Nation will celebrate King birthday Jan. 15th

A CARD OF THANKS FROM THE EDITOR

As we look forward to 1973 and all its promise and peril, we take stock and inventory as people as well as businesses. The New Iowa Bystander has been down many treacherous roads in its 78 year history and there are many paths still left to tread. We actually pray for the courage to continue the Black man's monumental struggle toward the elusive light of freedom. We as a race may yet go down together on our knees in prayer or we may go forth in chains together anew. We know not what the future will bring but we face it together. May I take this opportunity to thank you personally for holding up the blood-stained banner by continuing to support our paper. Make no mistake there is a bond between an editor and his reader. Like the ministers used to say about the little boy with a kite that flew so high it went out of sight. 'I know it's there cause every once in a while I feel it tugging on me,' that says, "Can Do! Can Do!"

Many states declare holi day

Millions of people throughout the nation will observe the 44th birthday anniversary of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., this coming January 15th.

Plans for celebrating the birthday in the slain civil rights leader's home city of Atlanta, and in other states and cities, have been announced by the Martin Luther King, Jr. Center for Social Change.

People who wish to honor Dr. King on his birthday, the Atlanta-based Center reported, can do so by joining in the variety of local observances across the country, participating in on-going movement activities in the tradition of Dr. King, and supporting the continuing drive to make each January 15th a national legal holiday.

Mrs. Coretta Scott King, President of the Center, said: "The purpose of observing my husband's birthday is to involve people meaningfully in the celebration of his life, the perpetuation of his teachings, and the continuation of his work."

Highlights of activities for the birthday next month will include:

*—In Atlanta, an 11:00 A.M. commemoration service will be held Monday, January 15th, at Ebenezer Baptist Church, where Dr. King was Co-Pastor with his father. Main speaker at the service will be Congressman, Andrew Young, newly elected as the first black member of Congress from Georgia in 101 years. Music for the ecumenical service will be provided by the Atlanta University Gospel Ensemble. The program is being sponsored by the church, the King Center, and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

*—Also in Atlanta, a benefit concert for the King Center will be held that same night at the new Omni sports and entertainment arena, the public schools and city government will be closed for an official holiday and a documentary film on Dr. King's life will be shown on educational television.

*—The same authentic documentary, "KING: A F i l m e d Record...Montgomery to Memphis," will be shown at about 200 schools, churches and community assemblies across the nation.

*—Many state and city governments, and local school systems, have either recognized the birthday as an official holiday or arranged for official observances.

*—Citizens continue to collect petitions with signatures calling upon Congress to pass pending national legislation for a permanent holiday. This drive began in 1969, and already millions of signatures have been sent to Congress.

*—A number of trade unions are negotiating for January 15th as a paid holiday in their contracts, and some unions have already won this benefit.

*—Similarly, many stores, businesses and offices participate by offering paid holidays or time off for attending observances.

*—Radio announcers across the nation are planning to encourage people to drive with their car lights on all day January 15th as a reminder of Dr. King's leadership.

*—Local community groups — churches, civic clubs, civil rights organizations — will conduct services and programs in the tradition of Dr. King, such as voter registration, economic development and nonviolent action for social change.

MICHIGAN COURT RULES SCHOOL FINANCING SYSTEM UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Lansing, Michigan — (NBNS) — The Michigan State Supreme Court has ruled that the present method of allocating state dollars to local districts is unconstitutional. In a 4-3 decision, the court said that the method based on a school's district property values and millage levy, tends to benefit rich districts at the expense of the poorer districts. The ruling is similar to ones handed down in California and Texas.

Earl Hutchinson, 38, of 919 25th Street, was elected Chairman of the Central Advisory Board of the Des Moines Community Development Program at the board's first meeting of the new year held Monday, Jan. 8, at the YMCA.

Hutchinson is Chairman of the Woodland-Willkie

Neighborhood Priority Board and served as Chairman of the Central Advisory Board's Human Resources Task Force during 1972.

George Flagg of 744 52nd Street was elected Vice-chairman and Mildred Wheeler of 816 Dunham Avenue was re-elected as secretary.

MAGEE'S TRIAL SPARSELY ATTENDED

San Francisco — (NBNS) — In sharp contrast to the crowd of spectators and supporters at the Angela Davis trial, the trial of her former co-defendant Ruchell Magee is attended by only a few interested people.

