Nixon: Job halt for Blacks?

Clay says Navy's Zumwalt going out

By National Black news Service

St. Louis — (NBNS) — Rep. William Clay says that President Nixon has decided to dump Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, Jr. as chief of naval operations. Zumwalt, who has been a proponent of equal opportunity policies and other modernization procedures, is reportedly being dismissed because of increased racial violence and unrest in the Navy.

Rep. Clay said that he had learned of Zumwalt's dismissal several weeks ago.

The St. Louis Congressman said that Zumwalt had been told of his dismissal more than a month ago by Henry A. Kissinger, national security affairs adviser.

"You can quote me as saying Kissinger told Zumwalt he was going to be fired," Clay told the press.

Zumwalt may, instead, be assigned to a position within the White House, according to the Congressman.

Nixon nominated Zumwalt for the post in 1970. He still has some two years left on his job, but persistent reports continue that he won't be in the job much longer.

Sheriff won't probe deaths of Southern University Students

WASHINGTON — (NBNS) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation has questioned a number of sheriff's deputies who were in the general area from which a shot was fired that killed two Southern University students.

Disclosure of the investigation by the FBI followed the announcement by East Baton Rouge Parish Sheriff Al Amiss that he would not look into the deaths of the two students.

"We're strictly leaving that to the FBI and the attorney general," he said.

Amiss, who was sharply criticized by the biracial state commission headed by Attorney General William Guste that concluded that the students were killed by a shot that came from an area where six deputies were standing, said he still didn't think any of his men had done the shooting.

"We have interviewed 229 persons and our information has not developed that any other person was in the area except sheriff's deputies, and in the specific area which I mentioned, six deputies," said the attorney general.

"The shot was fired by an individual from the area occupied only by sheriff's deputies, as far as our investigation to this moment has disclosed," he continued.

But the sheriff says that his men will be investigating other aspects of the incident.

"We're right now in the process of appointing a special task force to investigate the Southern University takeover, who did take over the administration building, also who intimidated the students on the campus from going to class," the sheriff said. "Also, who burned the building, which is aggravated arson."

The attorney general said that the tragedy of Southern could have been avoided if the Sheriff had been firm and the officers trained in crowd control.

New Dinner Theater for Des Moines

Larry and Mariam McKeever today announced their purchase of the theatre building at 1205 5th Avenue formerly known as the Keith Killinger Music Hall. The main auditorium area and balcony will be converted for regular Dinner Theatre shows and live productions for children.

The McKeever first presented live theatre downtown in 1964. Their production of "The Tiger" as Lunch Hour Theatre was given in the Princess Theatre. With the demise of the Princess and KRNT Theatre, they plan to bring back live plays with Dinner Theatre for adults and afternoon Theatre for Children.

The McKeever currently operate Lariam Associates, Inc., a professional sound recording studio, production house and talent agency at 515 - 28th Street. Plans call for Ms. McKeever to manage the new Dinner Theatre and to direct the productions for children.

The lower level of the building will be used for convention and other group meetings and for acting classes for adults and children. The building will be called "The Theatre," and the first production, a play for children, is scheduled for February.

Robert Mills

Mills named Scout exec.

Warren W. Winslow of West Des Moines, President of the Mid-Iowa Council, Boy Scouts of America, announced recently that Robert M. Mills of Pueblo, Colorado has been selected as Scout Executive, effective January 1, 1973, replacing Wayne R. Taylor, who recently resigned. Mr. Mills has served as Scout Executive of the Rocky Mountain Council, BSA with headquarters in Pueblo, Colorado for the past three years.

Prior to his present assignment, he was Scout Executive of the Lake of the Ozarks Council at Jefferson City, Missouri for four years. His first professional experience was in the Longs Peak Council, headquartered in Greeley, Colorado from 1957 until 1965, serving districts in Fort Collins, Boulder and later as Assistant Scout Executive. He was a Scout as a boy, later served as a Scoutmaster for two years. Mr. Winslow indicates that in every assignment Robert Mills has had an enviable record of achievement in membership and program goals.

