New Organization Formed to Assure Continued Publication

End 79th Year in Business; Weekly Newspapers Record

Bystander Anniversary

The Iowa Bystander, started in 1894 and succeeded by The New Iowa Bystander in 1972, is publishing its 79th anniversary edition. It must have been justified for having lived over such a long period.

Weekly newspapers in cities, operated by Negroes or whites, have been started and passed out by the hundreds during this time. But because the Bystander has not gone overboard either as a radical or conservative publication apparently, it has satisfied its constituents. It survived during the depression and other recessions which wiped out a great many business institutions.

Took Middle Ground

A newspaper in our community cannot survive in any other way. The radical attitudes in large populated centers seldom accounted for the survival of the "newspapers", certainly not in Des Moines.

A newspaper must produce a product that meets the needs of the community. Management must be a part of the community and yet remain clear of factions which tend to divide the people. And while letters to the editor may divulge different points of view, the Bystander has taken a middle ground.

Motive + Organizers

Started by a group of citizens before the turn of the century, its organizers did so with the purpose of supplying employment for the young people, publishing their views fully about other than criminal activities and social activities, which did not appear in the daily newspapers.

During the past few months, Negro business has suffered terribly. Many stand idle today because of inexperience, lack of sufficient capital, some because they could not exist by appealing to Negroes only for support.

Federal Help

In recent years, agencies of the federal government have made special efforts to assist Negro business particularly the Small Business Administration. (Newspapers, do not qualify for SBA loans.) In spite of this help many have gone down the drain, because sufficient help was not provided in organization and conduct for these businesses. Big business has cooperated to a great extent in aiding the movement including placement of advertising in Negro publications which had not been done before.

This situation has prevailed in many social and poverty programs much for the same reason that these business institutions have failed.

Community Support

During my ownership of the Bystander, the Negro community and, to a great extent, business institutions supported the Bystander because a special effort was made to provide a good newspaper, to serve all the people, to champion Civil Rights and present a constructive challenge to the young people to prepare themselves either with a trade or profession and to join the older people by becoming responsible citizens.

New Organization

During the past year the paper has strayed from some of the guidelines that have kept the Bystander going for 79 years. However, a reorganization is in the process which I hope will move it on the right path and serve the people who for so many years have supported it.

In the meantime, I would suggest that subscribers pay up so as to help the circulation necessary to secure adequate advertising, all of which are needed for the continued operation of the New Iowa Bystander.

Letter To The Editor

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

I am a 26 year old Black male. I am presently under the jurisdiction of the Ohio Penal System. I have been since Oct. 1970 and will continue to be until Oct. 1975. The time and the pressure's and problems that I encounter daily has begun to take their toll on my sanity and my mind has nothing but concrete walls and barbed wire fences to dwell on, my past is just as desolate as the present and there just doesn't seem to be any future at all, I don't want to leave here as a bitter man with hate in my heart. That will only make me return to this place!

I'm a man who love's life, I've been knocked down, but that's not unique, everybody has. You can fall down and make a mistake, and you can realize that you did wrong, but that makes it no easier to admit it, I know that I did wrong but I took no one's life, yet here I am watching my own slip away, so now I'm reaching out to anyone who cares, for help I want to know that people are still warm and sincere so that in the mornings it won't be a challenge for me just to open my eye's.

I'm asking you to print this letter in an appropriate section of your paper so that when someone of your many readers view it, maybe they will take an interest in this man and help me retain my sanity in this insane environment.

I'm not able to pay for the space that these words will use in your paper, and I do realize that nothing comes free, so if you donate this letter to file 13 I will understand, but if you will print it for only one edition of your paper I will be eternally grateful to you for just a little more strength in this struggle.....

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION

Questions and answers

Q - I was discharged about 10 years ago before the current GI Bill was passed. Did I lose out on educational benefits altogether?
A - Not necessarily. For on the job training, apprenticeship, farm cooperative and flight training, you have until August 1975 to use your eligibility. Other education benefits expire May 31, 1974, the eighth anniversary of the current GI Bill. All eligible veterans have eight years to take advantage of education benefits. Time is computed from the date of discharge or the date the benefit first became available, whichever is later.

Q - What is the Veterans Administration doing to help the severely disabled Vietnam veterans get jobs?
A - In addition to providing medical care and compensation, VA is hiring many handicapped veterans including some who must work in wheelchairs or are blind. In addition, VA is working closely with universities, other government agencies, and business and industry to help disabled veterans get jobs.

Q - If a lender turns down a veteran's application for a GI loan, what should the veteran do?
A - He should see another lender. The fact that one lender is not interested in making the particular type of loan the veteran wants does not preclude the possibility that another may be interested.

Cement mason trainees give park facelifting

Karen Acres Park in Urbandale is currently undergoing a very pleasant facelifting. Fifteen cement mason trainees are laying new sidewalks there, and in addition, they are in the process of building a new wading pool for use by youngsters in the neighborhood.

These 15 trainees (including four blacks, one Mexican-American, and 1 Indian) are part of a program whose national sponsors are the Portland Cement Association and the International Association of Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons. It is their hope that this type of training will be instrumental in urging more young people to seek careers in the building trades. Particular emphasis in this project was placed on the recruitment of veterans, minorities, and disadvantaged individuals.

The first six weeks training received by these 15 individuals is primarily the on-the-job training portion of the program. It is during this phase that construction of the pool and sidewalks will take place. Duke Redi Mix Inc. is furnishing all the materials being used on the project at cost, and the Urbandale Parks Board is buying the materials. The trainees perform the actual construction work.

In addition to the work being done in Urbandale, these 15 trainees will also do all the concrete work on a model home located on the campus at Area XI Community College in Ankeny. The Area XI College is the local sponsor for the entire project.

After the initial six-week training project is an additional nine weeks of schooling at Area XI. Classes will be held 3 nights a week on the campus. Here they will be taught blueprint reading, estimating and costs, and applied mathematics applicable to the trade.

RATHBUN FISHING IS RED HOT!

DES MOINES, IOWA — More than 1,500 crappies were recently landed by a fishing party at Rathbun Reservoir, according to the Iowa Conservation Commission (ICC). Don Bonneau, Fisheries Management Supervisor for the ICC, indicated many parties were catching hundreds of fish with some crappies weighing 1½ pounds apiece.

Most of the fish are being caught along the face of the dam, in brushy coves, and below the spillway. Excellent catches of channel catfish and walleyes are also being reported.

Recent surveys by fisheries management personnel indicate a good population of largemouth bass within the lake. With the water clarity improving daily, the prospects for good bass fishing are bright.

CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST HOLINESS NEWS

The State Sunday School Convention which convened recently at Friendship Temple on Stewart Street was a great success.

The theme of our three day session was "Why Go to Sunday School?" Our definite conclusion was, The Sunday School is the framework, the ground work, the fundamental beginning of our church of tomorrow in which our young people begin their training to serve God and humanity.

Visitors and dignitaries were present and, as usual, our Bishop, the very informative and instructive O. J. Johnson, Sr. had some very definite and upgrading remarks. Also our State Supervisor of the Women's Department, the eloquent and talented Mrs. H. Walsh, had excellent remarks, as did our presiding elder, Elder Alfred Northern.

At the end of our three day session, our Bishop's wife, who is commendable and gracious to everyone she meets and several of the missionaries served a lovely repast in the church dining room.

Bishop A.B. Carter's son, the informative and creative Elder Elmer Carter, brought us a very inspiring message entitled, "A Highway Shall Be There". All enjoyed him. Supt. Price, of the University Avenue Church, brought us a very fine message.

Supt. Westbrooks, of East Moline, whose Church functions here under the leadership of Elder David Crane, and Elder Robinson, came to us with a lovely fellowship. Seven new members were added to the Church. We are looking forward to our State Convention soon.

23rd Annual Convention of L. P. Nurses

The LPN's, of Iowa, held their 23rd Annual Convention at Hotel Savary, June 10, 11, and 12.

On Sunday the group enjoyed dinner and a tour of the Iowa Commission for the Blind. Sunday evening the State President Mrs. Gwen Hickey offered the keynote address, using the convention theme, "Two Decades of Progress." Mrs. Hickey, of Waterloo, Iowa, has the distinction of being the first black state president. Rev. F. W. Strickland, of Corinthian Baptist Church, offered the invocation. Mrs. Holden Gentry, on behalf of Mayor Olson, presented Mrs. Hickey with the key to the City.

On Monday, Dr. and Mrs. Stallings presented a program on plastic surgery and nursing care. Invocation was by Rev. Duane Churchman. Mr. Frank Miller, cartoonist of the Register and Tribune was the banquet speaker.

Among the special guests were Rev. and Mrs. H. I. Thomas, and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jackson. Rev. Thomas offered invocation. Several numbers were presented by the "Voices of Harmony". The nurses have been favored with songs from this group at previous conventions and claim them as their very own. They are: Mrs. Doris Wade, Mrs. Kizzie Strother, Mrs. Celeste Flanagan, and Mrs. Idella Cushingberry. After the banquet, the nurses were guests of the Black Playboy Club.

Tuesday was Student Day. Elder James McNear offered the morning invocation. Dr. Marvin Dubansky presented a lecture and showed slides on "the total hip replacement". Ms. Karen Anderson, a medical social worker, lectured on "the total hip patient before and after surgery." The afternoon invocation was offered by Rev. Ronald McLucas.

Mr. Earl W. Rowe, of Cleveland, Ohio, arrived at the convention Sunday morning, and participated in all the activities. He was the luncheon speaker. Mr. Rowe, a dynamic attorney, lecturer, and a beautiful black bachelor stated when contacted to be guest speaker: "I have never been to Iowa, but I shall be happy to come. I will buy two new suits and look good to the ladies in Iowa". He made good this promise.

A delegation of Iowa nurses attended the National Convention in Cleveland last year and had the honor of hearing Mr. Rowe speak and at that time dared hope he would come to Des Moines as speaker. His speech title was "Roads to Progress." He is a combination of the world's greatest lecturers. Many people have likened him to Martin Luther King. He relates equally well with young people and persons of all ages. Mr. Rowe and Mrs. Clara Wade appeared on the "Mary Brubaker Television Show" Monday morning.

Mrs. Kizzie Strother, State Membership Chairman, had student nurses judge posters for awards; Mrs. Strother won first place award. Mrs. Jamesena Nichols served as Mistress of Ceremonies for Sunday's activities.