The 32-year-old Magee, like Miss Davis, is accused of murder and kidnaping in connection with the August, 1970 shootout outside a San Rafael, California courthouse that left a judge and three others dead.

The defendant himself is seldom seen in court because the judge has confined him to a nearby cell where proceedings are piped in to him. This action was taken after Magee's repeated verbal protests and challenges to the proceedings.

EIGHTEEN INDICTED IN FHA HOUSING SCANDAL

Washington — (NBNS) — The Justice Department has announced that two real estate companies and 16 salesmen in Detroit have been indicted for submitting allegedly false information to secure federally insured mortgage funds from the Federal Housing Authority.

ATTICA INMATE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Auburn, N. Y. — (NBNS) — Ernest Bixby, indicted in the Attica rebellion of September, 1971, apparently tried to kill himself in his cell a few hours after his arraignment. He was found by corrections officers and taken to the prison infirmary where he was later reported in good condition.

Kawaida controversy

By Florence Tate
National Black News Service

New Ark, N.J. — (NBNS) — Members of Kawaida Temple, builders of the Kawaida Towers housing project for low and middle income families have denounced the picketing by white radical groups at the building site.

Without contacting the Imamu Baraka-led Temple, about 70 members of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and the Progressive Labor Party have been demonstrating in opposition to the picketing of the construction site by white residents of North Ward where the housing project is being built.

At a press conference last week, Kawaida representative read a statement by Baraka accusing the white radicals of "attempting to get back into the newspaper via the usual route" of exploiting black issues.

"They are attempting to use Kawaida as a new vehicle with which to thumb their noses at a society at which they are momentarily peeved, but which they stand a good chance to inherit," said Baraka.

A spokesman for SDA said the organization became interested in the project because "many white people throughout the country are being organized by white officials, such as Assemblyman (Anthony) Imperiale, to stop the construction of housing for blacks and Spanish-speaking persons."

Imperiale, an independent county assemblyman, said he had asked his followers to refrain from picketing while the other white groups were present in order to avoid confrontation.

The Kawaida spokesman charged that SDA and Imperiale were both guilty of racism in interfering in the lives and self-determination of black people.

"If SDS were doing the work it needs to be doing, that is educating and liberalizing the white community instead of taking irresponsible trips as unwanted missionaries-to-the-colored, there would be fewer Kawaida Twoer-type confrontations and more genuine harmony between true progressives from whatever race," chided Baraka.

C.A.C. youth dance successful

335 youth welcomed the new year to the rhythms of Shades of Soul. At the Black Theology Center, bone chilling winds sent dance committee members, one by one, for hats and coats. Special volunteers, Dr. Griffin and Mr. Emery Jackson thoroughly enjoyed the parade of hats, hairdos, and the very latest Mod Fashions as they sold tickets. The friendly and cooperative spirit of all who came was very much appreciated by the dance committee. Eddie Davis, leader of Shades of Soul, explained while his men were packing up their instruments and equipment. "We just wanted to play one more gig together before Mike (Jackson) left for the navy".

Bruce Taylor: Apprentice

Bruce F. Taylor

Bruce F. Taylor is a first year glazier apprentice with Forman Ford and Company here in Des Moines. Glaziers engaged in construction work cut, fit, and install plate glass, ordinary window glass, mirrors, and special items such as leaded glass.

A 1971 graduate of Dowling High School, Bruce will undergo three years of on-the-job training (6,000 hours) in addition to a minimum of 144 hours a year of related classroom instruction.

During his apprenticeship, Bruce will be taught how to use and handle the tools, machines, and materials of the trade. Instruction is also given in safety measures and first aid, and the reading of specifications and blueprints, and scaffolding. The program also includes on-the-job training in the glazing of wood and metal sash in doors, windows, partitions, and other openings; and the setting and replacement of all types of store front installations, structural glass, mirrors, showcases, and automobile glass.

Hourly wage rates for glazier apprentices usually start at 50 percent of the journeyman rate and increase periodically until the journeyman rate is reached at the completion of training.

BLACK STUDENTS PROTEST "DIXIE"

Pensacola, Fla. — (NBNS) — Black students continued to boycott schools in Escambia County in protest of the display of the confederate flag and the playing of "Dixie" at football games.

