Push Plans To Sock It To Big Business

By National Black News Service

Chicago—(NBNS)— If the success of the second annual Operation PUSH (People United to Save Humanity) convention is any indication of the success its leader, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, will have in his negotiations with big business, then the latter had better look out.

Concluding a four-day meeting here last week, the fiery and dynamic Jackson said that the 18-month-old organization will double its membership during the next year and vowed to bring America's 100 largest corporations "to their senses or their knees" in getting them to give blacks a proportionate share of the nation's economic wealth.

"It boils down to this," said Jackson in an interview. "If we as a community buy 20 per cent of General Motors cars, we want 20 per cent of their jobs, and 20 per cent of their business spending put into our community. They've (big business) got to advertise, so let them give 20 per cent of their advertising to black agencies. They've got to bank, so do 20 per cent of their banking with black banks.

"They need insurance, let them buy it from black companies.... This is how we can really help ourselves," explained Jackson, who headed the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Operation Breadbasket here until a rift with the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, head of SCLC.

"It's high time someone recognizes the sovereign state of poverty," said Jackson.

Rev. Jesse Jackson

More than 1,000 black leaders from 30 states attended the convention, which was intentionally lacking what Jackson called "the hotel suite hospitality tempo of white corporate America." Instead, PUSH conducted workshops designed to train leaders how to stage selective demonstrations and boycotts of local businesses and how to negotiate with major corporations.

PUSH has 25,000 dues-paying members with 15 branch chapters in major cities across the nation. "We hope to double our number of chapters and I'm certain we'll double our membership over the next year," said Jackson.

hundred a month to ($24,000) twenty four thousand dollars per year. The Bystander asked about the matter in order to present a broader view.

An agreement was made in the form of a lease on the third day of July, 1972 by and between the Community Concerns Corp. of the city of Des Moines, county of Polk, state of Iowa and Greater Opportunity Inc.

Article four in the lease states that, leases shall not sell or assign this lease or sublet said premises or any part thereof without the written consent of lessor. If lessee sublet to any other organization lessor will increase the rent accordingly.

A lease effective July 1, 1973 was signed between Greater Opportunity and Supplement Food Program of Polk County at the rate of $225.00 a month.

A restaurant or lunch room was being operated in the lower level of the building at an assumed profit. After consideration of the breach of lease Community Concerns suggested an increase in the rent from this present rate to 14,400.00 per year, for the two top floors, now being operated by Gateway. The sums result from the charge of 75 cents per square foot. The final figures have not as yet become firm. Community Concerns and Greater Opportunities were or are suppose to meet Monday August 13th, for negotiation.

However, regarding the agreement between Greater Opportunity and Polk County, reason must be employed by Community Concern.

Greater Opportunity agrees to reimburse the Polk County Department of Social Services for distribution cost to Marion Warren and Jasper Counties at actual cost for salaries, transportation and storage. Therefore it would appear that Gateway made no money but performed a service that was sorely needed.

FLA. COURT UPHOLDS STATE'S DEATH PENALTY

Tallahassee, Fla.— (NBNS)— The Florida Supreme Court last week upheld the state's new death penalty law in a 5-to-2 opinion which said the measure contains sufficient safeguards against bias and whimsy.

The first enacted after the U.S. Supreme Court banned capital punishment nationwide last year, the state law calls for a two-stage trial with the jury advising the judge on the penalty and the judge alone making the decision. If the sentence is death, the State Supreme Court must review it and could reduce the sentence to life imprisonment.

Civil rights lawyers and public defenders who had challenged the act said they would seek an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Met Pam Murphy and Charles Johnson in our Olympus Lodge here! Meeting people is a surprise and in our very own motel t's cause for celebration! The two are psychology majors at the University of Illinois, in Urbana. Pam came out just to see The Rocky Mountains at Charles' insistence. The Rockies simply draw Charles. He is from Missouri but having once lived in the Rockies, he must always return. He is employed for the summer at Boulder, Colorado. His work ends in about a week and he will return to Urbana. Enroute he will stop at Davenport, Iowa, for a family reunion of the Johnson clan.

Met Jean Russell and her husband at Morehead's Super Market. They were in Estes Park just for the weekend. Often come up from Denver for the weekend. Nice? They had heard Horace Henderson and his Combo at the Black Canyon Ranch. They said his show was very good.

