Hawkins Earns Eagle Scout Award

Keith Hawkins

Keith Hawkins was given his Eagle Scout award on Sunday, June 3, at 6 p.m. during a Court of Honor at Easton Place United Methodist Church. It is the highest Scout Award and the first given since the reorganization of his post.

Keith, 16, is a sophomore at Des Moines Technical High School. He is a member of Explorer Post 99 and a member of the Order of the Arrow. Keith is activity chairman in the post and post recording secretary, and the Order of the Arrow Camp program chairman.

For four years Keith has been a Register and Tribune salesman with 75 customers. He assumes responsibility for the welfare of his 14 year old sister, Michelle, who began delivering papers at the same time.

He serves as caretaker of many of his neighbor's lawns. He is very professional in each undertaking and for this reason his services are much sought after in his area. His services are depended upon during winter snows.

Keith makes his services available to Union Baptist Church, where he is a member. When he was required to fulfill a project to earn his Eagle Award, he chose to panel the Women's Rest Room there. Needless to say, this act was well-received by the membership.

Keith has attended the Philmont National Boy Scout Camp. This took place last July. Here he earned the 50 mile award. He had to walk 50 miles, or paddle a canoe or use the boat route taking a minimum of 5 consecutive days to complete the trip. He chose to walk. In addition he completed a minimum of 10 hours of group work on a project to improve the camp trail.

At Mitigwa Camp he qualified for the special emblem a mile swim BSA, which is where he won his Scout Life guard emblem.

Young Hawkins leads a life of service, a fact well-known to all who know him.

Among those appearing on program during the Honor Court were Rev. Henry I. Thomas and Mr. Carl C. Cain.

Reception for Herrold V. Mann

A reception for Mr. Herrold V. Mann, secretary to the Des Moines School Board, will be held in the East High School Cafeteria on June 10, from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Mr. Mann will retire June 30 from the Des Moines Public School System, following 42 years of service.

He began his teaching career at East High in 1931.

The public is cordially invited to attend the reception in his honor.

Talent & Style Show A Success

This talent and style show was tremendously successful. This was due to the support of the parents and enthusiasm of the participants.

Winners in the three to seven year old styles was Tousiant Cheatom; in the eight to twelve year old style was John E. Huston; the teens was Roberta Dawson; talent was Monica Woods.

Special garments were made by Mrs. Darlene Woods, Mrs. Jacquelyn Callaway, Mrs. Liz Martinez and Mrs. Anita Jones.

The judges were Mike Harris, Tony Murray, Pat Nelson and Armel Hunt.

Justina Whiteside and Rose Webster narrated the show, and Couples of Soul, were the featured guests.

Dennis Ashby

Wednesday, June 13th, will mark the beginning of a fund raising drive aimed at the purpose of purchasing the old Dowling High Complex. The complex has been renamed the Martin Luther King Center for Human Development.

Dennis Ashby, administrator of the Center, is optimistic that the needed $300,000 to $500,000 will be obtained. He is asking the community for any donations, no matter how small.

The main thrust of the fund raising drive however, is the participation of the Des Moines Business community at large. Some twenty eight letters of introduction have been sent to businessmen, asking them to meet with the people.

The meeting will give the center coordinators the opportunity to explain their goals. The meeting will take the form of a luncheon, and will be held on the Kick-off day June 13th from 11:00 am to 1:00 pm.

The center has already received a tentative pledge of $10,000 from the Des Moines City Council, confirmation of which is expected soon. The $10,000 will be used to pay the rent of organizations located in the center who cannot presently handle the rent payments.

Some of the organizations already housed in the center are: The Inner Urban Des Moines Campass, The American Indian Movement Headquarters, the Gateway Opportunity Center, and an organization of the Chicano Community.

Guest speaker at the luncheon will be Lt. Governor Arthur Nue, and the businessmen who have accepted the invitations to be present are: Tom Whitney, Board of Supervisors, John Ruan, Ruan Cab Co. Dennis Fulton, Des Moines Jaycees, Ken McDougall, Meredith Corp., Monroe Colston, Chamber of Commerce, Dick Reid, Northwestern Bell, Jack Wesenberg, Chamber of Commerce. Mayor Richard Olson declined the invitation stating other pressing business.