At the post convention board meeting, Mrs. Clara Wade was voted as a delegate to the National Convention in Denver in September. Mrs. Nichols and Mrs. Strother were voted as alternates.

Tuesday evening, Mrs. Strother, Mrs. Nichols and Mrs. Wade took Mr. Rowe to Wakonda Bishops for dinner, a visit to the various churches and hospitals throughout the City, the homes of some of the charter members and other places of interest.

Mr. Rowe is affiliated with "Earl W. Rowe & Associates", professional consulting services in Cleveland. They are involved with legal claims, manpower training, tax audits, community action, minority affairs and employment counseling. Mr. Rowe left the State with a promise to return.

Clara Wade is president of the Des Moines Unit and Convention Program Chairman.

First Heart Surgery Done 80 Years Ago, By Black Man

(AMA)— Eighty years ago this summer, in a stifling little operating room on Chicago's south side, a black surgeon opened the chest of a young man— and opened an era in medicine.

Dr. D. H. Williams

With that swift stroke of his scalpel, Dr. Daniel Hale Williams also brushed aside fear of censure and ridicule by his colleagues, which he definitely risked. For prevailing medical dogma said that one did not operate on the heart. But Dr. Williams, 37, decided that sweltering night of July 9, 1893, that operation was the only way to save the patient's life. So he went ahead, leading the way into a field of surgery that has since saved countless thousands of lives.

Extra Food Stamps

(NBNS) — The Senate has approved an additional increase in food stamp allotments for the poor, in light of the soaring cost of food.

Allotments are adjusted yearly under present law, so a 3.6 per cent increase was scheduled to into effect in July of this year and remain in effect until July, 1974 based on December, 1972, food costs.

This increase, however, is not sufficient to accommodate the sharp rise in the cost of food in the past few months. Sen. Clifford Case, Republican from New Jersey, who sponsored the amendment, told his colleagues.

The amendment, which was approved by a vote of 55 to 38, will allow the Agriculture Department to go ahead with the 3.6 per cent increase next month and it will also require the department to put a second increase into effect on August 1 after updating its figures.

Recipients would then receive an increase in July and another in August on the 1st of each month.

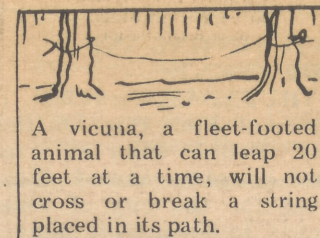

The value of food stamps for a family of four would be increased from $112 per month to $116 in purchases, with the July increase. The August allotment would go to about $124 per month for a family of four, Case indicated.

Predicting that $288 million in additional funds will be needed to pay for the increase scheduled for August, Case noted Agriculture spent about $255 million for the 3 million households allotted food stamps.

The face value of the coupon allotments will also have to be determined semi-annually, instead of annually.

Opponents of the measure estimated the program would cost an additional $600 million a year. Several senators said this was excessive in times when the dollar is devalued and other parts of the budget are being cut.

There are some things you can do to make your air conditioner's job a little easier and keep your cooling costs down.

- Seal air leaks. Caulk carefully around windows and window mounted room air conditioners.
- Don't cool unoccupied rooms and closet spaces. Close interior doors. Turn the air-conditioning off when you leave home.
- Close your blinds early in the morning and air condition when your house is naturally cooler. Don't wait until your house is so hot the air conditioner has to work overtime to catch up. Iowa Power isn't worried about running out of energy... but we can't see any sense in wasting it either.

tomorrow

California, recently, had an earth shattering tremor. Not a physical tremor but a political one that may have white America wondering what is going to be next. And Black America seeing a small ray of political hope.

Los Angeles elected its first Black mayor. Nowadays, black mayors are becoming old hat - almost. The thing that made this election different is the size of the city - third largest in the country.

Although Bradley received 70 percent of the white vote in L.A. this will still have whites worried. One question would be: will New York have a black mayor; a second, more gruesome question - in their eyes - a black President. Which brings us to a delightful subject of having a Black President.

If Bradley follows through with what he promised, like mass transit systems, for one, the prospect of having a minority President would seem to be brighter.

Essentially, the politics of a black president vs. a white president wouldn't differ as much as blacks and whites would think. The only major difference would be the color.

Because, to be President in the United States is to be a middle-roader, which most of the Presidents have been in the mid-1900's.

So there very well could be a "Bradley-type" president in the years to come.

King Nixon has initiated Phase Four of his economic program. Now, everyone knows that well used cliché when talking about their children.

"Oh, he's just going through one of his phases."

At that rate the King must be going through his second childhood. One would have to ask - how many more phases will he be going through?

I wonder why he didn't go back to March when he announced his last phase was in effect? That would have certainly brought prices down to a level where an average person could buy a sack of groceries without a wheelbarrow full of money to buy it.

But knowing Nixon as well as we do - if not the man his actions, that would have been too much in favor of the working person.

Newark Mayor to Address Black Publishers Parley

Mayor Gibson

Washington (NNPA) — Mayor Kenneth A. Gibson of Newark, N.J., will discuss the effects of Government cutbacks in domestic programs on the cities in an address Friday afternoon, June 22, at the 33rd annual convention of the National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA) in Houston at the Houston Oaks Hotel.

Other speakers on the three-day program are: Congresswoman Barbara Jordan of Texas, Executive Director Vernon E. Jordan, Jr., of the National Urban League, Commissioner Benjamin L. Hooks of the Federal Communications Commission, Stanley S. Scott, Special Assistant to President Nixon; General Robert E. Cushman, Jr., Commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps; Assemblyman Willie Brown of the California State Assembly, Vice President William D. Rhinehart of American Newspaper Publishers Assn.

M. Carl Holman, president of the National Urban Coalition; Miss Ethel L. Payne of the Washington Bureau of the Sengstacke Newspapers and of CBS-TV; Kenyon Burke of the Anti-Defamation League, Ms. Doris Falk, advertising director of Sakowitz department store, Ralph Jordan, sales promotion manager, Sears, Roebuck and Co.; Ira Tumpowsky, media director, Young & Rubicam; and Charles May, assistant manager, Shoppers Fair.

The 41-year-old mayor, who has held the post since 1970, has rebuilt the image of Newark after the burning and the rioting by obtaining nearly $70 million from the Federal Government for housing, employment, and other improvements.

Under Gibson's leadership, Newark's police department is at full strength for the first time in more than 20 years, and his public works department has conducted a 17-week citywide cleanup campaign which removed 15,000 cubic yards of debris and 1,350 abandoned cars from the streets.

Mayor Gibson was born in 1932 in Enterprise, Ala., a town which symbolizes the cotton boll weevil of which it has built a statue. By the time he was 8, he and his mother and father had moved to Newark. There he graduated from high school and entered Newark College of Engineering, but he had to drop out for lack of funds. It was 10 years of night school while he worked in the day, and two years in the Army before he received his civil engineering degree in 1962. Eight years of civil rights leadership and political activity put him in the mayor's office in 1970.

It's this background, said Mr. Reeves, that Mayor Gibson brings to the convention subject of urban needs and the effects of the Government cutbacks in domestic programs.

Other convention highlights, besides the discussions of the cutbacks, local advertising, and new research in newspaper production, will be a dinner and live theatre Wednesday evening, two luncheons and two banquets the following two days and the presentation of $17,000 in merit awards to publishers and staffers by public spirited business firms. These bring the meeting to its closing picnic just outside Houston on Saturday afternoon.

YORTY REFUSES TO TAKE PICTURE WITH BRADLEY

Los Angeles - (NBNS) — Defeated Mayor Sam Yorty has refused to be photographed with the black man who beat him, councilman Thomas Bradley.

The 63-year-old Yorty, who ran unsuccessfully for a fourth term as mayor of the nation's third largest city, sent a message detailing his refusal: "No, My hand is sore."

Earlier, Bradley, 55, had met with the mayor to arrange for his takeover of the office on July 1. The May 29 election culminated a bitter campaign in which Yorty used racist tactics to try and defeat Bradley.

Ethel's Cookery

by Ethel Moore

In West Africa, chicken is usually the meat chosen to honor guests. Peanuts are a favorite ingredient in main dishes, and a favorite flavor combination is bananas and tomatoes. All of these trends combine to produce a beautiful dish in our recipe for West African Chicken and Bananas, a really different way to serve familiar foods. It's savory, imaginative and thrifty. For dessert, the Banana Custard Fool shows an English influence, but has a different texture that is characteristically African. And the Groundnut Bread is an easy to make favorite.

WEST AFRICAN CHICKEN AND BANANAS

- 2 tablespoons peanut or other salad oil
- 1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 3 tomatoes, peeled and cut in wedges
- 1 green pepper, cut in strips
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon dried leaf thyme
- 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
- 1 cup peanut butter
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 2 bananas

In large skillet, heat oil. Add chicken pieces and brown on all sides. Remove to 3-quart baking dish. Add onion to skillet and cook until tender. Stir in remaining ingredients, except bananas, mix well and pour over chicken. Cover and bake in 350°F. oven 55 minutes or until chicken is tender. Peel bananas and cut into diagonal slices; add to chicken. Bake 5 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings.

Iowa Historical Highlights

Although 16 slaves were listed among the Negro population in Iowa in 1840, officially slavery never existed in Iowa. A few Negroes were brought to Iowa in 1820 by white traders, government officials, etc. On Nov. 12, 1838, 39 members of the First Territorial Assembly met in Burlington and passed an act practically excluding Negroes from Iowa Territory. After April 1, 1839 no black or mulatto was allowed in Iowa without a "fair certificate" of "actual freedom" under the seal of a judge and post $500 bond not to become a public charge.

Eminent Negro In Iowa History

One of the prominent Negroes in Iowa from the Civil War days to 1900 was Alexander Clark, Sr., who came to Muscatine in 1842 from Pennsylvania. An eloquent speaker and champion of his race Mr. Clark was active in the Republican party, followed his son by earning his law degree at the State University of Iowa in 1884.

He made international history when he was named minister resident and consul general to Liberia for the State Department, in 1890 having been appointed by President Harrison.

No mention of his appointment or his death six months later was mentioned in any newspaper in Iowa. Because of this and the fact Negro news of worth was being excluded from Iowa papers the Negro owned Iowa Bystander was born four years later.