I have meant to hear Horace Henderson but driving the Buick convertible back into town alone and returning to this pitch black place at night just isn't for me. It is a silly attitude seeing as how the only things around to catch me are the chipmunks and ground squirrels.

On Sunday night we did treat ourselves to a night out. We saw "I do! I Do!" at Crags Lodge, the Alpine Supper Theatre. It was a Broadway Musical Comedy of 40 years of married life, Book and Lyrics by Tom Jones and music by Harvey Schmitt. Plus the Hilltoppers, a group of college students. An idea very much like our Holiday Inn Downtown, Top of the Towers group. They are delightful and hardworking performers. The show was very exciting and good.

The evening was a long one: the theatre opened at 5:00 p.m.; dinner at 6:45 p.m.; showtime 8:30 p.m. Dancing followed the show!

Usually it's early to bed in order to have a full day the next day. And after our activities, we're ready for bed. One goes into the mountains early -- the afternoons are for the daily storms. Monday's rain included sleet. Lots of it! We walk the mountain trails early and are down by 1:00 o'clock because the skies begin to cloud and the storms begin.

We are both dieting, so lunch is meager. Each morning upon awakening we check the scales. I've lost 5 lbs. in the first week and I am trying for another 5 or more!

We've experienced sitting in line for gas. We were first there but ended up fourth in line. Ill mannered people got in front of us was our problem.

Evenings are spent shopping and window-shopping. The stores are fabulous. In a leather shop, I met Mrs. Gloria Evans and Ms. Geraldine Brown, of Chicago, Illinois. They were members of a chartered bus tour by a group of choir members of Liberty Baptist Church in Chicago. The tour had gone from Chicago to Denver, Estes Park, Colorado Springs, Colorado and St. Louis, Missouri, and back to Chicago. Mrs. Evans is a housewife and Ms. Brown is employed at the University of Illinois' food department as a cashier.

The birds of the mountains are exciting to see! The large ones are camp robbers, Magpies and Canadian Blue Jays. These birds are as large as young fliers. And noisy!

As we drove down from our parking place in the Rockies, a very large animal emerged from a big hole at the side of the rode. My friend called out "Look, Marri. Look!" She slowed to a stop. The large animal, a marmot, reversed his position to one facing us: letting us know that we were something to stare at, too. He stood upright. He was the largest marmot we've seen. He stood about 2 feet high. The largest we've seen anywhere! He was wide, too.

As we swung along the mountain rode enroute back to town there was a group of people stopped beside the road: two or three cars, motorcycles and individuals all gathered in one spot beside the hi-way. We looked in the direction they were all facing. There we saw our first deer. A pair of them. One walking carefully away from the crowd and the other one eating very hungrily. Did not mind the onlookers.

As I look at the mountains and all the greenery surrounding me, I am certain that there are animals there looking out at me. But usually they are only chipmunks, ground squirrels and tree squirrels. I keep telling my friend that I think there are bears there, too. But she says no that the

MAMMIE WOODFORK RETURNS TO STATES

After leaving the Islands, Mammie went to Jacksonville, Florida and was entertained by Mr. & Mrs. Ernest Smith. From there she went to New York to visit her sister, Marie Mannings. Her last stop was to Naptune, New Jersey, she was entertained with a beach party given by Mr. & Mrs. Victor Queenann.

Jolly 16 Club

The Jolly 16 Club of West Des Moines, met August 3, at the home of Celia Firth. After the business meeting the hostess served a lovely repast. The following officers and members are: President Shirley Page; Vice Pres., Iris Herndon; Secretary, Barbara Long; Treasurer, Cilia Firth; Reporter, Wilhelmina Watson; Social, Genovia Hughes and Cheryl Wells; Advisors, Jencie Page and Elizabeth Perkins. Next meeting August 10th, at the home of Iris Herndon, 132-8th, W.D.M.

bears are in Allenspark near here. I ask but what keeps them in Allenspark and not here. She says she guesses Estes Park is too densely populated. I hope and I pray that she is right. I really do. Really.

Crays Lodge, the Alpine Supper Theatre, is a hotel. Enormous and built into the mountain. The wash rooms are in the basement. One side of the long corridor is pure rock, painted white. Just where they cut the rocky walls to build this house. Isn't that awesome? Then there are other dwellings sitting on the tiptop of a mountain. Others tucked into the hillside. Now wouldn't you like to own a few feet of the Rocky Mountains? Just a small area? Let's try it? Okay!

