Iowa CORE Chief Resigns

Leroy
McDowell

Leroy McDowell, Davenport, announced Thursday his resignation as Iowa Chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

The resignation is effective immediately, he said.

McDowell said he was resigning "to give some other people a chance to make their contribution, and to devote more time to his family."

McDowell was named to the post in June 1972 by CORE's national headquarters in New York, N.Y. He served as chairman of the Quint-Cities chapter from June 1971 until his appointment to the state post.

Frank Miller: Did New Ineligibility Rule Hurt Him?

By Venice Berry Teen Editor

On November 29, in his third year of high school basketball during his twelfth year of high school, Tech's leading scorer Frank Miller turned twenty years of age.

Then on January 15, 1973 The Des Moines Public School Board adopted the ruling that prohibits students twenty years of age or older from competing on high school athletic teams.

Judge John N. Hughes Jr. denied Frank a temporary injunction to let him play out the four to six games of his last high school season. The reason he stated was "Under the circumstances I think the case should be tried on it's merit, rather than have the court interfere now on a temporary basis with rules promulgated by state authorities."

In Mississippi where he was born, Frank helped his parents work in place of attending school. He therefore didn't start school until moving to Des Moines with his family at the age of eight, but has since progressed steadily towards his diploma.

Second in the Metro Conference, Frank has a 21.9 scoring average. He was also the second leading scorer in the city, but when commenting about the poll he said "Scoring is alright as long as you win".

The fuss was started last year when Frank might have been unable to play his entire senior year, but it was taken to Dwight Davis president of The Public School Board, who declared that since it was through no fault of his own that he had reached the age of nineteen at this particular time he should not be punished for it.

When talking to a few of Frank's opponents the only attitude you seem to get is that they don't care really. A few of them signed the petition because all their friends and teammates were doing it, some had a lot of influence from the older generation, some didn't have anything else to do, and a few just didn't sign it.

Bobby Holmes one of North High's leading scorers commented "Frank and I have played against each other for as long as I can remember in community gyms and in High School. I don't see where age has anything to do with it it simply depends on ability, and you don't notice how old a person is on the court anyway.

Walter Matlock another in the North high lineup stated, "I don't feel that he should have been put off the team because of his age, he's just another individual trying to make it to the top like everybody else, frankly I think he will".

The statement that Frank should have the right to play was disputed when the executive secretary of the Iowa High School Athletic Association (IHSAA) Bernie Saggau, told a Polk County District Court Judge, "Participation in interscholastic athletics is not a right but a privilege".

Saggau who seems extremely set against an exception to the rule added "It is not arbitrary or unreasonable, we are trying to protect the younger athletes. There is a big difference between a 'Growing Boy' and a 'Developed Man' at the age of twenty."

Frank's chances of getting a scholarship is lessened to a great extent because of this ineligibility rule. Although before this he has received mail from more than thirty colleges and universities, his hopes are mainly centered on attending Indiana University, Creighton University, or The University of Minnesota. The chances of Frank getting to one of these is now a bit dim.

The only example out of ten athletes I interviewed, of some one against Frank is Rick Cramer a star from Roosevelt High School. When asked if there was a difference between playing against Frank answered "Yes", and when asked why stated, "He's too old". Well is he more competition? "He's just too old" There is definately influence, no reason just influence.

Denny Sears also from Roosevelt said, "He had a hard ship case in Mississippi and I think they should have went on and let him play, that way Tech couldn't have said that we beat them because they didn't have Miller."

Frank still believes that this is unfair for many reasons, such as twenty year olds are not prohibited in

African Experience At East High

By Kathy Johnson

East High is fortunate this year to have a very candid foreign exchange student. He is 18-year-old Debela Birru, of Mendi Town, Wollega, Ethiopia.

Birru came to Des Moines last August through the American Field Service (AFS), a group that sponsors foreign students, and will remain here until June. During his stay he is living with the family of junior, Mike Peters.

Birru was born and raised in Mendi Town, where he was educated through the ninth grade. From that time, he attended a boarding school. He says, "African schools are much harder because subjects such as chemistry, algebra, physics, Spanish, and French are all taken in the ninth grade." In order to graduate from high school one must pass a government exam. Birru has already graduated in Ethiopia.