Negro Had First Rug Cleaner

Negro businessmen came into their own more after 1900. However, as early as 1880 the late R. N. Hyde, Des Moines' leading entrepreneur, had established a carpet cleaning business. His success inspired his invention of an electric carpet dusting machine and cleaning compound, and later patented the H & H soap. Always greatly interested in his race, Mr. Hyde prosecuted the first segregation case entered in the district court. He attended as a delegate the national Republican conventions on three occasions. He also was a guest of President Theodore Roosevelt's party from Keokuk to Des Moines in 1903.

Bystander Competitors

The Observer, another Negro newspaper published in Des Moines by Charles P. Howard and son, had a long but more spasmodic existence. The newspaper ran an ad in the 1946 souvenir program of the Elks Lodges and Temples Oratorical contest proclaiming it as the "only Iowa race weekly owning its own plant."

The Sepia News had a brief publication period during 1951.

The Black Swede

The Rev. Sampson Brooks was one of the most colorful pastors to occupy a pulpit in Des Moines. He called himself "The Black Swede." He visited in the Holy Land and after leaving Des Moines his church elevated him to the bishopric and put him in charge of the African field.

Atty. S. Joe Brown One of U.S. Bests

During the early period in 1900s following his graduation from the State University of Iowa, the late Atty. S. Joe Brown was considered one of the seven or eight most important Negro lawyers in America. In 1906 he was a candidate for Judge of the Polk County District Court and in 1910 a candidate for councilman at large for Des Moines. In 1919 he was among the organizers of the now defunct Crocker Branch YMCA which served Des Moines youths for 40 years.

Negro Population From 188 to 25,000

In 1840 only 188 Negroes, 16 of whom were slaves, were recorded by the census in Iowa. Ten years later 333 were working in the mines at Dubuque or laborers in river towns—Burlington, Davenport, and Keokuk. By 1860 this number had bulged to 1,069. Four years before the Iowa Bystander was founded the Negro population was 10,685 in 1900. When the Bystander celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1944 the Negro population was recorded as just over 17,000. Today the figures are estimated at 25,000 for the state with 12,000 in Des Moines.

Noted Alumni

Two distinguished alumni were educated in Iowa. They are Dr. George Washington Carver, scientist and Laurence C. Jones, educator. Both were born in Missouri. Dr. Carver attended Simpson college at Indianola, Ia., and received his degree from Iowa State College the same year the Bystander was founded. The first Negro graduate of Marshalltown High school, Mr. Jones founded Piney Woods school in Mississippi in 1909.

The first Negro church was established in Iowa at Mt. Pleasant in 1863. When the first church census was taken in 1906 there were 33

Negro Baptist churches with a membership of 2,387 and 37 Methodist churches with a total membership of 1,675.

A. H. Watkins was the first to be admitted to the bar in Fort Madison in 1874. He had taught school in Nashville, Tenn., during the Civil War and came to Iowa in 1868.

Alexander J. Clark, of Muscatine was the first Negro to enter the State University of Iowa and the first to be awarded a degree in law in 1879. His celebrated father, Alexander J. Clark Sr. entered the same school four years later and received his law degree in 1884 at the age of 58.

S. Joe Brown of Des Moines was the first to receive his degree in liberal arts in 1898 from SUI and also first elected to Phi Beta Kappa west of the Mississippi River. He also was the first to receive a graduate degree in 1902.

George H. Woodson came to Mahaska county in 1896 and moved to Boston, the wellknown mining community, in 1900. Prominent in the Republican party he moved to Des Moines in 1918 and was instrumental in founding the Iowa Negro Bar Association and later was its first president.

Arthur W. Branham, was a charter member of the Iowa National Guard, joining in Algona. He also was a Polk County district deputy.

Nathaniel O. Calloway was the first to receive a degree from Iowa State College (Ames) in 1933.

Cyril F. Atkins received the first doctorate degree from SUI in 1935.

Mrs. Lulu Merle Johnson was the first woman to get a doctorate degree from SUI and the first in the U.S. to get that degree in history in 1941.

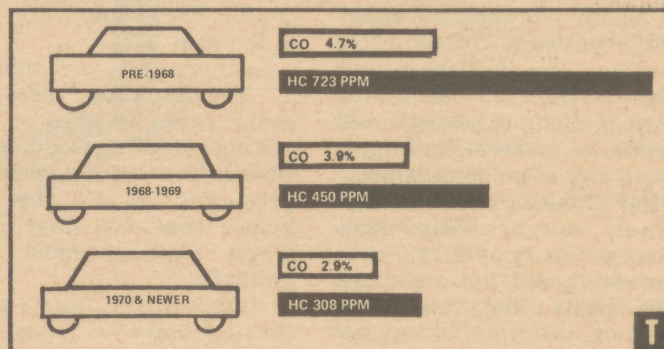

Archie A. Alexander was honored by his alma mater, SUI in 1947 for distinguished service in the engineering field. The first president of Willkie House, Inc., he received the Midwest Gold Medal Service award in 1947.

Nine Iowans were among the 639 successful candidates who finished the training course for Negro officers at Fort Des Moines, the first of its kind in the nation.

Atty. Gertrude Rush of Des Moines was the first woman of any race to practice law west of the Mississippi.

NEWS OF ECOLOGY

PUTTING THE BRAKES ON AUTO EMISSIONS

Two items of encouraging news are coming from engineers who have run extensive tests on automotive emissions:

1. The newer cars are more than twice as clean as their pre-1968 counterparts.

2. Proper maintenance reduces emissions very sharply.

In a special study conducted last summer, Champion Spark Plug Company sought to determine how well the emission control devices are working, particularly on cars of the 1970's. It was found that by any standards of measurements, the new emission control devices are doing the job of keeping emissions low.

Cars tested were not laboratory specimens. They were cars driven by the average man and woman under typical, everyday conditions.

It was also found that a disproportionately high amount of harmful emissions comes from a small minority of cars. One car with a neglected engine can and does produce as much pollutants as three cars with properly working controls. And that old standby, maintenance, specifically periodic tune-up, is still the best assurance of keeping harmful emissions low.

Two typical test sites were Denver and Phoenix.

In Phoenix, there was an average reduction of 56 percent in carbon monoxide (CO) after tune-up. There was also an average reduction of 40 percent in hydrocarbon (HC) after tune-up.

In Denver, the average reduction in CO after tune-up was 50 percent and the average reduction in HC was 47 percent. What may be even more significant, the 50 percent failure rate in Phoenix was reduced to zero after tune-up. In Denver, the failure rate was reduced from 61 percent to 5 percent after tune-up.

From these findings, it appears that maintenance or lack of same has more to do with emissions than any other factor.

On the average, CO emissions for all 1970 to 1972 cars tested was 2.9 percent. For the 1968-69's, it was 3.9 percent. For the pre-1968's, 4.7 percent.

For hydrocarbon emissions the 1970-72 cars averaged 308 parts per million. The 1968-69's averaged 450 parts per million. The pre-1968 averaged 723 parts per million.

A consistent pattern emerges. The new cars start out cleaner and they stay cleaner throughout their operations, because of anti-pollution devices designed and installed by the automobile manufacturers.

The beauty and strength of marble come from the skeletons and shells of countless millions of tiny sea animals called crustaceans.

Miss Austin will tour college campuses

Creativity is what it's all about for Ramona Austin. That's why at age 25 the gutsy young actress is taking a chance on a career that might scare off someone less confident and independent.

Beginning in the fall, Ramona will start touring college campuses, performing a one-woman show of interpretive readings of black poetry and prose as the replacement for Joanna Featherstone, who for several years has toured that type of show to many colleges throughout the United States. She performed in April on the Simpson College campus here while Ramona was a student.

Now a graduate, Ramona relaxed one day recently in the college's placement office — WHICH WAS INSTRUMENTAL IN LANDING HER THE JOB — and related some of the details of her new-found career. "It's like everything's really falling into place," she said with a touch of amazement and plenty of enthusiasm in her voice.

Things began falling into place last month when Ms. LuJean Cole, Simpson director of student activities who also is in charge of job placements, learned that Ms. Featherstone was retiring from the show. While talking to Ina Dittfeld, the agent for Lordly & Dame, Inc., of Boston, Mass., who booked Ms. Featherstone for Simpson, Ms. Cole suggested that Ramona take over the show.

So, after some exchanges of letters, telephone calls and a quick auditioning trip to Boston, Ramona is back in Indianola for the summer to put together her own show.

And despite the fairy-tale-come-true nature of the story, Ramona isn't overwhelmed by her stroke of fortune.

"I feel that I worked long and hard, that I'm prepared," she said. "I just feel it's time and it's happened."

Ms. Dittfeld, contacted by telephone at her Boston office, agreed that Ramona is ready for such a career.

"I was so impressed with her — she's ambitious, she's determined," said Ms. Dittfeld. She added that the agency wouldn't take a chance on someone it didn't feel was capable of meeting the challenge.

Asked if Ramona's story occurs often, Mrs. Dittfeld said emphatically, "Never, that I know of."

Contributing to Ramona's success in getting the agency to give her a try was her acting background. She studied acting at the Goodman Memorial Theatre School of Drama of the Chicago Art Institute where she was elected to the acting company and received a certificate in directing in 1968. This spring she earned her bachelor of fine arts degree there at the same time she earned her bachelors degree in English and theatre from Simpson.

She also studied for a semester at Schiller College in London, England, and spent summers acting with the La Mama Experimental Theater Company in New York City and the Chicago Free Street Theater, along with some television and film work.

In addition, Ramona holds a teaching certificate earned after she student taught at Roosevelt High School in Des Moines last semester.

Those studies have been accompanied by what Ramona said has been "a long evaluation process as a person, as a black American and as an artist."

Now, she said, she wants to stop studying and thinking and "do it."

Doing it, for Ramona, means making some kind of "statement... about how I feel about living — an Afro-American statement."

The theater seemed to be the natural outlet for Ramona's particular statement because, she said,

"It's something I've always been exposed to" from her earliest school years. Besides, she added, the theater is "where I feel most satisfied."

For the show, Ramona said she will take a "fresh" approach to the interpretive readings, selecting works "that move me" and incorporating the "voice" of dramatic movement. "My road is not the same as Joanna's," she emphasized.

Acknowledging that establishing an acting career takes time, Ramona has made such practical plans as getting a job to sustain her between engagements, probably in her native Chicago. Temporarily she is supporting herself by working as a cashier at the HyVee store here.