The United Nations High Commission for Refugees representative in Lusaka, Hugo Idoyaga, said the Zambian government had given him assurances that the repatriation of the refugees would be voluntary.

Madagascar Combats Riots

Tananarive — (NBNS) — The military government of the Malagasy Republic has declared a state of siege in two of its six regions following student demonstrations over educational reform in this East African island.

Riots broke out in the country's main port, Tamatave, as students and others objected to reforms which they said would impose the language of the highland people on coastal tribe.

Student demonstrations sparked widespread bloodshed last April and led to the downfall of President Philibert Tsiranana.

The 980-mile-long island in the Indian Ocean became independent of the French in 1960.

Witnesses Returning To Malawi

Lusaka — (NBNS) — Zambia has begun the mass repatriation to Malawi of some 20,000 Jehovah's Witnesses who fled to Zambia in recent months.

New York Times article indicates 'the season is ending.'

National Black News Service

Washington — (NBNS) — Federal efforts to increase the employment of minorities and women in coming to a virtual standstill under the Nixon Administration, according to a recent New York Times article.

The article, supposedly based on interviews with numerous officials of the Labor Department's Office of Federal Contract Compliance (OFCC) who chose to remain anonymous, said a survey "indicates that the agency is now receiving virtually no support and direction from the Administration." (The OFCC insures fair hiring practices by companies receiving federal contracts.)

In recent months, there had been increased speculation that the Nixon Administration would withdraw its support for equal employment opportunity programs in order to woo the labor vote before the November presidential election.

Initially, the rumors commenced on Aug. 11 after the disclosure of a letter from President Nixon to the American Jewish Committee (AJC) on the issue of quotas. In response to the concerns of the AJC, the President directed all federal agencies on Aug. 17 to review their policies on equal employment opportunity and ascertain whether or not quotas or proportional representation were being utilized.

The construction industry and organized labor have been the hardest hit employers with the development and implementation of the Philadelphia Plan and other "hometown" plans designed to require federal contractors to set up minority employment goals in relation to the percentage of minorities in the metropolitan area covered by the plan.

In September, the Labor Department announced that it was considering a major revision of the Philadelphia Plan and 55 similar plans in other cities. The new proposal would dilute minority hiring because employment goals would be based on the percentage of minorities in an entire state or region, rather than the immediate metropolitan area.

Consequently, the Times article stated, the OFCC is now "demoralized and practically inoperative." It added that the enforcement of such programs as the Philadelphia Plan "is coming to a standstill" and that "practically no new programs are being initiated."

In response to President Nixon's Aug. 17 directive, Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson — who will soon be leaving the Administration issued a memorandum "for all heads of agencies" advising them that "the regulations and orders (concerning quotas) that have been issued by the Department to agencies are not in conflict with the President's directive."

He added, however, that "in some cases, policy directives may have been misinterpreted and misapplied."

The Times article said that "a number of the agency's officers interviewed" said they believed that the laxity in enforcing minority hiring goals "had come directly from the office of John D. Ehrlichman, President Nixon's chief White House adviser on domestic affairs."

Ehrlichman's office has denied the allegations, while Philip J. Davis, acting director of the OFCC, and Assistant Secretary of Labor, Richard J. Grunewald, have refused to comment on the officers' statements.

In addition, the article notes that agency officials said "no equal employment programs had been eliminated or... officially 'curtailed' by the Administration," but that there had been "no support for these programs from the higher levels of the Labor Department... or from the White House."

The Times said that some compliance officers "have been quietly reprimanded" for attempting to enforce goals and timetables for minority employment by federal contractors. The article quoted one compliance officer as saying, "I catch hell every time I try to do anything at all." Another staff member states, "I am getting paid $28,000-a-year to go out and feed the pigeons."

A third official, whom the Times said is "usually open and informative about the workings of his office," refused an interview, explaining that "THINGS ARE VERY BAD AROUND HERE RIGHT NOW. You have no idea how bad things are."