Basically, America and Ethiopia are pretty much the same, according to Birru. The homes and buildings are somewhat similar and the people live pretty much the same as Americans do. They listen to the same records, dress pretty much the same, wear the Afro hair style, and vacation just as Americans do. He says, "Many people are ignorant as to what Africa is really like. I just wish that some of them could just see for themselves what it is like."

The main differences are found in customs. For instance, Ethiopians have no family name. The father's first name is used as the family's last name. Ethiopians record time by a Julian calendar. According to this calendar, there are thirteen months in a year, and it is now only 1965.

Birru says that there are no racial problems in Ethiopia because the country has been independent for about 3,000 years. Therefore, Ethiopians have not been exploited by colonization, as has been the case of people in other countries. There are many whites in Ethiopia, but the country is ruled by blacks.

Among Birru's hobbies are rabbit and monkey hunting, doing magic tricks, playing soccer, and getting together with friends. He once played on the soccer team at his school.

Aside from the snow, and missing his family, Birru enjoys living in America. He would like to return in the fall to attend college, where he will major in medicine. His main reason for wanting to attend college here is because of the better medical facilities. His main goal is to live for Ethiopia and to help his people get a good education.

Garrison Selected to Elite Engineering Group

The Society of Manufacturing Engineers has certified over 8,000 professional engineers in 23 countries throughout the world. On February 8, 1973 Mr. Albert L. Garrison of 4910 SW 15th St., Des Moines, Ia. was notified that his application for becoming a certified manufacturing engineer was approved.

The requirements for certification includes academic training in a recognized technical science or engineering school in either of those areas. Then each applicant must have a record of 10 years or more employment in charge of projects which must include: planning and selecting methods of manufacturing, designing equipment for manufacturing, or tools, or other related equipment, research and development leading to new manufacturing processes or improving existing ones, and administration functions related to manufacturing engineering.

Mr. Garrison has been a member of this professional engineering organization since 1962. He was elected to Senior member status in December 1970. He received his certification from the Committee of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers on the basis of his previous experience, educational background, and successful completion of the eight hour examination.

Mr. Garrison was cited by the organization for his work in preventing the problem of oxidation in hydraulic systems and applications when he was employed as manager of Reliability Engineering and Quality Control Departments with the Vickers Hydraulic Division of Sperry Rand. He was assisted in his work by his Quality Control Staff, Dr. Wm. L. Larsen of Iowa State University, PH.D. Metallurgical Engineering, and Dr. John Gavrilovic of McCrone Laboratories of Chicago, Illinois.

Cultural Seminars Held At East High

Attending the inter-cultural seminars at East High on Tuesday, February 27, were students from the Des Moines area high schools, including West Des Moines and Urbandale.

Four discussion topics were offered, with guest speakers for each. Speaking about schools and Education was Mr. Wes Chapman, Coordinator of the Intercultural Affairs for the Des Moines Schools.

Speaking on the subject of prejudice were Mr. Al Carrell of the Des Moines Human Rights Commission; and Mr. Carl Williams, owner of The New Iowa Bystander. Mr. Bob Davis a counselor on the Concentrated Employment program (CEP); and Mr. Ralph Barr of the Iowa State Civil Rights Commission.

A Representative of the Midac drug treatment center, spoke about drugs in a third seminar. (MIDAC: Mid-Iowa Drug Abuse Council)

In a fourth group, East High's foreign student, Debela Birru, of Ethiopia, showed slides of Africa and gave a talk. Hoover's foreign student, D. J. Furrey, of France also spoke.

Other highlights of the day included a tour of East High's addition and a performer by the Scarlet Singers.

Chapman Involved in A.A.B.S.

East St. Louis, Ill. — Wesley S. Chapman of Des Moines, Iowa, was among the many black educators and students actively involved in the second Annual Conference of the African Association for Black Studies (A.A.B.S.) March 1-2 in East St. Louis.

Mr. Chapman is a member of the Board of Directors for the African Association for Black Studies. He is the coordinator of Intercultural Affairs for the Des Moines Independent School District.

East St. Louis, as a conference site, was described as "a stimulating atmosphere with potential for involvement of Black people who comprise a majority of the city's population." Workshop locations for the conference were in the Southern Illinois University East St. Louis Center, State Community College of East St. Louis Building and the city's Mary E. Brown Community Center.

Nick Aaron Ford of Morgan State University was the main speaker at the general assembly and luncheon Friday. Ford's topic was "The State of Black Awareness in U.S. Institutions of Higher Education."

