Rap's trial recessed

Lead poisoning update

The 31st of December a Food and Drug Administration regulation goes into effect which will refuse to allow house paint (interior or exterior) with a lead content of more than 0.5% to be shipped by interstate commerce. The regulation will be even tougher next year. After December 31, 1973, the amount of lead in paint that is used in or around households will have to be 0.06% or less. The same regulation will apply to the paint on toys or other articles intended for use by children.

This is the latest in a number of steps taken in recent years to do something about the problem of lead poisoning in children. The steps are necessary because evidence has continued to mount that many children are in danger of permanent brain damage, kidney damage or even death, because they have innocently eaten paint from the walls of their homes, from their baby-sitter's home, from their toys, their crib, and from their somehow - lead - contaminate environment.

H. Rap Brown

New York — (NBNS) — The long-delayed trial of H. Rap Brown on charges of robbery and attempted murder of three policemen got underway last Monday with pre-trial hearings in the New York State Supreme Court.

Now recessed until December 11, the selection of jurors is scheduled to start after the trial reconvenes. However, because of the approaching Christmas holidays, presiding Judge James Carney may exercise his discretion to recess and postpone jury selection until the early part of January.

During pre-trial hearings defense attorneys Howard Moore and William Kuntzler raised several legal objections, including the publication of a "prejudicial" article by former Deputy Police Commissioner Robert Daley which appeared the day before the trial was originally supposed to start, last October 23.

Called "The Man Who Shot Rap Brown," the article was published in the New York magazine accompanied by drawing supposedly showing Brown on a dark rooftop, aiming a pistol at a policeman.

"Never has there been a more blatant and deliberate attempt to poison the atmosphere against a person accused of crime than that represented by this article," said Brown's attorneys.

Defense attorneys Howard Moore and William Kuntzler both enjoy national reputations as civil rights lawyers. Kuntzler, who is perhaps best known for his defense of the Chicago Seven, was Brown's lawyer at the time of his disappearance in early 1970.

Moore has an esteemed reputation as a civil rights "movement" lawyer who since the early sixties has defended in courts, scores of Blacks, including Brown, Stokely Carmichael and Julian Bond, arrested for civil rights demonstrations.

More recently received international attention for his defense in the California trial of Angela Davis earlier this year.

Although both Kuntzler and Moore are noted for cases involving civil rights and what may be termed "political trials," they are treating Brown's case as a criminal one as decreed by the court.

"Of course the case can be viewed as part of the conspiracy against Rap, going back to 1967," said Rap's brother Ed Brown in an exclusive interview with NBNS. "But the lawyers are proceeding on this particular case based on the grounds of winning it on criminal argument," said Ed, who is temporarily living in New York and devoting full time to assisting in Rap's defense.

Magee disrupts opening days of trial

By PAULA TOOKES
National Black News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — (NBNS) — Ruchell Magee, the "other defendant" in the Angela Davis case, has been repeatedly removed from the courtroom during the opening days of his murder trial.

The 33-year-old Magee, who is the only San Quentin Prison inmate to survive the escape attempt at the Marin County Courthouse in August, 1970, is charged with the murder of the judge who was one of four killed in the incident.

On the third day of the trial last week, Magee was removed for disrupting the proceedings by shouting an obscenity at his own attorney. Since the trial opened, he has been removed for slugging his court-appointed attorney as well as shouting at the judge.

Magee and his court-appointed attorney, Robert D. Carrow, seem to agree on one thing — both want the lawyer out as counsel in the trial, but Judge Morton Colvin ruled that it would be too costly and too time-consuming to change attorneys now.

Once a co-defendant with Angela Davis in the case, Magee is also charged with kidnapping. His case was severed when he persistently demanded to act as his own attorney.

Miss Davis was acquitted last summer after a lengthy trial in nearby San Jose.

He had also been charged with conspiracy and assault on a guard by an inmate sentenced to life imprisonment, but those charges were dropped at the state's request before the trial began.

