Black Iowa Student Facing Murder Charge Aided By NAACP

NEW YORK— The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has gone to the aid of a black Long Island student who has been jailed in Iowa on charges of murdering a white woman.

The student, Daryl Allen, 24, of West Babylon, was a junior at Tarkio College in Missouri. He was arrested about two weeks after the body of Sharon Barnett, 21, was found in a wooded area close to the Missouri border in Imogene, a tiny town in the southwest corner of Iowa.

The body was discovered in a ditch by an unidentified agent of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation who began a search after Miss Barnett's car was found on a nearby highway with the key in the ignition. Other than the fact that Miss Barnett died as a result of head wounds, very few details have been released on the case.

Consequently, attorneys who were fighting to gain Mr. Allen's release were bitterly frustrated. One hindrance was a heavy snowfall that had fouled telephone lines in Davenport.

Thomas Kelly, Jr., NAACP Iowa State Conference president, reported that Fremont County Attorney Robert Leonard therefore had been unable to return his calls. Telephone calls could go in but not out of the county attorney's office.

Nevertheless, Mr. Kelly and other persons close to the case had strong reservations about the nature of the arrest.

According to news reports, Miss Barnett was a kitchen employee at Tarkio and was being dated by one of Mr. Allen's three roommates, who were white and not identified. This link to Miss Barnett was apparently one of the factors that led to Mr. Allen's arrest.

Other news reports point to a case of mistaken identity. According to Mel Rodgers, a black dean at Tarkio, there are only about 50 students of Mr. Allen's race out of a population of approximately 500. "I'm the only black male in the community within 70 miles," he said.

CAC. calls for all citizens to monitor law enforcement

On Friday, November 24th, a hearing was held in U.S. District court with Judge Hansen presiding to determine if Wendell Nichols, Chief of Police, and Tom Chenoweth, City Manager, both of the city of Des Moines should be enjoined to stop alleged harassment of members of the Community Action Committee. The CAC has been investigating the execution of a drug raid in the Des Moines Black Community on October 13.

Members of the CAC had alleged that they had been unlawfully harassed, intimidated and deprived of the lawful enjoyment of their rights of freedom of speech, the right to peacefully assemble and to petition their government for a redress of grievances. CAC members told of instances of being followed by police and being stopped by police for no stated reason other than "a routine check," and otherwise surveyed during and after meetings. The injunction was denied as CAC members had not made specific identification of dates, officers badge numbers or patrol car numbers.

The CAC is subsequently appealing to all Black citizens of Des Moines to report specific details when observing irregularities in police conduct.

BATON ROUGE, La. — (NBNS)— The student government of Southern University here where two black students were slain by law enforcement officers last week, have charged that the killings were all part of a massive plan.

"The entire massacre was premeditated," said a student government statement released four days following the tragic events here.

Southern University students who have protested school policies for three weeks said last Sunday they overheard sheriff's officers say they were going to "put an end to this mess" the day two unarmed students were killed in a confrontation with tear gas and bullet carrying sheriff's deputies.

"Students who were at the jail house attempting to get the student leaders out of jail overheard the sheriff specifically state: 'I am getting tired of those niggers. We are going to put an end to this mess today.'"

Governor Edwin Edwards, East Baton Rouge Parish Sheriff Al Amiss and Southern President G. Leon Netterville have denied here that there was any plan to force a showdown with the demonstrating students.

The governor has issued conflicting statements on whether or not the deputies at the scene fired the fatal shots that killed the young students.

Immediately after the murders occurred Gov. Edwards flatly denied that the law enforcement officers had fired any shots, only tear gas. Later after viewing some films of the confrontation Edwards said "it is obvious there are discrepancies and uncertainties."

Still later in a meeting with Justice Department's Community Relations Service officials attended by a reporter from the Los Angeles Times, Edwards admitted that the ill-trained sheriff's deputies fired the fatal shots.

He has since denied making the statement.