Letters to the editor

Letter to the Editor
January 9, 1973

The letter by J. B. Morris, Sr. attacking Georgia Representative Julian Bond was a discouraging example of Black Unity. Neither I nor Mr. Morris know enough about the problems faced by Mr. Bond to be publicly criticizing his day and night efforts to deal with the problems of the South. I have never heard Julian Bond presume to speak for all black people, except as a personal opinion. If we learned nothing else in the sixties, it should be that we cannot afford the political luxury of attacking leaders or one another in public. It is political suicide for black people whether Republican or Democrat. There is 'no hidin' place for me or Mr. Morris.

Operation VETS-CAP (Veterans Community Assistance Program) will be introduced to veterans, their dependents, and beneficiaries living in the Des Moines area on January 17, 1973 from 1:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. in the gymnasium of the Gateway Opportunity Center (old Dowling High School), 1000 College Avenue, Des Moines. The basic concept of VETS-CAP is to meet veterans, their dependents, and beneficiaries in their own communities and offer one-stop service on any problem or question they may have.

Participating in the event will be some 50 agencies representing Federal, State, county and local governments, as well as the private sector. Qualified interviewers will be on hand to discuss, in depth, such matters as job opportunities and requirements, social security benefits, home loans, business loans, medical treatment, emergency financial assistance programs and educational assistance.

Although the primary purpose of VETS-CAP is to disseminate information and to acquaint the veteran public with the various agencies available to help them with their problems, it is expected that immediate direct services will be available to many of those in attendance. For example, the Iowa Employment Securities Commission will be taking job interviews, the Veterans Administration will be handling benefit inquiries, the Polk County Department of Social Services will be on hand to assist those who require their services, and the Internal Revenue Service will be answering questions relating to preparation of income tax returns.

The local Model Cities Agency will provide free transportation to anyone living in the Model Cities area who needs a ride. Although the free transportation is limited to residents of the Model Cities area, anyone in the metropolitan Des Moines area may attend the VETS-CAP. Model Cities residents who need a ride may call 244-7261 or 243-8685 on the day of the event.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.: Finally I was enjoying an introduction to the LaForest Clark family: LaForest is the son of the late Marie and Luther Clark of Des Moines. He is the brother of Luther Clark, Jr., here.

MRS. CLARK IS EMPLOYED BY THE CITY SCHOOLS. LaForest is a sheet metal worker in the school system, serving about 140 schools. Mrs. Clark leads an incredibly busy life, devoting some time to handcrafts and much time to the activities of her two sons. LaForest's hobby is flying. He is a licensed pilot.

RON WANTS TO BE A STUDIO OR CONCERT violinist, or soloist, and eventually be a concert master of a major orchestra. In addition, he would like to play for studios of a Broadway show. He also wants to be a jazz violinist. He has set about learning all he can in the classical field, and will then use the facilities gained in this training and adapt it to jazz. Speaking of motivation— is this enough for a start at say 17 years of age? He will be on top!!

RON WAS CHOSEN LAST SEMESTER to represent the Georgia Laster Branch of the National Association of Negro Musicians at their Annual Convention in New York. He received a standing ovation for his performance of Mozart's Fifth Concerto in A Major.

NOW WE MUST TURN TO 14 year old David, the cellist! He is in two orchestras. David is a near genius when working with radio controlled model airplanes. He is an authority in this field and this is his first love! Now how did this couple have two such creative youngsters? Each has chosen his field of endeavor and has mastered it.

THIS FAMILY IS DES MOINES based in that Marie Clark is the former Marie Parker, sister of Judge William Parker, Ralph and Percy Parker, of Des Moines. The Luther Clarks, prominent here in Des Moines, are brother and sister-in-law to the L.A. Clarks.

Heating bills up in December

Due to extremely cold weather in December, customers served by Iowa Power and Light Company can expect their next utility bill to be somewhat higher.

Company officials noted that the December 1-15 period was 53° colder than a year ago, and 29° colder than the normal year. In the heating season through December 15, there have been a total of 2,404 "degree days", 829 "degree days" colder than 1971-72 heating season. A "degree day" is a measurement of the difference between an average daily temperature and a specific base temperature — normally set at 65 degrees. During last year's heating season, records indicate that extended cold didn't hit until the latter part of January and then peaked near the middle of February before dropping off.