The purchasing of this building complex can be a step toward reality for a historically defranchised community. We have long needed a space for a Dropin Clinic for the poor and elderly, a language training center, a central communications center that would be linked to all major areas of the nation.

There is a space available for small business endeavors. An area of this magnitude is sorely needed by our community and with your help it will become yours.

Exploring Childhood

North High School has been selected by the Office of Child Development as one of 200 field test centers to use and evaluate new curriculum materials for Child Development in 1973-74. The materials, entitled "Exploring Childhood" have been developed through a grant from the O.C.D. to the Education Development Center, Cambridge, Massachusetts, during the last two years.

"Exploring Childhood" will be a one-year elective course for senior high boys and girls. Students will spend part of their time in the classroom, learning about child development, and the needs of children, and family relationships through especially prepared workbooks, films, and audio-cassettes. Then, they will go to child care centers to work with young children under the supervision of their own teacher and the preschool teachers.

The program is designed to teach adolescents about child development, to give them experience working with young children, to answer their questions about children and parenthood, and to prepare them for possible careers in work with children.

School Board Names 3 New Schools

The Des Moines School Board Tuesday voted to name the three new schools after Lillian Edmunds, Martin Luther King, jr., and Mrs. Ruby F. Van Meter. The name of Bill Cosby, the Black comedian, first choice in a recent neighborhood election, was rejected.

The Lillian Edmunds school is located at Fifteenth and Crocker streets and will replace Bird and Grant elementary schools. Her name was second choice of the neighborhood election.

Mrs. Lillian Edmunds came to Des Moines from Birmingham, Alabama, as the bride of the late Geo. H. Edmunds, international organizer for United Mine Workers. She attended Drake University School of Pharmacy from which she graduated.

She subsequently became director of the Negro Community Center which was then located at 13th and Crocker. Then was moved to 15th and Crocker streets and then moved to what is now Wilkie House, 17th and Crocker streets. She remained director of Wilkie House until her death, December 13, 1955.

She was very active in social and civic affairs and in St. Paul AME Church. She gave twenty dollars to the first Black boy to become an Eagle Scout. She served on the committee supporting the Board of the Des Moines Branch of the NAACP and the Des Moines Interracial Commission along with the late Archie Alexander and Dr. Walter Briggs, who was pastor of Grace Methodist Church which was sent to the School Board and culminated in the long effort in securing the first regular Black teacher in Des Moines.

She has two children: Arthur John Edmunds, Director of the Urban League in Pittsburgh; and Mrs. George Edmunds Williams, of St. Paul Minnesota.

The Martin Luther King, jr. school is at Nineteenth and Clark streets, replacing Nash & Kirkwood schools. King's name was the first choice of the neighborhood.

The Ruby F. Van Meter is located at Twenty-eighth and Crocker streets, replacing Slinker School. Mrs. Van Meter is a retired administrator and Des Moines schoolteacher, living in Des Moines.

The board named four new principals, Howard Hart, presently principal at Nash, was appointed principal of Martin Luther King, jr.

electrical installations; and maintain and repair installations. In addition, he receives related classroom instruction in subjects such as electrical layout, blueprint reading, mathematics, and electrical theory, including electronics. After completing their apprenticeship, many journeymen electricians enroll in courses, which may include advanced electronics, to keep abreast of the latest developments in this rapidly changing occupation.

Hourly wage rates of apprentices usually start at 40 to 50 percent of the journeyman rate and increase by 5 percent in each 6-month period until 80 to 85 percent of the journeyman rate is reached during the last period of the apprenticeship. At a base rate of $8.94 an hour, journeymen electricians are among the highest paid craftsmen in the construction industry.

Electrician Journeyman

Tim Manriques

In a very few days Tim Manriques will join the ranks of some 200,000 other construction craftsmen who have earned the title of journeyman electrician. This will be a direct result of having spent some 8,000 hours (4 years) at what is commonly called on-the-job training as an apprentice electrician. In addition to his on-the-job training, Tim has also spent several hundred hours in the classroom taking instruction directly related to his on-the-job training.