Expected to last for several months, this trial reminds one of the stringent security systems devised for Miss Davis' trial earlier. The case is being heard in a courtroom that has a bullet-proof shield and separates the judge and other court officials from the spectators.

Members of the San Francisco Police Department's tactical force also patrol the hallways outside the courtroom with three-foot night sticks and guns.

Assistance for women seeking higher education

Dr. Carol Burden

Financial assistance should be made accessible to part-time students so higher education will be more available to women in Des Moines' inner city, according to a report by Dr. Carol A. Burden, Associate Professor of Education at Drake University.

The report, prepared on behalf of the Des Moines Area Consortium for Higher Education for the Iowa Higher Education Facilities Commission, also recommends that college services be brought to the areas in which women, who feel they can benefit from such education, live. The project was funded by a $33,500 planning grant from the U.S. Office of Education.

The consortium is made up of Drake University, Grand View College, and the Des Moines Area Community College. The huge, yellow, three-volume report is entitled Women's Needs Survey: The Post Secondary Educational and Facility Needs of Women in Des Moines.

The two recommendations are among 10 that Dr. Burden made after surveying the attitudes of 517 women toward higher education. The women represent the city of Des Moines as well as the six prime service areas.

Dr. Burden reported that 55 per cent of the women said yes when asked, "If an educational center were opened near your house, and if you had financial help and other help, would you go for more education or training?"

Baraka's building troubles whites

By WEUSI TUSHINDE
National Black News Service

Newark, N.J. — (NBNS) — The calm, orderly and perfectly legal way in which Imam Baraka and his followers have proceeded in handling the violent reactions of white protestors to the building of Kawaidda Towers here has apparently frustrated white officials of Newark (who have either covertly or openly sided with the demonstrators.)

Last Thursday, Police director, John L. Reddin, publicly resigned in frustration after earlier having lashed out at Mayor Kenneth Gibson, the City Council and "self-serving" community leaders who he said had caused the city's Blacks and whites to be "at each others' throats."

Earlier last week Kawaidda Towers, being built by Baraka-led Kawaidda Temple for low and middle income families, had been the site of a brief confrontation between policemen and 300 angry white demonstrators who blocked eight construction workers from getting to the building.

There were brief scuffles between the pickets and the policemen on the first day of the massive demonstration, but when the pickets returned the next day, the situation was one characterized by friendly remarks and gestures between the white policemen and the pickets, some of whom have relatives on the force.

Assemblyman Anthony Imperiale was the leader of the pickets and Ronald Gasparinetti, president of the Newark Patrolmen Benevolent Association has called on policemen to join the picket line. Last week another assemblyman, Frank G. Megaro publicly predicted "bloodshed before the issue is settled."

In the meantime, Baraka has been filling the role of maintaining law and order by not allowing members of his organization to confront the demonstrators.

Businessmen join in new alliance

By Nora Clow

On December 3rd, a meeting of ten black businessmen was held in Indianapolis at 12:00 P.M. in the Afro House which is located on the Simpson College campus and is utilized by its black students. The meeting came to order as Dr. Henry Parker, a black sociology professor who teaches part-time at Simpson, addressed both black and white students and businessmen alike on the objectives towards the formulation of a black business. These goals were classified into three categories: research, advertising, and training. A lengthy discussion followed this during which the name for their organization, Minority Business Association of Des Moines, was determined along with the listing and nomination of its officers. Mr. Carl Williams, Editor of The New Iowa Bystander, was elected president; Mr. William C. House, President of the Graphic Corporation in Des Moines, was appointed vice-president; Mr. Wardell Diggs, head of a consultant firm in Des Moines, was appointed secretary; Dr. Henry Parker recording secretary for this corporation; Mr. Jason Smith, a medical student at Iowa State University in Ames and owner of the Afro Shop in Des Moines, will be the treasurer; and Mr. Al Parrish, an attorney in Des Moines, will be the legal representative.

Rap Brown

Ed Brown said that Rap's attorneys have requested that he be permitted to act as his own attorney because "he can contribute significantly to his own defense."

