Lead Poisoning Control for Model Cities

Eating lead paint can cause brain damage, kidney damage, or death.

The Lead Poisoning Control Program of the Des Moines-Polk County Health Department, which has been working in other prime service areas in Des Moines, has arrived in Model Cities. A top priority of the program is to find children who may be in danger of permanent brain damage or even death from lead poisoning before they develop the obvious symptoms.

A child who eats only the amount of lead that may be found in a fingernail sized lead paint chip once a day for three months can have a serious health problem. The first symptoms a child may have can be easily passed over by the parents. The crankiness, belly-ache, constipation, or diarrhea that a lead poisoned child may have can be thought by a parent to be a small problem that will go away in a day or two. By the time the child goes into convulsions it may be too late to prevent permanent brain damage. The child may even die.

The Lead Poisoning Control Program provides free blood tests to children in the danger ages of one to six. The tests will show how much lead a child has in his or her body and help a doctor to decide whether or not the child needs treatment. If a child is found to have a high level of lead in the blood, the child is referred to the parent's normal source of health care. Then an investigator is sent out to find the source of the child's lead.

Justice Dept. Prosecuting Law Officers

WASHINGTON -- The U.S. Department of Justice obtained indictments against 15 law enforcement officers during October on charges of violating the rights of citizens.

Federal civil rights laws make it a crime for law enforcement officers to inflict punishment on citizens before they have had their day in court.

Ten of those indicted are members of the Galveston, Texas, police force. Six were charged with beating a black man after he had been arrested and handcuffed, while a seventh officer was charged with blackjacking him at the police station.

Three other Galveston policemen were charged with beating a white man on a deserted stretch of beach.

Two policemen in Franklin, North Carolina, and a Macon County deputy sheriff were charged with assaulting a man they were arresting for driving while intoxicated.

Two Wayne County, Michigan, deputy sheriffs were charged with assaulting a federal prisoner in the county jail at Detroit after he objected to being placed in a cell with black prisoners. The prisoner and one deputy are white, and the other deputy is black.

Strong Recommendations Toward Community Control of Police

On Wednesday, Nov. 15th, the results of secret hearings were made public by the Community Action Committee. The hearings which lasted 9 hours were held on October 31, 1972 at the Black Theology Center. Estimates of the total number of witnesses had run as high as 50, however, a total of 33 witnesses was revealed in the 47 page report. The names of the individual witnesses were withheld to protect their identities until any court action is completed.

Thirty of the 33 witnesses reside in areas that are predominately Black. There were 17 male witnesses and 16 female witnesses. The ages of the witnesses vary widely. For example, the youngest witness who testified was 16 years old; the oldest witness was 57 years of age. Witnesses' occupations also varied widely. Many were professionals, for example: schoolteachers, social workers, pharmacists, etc. There were housewives and college students, and the witnesses' employers ranged widely also, including Meredith Publishing Corporation, Northwestern Bell Telephone Company, City of Des Moines, Safeway Stores, Concentrated Employment Program and Farm Bureau Insurance.

EXAMPLES OF TESTIMONIES

1. A minister's wife received a knock at her door early in the morning. She stated that she was partially dressed and cracked the door to determine who was knocking. Upon cracking the door she noticed a outside and the two males at the door advised her to open up. She told them that she was not fully clothed and that she would be right back. The individual, however, pushed his foot into the door and entered, where she then obtained a bathrobe. She stated that she had no idea that they were policemen until they finally showed her some identification after she continually requested it. Her entire house was searched and she was advised that they were looking for an individual for whom they had a warrant. She stated that she consistently advised them that the individual did not live in her home, and after the search she stated the policemen admitted that they had made an error.

Sears Signs Agreement With SCLC Chapter

rebuild the black community, through the elimination of unemployment and the establishment of an economic base controlled by blacks."

In addressing a crowd of nearly 2,000 Sears striking employees during the walk-out, the Rev. Williams stated, "This is the big one; this is the one we have been waiting for. The same God lives today that lived in ages past. Therefore, if little David could whip the mighty Goliath, certainly all of us can convert Sears, Roebuck & Company."

For many years Sears, Roebuck & Company has claimed to be an equal opportunity employer. Sears' acclaim to be an equal opportunity employer has been largely liberal rhetoric, while Sears has continued its historic practice of overt racial discrimination.