In a typical 4-year training program, the apprentice learns, among other things, to use, care for, and handle materials commonly used in the trade; do residential, commercial, and industrial school at a yearly salary of $19,290.

Don Brubaker, presently educational co-ordinator of Community Development, was appointed principal of Lillian Edmunds school at a yearly salary of $19,290.

Robert Hyde, an administrative intern, was appointed principal of Casady School, at a salary of $18,520.

Congress on Black Dance

The contributions of black dancers in tap, ballet, ethnic, modern, and social dance forms will be explored at the First National Congress on Black Dance, to be held June 26 - July 1 at Indiana University in Bloomington.

The Congress is sponsored by the Modern Organization for Dance Evolvment, New York City, and the Indiana University Black Music Center.

THE MINIMUM WAGE BILL IS COMING UP THIS WEEK!

The federal minimum wage bill is scheduled to come up on the House floor for debate and voting, sometime within the coming week.

The bill number has been changed - it is now H.R. 7935 - but it is essentially the same bill we described in our last MEMO (No. 5-73). It would raise the minimum wage, eventually, to $2.20 an hour for both farm and non-farm workers; and it would extend coverage to state and local government employees and to those working in household domestic service.

Block That Substitute!

We support H.R. 7935 as reported out of the House Education and Labor Committee. An attempt will be made to substitute an ineffectual bill for the committee measure. Such an attempt, remember, succeeded in the House last year; as a result, the bill died. This time we must get the Committee bill through the House!

Phone, Wire, Write!

You can help us win this crucial fight by generating a flood of messages to your Representatives. There isn't much time. Phone or wire you House members. Write if you must, but send it airmail.

Urge Three Things:

1. Be present when the bill comes up.
2. Vote for the Committee bill, J.R. 7935.
3. Vote against the substitute and against any amendments.

It is seven years since the federal minimum wage law was amended. We must do all in our power to see that the nation's lowest-paid workers start moving toward a decent rate of pay.

Thinking of vacation time, one could take a look around Iowa when considering historical sites. Narrowing one's interest to Black history, Iowa has much to offer:

Ames the home of Iowa State University from which George Washington Carver graduated in 1894 deserves a visit. He joined the faculty while still a student there. Later he became director of the Department of Agricultural Research at Tuskegee Institute.

It was he who persuaded southern farmers to turn to crops other than cotton which was depleting their land. It was he who discovered nearly three hundred uses for the peanut.

We now turn to Burlington, Iowa. On North Third Street there is a parking lot occupying the site of the Old Zion Methodist Church in which the Iowa Territorial Supreme Court met.

The court's first case involved one Ralph, a Missouri slave, whose owner had encouraged him to go to Dubuque to work in the mines to earn the cost of his freedom. The owner sought Ralph's return; Ralph went to court with an attorney, one David Rorer. It was found that since Ralph had not come to Iowa as a fugitive and the law prohibited anyone being enslaved in Iowa, he could remain free. Chief Justice Charles Mason presided. This was July 1839.

Clinton, Iowa's Lafayette Hotel stands on the site of the Underground Railroad Station, Sixth Avenue South and South Second Street. A small house had been located here where slaves found refuge when escaping into Iowa from Missouri.

Slavery had been banned from this territory by the Ordinance of 1787 and by the Missouri Compromise. The many Quakers here held anti-slavery sentiments and they sanctioned development of an efficient underground railroad system.

Now for Des Moines: the State Capitol Building displays the battle flags of the Iowa military units that fought in the Civil War. Included is that of the 1st Regiment, Iowa's Colored Infantry, later known as the 60th United States Infantry.

The regimental history reports the enthusiasm with which Blacks here and throughout the United States fought once they were allowed to do so.

Reportedly there were fewer than 1500 persons of Black descent living in Iowa. The Blacks were most desirous of defeating those engaged in perpetuating slavery. A total of 1153 Blacks enrolled in the regiment—almost every man of African descent capable of military service—before the war ended, 344 of them were dead.

Indianola figures in the life of George Washington Carver. It was the friendship and understanding of the administration, faculty and students of this institution in 1890, that saved what was to be one of the greatest agricultural scientists in the world. He sought admission here with little hope that he would be accepted. In 1885, he had been accepted at Highland College only to be rejected upon arrival on campus: the school did not accept Negroes.