Unlike other recent cases involving the arrest and imprisonment of noted politically-involved Afro-Americans no formal organization has emerged to "Free Rap Brown."

"Rap has vigorously discouraged such a movement," revealed Ed Brown who has been approached numerous times by friends and colleagues of Rap's as well as other concerned persons, to start a "Free Rap Brown" movement.

"Rap's position on this is that he is opposed to people focusing on him as an individual. He feels that the tremendous energy that would go into such a movement should be properly focused on the work he was about the general struggle for Black survival and liberation," reported Ed Brown.

(Rap is known to view dope traffic and its terrible consequences as the foremost problem facing the Black community in this country.)

"Rap says that people must understand that white folk have been conducting war against Black people in this country for over 300 years, and that there have been many casualties," continued Ed.

"Rap views himself as just another casualty and wants others to assume that same perspective and not get caught up in a movement focusing on one person," he said.

"He says that if we stop the battle to try to salvage every casualty we'll never reach our goal," Brown said, summing up Rap's philosophy on that matter.

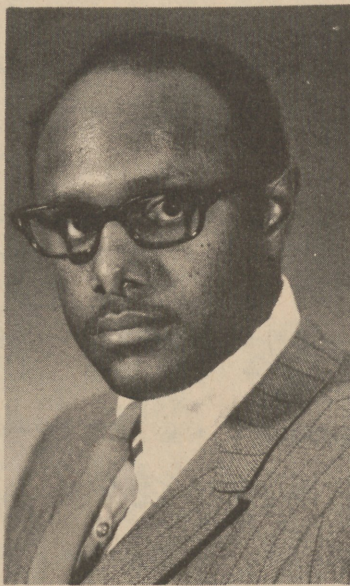

Brown emphasized, however, that Rap is "not ungrateful" for the expressions of concern from many people. He said one way people can demonstrate that concern is to "stop by the trial to see how it's going, and to contribute funds to Rap's defense."

Rap's older brother stated that several prominent Blacks have either visited Rap in jail and or made public statements of support, including the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Julian Bond. Brown said that leaders of the more traditional organizations have also been quite supportive.

"A number of his former co-workers and associates, as well as local leaders are supporting Rap in any way they can that is consistent with his feelings," said Brown.

When discussing Rap, Ed usually reminds his listeners of a statement Rap made which says a great deal about his spirit, attitude and steady commitment to Black liberation:

"I am not a prisoner of war. I am a prisoner at war."

BARAKA project

"Our people have been conspicuously away from the site and we intend to wait and see that the project is legally built," said Baraka.

The location of the project in the predominantly white North Ward is what has enraged white residents. But Baraka points out that although the North Ward may be predominantly white, 30 percent of the residents there are Black and Puerto Rican.

Im publicly announcing his resignation, Police Director Reddin accused Baraka of "polarizing" the Blacks and whites in the city which was the scene of devastating street rebellions in 1967 that were generally termed by "race riots" by local and national officials, as well as the news media.

Reddin said this "polarization" had made it impossible for him to perform his duties relating to the "management of an already troubled city."

Meanwhile, the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and the Progressive Labor Party (PLP) announced that they would stage counter demonstrations at the site of Kawaida last Saturday.

Again demonstrating his desire to avoid precipitating further violence around the issue of Kawaida Towers, Baraka issued a terse press release denouncing SDS and PLP for the intended demonstrations and charging them with another kind of racism from that of the white protestors by interfering with the leadership strategy for handling a situation that affects Black people.

Accusing them of an "apparent need for confrontation" themselves, Baraka said that Black people are capable for "determining for ourselves how to wage our own struggle."

occurs can take many different forms. The child may have optic nerve atrophy which is one cause of blindness, a behavioral disorder, or a learning disability. The brain damage may be slight and might be overcome with training or the damage may be severe enough that the child may never be able to cope with the world on his own and may always require care in an institution.