Among the 33 benefits granted black employees, which includes the recognition of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday as a holiday, the most important was Sears agreement to accelerate the employment and promotions of blacks into vacancies as they occur in all phases of employment where they have not achieved the EEOC Affirmative Action goals, until the employment of blacks is representative of the racial balance of the area where the store is located. Meaning, if blacks are 51 per cent of Atlanta's population, - then they must have 51 per cent of the jobs from the tip to the bottom.

The ballet, a visual and musical delight for children of all ages, is the story of a Christmas party where young Clara receives a nutcracker as a gift from the mysterious Dr. Drosselmeyer. Later she drifts off to sleep

LEAD POISONING MODEL CITIES

The most likely source of lead poisoning in children is lead paint that is flaking and chipping. Often the paint has a sweet taste and once a child tries it he will come back for more. Most often the dangerous paint is in or on houses built before 1950, but children have also been poisoned by eating the paint on cribs and toys. It has only been in the last few years that the Federal Government banned the use of lead paint in children's toys. It is the investigator's job to find the particular source of lead for each child that has a high lead level. The investigator will also inspect for free the property of anyone who asks him to come. He is trained to advise the property owner of the best and most inexpensive way where visions of sugarplums; lively mice; Russian, Spanish and Chinese dancers; waltzing flowers enliven her dreams.

The Des Moines Civic Ballet was formed in 1966 and has grown in capabilities and professional stature with each year. In the cast this year are Patricia Thomas, daughter of Bishop and Mrs. Thomas; Adrienne Gentry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nolden Gentry; Kevin Edwards, son of Sgt. and Mrs. Jack D. Edwards.

Tickets are available for the 2:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. performances at the Des Moines Savings and Loan Association, Sixth and Mulberry or at the C.Y. Stephens. Prices are $2.00, 3.00 and 4.00, with a $1.00 discount from the ticket price for students.

CONTROL COMES TO

of eliminating the lead hazards. For those people in the prime service areas who meet established income guidelines, there is money to help remove the lead hazards which the Lead Poisoning Control Program says must be removed.

Field Interviewers will be going house to house in the Model Cities area to tell people about the problem of lead poisoning and to tell parents where they may bring their children for testing.

The first clinic in Model Cities will be at the Center for the Study and Application of Black Theology, 1016 Forest Ave. The dates the first clinic will be open are November 29th and 30th, and December 4th through December 7th.

Reports Recommend Legal Action Be Taken

2. Another witness, a black male, related that he was on the outside of the cordoned off area the night of the raid and was told to drive into the area. Subsequently, he and his car were searched. At no time were his rights explained to him and no warrants were shown that would have legally allowed a search of his automobile.

3. A 16-year-old black female was outside of the lounge on October 13, 1972, and when the raid began she fled to the interior of one of the lounges. The police then came inside the lounge and she was then asked for identification. She showed her identification, whereupon she was arrested for being under age and taken to jail. She stated that she tried to explain the situation, but to no avail. This female juvenile remained in jail for three days before being released to her parents. She also stated that there were other individuals within the same cell as she, all of whom were adults.

4. Another witness, a black male who was employed by the Des Moines School System as a teacher, reported that he has been stopped for identification checks 10 times within a four-month span by the same patrolman. He further states that he has been arrested six times. However, he has only been convicted once and at that time the conviction was for a misdemeanor for disturbing the peace which involved an argument between him and his sister.

He was once arrested for an illegal activity that was committed during the time he was in school teaching a class. That witness is in his middle twenties and drives a 1972 automobile.

5. A college student at Area XI was stopped between October 12 and October 14, 1972, by the police nine times for identification checks.

6. A 22-year-old black male states that he was in the raid area and his personal effects and his automobile were searched by the police. He states that no rights were explained to him and that he was not shown any identification even though he had requested it during the search. He further states that one of the officers noticed that approximately 20 feet away on the ground was the end of a marijuana cigarette and accused the witness of throwing it away, whereupon the officer picked it off the ground and placed it in the witness' cigarette pack. The witness then states that he was arrested and charged with possession.

7. A mother of five was in one of the lounges when the raid began. She states that after showing her identification she was told to leave. When she went to her car there were other policemen there and they requested to search her car. She refused and requested to see a warrant. She states that the officer then answered, "This is my warrant", and pointed his weapon at her. She further states that she then allowed the search and after the search was completed she was told to leave the area.