If weather forecasts hold true, this winter could be one of the coldest in a long time and heating bills will be higher than normal. In addition, changes in the price of natural gas purchased by Iowa Power from the Company's pipeline suppliers will increase bills an average of 80 cents a month after December 18.

Iowa Power officials urge everyone to check their home insulation and add more where possible. Customers can also conserve energy and reduce their heating bills by setting thermostats at a lower level. Iowa Power estimates a saving of about 9% on the average if the temperature is kept at 72 degrees instead of 75 degrees.

A limited number of booklets entitled "7 Ways to Reduce Fuel Consumption In Household Heating...Through Energy Conservation" are available from local Iowa Power offices.

Federal housing, model cities facing ax

By Diane R. Williams
National Black News Service
WASHINGTON — (NBNS) — Last year, federal housing and urban renewal programs were inundated by charges of corruption, ineptitude, and proponents of continuing racial segregation.

The new year has not yet brought any visible panacea. And, recently, there have been widespread rumors that President Nixon may soon impose a moratorium on all federal housing subsidies for the next 18 months and will suspend indefinitely grants for urban renewal, water and sewer improvement, new town projects, and model cities in July.

The Office of Management and Budget has allegedly recommended to the President that all spending for these programs be curtailed until studies are conducted.

An AMB press spokesman, Joseph Laitin, said he "can't discuss it (the rumor of a halt in housing programs)." Noting that the rumor was widely publicized in the area, Laitin said, "I read the newspapers just like you." When queried as to whether this was the sum total of his knowledge of the moratorium, Laitin added, "I didn't say that." He then suggested that the National Black News Service wait until the budget comes out Jan. 29 "when these things become official."

According to an earlier report, Laitin was quoted as having said, "I know things are breaking loose here and there — some accurate, some inaccurate. In certain areas, with sensitive information, I have to be a little more circumspect..."

In a letter dated Dec. 29, a perhaps unprecedented ad hoc coalition of tenants, mortgage bankers, builders, and housing officials urged President Nixon to reject the OMB recommendation on the ground that a moratorium on housing would "deal a fatal blow" to the national goal of "a decent home for every American" and would have a serious impact on the national economy.

"The human and economic results of such action can only be described as catastrophic," the national coalition of some 22 groups — including the League of Women Voters, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the National Urban Coalition, the National Realty Committee, and the National Tenants organization — told the President, adding that a halt now "can hardly help this nation."

HELPFUL TIPS FOR OLDER DRIVERS

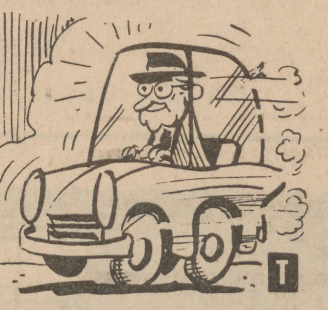

Although older motorists have long been accused of being less safe on the road than are younger drivers, the truth is that the older drivers have better driving records, according to a leading insurance company.

After analyzing the driving statistics of 500,000 drivers over the age of 50, the insurance company's findings are so favorable that it is offering auto insurance with guaranteed lifetime renewal features to drivers age 50 and over.

Based on patterns found among safe drivers, Colonial Penn Insurance Company has compiled these safety tips for mature motorists:

1. Don't try to drive great distances in one day. Limit a long trip to a series of short drives. This eliminates fatigue and the danger of monotony caused by long hours behind the wheel.
2. Limit each day's drive to five or six hours and no more than 250 to 300 miles.
3. Avoid super highways that require you to drive at constant high speeds.
4. Use secondary roads that have lighter traffic. They often offer the advantage of a more scenic trip.

5. Don't drive during heavy commuting hours, especially within metropolitan areas.

6. Don't drive at dusk. Poor light and long shadows distort and hide possible obstacles.
7. Cut down on nighttime driving. Older person's eyes tend to react more slowly to changing light conditions. Nighttime driving requires a constant adjustment to oncoming headlights.
8. Use special caution at unregulated intersections. Older drivers may find it difficult to make quick decisions and responses to meet sudden hazards.
9. On long trips, plan to stop driving each day in mid-afternoon. This schedule permits a relaxed dinner and a full night's rest.