When Jerry Bell, the Co-ordinator of Des Moines-Polk County's section of Lead Poisoning Control, was asked what he thought about the new FDA regulation, he said, "The new regulation is very encouraging to those of us involved with lead poisoning control. It means that when the lead paint is removed from our environment it won't come back. Lead poisoning isn't like other illnesses that are caused by viruses or bacteria. Lead poisoning is a man made disease that will not come back unless we ourselves bring it back. When we once get rid of lead paint in the homes in Des Moines, we will be rid of the major cause of lead poisoning among children, and because of the new FDA regulation we should be rid of it once and for all."

The Lead Poisoning Control Program has been operating in Des Moines since last August. They have field interviewers going door-to-door to tell about the problem of lead poisoning, and they have been setting up free screening clinics where parents can bring their children for testing to be sure the children do not have a dangerous amount of lead in their systems. The Black Theology Center and the Model Cities Community Development Center have both furnished facilities for Lead Poisoning Clinics this last week. Other places and times will be announced.

You can have your children tested for Lead Paint Poisoning at free clinics at the Old Dowling High School, 1000 College Ave., on:

MRS. THELMA CLARK (MRS. LOYATUS) spent the Thanksgiving Day Holidays in Los Angeles, visiting her daughter and family! Enroute home, she stopped over in Denver, where she visited her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Duncan and family. She spent several days there, days there.

IN LOS ANGELES, MRS. CLARK was entertained by Mrs. Martha Lackey, formerly of Keokuk, Iowa, at a dinner party on The Princess Louise Ship in San Pedro, California.

ON THANKSGIVING EVE, she went to dinner at McCarrity Church, an inter-racial church. Here she visited with Mrs. Verda Spangler and Mrs. Gertha Williams, former Des Moines residents.

MRS. CLARK, CHAIRMAN OF THE URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT AREA COMMITTEE here, was shown the new Ujima Village, the townhouse apartment complex produced by a coalition of black community groups and federal government. It is a beautiful 300 rental unit, located just south of Watts. It also has a large attached shopping center which will house both black and white businesses. Mrs. Clark felt that seeing this achievement was advantageous to her as chairman of our urban renewal project, as seeing transcends viewing blueprints and photographs! She was inspired and rightly so! She also visited two senior citizens' complexes!

THE ENTRE NOUS HAVE DONE IT AGAIN! Always achieving the spectacular, the girls have opened the Christmas Holidays party-giving! Last Sunday night the service and social club held its Christmas Party at the Waveland Golf Club, 49th and University. They entertained ninety guests. Mrs. Fannie Williams catered the affair - which in and of itself gives the occasion the stamp of "top-flight". The evening's music was taped.

THE TRADITIONAL EGG NOGG WAS SERVED. Surrounding the punch bowl were Christmas greens, holly, little gold cherubs and guardian angels! Red candles stood at each end of the center piece. In the fireplace were lighted logs and the fireplace trimmed with satin Christmas bell lights! Covering the table were a sea of delicious hors d'oeuvres!

NEEDLESS TO SAY, A GOOD TIME was had by all. There were games and dancing - something for everyone's taste!

THE ENTRE NOUS CONSISTS OF ELEVEN MEMBERS! President is Mrs. Delores Bailey, Vice President Mrs. Mary Hardaway, Secretary Mrs. Grace Wade. Entertainment Chairman was Mrs. Lydia Merrett and assisting her were Mesdames Grace Wade, Martha Parkey and Dorothy Holmes.

SOME OF THE ACHIEVEMENTS HAVE BEEN the purchasing of playground equipment for the Woodward, Iowa's School for the Retarded. The Club also entertained them. The Club gave a donation to the Y.W.C.A. and to the City Zoo. They, also, contributed to the Martin Luther King Foundation and to Multiple Sclerosis.