Ramona said she plans to remain "flexible" and may also do some teaching or go back to school to earn a masters degree in mass communication.

But whatever option Ramona chooses to pursue — and she insists that the future is completely open — she maintained that her primary goal is to be creative.

"I want my work to be recognized," she said. "I'm not interested in achieving fabulous wealth. I want to have a decent life, but most important is to be creative and to have the means to do it...I want to get involved with it...and then let it go where it wants to. Beyond that I don't think I could ever say where I am to go — that just happens."

Broadway Is My Beat (NBNS)

General Film Corporation nabbed the film rights to Friday Foster, the only nationally-syndicated comic strip to star a black lady. Plans are to lead with a feature film, and follow up with a TV series on the gal whose adventures are in 81 newspaper across the country.

"Who'll play Friday? Thus far, Stax recording artist Carla Thomas is the foremost contender.

Lena Horne, after her big opening at Mill Run in Chicago, went out into the pouring rain to a little dining spot for lox and bagels and a glass of Teacher's Scotch.

Lena had some Giorgio d' San Angelo gowns flown in from New York for her engagement. But the last time we were with Lena backstage following her show, she got out of her elegant gowns and slipped into old Levi's and a shirt.

Sammy Davis drives to work in his ($37,000) thirty seven thousand dollar Stutz Bearcat, puts on his ($300) three hundred dollar tuxedo, his ($100) one hundred dollar alligator pumps, a ($75) seventy-five dollar dress shirt and then sings: "I got plenty of nothing."

William Elliott, who co-stars with Pam Grier in "Coffy" just gifted her with a Schick Super 2 for women shaving system.

"Shaft" made composer Isaac Hayes rich enough to buy a truly luxury jalopy: A Mercedes-Benz (said to cost $70,000) with everything in it — color TV, running water and two phones — that's right Isaac, never mind the rainy days.

Nikki Giovanni will celebrate her 30th birthday Thursday, June 21, at Philharmonic Hall where she will sing and recite her latest poetry as well as favorites from earlier years.

The evening, which she calls "Echoes and Silence...Sunshine and Fire," will also feature Melba Moore, Broadway and TV star, and Wilson Pickett in his first major New York City concert.

The popular New York Community Choir will also be on hand, assisting Ms. Giovanni and presenting new gospel numbers of their own.

Instead of a formal concert, Ms. Giovanni is planning a festival of popular music and poetry in an informal and joyful vein. "After all, it is my birthday party," she told me.

Recently named one of the eight "Women of the Year" by the Ladies Homes Journal, she received the award for "Youth Leadership" from Mrs. Linda Johnson Robb at the TV presentation held at the John F. Kennedy Center in Washington Dee Cee.

Last year's concert, "Ripples on a Pond," was a fast sellout at Alice Tully Hall. This year, Ms. Giovanni chose Philharmonic Hall so as not to disappoint her many fans. Her new album for Atlantic Records, "Like a Ripple on a Pond," will be released shortly.

MONEY MISSPENT, U.S. CHARGES OF 4 STATES

(NBNS) — The federal government has asked four more states and a school district in a fifth state to repay a total of $782,562 that was reportedly misspent under the federal-sponsored program for educationally disadvantaged children.

The Office of Education has initiated proceedings against Kansas, Hawaii, New Mexico, Florida and Charlotte - Mecklenburg, N.C. They are accused of using the funds from the Title I program as general aid instead of giving it to poor and migrant students who traditionally lag in reading and writing skills in many school districts.

DREAM TAPE RECORDER NOW A REALITY

Have you been dreaming of the ideal portable tape recorder? . . . One that doesn't snarl you in a microphone cord; one that lets you record with a minimum of fuss, knob-turning and attention; one that virtually guarantees perfect recording results. Dream no longer; such recorders are now a reality.

They are typical of a "new breed" that reflects the forward thinking of companies such as General Electric, and their concern with filling the needs of convenience-minded consumers. The new cassette portables were designed to offer a log of basic capability in a small, light-weight package, at a lot-for-the-money price. They are right-up-to-the minute, incorporating most-wanted features, plus the latest in technology.

For example, the new units feature built-in condenser microphones, among the most meaningful of recent equipment advances. These end the old bugaboo of dangling microphone cord that often brought on disaster - like equipment dashed to the floor because a hand or leg got tangled in the cord. Built-in microphones eliminate another problem, "mike-fright," that prevents people from being relaxed and spontaneous when being taped. The new condenser models also simplify recording; you no longer need worry about how and where to place a microphone for best results. Merely face the set's microphone grille in the general direction of the sound source, and push the "record" button. Because condenser microphones are more sensitive, they reach out farther, bringing in distant sounds clearly.

Since the new "super" models - such as GE's M-8455 - also feature ALC (automatic level control), you need not fiddle with a volume control when recording. ALC compensates for different sound levels. It increases the loudness of distant sounds, and decreases that of nearby sounds. Thus, if you record several people in a large room their voices will all be heard clearly in playback, at nearly the same volume level. In addition, it features the extra pluses of tone control and a carry case. If you record club meetings, business conferences, or use a recorder for classroom note-taking, the combination of built-in microphone and ALC is unbeatable; you get A-1 results every time.

But . . . if you insist on using an optional, external microphone for special purposes (such as recording bird calls and other sounds of nature) the new units permit you to do so.

Also featured in the new GE M-8455 and others in its price class ($50) is automatic end-of-tape shutoff, in recording and playback. If you're forgetful, you'll really appreciate this feature. It saves wear and tear on the machine and the cassette, and conserves battery power.

Speaking of power. . . The new "dream" models also run on house current, and with an adapter, through a car/boat cigarette lighter. Triple power prolongs battery life, gives you more operating flexibility.

To make recording on-the-go easier, the new models were designed with push-button mode controls. These are handy to your finger tips, even when the set is used in its shoulder-strap carrying case.

A suggestion: No matter what tape recorder (or other audio product) you buy, stick with a "big-name" brand, such as GE. Not only will you get a better dollar value, you'll have easier access to better service than that provided by lesser-known companies. The larger the firm, the larger its "customer care" organization. Should you need help, it's available at a handy authorized service station - perhaps just around the corner.

The only man in the nation to hold its two highest offices was William Howard Taft. He was the 27th president of the United States and later the chief justice of the Supreme Court.

Revisions in the regulations under which States may qualify for Federal grants to conduct adult education programs were announced today by HEW Secretary Casper W. Weinberger.

The revised regulations recognize a new minimum age of 16 for persons who qualify for aid under the Adult Education Act. The previous minimum was 18.

A second change, Secretary Weinberger stated, is a substantial simplification and streamlining of the paperwork States must submit to qualify for grants.

Bird School Fun and Learning Workshop

Teacher Corps interns at Bird School are conducting a fun and learning workshop for children who are post first through post fifth grades. Children are from the Bird-Grant area.

The children are participating in such activities as sewing, cooking, woodworking, arts and crafts and piano lessons. Each activity is taught by one or two Teacher Corps interns.

Diane Kaiser and Judy Peavy teach sewing. The Chairman of the group, Pearl Lowery, teaches cooking. Arts and crafts are being taught by Gerald Page and a volunteer Drake art student, Nancy Hill. Piano lessons are being taught by Ginger Graham. Phil Hawkins and John Vanden Branden are teaching woodworking.

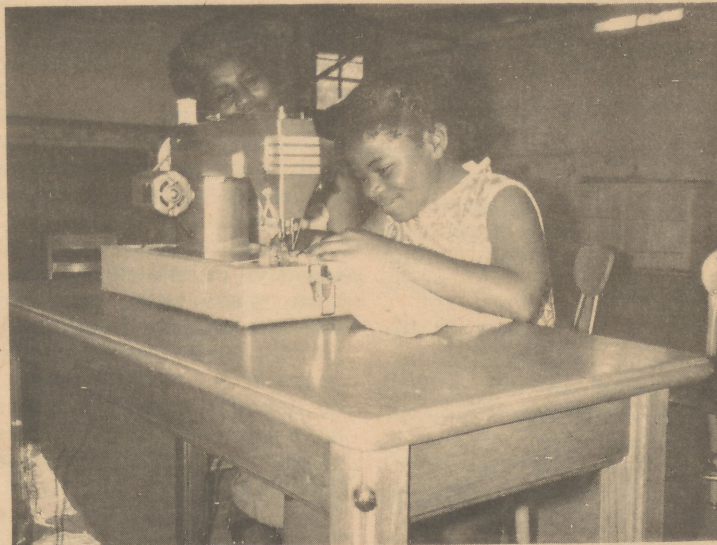

Parents, Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Bourdon, Mrs. Riddly and Mrs. Lena Smith and other community persons, Miss Banks and Betty Lyman are volunteering time and donating materials to the workshop. This kind of community support has helped to make this workshop a success thus far.

The Workshop is held on Mondays and Wednesdays from 1:00 until 3:30 p.m. The classes started June 11 and will continue until July 18. The Workshop is being funded by Woodland Willkie CCRAP.

If the Workshop is a total success, and can be funded, the interns hope to have a similar program after school during the '73-'74 school year.

When you Adopt a Child

For some time, you may have been thinking of adopting a child. You have likely talked it over a lot. You do not know where you are going to find a child. Maybe you are not too clear how to go about it.

It is not simple. Adoption is a serious business. It needs a lot of thinking about. And it has certain risks not only for you, but for the baby or child.

Maybe so, you say, but does not almost everything have risks? Yes, they do. Marriage, your own children, friendships, business, all — like adoption — have. You can never be sure that they will be perfect. There is a bit of gamble in all of them. But in all of them, you can cut down the odds. It takes thinking and planning and weighing, however, to get rid of most of the risks of adoption. So when you take your first step, do not leap into the dark. Move slowly in as much light as you can.

At times, the going may be tough for both of you, just as at times it is tough on parents and children born to them. It will be easier, though, if you start right. So get your bearings, read the signposts, heed all the warnings. If not, you and your child may be heading for trouble and heartaches.

WHERE CAN YOU FIND A CHILD?

Give up all ideas of finding a child by yourself. Friends or relatives — or your doctor of lawyer, for that matter — may be glad to get you one, and no questions asked. Firmly say "NO!" Go to a good, licensed or approved adoption or child-placing agency. You want a child you will be happy with and one who will be happy with you.