The philosophy of A.A.B.S. is to make Black Studies and or educational institutions the vehicle for unifying and informing the total black community. The first conference, designed by a number of black educators and community people in the Midwest, was last year in Gary, Ind.

designed to improve the criminal justice system. Woods also thinks the only way to rehabilitate persons who have been convicted of crimes is to help them retain old ties and build new ones within the community.

For that reason, men under Woods supervision get weekend furloughs and all-day passes so they can visit their families and friends.

Some also learn new skills that will help them find better jobs when they leave. They use existing community facilities, most frequently the Manpower Development and Training Act skill center at 2403 Bell Ave., and the urban campus of the Des Moines Area Community College at 1000 College Ave.

Those who need on-the-job training, rather than the academic skills, receive it. Both students and workers are released from the Security Facility each day and taken to school and job sites.

Woods meets with counselors on his staff every Wednesday and Thursday to decide which clients have earned weekend furloughs or all-day passes. Then his staff obtains court orders from Polk County District Court that permit the temporary leaves.

Clients who are released to work are expected to help pay their room and board at the Security Facility. A single man earning $100 a week would be expected to pay $5 a day, or a total of $35 a week for room and board. A sliding scale is used to levy fees based on each man's obligations outside the facility. A married man with a large family who was earning $100 a week might receive free room and board because of family needs.

Woods said that about 80 percent of his clients currently work and 50 percent are receiving education or skill training. Many are working and going to school at the same time.

To further develop community ties, clients are given recreational opportunities outside the Facility. They are taken to movies, play ball and watch ball games.

The Minimum Security Facility is just one aspect of a four-pronged criminal justice system reform effort in Polk County. All aspects have been combined under the Polk County Department of Court Services, which is receiving funds to support the experiments from the Des Moines Community Development Program and the Law Enforcement and Assistance Administration.

Woods also encourages staff members to participate in recreational activities with clients. Jo Ellen Spriggs, a counselor, enjoys pool occasionally.

'Round City Hall

By K. Warren

In my previous article I related that the gentlemen who supposedly represent the poor, disadvantaged, and the minority people of the community seem to find physical accomplishments more important than people accomplishments. To further substantiate my theory, I call to your attention that this week at the council meeting it was decided to subsidize the ambulance service in the city. Also there is a plan to do the same with the transit service.

I am aware that both of these services are needed but it makes me wonder what the "Name of the Game" is when these services take precedence over the suffering of people. It seems a little odd when the city administration claims by firing poor people they can save money, but yet the same administration turns around and starts subsidizing private enterprises because they say they are losing money. The reason so I've heard for eliminating jobs is because these people have not been efficient. What is the Transit and Ambulances reason for losing money? Could it be poor management and inefficiency? These are some questions that need answers in my opinion.

To date, The City Council has committed $1,000 dollars of the 160,000 dollars they will save by firing the twenty three employees of Community Development. Incidentally, it makes you wonder also because thirteen of these employees are minorities, predominately black. Another thing to amaze one, is the fact that there were only seventeen blacks on the entire staff and only one of them had a job of any relative importance in the decision making process.

If you are wondering or a little bit disturbed at some of these facts remember one thing, these gentlemen are elected and it will be election time soon. Make an effort not to be lulled into complacency by promises this time. One more thought to remember, this administration has in words and deeds indicated the accomplishments they are most interested in, such as, the beautiful buildings that can be seen from the freeway, by travelers. And if you do not bring these gentlemen to task on these matters, then this type of action will continue.

Africa Must Find System For Masses

By Charlie Cobb
And Florence Tate

Chen Chimutengwende thought that many of his statements about Africa would be unpopular with a number of African governments as he began to address himself to some of the questions posed to him.

Self-reliance, a term popularized in terms of Africa by President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, was an important concept for Africa, he felt.

"We must get rid of the colonial mentality," he said. "Self reliance depends on whether you believe it or not, not on technicians. Some countries with many technicians don't believe in it so they don't have it," he stressed emphatically.

Chimutengwende, who edits the newspaper "Liberation Struggle" which is produced in London by a group of Africans and Asians, is here on a brief visit. He comes from Zimbabwe (Rhodesia). He left there some years ago to study journalism in Ghana and is now doing post graduate work on the "politics of nationalization in less industrialized African countries" in addition to his editorial responsibilities.