8. Another black male, who is employed by the Des Moines School System as a teacher, states that his car was parked in the lounge area during the raid and he was requested to allow the police to search his automobile. He requested identification and a search warrant, which the police refused to show. The officer then placed his hand on his weapon and allegedly stated, "Here is my warrant".

9. The proprietor of another establishment in the raid area stated that when the police came into his establishment they showed their badges and a search warrant. He stated the warrant was to check the liquor supply and storeroom. He further stated that after the search was concluded, which involved more than looking at his liquor supply and storeroom, he was told to close his establishment for the night even though nothing irregular was found.

From the information obtained from various witnesses, certain patterns have evolved:

1. It appears that an individual is most likely to be stopped and identification requested if he is a black male between the ages of 21 and 30 and driving a late model automobile.

2. From testimony of 30 of the 33 witnesses, 30 of them say that they had never been advised of their rights nor was any warrant ever given to them before a search was initiated.

3. From the testimony obtained there was no pattern of following of the prescribed rights for juveniles.

4. On October 13, 1972, during the raid and subsequently during the hearings, all witnesses testified that they had not been informed of their rights by the law enforcement officials that conducted the raid.

5. Most persons stated that they had no idea if the men conducting the raid were, in fact, law enforcement officials since most of them immediately involved were in plain clothes. A large majority of the witnesses initially thought that the law enforcement officials were gangsters either making a robbery or looking for a particular person, for example: a contract on a pusher.

6. All of the witnesses testifying as to the October 13th raid stated, with only one exception, that at no time were badges, identification or search warrants shown during the raid.

7. All of the women and some of the men interviewed stated that they were quite fearful for their lives during the entire course of the raid.

8. Profanity, with racial overtones, was used by law enforcement officials numerous times during the raid, and this allegation was substantiated by a majority of the witnesses.

9. Guns were drawn and pointed at vehicles and individuals by the law enforcement officials and threats were made during the course of the raid.

10. There was a general agreement by the witnesses that the police were being vindictive against the black community and that the raid was simply used as a vehicle to create fear within the community. It is the general feeling that the law enforcement officials, as well as the community, realize that arresting a number of smalltime pushers will never eradicate heroin from this community and that the suppliers are located in the white community. Therefore, if the flow of heroin is to be stopped within the black community, the suppliers must be stopped where it begins in the white community.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. That all law enforcement officials participate in courses designed by the black community and implemented by the black community for sensitivity and awareness on a continuing basis.

2. That the black community control the actions of the police department in the black community.

3. That persons residing in alleged high crime areas be allowed to view any and all records held against them by law enforcement agencies.

4. That in all arrests in which there are no convictions the information, the fingerprint records, mug shots, and any other records pertaining to such arrests be immediately destroyed.

5. That a committee be formed composed of community residents in cooperation with the police department and other law enforcement officials to be used as a watchdog committee. This committee would meet with the chief of police to discuss improper action by policemen and other law enforcement officials in their relationship with the community residents.

6. That all law enforcement agencies begin an in-house investigation to ascertain any and all connections relating to the drug traffic in Des Moines, Polk County, and the State of Iowa. It is further recommended that this investigation begin immediately and information obtained, if necessary, in the same manner that is used against the black community.

7. That the process of community hearings be continued in the future until all vestiges of harassment, degradation and dehumanization are removed from the community.

8. That U.S. Attorney Allen Donielson be immediately dismissed from office.

9. That the federal office of Drug Abuse Law Enforcement (DALE) activities in Des Moines, Iowa, be immediately suspended pending a full investigation into the methods and manner used in the raid of October 13, 1972.

10. That criminal charges against law enforcement officials be investigated by the County and Federal Grand Juries with full transcripts of the Community Action Committee at their disposal.

11. That damage suits be immediately instituted against all law enforcement officials involved in the drug raid of October 13, 1972.

12. That law enforcement officials shall be restrained from selectively enforcing the law so as to discriminate against individuals

What Do Your Hip Huggers Reveal?

By Charles A. Bucher

The Mod look for gals these days includes skin-tight hip huggers, mini skirts that end before they get started, see-thru tops, bare midriffs, backless halter tops and no bras under clinging knits. Even once conservative males were wearing double knits that show off every ripple of muscle.

The new look reveals and accentuates what's underneath. If it's a well-developed body and good posture, it's aesthetically appealing. Unfortunately, if too often reveals the forward head, sway back, protruding abdomen, drooping shoulders, sagging bust, knock-knees and other earmarks of poor posture.