Where can you find the best agency? Write your state department of public welfare. Or, if there is a council of social agencies near you, ask there. Either one can give you a list of licensed or approved agencies. Before an agency is licensed or approved to handle adoptions, it must meet certain standards. These are set up to protect your child. A licensed agency will not let either of you down. There is nothing of the quack about it. Its workers have skills that are time-tested.

It is important that you choose an agency in your own state. Because state laws vary interstate placement laws may cause complications. If the right child is not available in your own state the agency may make arrangements by getting in touch with another state agency. Also, if the agency is near it will be much easier for the worker to discuss questions that arise. You will find it works out better for both if at any time you are able to sit down and talk it over with someone who knows both the child and you.

An adoption agency with good standards will provide services by workers with special training and experience. Also, such an agency will provide safeguards that will protect you. In addition, the child's natural parents will be helped with their problems about placing the child for adoption.

If such an agency helps you in your adoption, you will be surer than by any other way that you know what is important to know about the child you choose; legally everything will be in order. What you talk about and what the agency learns for you will be just between yourselves. In other words, that information will be confidential.

NEXT: WHY, AND WHAT KIND OF CHILD DO YOU WANT?

Black Drama Today

IOWA CITY, Iowa — White audiences will find no lessons for, nor protests against, themselves in the plays of the best-known black playwrights since 1965.

Black playwrights are writing about the people they know as though no other people need to be considered. That's an important fact about black drama today, according to Darwin T. Turner, professor of English and director of the Afro-American Studies program at The University of Iowa.

Turner spoke at the fifth annual institute on Afro-American culture which closes on Friday (June 15) with a dramatic reading by Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee.

In a continuing movement into a separate black life, Turner said, black playwrights are defining the good life, manhood and the need for love without consciousness of a white audience to which they must explain their works.

Turner suggested a common evolutionary pattern for black American Playwrights, whether they are identified as Black Arts dramatists or "traditional" playwrights. Black Arts drama, identified with the work of Imamu Amiri Baraka, Ed Bullins and Melvin Van Peebles, is written about black people with the intention of education a black audience to its needs for liberation.

In "traditional" drama, Afro-American playwrights use methods identified with American theater rather than those practices specifically identified with black culture.

Both forms of black drama today reflect the social conditions of a country where hope for integration has given way to a recognition of racial separation as a fact of life, Turner commented.

Turner described at length the plays of the best-known black playwrights since 1953: Louis Peterson, Lorraine Hansberry, James Baldwin, Imamu Amiri Baraka (Le Roi Jones), Ed Bullins, Lonnie Elder, Charles Gordone and Melvin Van Peebles.

Black Arts drama, the center of much critical controversy, is fundamentally similar to other black drama of black life since 1965, Turner said. There is a common presumption that black life in America will remain separate from white life, and that present forms of integration exploit black people.

This is a marked change from the 1950s, when black dramatists carefully described the characters and values of blacks as identical to whites.

"The good life," Turner said, "was that defined for white America. To dispel the notion that blacks sought integration merely because they desired to live with whites, black writers emphasized their desire for freedom of opportunity rather than for social relationships."

"It could have been expected that the new political standards adopted by blacks during the 1960s would produce new visions in drama."

The plays of the early 1960's moved on to a rhetoric of confrontation, Turner added. Black playwrights were still writing for white audiences and were "protesting the assumption that whites would stereotype and control all blacks according to their ideas of what a non-white should be."

Blacks often wrote of sensitive middle-class youths who passively rejected violence and were violently attacked by white characters. "Isn't it ironic," he asked, "that those plays have been judged as records of the violence by blacks in America?"

Both Black Arts and "traditional" playwrights today are looking deeply into the black community, Turner contended.

To charges that Black Arts drama is racist because it focuses on the problems of black people, Turner responded: "I'm certain that Mr. Tennessee Williams did not care and does not care whether black people feel this examination of southern belles in 'Glass Menagerie' or 'Streetcar Named Desire' is sufficiently universal to include matters of concern to black people."

This turning away from the vision of an integrated world has happened "whether the playwright consciously argues the need to examine the internal problems of the black community, or whether he has merely chosen to write about the world he knows for an audience which also knows that world."

By looking more critically at the individuals who populate black society, Turner added, black playwrights have become less polemical and more compassionate.

"What they discern in the black world is not only a group of individuals searching for manhood and love, but an even more pathetic group of those who are too impotized to search for manhood."

Both types of drama are picturing northern urban communities, separate from the white community and "populated by those who need but lack the strengths which come from love," Turner concluded.

Turner's speech was part of a two-week-long examination of the work of black playwrights and filmmakers.

Turner is the author of dozens of well-known articles, books and poems. He was named to Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Cincinnati at the age of 15 and earned a master's in English there at the age of 18. He received a doctorate from the University of Chicago in 1956, and last year received their Alumni Association's Professional Achievement Award.

In addition to teaching at the U of I, Turner is at work on studies of several black writers, including Jean Toomer and Frank Yerby.

Hampton Institute

Participants in the fifty ninth annual Hampton Institute Ministers Conference were told that the key to pastoral counseling is to transform loneliness into aloneness.

"When one is alone, he is not really alone at all," said Dr. Ernest E. Bruder, director of Protestant Chaplain activities at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington, D.C., and a conference leader. "When man is alone, he is made to confront God."

Bruder, who specializes in clinical pastoral care and services as a consultant on mental illness to the State Department, conducted a series of three seminars on pastoral counseling during the conference.

He told seminar participants that, "The question of loneliness is one of the most difficult issues we must face," and said it is responsible for the problems of many of his patients.

Bruder encouraged the ministers to realize their duty in dealing with the problem and said, "Perhaps we have been responsible for driving people to the secular counseling of psychiatrists. When it comes to what is good and right, that's our bag; that's our responsibility."

ROBERTA FLACK TO AID AFRICAN HEALTH UNIT

(NBNS) — Singer Roberta Flack will begin a national fund-raising drive shortly through a nine-nation benefit tour in Africa. The tour will benefit Africare, an organization that seeks to improve health care in rural Africa.

Thanks to you
It's working

United Way means many things to many people, to some it means people helping other people, to some it means help for oneself, but to all it represents our community's largest voluntary human service effort.

United Way of Greater Des Moines was born of necessity. It was created by concerned men and women as an answer to the waste and frustrations of many competing appeals for funds, numerous demands for volunteer time, effort and the fragmentation of human services. United Way evolved gradually through community efforts to help people and has become a tremendous force to strengthen the impact of the individual in our community.

United Way is a cooperative enterprise of contributors, users and providers of service committed to bringing about a system of services based on community resources and needs.

It's working because of the 38 member agencies giving hope to the youngster who doesn't have an equal chance, the sick, the handicapped or the elderly who wish to live out their lives in dignity.

The logo is symbolic. The sunlike rainbow growing out of the hand is open to many interpretations: the hand of United Way bring hope to people; the hand of the service consumer who experiences the benefits made possible in his life. What ever one may choose for his interpretation the symbol emphasizes effect and achievement, the joy that services create rather than the misery that makes them necessary.

CLEAVER ASKS FOR ASYLUM AGAIN

Paris — (NBNS) — Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver has again asked the French government to grant him political asylum on the grounds that it is not safe for him to live in Algeria or return to the United States.

Cleaver's attorney, Roland Dumas, refused to say where the black militant was living now but there were persistent reports that he was seen in Algiers over the weekend.

JOB CORPS CENTERS CLOSED BY BRENNAN

Washington — (NBNS) — Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan has ordered the closing down of six Job Corps centers in the coming fiscal year as part of the President's austerity plan on anti-poverty programs.

Brennan said the six facilities to be closed, which are all residential support centers, are at Hartford, Conn.; Davenport, Iowa; Norfolk, Va.; St. John's Fla., Wilmington, Del., and San Francisco, Calif.

The combined total enrollment of 177 "will be closed on the basis of their high operating and training costs," Brennan said. An additional nine programs or centers will be cut back and the operating funds cut sharply for the remaining 57 centers in order to reduce the Job Corps budget by 20 per cent from $184 million to $148 million.

Holding Post Illegally

Washington — (NBNS) — U.S. District Judge William B. Jones ruled last week that Acting Office of Economic Opportunity Director Howard Phillips has been holding that post "unlawfully and illegally" since his appointment by President Nixon in January.

In April, Jones, responding to suits filed by OEO employees' unions, had ordered the self-avowed zealous OEO acting director to stop dismantling the federal antipoverty agency. Lastweek, he went further and blocked Phillips from taking any additional actions as acting director.

The ruling came in response to a suit filed by four senators who asked that Phillips be ousted from the director's post because he has not been appointed permanent director by the President or confirmed by the Senate.

The four are William D. Hathaway (D-Maine), Caliborne Pell (D-R.I.), Walter F. Mondale (D-Minn.), and Harrison A. Williams Jr. (D-N.J.), all of whom are members of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, which would have the authority to approve or disapprove Phillips' permanent appointment to the OEO job.

In announcing his decision, Judge Jones said that the President's power to make interim appointments "if it exists at all, exists only in emergency situations."

A. Yes. You may request a district conference to discuss the disputed deductions. The way to do this is described on the notice you received explaining the proposed changes in your tax.

The conference provides you with an independent review of the questioned items. For more information, see IRS Publication 556, "Audit of Returns, Appeal Rights and Claims for Refund." It's available free by writing your Internal Revenue district office.

Q. I attended a $25-a-plate dinner for a local political candidate. Can I deduct this as a political contribution?

A. Yes. This amount is eligible for deduction or credit as a political contribution, so long as the dinner is clearly in the context of a campaign of an announced candidate and is not primarily a device to confer private benefits in the form of meals or entertainment to the contributor. For example, a traditional political testimonial dinner, where the meal is considered only incidental to the political speeches given for the candidate, would be eligible for the deduction or credit.

You may deduct no more than $50 ($100 for married taxpayers filing jointly) or you may claim a credit of one half of the contribution not to exceed $12.50 ($25 for married persons filing jointly).

Q. Does the IRS automatically impose a penalty on a taxpayer who underpays his estimated tax installment?

A. The 6 percent estimated tax penalty does not apply if each installment is paid on time, and the total paid (1) is at least 80 percent of the amount due on the basis of the final tax return for the year; or (2) is at least as much as would have been paid based on the tax shown on your 1972 return; or (3) is equal to a tax that would have been computed using last year's income, itemized deductions or standard deduction and this year's tax rates and exemptions; or (4) each installment is equal to 90 percent of the tax computed, based on the taxable income for the months preceding the month in which the installment is due, as if the period was the taxable year.