Charges and counter charges are being hurled by the students, law enforcement officers, the university president and faculty members.

President Netterville denounced charges by some student demonstrators that he conspired to set up a student-police clash that took the lives of the two black students.

After last Thursday's killings, students accused Netterville of fleeing as sheriff's deputies and state troopers surrounded the university administration building which was being occupied by student protesters.

Students deny the deputies statement that they gave the crowd four to five minutes in which to clear the area before firing the teargas and apparently the shotgun shells.

"Nobody called us on the phones, shouted to us or gave any other kind of warning," they maintained.

Two university faculty members associated with the student protest movement were fired this week by Netterville. There were reliable reports that at least four others will also be fired.

Dr. Joseph Johnson, chairman of the physics department was one of those receiving dismissal notices, along with George W. Baker, an assistant professor of engineering. Both had been associated with leaders of Student United, an umbrella campus group.

Protesting students had suggested that Dr. Johnson replace Netterville, whose resignation the students wanted.

"In a grotesque and perverted attempt to deflect blame for this massacre, Dr. Netterville accuses (us) faculty members of not meeting classes," Johnson said after receiving his dismissal notice.

"Black people know whose hands are bloody... Mr. Netterville knows that I have simply encouraged him to resign," said Johnson.

After last Thursday's killings, Gov. Edwards shut down the 8,000 student predominately black campus until after Thanksgiving.

The Justice Department has announced that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is handling a Federal probe into the murders and Attorney General of Louisiana William Just has announced the establishment of a biracial inquiry to do the same.

Students are cynical about the outcomes of such investigations. "It'll end up like Orangeburg and Jackson State," said one embittered student. "Nothing will happen to the dogs who shot them."

Southern University students have been on the cutting edge of civil and human rights demonstrations for more than a decade.

They were early participants in the wave of sit-in demonstrations that swept the South in the early 60's. Southern is the alma mater of former SNCC chairman H. R. Brown and other former SNCC activists.

Still in the vanguard of political developments is the black community. Southern students early this year stopped the unloading of illeg shipments of chrome Racism Show Its Anti-American Nature In Newark N. J.

NEWARK, N.J. — (NBNS) — In this city apocryphally called New Ark by its majority black population, white racists have managed to temporarily halt the construction of a much-needed housing development for low and middle income families.

Kawaia Towers, subject of a fierce controversy here is a 16-story, 210-unit project sponsored by Kawaia Temple, a corporation set up by the Committee for United New Ark (CUN), an organization headed by black nationalist leader Imamu Amiri Baraka.

"Kawaia" is a Swahili word embracing the concept of the principles of work, unity and self-determination upon which CUN is based.)

White groups have objected to the building of the project and last week threatened to picket the construction site to prevent workmen from resuming construction after a three-day shutdown already caused by threatened acts of terrorism by angry white demonstrators.

Last week, Superior Judge Irwin I. Kimmelman ordered a seven-day "cooling off period" on the building on which Kawaia Temple has spent nearly $1 million of a $6.4 million, 48-year mortgage from the New Jersey Housing Finance Agency.

Judge Kimmelman made his ruling after John Cervase, lawyer for a white group, had said that his clients would picket the site and warned that there might be violence.

This again eastern seaboard city is noted throughout black communities in the nation for the skillful political organizing of the black population accomplished by Baraka and his followers.

The election of New Ark's black Mayor Kenneth Gibson is widely attributed to the political organizing and finesse of Baraka, and his pervasive influence is felt throughout New Ark's black cultural and political life.

This influence has also been duly noted by the city's remaining white residents most of whom live in the North ward, where Kawaia Towers is being built. They regard North ward as part of their last remaining turf, and therein lies the violent opposition to having the black-sponsored development built here.

"North Ward used to be white," says Baraka, with stress on the word "used."

"Blacks and Puerto Ricans now comprise some 30 per cent of North Ward now," he noted.