Looking at independent Africa, he posed that "it is not enough to overthrow imperialists. We must redistribute the wealth and not permit Africans to oppress other Africans. That means that those who drive Mercedes Benz will no longer drive while people in the country do not receive enough medical care."

While here in the U.S. he has had the opportunity to meet many persons interested in the liberation struggle in Africa. Commenting on some of the things that he felt black people should understand, Chimutengwende explained that "Europeans have even divided the liberation movements and determine which ones will be projected."

"UNITA (Union for the Total Liberation of Angola) is very much feared in Europe because it is said that it gets money from China, and fearing China the white man will not project it," he elaborated.

Basil Davidson spent a whole chapter in a recent book denying the existence of UNITA and then in ultimate desperation denounced it by saying it was a funnel for the CIA. Now if it is being funded by the CIA it must exist," he poured scorn on Davidson's thinking.

giving the customer a more favorable refund than he actually has coming to him based on the annual percentage rate quoted in the disclosure statement.

The banking industry has earned the respect of a consuming public by establishing a record of fair dealing. Some newspapers and a "few" legislators under the cloak of legislative immunity do not perform a desirable public service by making inaccurate and misleading statements which can only create unwarranted suspicion in the minds of the general public, nor do they create any admiration from responsible citizens.

Needy to get 3.6 percent Cost of Living Hike

About 12 million needy Americans will receive a 3.6 percent cost-of-living hike in government food stamp allocations July 1 to help keep pace with the rising cost of groceries. It was reported here last week. No official statements or final decisions have been made, but it was believed the rise will be $4 - for the second consecutive year - for a family of four, raising the allotment from $112 to $116.

I offer my deepest support to the Indians of Sout Dakota in particular, and in America in general. Why should a black man offer his support to someone else when he has enough problems of his own? Simply, "We's all in this boat together."

Together, they are at Wounded Knee. The funny thing though is the way the Indians are getting things done.

Everybody remembers those days of the sixties. The sweet summers of sweat and sorrow as I like to think of them. Well, when "those blacks" as they would say in those intellectual meeting in suburbia, got onto the torch everybody was thinking when will it all end.

Now never have we ever thought about taking over Newark (New Ark) or L.A. Could you see their faces if we did?

"Sir, sir, have you heard the news," says some rookie cop.

"What news boy I've got enough on my hand than for you to come in like gangbusters," replied the irritated caption on duty.

"It the Negroes, the Negroes..."

Cutting him off curtly the captain asks Well, what about those damn Negroes?"

"They took they city over..."

"C'mon, you've been drinking on duty or worse."

"No Sir, I ain't been drinking but they have control of the Mayor's home and our T.V. station."

When did this all happen. Speak up boy, I think the governor should know about this."

"A couple of hours ago. Right after "All In The Family" And the governor does know about it. In fact they've got him too."

"Them niggers have done it now." Looking like a very red hog in the face.

This little story could go on but I think you see what I mean. Sure we didn't take a city over we didn't have to just part of it. With the Indians it's different the whole city is a ghetto, so you take the whole thing over and tell whoever disagree with you to shove it - wherever you want but not back in our faces.

The funnest item about the Wounded Knee incident is the way the news media handles the reporting.

Television coverage has always been a farce. Let me give you an example."

The federal marshals are armed to the hilt, in fact you would think it was the National Guard's summer war games the way they were acting, whereas the Indians had arms but nothing to do damage to armored personnel carriers. So the reporter say the fed's are ready to invade the town to get rid of its Indian occupiers. You are left with impression that the marshalls are the Allied troops of WWII and the Indians are a bunch of die-hard, fight-to-the-last man Nazi's.

It's really the other way around, in fact, when they said bring the Vietnam war home way back when there were anti-war, protests, didn't think they would actually do something like doing it.

Who really knows what else they're going to do these days - But the U.S. government, of course.

A BANKER DEFENDS Gentlemen:

The Rule of Seventy-Eights Refund Chart as far as the banking industry is concerned, and the banking industry should not be lumped in with other set of regulations, according to my information is a very simple and accurate device enabling a bank to precompute the unused interest refund due any person at any time should he desire to prepay his installment loan prior to the maturity date.

