherry said.

Paul Robeson Jr. Defends Father

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Paul Robeson Jr., son of the controversial 74 - year - old black American singer who once received the Stalin Peace Prize, said his father "was years ahead of his time" in his attack on racism in America.

In an interview appearing in the premier issue of Encore magazine, now on newsstands, he declared, "In openly attacking American racism in the late 40s, my father was years ahead of his time. And for a man of his stature and pre-eminence to attack American racism publicly was a challenge of great dimensions to the establishment of the time."

Robeson said, "The government responded to the challenge by deliberately and as a matter of policy setting about to destroy his career and thus effectively silence him and the uncomfortable truths he was speaking. It is a matter of record that people lost federal jobs for going to my father's concerts."

In the same issue, author Howard Fast is quoted as stating that the great black singer was never a Communist but that as a matter of pride he never told anyone officially.

Robeson Jr. said that his father as early as 1946 told former president Harry Truman that "if the government did not protect the rights of Black people, Negroes would do so themselves. He told the President, 'If they keep on being murdered by lynchers, there will be several national emergencies which will require federal intervention."

He continued, "In the 1940s such a statement was unprecedented and frightening to the white community. I think that the United States government decided that he would have to be eradicated as far as his ability to reach the public was concerned."

Robeson declared, "It is a matter of record that my father opposed the unjust government, triumphed over it after years of hard struggle and went on a final world tour that was internationally acclaimed and generally conceded to be brilliantly successful."

In 1969, Rutgers University, from which Robeson Sr. was graduated with a Phi Beta Kappa key as class valedictorian and all - America football player, dedicated a student lounge to him.

Discrimination Suits Filed

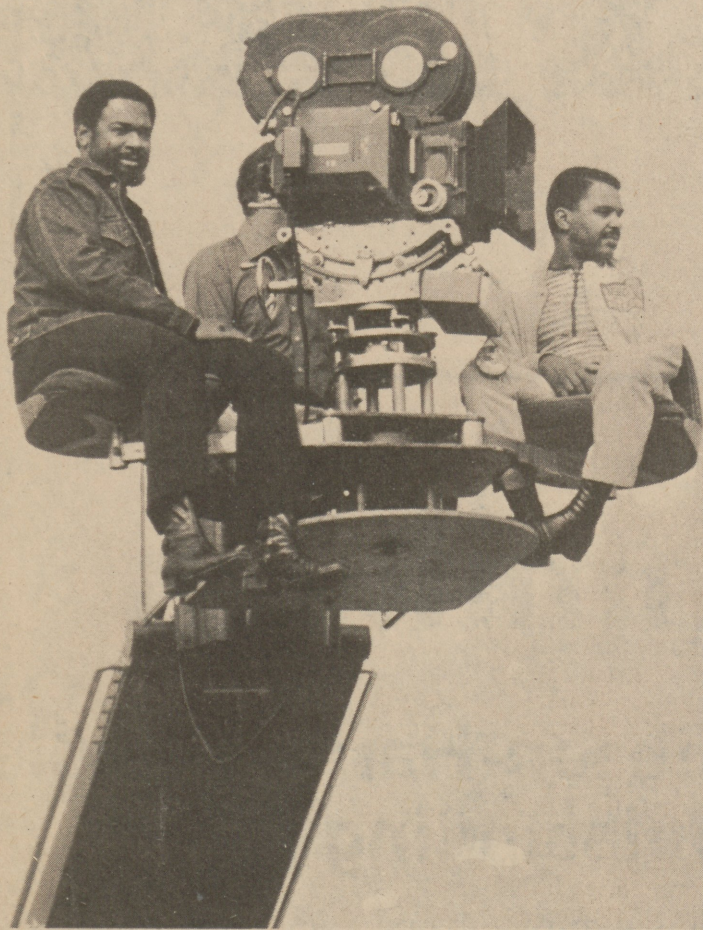

The Department of Justice filed civil suit Thurs. June 29, 1972 against the East Texas Motor Freight Co. and two labor unions, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America; and the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers. The suit was brought on because of discrimination against peoples of African and Spanish origin, thus depriving them of job opportunities or advancement within the motor freight firm.

The suit charged that the Texas firm has only 310 blacks among its 3,800 employees, and that among its 794 drivers, there are no blacks and only nine persons with Spanish surnames.