COE College News

The fall publication of MWENDO, Iowa's only Black literary magazine, will be on sale on news stands in selected cities throughout Iowa, the East Coast, and in Chicago in about a month.

The summer edition of the illustrated poetry and prose magazine of Black awareness, now in its second year of publication by students at Coe College, is now on the news stands on an experimental basis to determine general public acceptance.

The title comes from the Swahili language meaning journey, caravan, or progress. "so it gives the publication a moving name to match its moving contents," says editor Mark Johnson, 22, a Coe student from Montclair, New Jersey.

Johnson (who uses "Gaga" as his African literary name) said the Fall issue will feature an interview with Ishmael Reed, who was nominated in two categories for the National Book Award, and is the author of the novel, Mumbo Jumbo.

Funds to publish the magazine come from the Coe student government and magazine sales. In addition, the editorial board of MWEDNO, composed of Johnson, students Paul Young, St. Louis, Mo., and Lord E. Smith, East St. Louis, Ill., and Coe assistant professor of English, James H. Randall, are applying for a grant from the Coordinating Council of Literary Magazines in New York City.

"One might question the validity of having a Black literary magazine in a place like Iowa where only .9 per cent of the population is black," Johnson said. "Others might accuse the editor of such a magazine of practicing racism in reverse. But true black art has always served its purpose."

"MWENDO can be a vehicle of communication between Blacks," Johnson added. "And MWENDO tries to be a medium of truth, a weapon against wrongs and oppression which will be beneficial to anyone who wishes to read it with an open mind."

Round the City

By Ken Warren

The last few articles have been in the area of the Model City Concept and it's related steps leading to the revenue sharing concept. I hope these articles have been informing and have stimulated some serious thought that will create some type of action on the part of the citizens of the community. A good lawyer at the end of the presentation of his case, then goes into his summation for the purpose of reviewing his case to a just decision by a jury. As a columnist and I use this in it's broadest terms it is my duty and desire to bring to your attention the facts and let you as the jury make your own decision. My only hope is that it will not be continued complacency but rather a change to action directed at creating change. I wish to review some of the highlights of the preceding articles. The model cities concept was more than a idea it was congressional law duty voted and passed by this body in other words it was the law of the land. It stated certain phraselologies and criterias that were to be followed. It was endorsed by all elements of the federal government thus indicating it was the intent and will of the people as these governmental agencies and persons represent the voice of the majority. If this is so my only question is how can a local power structure be allowed to preempt the will of the decision making body of our land. The language and intent of the law dealing with these concepts is very precise so there is no justification for errors. Yet many things have happened that was alien to the specific guidelines set forth. Can this be because the citizens of this community by their lack of interest allowed the power structure to run rampant over these rules and regulations by ignoring, twisting and replacing them to fit their own particular whims. It is said that monies spent on programs in the model cities area was wasted, abused, mismanaged and stolen by the opportunist and nigger felons. How can this have happened all the budgetary controls were in the hands of the administrating agencies and they were under the control and auspices of the City Council. The only mismanagement of money I have heard of was by a member of the model city staff and that was hushed up and swept under the proverbial city carpet. Every contract no matter how asinine it may have seemed in retrospect was condoned by the voting of the same City Council with a couple of exception that now in hindsight sets in judgement of these expenditures. The games have been played on you and as in baseball, once the ninth inning is over it is too late to score in that particular game. So now is the time to get prepared for the next encounter, to line up your battery and strategies for the purpose of allevating some of the social ills but unfortunately, the poor, disadvantaged and minorities have not gotten any of this sugar cake, they merely were allowed to lick the pan. The question of the hour is "Are You Going To Continue to lick the pan or after the many rip offs are you ready to get up off your knees and demand what you want instead of begging for handouts". Remember as a have nots and outcasts of the power structure whether you are from the eastside, westside, northside or southside if an individual from either of these areas is ripped off, your turn may be just around the corner.