In the interest of accuracy, may I cite a simple example. A person who desires to borrow $1,000 for one year at $6 per hundred per year add-on could be quoted at an annual percentage interest rate of 10.90 on his disclosure statement and charged $60.00 (applicable add-on rates and corresponding converted annual percentage rate are many times lower). If this same person came into the bank after six months and stated he wished to repay his loan in full the Rule of Seventy-Eights Standard Chart shows 26.92 per cent of the original charge should be refunded to the customer, which is $16.15. Logically, if the customer's account was up to date at that time, his principal balance would be $500.00. Should the same customer or any other customer come in the bank on that day and request a $500 loan for the remaining six month period of time, the bank then using the $6 per hundred per year add-on charge at 10.90 annual percentage rate would take one-half of the $6 figure for one year which would be $3 for six months, multiplied by $500, is a $15.00 charge.

Therefore, the Rule of Seventy-Eights Chart does refund all the unused interest that is due the customer and some additional. In this particular case a customer prepaying his $1,000 loan in six months would receive all his unused interest of $15.00 plus $1.15 bonus. The Rule of Seventy-Eights Chart was never intended to be used in computing prepayment of installment loans that have been paid in an irregular manner not in accordance with the contracts payment schedule. When this does occur it is necessary to compute the unused interest manually. The Rule of Seventy-Eights Chart in every case which I have determined at any time on the prepayment of a note in a bank is slanted towards

ROBERT PARKEY IS A NATIVE OF DES MOINES, IOWA, grew up and was educated here. Graduated from Drake University. Spent 26 years as a post office employee. In September of this year took advantage of an early retirement program and went job-seeking. The post of director of occupational upgrading became available and he jumped at the chance. Parkey saw the directorship as a chance to become involved in the problems of Blacks and maybe he could help.

THIS MUCH OF HIS STORY BROUGHT US UP TO NOW. He is seeking people from the prime areas who are under employed and if they could get more training and education they could be elevated in their job or be moved to another job that requires more skills. So we direct ourselves to that end. We feel there should be about 800 people who could use this type of service. This is what we have projected. Turning now to funds, he said, of course our funds are limited and we can help only about 235 at a given time.

WE WOULD LIKE TO GET SOME OF THEM INTO the Des Moines Area College. Our services are that of a job placement agency. We serve almost as an employment agency. We try to elevate people to a more meaningful employment for them. We are doing something like company's do for their employees. Self-improvement are among the benefits some firms offer employees. Our doing this will be of benefit to the City as well as to individuals. It is investment in people. Their incomes are higher. This is the element who are taxed; hence more taxes are gained as their income increases. We feel that government investment is a 6 to 1 gain.

MR. PARKEY IS IN FULL COMMAND of the directorship; completely knowledgeable of his goals, his people, and how and why he will pursue these goals.

A look at sports in retrospect

With Allen Ashby

A fellow could write a whole lot about the contributions of black players to basketball. I have stated several times that black schools were capable of holding their own with the big time white colleges long before the general public ever heard of them. This was because for years there seemed to be some sort of agreement among the major conferences not to let blacks play. This was often referred to in writups about Big Ten basketball. As a result of this, a lot of good basketball players from schools in Ohio, New Jersey, Illinois, Indiana and such went to black schools where they could play the game. And in a lot of our major universities the black fraternities usually won the intramural basketball title in a breeze because they had men who were good enough to play varsity ball, and the white teams didn't. So it must have hurt the bigger schools in more ways than they cared to admit. A few blacks played in some of the eastern schools such as Long Island U. which was a basketball power in the thirties, Cornell, and a few others, but in the mid west it just didn't happen. In the Big Ten, there was quite a fuss over a black player at the university of Michigan who went to court in order to get to play. He got a lot of publicity in the black press, and brought out the general Big Ten attitude into the open, but I don't think he played. The first real break in the thing came when the University of Chicago didn't have enough players to field a team unless they used black men. So they played, and the sky didn't fall in or the earth open up. There was a sub at Iowa U in the early forties, maybe his name was Wilkins, but he didn't play too much. But as usual things began to happen and blacks sprang up all over the conference.

But there was always a quota system, and a rule, "two at home, three on the road, and if we get behind, everybody." It remained for Loyola of Chicago to break this quota wide open and they won the NCAA title with the team, all black.

Then a bunch of fellows from West Texas showed up in the home gym of Kentucky U. and literally ran these people who were supposed to breeze to their third national title off the floor. That did it, nearly, but it took a number of years for most people to get brave enough to do that.