Former Iowan Making Movies

RIDING HIGH—Ivan Dixon, former co-star of the "Hogan's Heroes" series and currently director of the JDF/B production for 20th Century-Fox release, "Trouble Man", and camera operator Joe Wilcots align the camera for an upcoming scene. Wilcots, hired onto the production as an assistant cameraman (there are 18 Black assistant cameramen in the film industry), was later promoted to camera operator, making him the first Black man to hold that position in either the Hollywood or New York locals of the cameramen's union.

Joe Wilcots, who was hired onto the JDF/B production for 20th Century-Fox release, "Trouble Man," as an assistant cameraman, was promoted during production of the action-drama, starring Robert Hooks, to the position of camera operator, making Wilcots the first Black person to hold that job in either the Hollywood or New York locals of the International Photographers (IATSE).

Wilcots, an assistant cameraman for eight years and a former Iowan, was sponsored for membership into the previously all-white union by "Trouble Man" director Ivan Dixon, executive producer-screenwriter John D.F. Black and producer Joel D. Freeman.

The young cameraman first became interested in photography when, as an eager six-year-old, he received an inexpensive camera as a Christmas gift. Later, as a junior high-school student, he decided to pursue a career in motion picture photography and eventually direct films, which is still his ultimate goal.

At age 11 he read a book by movie producer Mervyn LeRoy, "It Takes More Than Talent," which detailed how to get started in the motion picture industry. Recalling that decisive beginning, Wilcots states that he followed the book religiously and finally got into the industry. "I haven't met Mr. LeRoy yet, but I owe him a lot," he says.

When the young camera buff later joined the Navy, he became involved in all phases of photography and met a friend with whom he made a pact: the first out of the service and established in a job would help the other when he got out. His friend, Dick Edlund, followed through on their promise and helped Joe get work as an assistant cameraman for an optical effects company which did subcontract work for movies and television shows.

The first movie Wilcots actually worked on as a regular assistant cameraman was Gordon Parks' "The Learning Tree" for MGM. After his mandatory five years as an assistant (a union rule), Joe was eligible to become a camera operator. He had been promised such a promotion 12 times from various directors and producers before Ivan Dixon came along.

The problem was basically a simple one: the director of photography is allowed to choose his own camera operator and they generally work closely together wherever they go; they know each other's habits and abilities and things move more smoothly for the production as a whole if the cinematographer knows he can depend on his operator. "Trouble Man," however, presented an opportune situation.

WASHINGTON—(NBNS)—Mrs. Yvonne Brathwaite, a black Los Angeles lawyer and a California assemblywoman, has been elected permanent Vice Chairman of the Democratic National Convention which opens in Miami on July 10.

Mrs. Brathwaite's selection by acclamation of the convention's rules Committee came after another candidate, Rep. Patsy T. Mink (D-Hawaii), withdrew from contention.

Withdrawal of Mrs. Mink's candidacy avoided a potential floor fight between the black caucus and women's caucus. The two groups, which had originally united behind the candidacy of Mrs. Mink, split after they failed in their effort to oppose the nomination of Lawrence O'Brien to serve as Convention Chairman.

Mrs. Brathwaite, who is also the Democratic nominee for a House seat in a predominantly Democratic Los Angeles District, will serve under O'Brien at the Convention.

WICHITA, Kan.—(NBNS)—Rep. Shirley Chisholm (D-N.Y.), herself a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, says that the only combination the Democrats could come up with to beat President Nixon would be Senator Edward M. Kennedy for President and Wilbur Mills for Vice President.

News Briefs

"I think the ticket's going to be Kennedy-Mills," Mrs. Chisholm said. "I could see Kennedy and Mills merging on a ticket a long time ago."

The New York lawmaker concluded that "Nixon became President as a result of his Southern strategy. If the Democrats want to win, we have to have a Southerner on the ticket—that's basic politics."

SAN FRANCISCO—(NBNS)—George Jackson's parents have filed a $15 million lawsuit claiming the shooting death of their son at California's San Quentin Prison last August resulted from "intentional wrongdoing or neglect."

The suit filed in U.S. District Court here names defendants as Associate Warden James L. Park, Marin County District Attorney Bruce Bales, and Attorney General Evelle Younger. Jackson's parents contend that the convict-author was "set up" and "summarily executed."

WASHINGTON—(NBNS)—Testifying before a hearing of the Congressional Black Caucus on "Governmental Lawlessness," former Attorney General Ramsey Clark said that the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration was giving local governments millions to buy electronic surveillance systems, high-powered guns, riot control devices and even airplanes.