Carver walked twenty-five miles from Winterset to Indianola with all his worldly goods tied in a small bundle. To his delight, he found himself welcome at Simpson College. When he had paid his fees he had ten cents left.

Carver bought corn meal and beef suet with his last dime. He found lodging in a woodshed. Someone loaned him a washtub, and he began to take in laundry from other students. Initially his interest was in art, but when it became apparent to him that he could render a greater service in scientific agriculture, he transferred to Iowa State College at Ames.

Carver had great affection for Simpson College. He stated "It was in high school that I first learned what it meant to be a human being, and at Simpson that I could truly believe I was one."

The Science Building at Simpson is named in his honor and a marble memorial inscription and bronze plaque pay tribute to him in the foyer.

In Sioux City there is a Pearl Street named for a Black woman pioneer who arrived there on one of the boats. The honor paid her suggests that if Pearl was not a good cook, she must certainly have been a popular one.

Pearl had competition from another Black cook who arrived there in the 1860's. She was called Aunt Wooden. She established a reputation for her opossum dinners. Leading citizens competed for invitations to these.

Black Newspaper Office Destroyed by Dynamite

An explosion demolished the Editorial offices of the Willington Journal, a black-oriented weekly newspaper. Monday night, May 28th and sent debris into nearby homes and vehicles.

No injuries were reported although two people were in their apartments at the rear of the two story frame building during the explosion.

Local, State and Federal officials called to the scene said the explosion originated at the center of the building. The front end of the structure the portion containing the paper offices, was blown out while the back remained standing.

About six homes and two vehicles received minor damages. The newspaper was founded in 1915 and is edited by Thomas C. Jervay. Speculation has arisen that the blast might be the result of arson, set possibly by the whites who have resented recent efforts of the black community to organize for improvement in city affairs.

Some have compared the state of the city of Willington to that of Cairo, Ill. where there has been a continuing cold war between the races for several years, often erupting into open confrontations and shootings.

A Willington misister, The Rev. Ben Chavis, a United Church of Christ black Clergyman, has been indicted by City officials for numerous offenses for his efforts at organizing the Black community. He and his family live under constant threats.

Willington has also been the sight of numerous confrontations.

The Recording Industry-The Star Makers

(2nd article in a series about the recording industry.)

Last week's article dealt with the marketability of recording artists and mentioned the fact that a star is not always talented. The men who determine who will reach stardom are not men you are familiar with; their names are not household words. That anonymity doesn't reduce their power, these men do not need exposure to prosper, although their stars certainly do. Exposure is the name of the game, and this article will talk about the people who call the shots.

Perhaps the most important link in the chain of production of star-making is the promoter. This man works for the producer, who can be said to own the property, the star. The promoter is responsible for marketing the star; he is responsible for seeing to it that the star is brought to the attention of other persons in the recording industry; specifically those persons who deal more or less directly with you. The promoter has any number of methods of operation. His job is to convince his contacts of the feasibility of presenting a particular star to you. A promoter must appear to guarantee success for whoever accepts this property. Remembering that the promoter works for the producer, and that the producer is the man who has invested a great deal of time and money in the star, you can see that the promoter must be convincing. How convincing is up to him, but once he has succeeded, he is no longer the focal point and we must now look at the men of the media, his contacts. These media men have a number of different jobs, the most important being the man at the radio station, the programmer.

It would seem that after the Star has passed through his agent's hands to the producer, and from there to the promoter, and finally into the media, that he would be an honest-to-goodness Star. No such luck, many more properties are sold to the media men than ever surface for our enjoyment.

The media men, through some system of their own, determine who you'll hear. Simply put, the supply exceeds the demand. Three hundred single records are released each week, and of that number only seventy ever reach the air. It is from these seventy that you choose. Don't assume that the remaining two hundred and thirty records were unchosen because they were bad sounds. Remember what was stated last week about talent being secondary to marketability, and recall the examples used to illustrate that fact. Freaky Alice Cooper is one of the hottest things going in the acid rock world. Alice Cooper and his strange self cannot sing, but he's big news. Al Green can sing you to death, he is overloaded with talent. What sells Alice Cooper is not what sells Al Green to us. But what made Cooper and Green Stars is the system, the four salesmen, the real formula for success. Next week we'll get into the places along the way where those two hundred and thirty records fell.

music because of his unique sounds which are associated with soul music."