MULTI-CULTURAL INSTITUTE DRAKE UNIVERSITY

Recently, a two-week workshop dealing with problems of inter-cultural and multi-cultural education, and centered around desegregation, was completed at Drake University. The primary goals of this institute were:

1. To improve school-community relations in Multi-Cultural Affairs.
2. To promote awareness of Multi-Cultural diversity.
3. To provide new and interesting curriculum materials to meet the needs of culturally different students.
4. To develop counseling skills and assisting minority group students.
5. To develop policies and procedures to reduce racial isolation.
6. To raise the academic achievement in racially identifiable schools.

Because of the enormous gap in ethnic knowledge of Chicanos, Blacks, Puerto Ricans, Native-Americans, and other ethnic minorities, the institute based its attention on informing the un-informed, making them aware of the problems that exist in our society today. We stressed points dealing with racism in curriculum and instructional materials, using so-called "un-prejudice" materials that teachers are still using today in their classrooms. As our main thrust, we hoped to bring out the truth in ethnic education.

The school districts included indicated an interest in participating in a multi-cultural institute at Drake University, and invitations were sent to each of the districts. The Summer Institute ran from July 23, through August 3, 1973, and was federally funded.

We requested that school districts invited supply us with a list of possible team members, each team consisting of members somewhat as follows:

1. A representative from the Central Office Staff.
2. One or two high school teachers who teach either Social Studies or English.
3. One or two elementary teachers.
4. One counselor who has responsibilities for working with minority students.

In addition to the recommendations above, each district was requested to make every effort to have at least one team member who was a representative of a minority group, such as Chicano, Native-American, or Black.

Each participant received three (3) hours graduate credit from Drake University and was not charged tuition costs.

Following the Institute, seven one-day seminars will be held at various times throughout the 1973-74 school year to assist the participants in developing and implementing the goals of the program.

The main speakers for the Institute were: (in order of appearance) Dr. Marie Fielder, University of California, Berkley, California - Introduction and Orientation, Dr. James Banks, University of Washington, Seattle, Washington - Curriculum and Specialization, Audrey Forrest, Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa - Social and Psychological Prejudice, Barbara Woodard, University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa - Guidance and Counseling, Nate Jackson, El Camino College, Via Torrance, California - Affirmative Action, Jane Elliot, Riceville, Iowa, Wesley S. Chapman, Des Moines Independent School District, Des Moines, Iowa - Administrative Actions, and Ana Ortiz, Chicago, Illinois - Instructional Materials dealing with bilingual and bi-cultural education.

The institute concluded by having a representative of each district or building discuss their groups' project-paper concerning workable solutions to problems of their district or building. Efforts to help administrators and teachers become change agents was the main objective of each speaker's preparation.

U.S. ORDERED TO SPEND EDUCATION FUNDS

Washington— (NBNS)—The Nixon Administration has been ordered to spend several million dollars in education funds that it had impounded through an economy drive. And another federal judge ordered the administration to stop plans of closing eight Public Health Service hospitals.

Both decisions, which came in U.S. District Court here, were the latest in a series of judicial setbacks for the President in his fight to impound congressionally authorized funds.

U.S. Judge Oliver Gasch, who found that HEW must release $1.1 million under the National Defense Education Act to the state of Massachusetts and the District of Columbia, said the law "requires the Commissioner of Education to allot among the states money" approved by the Congress.

At the same time, Judge John Pratt, a Republican, agreed with the Seafarers Union that there was sufficient cause to grant an injunction. He had earlier issued a temporary restraining order.

Last week, the Congress reaffirmed its desire to keep the hospitals open, which serve merchant seamen, American Indians and government employees. They have been operating for more than 180 years.

In this position, she concentrated on transportation regulatory agency practice and on general civil litigation at the trial and appellate levels. She also served as counsel to community organizations involved in health care delivery, narcotics treatment and child care.

Fine Print

It seems that "our" King, Nixon, will make his mark in history yet, although not for the same reasons that he wants.

Historians will probably call it the "Reformation of the Second Reign". Of course, we will know that this reformation was made without any help from him.

Ironically, King Nixon wanted his subjects or better yet his dupes (that's the voters) to know that his reign would be one of the status quo. But that just isn't going to be the way it is.

Actually, this is the right time to get two forms of reforms initiated and implemented before this country becomes to apathetic. The first one, reconstruction of the elective campaigning system. That's the most obvious one but there is another. That is the reform of our prison system.

The latter one because of the likelihood of someone appearing before the Watergate Committee could be imprisoned.