Good posture pays visual dividends. If your posture is good, your appearance will be pleasing to others. Merely by standing correctly you can enhance your looks.

O'Jays Receive Gold

O'JAYS RECEIVED GOLD RECORDS - Walter Williams, William Powell and Eddie Lavert (from left) who comprise the O'Jays, joyfully hold on to gold records presented to them in a special ceremony held recently in Philadelphia as Bruce Lundvall and Logan Westbrooks, vice president and director of special markets for Columbia Records respectively, look on. Gold discs were presented after their Philadelphia International smash single, "Back Stabbers," sold over one million copies.

A woman who tucks in her pelvis, straightens her back and pulls back her shoulders can flatten her abdomen and increase her bust - measurement. Another important benefit is physical in nature. Many a backache is a result of poor posture. The muscles and organs of your body are affected by the way you stand, sit, lie or walk.

Good posture permits better circulation of the blood, efficient heart action and the proper functioning of other bodily organs.

Posture refers to the relationship of the skeletal, muscular and nervous systems when the body is in motion or at rest. There are essentially two kinds of posture. Static posture refers to the body at rest. Dynamic posture is the posture of the body in motion, while walking, running or moving in other ways.

MARINE CUT OFF HIS OWN HAND. OFFICIALS SAY

An Okinawan newspaper, in a copyright story, said that the injury had been inflicted by black Marines

The Marine officials, in denying the false report, said Hospitalman 3C Richard Bridges, 22, cut off his hand by making several cuts with a surgical instrument, after numbing it with novocaine.

ATLANTA MUST COME UP WITH SCHOOL PLAN

ATLANTA — (NBNS) — The Atlanta School Board must come up with a school desegregation plan by Nov. 27, the nation's High Court ruled last week.

The Supreme Court upheld an earlier decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals of Oct. 6 which found Atlanta to be a city which needed to further desegregate.

A District Court had found that no further desegregation was needed, but the Appeals disagreed. The city board then appealed the decision to the Supreme Court claiming that the short time allotted by the Circuit Court "is simply inadequate for the formulation of a workable desegregation plan." The court refused to hold up the order until September, 1973 as the board requested.

Sports Then

With Allen Ashby

Wouldn't you know it. After I finally got my all star team on the road, and I know I left off some good men. I ran into a fellow who was in school during that period of the forties and followed the teams during the fifties, and he rattled off so many players that I had left off that I began to wonder where I did pick up the players I did come up with. So I told him to make a list of the players he knew of the period from 1940 to 1960 and I would pick it up. I can always come up with another ball club. But then I did ask for help in picking that team, and didn't get much. The only fellow who tried to help had the name of the fellow he sent in wrong and also the years he played.

Now the emergence of the big running quarterbacks makes me wonder where they have been all these years. There is some difference between the present day signal callers and the ones of the early days. Then they were strictly on their own. Any hint of coaching from the sidelines brought a fifteen yard penalty. Of course there were some plays sent in by sending in certain players. When a fellow came in the quarterback was to call a certain play, and the coach had deemed that then was the time to call it. But, most of the time the fellow out there had to look for his own help. He had to check and find where the fellow who made the last tackle came from, who missed his block or just what did happen. He had to know the blocking assignment of every fellow on the team, and had to know when those assignments were being carried out. Of course it wasn't quite as tough on defensive alignments as it is now. Then most of the teams had either a six or seven man line with two or maybe three linebackers.

So you would probe the team, first by starting outside tackle, then maybe up the middle, and then inside tackle. In each huddle you asked your linemen what they could do with their men. Often you asked your pass catchers what they could do, and that determined your strategy. When things got tough near the end of the game or half, you couldn't walk over to the sidelines and ask the coach what to do. Sometimes the coach would send in a message. But that was tough because the incoming sub couldn't even join the huddle until one play had been run. I can recall a high school game that we nearly lost because we had the ball on our opponent's 6 yard line, had run two plays and our coach thought he ought to tell me to call a pass. Well, the sub came running out onto the field yelling at the top of his voice, "Coach says pass!" We got a fifteen yard penalty and managed to come up with a score due to some fine running by our ball carrier. Don't think the sub ever did live down that one. Another feature that made it tough to come up with some strategy was the fact that a player couldn't re-enter the game in the same quarter that he left in. Sometimes that helped because the coach would take out his quarterback maybe just before a quarter ended and let him watch the game so he could figure out something. Then he could get some advice from the coach. Some teams with good reserves used to rest the whole starting lineup like that just before the half ended, and send them back in at the start of the second half. You didn't have anyone upstairs calling plays to the head coach that might work. The only help you got had to come during the talk between halves or from the coach when he'd bench you for a brief rest.