Like many black performers who started their careers in gospel choirs, Manu had the same experience at a church in Douala where his parents sang. When he was 15 years of age he came to Europe to continue his formal musical education.

But encountering Congolese musicians in Europe, he decided to concentrate on African music.

IMPORTANT & ODD EVENTS THIS WEEK

Sunday, June 10th, is Race Unity Day. Its purpose is to spread the concept of the spiritual unity of man,

AFRICAN Soul HITS AMERICA

New York City— In the coming days the name of Manu Dibango will be talked about by teenagers and those who buy millions of records and disc jockeys who spin them.

Already a famous name throughout the continent of Africa and Europe, Manu, who was born at Douala, Cameroon, West Africa, is as well known as Quincy Jones is here because of his unlimited talents. A first class maestro and composer, he arranges, conducts and is proficient on saxophone, piano and bass.

Within the past three weeks, his "Soul Makossa", smash hit record on the Fiesta label has spread across the country and its groovy sounds reflect the roots of his musical heritage that he discovered in his native land. Ahmet Ertegun, President of Atlantic records, outbid a dozen major record companies for distribution rights to "Soul".

In the past very few African performers or bandleaders have attained fame in the states, but the outlook for Dibango is very optimistic, said Henry Allen, Vice President of Atlantic.

"The reception accorded Manu's first release in America exceeds all expectations," said Allen. "We look to him becoming one of the giants in pop regardless of race... a nice thought, but how hopeless it sometimes seems."

Thursday, June 14th, is Harriet Beecher Stowe's Birthday. Harriet wrote the famous (or infamous) "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Thursday, June 14th, is also National Apricot Week's opening day. Not very exciting to you, maybe, but to California's apricot growers, it's a big day!

And last but not least, Thursday, June 14th is Army Birthday. Yes indeed, let us celebrate this day. The Army is 198 years old, 'bout time for it to expire.

A telephone that not only lets you talk to people, but also gets talked about.

Our Electra decorator phone is as much a piece of decor as it is a telephone.

And because it's so beautiful, it becomes, you should pardon the expression, a conversation piece.

After all, anyone can have a room decorated in a period style. But now you can have a phone done in a period style.

The design is a traditional French cradlephone. The delicate styling is executed in a tasteful white color with gold trim and a cameo inset in the dial. Bonus: The Electra's compact size allows it to be placed just about anywhere.

The challenge today is the problem of family life and home. We must emphasize the contributions of women of all ages, creeds, colors, and classes to the national community. Home expresses the personality of the mother a real home to her family. We should encourage youth to seek education and keep the standards high through aiding them with scholarships.

Women must continue to hold the standards high if we are to build a better civilization and a solid foundation. Doors are opening to our youth today but he must be prepared, educationally, spiritually and morally. The motto should not be "Burn Baby Burn" it should be "Learn Baby Learn."

Editor's Note:

The New Iowa Bystander will be celebrating its 80th anniversary in another week. Because of your apathy, the general business district has not found it expedient to designate a set sum of their advertising budget for your newspaper. Now you can't blame anyone other than yourself. If every now and again, you would think to mention to the merchant that you saw his ad in the Bystander, he might take more notice of it. Business concerns the nation over are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars studying ways to get money from the so-called Black market. Why not make it a two-way street?

Communications is the key to engaging in intelligent dialogue with your fellowman. Money is the graphite in the lock that causes the key to turn smoothly. This media is the only one you can truthfully call yours in this area. If you won't support it, no one else should.

The Black businesses in Des Moines should get on the ball and spend some of their advertising dollars with their paper. When you do this, we can walk a little straighter when we approach the white businessman for his business. Peace!!

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

A clipping from a back issue of your publication was discussed here. Struggling to modify incarceration predicaments of elderly and youthful white, black, and defenseless minority inmates, our Link Society is despairingly desirous of unconventional programme data on prison court action projects, community based correction, prison criminal justice, prison projects, and convict unions through due process under constitutional law.