EXECUTIVE HOUSE DAY CARE DIRECTOR EVELYN LOGGINS took time out from her very busy schedule to invite me to share her California based invitation to the preview opening of the new West Des Moines Sambo Restaurant. We were greeted warmly by the host. Beyond him could be viewed the dining room and a large table laden with what was termed in the invitation as a "light buffet". It looked "very heavy" to me! At this point I'll borrow my husband's term for something enormous - "it looked like a mama." Well this table looked like hors d'oeuvres' mama. Can you see it? A world of food of the widest variety! We were treated royally! A lovely waitress brought us our choices of beverages.

Welcoming service for Joneses City's A.I.M. will discuss the issues

Last Sunday afternoon was the Welcoming Service for Rev. & Mrs. Jones. It was attended by approximately 100 people. The Processional of the Men's Chorus of Shiloh Church was the opening service. After which Rev. & Mrs. Jones were escorted down the aisle by Mrs. Dorothy Saunders and Mr. James Mason. The ladies were dressed in full length gowns and the men in black suits. Mrs. Jones wore a bright yellow corsage of roses and Rev. Jones wore a white boutonier. The welcome address was given by Mr. Carl Williams, editor of the New Iowa Bystander with Rev. Ivan Johnson, Pastor of Bethel A.M.E. Church, as M.C. Rev. Fredrick Strickland and Rev. Henderson Davis were among those who extended their best wishes. The young women of the church were responsible for the beautiful decorated tables and the centerpiece with the theme of Christmas. They were also the hostesses for the social hour in the Fellowship Hall in the Lower Level. The cake, which was the highlight of the day, was decorated with pink icing with contrasting darker pink and roses. Mrs. Wilma Harris prepared the punch and coffee was also served with the cake. A most pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

The pressing issues to be discussed are as follows:

1. Job practices in hiring Indian people (discrimination)
2. Remarks & attitude of Governor Ray & board of directors I.H.S.
3. We want Indians on prime boards in the City of Des Moines (Model Cities & C.A.B.)
4. There are no Indians in the federally funded programs making over $10,000 a year.
5. A.I.M. is planning a trip to the Kansas City regional office to meet with HUD & other officials concerning these problems.

6. We want to cause a shake-up to see how many white people have the education to make $11,000 to $15,000 a year in the federally funded programs in Des Moines. If these are political moves... then we want some of our Indian people included.

7. We want a demographic survey by A.I.M. members. This survey should be paid for by Federal programs. It is their job to seek the American Indian, but they're dragging their feet and receiving salaries for doing it. Certain directors in these federal funded programs have been asking the Indian how many Indians are in Des Moines.

8. The Directors are as follows - Mike Casey, Robert Kresbock, Dave Pickett and Earl Hutchinson. Their respective organizations will be discussed on hiring practices of Indians.

MORNING STAR BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

Hello friends, here I am again to try to tell you what you missed Sunday, morning, Sunday afternoon and Sunday night. To be perfectly frank, it is something that can't be told. You really should have been there.

The "Little Church" on the Hill where the feasting started at 11:00 a.m. The testimonial service was led by Deacon Powers and Borthor Jones although we have testimonial service every first Sunday, but this Sunday the young people testified for our Lord and Saviour without hesitation and shame then why the question, "Is God Dead?" I can only say if you come to the "Little Church" on the Hill you can truly find out for yourself he isn't dead. My God Almighty always steps right on.

Rev. A. Crawford was in charge of the Meditation service. Reciting the Lords Prayer found 11th Chapter of St. Luke, 1st-4th verse.

Rev. Paul Teal from Omaha brought a most powerful and to the point, message. Text was the chosen vessel taken from the 9th Chapter of Acts, 1st-7th verse. Nine visitors and 6 joined by letter.

Sunday afternoon at the hour of 3:30 p.m. the True Lights and the Spiritual Keys truly brought a spiritual program on the behalf of Rev. A. Crawford. The True Lights and the Spiritual Keys said they hadn't rehearsed for some time, I can truthfully say they couldn't have done any better of if they had the Little Church on the Hill would have been on solid ground.

Brother H. Flax brought the program to a high climax on his guitar. The program was a surprise to Rev. A. Crawford from the two groups and Mrs. H. Davis for his radio broadcast. Refreshments were served and everyone more than enjoyed their selves.

Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m. the Little Church next to the corner, Mt. Hebron in West Des Moines and the Little Church on the Hill had their fellowship song service. What a fellowship and halleluiah time we had. Mrs. Bessie Guy, President of the Senior Choir of Morning Star and Mrs. Luvenia Jones, President of Mt. Hebron Senior Choir certainly started a wonderful fellowship. Keep up the good work and God bless you. As I first stated that you have to come to Morning Star or Mt. Hebron to find out for yourself that God is on his Throne, alive not dead.

We will motor to Fort Dodge Sunday, Dec. 10th, following the 11:00 a.m. service prevailing on the weather. Morning Star is to be with the Rev. R. B. Knox for the closing of his anniversary.

The Junior Choir talent night will be canceled.

Rev. A. Crawford is asking everyone who is planning on going to Ft. Dodge to come prepared to leave from the Church right after the 11:00 a.m. services. Thanking everyone for their co-operation.

God Bless each and everyone.

The East Side Mission will be at Morning Star Church Sunday at the hour of 3:00 p.m. December 17th instead of Dec. 24th. Everyone invited.

Cities needs are domestic

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (NBNS) — The nation's cities need a domestic Kissinger to plead to urban areas, says Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco.

The Keokuk Branch NAACP met in the Round Room of the Keokuk Public Library on Monday evening, Nov. 27th. Report from the benefit Tea held in October was made. The Tea was well attended and financially a success!

The members voted to donate for Christmas charity and sell NAACP seals to help towards the Freedom Fund quota.

Mr. Charles Watkins has been released from the hospital.

Irma McCane of the Washington-Central school was one of the students who received the Golden Badge award of the month.

Miss Lillian Nickerson is a patient in St. Joseph Hospital.

Miss Venetta Holt is one of the five cheerleaders in the Keokuk High School.

Mrs. Mattie Buckney is a patient in Graham Hospital.

Educators and members of organizations of the surrounding area including Keokuk interested in problems of minority groups met at St. Ambrose College, Davenport on Wednesday, Nov. 29th.

Representatives of HEW with office in Kansas City, Mo. and Jesse High of Des Moines explained the Emergency School Aid Act signed by the President October 31, 1972.

The meeting was very informative especially the question and answer period.

Mrs. George Heywood is a patient at the Veteran's Hospital in Iowa City.

Attending the annual convention of the National League of Cities, the mayor suggested that the conference work to persuade the President to appoint a "special pleader for the cities", similar to the President's adviser on national security — Henry Kissinger.

"We need somebody with the same effectiveness of Dr. Henry Kissinger to represent the cities and signal the people around the President that his commitments to the cities must be honored," the mayor said.

"The cities are assuming, for the moment, that the new Nixon federalism, revenue sharing, is not just going to be substitute money for existing federal programs.

"We need a voice right there in the White House, as powerful as Mr. Kissinger's in foreign affairs, to fight for the cities, to plead against the Nixon Administration's habit of refusing to spend so much of the money that Congress has appropriated."

The San Francisco mayor has asked the conference to approve a resolution calling for such an adviser to the President.

The President, early in the conference, advised the mayors and councilmen by letter that he was still committed to helping the cities "convert the urban crisis into the urban opportunity."

Curly Neal-artist on and off the floor

"CURLY" NEAL

Harlem Globetrotters star Fred (Curly) Neal is fast earning a reputation as the "quickest draw in the west." Also in the east, south and north.

But Curly doesn't carry a Colt .45. He does his drawing with a paint brush.

Neal, one of the big stars of the Harlem Globetrotters is an accomplished artist.

"I don't have that much time to paint or draw," says Curly, "but I try and do as much as I can while we are on the bus between cities or on airplanes."

Neal went back to school last summer to complete work on his degree at Johnson C. Smith University in North Carolina.

"My degree will be in Physical Education, but I took several courses in commercial art," says Freddy.

Curly's Globetrotter teammates say the bald-headed dribbler isn't bad at all with paint brush and pallet.