Thus, to lighten the load for the benefit of a few -- a larger group would appear to be a first for Nixon.

But then again Nixon's reign has been one of "firsts".

For election reform -- it may eventually lead to a base in which to change the system to help the masses of people for the better.

It appears that some peoples' attitude about Watergate is becoming like that of when this country was involved in Vietnam.

That is people are wondering -- when will it all end?

But there is a lot of similarities between Watergate and Vietnam. Although no one has been killed because of Watergate there has been a lot of character assassination.

For example, both incidents deeply severed the moral fabric of white America. Also they created morale problems for middle-America to solve as to who or what leads this country. I could tell them and so could you be they wouldn't believe you if it was written on stone tablets.

I'm surprised that Nixon has not announced that Watergate was, politically speaking, America's finest hour.

But then again the hearings are not over yet!

With this gas shortage there is an interesting

What is it?

Those abandoned gasoline stations are becoming used car lots. Which in a way is logical since you can't drive 2 or 3 cars when there is a shortage.

But, on the other hand, who's going to buy them. Unless there is some way to convert cars into decorative lawn furniture.

To add to the long list of what evils that go along with the automobile is -- you just can't put a car out to pasture. Then when it dies can you sell it for dogfood and glue?

Meatshortage

At Brownies

Brownie's Open Pit Bar-B-Que is in trouble. Two days last week Brownie's was forced to close because of the meat shortage.

We buy meat from our supplier on a day to day basis. If our supplier doesn't have any meat then we don't either, said Mrs. Mildred Brown. We know by 6 a.m. if we are going to be open for the day she continued.

Brownie's located at 2024 Forest Street is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Brown. They have been at their present location for eight years. Brownie's is the only restaurant that barbecues on an open pit with hickory wood.

Brownie's uses beef, ham and pork. Brownie's sells sandwiches and dinners. They used to sell ribs by the pound but stopped because of the meat shortage. "Meat is our business," said Mrs. Brown.

Last month Brownie's raised its price twice. The increase which was 25 cents to 30 cents, has only been on meat. Barbecue ham, pork and beef sandwiches cost $1.25. The Brownie Special includes all three meats and costs $1.50.

Mrs. Brown said that we have not had any bad comments on our prices. Most of our customers comments were that we sell the meat and raise the prices. You can just go so far.

The future of Brownie's does not look very bright. The Browns are closing August 18 for vacation. They hope to open after September first. Mrs. Brown said she felt sure that they will raise prices in the fall since meat prices will be higher.

The Browns hope to continue operating in the future.

The Last Round

After 12 years in the ring as a professional, with 6 more as an amateur, Des Moines Middelweight Art Hernandez is hanging up the gloves. Hernandez retires with a record of 46 wins ... 20 losses ... and 2 draws at the age of 32. And he has one main regret ... not that he wasn't world champ, but rather that he didn't train as well as he should have.

Hernandez says maybe he could have been better with a little more serious training. As for his main reason for quitting at this time, Art says he lost his last 3 fights to the number one and two contenders, as well as the number ten contender in New Orleans recently ... that being his last fight. He lost to Tony Licata by TKO. The big question is now ... what to do?

As with so many ex-fighters, Art is at a standstill as to a future. He says he would like to work with the youth of the area, but so far no offers along that line. He would like to coach ... but nothing there either. How about some type of publicity or promotion work? Fine ... but no one has come across so far with any offers. And there we have a typical situation.

A promising fighter spends a total of 18 years in the ring ... at one time a top contender for the World Middelweight Championship ... his purse enriched by thousands of dollars, long spent ... and now nowhere to go and nothing to do. Now this brings to mind certain action which is being performed by the current manager of Art's brother, Dale, Harvey Feilen, who also manages Lamont Lovelady, Des Moines Middelweight.

They're both young fighters and have a promising future in the fight game ... so Feilen is putting away some cash for them little by little. After every fight, he gives his fighters a certain percentage, but then banks the rest. So, when comes time for retirement, whether they've ever been a champ or not ... they'll have a little nestegg waiting for them and the pressure of finding something profitable won't be as evident.

But in Art's case he wasn't with Feilen long enough for that to happen. Apparently his previous managers didn't stock away any insurance, so Art is quitting with only the few thousand he made from his last fight in New Orleans ... but then too, we understand he didn't have that particular arrangement with Feilen while he was fighting for him anyway.