Baraka also attempts to negate the bad image that high-rise buildings have acquired because of the social ills attributed to them.

"It's lack of amenities and services within these kinds of buildings that traditionally have been put up for black folks" that Baraka says have given them a bad name.

"Kawaia will offer the type of services to its potential residents that will avoid the ill effects usually associated with high rise apartments," he says. The building will have a day care center, a community lounge, tenants' hobby shop, audio-visual room and others features including 120 balconies and a compact car as an alternative to air-polluting incinerators.

"Residents will feel like a community rather than tenants," the black nationalist leader emphasizes.

Adding to the tensions now surrounding the building of Kawaia have been the inflammatory words and actions of some white officials and community leaders.

Bond: Gains In Civil Rights Disappearing

Julian Bond

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—(NBNS)—The gains made in the civil rights area "are vanishing today," and much of the blame can be laid on the shoulders of the President, civil rights leader Julian Bond told midshipmen at the U.S. Naval Academy.

In his speech to the mostly white 4,200-man brigade, Bond sharply attacked President Nixon and claimed the civil rights movement was losing a lot of ground today.

"The victories won in the wars of 1954 and 1960 are being destroyed by the winner of the battle of '68 and the rout of '72," Bond told them.

"The comfortable, the callous and the smug closing their ranks and closing their hearts against the claims and calls to conscience put forward by the forgotten and unrepresentative elements in American society," were the real victors when President Nixon was so overwhelmingly elected, the Georgia state legislator said.

The civil rights movement is in "bad shape," Bond said. "What is happening today happened once before in American history in the years just after Reconstruction."

"In both cases an American president made a cynical deal not just with the unreconstructed South but with the national unreconstructed mentality that believed then as it believes now that the American social agenda does not include those at the bottom of the ladder."

He was highly critical of black entertainers who supported the President's re-election bid. He specifically mentioned Sammy Davis Jr. who he said had "a talent for tap dancing," but claimed that was "no substitute for thinking."

He said he believed the Democratic party would continue to be the best political party for blacks.

"If the party doesn't go too far to the right in its attempt to recover what it sees as its lost constituency, then I think it will still be the party for us."

The number of blacks at the Naval Academy have been increasing yearly and there are now elective courses on black history and literature as well as required study of race problems in human relations.

Ignoring the equal opportunity program. He acted following growing incidents aboard Navy ships and at naval installations.

A subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee headed by Rep. Floyd V. Hicks (D-Wash.) has opened closed-door hearings into the incidents.

The hearings opened here with testimony from Vice Adm. David H. Bagley, Navy chief of personnel; followed by testimony in San Diego regarding a sitdown of black sailors aboard the USS Constellation and in Hawaii on a riot aboard the USS Kitty Hawk.

Black Pvt. Acquitted of Fragging

FORT ORD, California—(NBNS)—The young black soldier from Watts who was the first military man brought to trial in the U.S. for "fragging," was acquitted last week of six counts of murder, attempted murder and assault.

A military jury found 24-year-old Pvt. Billy Dean Smith not guilty of the charges that he killed two officers in Vietnam with a fragmentation grenade pin.

The jury, all career officers, reduced Smith's rank from enlisted man's E2 to E1 and ordered that he receive a bad conduct discharge on another assault count.

The panel deliberated on the assault charge after announcing the verdict on the more serious charges. The conviction for assault carried a maximum penalty of one year at hard labor, dishonorable discharge, and reduction to lowest enlisted rank.

If convicted of the murder charges, the young soldier who was a bus driver and mechanic in civilian life, would have faced a mandatory life imprisonment sentence.

On the day of the verdict, the defendant's mother, Mrs. Hazel Smith, was in court along with some 25 other spectators, many of whom wore white buttons with the soldier's picture and the words, "Free Billy Dean Smith."

When the verdict was read Pvt. Smith showed no emotion, but stood and saluted the president of the court. He then embraced members of his family and his attorney, Luke McKissack.