Globetrotter fans already know he is a proven success as an artist with a basketball.

The 6-1 Globetrotter with the baldish hairdo has become one of the most popular members of the fabulous Globetrotter team.

In addition to his studies at Johnson C. Smith last summer, Neal also worked with the Model Cities programs in several North Carolina communities including his home town of Greensboro.

Urges prison reform

By National Black News Service

NEW YORK — (NBNS) — Citing "the horror of Attica," U.S. Circuit Court Judge Irving R. Kaufman has called for comprehensive reform of the nation's prison system.

Judge Kaufman said today's prisons do not rehabilitate or even have rehabilitation as their main purpose.

"The hard truth," he said, "is that punishment and retribution are the primary, if not the only, functions currently served by most correctional institutions."

"Rehabilitation — that great battle cry of prison reform — is one of the great myths of 20th-century penology," he said.

Judge Kaufman cited "depressing" statistics that show that 63 percent of those who are paroled from Federal prisons and 75 percent of those who serve their full terms are arrested again within six years.

In the New York state prisons "82 percent of those committed to a correctional center had prior adult criminal records."

"In the face of these shocking statistics," he said, "the public rightfully demands to know exactly what is happening to prisoners inside these walls, and why whatever happens does little good for the prisoner and even less good for society."

Judge Kaufman said the courts, through their rule-making powers, could assist prison reform and serve an ombudsman function to give prisoners a forum for consideration of their complaints. But he said such efforts could have only limited impact since the kind of prisons will be determined largely by the people actually running the prisons.

He said wardens, guards and other correctional officers "should be chosen for their congruence with the socially determined aim — deterrence."

Award to Florida

A & M's Ken Mullens

TALLAHASSEE, FLA. — Ken Mullens, a 6'3", 220 pound linebacker for the Florida A & M University Rattlers received the Ninth Annual Willie Galimore Memorial Scholarship Award last night.

The $1,500 award, from Pepsi-Cola Company, was presented to Mullens in the Orange Blossom Football Classic between FAMU and University of Maryland - Eastern Shores.

A 19 year old freshman, Mullens is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mullens of St. Petersburg, Florida. He is majoring in data processing and computer programming at FAMU.

The award was established in memorium to Willie Galimore, the late great "Rattler" hero and Chicago Bears' running back.

Each year the award goes to the FAMU football player who best exemplifies the spirit and athletic prowess of Galimore while maintaining academic excellence.

rehabilitation, punishment, or whatever mix — and then, once chosen, they should be allowed some play in attempting to reach it, so long as they willingly share the overriding goals like due process. If they do not, they must be coerced or replaced."

Judge Kaufman was not optimistic about displacing the present criminal justice system based on coercion, but expressed the hope that there would be an effort to move from this "grossly inefficient" system to "one of communication and cooperation."

"The corrections system," he said, "will never run with any real efficiency until: (a) prisoners want to be reformed; (b) prison administrators want to help them reform; (c) courts want to help both toward a system of reform, and (d) they all define reform in the same way. That is going to take a lot of social change."

With Allen Ashby

The All American season is upon us again. Time was when black football players weren't too prominent on those teams. I remember reading something about a fellow named Brown who played center for Harvard in the late nineties or early 1900's. He was an All American, the first I ever heard about.

The other day Brother Lucius said that a Bob Marshall of Minnesota was an All American end in 1905. And this guy was still playing tackle in what was then professional football twenty years later, and, people said, playing it. Now the first black All Americans I remember seeing were Paul Robeson of Rutgers, an end, and Fritz Pollard of Brown, a halfback. There searly players were picked when there were only eleven men picked for the first team, and by a football expert named Walter Camp. His team was the only really official All American team until he died. There were a few others but they were nothing until Camp died. Then the magazine that Camp's team appeared in gave the task to Grantland Rice. Rice was one of the great writers of his day. He could have been successful as a writer of poetry or just about anything he wanted to write, and he brought this great ability to the sports pages, often going into the old classics to make a point.