So no matter how you look at it, the only thing Art Hernandez has at the moment is a lot of great memories ... a few bruises ... and a near-empty purse. Hernandez says his toughest fight was against Nino Benvenuti in Canada, when Benvenuti was World Champ.

Maybe ... Art's toughest fight may still lie ahead of him. That being the daily

A— You may write the VA regional office director requesting a review of your case. At the same time, any additional information that would help your cause should be included in this communication.

Q— I read that a new laboratory technique invented by BA is revolutionizing medicine and science. What is it, and what is it used for?

A— Radioimmunoassay (RIA) ... a medical technique that measures extremely small amounts of substances from the body. It is being used in some hospitals in connection with treatment; for testing blood for hepatitis, and for cancer and other research.

HEW News

Washington— (NBNS)— Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger issued a memorandum to agency heads last week ordering them to submit plans by Aug. 15 to cut back the 1,200-person public affairs staff and trim its number of publications, publicity contracts, and 73 outside consultants.

"There is no place for self-serving, promotionally-oriented material in government," Weinberger said in announcing cuts in the $175 million-a-year public affairs operation. "There can be no justification for spending tax dollars needed to help the poor, the infirmed, the aged, and others in unneeded publications."

Washington— (NBNS)— A Health, Education and Welfare spokesman in the Department's Office of Education said the Government has been having difficulty in spending the $228 million appropriated by Congress in fiscal year 1973 to help local school systems desegregate.

sports retrospect

by Allen Ashby

You would have to say that the men's finals in the Hilltop tennis meet were Mark Morrow's show. I have watched him play several times and I never saw him play as well as he did Sunday. In the men's singles, he hit the ball hard and straight, and except for a slight lapse in the second set, was in command all the way. His opponent, Randy Krecji, from Cedar Rapids is a UNI player, and when he had a chance to get on the offensive, looked good, but he was kept on the defensive most of the time. In the men's doubles, Mark teamed up with a University of Iowa player, and although they hadn't played together before, looked like a team that had been together for at least the summer. They covered each other and slid into position like a big time doubles team, and the team of Harri Burrus and Tom McCollum wasn't really that bad. Mark really had the support of the family, and that may have made him play like a man possessed. The Morrors came to the meet like a gang coming to a hangin. They dropped out of the sky, popped out of the ground and came out of the trees. Everywhere you looked, there was a Morrow, and they were behind the kid all the way. I haven't seen such unanimous support by an athlete's family for I don't know how many years. This may have been the big win that Mark needed to get his confidence and believe he can win in a big meet, so maybe he will have a super summer from now on.

In the women's singles, Esther Myers, now called Snape, went out to regain the title she lost last year. I don't think she has ever lost that title two years in a row. She met Laura Williams who beat her in the semi final match last year. They stayed out there about two hours, and finally, after both contestants were about exhausted, Esther watched her opponent put one out for match point, and you should have seen the grin on Esther. She teamed with Mrs. Lena Walden of California, who used to come to the meet every year, in the women's doubles. They disposed of a couple of youngsters who had won two titles in the junior meet, but ran into trouble in their next match and were set down. Mrs. Walden dropped her match in the women's singles, and tried to get into the finals of the mixed doubles with Ron Liezerowitz, but they could not cut it.

Royal Madison came in from Chicago and got into the veteran's singles and doubles. He played a guy named John Hayes, and they had one of those marathon matches, but Madison bit the dust. Then he paired with a Father Samson to take the runnerup spot in the veteran's doubles. He and Harold McCollum made it to the semifinals in the men's doubles, before going out.

There were other people in the meet. I didn't even know that Phil Hayman played tennis, but he got into the thing and lost in the first round to a good player, Arden Stokstad, who was Iowa's number one player not too long ago. Then there was a Winston who made a good match in the men's singles before bowing out. Phil Tindrell got into the vet's singles and dropped a first round match. Last year Reggie Morrow won a trophy in the twelve and under class but this wasn't his year, and he got dusted. There were a total of eight blacks in the meet and they won or shared three titles. I wouldn't mention that, but a fellow asked me how many titles we had won over the years, and except for the women's division, it was not very good. Really, I don't consider the racial angle in this meet. It is just a tennis meet, and the only problem we are trying to solve is who is the best tennis player on that particular week end.