MEMORIAL TO ROBERTO CLEMENTE

By Mark Sutherland
National Black News Service

ON New Year's Eve Roberto Clemente died when a cargo plane carrying 26 tons of supplies that he had collected for the victims of the earthquake in Managua, Nicaragua crashed into the water off the coast of his native Puerto Rico.

That he died on a mission of mercy only serves to emphasize the humanitarian side of his nature that was much overlooked by the American sports public.

To those who observed and admired his talents as a baseball player he was a distant and often temperamental figure but to those who knew him as a person he was a tender and basically shy individual. Just as the true recognition of his talent came only in the last few years, so only after his death is the real Roberto Clemente now being seen.

As a player he was undoubtedly one of the greatest possible only rivaled in all-around bility by Mays, Mantle and Aaron.

Both on the bases and on the field his exploits were often spectacular with his arm reputed by Mays to be the best in baseball.

It was his incredible hitting ability that will be long remembered. This ability to hit to all fields carried him into 12 all-star games, 11 seasons hitting over 300 and a Most Valuable Player Award. It was this talent also that finally went on

Sports Then

With Allen Ashby

Our column on Golden Gloves fighters brought a flood of questions about different fellows who had fought in the Gloves. Then I thought about some of the guys who had made the trip to Chicago, where all of the final bouts were held for so many years. There was Charley Boston. Charley was just about the smoothest boxer who ever fought in the thing here. He was always in the best condition. He could box like a champion, and hit like a heavyweight, although he was only a middleweight. Just about everybody who saw the bout said that Charley was really robbed in Chicago, a thing that happened pretty often if you happened to draw one of the favorites. The favorite was to draw the crowd for the final bout, and the couldn't lose unless he was knocked out. And then, sometimes I used to think he got a twenty second count.

Morton Graves fought the defending champion in a semifinal bout, and pasted the guy from here to yonder, but lost a "very close split decision."

Another top prospect was Claude Ellison. Claude was a hard punching, smooth boxing light heavyweight. The fellow later joined the pros and looked good enough in the Marigold Gardens bouts to draw raves in the Chicago Tribune. Maybe he could have gone far. Roland Taylor was another champ Roland was just about the toughest, hardest punching, middleweight to come round these parts. While Boston was a boxer, Roland would take three punches to land one, and that was usually all he had to land. He won some sort of national title, but I can't recall whether it was Glove or AAU.

Bill Mason was a fine boxer, and was one of the top prospects as a flyweight. Bill could box rings around most anybody, but he wasn't the hardest puncher and sometimes this cost him bouts, because no matter how far you outboxed your opponent, if he was a local boy, you lost. Bill never turned pro, but he could have made it pretty big.

Another golden Glover who turned pro was Bobby Carew. Bobby was looked on as a fine lightweight boxer, and who could have fought his way to the top ranks. But it was hard for black fighters to get the breaks in spite of the dominance of the game by blacks. They had to be tough, good and have a ton of luck to get anywhere. I think of a fellow out of Rock Island, Tommy Campbell, who was later won one of those close to become one of the nation's ranking crowd wouldn't go home.

lightweights. Campbell boxed Morton Graves in an amateur bout in Des Moines, and lost, but you could see class sticking out all over him. Some of our shy promoters tried to get him to locate here and fight out of Des Moines, but he was advised against it in no uncertain terms, and luckily for him, took the advice.

Then we had some very good also rans. One of these was a fellow named Mose Shackleford. Mose was just one step shy of the trip to the big city, because Claude Ellison was in his way. There was a flyweight named Strothers who was looked as a sure bet to make it, but lost out in his semifinal bout. Don Turner was a heavyweight boxer who made it once and was robbed another time. Don might have made it to the finals, but he got tired in the middle of his second bout of the night, and the middle of the ring is no place to get tired, especially when the ultimate champion is in there with you. Don was really robbed the first time he fought for a chance to make the big trip. There was a light heavyweight who was a relative of one of the promoters. We later heard that the guy got into the heavyweight class and was told to make it to the end of the third round and he had a ticket to Chicago. Well, he did and got his ticket and one of the damndest winners ever got. But he won one of those close to become one of the nation's ranking crowd wouldn't go home.