"We are slowly buying ourselves into a police state," Clark pointed out. He noted that much of the money was going to control blacks and other minorities instead of protecting them against the crime that often wracks their neighborhoods.

"If we seek to use the police simply to make people keep their places, then we will know violence, and we should," Clark concluded.

SAN DIEGO—(NBNS)—A predominantly black medical association is mounting a nationwide campaign to eliminate racial imbalance among doctors. About 6,000 of the nation's 350,000 physicians are black.

Dr. Julius Hill, President of the Golden State Medical Association said that the nation needed 30,000 black doctors, 15,000 Mexican-American doctors, 4-5,000 American Indian doctors and 2,500 Puerto Rican doctors to achieve parity with the white medical profession.

REV. ORZEALYA M. ROBERSON

REV. ORZEALYA M. ROBERSON AND I BEGAN THIS INTERVIEW on Thursday night in a five minute phone call, resumed it on Saturday night over dinner. The dateline is an interesting fact of the occasion, it seems to me. But that is beside the point! Let's read the why of it all! And let's take first things first:

REV. ROBERSON RECEIVED A VISITOR, Mr. John Frelich, who is the Model Cities lead man from HUD, Omaha, Nebraska, in her office at Friendship City, this past Thursday, June 29. Rev. Robinson indicated that she "was indeed inspired to have shared such a comforting, educational and informative session with Mr. Frelich."

SHE NEXT DESCRIBED FRIENDSHIP CITY's new look, its expansion program! "We have the L.G. Young Friendship City, 925 Ninth Street, opened Dec. 20, 1963, and have taken care of all that we could of men on parole and on work release. We have helped the alcoholic and men addicted to drugs. NOW WE HAVE NEVER BEEN SETUP HERE TO HELP WOMEN with problems. So Mr. Ted Wallman, assistant warden of the Women's Reformatory at Rockwell City, Iowa, came to Des Moines several weeks ago and asked if I would help with women prisoners. I told him yes. Well, we don't have any money, but the same thing we used in the beginning. Faith, is all we have to work with. And so I say tonight I don't have the funds to help the women so the only thing I can do is give up my residence at 1112 Ninth Street. I am signing it over to Prisoner's Rehabilitation Service, Inc. I have named it the Orzealya House. I will help women needing assistance, who come to me - special cases assigned by various agencies. The home will primarily be concentrated on helping women in trouble of some kind.

IT IS ANOTHER FIRST! Friendship City is the first halfway house and The Orzealya House will be the first home for women.

A THIRD UNDERTAKING IN THE EXPANSION PROGRAM is a home for children and youth. "This will be our third venture, this home for children. You will remember that Jesus said Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for such is the Kingdom of Heaven." I asked about finances. She responded: "I don't know anything about it. I really don't know. I will look to the people. It's where we came from with Friendship City and it's where we will return - to the people. It will be called The Zephath Group Home for children and youth."

PARIS FOODLAND REMAINS UPPERMOST on our lists of things to do and places to go. It is Paris Williams turn to depend on our patronage and support. You, and you, or you or I may be the next persons launching some effort and depending upon the citizenry of Des Moines to remember us, patronize us. It is not necessary that we do all of our shopping there but it is extremely vital that we do some of it there. It is imperative that we drive or walk there and purchase something. Let's all pull together on this one thing and when another person needs backing, then let's back them. White and black, black and white, let's all spend something with Paris Foodland. If you've a better way of saying this mail it to me and I will use it! But let's pull.

Salem refreshes naturally!

Natural Menthol™ is why.

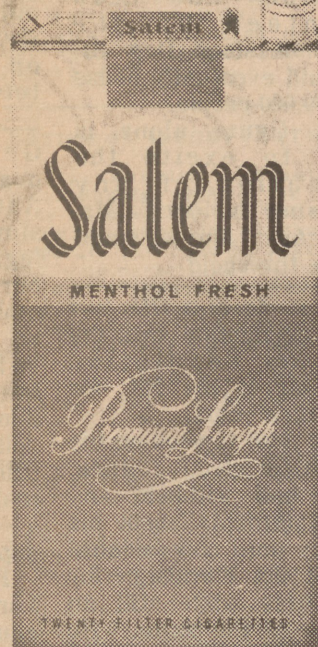

Salem uses only natural menthol, not the kind made in a laboratory. Like our rich, full-flavored tobaccos, our menthol is naturally grown.