But the guys who left their mark on the game are Bill Russell, Wilt Chamberlain, and the then Lew Alcindor. Russell, playing for San Francisco U., would let an opponent shoot, and before the ball got in the basket, we would jump up and swat it away. So they put in the rule of goal tending. Now if a ball is on its way down towards the basket, or above the rim, you can't touch it. You see, Bill used to push in a lot of missed shots that hit the rim for his team. Then Wilt Chamberlain used to stand in the foul lane and they would get the ball to him, and nobody could get near it until he decided to do something with it. So came the three second rule, that you can't stay in the center lane longer than three seconds. But the big fellows got around that by standing just outside of the line, so they widened the free throw lane. Lew Alcindor used to take off like he was going to be airborne from about halfway down the center lane and then slam the ball downward through the hoop, rather than shooting it as ordinary players did. Nobody could stop that shot, so the rule makers outlawed what they called dunking or stuffing. But the professionals didn't change and you can still do that in their games. I saw Wilt Chamberlain in a game against Iowa State when he was a sophomore, and every time he went up for a shot, he had at least two players hanging onto his arms. If he had been as big and strong as he is now, he would have thrown half the Iowa State team through the hoop along with the ball. And Dunk! Wilt even now can slam the ball down into the basket and catch it as it comes through. If a fellow is unlucky enough to be under one of those slams, he just might get his head knocked off or badly dented. Wonder who will force the next major rule change?

Donnie Williams Mat King At Drake

DONNIE WILLIAMS

Williams, a former state champion at Des Moines Tech, had the third best record last year with a 21-10 card and went on to post a pair of big victories in the NCAA championships before losing to Minnesota's Jeff Lamphere, the sixth place finisher by a pin. He beat the No. 4 ranked college division man, 6-4, in opening match then shut out Maryland star Pappas, 5-0. He's the 126-pound king for Drake.

Despite the loss of its first legitimate super star, Mike Beaman, the Drake wrestling team is better than its 1971-72 counterpart.

"We have veterans at almost every spot, we have better depth and we are solid for the first six weights for the first time," is head coach Lonnie Timmerman's pre-season assessment.

The schedule, flush with talented opponents such as defending national champion Iowa State, Iowa, Oklahoma, Army, Minnesota, Arizona State, Northwestern, Oregon and New Mexico, is not on his side if Timmerman is hoping only for a flashy won-loss record.

He isn't.

"We have progressed little by little each year in the national tournament picture," Timmerman notes.

"That is our goal...to improve our stature there, to climb up the team ladder in the final standings and to consistently have place winners. We have not had one as yet."

Timmerman adds, however, that this may well be the year for he feels he has three men who have the talent to reach the final six rankings. He calls them tri-captains, for they are leaders in addition.

Donnie Williams, a 126-pounder from Des Moines, is the lightest and most experienced, having been a starter for the Bulldogs three years. Gary Christensen, from Lenox, Iowa, is at 142-pounds after missing all of last year due to a construction job injury during the summer months of 1971. The biggest, and possibly the brightest hope, is Vane Overturff, a 158-pounder from Runnels, Iowa.

Drake had NCAA qualifiers a year ago and six return.

In the lower weights Kelly Bast, at 118, and Williams return. Then there is Christensen, who made it the year before, Overturff and 150-pound Cliff Howlett, a two-time state prep champion at history-rich Britt, Iowa.

Timmerman, for the first time, even has a happy log jam of talent, partially caused by Overturff. He has outstanding talents in sophomores Howlett and Steve Hardman, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, and three-year letterman Greg Gruss, of Greenfield, Iowa.

All three are 150 to 158 pounders, but Overturff is in command at 158 and all of them obviously cannot go at once at 150. Hardman is the likely choice to move up to 167, filling the hole of departed star Beaman.

FAITH TEMPLE CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST

On last Saturday night, Elder Roscoe Blackwell and family and Elder T. C. Riel, of Davenport, Iowa, were back at Faith Temple and the Lord met us in a great way.

Elder Blackwell preached under the anointing of the Holy Ghost. His subject, "Jesus is taking Applications". In his closing, he said an application is merely a confession what you are.

The choir, under the direction of Sister Riel, sang "Well Done". Elder Riel made an altar call and souls were added to the church.

Sunday morning, we had a wonderful time. The Spirit of the Lord did move in our souls as our pastor preached "Man Shall Not Live by Bread Alone", and left the thought with us "Jesus said 'I Am the Bread of Life'. Many souls were on the altar.