Arthur Fletcher, who was responsible for carrying out the Philadelphia Plan when he served as assistant secretary of labor under President Nixon, blamed the Congress as well as the Administration for the failure of the Government's equal employment opportunity programs.

According to the Times, Fletcher said, "neither Congress nor the Administration has done what has to be done to end job discrimination."

He added that "neither Congress nor the Administration is willing to commit the kind of resources that are necessary."

Earlier, Fletcher was one of those who suggested that Nixon was attempting to court the labor movement by relaxing his former stance on minority hiring.

Model City-Des Moines A Memory

Special To The New Iowa Bystander: By David Pickett

For too brief a period of time there was in the City of Des Moines a process known as Model Cities.

This noble experiment was nurtured and kept warm to make life more livable for residents of the Model Neighborhood, a 1,000 acre area north and northwest of the downtown district.

Model Cities is a process. It is more than just a program. It is a new way of doing business with the Federal Government.

When the Model City-Des Moines process was funded for implementation in February 1970, the Des Moines Tribune said, "No one expected an easy job when the project was launched with $168,000 in federal planning money in 1966. There is little to indicate the road ahead will be any smoother — but the project has turned a corner and now faces the challenge to produce results."

One year later attention was given to the results that had been produced when Mayor Thomas Urban said, "I think they've done a fantastic job. They've programmed it well and they've run it well."

The Federal Government agreed with Mayor Urban. The first action year investment of $2,065,000 had produced results. It was upon the security of results produced that encouraged the President of the United States to propose that the Model City program in Des Moines midway in its second action year be expanded to serve the entire city.

Almost fifteen months after the Model Cities process had earned the opportunity of citywide participation and the direction of this federally funded effort was reorganized locally, Mayor Richard Olson on October 16, 1972 called the Model City investment a waste... that $4 million had gone down the drain.

In a manner of speaking bluntly there can be agreement with Mayor Olson if his recent remarks mean that after citywide expansion the Model Cities process has gone down the drain.

For today the process that produced results no longer exists in this city.

The action oriented style of Model City-Des Moines that was proposed for citywide expansion through Planned Variations has been sidelined. In its place has been imposed the $1 million shop of Community Development.

Wilkins defends NAACP role

By LOUISE E. WYCHE
National Black News Service

Washington — (NBNS) Civil Rights veteran Roy Wilkins admitted his NAACP organization is somewhat "old-fashioned" but he says he likes it that way.

Speaking at the fourth annual church day program for the Washington chapter of the NAACP, Wilkins did more listening than talking, but he pulled a verse from Isaiah to attack those who oppose school busing.

Admitting he has often heard criticism that the "old NAACP is out of date and Wilkins was a good boy back yonder but he isn't good for today," he pointed to several accomplishments of the organization in the last few months as continuing success modes.

"The organization is old fashioned, but when 19 of our boys had trouble on the carrier Kitty Hawk they turned to the NAACP," he pointed out. NAACP lawyers are defending the black sailors in courts-martial proceedings now underway in San Diego.

Wilkins, who is regarded as the dean of civil rights leaders, has headed the NAACP for 40 years.

During his speech he often referred to "negroes" and not blacks, and he later explained why.

"I use the word Negro. I came up under that word. I don't like black even for political purposes..."

"If you like Afro-American, use Afro-American," he told the crowd. "If you like Negro, use Negro. If you like black, use black."

"A rose by any other name smells just as sweet," he continued.

During his short speech, Wilkins also touched on a variety of other subjects, including:

President Nixon: "There is an eternal hunt for a government that will make you happy...make

Booker is an apprentice

Michael Booker is a first year electrician apprentice working for Keith Electric Company here in Des Moines. His present job site is inside the Iowa State Capitol, where his employer's firm is in the process of wiring several offices there.

A 1965 graduate of East High School, Michael was first made aware of the electrician's apprenticeship program by members of the Des Moines Area Outreach Program. After meeting all of the qualifications for apprenticeship, he was sent to the National Electrical Contractors Association to make out formal application.

you a contributor to the world, and not a receiver. We missed mostly in the last four years, and God only knows what will happen in the next four years."