For more information on estimated tax and the special rules that apply to farmers and fishermen, see IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax." It's available free by writing your Internal Revenue district office.

Q. My 17-year old daughter qualifies as my dependent. This year she'll probably earn over $750 from a part-time job and receive about $20 in interest from her savings account. Will she have to file a return for 1973?

A. In General, an unmarried minor must file an income tax return if she had gross income of $2050 or more during the tax year. However, if the minor had any unearned income during the year (interest, dividends, trust income, etc.) and another taxpayer is entitled to claim an exemption for her, the minor must file if she had $750 or more in gross income.

Your daughter would have had to file a return anyway if she wanted a refund of tax withheld from her earnings.

AFRICAN REPORT

Ouagadougou, Upper Volta — (NBNS) — Farmers in six drought-stricken countries are rejoicing at the rains which have fallen, hopefully starting the beginning of the rainy season in sub-Saharan Africa, when planting starts.

Although the downpour stopped all traffic and left rivers where roadbeds were before, most agricultural and relief officials say they are still concerned about the effects of the five-year drought on the countries of Upper Volta, Mauritania, Senegal, Mali, Niger and Chad.

Donald B. Easun, the U.S. Ambassador to Upper Volta, believes Washington will have to provide "massive airlift" of relief supplies to the six drought-stricken countries.

And Benno Haffner, controller for the European Economic Community's fund for economic development, said that 250 tons of cotton seed for herds of cattle near the oasis will be flown in by the French Air Force.

Ivory Coast Projects Approved

Abidjan — (NBNS) — The European Commission has signed an agreement with the Ivory Coast, which provides for the European Development Fund to help finance two agricultural projects at a cost of more than $12 million.

Nigeria Acquires Interest In Oil Production

Lagos — (NBNS) — Nigeria, the third largest exporter of oil to the United States, has purchased 35 percent of the $1.5 billion Shell-British Petroleum company, this country's largest oil producer.

By 1982, the agreement specifies that the government's interest will increase in one step to 51 percent in the Anglo-Dutch group. The government has agreed to pay at least $500 million in compensation for the participating interest.

The Nigerian government, operating through the Nigerian National Oil Corp., will pay its share, according to the agreement, in four installments based on the updated book value of the company.

Nigerian Mines and Power Commissioner Pali Monguno pointed out at the signing that the compensation to Shell-BP would involve "a great sacrifice" by his country, but he predicted:

"...The amount paid as compensation will be fully recovered in two years." He said Nigeria was seeking a "genuine partnership... in auspicious circumstances which would permit stability and the continued orderly development and expansion of the oil industry."

The agreement, which took more than a year to negotiate, "assures for Nigerians an immediate effective and active participation in running the operation of a company of the size and strategic importance of Shell-BP, and assures us of majority control within a decade," Monguno said.

Shell-BP, which will be given a commercial opportunity to buy additional crude from the Nigerian government, produces 60 percent of the nation's daily output of close to two million barrels of crude oil.

The financial requirements of the company will now be met by both partners in the agreement, according to their corresponding shares in the company.

Nigeria is expected to move into second place past Venezuela this year as the second largest exporter of oil to the U.S. The Canadian government ranks first in exporting.

Kidney Foundation

About a year ago we talked with an official of the National Kidney Foundation in Des Moines about another organization raising money for kidney patients. He explained that the other group was raising money by direct mail...a process so expensive that he doubted there would be much left over for the patients.

He was right. You may have seen the story recently about this other group; it spent only about 5 cents of every dollar raised on patient care, while the other 95 cents went for mailing and administration. It's being investigated for possible mail fraud.

We mention this because we don't want you to get the stories confused with the National Kidney Foundation which is active in Des Moines and Iowa. The National Kidney Foundation puts the bulk of its money into programs, and spends 21 percent on administration.

The National Kidney Foundation is well established, and has a fine record. It is well respected in Iowa and over the nation. It would be unfortunate if the National Kidney Foundation was damaged by confusion with any other group.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Opening Daughter's Mail

Eighteen-year-old Phyllis stalled so long in paying for a dress that the store's collection department decided to get tough. They fired off a nasty letter to Phyllis' home, where she lived with her parents.

But instead of paying the bill, she filed suit against the store for defamation of character.

"I was so mortified," she told the court. "My parents opened the letter and read all those awful things about me."

However, the court said the store could not fairly have expected the letter to be read by anyone else. Denying Phyllis' claim, the court said it is simply not customary nowadays for parents to open the mail of an 18-year-old girl.

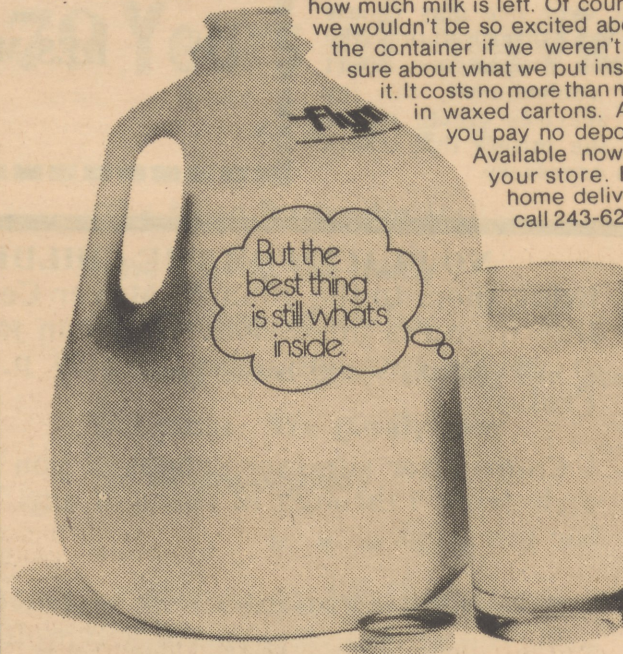

When should you assume that a letter you send may be read by someone other than the addressee? This question, which is sometimes crucial in a defamation suit, is usually answered on the basis of "reasonable foreseeability"—as in the above case.

Thus, different circumstances may bring a different answer. In another case a store wrote a letter to a 14-year-old boy, accusing him of theft and threatening to send him to prison. He showed the letter to his parents, who promptly brought a defamation suit on their son's behalf.

There are lots of great things about this new Flynn plastic gallon jug.

On Sunday morning Mr. Ralph Barr was honored at a breakfast given by Ms. Maude White and attended by the staff of the Iowa State Civil Rights Commission. The affair was given in the beautiful penthouse apartment of Ms. White.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Hayes and son, Alvin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bagby, Mr. and Mrs. Darold Luze, and the hostess, Ms. White.

It has come to my attention that much criticism has been launched against the Iowa State Civil Rights Commission for pursuing discrimination under the theory of patterns and practices which is in effect an attempt by the agency to eliminate discrimination as its affects identifiable classes or groups protected by the law. One of the leading critics of the Commission's activity was Senator Tom Riley, from Cedar Rapids, whose law firm has lost two profound cases of class discrimination to the Civil Rights Commission and also lost a client, who determined that the thrust of the Civil Rights Commission was correct and the legal advice they had received was incorrect. And it is noteworthy that Senator Riley shared in the proceeds of those cases pursued by the Civil Rights Commission and in which his law firm participated.

Also it is noteworthy that the two leaders of the opposition against the Civil Rights Commission in the House of Representatives is Rep. Neilsen whose law firm also lost two cases to the Civil Rights Commission and, since as a partner to that firm, also shared in the proceeds.

It would appear that both Senator Riley and Senator Neilsen should disqualify themselves from attacking the Civil Rights Commission in view of their obvious conflict and biased attitude.

Another loud voice heard in protest against the Iowa Civil Rights Commission is that of Sen. Minnette Doderer who on one hand claims loud support for women's rights and, in ignorance of the needs of other protected classes, proceeds to direct her attack at the Civil Rights Commission by handcuffing the appropriation of that agency and thus crippling the activities of the agency. Perhaps her allegiance could be affirmed if the director were white and female.

The fourth voice of outstanding influence being heard from the legislature attacking the Civil Rights Commission is also that voice of Senator Elizabeth Shaw from Davenport whose husband is employed by Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric, the same utility company who just went through a public hearing held by the Iowa Civil Rights Commission. It would seem to us that an agency in doing its job should not be victimized for performing its functions by those legislators in positions of power, or who have had to comply with the State Law eliminating discriminatory practices. While they maintain their claim of liberalism their actions stink of racism.

DIFFERENT HOT CANAPE

For an intriguingly different taste, try this hot canape idea. Slice a banana crosswise and marinate the slices in lemon juice. On buttered toast rounds, place a banana slice. Top with crumbled American blue cheese and a walnut half. Toast under the broiler until the cheese melts.

Blue cheese ham-pinwheels make a wonderful addition to your hors d'oeuvre selection, and they're easy to make, too. Blend softened American blue cheese with prepared mustard and mayonnaise. Spread on thin slices of cooked ham, roll tightly and wrap in saran. Chill for several hours. Remove from refrigerator and slice crosswise into pinwheels.

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA SORORITY MEMBERS AT LUNCHEON

The Mid-Western Regional Public luncheon got underway around 1:00 o'clock to begin a most rewarding experience which pulled the reigns of friendship just a little bit tighter between six midwestern states.

It was held at the Hotel Savery on Saturday, June 16, 1973, in the Des Moines Room by the Iota Zeta Omega chapter of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority.

Itinerary for the 1973 Conference, including the luncheon, was Daily Workshop Sessions, Committee Meetings, and Reports. The theme for 1973 was: "Greater Involvement: Alpha Kappa Alpha's Responsibility."

Soror Billiejean Morrow, Iota Zeta Omega, served as mistress of ceremonies, setting the pace with witty answers and catchy statements.

Prelude was by Soror Ronetta Buford (Mu Omega) who ended it in a welcome saying "Our welcome mat is still and always open."

Rev. James A. Harris gave an inspiring invocation and blessing for the luncheon and afterwards Soror Morrow announced that he is also running in the National Educational Association Election for the office of President Elect.

Soror Carolyn Thomas, Beta Beta, rendered a solo, the very beautiful, "Exodus", as the crowd listened and enjoyed it.