But, with the emphasis on running, the teams knew that one or two scores would win the ball game for your team, so you sometimes set up the other team to use a weak spot in their defense at a crucial moment or for the game winning score. You didn't pound it until the other team took the guy out and put in a stronger player. You did all you could to keep him in there until you needed that yardage through that spot. Then it didn't matter. One thing the running quarterbacks do that those old fellows had to do is block, and they seem to do that as well as running. I think Jimmy Jones of Southern Cal was the first good blocking quarterback I saw in this modern football. Maybe there were others and I missed them. Oh, well, bet we had more fun than the guys do today.

Panther on Trial for Shootings

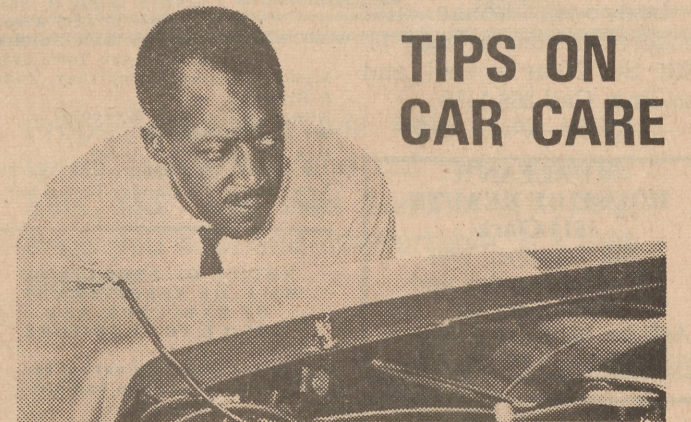

By National Black News Service

NEW YORK — (NBNS) — A 27 year-old member of the Black Panthers went on trial last week in State Supreme Court in Manhattan on charges of attempted murder in a machine-gun shooting in which two policemen were seriously wounded last year.

Richard Moore is accused of firing a barrage of machine-gun shells from a car in May, 1971 at two policemen standing guard near the home of Manhattan District Attorney Frank S. Hogan. The attack came six days after Moore and 12 other Panthers were acquitted of conspiring to blow up department stores and police stations.

Moore, who was acquitted in absentia after jumping $100,000 bail and fleeing to Algeria in February, was living with three other Panthers in the Bronx at the time of the shooting. Terence O'Reilly, assistant district attorney, said that the attack remained unsolved until Moore and the other Panthers were arrested June 5, allegedly while robbing a black social club in the Bronx.

TIPS ON CAR CARE

Oil Foils Rust

Louis has a 1966 model car that looks almost as good as it runs. He does a little more than the average fellow might think to do in fighting rust and corrosion.

Once a year Louis applies used oil to key parts of the car body. Oil is very effective in combating rust. Inside the trunk, for example, he lifts the cardboard pad and coats the body panels with oil, letting it ooze over the metal.

At the edges of the doors, he has drilled 1/8-inch holes so that he can squirt oil inside on the door panels with the aid of a small squirt can. Up front, under the hood, he pours on the oil and lets it run down the dripping oil in a thick layer of newspapers.

Louis' protective coating of oil is effective, and, admittedly, a bit messy. He soaks up the dripping oil in a thick layer of newspapers.

For those who may not jump at the idea of throwing oil on their cars, B.F. Goodrich car care experts advise that oil is now obtainable in aerosol cans so that you can spray a thin coating on hard-to-get-to panels and areas of your car.

Other suggestions for keeping the car shipshape include:

Routine washing with one of the commercial car soaps to remove grime. Do not wash in direct sun, however, because the soap will dry quickly and perhaps mar the finish.

At least twice a year wax the car. Whether you use one-step wax or polish and hard wax treatment doesn't matter as much as getting a heavy coat on areas around molding and trim. Wax acts as a sealant and helps prevent rust.

Some of the newer models have sharply sculptured lower panels that may need extra protection against rocks and debris tossed up by the tires.

There are available small deflectors that can be mounted with two or three screws. You can do the job yourself or have them installed usually for under $10 a pair.