As a democratic and quasi-religious venture, desperately needed assistance consistent with Link's prison reform objective through the legal procedure will be appreciated.

Bills Include Rate Refunds

Bills being mailed beginning today to Iowa Power and Light Company customers include credits for electric rate refunds recently ordered by the Iowa State Commerce Commission. The refunds vary for each customer, but together total approximately $3.5 million. The average residential customer will receive a refund of approximately $15, including interest and sales tax credits; smaller and larger refunds are possible, depending on amount of service used and the number of months the customer received service.

Iowa Power officials said that refunds would continue to be mailed during the entire month of June as bills are sent on regular delivery dates to customers. The refunds cover a portion of the electric rate increase charged during a nineteen month period between June 1, 1971, and January 1, 1973, when Iowa Power was collecting increased electric rates under bond while awaiting approval of the rates by the Commerce Commission. The final Commission decision approved only 64 percent of

DEAR EDITOR,

Please print my letter to give me one more chance to rid myself of the loneliness that persists in my incarceration in the Southern Ohio Correctional facility. My reason for seeking correspondence is that I have no living relatives and I also wish to keep in contact with the outside world. My interests vary, and I will be pleased to hear from anyone.

the increase. Customers are receiving five percent interest on the refund amounts through April 15, 1973, and seven percent from that date through June 1.

Refund payments to customers who have moved and closed their account with the Company are being made by check, mailed to the last known mailing address. The Company plans to maintain a detailed listing of each customer's refund, which will be available for inspection. If customers have questions, they are advised to contact any Company office.

Hope for the Retarded

The Department of Justice, in an effort to develop legal standards for the care and treatment of the mentally retarded, sought today to enter private suits against the nation's largest state institution for the retarded.

Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst said a motion to allow the federal government to participate as amicus curiae was filed in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn, New York.

The private suits, brought by the mother of a retarded child and the New York State Association for Retarded Children, Inc. challenged conditions at Willowbrook State School on Staten Island.

Willowbrook, which houses some 4,700 children and adults, is the largest public institution for the mentally retarded in the United States.

The Justice Department motion said the case "provides an important opportunity to develop realistic standards for the treatment of persons confined to institutions for the mentally retarded."

Iowa Civil Rights Commission

The Senate Judiciary Committee recently passed a bill designed to reduce the power of the Iowa Civil Rights Commission in a number of different ways. The intent appears to be to curb the power of an agency which has acted on behalf of many, many persons protected and aided by the Iowa Civil Rights Act. The Commission has aided these persons in getting and retaining jobs, housing, and access to accommodations which had been denied due to discrimination.

Reduction of the power of the Commission by passage of the bill could well have the opposite effect of that which the sponsors desire. Drying up the main source of help and recourse to those who are the victims of illegal discrimination will only drive them to seek other means to express the injustice and frustration that they feel. Reducing the power and efficiency of the Commission will also serve to exacerbate some very real problems in our society for which answers are presently only too lacking.

The bill deals mainly with two issues: removing the power of the Commission to initiate patterns and practices complaints; and requiring that the choice of a hearing examiner be a joint decision of the complainant and respondent.

If the amendment is adopted, it is almost certain that the Commission will stand to lose its relationship to the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, a relationship which has provided it with nearly $70,000 in funds and one third of the Commission's funds for public hearings, funds for conferences by which to educate the public about civil rights legislation, and funds for office equipment and travel.

In addition to losing the federal funding, the Commission would also lose the deferral relationship it has with the EEOC. Through this relationship the EEOC must now defer to the Commission all cases that arise in Iowa. The concepts of local control and home rule are more and more seen by Iowans to be of importance. However, this bill would eliminate the possibility of finding local solutions to local problems. Federal agencies will begin making patterns and practices investigations in Iowa by initiating patterns and practices complaints, if the Iowa Civil Rights Commission is prohibited from doing so. This eliminates the possibility of finding local solutions to local problems, with the sensitivity that an Iowa agency can bring to an Iowa problem, as compared to a federal agency.