Pleading for leniency, McKissack said Smith was "under a state of stress" when he kicked and spit on one of the Military Policemen who took him into custody after the killings.

The lawyer got an agreement from the prosecutor that Smith, who had been in custody for 20 months, would be excused from further confinement.

But the prosecutor said the incident of spitting on the MP had challenged the Army's principle of good order, and he suggested that the soldier be discharged.

The jury's decision will be reviewed automatically by Maj. Gen. Harold G. Moore, commanding general of Fort Ord, and can be appealed to the U.S. Court of Military Appeals.

Private Smith's trial was the focus of protests by Vietnam Veterans

Against the War and other groups who had expressed concern over the black soldier's getting a fair trial.

In other developments involving racial troubles in the military:

More than 150 black seamen in recent weeks have been brought up on charges following friction on the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk and fleet oiler Hassayampa in Vietnam waters, and the carrier Constellation.

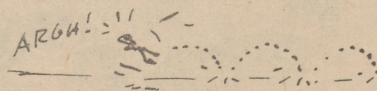

The captain of the Constellation says his ship's personnel troubles were preceded by incidents of suspected sabotage while in combat off Vietnam.

U.S. Marine Cpl. James S. Benjamin of Austin, Tex. went on trial before a Japanese court on charges of killing a houseboy in Okinawa last week.

Theologians: Separatism Best

By National Black News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y.—(NBNS)—A Protestant and a Jewish theologian believe that blacks must follow a path of separatism if they are to survive in America.

Speaking at the opening session of the 1972-73 Institute of Religious Social Studies, Dr. Deborah Partiridge Wolfe and Rabbi David Lieber made the comments during a question-and-answer session after their remarks.

"I think it is a natural step," said Dr. Wolfe, a professor of education at Queens College and an ordained Baptist minister. "I fully agree," said Rabbi Lieber, a professor of philosophies and religion at the Jewish Theological seminary.

Dr. Wolfe said separatism has led to blacks "becoming self-aware and recognizing their own individual strength and developing a kind of group consciousness."

Saying it was "very important, in my estimation in order to develop cohesiveness and strength and I could say black power," Dr. Wolfe, a black, said she did not mean enforced segregation when talking about separatism.

Denies Reforms Hurt Navy

WASHINGTON—(NBNS)—Navy officials, facing congressional investigators concerned with maintaining "absolute discipline" in the armed services, have rejected the charge that reforms introduced by Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, Jr., have weakened discipline in the naval service.

Zumwalt, who took over as chief of naval operations on July 1, 1970, has stirred up the tradition-bound Navy by changing rules on beer, beards and civilian dress, by opening shipboard assignments to women, and especially by demanding racial equality in the service that has the poorest equal opportunity record.

Recently Zumwalt dressed down about 100 of his top admirals and Marine generals for

SUSIE BOURLAND PHILLIPS THANKSGIVING DAY GUESTS places the spotlight on George Bourland, her oldest brother and whose name stands big in the sports world. Susie's houseguests, in addition to Brother George, were her sister, Netti Bourland Phillips, of Bakersfield, California and her niece, June Bourland Bell, of Los Angeles, California. The three planned their vacation time so that they could be here for a family Thanksgiving. I caught up with them for the second week of the trip home, and so bring the following notes:

GEORGE BOURLAND WAS AN EAST HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL STAR in the early 20's and a boxer while in school. He was heavy weight champion of the State. Out of high school in 1930, he turned professional in Chicago. He married his high school sweetheart, Flossie Graves, in 1927 in Chicago. They remained there until 1930, when they moved to Des Moines and George began working at Iowa Packing Company. He dabbled in boxing while working there; this means he was boxing and promoting boxing.

GEORGE OPENED A GYMNASIUM at 513 East 13th Street. He trained boxers there and ran occasional amateur shows there. He entered teams in meets in Chicago, Illinois, and Denver, Colorado. Through Radio Station WHO the Club managed to have someone on the Golden Glove Team each year it was sponsored by WHO.