JOB Discrimination: "Yesterday the door was slammed in the face (of the black workmen). Today they are hired, but they don't move up."

School integration: Anyone who is against busing and says he is for equal education is a liar or a fool."

On Crime: "More crimes are committed against black people and in the black community than against white people. Many people have caused crime in the streets, many junkies, many drug addicts—white and black—and they don't care anything about you except the money in your wallet."

Shortly thereafter he was called in by the Electricians Joint Apprenticeship Committee for an oral interview. The committee determines the need for apprentices in the locality, establishes minimum apprenticeship standards, and schedules a diversified, rotating work program. After his interview he was notified that he had been accepted to receive training under their apprenticeship program, and was put to work.

As an electrician apprentice, Michael has 4 years of on-the-job training to go through before he can be certified as a journeyman electrician. In addition to on-the-job training, apprentices are required to attend several hours of related classroom instruction each year. His performance in the classroom, as well as on the job, is closely scrutinized to insure that he has both the aptitude and the desire to make good in his chosen field.

Are blacks target of secret Attica moves

National Black News Service

NEW YORK — (NBNS) — Secret indictments handed down against 37 persons in the September 1971 Attica prisoner rebellion case were widely believed here to be against the black prisoners ex-prisoners involved and not against the white guards and state troopers who murdered 43 people when they stormed the prison fortress to retake it.

The indictments were sealed when rendered and it was not known initially who was indicted for what, but the first known ex-prisoner to be snared in the furtive roundup was a 20-year-old black youth from Syracuse, N.Y.

Supreme Court Justice Carman F. Ball, who received the indictments from the grand jury, said he would arraign "any defendants who are available" when the indictments were made known.

This devious action was immediately denounced by the Attica Defense Committee and other organizations concerned with prison reform and the rights to inmates.

"We've been waiting 14 months for their action — that's how long the grand jury has been sitting," said Harold Walker, a former Attica prisoner who is legal coordinator for the Attica Defense Committee. Walker is also vice president of the Defense group's survivors' committee composed of "survivors of the massacre."

Walker, who has been active with the Defense committee since his parole last June, said the purpose of the sealed indictments was to "prejudice the public by making it appear that we're so vicious and untrustworthy that they have to conceal our identities."

"The fact of the matter is that most of those who'll be indicted are still in prison," he predicted, adding that the authorities wanted to pick up the released prisoners "secretly over the weekend."

Walker said he "doubts seriously" that any state troopers will be indicted. "Maybe one or two, just to save face, but no more," he said.

At a press conference following the announcement of the sealed indictments, an attorney for the Defense committee blasted the state's action saying that "our fear is that law enforcement officers will go around knocking at people's doors in the middle of the night without warning."

FOREST AVENUE COGIC CHURCH NEWS

Coming soon...A New Year's Sleigh Ride and wiener roast. Everything will be free and sponsored by the Forest Ave. Boy's Club.

We had a very fine Christmas Day service which was followed by a free turkey dinner given by the Forest Ave. Mission Center.

The last Sunday of the year will be held in honor of our Pastor's wife, Mother A. B. Carter, Sr. Throughout this year we have upheld the old tradition or our denomination to honor the Pastor's wife every fifth Sunday of each month containing five Sundays.

Bishop Carter lectured to the congregation during last Sunday morning service. His lecture centered around his prophesy that "The Year of '73" will not only be a year for the Forest Ave. Church to remember but a year that the whole world will remember. For many people will be miraculously blessed while other people will be extremely cursed."

The members of Forest Ave. Church wish you a very happy New Year.

Everyone is welcome to come and be in consecration during our New Year's service as we will pray the old year out and the new year in.

MODEL CITY

All communication to council is handled neatly by the Office of Community Development, which since its inception has demonstrated little capacity or desire to perform for the neighborhoods or the city at large.