I have often said that Robeson was one of the great all round athletes of his day. He never got his just dues because he did two things a black man wasn't ever supposed to do. One, he married his college sweetheart, who was white, and as far as I know, the marriage never broke up. Two, he criticized the American racial injustices as he saw them and had his son educated in Russia. The boy later came back here, and made his home. These things really offended white America, and his name just was never mentioned whenever great athletes were discussed, although he was one of the greatest. But though Robeson said he loved America, he never stopped pointing out racial prejudice, and was labeled a communist. Maybe he was the first to pay the price for calling shots as he saw them. I don't know whether he was a Communist or not. He may have been about forty years ahead of his time.

There was a rundown on Fritz Pollard in Ebony magazine last year. His story was typical of so many black athletes during the twenties and early days of the years before World War II. The fellow's son became a star athlete at one of the Dakota Universities, where not many years before black football players couldn't stay in the same hotel with their team. So you know these men had to be good if they got the nation's highest honors in football in their day. Oh, yes, there was a fellow named Charley West who played tackle for Washington and Jefferson who was chosen on one of those teams. They came on slowly, Brud Holland of Cornell, Kenny Washington of UCLA, Bill Willis of Ohio State, Willis Ward of Michigan, and then the gates really blew open. For a long time blacks were kept out of the college all star game. I think Robinson and Washington were probably the first to play in the game. But Washington and Woody Strode, an end were largely responsible for getting the bars down in the pro leagues. Of course Duke Slater played for the Chicago Cardinals for years, and a back named Joe Lillard from Mason City was on the roster, but they were sort of alone. But Washington and Strode went to the Los Angeles Rams, and they drew crowds because coast fans remembered them from their college days, and that team really needed fans support.

Then Paul Brown came up in the newly formed American league, and he had three black players who made his team seem like they never would lose. There was Marion Motley, a big fullback, weighing around two thirty, who could cut around you or run over as Jim Brown did later. Then there was Horace Gilliom, an end who was also the punter. He was the forerunner of the style of punting the teams do today. He got back about twenty yards behind the scrimmage line, and booted the ball so high that when it came down, it sometimes had snow on it. There were no runbacks of a Gilliom punt, and they sometimes landed in the next county. Then Bill Willis was for forerunner of the great offensive guards, but he played both ways, and was a holy terror either way. I first saw those guys play in Chicago, and I thought, "Holy Cow, These guys won't ever lose a game."

How to make sure the job you want is right for you.

Today's Army is an army of choices.

Right now a lot of young men and women think they've run out of choices. Of ways to find out what they want to do. Or can do. Of jobs they might like. Or could get. Of places they'd like to live and work.

SSG Sargent would like to tell you about the choices in today's Army Choices they probably don't know that we have. Like these:

A choice of job training. We've over 400 good, steady jobs in almost any field you can name. Jobs we'll pay them to learn. Jobs to build on back in civilian life.

A choice of education. From a high school certificate to a start on a college degree while still in the Army. Then 36 months of financial assistance when they're out at the college of their choice.

A choice of places to serve Europe, Korea, Hawaii, Alaska, Panama. Or almost anywhere in the continental United States.

A choice of ways to join. Our Buddy Option. Friends who enlist together go through basic and advanced training together. Our Buddy Europe Option will also assign young men who choose Combat Arms to the same area overseas.

And there's our Delayed Entry Option. They can enlist today and report any time within six months depending on the training they've chosen.

All of these choices are guaranteed in writing before they enlist, if they qualify.

Food, housing, medical and dental care. And whatever the choice, the job training, the place, the outfit, the time, a lot of benefits few civilians enjoy go with it.

A starting salary of $238 a month with promotions and raises as fast as they earn them. A salary that's real take-home pay because so many things in today's Army are free.

Food, housing, medical and dental care. And then there's the 30 days paid vacation a year. Every year. To spend on a visit back home. A trip almost anywhere in the world. Or to places right here in the States.

Today's Army
wants to join you.