I think we never had better coverage at any time than we did this year, so that whatever happens from now on, we will have to say that we were damned well covered this time. Daily papers and television gave us a big play every day, and Sunday we had Dolph Pulliam who stayed nearly the whole program until he was called away on an emergency story. But if you saw the ten o'clock news Sunday you saw his story. We have never had so many people come around who just seemed to want to see the thing, and would ask how things were going. One fellow said he drove from Fairfield to see this meet because he had read about it in the paper, and wanted to see the thing. He asked some really intelligent questions, and seemed to be impressed.

I don't know how many more meets I will be around, but I must say that this was the biggest and best of them all so far. We added the Louis Miles traveling trophy in the men's singles to be won three times, and the first name to go on it will be Mark Morrow.

Replacement of older buses to be acquired from the Des Moines Metropolitan Transit Authority with new buses with the latest emission control devices will alleviate most of the air pollution caused by the buses to be replaced and installation of applicable emission control kits on 16 buses to be acquired from the Des Moines Metropolitan Transit Authority capable of conversion will reduce the air pollution presently caused by them. None of the other capital items will have significant environmental impact on the urban area.

D. COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING:

This project is in conformance with land use and transportation planning in the area. The project is currently under review by the Central Iowa Regional Association of Local Governments and the Iowa State Office of Planning and Programming. A-95 clearing houses.

E. ELDERLY AND HANDICAPPED:

The project routes are convenient to those parts of the urban area where high percentages of the elderly reside. No specially designed facilities or services for the elderly or handicapped are proposed in this project except that certain improvements such as bus stop shelters, paved passenger loading areas and new buses with air-conditioning and modern safety features, including grab rails, will especially help to meet the special needs of the elderly and handicapped persons.

II. At the hearing, the Des Moines Metropolitan Transit Authority will afford an opportunity for interested persons or agencies to be heard with respect to the social, economic and environmental aspects of the project and will hear anyone wishing to comment on the Des Moines Metropolitan Transit Authority furnishing transit service for the Des Moines urban area to the exclusion of all other agencies or private companies. Cedar Rapids, Iowa

The Iowa Bystander is our paper. In it we can express our views. Said the way that we say it. C.L.

Mis-used words. — Segregation, and De-segregation.

The words segregation, and desegregation, came into popularity about 20 years ago. The Black people in many parts of the United States were living under intensely segregated conditions. (Completely separated) Blacks were not allowed to drink from the same water fountains as whites, or eat in the same restaurants. They had to attend separate schools, and sit in separate seats on city busses.

It was because of the many segregated, and dehumanizing conditions, that many black people had to live under that the word integration became so popular. The black man asked for and demanded, to be integrated into the main stream of American society, socially, and economically. He demanded to be let in. (integrated) But before he could be let in, the strongholds of segregationism had to be broken down. (desegregated) The word desegregation originally meant to remove, or break down the barriers of segregation. The teachers of white supremacy had erected barriers to foster segregation. Governor Wallace standing in the doorway to keep a poor black child from receiving an education is a good example of the barriers of segregated schools that had to be broken down, and removed. (desegregated) Before that school could be integrated.

The word desegregation was used to limit the white mans power for oppressive action, as well as to enable the black child to gain access to an education. The word desegregation was meant to be used to break up the white mans closed schools, closed unions, restaurants, and jobs etc., so that the black child would be welcomed as a fully acceptable citizen, able to enjoy all of the benefits, and privileges of American citizenship.

To Bus his children, was not the black mans idea, and was only considered to the extent that it provided for his children an opportunity to receive a good education.

He asked for equal education, not equal bussing. When the word segregation is used in reference to a black school. The word is mis-used, and out of place. Because there are no segregated black schools. Therefore there is no need for a black school to be desegregated. Black schools have never put up barriers to keep the white man out. The black man has always welcomed the white man into the black school, and into his all black community. The black man has never overturned busses, or bombed Churches, or burned the homes of white citizens to deprive him of a job, or an opportunity to receive an education. Or tried to legislate ways to keep the whiteman down, and out.

The black man has been taught from his early childhood to love, honor, and respect the white man. It is the white man who has continually rejected the black man. The black man does not believe in segregation.