IN THE EARLY PART OF 1943, the State bought the building. Finding himself without a club, George found work at one of the Terminal Islands of the West Coast in a shipping yard and moved his family there. He is now retired. This he did in May of 1971.

GEORGE NO LONGER HARBORS ANY WISH to be involved in promotional boxing but thinks if there were more gymnasiums and athletic clubs for the younger generation, it might relieve the drug problem and promote thoughts of cleaner living. George works out regularly himself. As proof of his claim that gymnasiums and athletic clubs would make for better living, he cites examples of athletes, who have held to good living: Don Turner, Wm. Moody, Wm. and Wayland Heath and a number of other boxers during the late 30's and early 40's. These have all been a credit to society.

I HAVE GEORGE BOURLAND TO THANK FOR my being Mrs. John E. Johnson. I was secretary to George and John was secretary of the Club Association. George introduced us.

JOHN JOHNSON TELLS OF GEORGE BOURLAND'S VAST APPEAL. John was studying spray painting in Chicago, when an old man told him of the time Jimmy DeForrest, a top notch trainer back in the 20's, who wanted to get George Bourland. DeForrest had trained Luis Angel Firpo, who was called The Wild Bull of the Pampas of Argentina who fought Jack Dempsey for the Heavy Weight Championship of the World. DeForrest wanted George Bourland as a fighter!

TURNING TO MRS. JUNE BOURLAND BELL, George's daughter from Bakersfield, California, I asked what she might add to the Bourland Saga. She told a father and daughter story she will never forget. She had been talking very forcefully to her father. When she had finished, he looked at her quietly and admitted that he was very puzzled as to how he had come this far in life for so long without her guidance. He was frankly puzzled as to how he had made it. (One would remember such a speech, wouldn't one? She recalls the occasion with much merriment!) JUNE operates Jane Lee's a women's clothing shop. She carries little girls' dresses and coats and Catholic uniforms. She also stocks jewelry and accessories for women.

MRS. NETTIE BOURLAND PHILLIPS, of Bakersfield, California, is also visiting a daughter here, Mrs. Joseph Ford, and sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Bunkley, Mrs. Cora Chapman, and Mrs. Susie Philips and other relatives.

St. Paul A.M.E. Celebrates 100th Anniversary

St. Paul A.M.E. Church is celebrating its 100th Anniversary this week under the very capable direction of Mrs. Catherine Williams and Mr. Paul Danforth. Theme Rejoice in the Past: Renew for the Future!

St. Paul A.M.E. Church began in a building on Park Street on October 9th, 1872 with 16 Christians. Charter members are: Anna Allen, Archie Brown, Amanda Carter, Bill Carter, Isiah Carter, Jennie Carter, Margaret Carter, Olive Carter, Rachael Carter, Nan Cothran, Jeff Mash, Mary Mash, Dudley Miller, G. W. Turner and Sarah Turner. They were under the jurisdiction of the Illinois Annual Conference at that time.

September 29, 1879 was an exciting day because they became incorporated as a church.

Next they met in a second story hall on West Court. Afterwards they purchased a site for a new home located on the S.E. Corner of West Second and Center. The first church building was erected there in 1882.

The old mortgage was liquidated and the church completely remodeled in the early 1900's.

The Chicago Annual Conference was entertained there in 1903 and 1911. They became free of debt and a parsonage was purchased at 1045 13th. This was the first Episcopal residence that the church owned.

One of our most illustrious ministers was the Rev. William Sampson Brooks in 1906 who later became a Bishop.

The most monumental of milestones in the life of St. Paul A.M.E. Church occurred when the beautiful and spacious edifice was erected at 12th and Crocker Streets in Nov. of 1918.