OCD, as it likes to be called, claimed in its infancy that it didn't know anything about procedures relevant to Model Cities. It didn't know about education or social service delivery systems or manpower or evaluation or housing or interagency coordination.

OCD knew a lot about filing cabinets. And how to fill them.

OCD also knew that it had control of the Des Moines Model Cities process.

With all its control the dirt of productivity by OCD in working the MODEL Cities process to meet the needs and fulfill the desires of the City of Des Moines is pretty obvious. Perhaps this is what Mayor Olson meant when he said the Model City had gone down the drain, that OCD blew it.

For the good judgement of the Mayor and Council, for the sake of those citizens interested in improving their life styles, for the record — let there be an examination of the results produced by Model City when it turned the corner.

Editor's Note: Next week the author will provide insight into the results produced during the first Model City action year.

23 Civil Rights Workers Face Trial

New Orleans — (NBNS) — The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that 23 civil rights workers arrested on various pretexts by hostile Mississippi law enforcement officers nevertheless must stand trial on the charges in Mississippi state courts.

In a 11 to 4 decision the appeals court upheld an earlier two to one decision by a three-judge appeals court panel. Attorneys for the civil rights workers had argued that the Civil Rights Act gave the Federal courts the right to assume jurisdiction in "state cases, which, by the overwhelming weight of evidence, were instituted solely for the suppression of 'civil rights.'"

Twenty of the 23 were arrested in 1970, when a highway patrolman stopped a truck in which they were riding back to Tougaloo College, near Jackson, Miss., after participating in a protest march that was part of a black boycott of white merchants in Mendenhall. The other three were arrested when they went to post bond for the 20 prisoners. Officers claimed the three, though unarmed when seized, had two shotguns and a pistol in their car.

Haiti-Cuba Ties Urged

Santo Domingo —The semi-official Haitian newspaper Le Nouveau Monde has urged editorially that Haiti consider re-establishing diplomatic relations with communist Cuba.

The two neighbors, separated by 50 miles of the sea, were bitter political enemies during the regime of the late President Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier. He frequently accused Castro's Cuba of helping Haitian exiles and training them for an invasion to overthrow him.

Community Development

Unfortunately, is considered to have denied the basic cause to its existence. This new office of city government — the one evident result of Planned Variations — willfully refrains from even mentioning Model Cities or Planned Variations.

Yet, it is the Model Cities-Planned Variations dollars that pay the way for Community Development. Perhaps it is too innocent to envision the city fathers resurrecting from the drain the precision like process that produced results in new employment, job training, improved education and delivery of social services, housing, crime fighting, legal aid and interagency coordination, etc., etc., etc.

There is little citywide progress to point to in the wake of Community Development. Therefore, there is little upon which the new members of City Council may make judgements regarding the progress of the Model Cities process — the noble process the Federal Government is still funding to go citywide.

Is He Fighting A Losing Cause?

By David Elbert

Wesley Cooper, a 300-pound black man who wants to "get off welfare" and "do something for my people," is fighting Rock Island city hall in a battle many people, including his own attorney, say is a losing cause.

Peter Sobel, Cooper's attorney, says the problem is that "the law provides against discrimination in hiring, but in this case there are no provisions against discrimination in firing." Cooper and Sobel feel Cooper was discriminated against when he was dismissed from a $10,000 a year job as Model Cities citizen participation coordinators the first day he started.

Wesley Cooper

CITY OFFICIALS said Cooper was dismissed Sept. 11 even though he was the top choice of a personnel selection committee, because he flunked a city-required physical examination.

Cooper has maintained the physical was "rigged" because certain city officials did not want him to have the job. He said last week he had obtained "proof" the physical was rigged.

The "proof," he said is two letters from the Veterans Administration (VA) Hospital in Iowa City, and the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare (HEW) Social Security Administration. The letters contradict the results of his earlier city physical, Cooper said.

The proof seems to be of little legal value, Sobel said. "ALTHOUGH he could seek a court writ to have him rehired, there is nothing in the law to prevent the city from finding another pretense for firing him after he has been back only a month or two."