Then we blend natural menthol with our superb golden tobaccos. It is a unique blend found in no other cigarette. A blend that gives Salem a taste that's never harsh or hot...a taste as naturally cool and fresh as Springtime.

Your Refund From Iowa Power

The Iowa State Commerce Commission has issued a ruling on the IPALCO's rate increase request which had been filed originally in January, 1971. Initially the Commission asked for a $5.2 million increase and had been collecting the requested rates under bond since June, 1971.

The order issued today approves 54% of the Company's request, or $2,800,000 annually for an average increase of 5%. The order has become final, resulting in refunds to customers of approximately $3.17 million, including interest and sales taxes. This amount covers, according to the Commission, "the 15 months the higher rates will have been in effect by September 1 when the lower rates will apply."

HUD Backs Black Builders

A ranking official of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development today stressed the growing importance of new communities to black building entrepreneurs.

Addressing a Kansas City, Mo., luncheon meeting of the National Association of Minority Contractors, HUD General Assistant Secretary Samuel C. Jackson said that the 10 new towns whose obligations had been guaranteed by the Government since Dec. 31, 1970, would eventually house nearly 700,000 people.

"That figure alone is enough to excite the imagination of any enterprising builder," Mr. Jackson said. "And we stand but on the threshold."

November election. He has been an accountant with the utilities regulation department of the ICC for the past nine years.

Forret, who is seeking his first political elective office, said he had withheld any public statements about his candidacy until now because "I would not campaign for public office while still an employee of the state." He has requested and received an election leave of absence from the Iowa Merit Employment Department.

In his statement, Forret said, "I differ in many ways with the incumbent Auditor, but the major one is a matter of the priorities. The incumbent's emphasis has been on historical audits when I believe that information from current audits is crucially needed at all levels of government."

SBA Opens Disaster Loan Offices

WASHINGTON, D.C., June 27—Thirty-four emergency offices were placed in operation today by the U.S. Small Business Administration to bring financial help to flood victims in the five-state area of Florida, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York.

Thomas S. Kleppe, SBA Administrator said, "We are responding to President Nixon's call for massive aid to these unfortunate people by organizing the largest disaster task force in the Agency's history in record time."

The field offices will serve 106 cities and counties designated by SBA as the first in which homeowners and businessmen may receive longterm, low-interest federal loans. Eleven new counties in Pennsylvania, not previously announced, were added this morning. They are Armstrong, Allegheny, Beaver, Chester, Clearfield, Fayette, Mifflin, Perry, Philadelphia, Schuylkill and Westmoreland.

Additional cities and counties are expected to be declared disaster areas as SBA teams survey the damage in the wake of Hurricane Agnes.

Kleppe said that generally homeowners are eligible to borrow up to $55,000 for damage to homes and personal property, businesses up to $500,000. The loans may be for as long as 30 years and the current interest rate is set at 5-1/8%.

The 106 cities and counties declared to date are eligible for a forgiveness on SBA loans. Borrowers must repay the first $500 of a loan and any amount borrowed over $3,000. Repayment is waived on amounts borrowed between $500 and $3,000.

General Assembly is neglected by the current Auditor because he has simply failed to provide legislators with sufficient current audits at budget making time. What is needed is some up-to-date information so our lawmakers aren't forced to allocate our millions of tax dollars in the dark."

Forret and his wife, Lorraine, live in Adel. The couple has three married children.

Reverse Death Sentence

WASHINGTON, D.C.— In an unanimous decision yesterday, the United States Supreme Court reversed the death sentence of a Black Alabama man, Johnnie Daniel Beecher, in a case brought by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund. The Court found that a confession used by the State to secure Beecher's conviction was involuntary and should not have been admitted into evidence at his 1969 trial. This was the second time that the United States Supreme Court has reversed the Beecher case on practically identical grounds.

Mr. Beecher was originally convicted in 1964 and sentenced to death for allegedly killing a white Alabama woman. In that first trial the State relied upon a confession obtained from Beecher after he had sustained a severe leg wound (the leg was later amputated), and while he was under the influence of morphine administered by a doctor and fearful for his life. The Supreme Court ruled that confession inadmissible and three months later, the State of Alabama retried the petitioner. At that second trial, the State sought to rely upon a statement by Beecher made to a doctor within an hour after his apprehension and initial confession to the police. Terming this subsequent confession also a product of "gross coercion," the United States Supreme Court again reversed the lower court.