This building was dedicated under the leadership of Rev. S. L. Birt. The mortgage on that Church was liquidated and the Church was remodeled by Rev. John E. Hunter. St. Paul has heard from its rostrum, many leading churchmen, orators, educators and statesmen.

Many capable pastors who have served St. Paul have advanced to take over other noble works such as: Rev. T.L. Scott, Rev. John Alexander and Rev. H. C. Boyd, Rev. A. J. Irvine, Rev. George Singleton, Rev. John E. Hunter and Rev. E. P. Williams.

St. Paul was once a leading church in the Northwest Conference but is now in the Illinois Conference.

Our present pastor is the Rev. Dr. Henderson S.

Davis who has been with us for 6 years and it was he who brought us to our new location at 1201 Day St. St. Paul is a living organism of men, women and children who grope forward with prayer under God's direction. Rev. Davis' sermon subject for Sunday, Dec. 3rd, is "One Short Watch." Afterwards a potluck dinner will be served.

On Saturday, Dec. 2, a Workshop program will start at 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Those attending will be divided into small groups with a leader. The purpose of the Workshop is to instill in St. Paul Church a greater love for spiritual development and growth. Mrs. Lauretta Reeves will serve her very tangy and zesty chili on Saturday afternoon.

After the Workshop at 5:00 p.m. a Co-ordinated Youth Celebration featuring a combination of poetry, prose and music will be conducted by Henderson Davis, Jr.

Listen for a vocal solo by Miss Vicki Spencer, a musical selection by the St. Paul Jr. Quartet and a number by Nick Penny. Mona Bell, Vicki Spencer and Henderson Davis, Jr. Pastor's Aid Bazaar is Saturday, Dec. 9th.

First Quarterly Conference and the Laymen will meet Sunday, Dec. 10th, after the morning service.

Police Harrassment of State Senator Irks Community

New York, N.Y.—The
entire Black community is angered and shocked at the insult rendered to it on November 4, 1972. That evening, State Senator Waldaba H. Stewart was the victim of a vicious attack upon him and two others within his Clubhouse located at 725
Franklin Avenue,
Brooklyn. Events
transpired as follows: The driver of a sound truck entered the Club and informed Senator Stewart
that his truck was about to be ticketed for double parking. The sound truck was the last vehicle in a motorcade that had just returned from a pre-election tour for Senator Stewart. The motorcade consisted of automobiles,
a 40 foot float and the sound truck. Senator Stewart went out and informed the police officer issuing the ticket
that the truck would move
as soon as it had finished unloading. The officer responded by saying that not only was he going to ticket the truck but all other cars connected with the motorcade as well. At that point, his partner walked along the motorcade and recorded

the license numbers of the cars that were a part of this group. Incidentally,
there were approximately two blocks of double parked cars on the street
not belonging to the motorcade that the officers had to pass to reach the Clubhouse that remained unticketed.
Heretofore, motorist had been double parking with little or no censorship.
Senator Stewart stated to the officer that he wished the same diligence had been shown when he called for them to clean up known dope drops and afterhour spots in the community as was being shown at this time. The officer said that he was being accused of taking bribes and if he did not receive an apology, he would arrest Senator Stewart. The Senator answered by gazing at all of the other double parked cars on the street that were not a part of his motorcade and walking back inside his Club.

Within a few minutes,
the police officer
returned, reinforced by

many, entered the Club
with guns drawn, pulled down the shades and locked the door, much to the terror of the many occupants therein. This included women and children. They set about wielding their billy clubs,
one of which found itself around Senator Stewart's neck. He was then penned to the floor and handcuffed. His brother was knocked to the floor,
kicked and handcuffed.
They along with another member of the Club were then taken down to the police station and arrested.

They were charged with inciting a riot. After the District Attorney
appeared, the initial papers were destroyed
and the charges were changed to: disorderly
conduct, resisting arrest,
harrassment, obstructing
justice, etc.