Cooper has also appealed to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) which funds Model Cities, and a branch office of Gov. Richard Ogilvie, but neither has indicated they could be of any assistance in helping him get the job back.

The city physical Cooper flunked is required of nearly all new city employees to determine their insurability under city health and compensation programs. Raymond Botch Rock Island city manager, said Cooper flunked the physical because he had high blood pressure, was overweight and had a cracked hip.

THE VA and HEW letters, Cooper said, show his cracked hip has healed and his blood pressure was not nearly as high as recorded in the city-sponsored examination.

Copper and city officials also debate whether he was ever given the opportunity to take a second city physical. Cooper said he asked for a second physical by a different doctor, but that his request was turned down.

M.L. Lockhart, Model Cities manpower coordinator, said the city offered Cooper a second physical with any doctor of his choice, but Cooper turned it down.

COOPER is also unhappy with the method used to choose the man who replaced him as citizen participation coordinator, Jack White, a former Model Cities policy board member and former deputy sheriff.

Fred Schobert, Model Cities director at the time Cooper was hired and then dismissed, said White was the "seventh or eighth choice" of a personnel committee on which he (Schobert) served and which originally chose Cooper as the top candidate.

Schobert indicated White was chosen because he would follow directives from city hall, and prevent Model Cities citizen participation from "Becoming a reality that the city would have to contend with."

CHRISTMAS MESSAGE (EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of Christmas messages from local clergymen.)

By REV. W.J. LASTER

Pastor

Second Baptist Church Text: Because there was no room for them in the inn.

This passage of the Bible brings my mind to modern times. The system at that time had no room for Jesus and many of our churches of today have no room for Jesus.

They had room for things not of God. Rev. 3, Ch. 20 Verse: Behold I stand at the door and knock if any man hear my voice and open the door I will come in to him and will sup with him and he with me.

Remember Jesus is knocking. What are you doing about it? John 3-16 for God so loved the world he gave his only begotten son. Whosoever believeth in Him should not perish. But have everlasting life.

To every man and woman, boy and girl and to every preacher of the Gospel, ask yourself a question: Do you have any room for Jesus? If you don't you had better let him in before it is too late.

When you see the condition of the poor and remain quiet, ask yourself is there any room for Jesus?

The race issue — some white people that call themselves Christian hate black people. Ask yourself, Is there any room for Jesus.

Some black people hate white people. Ask yourself, Is there any room for Jesus?

The First Epistle of John 4 Ch. 20 Verse: If any man say I love God and hateth his brother, he is a liar. For he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen can he love God whom he hath not seen.

Food stamps boost Polk economy

Around $208,693.00 worth of additional retail food business flowed into the Polk County economy during Nov. '72 as a result of the Federal Food Stamp Program, according to Quinton Emery, Director of Department of Social Services for Polk County, Iowa.

During the month, 13,297 participants in Polk County spent $152,278.00 of their own cash for food coupons worth $360,971.00. The difference of $208,693.00 in bonus coupons from USDA (an average of $15.69 per participant) represents the increase in food sales that directly benefited food merchants.

Mr. Emery pointed out that currently around 185 grocers in the county are authorized by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Food and Nutrition Service to accept the coupons.

Under the Food Stamp Program, families in need of food assistance are certified at local welfare offices. Families purchase food coupons in amounts that reflect their normal level of food expenditures based on family size and income. They receive coupons of greater monetary value from USDA to improve the level of their diets. All coupons are spent like cash at local retail food stores.

Suicide Takes Mozambique Churchman

Beira — (NBNS) — Portuguese authorities here have confirmed the death of the head of the territory's Presbyterian Church, Dr. Zedequis Manganhela, by suicide after six months in jail.

The 60-year-old churchman left a note saying he was taking his own life "as a result of six months of isolation and the pressure of interrogation."

The Rev. Mr. Manganhela had been president of the Presbyterian Church in this East African colony since 1963. He was imprisoned June 13 with 30 other members of his church on charges that they had helped the native Mozambique take control of the church.