Area Director of this region Mrs. Willie Glanton, (Links, Inc.) gave greetings to the Iowans and out-of-towners. Afterward Soror Dorothy Parker, Mid-Western Regional Director, responded.

Soror Barbra Gentry, Conference Chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Allen J. Correll, Director of the Human Rights Commission.

Mr. Correll gave a "command speech" on "Black Experience and Black Excellence", with an added touch of "Racism and Being Involved". He was commended with a standing ovation afterward. During his speech he made a very truthful statement that sums up the reason well. He said, "I'm proud to see young people with honors because as you and I both know, Black Power without Black Brains does not count."

$3,500.00 worth of scholarships were awarded by Soror Mary Clark, Chapterpresident from Des Moines. Ten out of 55 applications were selected to receive scholarships from 200 to 500 dollars to the college or university of their choice.

Only three out of ten were able to be present to receive their awards. They were: Gale Austin, a graduate of Tech High School, who will be attending the University of Iowa this Fall. Cheryl Bolden a junior at William Penn College. Then Jerry Harris, a graduate of Valley High School and also the son of Rev. James Harris, who gave the invocation, who will be attending the University of Colorado.

The seven who were not present were Karen Perkins, from Davenport, who will be attending Drake university. Mary LaVantees, of East Moline, Illinois, who will be attending the University of Iowa. Michael Smith, of South East Community College. Gene Stubblefield for Clinton Community College and Mark Moore.

Then two others from Des Moines: Beverly Smith for Area 11 Community College and Gayla Nesbitt a graduate of Roosevelt High School to attend the University of Kansas.

There were three alternates: Ricky Keegan, Terry Hayman, and Denise Jones. The Chairman of the Scholarship Committee is Soror Betty Hyde.

Soror Dorothy M. Parker, Mid-Western Regional Director, was presented the key to the City by Mrs. Dorothy Caudill for Mayor Richard Olsen.

National Officers and special guests included: Mary Williams, South Central Regional Director, Little Rock, Arkansas; Carolyn Banner, past Mid-Western Regional Director, Jefferson City, Missouri; Rosetta Webb, also a past Mid-Western Regional Director from Kansas City, Kansas. Wesselyn Simpson, a member of the National Constitution Committee from Langston, Oklahoma; Helen Anderson, past Midwestern Regional Director, Wichita, Kansas, Francine Outen, National Program Consultant from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Claudette Goss, a member of the National nominating committee of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, and the present Mid-Western Regional Director, Dorothy M. Parker, also from Oklahoma City, Okla.

The National President, Mrs. Mattelia Graves of Houston, Texas, was unable to attend.

Ligons Challenges State Board of Education

In a meeting Tuesday, Charles Ligons of 1802 Grand Ave., Cedar Rapids Iowa, met with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Mr. Robert Benton, to discuss the guidelines issued a few months ago, directing the School Boards in Iowa to take immediate steps to reduce the minority group isolation in this state.

The meeting lasted about an hour and thirty minutes in which Dr. Benton reaffirmed his and the Boards position on the desegregation guidelines. Which reduces minorities to 20 per cent.

Mr. Benton said, "1. The guidelines are suggestions only, and are not enforceable, neither were they meant to be. 2. It is not an attempt to force busing. 3. The District School Boards are the authority to decide the blame on the State Board."

Mr. Ligon retaliated by asking, "If these guidelines are only suggestions and not enforceable, then why are the various school boards attempting a forced busing policy?" "They know they don't have to do this," said Mr. Benton, "they are only trying to use us. The guidelines are suggestions only." "Will you withdraw your guidelines? Then they won't have anything to hide behind," asked Mr. Ligons. "I can't," Mr. Benton replied, "the State Board must be petitioned in order to make any changes. These are their ideas and not mine alone." "Then I shall petition the State Board of Education because I cannot accept the guidelines as issued because they are de-humanizing and insulting," Ligon replied angrily, "I am an one hundred per cent American and I am entitled by Constitutional Authority if no more to all of the rights and privileges of any other American, black or white. As also says the State Code of Iowa." (Executive order number fifteen, article I, Statement of Policy.)

Throughout the discussion Ligons played tape recordings for Dr. Benton so that he might see and hear for himself how the Cedar Rapids School Board had reacted to the guidelines issued by the Department of Public Instruction.

Meeting adjourned. Next step Kirkwood College, July 19th, or District Court, or Supreme Court which will it be?

Ken Warren

It has always been one of my greatest aspiration to author the Great American novel on a famous play. Unfortunately this dream of a lifetime has not yet fell into my realm of possibilities. So for the next week or so, I shall try to realize one of my long stifled dreams. The first order of business for an author is to select his subject matter and his cast of characters. How about "The Rape of The Federal Dollar" or "The Life & Death of Citizen's Participation" either title maybe appropriate, I'll let you determine as we go along. Casting is next and our production has a cast of thousands but the leading roles are sophistication and syndication. What category does our story fall in? That's a difficult question to answer as it has been in my opinion, a tragedy, a mystery, a comedy and perhaps a musical as everyone seems to be either humming or dancing to the Tune-master's music. Our story begins in a medium size midwestern ghetto in the year of 1968, the principals at this point are a small group of naive, disadvantaged, neglected persons of this particular community. The mood of the times is that these persons and others like them should and are to be helped. So now enters the great bearer of false hopes and gifts, the "federal government". This great and generous entity decided to make this particular community a Model City which according to the advance ideology would be the salvation of all down trodden mankind. Upon becoming a demonstration city the formation of a unit known as the Citizen Participation Group was formed. This unit was to help decide where, when and how the millions of dollars were to be utilized for the creation of a partial utopia or at least if you read the overviews of the policy of this Model City Agency that is what you would have perceived. Now that we have set the atmosphere of our story we can begin to get into the meat or the body of this great work of art. Unfortunately this will have to be done in series, since I do not have the permission of the editor to monopolize the whole paper. I will continue this story in the next issue and I ask you to stay with me as this just might prove to be enlightening and interesting as the story unfolds. In the next weeks of my columns, I will try to bring you from the inception of the Model City concept up to the present day involvement within our city. It may surprise you to know the magnitude of deception that has been perpetrated against the people of this community. I sincerely hope you will stay with me during this, if no more than for your information.

BAHAMAS GIVEN ITS FREEDOM BY BRITAIN

London — (NBNS) — The Bahamas has been given its independence by the British House of Lords and last weekend the island celebrated its independence.

Lady Tweedsmuir, minister of state for foreign affairs, rejected the request of inhabitants of the island of Abaco for special crown-cology status. She said the British government feared fragmentation in the Caribbean if Abaco was allowed to secede from the Bahamas.

The elected government of the Bahamas and the opposition party there apparently opposed the move as well, she said.

W.E.B. DuBois On Watergate

In the monthly report of the Center for African and African-American Studies at Atlanta University, the words of the late Dr. W. E. B. DuBois were cited with reference to the recent Watergate mess. "...the greatest and most immediate danger of white culture, perhaps least sensed, is its fear of truth, its childish belief in the efficacy of lies as a method of human uplift," DuBois had said.

"The truth of that perception has been borne home to us again through Watergate which, as we had suspected, has implicated the former attorney general, the former secretary of commerce, the former head of the FBI and everybody in and around the White House, it seems, except the elevator boy," the monthly report commented. "Watergate shows us the profound criminal and corrupt nature of white politics in America. It shows us that we may have erred in our denunciations of the system as corrupt. It is probably more accurate to say that corruption is the system. Thus the challenge to black politics is not merely posed by the manifest degeneracy of white politics, but by its very design and workings."

The report said that although greater numbers of blacks have been elected to offices recently, black politicians are still largely helpless to counteract governmental reflection of black people. It cited "calculated withdrawal of federal support from black America" and "the transparent inability of white politics to solve any of America's problems" (white or black) as the reason for the helpless state of black politicians.

"We have seen," the report continued, "that neither black Carl Stokes nor white John Lindsay have been able to solve the problems of Cleveland and New York City through traditional American politics... The myth we must lay to rest is that American structures under white or black 'control' can produce the changes in material and moral life that black people (and the whole society) now need."

"WE SHALL OVERCOME" BANNED IN SOUTH AFRICA

(NBNS) — American folksinger Pete Seeger's "We Shall Overcome" recording has been banned by the South African government. The government pointed to the white minority government's official policy of racial segregation.

Foreman Could Be The Best Ever

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AANS) - Muhammad Ali stepped into the ring unprepared for Ken Norton, got his jaw broken and lost a 12-round decision. Joe Frazier stepped into the ring unprepared for George Foreman, got knocked out in two rounds and lost his heavyweight title.

These two single events have literally thrown the heavyweight boxing picture into turmoil.

But when the smoke clears, don't be too surprised to see George Foreman still on top.

He is the biggest and youngest of all three and at this point in time, he is the best of the three as well.

Foreman remains somewhat of an enigma and still suspect in the eyes of some Blacks because of his flag waving routine at the 1968 Mexico City Olympics.

But that was five years ago, and George Foreman is not the same person today, by any stretch of the imagination.

Foreman is a young man whose mind is totally together and he is very sure of his own ability.

At the same time, he holds great respect for Frazier, the former champion whom he defeated Jan. 22 in Jamaica, and for Ali, with whom an eventual showdown is quickly nearing.

THE THREE COMPARED

Ali was probably the greatest fighter ever at one point in his career. But he is no longer that, especially when it comes to preparing for a fight - and Ali himself knows it.

Joe Frazier may never be the same after the beating he took from Ali, but he is a courageous fighter and may very well come back.

Foreman not only possesses unlimited ability, but he is hungry as well.

"I like fighting right now, because there's still something I haven't done yet. I want to keep fighting until I get on the top, reach the pinnacle," he said before the Frazier fight.

"But Frazier and Ali, what do they have to accomplish?" he asks.

Noting the jubilant action of the two former title holders following victories over relatively minor contenders, Foreman wondered, "How much water's got to go under the bridge? How many times you got to go into a gym and work on the same thing when you got nothing left to prove?"

Joe Frazier, Foreman contends, is now fighting only for money. "You can get hurt fighting just for money," warned Foreman. But, "you never get hurt fighting for pride and achievement."

In the next year or so all three will fight opponents like Jerry Quarry, Jimmy Ellis, Joe Bugner and the rest. Ali and Frazier will finally fight a rematch, which Muhammad will train for properly and win.

Then will come the final showdown: Ali vs Foreman. And as painful as it is to go against Ali, Foreman will beat him. He's just too big and too fast for Muhammad.