Lynn Walker and Jack Himmelstein, Mr. Beecher's attorneys at the NAACP Legal Defense Fund's Capital Punishment Project, commented that "we cannot help but be relieved to learn that Mr. Beecher will not be electrocuted, and that such lawless infringement upon the rights of Blacks by the State of Alabama will not go unrectified in the Supreme Court." Mr. Beecher has been on death row in Alabama's Holman Prison since 1964 and has come very close to execution on several occasions.

Sports Then

With Allen Ashby

The baseball season makes me wonder where all of the semi-pro teams as they were called, went. Time was when just about every town that could field nine males had a baseball team, and there was a special section on the sports pages for their news, and challenges to other teams. Of course, there were some conflicting reports coming out of some games. For instance, team A reported that it had beaten team B, only to have team B report in a couple of days later and say it wasn't so, that they had beaten the socks off team A. This led to what seemed like a policy of not putting in more than one story about the games. If you wanted to get your story in, you had better get it in first.

There were a lot of those teams around Des Moines.

Drake Releases Honor Roll

Drake University students named to the President's and Deans' Honor Lists number 823 for the 1972 spring semester.

Some of those included from the College of Business Administration are Jane Alexander, Excelsior, Minn.; Thomas Boyce, 3800 Harding Rd.; Lee Ellingson, 1144 20th St.; WDM: George Frampton, 3415 Franklin Ave.; William Hunnell, 2800 Fleur Dr.; and Danne Olthoff, 1075 33rd.

and more than a few black teams, since white teams didn't seem to use black talent. There were some good teams around the state with at least a couple of them capable of playing with just about any team in the state including the minor league teams. The Algona Brownies became famous throughout northern Iowa and in neighboring states of North and South Dakota and Minnesota. People who saw them say they could have played in the Western league as it was constituted then, and held their own. Then there was a coal mining town of Buxton in south central Iowa and they had a team called the Buxton Wonders, and they were said to be just about the toughest club around that part of the state.

Here in Des Moines there were a lot of teams that went out and played in various Iowa towns and they did pretty well because they always drew well. The earliest team I remember was the Invincibles, and I don't know how good they were, but folks say they lost very few games. Probably the team that lasted the longest was the Capitol City Giants. They fielded a team for a number of years when it looked like there were no more ball clubs.

There was a team on the South side called the Des Moines Cubs that played anybody who asked for a game, and some who didn't ask for one. I don't think I ever saw them play, but I remember that a couple of their best players were Jesse Frazier, a pitcher, and Jap Simmons, at second base.

Probably the best played game between black teams was the game between a club of youngsters called the Independents and the Capitol City Giants. They played to a packed house at the old league park after weeks of arguing about who was the best. As I recall it, the Independents won 3 to 1, and the next day a traveling club called the Omaha Goblins came along and took the heart of the club away, and they all just about hobbled back home. Another good team was the one sponsored by Buck Scott, who was Mr. Pool Hall in the city for years. He had a club called Scott's Little Giants. They featured a hard hitting catcher named Lum Williams and a pitcher named Foster Blake who was probably as good as any league pitcher in the Western. There was a semi pro league in the city, but black teams were excluded. Well, Scott's team played the league winners in a game billed as for the city title. There was a capacity crowd at the ball park that day and the Little Giants embarrassed a pitcher the league champs were said to have brought from St. Louis and won all the marbles.

But it wouldn't be complete without mentioning the Black Barons. They were originally a team of East side fellows, but they were held together by Hauggie Thompson, mainly because he loved to play baseball, and besides, I suspect he picked up a few bucks each year as the booking agent and manager. But, no matter what the reason was for keeping the team alive, Thompson was the last of the fellows to try to take a team out on the road, and when he finally gave it up, things fell apart and there was no more semi pro ball as we knew it.

There are several blacks playing with teams around the city and state wherever this kind of baseball is played, but you have to see them to know who they are. Sometimes I wonder if we didn't have more fun with out clubs. We had to play with each other, but we developed a fine relationship among ourselves, and took a fierce pride in beating the best the white teams had to offer. The better a team was supposed to be, the more we wanted to tangle with them, and often did, sometimes wishing we hadn't been so hasty.