SOME GREAT ONES I MET

Joe Louis Remembered Our Meeting

Now that 1972 is about out of the way, I have a chance to recollect some of the things I have seen happen on other year weekends. One of my most memorable experiences was meeting Joe Louis when he was in the army. He was waiting at the La Salle Street station, having his ticket and baggage troubles just like any body else. I remember asking him if he remembered that I had once done an interview with him in Des Moines. He answered yes, but I just don't think he could have possibly remembered me out of the thousands of people and interviews he had over the years since that one. He told me that he was going up to Minneapolis and then down to Des Moines for a USO appearance. He was to referee a bout in the Twin Cities. I asked him to try to remember my brother Bill, who was quite a USO worker, in fact, he had been awarded a gold pin for his work. Told Joe that Bill would probably take his picture, and he could ask him about me and say hello for me if he thought of it. Well, after the war, Bill showed me his collection of pictures he had taken in the USO, and there was one of Joe Louis. Bill said that Joe had told him that he had met me in Chicago, and to tell him hello. So I would have to say that Joe had quite a memory at that.

Met Sugar Ray Too

Then there was a brief meeting with Sugar Ray Robinson, and I didn't know who he was. I thought he looked familiar, but it never crossed my mind that I was talking to the middleweight champion of the world. We talked about a lot of things, but not boxing. Finally, as we parted the fellow asked if I recognized him. I thought so, but wasn't sure. Then he said he was fighting at the Marigold Gardens later in the week, and gave me a card and said to present that at the ticket office, and I would receive a ringside ticket. Said I was the first Chicagoan who didn't want anything that he had ever met. I told him that I was really from Iowa, and he said that most of us could probably trace our beginning back to some small town in one of the states, and laughed.

To Mass With The Notre Dame Team

Another experience was watching the advent of the seven foot basketball players. It was during the holiday season that I sat in the Chicago Stadium and watched Bob Kurland of Oklahoma State and George Mikan of, I think La Salle, battle it out in the first battle of giants. I think Kurland won that one, and for four years they met and I saw every meeting. You could just see the improvement in Mikan, but I don't think that Big Bob got much better than he was in his first two years. Then there were almost no blacks playing on the major cage teams. Illinois had one whose name I never did get. He appeared in the Stadium just that one time, and I never heard of him again. Then, coming back from a vacation during the second world war, I was on a late train and everyone was crowded. The Notre Dame basketball team had just played at Iowa and they got on at Iowa City. The fellow who seemed to be in charge of the team kept looking at me. Finally he asked if my name was Ashby. Yes. Then he asked if I had ever played baseball in the Quad Cities. No, but my older brother had. That was the one. This fellow, who was the trainer and who was called Scrapiron Young, kept me awake the rest of the trip telling me stories about how he and Lucius used to play against each other, and what a ball player the guy was. I was never sure how much was pure exaggeration and how much was facts. If the guy was half right, Lucius must have been one heluva baseball player, and I don't remember him telling me about some of those things, and my older brother was no shrinking violet when it came to talking about himself. But the climax of the whole thing was when the train reached Chicago. The team had time to go to Mass at St. Mary's Church, and they dragged me along, without bothering to ask if I were Catholic. Fortunately, I am, so I wasn't lost. But, those were the year ends that I can remember best, and I wonder how they happened to me.

U.S. Cannot Solve Housing Problems

Detroit — (NBNS) — Outgoing Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney says the Federal Government should admit it cannot solve the housing problems of the inner city and get out before its programs collapse.

"I have been publicly advocating for some months that the Federal Government get out and the states be made responsible for providing subsidized housing for low and moderate income families in public housing," Romney said in a copyrighted article in the Detroit News.

Public housing authorities throughout the country are facing bankruptcy, while the Nixon Administration withholds subsidy funds voted by the Congress, and the St. Louis Public Housing Authority voted recently to turn its public housing over to the Federal Government to run as best it can.