Only one of the federal projects deals with patterns and practices complaints. Since 1968 this project has initiated 45 patterns and practices complaints (an average of less than 11 per year). A large share of these complaints have been conciliated, with only one proceeding to public hearing. In the other cases, settlement was reached with the employer after the process of initiation of a pattern and practice complaint, investigation, pointing out discriminatory elements to the employer, and suggesting remedies which were implemented prior to a public hearing. In those cases settled, remarkable improvement in the representation of minorities and women has occurred.

At the same time personnel hired by the state of Iowa, using federal funds, have investigated 111 complaints filed with the Iowa Civil Rights Commission by specific individuals. Present contracts with the federal government call for work by federally funded staff persons on another 150 cases filed by specific individuals, and not patterns and practices cases initiated by the Commission. And this is costing the State of Iowa not one cent, with the benefits incalculable.

Either we in Iowa are serious about civil rights for everyone or we are not. The step taken by the Judiciary is a negative indication of our attitude. It should not matter who initiates a charge. Pattern and practice charges initiated by the Commission are efficient and effective ways of dealing with broad-based discrimination. Elimination of that power will substantially hobble the Commission's efforts to achieve equality of opportunity for all of Iowa's citizens the powerful and the powerless.

Owens to open All-American

Jesse Owens will speak at the Dinner of Champions and formally open the All-American High School track meet Saturday at Drake Stadium.

Owens, winner of four gold medals at the 1936 Olympics and regarded by many as the premier track and field figure in this century, will address the athletes at a dinner Friday night.

He will then lead a parade of athletes prior to the opening of the meet at 5 p.m. Saturday. Bob Prince of East Sioux City will recite the Olympic oath.

JESSE OWENS

Meet officials said Tuesday the pentathlon events have been dropped due to lack of a representative field.

The All-American meet opens at 3:30 p.m. Saturday with the javelin, long jump and shot put.

Flip Wilson Goes to Court

Los Angeles (UPI)— Flip Wilson was accused in a lawsuit this week of beating up a woman who said she was his business partner and trying to kill her with a gun.

The entertainer was named defendant in two Superior Court suits for $1 million by Sylvia Teresa Davis, who said she had been a partner in his career for 16 years, and that she helped create and direct his television and recording enterprises.

She maintained that Wilson last month "decided to terminate (the agreement) by violently kicking and beating her and attempting to kill her."

HONOR THREE AT CONVENTION

More than 500 women from across the country were expected in Washington, D.C., June 1-3rd, to attend the 1973 annual Convention of the Black Women's Political Leadership Caucus.

During the Convention held at the Shoreham Hotel, the organization initiated its annual awards program with presentation of three awards to persons who have made notable contributions to the development of Black political involvement.

Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm (D.N.Y.) received the group's first annual award for the "most outstanding political figure of 1972." Other awards included a "special achievement award" to Larry Shaw, vice president of the Stax Corporation in Memphis, for "capturing the Black political experience" in the motion picture "Wattstax," and Dr. Nellis Saunders, former Michigan State representative and first national Chairperson of the Caucus, was the first recipient of the "Founders Awards", in recognition of her work in establishing the organization.

The Awards Banquet, Saturday evening, June 2, culminated a full-day schedule of workshops and meetings set for the Convention. Key workshop participants and speakers include playwright, Melvin Van Peebles, Dr. Ethel Allen, Philadelphia councilwoman; Ida Lewis, editor of Encore Magazine; Walter Davis, AFL-CIO; Clarence Mitchell, Jr. NAACP; Elizabeth Koontz, former Labor Department official; and A. Jay Cooper, mayor of Pritchard, Alabama.

According to Convention chairwoman, Delegate Hildegardis Boswell, of the Maryland House of Delegates, the response to the Convention was "very enthusiastic." "Black women generally are recognizing the need to be politically aware and involved," she stated. "Our Convention was a significant catalyst for accomplishing the process," she added.

Veterans Administration

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q — What cut-off date has been set for veterans' benefits for the Vietnam Conflict?

A — No such date has been set. The Vietnam-era is still continuing for purposes of eligibility for veterans' benefits.

Q — I hear rumors about a device that will give sight to the totally blind. Is this a Veterans Administration prosthetic? Is there such a device?