Our pastor is Elder E. W. White, Superintendent of the Western District, Mrs. J. Brodus, State Mother; Bishop A. B. Carter, State Bishop.

You are welcome at Faith Temple Church of God in Christ, "Where love began".

people did not support the President."

Noting that they were becoming activists for the first time in the 157-year history of the church, Bishop Nichols said, "it is dehumanizing to take from the Americans those supportive programs in education, in housing, in community organizations, in manager training, in child care, in economic development, which have formed a small basis of hope in a ranging sea of despair."

He said the President had listened to the "wrong voices" to reach the conclusion that anti-poverty programs had been ineffective.

"The programs have reached the people," Bishop John Adams of the Texas Episcopal District said. "They haven't been perfect, but they have been better than nothing."

Bishop Nichols said the 18 ministers—whose districts are divided across the country and in West Africa and who represent some two million blacks—would meet with the Caucus to map a strategy of action and to plan a "black summit meeting" to bring together all groups opposed to the Nixon program cuts.

The concept of a summit meeting on black leaders has also been proposed by Vernon Jordan Jr., executive director of the National Urban League and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, president of People United to Save Humanity (PUSH).

Bishop Adams charged that "Lockheed gets bailed out, the railroads get bailed out. It's socialism for the rich and rugged individualism for the poor."

In a joint statement, the bishops and the Caucus called the budget cuts "cruel," and said, "we have demolished Hanoi and much of North Vietnam and we protest the rebuilding of the same at the expense of local programs that will hurt the poor and underprivileged of all races."

The bishops also adopted a resolution charging the President had weakened programs which gave "the dispossessed of our land a reason for hope."

"This action by President Nixon represents a cruel and callous disregard for the 'paradox of poverty in the midst of plenty,' and an offense to the sensibilities of justice which lies at the heart of our Judeo-Christian faith."

AME Bishops Protest Cutbacks

Calling the Nixon Administration's social policies "dehumanizing" to black and poor people, 12 bishops of the African Methodist Episcopal (AME) Church last week strongly denounced the President's budget cuts, the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity, and the impoundment of Congressionally-appropriated funds.

In a press conference with the House, all of whom are Democrats—the bishops said they would unite with other groups, including white church leaders, to fight the budget cutbacks and called on the President to "rescind these threats to the very vital lifeline of our communities."

The bishops said they were attempting to serve as "voices of prophets trying to avoid a long, hot summer."

"We're trying to take the leadership for the people in the street," said Bishop D. Ward Nichols, the group's spokesman. "If our voices are not heard, I greatly fear the radicals will take to the streets in the summer and there will be bloodshed. We are here to ask Congress to help avoid what we see coming."

Four of the bishops—who have taken a conservative stand in the past—supported President Nixon's re-election last year. However, last week, Bishop Nichols said, "but the majority of black

More Funds Will Help Cities,
Carl Stokes Claims

Former Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes said last week the Federal Government could correct the problems of the cities almost immediately by directing "a massive infusion of funds" into metropolitan areas. Stokes, now a television newsman with NBC in New York, said the Government should support job training, relocation of the elderly outside the center city, education and other factors which have been a threat to the existence of the nation's largest cities. He was addressing an audience at Oral Roberts University's Black Awareness Week.

More Funds Needed for Job Program, Senators Say

Spring Offensive Set For SCLC

By National Black News Service

Charging that the President is insensitive to the needs of poor people and black Americans, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference has announced it will launch a "spring offensive" to fight anticipated cutbacks in anti-poverty funds.

Several weeks ago when SCLC President Ralph Abernathy was in Washington for National Mobilization Day in support of the nation's OEO programs, he announced that the organization would join forces with the Rev. Jesse Jackson's People United to Save Humanity (PUSH) and sponsor a spring offensive against the proposed budget cuts.

Abernathy, who has led the organization since the assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., joined Atlanta SCLC officials in calling for the first demonstration of the offensive here on April 4, the fifth anniversary of Dr. King's assassination.

He said the cutbacks represented "clear evidence Mr. Nixon is insensitive to the needs of poor people."

"I am convinced if Mr. Nixon is allowed to proceed this nation will experience the 'hot summers' of the '60s," he told a press conference. "If Congress does not take the initiative to exert its constitutional authority, then the President will have led this nation on a dangerous and destructive course towards a dictatorship."

Abernathy said he was confident that the protests "through a warm spring and a hot summer will take us to many state capitals and cities across the nation."