Many a fight fan and Ali follower never thought the day would come when Ali could be seriously hurt in the ring. But Ken Norton showed that it could be done.

The George Foreman, although he would never admit it, is bothered by the thought that he too might seriously wound the once invincible Muhammad Ali.

DUAL CITIZENSHIP FOR BLACK AMERICANS

Washington — (NBNS) — Liberia's President William Tolbert did a good job last week of remaining non-committal about the question of dual citizenship for Black Americans, as suggested by a civil rights leader last year.

Operation PUSH's Jesse Jackson, after a trip to Africa last fall, came back to the U.S. and suggested a plan that would permit Black Americans to retain their U.S. citizenship and become liberian citizens as well.

But President Tolbert, who was here as part of a 20 day visit at the invitation of President Nion, said the proposal would require a constitutional amendment and general referendum in his country before it could be enacted. He maintained, however, that he was deeply interested in the project.

"It's a little complicated and would take very much study," Tolbert told reporters.

Jackson, the president of the Chicago-based economic development organization, insisted that he was not just talking about a cultural alliance. He said he wanted an economic one as well.

Liberia is unique in Africa in that only blacks are permitted to become citizens and only citizens can own land there. Jackson said he felt Liberian citizenship should be available to Black Americans in much the same way as Israeli citizenship is acquired by Jews.

And whether the dual citizenship issue is a reality in a few years, President

Tolbert made it clear that the image of top hats and tin roofs that flourished under the autocratic regime of the late President William Tubman has changed in the small African nation of 1.5 million.

Part of that change is evidenced in his nation's attitude toward black Americans. The country is actively seeking technicians and businessmen to allow liberia to successfully complete its transition from an agricultural to an industrial economy.

They also want engineers for roadbuilding, construction and telecommunication specialists and others who would be helpful in the nation-building.

Framing lumber left exposed adds design interest to a house.

We miss you!
But remember, too
The light shown here
As the morning dew!

Awakening one to a better

With a lifted head
And not a broken heart.
All because a light blazed

Radiating far and near.

Thinking of the beautiful life
That has flown
Back to her creator where
It came from.
It touched so many lives
You know
She would help you across

Census Survey

Which way is the U.S. birth rate going? Will it continue its recent downward course or will it reverse the trend? Guy A. Lutz, Director of the Bureau of the Census Data Collection Center in St. Paul, announced today that a survey in this area will help to answer the question. Information on birth expectations will be collected here the week of June 18-22 from a sample of households.

Census Bureau interviews will ask wives how many children they expect to have within the next 5 years. The responses will indicate the future growth and composition of the Nation's population, data vital to planners both in government and private business.

Householders in the sample will also be asked about benefits from various government and private programs. Answers to these questions will be used to evaluate the effect of such income on the economy of the country.

The questions are in addition to the usual ones asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Census Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

K. C. Jones

K. C. Jones, the former Boston Celtic star, last week resigned as coach of the ABA's San Diego Conquistadors in the first year of a three year contract.

However, the news in the Washington area is that the 41-year-old Jones, who played guard with the Celtics 13 years during which he was on eight NBA championship teams, will become the new manager of the Capital (formerly Baltimore) Bullets.

WHAT HAPPENED?

Washington Redskins Coach George Allen did a little more wheeling and dealing last week and came up with Dave Robinson, the former Green Bay Packer linebacker who was traded to last year's NFC champs for a No. 2 draft choice in January, but who had previously said "no" to a determined and persistent Allen.

Robinson had been named director of minority affairs for a brewing company and said he believed that position offered him and his family more security than football.

Results of this monthly survey provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the Nation. The April survey showed that employment, at 83.9 million seasonally adjusted, was little changed from March. Employment remained essentially unchanged at 5.0 percent, but was substantially below the 5.8 percent of April a year ago.

The households in this area taking part in the survey are among the 50,000 across the country scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all households.

All information about individuals and families provided the Census Bureau is held confidential by law and can be published only as statistical totals.

The interviewer who will visit households in this area is Mr. Marian J. Karsjens.

sports

by Allen Ashby

Today we have so many black athletes that we just assume that it was always so. There have been some outstanding black athletes in both the colleges and high schools around the state at a time when they sometimes made news just by showing up. Then just about every news story that mentioned a black player in any sport took pains to let you know that he was black. Some stories would name the fellow and then have the word "colored" in parentheses after the name. I never saw him, but old timers tell me that the finest black football player of his day was a big fellow named Maceo Richmond who played at the old Des Moines University. As I get it, he was elected captain of his team for the year 1917, thus becoming the first black to become captain of an Iowa college team in any sport. But, it was said that the entrance of U.S. in World War I sent Richmond off to war, and he never got to play that year because he joined the officer's training school at Fort Des Moines. By the way, some of the black people who later became prominent later after the war were at that school. The late Charley Howard, J.B. Morris, Jim Mitchell to mention a few.

Then there was Sol Butler of Dubuque University. Sol was a three sport man and was a star in baseball, football and track. He made the Olympic team in 1920, but I think he hurt his leg and didn't get to compete after they got over there. Sol had a tremendous chest that stuck out, and when he walked with his chest and his jaw so prominent, he looked like an English bulldog. But the guy could jump then and run. Sometimes he was called a one man track team, and he was hard to bring down when he played halfback for the Dubuque school. I heard that he played basketball, too, but just couldn't find time to work the game into a busy schedule. I got acquainted with Butler in the forties when he was director of athletics in Chicago's south side playgrounds. The guy was a fine organizer, and when he felt that he didn't know about a sport, he wasn't too vain to ask someone else to help him with it, and often turned over that part of his program to the fellow. I think he was given the job as a political bone, but he surprised everyone by working at it, and being dead serious about making black kids the finest athletes in the city. If they weren't it wasn't his fault. He was killed in some sort of shooting mixup on the south side, but his work went on until today you have some of the finest playground athletes to be found anywhere playing on the fields of Chicago.

A look at sports in retrospect

Of course everyone who follows sports knows about Duke Slater, so we will just skip him, but I must tell you this. Back in 1919, there was a fine officer's football team at Camp Dodge. It was arranged to have them play Iowa University in a charity exhibition game. Well, on that Camp Dodge team was a fellow from Georgia University. I was just a kid, but I never got so mad in my life when I read that the game officials asked this guy from the south if he had any objections to playing against Slater, and if the guy had said yes, they would have kept Duke out of the game. As I recall it, the game ended in a scoreless tie, and the reporters crowded around the fellow from the south, asking him how it felt to play against a black. To his credit, he replied that he didn't have time to worry about the color of the man's skin, because he was too busy trying to keep him out of the plays.

Most of you know that Charley Howard played end for Drake, but did you know that he was fast enough to win hundred yard dashes, and husky enough to place in the shot put that was part of the Iowa college track meets that were held in those days? There was a fellow named Smith who was I believe, the first black to play for Iowa State. When the Cyclones played Nebraska, the coach of the Cornhuskers was asked if he minded the presence of Smith in the lineup. He said no, because after they hit him a few times he would wish he was somewhere else. Well, Smith just about took that fine Nebraska line apart that day, and they never forgot him. The last time I saw him Smith was coaching at Marriana high school in Arkansas. Then there was another player who was very emotional. Jack Trice played tackle for Iowa State, and was injured in a game against Minnesota. Today he would have been taken out of the game, but then it was a point of pride for a black player to stay in the game as long as he could crawl. So he was so badly injured that he later died of his wounds and of course, everybody said some fine things about him that they probably wouldn't have said if he hadn't died.

I hate to mention the family, but I wouldn't be fair if I didn't give the devil his dues. Brother Lucius was a fine player for Penn College of Oskaloosa, and later became one of the first assistant coaches in the state. Lucius was a fine ball lugger, but his long distance place kicking was some thing to see. He just about never missed from about the forty five yard line in, and once in a while he would boot one fifty yards or better. He says his longest was a fifty five yard boot that beat Parsons College in 1922. Now, he was doing his place kicking when everybody else was dropkicking the ball. Coe College had a star named Bob Collins who was talked about by everybody in Cedar Rapids. The fellow got some good stories in the papers, and once I remember seeing a picture of him breaking through the line in some game, and him looking from left to right as he came through. You didn't see many black gridironers on the sports page pictures of the Register then, so I never forgot that one. There were some good high school players, too, but they will have to wait for another time.

Urban League

Vernon E. Jordan, Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, today sent a scathing protest to the federal Office of Economic Opportunity condemning that agency's consideration of a $3 million program to propagandize self-help programs. The agency move was revealed in a Washington Post story that said consideration was being given to a grant to the U.S. Jaycees "to disseminate success stories of self-help groups at the poverty level."

Jordan acted because OEO has cut funds and phased out direct aid to community action groups.

To: Mr. Allen Ashby

Hi fella! I know you are surprised to get a letter from me, but I have just finished reading your columns in the Bystander and I must tell you they are GREAT! I especially enjoyed those on Jesse Frazier and Ronzo Hayes. There was a wealth of natural athletes, in Des Moines, born thirty years too soon. Think what fellows like Trap Miller, Eddie Barber, and Henry Crump and others could have been today, especially with a little minor league training.

Naturals like Mose Hayes, Toady Jackson, Bob Van Dever could have made it in football or baseball.

News of Bus Brown's death makes me realize so many of the old timers are gone or going. I am coming home this month for one last look (maybe) before they all go. I don't mean maybe I'm coming, I mean maybe my last visit.

See you later in the month. So long,

Tevis E. Jaco

P.S. You're gotten to be quite a Journalist.

The Flip Side

According to reports published by the Boston Herald American, new NBA Seattle SuperSonics coach Bill Russell owes the Federal Government ($34,430) thirty-four thousand, four hundred thirty dollars in back taxes for 1969 and 1970, the Internal Revenue Service has placed a lien on his Reading, Mass. home, and the Small Business Administration is seeking payment of a portion of a ($90,000) ninety thousand loan made to the former Boston Celtic and his wife for the purchase of a restaurant which later failed.

Two weeks ago, Russell had rapped the city of Boston and the local media for "racist" treatment of black players in covering sports.

ALTHEA GIBSON (left), twice undefeated United States and Wimbledon Women's Singles Champion, has been named national director for the Pepsi-Cola Mobile Tennis Program. Miss Gibson is shown here with youngsters discussing the summer program.