A — You have heard about a concept still in the early research stage and nowhere near ready for prosthetics development. Last March medical newspapers reported that a neurologist from Albert Einstein College of Medicine believed such a device may be possible if the concept of electrocortical stimulation proves feasible.

Q — How much time do I have to get my schooling under the GI Bill?

A — Education or training under the current GI Bill must be completed within eight years of separation from military service or by May 31, 1974, whichever is later.

A look at and there went whatever chance he had of winning the thing, which he thought he might have done. But, do you know that Bill was never late again in his life for a tennis match, nor did I have to default anybody else for being late. And out of this grew our Hilltop Open.

Then last week I was in the Hinky Dinky market, and I ran into a little old man, who didn't look much the worse for his years. It was Albert Rhodes, who was quite a sports figure in the thirties and early forties. Albert took over the old Capitol City Giants after Emery Jackson quit, and kept the team on the road for a long while. He was a catcher and sometimes played first base. He was a good hitter and a fine receiver, but it was said that he couldn't throw. But he made so much noise daring baserunners to run, that he hardly ever had to throw. But the fellow was one of the better all round pool and billiard players in his time. I think he won the city tournament that the late Buck Scott used to have at least twice, and was well up in the billiard competition. He always said that there were lots of guys who could outshoot him, but he always figured to be able to out-think them, and in close games, would usually come up with some trick to beat his man. I think Rhodes got a trial with the Monarchs, but he didn't stick. Never did learn why, but he didn't seem too upset about it.

The Capitol City Giants were about the best known of all the Black baseball teams in the thirties and maybe before then. There were a host of Black ball clubs in the city, but probably the two best known were the Giants and the Des Moines Cubs. And a lot of the players who went out to the small towns around the state such as Jap Crowe, Hugh Blackburn, Casey, and Tyree and several others started with the Giants. I wasn't a baseball follower then, but I thought that the team was getting a bit too old, and this led to one of the best ball games I and most spectators ever saw. There was a young team called the Independents. Wherever Black people met, they argued about the merits of the two teams, and so finally they met at the old Western League park. That was a game full of great plays and pitching that we didn't see every day, but the young fellows did the Giants in 3 to 1. Jap Crowe hurled for the Giants and a fellow named Moore who had a dancing knuckle ball was on the mound for the Independents. This club could have been great, but the Omaha Green Goblins, a traveling Black team came to town and took about half of the team with them, and they hoboed home a few months later hungry enough to eat anything that didn't bite first.

and that the plaintiffs and their immediate grantors have been in the sole, complete, open, notorious, actual and undisputed adverse possession of the said premises for more than ten years last past under claim of title and ownership thereof, and have been the undisputed and unqualified owners thereof for over ten years, and that by reason thereof and of the lapse of time and the laches of the defendants in failing to assert any pretended claim thereto, and in permitting valuable improvements to be made thereon, relying upon such possession and ownership, the defendants are estopped from asserting any right, title, claim or interest therein adverse to the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs in said petition prays for the establishment of their estate and title against the adverse claims of the defendants and that each and all of them, and all unknown claimants, and all persons unknown having or claiming any right, title, or interest in or to said premises and all persons claiming, by through, or under them, be barred and forever estopped from ever having, asserting or claiming any right, title or interest in or to the said premises or any part thereof adverse to the plaintiffs or the plaintiff's title therein, and that the plaintiffs' title to the said premises be quieted, established and confirmed and that the plaintiff have all such other and further equitable reliefs as to the court may seem just.

Fuel Crisis Continues

A Shortage of fuel is affecting most parts of the country, and we should be prepared for a summer of decreased supplies.

Testimony before congressional committee has indicated that the shortage occurred because the nation's consumption is rising one to two per cent this year while the nations refineries are operating at the same capacity as last year.

On the other hand there have been charges that the large oil company's have withheld reserves and created a false fuel shortage.

Congress passed a voluntary program which calls on the major oil companies to give all retailers the same percentage of the fuel supply as they gave them in the past.

There has been some discussion that the oil companies are not complying with the voluntary controls and this has prompted the administration to schedule hearings to determine if the program should be made mandatory.