Senator Stewart
requested that a trial be held so that he could be exonerated before election day. He was denied this request and the hearing was scheduled for the day after election day. On November 8th, the day of the hearing, Senator Stewart was offered the opportunity of signing a waiver indicating that he would not sue the City. In return, the charges would be dismissed. Upon the Senator's refusal, the case was postponed.

On the night of November 6th, Blacks
from the Brooklyn
community and other parts of the City, along with their leaders held a protest rally at Bethany Baptist Church. It was the unanimous feeling that the 77th Precinct had been increasingly heaping

insults upon the Black community by their intimidation, continual harrassment, brutality and lack of adequate police protection.

Sports Then

With Allen Ashby

The voice at the other end of the phone wanted to know if this was the something-or-other news agency. Then the guy wanted to know if I were Allen Ashby. I still didn't recognize the voice until he said something about French Brown. Then I knew it was George Bourland, home for a short visit. I sure hated to miss seeing the big fellow, but I had committed myself for this particular week, and there didn't seem to be any way of getting out of them. But just hearing him talk brought back just too many memories. We met when we were in East High. Athletics seemed to be our common bond. George suggested that I become one of his sparring partners, and he would teach me the game of boxing, at which he was making a little money. So we got together. There was a gymnasium on Ninth street, just south of Keo. There was about a ten foot ring in the place. George and I used to do anywhere from ten to fifteen rounds of calisthenics, and then work on the bags. Then we got into the ring for our sparring session. Well The Bourland method of teaching boxing was simple. You put on a pair of boxing gloves, and you either defended yourself or you jumped out of the ring. Do you know that we sometimes actually fought as many as twelve rounds just to settle a minor argument, and had fun doing it. We used to have what we called lip cutting contests, and the guy with the least number of cuts around his mouth was the winner. George said that we practiced harder than a lot of fighters really fight today, and he was right. But those sessions paid off because we used to walk from the gym to East High, where we would run three miles. Then for our lunch hour we would run three miles. We didn't know what getting out of wind was, just something we never experienced. The fellow went on to play tackle for East where his boxing came in handy. He said, "The first guy through gets a left jab and a right cross." And this helped him in many a game. He also ran on the track team. The mile was his race. With his tremendous wind and stamina, it would seem that he would never lose a mile race, because he could run all day. But he never had anybody to teach him how to pace himself, and as a result he was nearly always using his road work pace which wasn't fast enough for a mile race.

While he was in high school he won the state light heavyweight professional ring title, and about ten months later the heavyweight crown. He financed his last two years in school by boxing and did all right. He won most of his bouts, and dropped only one in which he was really stopped. This was to a veteran Bearcat Wright. Wright was one of those fellows who could punch out anybody he could hit. Well, the first time they met, it was in a twenty foot ring, and the Cat never did catch George, who boxed circles around the vet. But the next time they were in a ring about the size of a postage stamp, a long armed guy could nearly reach across the thing. One of the things about that battle amuses me to this day was the number of people who claimed to be in George's corner that night. If all the people who claimed to be in his corner actually were there, it is no small wonder he got licked. He didn't have room to fight for his seconds.

But George went on to become one of the best boxing teachers and trainers around the state. His little gym that he did just about everything to keep open was the starting place for a lot of great locals, Morton Graves, Don Turner, Ozzie Lewis, and several more. When you fought for Mr. Bourland, you were in condition, because the fellow never forgot that part of the deal. And as I recall some of the bouts that his fighters pulled out in the last rounds, I knew that he had them ready, at least physically. We talked about lots of things, school, old teachers, and how the town was chopped up so a person who had been away for at least ten years would have one hell of a time finding his way around town. I am really sorry that I couldn't stay in town last week end so we could have visited, but I bet he hasn't changed very much. Wonder if he still has his hair? His voice certainly sounded like it always did. These people keep coming out of my past to greet me. Chet Brewer, Harry Crump, and now this guy. Hope I meet a lot more of them.
